

F6/a4

Cal.

SCS#1047e

T. F. Torrance

Card.

WORKS OF
JOHN KNOX.

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2011 with funding from Princeton Theological Seminary Library

THE WORKS OF
JOHN KNOX;

COLLECTED AND EDITED

BY DAVID LAING.

VOLUME SIXTH.

EDINBURGH:
THOMAS GEORGE STEVENSON,
22, FREDERICK STREET.

MDCCCLXIV.

AD SCOTOS TRANSEUNTIBUS PRIMUS OCCURRIT MAGNUS ILLE JOANNES
CNOXUS ; QUEM SI SCOTORUM IN VERO DEI CULTU INSTAURANDO, VELUT
APOSTOLUM QUENDAM DIXERO, DIXISSE ME QUOD RES EST EXISTIMABO.

THEOD. BEZA.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

	PAGE
PREFACE,	xiii
I. KNOX'S PARENTAGE AND BIRTH-PLACE,	xiv
II. KNOX'S EDUCATION, AND HIS ADMISSION TO THE PRIESTHOOD IN THE ROMISH CHURCH,	xix
III. KNOX'S CALL TO THE MINISTRY AT ST. ANDREWS,	xxii
IV. KNOX AS A MINISTER IN THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND,	xxv
V. THE ENGLISH PROTESTANT CHURCHES ABROAD DURING THE PERSECUTION,	xxxii
VI. THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE PROTESTANT RELIGION IN SCOT- LAND,	xxxv
VII. KNOX AS MINISTER OF EDINBURGH,	xlii
VIII. KNOX'S LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT,	lii
IX. KNOX'S FAMILY AND DESCENDANTS,	lxi
LETTERS CHIEFLY RELATING TO THE PROGRESS OF THE REFORMATION IN SCOTLAND, 1559-1562,
I. Knox to Mrs. Anna Lock, April 6, 1559,	11
II. Knox to Sir William Cecill, April 10, 1559,	15
III. Knox to Mrs. Anna Lock, May 3, 1559,	21
IV. Knox to Mrs. Anna Lock, June 23, 1559,	21
V. Extracts from Letters of Sir James Croft, May 19, to June 14, 1559,	28
VI. Knox to Mrs. Anna Lock, June 25, 1559,	30
VII. Knox to Sir William Cecill, June 28, 1559,	31
VIII. William Kirkcaldy of Grange to Sir Henry Percy, July 1, 1559,	33
IX. Knox to Sir Henry Percy, July 1, 1559,	35

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

	PAGE
X. Sir Thomas Parry and Sir William Cecill to Sir Henry Percy, July 4, 1559,	37
XI. Sir William Cecill to Sir Henry Percy, July 4, 1559,	38
XII. Lords of the Congregation to Sir W. Cecill, July 19, 1559,	40
XIII. Lords of the Congregation to Queen Elizabeth, July 19, 1559,	43
XIV. Knox to Sir William Cecill, July 19, 1559,	45
XV. Knox to Queen Elizabeth, July 14 [20], 1559,	47
XVI. Sir W. Cecill to the Lords of the Congregation, July 28, 1559,	51
XVII. Sir William Cecill to Knox, July 28, 1559,	55
XXVIII. Instructions to John Knox, and Knox to Sir James Croft, July 30, 1559,	56
XIX. Knox to Sir Henry Percy, August 2, 1559,	59
XX. Sir Henry Percy to Sir W. Cecill, August 4, 1559,	60
XXI. The Prior of St. Andrews to Sir H. Percy, August 4, 1559,	61
XXII. Sir James Croft to Sir W. Cecill, August 4, 1559,	61
XXIII. Lords of the Congregation to Sir J. Croft, August 6, 1559,	62
XXIV. Knox to Sir James Croft, August 6, 1559,	63
XXV. Queen Elizabeth to Sir Ralph Sadler, August 8, 1559,	64
XXVI. Lords of the Congregation to Sir W. Cecill, August 13, 1559,	65
XXVII. Knox to Sir William Cecill, August 15, 1559,	67
XXVIII. Sir James Croft to Knox, August 20, 1559,	70
XXIX. Sir Ralph Sadler and Sir James Croft to Sir W. Cecill, August 20, 1559,	71
XXX. Knox (signed "Johne Sinclear,") to Sir James Croft, August 23, 1559,	74
XXXI. Queen Elizabeth to Sir Ralph Sadler, August 24, 1559,	75
XXXII. Knoxius Calvino, S.D., with Translation, August 28, 1559,	75
XXXIII. Sir James Croft to Sir W. Cecill, August 29, 1559,	77
XXXIV. Knox to Mrs. Anna Lock, September 2, 1559,	77
XXXV. Knox (signed "Johne Sinclear,") to Sir James Croft, Sep- tember 21, 1559,	79
XXXVI. Knox to the Queen Regent, October 6, 1559,	81
XXXVII. Knox to Mrs. Anna Lock, October 15, 1559,	83
XXXVIII. Knox to Gregorie Raylton, October 23, 1559,	86
XXXIX. (Postscript) Sadler and Croft to Sir William Cecill, October 27, 1559,	88
XL. Knox (signed "John Sinclear,") to Sir James Croft, October 25, 1559,	89
XLI. Sir James Croft to Knox, October 27, 1559,	91
XLII. Knox to Sir James Croft, October 29, 1559,	92
XLIII. Calvin to Knox, November 8, 1559,	94
XLIV. Knox to Sir William Cecill, November 18, 1559,	98
XLV. Knox to Mrs. Anna Lock, November 18, 1559,	100
XLVI. Knox to Sir James Croft, December 26, 1559,	101
XLVII. Knox to Mrs. Anna Lock, December 31, 1559,	103
XLVIII. Knox to Gregory Raylton, January 29, 1559-60,	105
XLIX. Knox to Mrs. Anna Lock, February 4, 1560,	107

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

vii

PAGE

L. Knox to the Duke of Chattelherault and the Lords at Glasgow, February 6, 1560,	108
LI. Knox to Sir W. Cecill, February 8, 1560,	109
LII. Thomas Randolph to Sir W. Cecill, August 15, 1560,	109
LIII. William Maitland of Lethington to Sir William Cecill, August 15, 1560,	114
LIV. Thomas Randolph to Sir W. Cecill, August 19, 1560,	116
LV. Extracts from Randolph's Letters to Sir William Cecill, August 25, March 20, 1560-[61],	118
LVI. Calvin to Knox, April 23, 1561,	123
LVII. Calvin to Christopher Goodman, April 23, 1561,	125
LVIII. Knox to Queen Elizabeth, August 6, 1561,	126
LIX. Thomas Randolph to Sir N. Throkmorton, August 26, 1561,	127
LX. Knox to Mrs. Anna Lock, October 2, 1561,	129
LXI. Knox to Sir William Cecill, October 7, 1561,	131
LXII. Knox to Calvin, and Translation, October 24, 1561,	133
LXIII. Maitland of Lethington to Sir W. Cecill, October 25, 1561,	136
LXIV. Extracts, Randolph to Sir William Cecill, January 15, to February 28, 1561-[62],	137
LXV. Knox to Mrs. Anna Lock, May 6, 1562,	140
LXVI. Extracts, Randolph to Sir William Cecill, August 4 to December 30, 1562,	141

THE REASONING BETWIXT THE ABBOT OF CROSSRAGUELL AND JOHN KNOX CONCERNING THE MASS, 1562,	149
--	-----

AN ORATION BY MR. QUINTINE KENNEDY, Commendator of Crossraguell, 1561,	157
--	-----

ANE COMPENDIOUS RESSONYNG be the quhilk is made manifest, treulie and propirlye, conforme to the Scripturis of Almychtie God, the Mess to be institute be Jesu Christ, etc., set furt be MAISTER QUINTYNE KENNEDY, 1561,	166
--	-----

The Coppie of the Ressoning which was betuix the Abbote of Crossraguell and John Knox in Mayboill concerning the Masse, 1562,	169
---	-----

A SERMON ON ISAIAH xxvi. 13-21, PREACHED IN ST. GILES'S CHURCH, EDINBURGH, 19TH AUGUST 1565,	221
--	-----

THE BOOK OF COMMON ORDER: OR THE FORM OF PRAYERS, AND MINISTRATION OF THE SACRAMENTS, ETC., APPROVED AND RECEIVED BY THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND, 1564,	275
--	-----

THE CONFESSION OF FAITH used in the English Congregation at Geneva,	293
---	-----

Of the Ministers and their Election,	ib.
--	------------

Of the Elders, and as touching their Office and Election,	ib.
---	------------

Of the Deacons, and their Office and Election,	ib.
--	------------

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

	PAGE
The Wekelie Assemblie of the Ministers, Elders, and Deacons, .	294
Interpretation of the Scriptures,	ib.
The Confession of our Sinnes,	ib.
Another Confession and Prayer commonly used in the Church of Edinburgh, on the day of Commune Prayers,	ib.
A Confession of Sinnes, and Petitions, made unto God in the tyme of our extreame troubles,	296
A Prayer for the whole state of Christ's Church,	298
Another manner of Prayer after the Sermon,	299
Another Prayer,	304
Prayers used in the Churches of Scotland, in the time of their persecution by the Frenchmen, etc.,	309
A Thanksgiving unto God after our deliverance from the tyranny of the Frenchmen, etc.,	313
A Prayer used in the Assemblies of the Church,	314
The Order of Baptisme,	316
The Maner of the Lord's Supper,	324
The Forme of Mariage,	326
The Visitation of the Sicke,	327
Of Buryall,	333
The Ordre of the Ecclesiastical Discipline,	ib.
PSALMES OF DAVID IN ENGLISH METER, EDINBURGH, 1565 (PSALMS XXIII., XXIV., LVIL, C., CXXIII., CXLV.),	335
PRAYERS, ETC., SUBJOINED TO CALVIN'S CATECHISME, EDINBURGH, 1564,	343
The Maner to examine Children, before they be admitted to the Supper of the Lord,	343
A Forme of Prayers to be used in Private Houses everie Morning and Evening,	345
A Prayer to be said before Meales,	348
A Thanksgiving after Meales,	ib.
Another Thanksgiving before Meat,	349
Another,	ib.
Another Thanksgiving after Meat,	350
Another,	ib.
Evening Prayer,	351
A Prayer made at the first Assemblie of the English Church at Geneva, when the Confession of Faith and whole Orders were there Red and Approved,	352
A Complaint of the Tyrannie used against the Sanctes of God, conteyning a Confession of our Sinnes, etc.,	353
A Godlie Prayer to be said at all times,	357
A Prayer to be said of the Childe, before he studie his Lesson, . .	358
A Prayer to be said before a Man begin his Worke,	360

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

ix

	PAGE
ADDITIONAL PRAYERS, ETC., NOT CONTAINED IN THE EDINBURGH VOLUME OF 1564-65,	361
The Forme of the Confession of Faith, whereunto all subscribe as are Receyved to be Scholers in the Universitie of Geneva, etc.,	ib.
A Confession of our Sinnes, which we use in the time when the Eternal correcteth us with any of his appointed scourges for declining from the puritie of His Worde,	368
A Godlie Prayer,	370
A Confession of Sinnes, with Prayer for remission of the same, to be used in these troublesome dayes,	371
A Prayer meete to be used when God thretneth His judgements,	372
A Prayer in tyme of Affliction,	375
A Confession of Sinnes to be used before Sermon,	377
A Prayer for the King,	379
THE ORDER OF THE GENERAL FAST, AND THE FORM OF EXCOMMUNICATION APPROVED BY THE GENERAL AS- SEMBLY OF THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND, 1566-1569,	381
The Confession that shall goe before the Reading of the Law, and before everie Exercyse,	418
The Faythfull Brethren within the Realm to the Professoris of the Lord Jesus in England, France, Germanye,	429
The Superintendents, etc., to the Faithfull in Scotland,	431
The Superintendents, etc., to all and sundrie Faithful Brethren,	437
The Superintendents, etc., to the Bishops and Pastors of England,	438
The General Assemblie to the Nobilitie of the Realm,	441
Letter to the Professors of Religion within this Realm,	ib.
Letter to Earls, Barrons, etc., calling a Meeting of Assembly,	443
Tenor of the Commissions given to every ane of the foirsaidis Com- missioners,	ib.
Letter of the General Assembly to Mr. John Willock,	445
THE ORDER OF EXCOMMUNICATION AND OF PUBLIC RE- PENTANCE, 1569,	447
AN ANSWER TO A LETTER WRITTEN BY JAMES TYRIE, A SCOTTISH JESUIT, 1572,	471
To the Faithfull Reader, and Postscript Letter to his loving mother, Maistress Elizabeth Bowes, from Dieppe, 20th July 1554,	513

LETTERS, ETC., DURING THE LATER PERIOD OF KNOX'S LIFE, 1563-1572—(Continued from page 148),	521
LXVII. Knox to Archibald Earl of Argyle, May 7, 1563,	525
LXVIII. Knox to James Earl of Murray, May 7, 1563,	ib.
LXIX. Extracts, Randolphe to Sir William Cecill, May 15 to December 31, 1563,	ib.
LXX. Knox to the Brethren of the Congregation, October 9, 1563,	527
LXXI. Knox to Sir William Cecill, October 6, 1563,	528
LXXII. Knox to Lord Robert Dudley, October 6, 1563,	530
LXXIII. Extracts, Randolph to Sir William Cecill, January 22, 1562[3] to October 24, 1564,	532
LXXIV. Spottiswood, Knox, and Craig to the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, February 10, 1563[4],	534
LXXV. Act of General Assembly, 29th December 1563,	537
LXXVI. Randolph to Queen Elizabeth, May 5, 1564,	538
LXXVII. [Kirkcaldy of Grange] to T. Randolph, April 30, 1564,	539
LXXVIII. Knox to Thomas Randolph, May 3, 1564,	541
LXXIX. Extracts, Bishop Grindal to Henry Bullinger, Zurich, August 27, 1566, and August 29, 1567,	542
LXXX. The General Assembly to Theodore Beza, and Transla- tion, September 4, 1566,	544
LXXXI. Theodore Beza to Henry Bullinger, Zurich, Decem- ber 8, 1566,	550
LXXXII. Extracts, Sir Nicholas Throkmorton to Queen Eliza- beth, July 14 to August 23, 1567,	551
LXXXIII. Knox to Mr. John Wood, February 14, 1567-8,	558
LXXXIV. Knox to Mr. John Wood, September 10, 1568,	560
LXXXV. Theodore Beza to Knox, June 3, 1569,	562
LXXXVI. Knox to a Friend in England, August 19, 1569,	565
LXXXVII. Extract, Maitland of Lethington to Mary Queen of Scots, September 20, 1569,	567
LXXXVIII. Knox to Sir William Cecill, January 2, 1569,	568
LXXXIX. Prayer used by John Knox after the Regent Murray's death,	ib.
XC. Randolph to Sir William Cecill, February 22, 1569,	570
XCI. Letters to Knox from England after the death of the Regent, Earl of Murray, March 24, 1569,	571
XCII. Knox to Sir William Douglas of Lochleven, March 31, 1569,	574
XCIII. Knox and Kirkcaldy of Grange, 1570-71,	575
XCIV. Libels upon Knox, and his Answers, March 1571,	585
XCV. Additional Extracts from Richard Bannatyne's Memo- rials, April—August, 1571,	596
XCVI. Knox to the Church of Edinburgh, July 17, 1571,	602
XCVII. Knox to the General Assembly, August 3, 1571,	604
XCVIII. Alexander Hay to Knox, December 1, 1571,	606
XCIX. Alexander Hay to Knox, December 14, 1571,	608

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

xi

	PAGE
C. Theodore Beza to John Knox, April 12, 1572,	613
CI. Knox to Sir James Douglas of Drumlanrig, May 26, 1572,	615
CII. Knox to Sir John Wischart of Pittarow, July 19, 1572,	616
CIII. Knox to Mr. Christopher Goodman, July 19, 1572,	618
CIV. Knox to the General Assembly at Perth, with certain Articles and Questions, August 5, 1572,	619
CV. Knox's return to Edinburgh from St. Andrews, August 1572,	622
CVI. Knox to Mr. Robert Hammiltoun, Minister of St. Andrews, November 15, 1571,	629
CVII. Knox to Mr. James Lowson, September 7, 1572,	632
CVIII. Henry Killigrew to Sir William Cecill, Lord Burghley, and Robert Earl of Leicester, October 6, 1572,	633
CIX. RICHARD BANNATYNE'S Account of Knox's last Illness and Death,	634
CX. The Account of Knox's last Illness and Death, published by Mr. THOMAS SMETON in 1579,	645

APPENDIX: ADDITIONAL NOTES AND CORRECTIONS.

VOLUME FIRST,	663
VOLUME SECOND,	687
VOLUME THIRD,	689
VOLUME FOURTH,	ib.
VOLUME SIXTH,	691
INDEX OF NAMES FOR VOLUMES III., IV., V., AND VI.,	693
INDEX OF PLACES FOR VOLUMES III., IV., V., AND VI.,	710
GENERAL INDEX,	713

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS.

VOL. I.

	PAGE
PORTRAIT, JOANNES CNOXVS, FACSIMILE OF WOODCUT IN THEOD. BEZE ICONES, ETC., 1580,	xiii
SPECIMEN IN FACSIMILE OF KNOX'S HISTORY, 1566. FROM THE ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT IN THE POSSESSION OF THE EDITOR,	xxx

VOL. II.

FACSIMILE OF THE SIGNATURES TO THE BUKE OF DISCIPLINE. FROM THE SAME MANUSCRIPT,	260
FACSIMILE OF THE INTERLINEATIONS IN THE SAME MANUSCRIPT,	462

VOL. V.

FACSIMILE OF A LETTER FROM KNOX (IN THE HANDWRITING OF MRS. KNOX, MARJORY BOWES) TO JOHN FOXE. FROM THE ORIGINAL IN THE BRITISH MUSEUM, 1558,	1
---	---

VOL. VI.

PORTRAIT, JOANNES CNOXVS, A REDUCED FACSIMILE, FROM JAC. VERHEIDENI EFFIGIES, ETC., 1602,	xiii
HADDINGTON CHURCH AND GIFFORDGATE. FROM THE VIEW IN SLEZER'S THEATRUM SCOTIE, 1693,	xviii
FACSIMILE OF A NOTARIAL INSTRUMENT WRITTEN BY KNOX, 27TH OF MARCH 1543. FROM THE ORIGINAL IN THE POSSESSION OF THE EARL OF HADDINGTON,	xxii
FACSIMILE OF AN ORIGINAL LETTER (IN THE HANDWRITING OF KNOX) TO QUEEN ELIZABETH, SIGNED BY THE EARLS OF ARGYLE, GLENCAIRNE, AND OTHERS. FROM THE ORIGINAL IN H.M. STATE PAPER OFFICE,	43
FACSIMILE OF THE SIGNATURE TO TWO LETTERS, SIGNED JOHN KNOX AND JOHNE SINCLEAR, 1559. FROM H.M. STATE PAPER OFFICE,	74
FACSIMILE OF A LETTER FROM KNOX TO QUEEN ELIZABETH, 1560. FROM THE ORIGINAL IN H.M. STATE PAPER OFFICE,	126
FACSIMILE OF A LETTER FROM KNOX TO CALVIN, 1561. FROM THE ORIGINAL, PRESERVED IN FRANCE, AND PUBLISHED IN TEULET'S "PAPIERS D'ETAT,"	134
FACSIMILE OF THE KIRK'S TESTIMONIAL, TO HAMILTON AND CAMPBELL, 1565. FROM THE ORIGINAL IN THE WODROW MSS.,	430
FACSIMILE OF A LETTER, KNOX TO SIR WILLIAM DOUGLAS, 1572. FROM THE ORIGINAL IN THE POSSESSION OF THE EARL OF MORTON,	574

IOANNES KNOXVS, SCOTVS.
 Scottorum vnum te Ecclesia, KNOX, docentem
 Audyt: auspicy es ique reque ta tuis
 Nam te cales tis pietas super omnia traxit, Atque reformare Religionis amor. Cum priull.

PREFACE.

AFTER a protracted period of many years the present volume completes the series of KNOX'S WORKS. In some respects the delay may have been advantageous, but less so for the discovery of fresh materials than I could have wished. An English Puritan, in 1583, when publishing the Exposition on the fourth chapter of Matthew,¹ written, he says, "by so worthy and notable an instrument of God as Mr. John Knox," adds, "If ever God shall vouchsafe the Church so great a benefit, when his infinite Letters and sundry other Treatises shall be gathered together, it shall appear what an excellent man he was, and what a wonderfull losse the Church of Scotland sustained, when that worthy man was taken from them."² As Editor, I have used my best endeavours to perform this task, with all care and fidelity, in the hope that the volumes might serve as a permanent literary monument of the great Scottish Reformer.

In commencing the work, I said it would form no part of the plan to give any detailed biography of the Author; the Life of Knox, by Dr. M'CRIE, having long secured its place among the standard works of historical literature. An opportunity, however, was afforded in the prefatory notices to the separate tracts or divisions contained in the third and following volumes, to give something like a brief running commentary on the leading events of Knox's life. It might now remain to add some general remarks on his character and writings, and the influence he exerted on the course of public events, but the greatly extended size of this volume renders it advisable for me to limit myself to some particulars relating to his personal history, which require elucidation, and also to bring the substance of these notices more distinctly into one point of view.

¹ See vol. iv. pp. 89-114.

² Ib. p. 92.

I.—KNOX'S PARENTAGE AND BIRTH-PLACE.

The name of Knox is of considerable antiquity in Scotland, and is said to have been derived from the lands of Knoc or Knox,¹ in Renfrewshire. The chief family was that of Ranfurly in the same county,² some of whose descendants having settled at Dungannon, were raised to the peerage of Ireland; in 1781, as Baron Wells, etc.; and in 1831, as Earl of Ranfurly; also in 1826, as Baron Ranfurly in the United Kingdom. Andrew Knox, minister of Paisley, was of this family. He was Bishop of the Isles from 1606 to 1622, and being translated to the See of Raphoe, in Ireland, his son Thomas became his successor. David Buchanan, in 1644, says that the Reformer's "father was a brother's son of the house of Ranferlie."³ But there is no evidence to prove the most distant connexion with that family; and as the name of Knox was not uncommon in other parts of the country, we might rather conjecture that his ancestors were related to the burgesses of Edinburgh, whose names occur in deeds of the fifteenth and first half of the sixteenth century.⁴

¹ A small property on the east side of the river Cart, as it flows to the north of Paisley, towards the Clyde.

² In the Registrum de Passelet, or Chartulary of Paisley, persons of the name of Knox are frequently mentioned. There is a charter of confirmation by King James the Third, in a resignation of the barony of Ranfurly and Crisp Castell, by John Knox of Craighends, in favour of his son, Uthred Knox of that ilk, dated 12th of April 1474.—(Reg. M. Sigilli, lib. vii. No. 286.)

³ See Life by David Buchanan, prefixed to his edition of Knox's History, 1644; and Geo. Crawford's History of Renfrewshire. Dr. George Mackenzie was the first to point out the inaccuracy.—(Lives, vol. iii. p. 111.)

⁴ In the Charters of St. Giles's Church, Edinburgh, we find Adam de Knokkis or Knox, ballivus in 1428, and deceased

From the Register book of Burgesses of Geneva, 1558, we learn that the Reformer's father was William Knox, and we elsewhere know that his mother was a Sinclair. There were several families of that name, of some rank in society, in East Lothian; one of whom, Marion Sinclair, was married to George Ker of Samuelston, and in 1497 their daughter and apparent heir, Nicola Ker, became the second wife of Alexander Lord Hume, Lord Chamberlain of Scotland.¹ But it is indisputable that Knox could claim no great distinction on account of his parentage, whether we trust the words "of his Popish reviler,² obscuris natus parentibus," or of his panegyrist,³ who says,—

"First, he descendit bot of linage small ;
As commonly God usis for to call
The sempill sort His summondis till expres :
Sa calling him, He gave him giftis withall
Maist excellent, besyde his Uprichtnes."

There is a passage in the History of the Reformation which furnishes the only authentic notice on the subject. In the Reformer's first interview with James fourth Earl of Bothwell, in March 1562, he said, "Albeit that to this hour it hath not chanced me to speak to your Lordship face to face, yet have I borne a good mind to your house; . . . for, my Lord, my grandfather, goodschir, and father have served your Lordship's predecessors, and some of them have died under their standards:"⁴ in 1445. David Knokkis, burgesse of Edinburgh in 1447 and 1454. In the year 1492, William Knox, son and heir of the late William Knox, was made a burgesse.—Another William Knokkis was deceased in 1535-6.—(Bannatyne Club volume, St. Giles's Charters, p. 235.)

¹ William Sinclair of Northrig, who signed the contract of 1497 as witness, may have been the father or brother of Mrs. Knox, and James Ker, in Samuelston (infra, p. xxi.), was probably brother of Nicola Ker, born subsequently to 1497.—Proceedings of the Society of Antiq., vol. iii. p. 67.

² Arch. Hamilton de Confusione, etc., 1577. 8vo, fol. 64.

³ John Davidson's "Breif Commendatioun of Uprichtnes," Sanctandros, 1573, republished by Dr. M'Crrie.

⁴ Vol. ii. p. 323. "Goodschir," here stands for his mother's father. The later copies read, "great grandfather, guidshir or grandfather, and father."—See vol. vi. p. 688.

That is, his father, and both paternal and maternal grandfather; and this reference to the death of "some of them," clearly points to what Knox elsewhere calls "the unhappy field of Floddon,"¹ the 9th of September 1513. Adam second Earl of Bothwell, who commanded the reserve, advanced in such a gallant manner as nearly to have changed the fortunes of that most calamitous day. But the Earl, with his two grand-uncles, Sir Adam Hepburn of Craggis, and George Hepburn, Bishop of the Isles, and probably all their followers, sacrificed their lives in the vain attempt to retrieve the King's rashness, which proved so disastrous to the country. Hailes Castle, the chief seat of the Hepburns, Earls of Bothwell, is about four miles to the east of Knox's birthplace; and Earl James's father, who then succeeded to the title, was a mere child. Whether Knox's father was one of those who fell that day, cannot be stated; but if we suppose that William, who became a merchant in Preston,² was the eldest son, his descendants, and not those of the Reformer, would inherit the house and grounds at Giffordgate, which continued to be called Knox's Walls.

JOHN KNOX was born in the year 1505. The discussions respecting his birthplace, although it is a point of no great importance, require a brief notice. Beza, in 1580, having styled him Giffordiensis, and Spottiswood, about 1627, having said he was "born in Gifford, in the Lothians," this has been held by later writers to imply, that he was born in the present village of Gifford, a few miles to the south of Haddington. In this conclusion Dr. M'Crie concurs, although he quotes the words of two contemporary Popish writers, one of whom at least was personally acquainted with Knox, and could have had no object in misstating a simple fact, that he was born in the town of burn, in 1488, but we read of no great loss on either side, if we except the unfortunate King, James the Third.

¹ Vol. i. p. 13.—Sir Patrick Hepburn, Lord Hailes, who was created Earl of Bothwell, was indeed concerned in the battle of Sauchieburn, near Bannock-

² To be afterwards noticed.

Haddington.¹ This is fully confirmed by a still earlier notice, of which Dr. M'Crie was unaware, founded evidently upon the Reformer's own authority, in the "Register of the Petit Conseil of the Ancient Republic of Geneva." On the 24th June 1558, when Knox was admitted a burges, his name is thus recorded:—

“JEHAN KNOXE filz de Guillaume Cnox descosse en Angleterre, ministre Anglois en ceste Cite, suivant leur requeste ont este receux en bourgeoix de ceste Cite, gratis : ayant un filz masle nomme Nathanael.

“CHRISTOFLE GOUDMAN filz de Guillaume, Anglois de Cesterin a este aussi sur sa requeste receu a bourgeoix, gratis. Ont este receuz lessusdictz au respect de leur ministere de la parolle de Dieu.”

Again, in the "Registre des Bourgeois," fol. 95 :—

“JEHAN filz de GUILLAUME CNOXE natif de Hedington en Escosse, et Cristoffle filz de Guillaume Goodman natif de Chestres dangleterre, ministres des Angloys, ont estez receuz, gratis.”

¹ It may be interesting to bring into one point of view the words of the older authorities on this point :—

1558.—Jehan Cnox natif de Hedington en Escosse.—Geneva Registers.

1558.—Joannes Knoxius origine ac patria Scotus.—Bishop Bale.

1574 & 1583.—Joannes Knoxus Scotus.—Josias Simler.

1577.—Presbyter Joannes Knoxeus natus in Hadintona oppido in Laudonia.—Archibald Hamilton.

1580.—Johannes Cnoxus Scotus Giffordensis.—Theodore Beza.

1581.—Jean Cnox de Gifford en Escosse.—Theodore Beza.

1581.—Joannes Knox natus prope Hadintonam, quæ est urbs in Laudonia.—Dr. James Laing.

1582.—Ist derhalben dieser Knoxius in einem Flecken nit weit von Haidutona einer berhümbten Statt inn der Landschaft Laudonia in Schotten, geboren worden.—Dr. J. Laing.

1600.—Knox a renegat preist of Haddington in Scotland.—Dr. John Hamilton.

1602.—Joannes Cnoxus Scotus.—Jo. Verheiden.

1622.—Joannem Cnoxum Scotia protulit, etc.—Melchior Adam.

(1627?)—Knox was born in Gifford in the Lothians.—Archbishop Spottiswood.

1644.—Knox was born in Gifford nere Hadintoun in Lothian.—David Buchanan.

1650.—John Knox was born at Gifford in Lothaine in Scotland.—Samuel Clark.

1652.—John Knox was born at Gifford in Lothain in Scotland.—Dr. Thomas Fuller.

1667.—Joannes Cnoxus Theologus Scotus.—Bibliotheca Calcographica.

(1696?)—John Knox, born at Haddington.—Lawrence Charteris.

A solution of these discrepancies was proposed in the year 1785, by the Rev. Dr. Barclay, minister of Haddington, by stating that local tradition pointed out the house where the Reformer was born at Giffordgate, one of the suburbs of Haddington. He says, "The house in the Giffordgate, in which Knox was born, still remains; it has but a mean appearance; and, together with two or three acres of land adjoining, belonged for several centuries to a family of the name of Knox, until they were purchased, about ten or twelve years ago, by the present Earl of Wemyss." On lately visiting the locality, the question seems to me to admit of no dispute. Giffordgate is connected with Haddington by the old stone bridge across the Tyne, and the house was nearly opposite the eastern end of the Abbey Church. The accompanying view, which forms a portion of the "Prospect of Haddington," published by Captain Slezer, in his "Theatrum Scotiæ," in 1693, may be considered a correct representation.¹ The house itself no longer exists.

The barony of Gifford may be traced back to the reign of David the First; and while the lands of "Giffordgate" are so named in a charter in the year 1452, no village of Gifford was known until the latter half of the seventeenth century. The collegiate church of Bothanis, or Yester, which stood close to the manor-house of the Giffords of Yester, was then changed to its present site, and the name of Yester adopted for the parish.²

¹ In regard to this local question, the reader may be referred to the Account of the Parish of Haddington in 1785, in the Archæologia Scotica, vol. i. p. 69; the New Statistical Account, Haddington, p. 6; Mr. John Richardson's communication to the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland, printed in their Proceedings, vol. iii. p. 52; and a pamphlet in reply to Mr. Richardson, by the Rev. Samuel Kerr, minister of Yester.

² The ancient family of Gifford were proprietors of Yester. Hugh Gifford,

Lord of Yester, who founded the collegiate church of Yester, died without male issue before the year 1409. He left four daughters, co-heiresses, and his extensive estates were subdivided between the husbands of these ladies: Hay of Lochwharret, Boyd of Kilmarnock, Maxwell of Teling, and Macdowall of Makerston. Sir David Hay of Yester acquired from Robert Boyd of Kilmarnock, in exchange for the barony of Teling in Forfarshire, the fourth-part of all the lands of the baronies of Yester, Duncaneland, and Moreham, and like-

J. B. H. del.

HADDINGTON CHURCH AND GIFFORDGATE. 1093.

SCULPTOR & F. X. GIFFORDGATE

II.—KNOX'S EDUCATION, AND HIS ADMISSION TO THE PRIESTHOOD IN THE ROMISH CHURCH.

We may presume that Knox's relations were in good circumstances. In the view of devoting him to the ministry he received a liberal education in the grammar-school of his native place; and, when about sixteen years of age, he was sent to pursue his studies at the University of Glasgow. Beza having heard that Knox was educated under Dr. John Major, concluded that this was at St. Andrews, and in this and some other erroneous particulars he has been followed by most subsequent writers. He seems not to have been aware that Major when he returned to Scotland, after a residence of about twenty years at Paris, filled the office of Principal and Professor of Divinity at Glasgow, from 1518 to 1523, when he was translated to St. Salvator's College, St. Andrews. But this point Dr. M'Crie first cleared up in discovering "Johannes Knox" among the names of the students who were incorporated on St. Crespin and St. Crespinian's day (the 25th of October) 1522, the year previous to Major's leaving Glasgow. Bayle, in his account of Knox, following Beza and Melchior Adam, after remarking that John Major, Doctor of the Sorbonne, was "one of the most acute schoolmen of those times," says of Knox, "he followed his master's steps so well when he taught scholastic theology, that in some things he subtilized upon it even better than his master himself. But having examined the works of St. Jerome and those of St. Augustin, it altered his taste entirely, and he applied himself to a plain and solid theology, and having discovered a great many errors, he published a Confeswise ALL THE LANDS OF GIFFORDGATE, within the constabulary of Haddington, and county of Edinburgh; for which a charter of confirmation under the Great Seal was granted, 12th of January 1451-52. Sir David Hay's son and heir was raised to the peerage by the title of Lord Hay of Yester, in 1488, and was the ancestor of the Marquess of Tweeddale. The extent of these lands of Giffordgate, in the immediate vicinity of Haddington, was probably not considerable, but the superiority is still retained by the Tweeddale family.

sion of Faith, which made him pass for a heretic.”¹ I need scarcely add, that all such statements are quite conjectural. Knox left the University without qualifying himself to take the degree of Master of Arts, and for a period of nearly eighteen years we remain in complete ignorance of his course of life. Not having a Master’s degree would necessarily exclude him from acting as a regent or professor, and no evidence can be adduced to show that he was officially connected, in any capacity whatever, with the University of St. Andrews. Had he been a resident there in 1527-28, when Patrick Hamilton received the crown of martyrdom, he assuredly would have given a more detailed narrative than the somewhat meagre notice of such a memorable occurrence in his History of the Reformation.

The precise time when Knox was admitted to the order of the Priesthood has not been ascertained; but the fact itself was acknowledged by early Popish writers. He was first styled Dominus, or Schir, as one of the Pope’s knights, being the usual designation of priests who had not obtained the higher academical degree of Magister. The statements of his expounding and subtilizing on the Books of the Sentences at St. Andrews, and surpassing his Master, are, I repeat, mere conjectural assertions. The contumelious account of Knox given by his contemporary Archibald Hamilton, within five years of the Reformer’s death, furnishes what seems to be more accurate information. Having, he says, contrived, although very illiterate, to be made a presbyter, he employed himself for a time in teaching, in private houses, to young people the rudiments of the vulgar tongue.² In the earliest notices furnished by Knox himself, we find him acting in the capacity of a private instructor. Had he been one of the regular clergy, belonging to any of the monastic establishments, he would have been so designed. Yet, as one of the secular clergy, he may have held the appointment of chaplain, or "Rood priest," in the chapel dedicated to St. Nicholas, at Samuelston, about three miles to the south-west of Haddington. Be this as it may, by his studious habits and devotional spirit his mind was prepared for the reception of the truth; and at length he emancipated himself from the influence of scholastic philosophy, with its metaphysical subtleties and idle speculations. How and when this occurred may now be considered.

¹ Bayle’s Dictionnaire Historique, tome ii.; also the General Dictionary, vol. vi. Art. Knox.

² Arch. Hamilton de Confusione Calvinianæ Sectæ apud Scotos, fol. 64. Paris. 1577, 8vo.

In the Chronological Notes prefixed to the First Volume (p. xiv.), reference is made to Knox's name occurring in one of the Haddington Protocol Books, among the witnesses to a deed concerning Rannelton Law, March 8th, 1541. I had no reason to suspect the accuracy of the date as quoted, but wishing to ascertain the locality of the place, on re-examining the old record, it appeared that the place was Ramylton, in the parish of Gordon, Berwickshire, and the proper date March 28th, 1543. Two earlier notices also were discovered: in the one, "Schir John Knox" making his appearance at the market cross of Haddington, on behalf of James Ker in Samuelston, December 13th, 1540; in the other, James Ker and Knox being nominated as umpires in a dispute regarding a chalder of victual, November 21st, 1542.

These incidental notices led to further inquiries, in which I was most zealously aided by Mr. Thomas Thomson, Writer to the Signet; and upon application to examine the title-deeds of Samuelston, in the charter room at Tynninghame, there was discovered a notarial instrument, containing an assignation by Elizabeth Home, Lady Hammilton of Samuelston, of non-entry duties of the Ley-acre to James Ker in Samuelston, dated March 27th, 1543,—"Indictione prima pontificatus sanctissimi in Christo patris ac domini nostri Domini Pauli divina providentia Papæ tertii anno nono," and written and signed by JOHN KNOX, Notary. At first sight I had considerable doubt whether this could have been the Reformer; but the locality, the persons named, the date, and the peculiar attestation, Testis per Christum fidelis, cui gloria, Amen, satisfied me that it was unquestionably of his handwriting. Permission being kindly granted by the late Earl of Haddington, I had a few copies printed, with the accompanying engraved facsimile, being probably the earliest autograph of the Reformer now existing.¹ Further search in other quarters has hitherto failed in bringing to light any similar documents.

But the deeds above mentioned establish, I think, some important points in Knox's history, as he still retained his character as a priest, and had the Papal authority to act as a notary; while they seem to point out a relationship with the Kers of Samuelston, or at least to show that he was there resident from 1540 to 1543.

III.—KNOX'S CALL TO THE MINISTRY AT ST. ANDREWS.

We have seen that Knox, in March 1543, still retained his connexion with the Roman Catholic Church, and while he may have exercised the functions of a priest, that he was also engaged in superintending the education of some young persons "to be nourished in godliness." For a short time the Earl of Arran, Governor, who had sanctioned, by an Act of Parliament, the reading of the English Scriptures, retaining, as one of his chaplains, Thomas Guillaume, a native of East Lothian, and Provincial of the Order of Dominican, or Blackfriars, who was the first, according to Calderwood, "to give Mr. Knox a taste of the truth." But the Governor was persuaded to oppose the new doctrines, and dismiss his chaplain, before the arrival in Scotland of George Wishart, in 1544, who commenced his labours by preaching at Montrose, Dundee, and other places

¹ The deeds referred to need not be here inserted, as they have been accurately printed in the Proceedings of the Antiquarian Society of Scotland, vol. iii. pp. 59-63, in connexion with Mr. Richardson's communication, entitled,

"The present State of the Question, Where was John Knox born?" and with Mr. Thomson's Extracts from the Haddington Records, and Notices of the Family of Ker of Samuelston.

In dei nomine Amen per hoc presens publicum Instrumentum innotescat Evidentibus quod ad Intercessionem dicitur multo tempore quod rogatus tertio die vero mensis Confessione septimo indictione prima pontificatus felicissimi in Christo patris ac domini nostri domini Pauli divina providentia papa tertii anno nono in mensis notarij publici illi et testium sub scriptura presentia Ego etiam et nobiles domini theobaldus homo domini Garmston et domini Wilhelmi Pzain de Samelstom in presentibus no notari

Imper qua quidem assignatione super omnem ad hoc singulis primis nunciis articulis prefatus Jacobus per a me notario publico subscripto fieri potuit hoc presens publicum Instrumentum acta erant hoc in hora diei Martis scilicet in presentibus anno die mensis Indictionis et pontificatus et supra hora ferme quarta post meridiem presentibus honorabilibus viris viz egregie nobilibus et potenter domino Wilhelmo domino Henrico Georgio scilicet in thesauraria Thoma scilicet Joanne scilicet et meo domino Joanne (notario publico) cum aliis aliis testibus ad premissa vocatis pariter et rogatis

Joannes huor
 Testis per ipsum fidelis Curia
 amen

Ego vero Joannes huor Sacerdos altaris minister Cantuarie diocesis antonom Tale apostolica notarius Divina premissis omnibus et singulis dum sic et premissis
 Sur a gerentibus dicerentur et fierent una cum prenominate presens personaliter
 Interfui ea que omnia et singula sic fieri et dici vidi scire et audiri de in notam
 Copi et eorum hoc presens publicum Instrumentum manu mea propria scriptum secunda Confessi et hanc in formam publicam reddidi supra et nois meis solitis et consuetis in fidem et testimonium veritatis omni et singulorum premissorum rogatus et requisitus

Non falsum testimonium perhibebo

Joannes huor notarius

in his own district north of the Tay. In the following year he visited East Lothian, and Knox was attracted by his fervid eloquence, and displayed his zeal by carrying a two-handed sword for his defence against some threatened attempts on his life. It was, however, not by such weapons that Knox was to be distinguished; yet the effect of Wishart's preaching and conversation proved to be the turning incident of our Reformer's career. He had then reached the mature age of forty years. We have no proof that as yet he had ever exercised himself in public speaking or preaching beyond his ordinary duties as a priest (sacri altaris minister). Yet all this while he was in a silent course of preparation for his special vocation; and the Martyr foresaw, as it were, in his enthusiastic follower, one who was destined to a higher calling; and on the night of his apprehension, when Knox expressed his intention not to leave him, he said, "Nay, return to your bairns (or pupils), and God bless you: One is sufficient for ane sacrifice."¹

It was this open adherence to Wishart which attracted notice, and subjected Knox to trouble, insomuch that, being wearied with removing from place to place by the persecution of the Bishop of St. Andrews, he had determined to leave Scotland and visit the schools of Germany.² At length, ten months after the murder of Cardinal Beaton, he acceded to the request of the parents of his pupils, Douglas of Longniddry, and Cockburn of Ormiston, to remove with them to the Castle of St. Andrews, as a place of shelter. At this time, the 11th of April 1547, the Castle was in possession of Norman Lesley, William Kirkaldy of Grange, and other conspirators, who depended on aid from England. Knox was in the habit of teaching his pupils "after his accustomed manner;" and, to quote his own words, "besides their grammar, and other humane authors, he read unto them a Catechism, an account whereof he caused them to give publicly in the parish kirk of St.

¹ Vol. i. p. 139.

² Vol. i. p. 185.

Andrews. He read, moreover, unto them the Evangell of John, proceeding where he left at his departing from Langnurdie, where before his residence was ; and that lecture he read in the chapell, within the Castle, at a certain hour.”¹ This mode of instruction attracted the notice of the chief persons within the Castle, but he declined their invitation to take upon himself the duties of a preacher, alleging he would do nothing without a lawful vocation. But this desire led to that most remarkable scene within the Great Church, as related by himself, when John Rough, in his sermon on the election of ministers, unexpectedly addressing himself to Knox, exhorted him, in the name of the whole congregation who were present, to undertake the office of the ministry. The result of this public vocation is well known. Having, under such particular circumstances, once put his hand to the plough, he never shrunk back. He could have only preached for a few weeks, but it must be held as a proof of his hitherto latent fitness as a public speaker, that notwithstanding his bodily suffering for months on board the French galleys, when he was liberated and came to England, he should have so soon obtained employment as a preacher.

The state of Scotland at this period was most lamentable. The death of King James the Fifth, in the prime of life, and at a time when he manifested some symptoms of repressing the secular power of the clergy, again left the country exposed to the evils of a long minority. The Sovereign was a mere infant, and the nominal government of the weak and vacillating Regent, the Earl of Arran, was controlled by the able and ambitious Cardinal Beaton, through whose influence the policy of Henry the Eighth for the Union of the two realms was thwarted. Such an event, which might have proved beneficial alike to England and Scotland, was the projected marriage of his son Prince Edward with the youthful Queen Mary. Hence followed the continuous struggle between the French and English factions in this country—the fruitful source of all the bloodshed, persecution, and civil dissension that prevailed for at least eighteen years. That plans were proposed to assassinate Beaton cannot be doubted; but it exemplifies the extent of prejudice and party spirit to conclude from the circumstance of a person called “one Wishart,” having been employed as a messenger in carrying letters to and from England on the subject, that this was “Mr. George Wishart,”—a man learned, mild, and of gentle disposition, and one so unlikely and unfit for active service of this kind, while many reckless and ferocious characters were ready and willing to undertake any lawless enterprise. Wishart’s mission was of a very different character, and no charge of this kind was even hinted at in the course of his trial and condemnation. Three months after Wishart’s martyrdom the Cardinal was murdered, but not as the result of any preconcerted scheme; yet the English Monarch felt himself bound to support the perpetrators, who had taken possession and fortified the Castle of St. Andrews, by granting pensions to the chief actors, and by maintaining at his expense eighty men and forty horse. The death of Henry produced another change in public affairs. But it is well that the precise date, the 11th of April 1547, is known when Knox and his pupils repaired to St. Andrews. We might possibly have otherwise had his name held up to reproach as one of the conspirators. Upon the surrender of the Castle of St. Andrews by capitulation, on the last of July 1547, the accumulated treasures of Cardinal Beaton were plundered, the garrison put on board the French vessels, and afterwards committed to different prisons, or, like Knox, chained to the oar as galley-slaves. But we need not enlarge on this part of his history.

¹ Vol. i. p. 186.

IV.—KNOX AS A MINISTER IN THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

After eighteen months’ imprisonment and hardship on board the French galleys, Knox was released, it is supposed upon the intercession of Edward the Sixth, or the English Government, about February 1549. In the month of June preceding, the galleys had returned to Scotland, when Knox was so extremely sick that his life was despaired of, yet, being asked if he recognised the place, he uttered that remarkable declaration, that however weak he appeared, he was persuaded he would not depart this life until his tongue should once more glorify God in the Church of St. Andrews, of which the steeple was then in sight.¹ On obtaining his liberty he came to London, and was favourably received by Archbishop Cranmer, and the Lords of Council. On the 7th of April the Privy Council directed the sum of Five Pounds to be paid "to John Knoock, preacher, by way of reward."

I shall here insert what I presume is an unpublished document, from the Record Office, London, being the names of the persons who obtained license to preach in England, during the reign of Edward VI. The dates of the several licenses are not given in this paper, but the names, although one or two are repeated, were in all likelihood extracted in the order of entry, and it will be observed that the list includes nearly all the distinguished ministers of the time.

THE NAMES OF CERTAYNE PERSONS THAT HAVE HADD LICENSE TO PREACHE UNDER TH' ECCLESIASTICALL SEALE SINCE JULYE IN ANNO 1547.

Baldewin Norton, Master of Arte.

Doctour Parker, D. in Dyvinitie.

Rycharde Queene.

Doctour Eglyambye.

Wylliam Leremount, Chaplayne to the Ladye Anne of Cleve.

John Whitehedde, Bachelor of Devinitie.

Wyllyam Chamberlaine.

Rycharde Wilkes, Bachelor of Devinitie.

Edwarde Robynson, Mr. of Arte.

10 John Bythe, Scottishman, Mr. of Arte.

Hughe Sewell, Mr. of Arte.

¹ Vol. i. p. 228.

- Gylbart Barkeley.
 Henrye Parry.
 Thomas Beatone.
 Edmunde Allen.
 Cardemaker.
 Hughe Latimer, Doctour of Devinitie.
 Rowlande Taylor, Doctor of Lawe.
 William Bylle, Doctour of Devinitie.
 20 Gowfreye Gilpin, Bachelor of Devinitie.
 Xp̄oher Thredder, Vicar of Walden.
 Doctor Coxe.
 Mr. Gilpin, Mr. of Arte.
 Leonarde Coxe.
 Thomas Roose.
 John Gybbes, Bachelor of Devinitie.
 Robert Horne, Bachelor of Devinitie.
 Thomas Levar, Mr. of Arte.
 Thomas Brickhedd, Bachelor of Devinitie.
 30 Edwin Sandes.
 Willyam Rede, Vicar of Grantham.
 Wylyam Claybroughe, Doctor of Devinitie.
 Robt. Watson, Professour of Devinitie.
 John Ruthe, Scottishman.
 Harrye Parrye.
 Alexander Logen, Mr. of Arte.
 James Pylkyngton, Mr. of Arte.
 John Whitewelle, Bachelor of Devinitie.
 John Keyron, Mr. of Arte.
 40 Thomas Gilham, Scott., Bachelor of Devinitie.
 Stephans Clercke.
 John Madew, Mr. of Arte.
 Thomas Bayley, Bachelor of Devinitie.
 Mathewe Parker, Doctour of Devinitie.
 Andrewe Perne, Bachelor of Devinitie.
 Henrye Wilshawe, Bachelor of Devinitie.
 Robt. Leighborne, Bachelor of Arte.
 Richarde Coxe, Doctour of Devinitie.
 Thos. Cottesforde, Student in Devinitie.
 50 Lawrence Taylor, the King's Chaplaine.
 Henry Kinge, Doctour of Devinitie.
 Henry Sydalle, Bachelor of Devinitie.
 Xp̄ofer Threader, Student in Devinitie.
 Robt. Banckes, Mr. of Arte.
 John Appelbye, Clerke.
 Wylyam Hutton, Mr. of Arte.
 Edmunde Perpointe, Bachelor of Devinitie.

- Willm. Cholwelle, Student in Devinitie.
 Lawrence Saunders, Proffessour of Devinitie.
 60 Robt. Kinge, Doctour of Devinitie.
 Richarde Hide, Mr. of Arte.
 Wyllyam Turner, Student in Devinitie.
 Henry Marshalle, Mr. of Arte.
 JOHN KNOXE, Scott.
 John Mackbraier, Scott., Mr. of Arte.
 Nycolas Danielle, Mr. of Arte.
 John Bradforde, Clerke.
 Thomas Bernarde, Mr. of Arte.
 Edmunde Gest, Bachelor of Devinitie.
 70 John Willocke, Mr. of Arte.
 James Haddon, Mr. of Arte.
 Willm. Huett, Mr. of Arte.
 Launcelott Thexton, Mr. of Arte.
 Thomas Sampson, Clerke.
 John Jewell, Clerke.
 Adam Shepparde, Bachelor of Devinitie.
 Alexander Nowell.
 Rycharde Tavernour.
 Henrye Hamilton.
 80 Edmunde Gryndall, Bachelour of Devinitie.

Knox himself states, in a few words, that he "was first appointed preacher to Berwick, then to Newcastle; last he was called to London, and to the southern parts of England, where he remained till the death of King Edward the Sixth."¹ One or two incidents which he passes over are deserving of notice, in particular the proposal by the Duke of Northumberland, in October 1552, to prefer him to the See of Rochester, then vacant by the promotion of Dr. Ponet to that of Winchester. The letters on this subject are already given.²

But previously to Knox receiving this overture for his preferment in the English Church, he had been appointed one of the six Chaplains in ordinary to the King. This statement having been called in question, a brief notice is requisite.

¹ Vol. i. p. 231.

² See the Letters printed in vol. iii. pp. 81*, etc. On this period of Knox's history I may refer to an interesting lecture delivered in Exeter Hall, entitled, "The Influence of Knox and the Scottish Reformation on England: A Lecture by the Right Hon. James Moncreiff, M.P., Lord Advocate of Scotland."—Exeter Hall Lectures to Young Men. London, 1860, 12mo.

In the MS. journal kept by the youthful Monarch, on the 18th of December 1551, we read as follows :—

“ It was appointed I should have six Chaplains ordinary, of which two ever to be present, and four always absent in preaching : one year two in Wales, two in Lancashire and Darby ; next year two in the Marches of Scotland, two in Yorkshire ; the third year, two in Devonshire, two in Hampshire ; fourth year, two in Norfolk and Essex, and two in Kent and Sussex, etc. These six to be Bill, Harle, Perne, Grindall, Bradford, Knox.”¹

This journal was first published by Bishop Burnet ; and Strype, in mentioning the names of the chaplains, says the sixth is dashed (that is, struck out or deleted), but probably it was that of Knox. A late editor of Strype’s *Life of Cranmer*² states, that on examining the original journal he ascertained that the name written was not Knox, but Eastwick. But this only proves that a person of that name may have been nominated before Knox was appointed. In like manner, in the MS. journal, we have the name of John Bradford, who was replaced by Horne, styled by the Duke of Northumberland “ the peevish ” Dean of Durham. Without referring to Knox’s preaching before the Court,³ and his employment as one of the itinerant preachers, it may be sufficient to notice the preparation of the Articles of Religion. These Articles, forty-five in number, were framed by Archbishop Cranmer, assisted, it is conjectured, by Ridley and Latimer, in May 1552, and submitted to the Privy Council of England.

¹ Burnet’s History of the Reformation, vol. ii. B. 11. edit. 1715, p. 39.

² Life of Cranmer, vol. ii. p. 412. Oxford, 1848.

³ Mr. Froude, in describing Knox’s sermon before the Court, in March 1553, in which he alluded to the Duke of Northumberland and the Marquess of Winchester under the names of Ahi-thophel and Shebna (see “ Admonition to the Professors in England,” vol. iii. p. 280-282), adds in a foot-note, “ Knox was not always just. He afterwards accused the Marquis of Winchester of having been the first contriver of the conspiracy to set aside Mary ; whereas, he was among the most consistent opponents of that conspiracy. He charged Gardiner with having advised the Spanish marriage, although there was nothing which Gardiner so much dreaded.”—History of England, vol. v. p. 477.

In the Council Records, on the 21st of October 1552, is the following entry :—

“ A letter to Mr. Harley, Mr. Bill, Mr. Horne, Mr. Grindall, Mr. Perne, and Mr. Knox, to consider certaine Articles exhibited to the Kings Majestie, to be subscribed by all suche as shalbe admitted to be Preachers or Ministers in any parte of the Realm, and to make report of theyr opinion touching the same.”¹

These Articles were returned to Archbishop Cranmer on the 20th of November following, as we are told, with some alterations proposed by the King’s chaplains and others, to be submitted to the King; but six months elapsed before they were authorized by Royal mandate, and only a short time before the premature death of King Edward the Sixth.² These “Articles concerning an Uniformitie in Relligion,” as already stated, are forty-five in number, and form the basis of the Thirty-nine Articles of the Anglican Church. An original copy (in Latin), consisting of twelve pages, written on stout paper, with the autograph signatures of the King’s chaplains, and dated 21st of October 1552, is preserved in H.M. State Paper Office.³ A facsimile of their signatures is here added.

Jo. Harley.
 Wilkin^g Bill.
 Robertus Horne
 Andreas perne.
 Edmundus grindall
 Jo. Knox

¹ Privy Council Records, vol. iii. p. 624.

² Calendar, Domestic Series, 1547-

³ Todd’s Life of Cranmer, ii. 285, &c.

1580, p. 5, no. 34.

V.—THE ENGLISH PROTESTANT CHURCHES ABROAD DURING THE PERSECUTION.

The death of Edward the Sixth, on the 6th of July 1553, produced a total revolution in the affairs of England, both political, religious, and domestic. Mary was proclaimed Queen on the 19th of that month, at the Cross at Cheapside, amidst general exultation. The people, as often happens after any great change for which their minds were not fully prepared, seemed the more eager in returning to old customs and observances, and in welcoming the renewal of the Church services with which they had been familiar from their youth. The privilege of freedom of worship formerly granted to foreign refugees was first withdrawn, and the Flemish and German settlers, carrying on various useful mechanical arts, were enjoined to leave the country. At length persecution broke out in all its fury, and several hundreds of the clergy and laity became voluntary exiles, preferring the sacrifice of property, and the rending asunder of domestic relations, to an abandonment of their religious convictions. Others, unable to escape, were cast into prison, tried, and many of them condemned to the flames. Of the sufferings and death "of those most faithfull servantes and deare children of God," who remained in England, and "were slain for the word of God, and for the testimony which they held" (Rev. vi. 9), it may be sufficient to refer to the great storehouse of information, Foxe's "Actes and Monuments," and also to the Names of the Martyrs, from 1554 to 1558, subjoined to Knox's "Admonition to England," and reprinted in Vol. v. pp. 523-536. The number of persons actually burnt at the stake during these three years is reckoned at nearly three hundred.¹

Knox himself was persuaded by his friends, "partly by admonition, partly by tears," to withdraw from his labours in England. He was conveyed in a vessel to Dieppe, in the beginning of March 1554.¹ He remained there for about a month, and again went forth, as a homeless wanderer, departing, he says, from Dieppe, with "a sore troubled heart, whether, God knoweth."² He passed through France and Switzerland, visiting the Reformed Churches, till he took up his residence at Geneva, and enjoyed the friendship of Calvin and other Swiss divines. On the 24th of September 1554, he accepted the call from Frankfurt to become one of the ministers to the English congregation in that city. The letters and extracts from the "Brief Discourse of the Troubles at Frankfurt," which are given in Vol. iv., supersede the necessity of any further details.³

¹ Froude's History of England, vol. vi. p. 533.

In these disputes, relating to church vestments, ceremonies, and the exclusive use of the English Liturgy, Knox undoubtedly displayed great moderation. Yet some of the English brethren took advantage of certain expressions in his Admonition to England to alarm the magistrates of the city by denouncing him as an enemy to the Emperor. These dissensions served to break up "this oppressed church." Knox resigned his ministerial charge, and, taking an affectionate leave of the congregation on the 26th of March 1555, he returned to Geneva. Bale, John Foxe, and other members repaired to Basel, while Whittingham and others accompanied Knox, entertaining similar sentiments in regard to the disputed forms of worship. It seems evident that he was there invited to resume his labours, yet, in the ensuing month of July, he obtained leave of absence, for the purpose of visiting his native country; as it is recorded, that on the 1st of November that year, when "the English church and congregation at Geneva was erected," Christopher Goodman and Anthony Gilby were "appointed to preche the Word of God, and mynyster the Sacraments in the absence of John Knox." After

¹ Vol. iii. pp. 156, 380.

² Vol. iii. p. 215.

³ See also an article entitled "The Marian Exiles" (I presume written by Mr. Froude), displaying great research, and full of valuable information on this subject, in the Edinburgh Review for April 1847, vol. lxxxv. pp. 393-4.

his return to Geneva, on "the 16th of December 1556, when the first yere was ended, then the whole congregation did elect and chuse John Knox and Christopher Goodman to be ministers."¹

But Knox, in his desire to revisit Scotland at that time, was evidently influenced by feelings of a personal nature. While employed as a preacher at Berwick, he became acquainted with the family of Richard Bowes, Captain of Norham Castle, who had married in 1522 Elizabeth, daughter and co-heiress of Roger Aske of Aske. He was a younger son of Sir Ralph Bowes of Streatlam Castle, and two of his brothers were Sir Ralph Bowes, who was knighted after the battle of Floddon, in 1513, and Sir Robert Bowes, Warden of the Marches. Richard Bowes had a family of fifteen children, of whom ten were daughters. Two of the sons who survived rose to distinction, Sir George Bowes, and Robert Bowes, ambassador in Scotland during the reign of King James the Sixth. With the fifth daughter, Marjory Bowes, Knox formed an attachment, which was countenanced only by the mother, and, notwithstanding the opposition of her father and other relatives, they came under a mutual engagement in the year 1553. In the series of religious letters written by Knox, chiefly in 1553 and 1554, he addresses Mrs. Bowes as "Beloved Sister," and "Dearly Beloved Mother," and styles himself "Your Son." In one of these letters, dated 1st September 1553, he calls Marjory "his wyfe;" and in another, in March 1553-4, "his dearest spouse;" but he refers to the spiteful words, wounding him to the heart, used by one of her uncles on this subject on the 16th of November preceding;² and writing to Mrs. Bowes, before escaping from England, on the last of February 1553-4, he says, it was uncertain "if ever we shall meet in this corporall life; bot unless God's hand shall withhold me," he would not fail to visit her again. If family pride was hurt by such a proposed alliance, this may have been aggravated, if, as it is most likely, they still remained attached to the Romish Church.

¹ Livre des Anglois.

² Vol. iii. pp. 370, 376, 378.

On arriving in Scotland, in September 1555, Knox visited Berwick, but the marriage may not have taken place till the following year, when, preparatory to their setting out for Geneva, Mrs. Bowes had resolved to cast in her lot with them, leaving all her relations. While Knox was engaged in preaching in various parts of Scotland, he had received letters from his friends at Geneva, "commanding him in God's name, as he was their chosen pastor, to repair unto them." With this desire it was deemed expedient he should comply; and the Reformer says, he then took leave of the several congregations where he had preached, and sent his wife and her mother before him, "with no small dolour to their hearts," to wait his arrival at Dieppe. He, however, met them at Dieppe in the month of July, when they proceeded to Geneva. In the Livre des Anglois, on the 13th of September 1556, the names of "John Knox, Marjory, his wife, Elizabeth, her mother, James (blank), his servant, and Patrick, his puple," are entered as then received and admitted members of the English church and congregation. It is also recorded, that on the 16th of December, in the three successive years, 1556, 1557, and 1558, at the annual election of their office-bearers, Knox and Goodman were re-elected ministers.

The Lesser Council of Geneva had been solicited by Calvin, on the 10th of June, and again on the 24th of October 1555, to grant to the English, who had come to Geneva for the Gospel, the use of a church to administer the Word and Sacraments; of two churches specified, that called the Temple de Nostre Dame la Nove (or Neuve) was conceded for the joint use of the English and Italian congregations. This church is a building of the fourteenth century, with a groined roof, near the cathedral church of St. Pierre. It has long been used as a hall for reading lectures on philosophy, and is known as l'Auditoire de Philosophie. I have already noticed that the Council, on the 21st of June 1558, out of respect for their ministry of the Word of God, admitted Knox and Goodman as citizens or burgesses of Geneva gratis. Knox, it is well known, took his final leave of that city in January 1559, leaving his wife and children there until it should be seen what might be the issue of the troubles in Scotland. After the accession of Queen Elizabeth, it is pleasing to find that the English residents, on the 20th of May 1560, came in a body to the Council, and William Whittingham, in their name, expressed to the Seigneurie the gratitude they felt for the good reception accorded to them during their residence as exiles in their city; and presented, as a lasting memorial of their names, the above Livre des Anglois, which was graciously accepted. This interesting volume is still carefully preserved among the Archives of Geneva.¹ It includes, along with the names of persons admitted as members of the English congregation, a record of the election of ministers, elders, and deacons, of the children who were baptized, and also of marriages and burials, from October 1555 to 1560.

VI.—THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE PROTESTANT RELIGION IN SCOTLAND.

On leaving Scotland, in July 1556, Knox gave an assurance of his readiness, at all hazards, on receiving due notice, to join the small but zealous and courageous band who had devoted themselves to the cause of the Reformation. For this purpose, in the following year, he came to Dieppe, but there he received other letters dissuading him at that time from making the attempt,² and he returned, with a heavy heart,

¹ Some copies of this Register were printed in 1831.—(See vol. iii. p. 334, note 2.) Through the kindness of Walter L. Lawrence, Esq. of Sevenhampton Manor, Gloucestershire, I obtained an authenticated transcript of this Livre des Anglois, which I had afterwards an opportunity of collating with the original volume.

² See the letters referred to, vol. i. pp. 267, etc.; also the introductory notice, vol. iv. p. 257.

to Geneva. But the Popish clergy availed themselves of this opportunity to summon him, and, in his absence, he was degraded from the priesthood, condemned to the flames as a heretic, and burnt in effigy.¹ On hearing of this procedure, Knox wrote his "Appellation," addressed to the Nobility and Estates of Scotland, against "this cruel and unjust sentence," and printed the same at Geneva in 1558, accompanied with a similar letter to the Commonalty.

At length, at the end of January 1559, Knox took his departure from Geneva, and proceeded as usual to Dieppe, in order to receive fresh intelligence, and to obtain permission from the English Government to pass through the sister kingdom to Scotland. But this permission was not granted, and his messenger narrowly escaped imprisonment. The unfortunate appearance of his "First Blast,"² a few weeks before the death of Mary of England, made him, as he himself says, "odious in the eyes of Queen Elizabeth." It was "blown out of due season," and it was in vain to allege that this treatise had no personal reference to her Majesty; but she never forgave either Knox or his colleague, Christopher Goodman, for his similar treatise, "On Obedience to Superior Powers." The sale of both works was speedily prohibited; but this was no advantage to the authors. On the last of October 1559, Sir William Cecill, writing from the Court, says, "Of all others, Knoxees name, if it be not Goodman's, is most odiose here."³

As most of the English exiles, in various parts of the Continent, hastened back to their own country, the efforts of the Geneva refugees contributed in securing for that kingdom the establishment of pure religious worship, and it might have been well if in some minor points their views regarding ritual forms and church government had been adopted. But it is very evident that Queen Elizabeth was much inclined to prefer some of the Popish usages; and what she might have established, had she been left without wise and moderate counsels, when public affairs were in such a state of perplexity, may be inferred from her conduct regarding the conscientious scruples of Archbishop Parker and other prelates for enforcing obedience on the clergy in the year 1563.

¹ History, vol. i. p. 348. See also his letter to the Queen Regent, as revised in 1558, vol. iv. pp. 431, etc.

² Reprinted in vol. iv. p. 363, from the original edition.

³ Sadler's State Papers, vol. i. p. 532.

After waiting with impatience at Dieppe, Knox finding no answer to his letters, embarked in a vessel direct for Scotland, and arrived at Edinburgh on the 2d of May 1559. He came at a most critical time, and his presence had a powerful effect in inspiring with fresh courage the hearts of those noble adherents of the truth, who had assumed the name of THE CONGREGATION. Their numbers and power had greatly increased since the date of the First or Godly Band, in December 1557,¹ in which some of the leaders had openly avowed a determination "to strive in their Master's cause, even unto the death," in order "to maintain, set forward, and establish the most blessed Word of God, and His Congregation."

Occasional glimpses relating to affairs in Scotland are met with in the letters of the English prelates who had returned to their own country. A few passages in which Knox is mentioned may be quoted from the letters of Bishop Jewel to Peter Martyr:—

... "In Scotland we hear that there have been some disturbances, I know not of what kind, respecting matters of religion; that the nobles have driven out the monks and taken possession of the monasteries; that some French soldiers of the garrison have been slain in a riot, and that the Queen was so incensed as to proclaim the banishment of the preacher KNOX by sound of horn, according to the usual custom in Scotland, when they mean to send any one into exile. What has become of him I know not." . . . London, May 1559.

¹ This Band is inserted in the History, volume, p. 674, from an original copy, vol. i. p. 273, and again in the present with a facsimile of the signatures.

... "Everything is in a ferment in Scotland. Knox, surrounded by a thousand followers, is holding assemblies throughout the whole kingdom. The old Queen (dowager) has been compelled to shut herself up in garrison. The nobility, with united hearts and hands, are restoring religion throughout the country, in spite of all opposition. All the monasteries are everywhere levelled with the ground; the theatrical dresses, the sacrilegious chalices, the idols, the altars, are consigned to the flames; not a vestige of the ancient superstition and idolatry is left." London, August 1, 1559.

... "The Scots have in their camp the preachers Knox and Goodman, and they call themselves the 'Congregation of Christ.' Their next step was to send to the Queen to retire from Leith, if she would not be driven from thence by force and violence. And from this time they began to treat an alliance with England."¹ London, Dec. 1, 1559.

The Letters of the years 1559 and 1560, collected in this volume, and many of them now printed for the first time, corroborate, and serve to illustrate the detailed narrative of this important epoch given by Knox in his History of the Reformation. The two parties having resorted to arms, France, by the treaty of peace with England, at Cambray, 12th March 1559, was enabled to place an adequate force at the disposal of the Queen Regent, sufficient to overcome all opposition. The Protestants soon felt they would of themselves be unable to maintain the contest, and that it was all-important to obtain assistance from England. In the negotiations for this purpose, Knox was a chief instigator and agent, but the treaty of peace referred to prevented such aid from being openly afforded. The urgent necessity of obtaining both arms and money, led Knox, in a letter to Sir James Croft, after expressing his conviction that the French had no kindly feelings towards England, only waiting their opportunity and advantage, to say, "If you list to craft with thame, the sending of a thousand or mo [more] men to us, can breake no league nor point of peace contracted betwix you and Fraunce. For it is free for your subjects to serve in warr any prence or nation for thare wages. And yf ye feare that such excussis shall not prevaile, you may declayr thame rebells' to your realme, when ye shall be assured that thei be in our companye." Croft, in his answer, when referring to "your devises how to colour our doings in that part,"¹ gave Knox a rebuke which he was not likely soon to forget;² and Cecill, to whom both Knox's letter and a copy of the reply were transmitted, in writing to Sadler and Croft, on the 3d of November, says, "Suerly I like not Knoxees audacitie, which also was well tamed in your answer. His writings doo no good here; and therefore I doo rather suppress them, and yet I meane not but that ye shuld contynue in sending of them."³ This was fortunate, otherwise many of his letters would probably not have been preserved. Knox, in his answer, acknowledges he had made an unreasonable proposal, but states that he had written the foresaid letter at the urgent request of others.⁴ Yet, after all, although it is no vindication of Knox, the course which he suggested was precisely the line of conduct which the repeated instructions of Queen Elizabeth⁵ had directed Sadler and Croft to pursue; and transmitting money to be given to "the rebels," or Scottish Protestants, IN THE MOST SECRET MANNER, was virtually to deny such aid having been given, had it been called in question; while Cecill himself repeatedly mentions the difficulty he had in procuring French crowns

¹ Zurich Letters, edited for the Parker Society by the Rev. Dr. H. Robinson, pp. 24, 39, 60.

¹ Infra, p. 90. Mr. Froude, in quoting part of this letter, falls into the mistake of calling the writer The Master of Sinclair, overlooking the postscript of Sir James Croft's previous letter of the 29th of August, mentioning that it was agreed that Knox in his letters, in case of being intercepted, should use the name of John Sinclair. (History of Queen Elizabeth, vol. i. p. 152. Sadler's State Papers, vol. i. p. 523. Infra, p. 77.)

² Infra, p. 92.

³ Sadler's State Papers, vol. i. p. 535.

⁴ Infra, p. 94. ⁵ Ib. pp. 64, 75.

and other foreign money, instead of English gold, that it might not be suspected from what quarter it came. But this was an age of dissimulation.

Sir William Cecil was successful in persuading Queen Elizabeth to contribute money, and afterwards men, to assist the Protestant cause in Scotland. He was well aware that this was the surest as well as the most economical mode of guarding England from the schemes of France and Spain for the restoration of Popery, and upholding the claims of Mary Queen of France and Scotland, as heir to the Crown of England. Without noticing the stirring events occasioned by the arrival of French auxiliaries to the Queen Dowager, Regent of Scotland, and her nominal deposition by the Congregation, at length, with the co-operation of English vessels and troops, the Lords of the Congregation were finally triumphant, the death of the Regent at Edinburgh, in June, having removed some difficulties in concluding a treaty of peace, which was proclaimed at the Cross of Edinburgh on the 8th of July 1560. The French army, consisting of 4000 men, were then transported in English vessels to France; some of their fortifications were dismantled; the English forces began their march homewards, leaving this unhappy country to recover its losses, while the Protestants observed a solemn public thanksgiving, in St. Giles' Church, Edinburgh, "for deliverance from the cruell oppression of strangers, and setting this realme at a reasonable liberty." The Articles of Peace, the Proclamation, and Knox's Prayer on that solemn occasion, are contained in Book Third of his History of the Reformation.¹

The meeting of the Estates of Parliament which took place, was adjourned to the 1st of August. The ministers were then called upon to prepare, in separate and distinct heads, the sum of the Doctrine which they would maintain, and desired the Parliament to establish. This was done, within the brief space of four days, in the CONFESSON OF FAITH, which was voted, and publicly ratified on the 17th of August 1560,¹ forming the Anniversary day of the Reformation from Popery.² Three Acts were likewise passed on the 24th of that month, against the Pope's jurisdiction in Scotland, and for the abolition of Idolatry, and of the Mass, by which all former Acts in favour of the Church of Rome were annulled. It may be noticed that Randolph wrote to Cecill on the following day,³ stating that he had conversed with several of the chief ministers (naming Knox, Willock, and Goodman), to ascertain their sentiments, whether a uniformity of religion might not be had in both kingdoms; but while the ministers, he says, were not wholly disinclined to some proposal of the kind, he was constrained to add, "I see little hope thereof."⁴

¹ Vol. ii. pp. 72-86.

Notwithstanding the peaceful issue of these troublous times, there were trials and disappointments which Knox and his friends had to endure, both of a public and private nature. The messengers sent to the young Queen in France failed in obtaining her authority to sanction the proceedings in August. The ministers also were anxious that since the Doctrine of the Church was received and approved, the proposed scheme of its Discipline and Policy should likewise be ratified. In these volumes, I imagine there is nothing of more importance than the copy of THE BOOK OF DISCIPLINE, with its marginal notes, when under consideration by the Lords of Privy Council.⁵ But here the natural desire to obtain a reasonable share of the Church property, so essential for carrying into effect this scheme of policy, came into collision with the selfish interests and rapacity of the nobility and gentry, who had secured, or expected to secure, the chief share of the revenues of the Papal

¹ Ib. pp. 95-120. I had purposed to have inserted the names of the persons who were present in Parliament when the Confession was ratified, but I must simply refer to the Acts of Parliament, vol. ii. pp. 525, 526.

² See the interesting volume on the Ter-Centenary of the Scottish Reformation, Edinburgh, 1860, 12mo.

³ Infra, p. 119.

⁴ Bishop Lesley also refers to this scheme.—See vol. ii. p. 82, note 3.

⁵ Vol. ii. pp. 183-258.

Church, by grants of land, leases, and alienations. In this way the funds were swallowed up, which ought to have provided a competent allowance for the support of the ministry, and of the poor,—furnished means for the reparation of churches, for the erection of parish schools, and for the improvement of education in the Universities. But all these wise and liberal designs were treated as “devout imaginations.” The ministers received either no stipends, or such miserable allowance as left them near akin to great destitution,—no provision was made for the poor—the course of education continued unreformed or neglected, and churches were allowed to fall into ruin—while many of the Popish clergy were idly enjoying two-thirds of their benefices; and at length the arrival of Queen Mary, and the singular influence she exerted, threatened to accomplish one great object of her life, the restoration of Popery in Scotland, by securing the dominant power of France.

VII.—KNOX AS MINISTER OF EDINBURGH.

At the period of the Reformation the great Church of St. Giles became the parish church of Edinburgh, and Knox at first was nominated to be sole minister, with John Cairnes as Reader. The Canongate, or Holyrood-house, remained a distinct charge, as well as the landward parish of St. Cuthbert's. The Provost and Prebendaries of the Collegiate establishment of St. Giles being allowed to retain possession of their dwelling-houses and gardens near the church, the Provost and Town-Council had to provide “a lodging,” or accommodation, for their minister; and the house assigned to Knox, or in which he continued to reside, was situated at the Netherbow Port, or eastern entrance-gate to the town, and was known as the house of George Durie, Abbot of Dunfermline.¹ The annual rent, or

¹ See vol. i. p. 183, note 2.

“house-mail,” for this, was paid and entered in the Town’s accounts.¹

The house is still preserved as a memorial of the Reformer,² but it has more than once been remodelled, and a few years ago was restored by public subscription. The Act of Council, on 30th of October 1561, may be quoted as an instance of their desire to render the house comfortable :—

“The samine day, the Provost, Baillies, and Counsaill, ordanis the Dene of Gyld with all diligence to mak ane warme studye of dailles to the minister, John Knox, within his hous, abone the hall of the samin, with lyght and wyndokis thereunto, and all uther necessaris,” &c.

Towards the end of December 1560, Knox experienced a severe domestic bereavement by the death of his wife, Marjory Bowes, when probably not more than twenty-seven or eight years of age. Their children were two sons born in Geneva, of whom a brief account will afterwards be given.

On the 20th of that month, the first meeting of “The Univer-sall Kirk of Scotland” (since known as “The General Assembly”) was held at Edinburgh. The members consisted of “Ministers and Commissioners of Particular Kirks,” who assembled “to consult upon those things whilk ar to sett fordward God’s glorie and the weill of His Kirk.” There were forty-two persons present, of whom only six are described as ministers. One important business was preparing a list of persons who “were thought best qualified for preaching of the Word and ministring of the Sacraments, and reading of the Common Prayers publickly in all kirks and congregations.” In the month of July preceding, the Nobility, and the chief part of the Congregation, had met in the great Church of St. Giles to settle the placing of ministers in the principal towns. At the same time five Superintendents were nominated for election.

¹ Dr. M’Crie has given in the Appendix to his Life of Knox, note K, other extracts from the Records of the Town-Council of Edinburgh, to “show the attention which they paid to the support and accommodation of their minister.”

² See wood-cut, infra.

We may easily imagine how difficult a matter it was at this time to provide suitable persons for so many vacant parish churches. Prior to the Reformation, most of the parish livings, with the patronage, had been engrossed by the religious houses, and became dependencies as mensal churches on the Abbays; and as the priests were legally Rectors, in order to monopolize the vicarage dues they appointed vicar-pensioners to perform the duties with the lowest amount of stipend. In this way, no small number of parishes had been left either wholly unprovided, or the rural clergy were for the most part very inefficient. In the early part of that century, one of our poets, himself a priest, when soliciting from James the Fourth some preferment, alludes to the unequal distribution of benefices, when six or seven were engrossed by one person, while he himself could not obtain one,— “ Great Abbais grayth (wealth) I nill to gather,

 Bot ane kirk I scant coverit with heather ;
 For I of lytill wald be fain,
 Quhilk to consider is a pain.”¹

In choosing Superintendents, it was part of their duty to visit and preach in destitute localities, but not to remain more than a limited time in any one place. While they possessed no episcopal or diocesan authority over their brethren, they had a general commission to try and judge of the peculiar fitness of persons whom they should admit either as ministers or readers in vacant churches; but they themselves were subject to be tried, censured, or superseded by the General Assembly if remiss in their duties. The powers they exercised were afterwards transferred to ministers and elders sitting in their respective presbyteries; for it is well known that, during Knox's life, the platform of Presbyterian Church government had not been fully matured until THE SECOND BOOK OF DISCIPLINE was prepared and adopted in the year 1581.²

¹ Dunbar's Poems, note ii. p. 207.

² See further, the Preliminary Notice, infra, p. 383, &c.

In regard to the subsequent events of Knox's life, there is no occasion to enlarge. He had still a principal share in all ecclesiastical matters, nor was his influence in public affairs lessened, while his ministerial labours were unceasing. Without entering upon matters of public history, his intercourse and conferences with his sovereign cannot be overlooked. Mary Queen of Scots was sent to France in the sixth year of her age. Her education, and the corrupt state of the Court in which she remained, had a most pernicious effect on her after conduct. Her marriage with the Dauphin of France was an unhappy alliance. When Francis and Mary ascended the throne, the whole power was centred in the House of Guise; and Scotland, under their influence, was likely to become a province of France, in like manner as England had been of Spain during the reign, of Philip and Mary: fortunately in both kingdoms the cause of civil and religious liberty prevailed. But the death of her youthful husband was one of those sudden and unexpected revolutions which at this period were so frequent, and produced a change in the whole course of public events. By the advice of her uncles, she refused to sanction the proceedings of the Scottish Parliament in August; but, when invited to return to her own kingdom in the following year, she engaged to make no alteration in the form of religion as then established. But her personal influence was soon felt to be most prejudicial, and the question of toleration of the service of mass in her private chapel at Holyrood brought Knox, and the more conscientious Protestants, in immediate collision with the Queen and her courtiers. He was one of the few persons who escaped her fascinations. From the first, he was strongly impressed with the same duplicity of character which her mother, Mary of Guise, had exhibited. But, however plain-spoken Knox might be in their conferences, there never was any of that rude insolence on his part which it is so customary to allege. The marriage of the young and accomplished widowed Queen became a source of protracted negotiation and jealous interference on the part of her sister of England: it was indeed a matter of great national importance, connected not only with the succession to the English throne in the event of Queen Elizabeth's death, but in some measure with the immediate peace of Europe. But here her own wilfulness gave an unlucky preference, and was productive of events which darkened the remaining period of her career.

It is not here required to trace the rapid march of public events at this time; nor to enter upon the fruitful field of controversy to which some of these events gave rise. Such, for instance, were the schemes for the Queen's marriage, and her self-willed preference for Darnley; the murder of David Riccio in her presence, and the implacable spirit of revenge which this engendered, and which unquestionably contributed to the tragical termination of Darnley's career; the Queen's infatuation for the Earl of Bothwell, the murderer of her husband, and the marriage that took place in such indecent haste within three weeks of that atrocious deed, with a man who combined the most open profligacy and sensuality with a restless, aspiring ambition; the battle of Carberry Hill, and Bothwell's flight to Denmark; the Queen's imprisonment in Lochleven Castle, and her forced abdication in favour of her infant son, James the Sixth;—all these form a series of stirring events crowded within the brief space of two years. During part of this time Knox was absent from Edinburgh, having been silenced from preaching, on account of some expressions in a sermon which gave offence to Darnley; but he was fully occupied in visiting churches, and in writing the continuation of his great work, the History of the Reformation. With the permission of the General Assembly, he took this opportunity to visit the north of England where his two sons were with their mother's relatives for education. He returned in time to preach the sermon at the coronation of the youthful King at Stirling in July; and also at the opening of the Parliament at Edinburgh in December 1567, which inaugurated the Regency of the Earl of Murray ; then it was that the Confession of Faith and the Acts in favour of the Reformed religion obtained the formal ratification of Parliament. But this change in the government was unfortunately of short continuance, and the assassination of the Earl of Murray was deeply felt and lamented by Knox, and “all good men.” Happy would it have been for Scotland, had his Regency continued at least during the King’s minority.

When the Queen of Scots made her escape from Lochleven Castle, and her adherents were dispersed at Langside, in an evil hour for herself, she fled from her own subjects, and threw herself into the power of her jealous rival the English Queen. From that time she deprived herself of importance in the eyes of the English Roman Catholics, and of foreign potentates, for accomplishing their designs against the freedom and religion of England. Yet some of her adherents, along with Kirkaldy of Grange, and Maitland of Lethington, having possession of the Castle of Edinburgh, gave rise to fresh troubles and civil warfare, until, after the siege of the Castle by the English, they came to a miserable end, in May 1573.

Knox left Edinburgh for his own security, in May 1571, and resided at St. Andrews. The description of him in his latter days, given by James Melville in his Diary, at the time he was a student at St. Andrews, in 1571, is much too interesting to be omitted :—

“But of all the benefits I had that year was the coming of that most notable prophet and apostle of our nation Mr. John Knox, to St. Andrews ; who, be the faction of the Queen occupying the Castle and town of Edinburgh, was compelled to remove therefrom with a number of the best, and choose to come to St. Andrews. I heard him teach there the prophecy of Daniel that summer, and the winter following. I had my pen and my little book, and took away such things as I could comprehend. In the opening up of his text he was moderate the space of an half hour ; but when he entered to application, he made me so to grow (shudder) and tremble, that I could not hold a pen to write. I heard him oftymes utter these threatenings in the height of their pride, which the eyes of many saw clearly brought to pass, within few years, upon the Captain of that Castle, the Hamiltons, and the Queen herself. He lodged down in the Abbey, beside our College ; and our Primarius, Mr. James Wilkie, our Regents, Mr. Nicol Dalgleise, Mr. Wilyeam Colace, and Mr. Johne Davidson, went in ordinarlie to his grace after dinner and supper. Our Regent tarried all the vacans (vacation) to hear him, howbeit he had urgent affairs of his brother-sons to handle, to whom he was tutor. Mr. Knox would some times come in and repose him in our College yard, and call us scholars unto him and bless us, and exhort us to know God and His work in our country, and stand by the good cause, to use our time well, and learn the good instructions and follow the good example of our maisters. Our whole College masters and scholars, were sound and zealous for the good cause. The other two Colleges not so, &c.

“ The Town of Edinburgh recovered again, and the good and honest men thereof returned to their houses. Mr. Knox with his family past home to Edinburgh. Being in St. Andrews he was very weak. I saw him every day of his doctrine go hule and fear, with a furring of martriks about his neck, a staff in the one hand, and good godly Richart Ballanden,¹ his servant, holding up the other oxter, from the Abbey to the parish church ; and be the said Richart and another servant lifted up to the pulpit, where he behoved to lean at his first entry ; but or he had done with his sermon, he was so active and vigorous that he was like to ding that pulpit in blads, and fly out of it.”²

In compliance with the request of a deputation sent by his congregation, that his voice might once again be heard amongst them, Knox returned to Edinburgh in August 1572, by short stages ; and, on account of the weakness of his voice, that part of the great Church of St. Giles, known as the Tolbooth, was fitted up as a small church for his use.¹ But his chief object was the appointment of his successor. The choice made, of Mr. James Lawson, Sub-Principal of King's College, Aberdeen, was most harmonious, and Knox feeling his increasing weakness, addressed to him the short letter given at p. 632, with the emphatic postscript, "Haist, leist ye come too laite !" Indeed his last public appearance was on the 9th of November, at Lawson's induction, and after praising God "that had given them one in the place of himself that was now unable to teach,"² he returned to his house for the last time—his feeble sickly frame no longer able for further service : But his appointed task was done, his warfare accomplished ; and, attended by his affectionate wife and sorrowing friends, he died in full assurance of faith, on Monday, the 24th of November 1572, in the sixty-seventh year of his age.

¹ Or Bannatyne.—See p. lix.

Club, 1829), pp. 21, 26 ; Autobiography

² James Melville's Diary (Bannatyne (Wodrow Society, 1842), pp. 2, 26, 33.

KNOX'S HOUSE, EDINBURGH.

¹ Infra, p. 631, note 2.

² Ib. p. 634.

The two contemporary narratives of Knox's last illness and death, inserted in this volume, present an affecting and beautiful picture, of the consistency of his character, his piety, resignation, and the vigour of his intellect even to the last. One or two incidents may be specially pointed out: His rising from his deathbed on Friday morning the 14th, thinking it was the Lord's Day, saying he intended to go to church and preach on the Resurrection of Christ, which had been the subject of his meditation during the night. On the following Sunday, he refused to partake of any food, supposing it to have been the day that was enjoined by the Assembly as a public Fast. Then, again, the anxiety he expressed for the spiritual welfare of his old friend and fellow-sufferer in 1548, but then styled "one of the traitors in the Castle," the Laird of Grange: "The man's soul is dear to me, and I would not have it perish, if I could save it." Would that his kindly feelings had been received in the same spirit. In like manner, when giving his approbation of the sermon preached by David Fergusson of Dunfermline, before the Regent and Nobility at Leith, in January 1572, he writes: "JOHN KNOX, with my dead hand but glaid heart, praising God that of His mercy He levis such light to His Kirk in this desolation."¹

Knox's funeral took place on Wednesday, the 26th of November, being conveyed from his house by the Earl of Morton, who on the same day had been appointed Regent, and a large concourse of people. He was interred in the burying-ground connected with the Church of St. Giles. We have no correct views or plans of the Church at an early date, but the annexed cut, though slight, copied from a bird's-eye view of the city in 1573, may furnish some idea of the open space that was used as the burying-ground.

¹ Reprinted in the Bannatyne Club volume of Fergusson's Tracts. Edinburgh, 1861, 8vo.

“ Upon Wednesday the 26th of November (says Calderwood), MAISTER KNOX was buried in the churchyard of St. Giles, being convoyed be the Erle of Mortoun, and uther Lords who were in the towne for the tyme. When he was layed in the grave the Erle of Mortoun uttered thir words : — ‘ HERE LYETH A MAN, WHO IN HIS LIFE NEVER FEARED THE FACE OF MAN ; WHO HATH BEENE OFTEN THREATNED WITH DAGGE AND DAGGER, BUT YET HATH ENDED HIS DAYES IN PEACE AND HONOUR ;’ For he had God’s providence watching over him in a speciale maner when his verie life was sought.”¹

This public cemetery, which extended from the south of the Church, on the slope of the hill till it reached the Cowgate, was wholly obliterated in 1633, when the Parliament House and other buildings were erected on the site, as partially represented in this cut, from Gordon’s Map of 1647.

If any stone ever marked the precise spot where Knox was buried, it was then destroyed. Tradition points out the place, in the Parliament Close, a few feet to the west of the pedestal of Charles the Second’s Statue. I have elsewhere remarked,² a more appropriate ornament for such a locality would be a monumental statue of the great Scottish Reformer.

¹ MS., Calderwood, 1636, last page: an instance of which is added : see M’Crie’s Knox, vol. ii. p. 188.

² Charters of St. Giles, etc. p. 50.

VIII.—KNOX'S LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT.

Knox's last Will, written on the 13th of May 1572, is, of its kind, a remarkable document. It was Confirmed by the Commissaries of Edinburgh, 13th January 1572-3. As it is already printed in the Appendix to Dr. M'Crie's "Life of Knox," and in Pitcairn's edition of Richard Bannatyne's Memorials, it was thought unnecessary to give in detail that portion of it which contains the inventory of "debts owing to the deid." His allusions to the state of public affairs, his disclaiming anything like a prophetic spirit (as he "never exceeded the bounds of God's Scriptures"), and his earnest exhortations to constancy in the truth, are very characteristic and worthy of notice.

THE TESTAMENT TESTAMENTARE and INVENTARE of the gudis, geir, sowmes of money, and dettes perteing to umquhile JOHNNE KNOX, Minister of the Evangell of Christ Jesus, the tyme of his deceis; quha deceissit upoune the xxiiij day of November, the yeir of God J^m v^c lxxij yeiris, ffaithfullie maid and gevin up be him self upoune the xiiij day of Maij, the yeir of God foirsaid; and presentlie, be MARGARET STEWART, his relict; quhome, with MARTHA, MARGARET, and ELIZABETH KNOXIS, his dochteris, he upoune the xiiij day of Maij, in his Lattir Will underwritin, nominate his Executoris Testamentaris: As the samin, of the dait foirsaid, beiris.

In the first, the said umquhile Johnne grantit him to haif had, the tyme foirsaid, tua sylver drinking cowpis, markit with J. K. M. one the ane syde, and on the uthir syde with E. B. N., contening xxv unces, or thairby; tua saltfattis of sylver, of xxxj unce wecht and ane half; auchtene sylver spunes, contening xx unce wecht and a quarter, price of the unce xxvj s. viij d., summa, ffoureskoir pundis; off the quhilk sylver work abone written, the airschip is to be deducit and takin of. Item.

the said Margaret, ane of the saidis executouris, grantit that the said unquhile Johnne had at the tyme of his deceis foirsaid, in pois, ane hundreth pundes. Item, his buikis, alsweill upoune the Scriptures as uther prophane authoris, worth vj^{xx} and x li. Item, in utensile and domicile, the airschip being deducit, to the avaiill of xxx li.

Summa Inventarii, ij^c lxxxxvj li. vj s. viij d. (£296, 6s. 8d.)

FOLLOWIS THE DETTIS AWIN TO THE DEID.

Item, thair wes awing to the said unquhile Johnne, the tyme of his deceis foirsaid, be Andro Lord Stewart of Uchiltrie, his guidfader, the sowme of lxxx li. of lent money. Item, be Williame Fiddes, baxter, x li. restand awand to the said unquhile Johnne of quheit, quhilk he ressavit to gif breid for.

Summa of the dettis, abone writtin, awing to the deid, viij^c xxx li. xix s. vj d. (£830, 19s. 6d.)

Na dettis awing be the deid.

Summa of the Inventare, with the dettis awing to the deid, I^m v^c xxvj li. xix s. vj d. (£1526, 19s. 6d.)

To be dividit in thre pairtis. The deidis pairt thairof extendis to iij^c lxxv li. xiiij s. ij d. (£375, 13s. 2d.)

FOLLOWIS THE LATTER WILL AND LEGACIE.

LORD JESUS, I commend my troublit spreit in Thy proteccion and defence! and thy troublit Kirke to Thy mercie! Becaus I haif had to do with dyvers personages of the Ministrie, quhairunto God of His mercie erectit me, within this realme, my dewetie cravis that I sall leve unto thaim now ane testimony of my mynd. And first unto the Papistis, and to the unthankfull world I say, that althocht my lyfe hes bene unto thaim odious, and that oftentymes thai haif socht my destructioun and the destructioun of the Kirk, quhilk God, of His mercie, hes plantit within this realme, and hes alwayis preservit and keptit the samin fra thair crewale interprysis ; yit to thaim I am compellit to say, that onles thai spedelie repent, my departing of this lyfe salbe to thaim the grettest calamitie that evir yit hes apprehendit thaim ; sum small apperance thai may yit haife in my lyfe, gif thai haif grace to sie ; ane deid manne haif I bene, almaist thir tua yeiris last bipast, and yit I wald that thai suld rypelie consider in quhat bettir estait thai and thair materis standis in, than it hes done befoir, and thai haif hard of lang tyme befoir threatnit : Bot becaus thai will nocht admit me for ane admoniser, I gif thaim ovir to the judgement of Him quha knawis the hartis of all, and will disclose the secretis thair of in dew tyme. And this for the Papistis. To the ffaithfull God, befoir His Sone, Jesus Christ, and befoir His halie angellis, I protest that God be my mouth, be I nevir so abject, hes schawin to yow His trewth, in all simplicite. Nane I haif corrupted ; nane I haif defraudit ; merchandise haif I not maid ; to Godis glorie I write of the glorious Evangell of Jesus Christ, bot according to the measour of the grace graunted unto me, I haif dividit the sermont of trewth in just pairtis ; beatin down the pryde of the proude, in all that did declair thair rebelloun againis God, according as God in His law gevis to me yit testimonie ; and raising up the consciences trublit with the knowledge of thair awin synnis, be the declaring of Jesus Christ, the strenth of his death, and the michtie operatioune of his resurrectioun, in the hartis of the faithfull : Of this, I say, I haif ane testimony this day, in my conscience, befoir God ; how that evir the warld rage : Be constant, thairfoir, in doctrine that anis publictlye ye haif professit : Lat nocht selandrous dayis draw yow away fra Jesus Christ ; nather lat the prosperitie of the wickit move yow to follow it nor thame ; ffor howsoever it be that God appeiris to neglect His awin, for ane seasoune, yit He remanis ane just juge, quha nathir canne nor will justifie the wickit ! I am nocht ignorant that mony wald that I suld entir in particulare determinatioune of thir present troubles ; to quhome I panelie and simple ansuer, that as I nevir excedit the boundes of Godis Scriptures, sua will I not do, in this pairt, by Godis grace; bot heirof I am assurit be Him quha nathir canne dissave nor be dissavit, that the Castell of Edinburcht, in the quhilk all the murthour, all the truble, and the haill destructiounes of this pairt Commounweill wes inventit, and as our awin eis may witnes, by thaim and by thair mantenaris, wes put in executiounes, sall cum to destructiounes, mantene it quha sa list; the destructiounes, I say, of body and saul, except thai repent! I luik not to the momentary prosperitie of the wicket, ye, not althocht thai suld remane conquerouris to the cuming of our Lord Jesus! Bot I luik to this sentence, that quhasaevir scheddis innocent bluid defyles the land, and provoikis Godis wraith aganis him self and the land, untill his bluid be sched agane, be ordour of law, to satisfie Godis anger. This is not the first tyme that ye haif hard this sentence, althocht that mony at all tymes sturrit at sik severitie, I yit afferme the same, being reddy to entir to gif compt befor His Majestie of the stewartschip He committit unto me. I knaw in my death the rumouris salbe strange, bot be ye nocht trublit above measour, belovit in the Lord Jesus! Bot yit agane I say, remane constant in the trewth, and He quha of His mercie send me, conductit me, and prosperet the work in my hand aganis Sathan, will provide for yow abundantlie, quhenne that athir my bluid sall wattir the doctrine taucht be me, or He of His mercie utherwayis provide to put ane end to this my battell. My executouris I mak, constitute, and ordane MARGARET STEWART, my spous; MARTHA, MARGARET, and ELIZABETH KNOXIS, my dochteris; and the ffaithfull to be overs-menne. To my tua sones, NATHANAELL and ELEAZARE KNOXIS, I unfenedlie leif that same benedictiounes that thair darrest moder, MARJORIE BOWSE, left unto thaim, to witt, that God, for His Sone Christ Jesus saik, wald of His merci mak thaim His trew feireris and als upright worschipperis of Him as ony that evir sprang out of Abrahames loynes; quhairto now, as thame, I fra my troublit hart say, Amenne! Farther. I haif delyverit, be Maister Randulphe, to Mr. Robert Bowse, Schereff of the Bischoprick, and bruder to the said Marjorie, my umquhill darrest spous, the sowme of fyve hundreth pundis of Scottis money, to the utilitie and proffett of my saidis tua sones: The quhilk money is that pairt of substance that fell or pertenit to thaim be the deceis of Marjorie Bowse, thair moder, of blissit memorie, and augmentit be me as I mycht or may spair, to mak out the said sowme; for I ressavit of thairis bot ane hundreth merkis stirling, quhilk I of my povirtie extendit to fyve hundreth pundis Scottis:¹ And that in contentatioune of thair bairnis pairt of geir, quhilkis may fall to thaim be my deceis. Item, I leif to my saidis tua sones, tua sylver drinking cowpis, the ane of thaim markit with J. K. M. one the ane syde, and one the other syde with E. B. N., and in lyke maner the tother with the same mark and lettres; the wecht of the saidis tua cuipis contenand xxij unce, or thairby; tua saltfattis of sylver, and xvij sylver spones, weyand xxxiiij and ane quarter unces, price of the unce overheid xxvj s. viij d. The quhilkis cuipis, saltfattis, and spunes, I leif in keping to the said Margaret, my spous, quhill my saidis sones be of the aige of xxj yeiris; at the quhilk tyme, I ordane and commandis hir to delyver the samin to my saidis sones, or to ony ane of thaim, gif be deceis the uthir faillis. Item, I leif also to my saidis sones, ane pairt of my saidis buikis, of the availl of xxx li. And failzeing of my saidis sones, and thair airis, I ordane the foirsaidis fyve hundreth pundes, with the sylver cuipis, spunes, saltfattis, and buikis, to returne agane, as efter followis; that is to say, the ane equale half thairof to the said Margaret, my spous, and my saidis thre dochteris; and the uthir half of the same to my bruder, Williame Knox, and his airis quhatsumevir. Item, I leif to my said spous, Margaret Stewart, the aucht hundreth merkis whilkis ar laid upoune the landis of Pennymoir, quhairin schö is infest be Andro Lord Stewart of Uchiltrie, my fader of law ; and failzeing of the said Margaret, I leif the samin to my saidis thre dochteris ; and failzeing of thaim, I leif the samin to the said Andro Lord Stewart of Uchiltrie, and his airis quhatsumevir : Chairgeing and requyring my said fader of law, and his airis, as thai will ansuer befor that incorruptible Juge, the Lord Jesus, that thai suffer not my said spous and childrene to be defraudit, or evill payit, of the males and annuelrent of the saidis landis, during the non-redemptioun of the samin. Item, I leif to Paule Knox, my bruder sone, ane hundreth pundis, quhilk lyis in wodset upoune Robert Campbellis landis in Kynzeancleucht, and quhairin the said Paule is ellis infest ; and that to be ane help to hald him at the sculis. And as concerning the rest of my haill guidis quhatsumevir, I leif to be dividit betuix my said spous and my saidis thre dochteris. And becaus my said spous man tak the cair of my saidis dochteris, and faithfullie travell for thair guid nurishment and upbringing, thairfoir I leif my said spous the use of thair geir, quhill thai be mareit, or cum to perfite age ; at quhilk tyme I ordane that every aire, as the tyme approtches, to haif thair awin that to thaim appertenis.

¹ See p. lxii.

(Sic subscribitur) JOHNE KNOX.

JOHNE ADAMESONE, witnes.

ROT. WATSOUNE, witness.

JOHNE JOHNSTOUN, witnes.

Quotta gratis. THE QUOTE of this Testament is gevin gratis, at speciale command of my Lordis Commissaris.

WE, Maisteris Robert Maitland, &c., Commissaris of Edinburgh, specialie constitut for confirmatioun of Testamentis, be the tennour heirof, ratefeis, appreis, and confirmis this present Testament or Inventar, insafar as the samin is deulie and lauchfullie maid, of the gudis and geir above specifeit alanerlie. And gevis and committis the intromissioun with the samin to the saidis Margaret Stewart, relict of the said umquhile Johne Knox, Martha, Margaret, and Elizabeth Knoxis, his dochteris, his Executouris Testamentaris nominat be him, conforme to the Lattir Will above writtin : Reservand compt to be maid be thame thairof, as accordis of the law. And the said Margaret Stewart, ane of the saidis Executouris, being suorne, hes maid faith treulie to exerce the said office ; and hes fundin cautionne that the gudis and geir above specifeit salbe furthcumand to all pairteis havand interes, as law will ; as ane Act thairupoune beiris.

The Supplication of his faithful servitor, RICHARD BANNATYNE, regarding Knox's manuscripts, may be here added :—

TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE KIRK, 9TH MARCH 1572-3.

RICHARD BANNATYNE, servitor to umquhill Mr. Knox, presented the Supplication following :—

Unto your Wisdoms humbly means and shows, I, your Servitor RICHARD BANNATYNE,¹ servant to your umquhill most dearest brother (JOHN KNOX), of worthy memory, That where it is not unknowen to your Wisdoms that he left to the Kirk and Town of Edinburgh his HISTORY, containing in effect the beginning and progress of Christ's true religion, now of God's great mercy established in this Realme, wherein he hath continued and perfectly ended at the year of God 1564. So that of things done sensyne, nothing be him is putt in that form and order as he hath done the former : Yet not the less there are certain scrolls, papers, and minutes of things, left to me be him to use at my pleasure, whereof a part were written and subscribed with his own hand, and another be mine at his command, which, if they were collected and gathered together, would make a sufficient Declaration of the principall things that have occurred, since the ending of his former History at the year foirsaid; and so should serve for stuff and matter to any of understanding and ability, in that kinde of exercise, that would apply themselves to make a History, even unto the day of his death. But forsamikle as the said scrolls are so intacked and mixed together, that if they should come in any hands not used nor accustomed with the same, as I have been, they should altogether lose and perish. And seeing also I am not able, upon my own costs and expenses, to apply myself, and spend my time, to put that in order, which would consume a very long time; much less am I able to write them, and put them in Register, as they require to be, without your Wisdoms make some provision for the same: Wherefore, I most humbly request your Wisdoms, that I may have some reasonable pension appointed to me be your Wisdoms discretion, that thereby I may be more able to awaitt and attend upon the samine; least that these things done be that Servant of God, who was dear unto you all, should perish and decay, which they shall doe indeed, if they be not putt in Register, which I will doe willingly, if your Wisdoms would provide, as said is. And your Wisdoms Ansuer, &c.

¹ This faithful attendant, whose name is connected with the volume of "Memorials" (see vol. vi. p. 524), died on the 4th of September 1605. See his Confirmed Testament, in Pitcairn's edition of the Memorials, p. 363.

“The Kirk accepted the said Richard’s offer, and request the Kirk of Edinburgh to provide and appoint some learned men, to support Richard Bannatyne, to putt Johne Knox History, that now is in scrolls and papers, in good forme, with aid of the said Richard. And because he is not able to await thereon, upon his own expenssis, appoints to him the sum of ffourty pounds, to be payed off the 1572 yeirs crope, be the Collectors under-written, viz., the Collector of Lothian, Fife, Angus, and the West, Galloway, and Murray, and every one of them to pay six pounds thirteen shillings four pennies off the said crope: and it shall be allowed to them at compt, bringing the said Richard’s acquittance thereupon.”

Had space permitted, I might have inserted a poem which was written on occasion of Knox's death, and printed under the following title :—

“ ANE BREIF COMMENDATIOUN OF UPRICHTNES, in respect of the surenes of the same, to all that walk in it, amplifuyt cheiffly be that notabill document of Goddis michtie protectioun, in preserving his maist upright Servand, and fervent Messinger of Christis Evangell, JOHNE KNOX. Set furth in Inglis meter be M. JOHNE DAVIDSONE, Regent in S. Leonard's College.—Imprentit at Sanct Androis be Robert Lekpreuik. Anno 1573.”¹

It has, however, been accurately reprinted by Dr. M'Crie in the Appendix to his Life of Knox. It also forms a part of the volume of “The Poetical Remains of Mr. John Davidson, Regent in St. Leonard's College, and afterwards Minister of Salt-Preston. Edinb. 1829.” Post 8vo.²

IX.—KNOX'S FAMILY AND DESCENDANTS.

MARJORY BOWES, the Reformer's first wife, as already explained, was the fifth daughter of Richard Bowes of Aske and South Cowtown. The feelings of deep religious convictions of the mother, Mrs. Bowes, and the benefit she derived from the counsels of Knox, led to his forming an attachment to the daughter, and his coming under a formal engagement in the year 1553. But the marriage ceremony was apparently postponed till the spring of 1556, when both mother and daughter set out for Geneva. It might seem to be a strange proceeding on the part of Mrs. Bowes thus to leave her husband and the library at London in 1842, it fetched the extravagant sum of thirty-three pounds! It is now preserved in Mr. Christy Miller's library at Britwell, Buckinghamshire.

¹ The original tract is in quarto, ten leaves. Only one copy of it is known. About half a century ago it was bought in London for one guinea, when Dr. M'Crie obtained the use of it. It was resold [W. Blackwood's Catalogue, 1812, No. 233] to Mr. George Chalmers for seven guineas; and, at the sale of his

² Only a limited impression of this volume was printed, edited by James Maidment, Esq.

rest of her family, but Knox explains this in the restless state of her mind, except when "in the company of the faithful," of whom she judged him to be one; and he admits that her desponding habits were at times to him no small annoyance. Her husband, I presume, was a bigoted adherent of the Roman Catholic faith, and this may serve as the key both to his opposition to Knox's marriage with his daughter, and to the mother's attachment to her son-in-law. It cannot at least be said that Knox was actuated by the expectation of wealth. In his last Will and Testament he states that all the money he received from the mother's succession for the benefit of his two sons was one hundred merks sterling, which he "out of his poverty" had increased to five hundred pounds Scots, and had paid through Mr. Randolph to their uncle, Mr. Robert Bowes, for their use. The comparative value of money at this time was very variable, but we may reckon the hundred marks, or £66, 13s. 4d., was increased by Knox to £100 sterling.

Having obtained passports from the English Ambassador at Paris, on the 12th of June 1559, Mrs. Bowes, Mrs. Knox, and her two children, passed through England on their way north. The former remained with her family at Berwick, where her husband, "Richard Bowes of South Cowtoun, Esq.," had died nearly twelve months before. His will is dated at Berwick, 11th August, and probate was granted 13th October 1558.¹ He makes no mention in it either of his wife or their daughter Marjory. Four of his daughters were unmarried, and he leaves one hundred marks sterling (or £66, 13s. 4d.) to each, but enjoins that if either of them marry without consent of his two sons, this portion should be forfeited. Mrs. Knox rejoined her husband at Edinburgh in September 1559. A safe-conduct was obtained for Mrs. Bowes not long afterwards,² and the probability is that she was present when her daughter died, at the close of the following year. Two years later she was in England, Randolph writes to Cecil, 4th August 1562, that Mrs. Bowes was willing to return to Scotland, if she obtained license from Queen Elizabeth, to relieve Knox, being as "a lone man," from the burden of household affairs, and the charge of his children, her daughter's bairns,—bringing with her as much money as she had of her own, the sum not exceeding £100 sterling.¹

¹ Richmondshire Wills (Surtees' Society), p. 116. Durham, 1853, 8vo.

² Sadler's State Papers, vol. i. pp. 454, 479, 509.

It is uncertain how long Mrs. Bowes remained in Edinburgh. She may have gone to Northumberland with her two grandsons, at the time of Knox's second marriage; but the historian of Durham,² in his account of the Bowes family, says, that having continued to reside with her son-in-law, she died at Edinburgh in the year 1568; and Mr. Surtees remarks, "that the whole circumstances of this union tend to place the domestic character of the stern Reformer in a more amiable light than is perhaps generally understood." Knox himself has drawn her character with a gentle hand in the notice subjoined to his Answer to Tyrie, in 1572, contained in the present volume.³

NATHANIEL KNOX, the eldest son, was born at Geneva in May 1557, and was baptized on the 23d of that month, William Whittingham, afterwards Dean of Durham, being his godfather.⁴ With his brother Eleazer Knox, he was matriculated of the University of Cambridge, December 2d, 1572, or eight days after their father's death. He was B.A. 1576-7, and admitted a Fellow of St. John's College on the Lady Margaret's foundation, 1577.⁵ The registers of St. John's College furnish the following entries:—

"Ego, Nathanael Knox Richmond. admissus sum in discipulum pro D[omina] fund[atrice], 6 Novembris [1573]."

¹ Infra, p. 141.

² Surtees' Hist. of Durham, iv. 118.

³ Infra, p. 513.

⁴ Livre des Anglois, MS.

⁵ Cooper's Athenae Cantabrigienses, vol. i. pp.430, 568.

“Ego, Nathanael Knox Richmondiensis admissus sum Socius pro Domina fundatrice, [1577].”

Nathanael Knox

Mess. Charles H. and T.

Cooper think he was the Mr. Knox who personated “Hastings, miles calligatus,” in Dr. Legge’s play of “Richardus Tertius,” acted at St. John’s College in 1579. “It would seem that he was only an incepting M.A., for he was buried at Cambridge, 28th May 1580.”¹ Thomas Appleby, in a letter from London to his master, Sir George Bowes, 29th May, says, “The seneor Knox, your nephewe, who proceded Mr. of Arte, sence Easter, was buried at Cambridge yesterday, and diseased uppon Frydaye, in the afternone: his sickness was, as they write, a tertiane ague, and he hathe had it about xiiii dayes before God tuke him to his mercye.”²

ELEAZER KNOX, the second son, was also born at Geneva, and baptized on the 29th of November 1558, Myles Coverdale, formerly Bishop of Exeter, being witness or godfather.³ The two sons were brought up, probably after the Reformer’s second marriage, with the mother’s relatives; and, as already stated, they were entered as students of the University of Cambridge, in 1572. On examining the registers of St. John’s College, the following notices occur:—

“Ego, Eleazer Knox, Richmondiensis admissus sum discipulus pro Domina Fundatrice [12 Nov. 1575].

“Ego, Eleazer Knox Richmondiensis admissus sum in Socium pro Doctore Keyton [a bye-founder], 22 Mar. A.O. 1579.

Eleazer Knox

“Eleazer Knox electus prælector, 1 Aprilis 1580.

“Eleazer Knox electus sublector, 5 Julij 1582.

¹ Athenae Cantab., p. 568.

morials of the Northern Rebellion, p. 372.

² The Bowes’ Papers, vol. vii., Streatlam Castle; Sir Cuthbert Sharp’s Me-

³ Livre des Anglois, MS.

“Eleazer Knox examinador Rhetoricæ lectionis, 5 Julij 1583.

“Eleazer Knox electus concionator in festo Sancti Michaelis, [29 Sept.] 1587.

“Ego, Eleazer Knox admissus Ju[nior] Decanus, 14 Decembris 1587.”

These notices show the tenor of his college life and advancement.¹ We also find that he obtained preferment in the church, having been collated to the Vicarage of Clacton Magna, in the Archdeaconry of Colchester, 17th May 1587. According to marginal notes on the register, he died on the 22d of May 1591, and was buried in the chapel of St. John's College, Cambridge: —“Eleazer Knox, in Sacello sepultus; mortuus in vigilio Pentecostes 1591.”

By the death of these two brothers,² the family of the Reformer became extinct in the male line.

MARGARET STEWART, the Reformer's second wife, was the daughter of Andrew Lord Stewart of Ochiltree. At the time of her marriage she is said to have been only about sixteen years of age, while he was fifty-eight. Randolph, in writing to Cecill, 18th March 1563-4, mentions their having been proclaimed in the church, whereat, he says, “the Queen stormeth wonderfully, for that she is of the blood and name”³ (of the Royal house of Stewart). The father was one of the Lords of the Congregation, and a sincere Protestant, but we hear of no opposition on his part to the match; and the family was not at the time either of great influence or wealth.

The following table may serve, instead of any detailed pedigree, to show their connexions:—

¹ Newcourt's Repertorium, vol. ii. p. 154. The next vicar was “David Glen per mortem Knox,” 23d July 1591.

² The substance of these notices of the two brothers were extracted by Thomas Baker, and communicated to the Editor of Knox's History, Edinburgh, 1732, pp. xli-xlii. For an opportunity of examining the Registers I was indebted to the Rev. John E. B. Mayor, of St. John's, who also afterwards kindly provided me with excerpts, in case I might have overlooked any of the entries.

³ Infra, p. 533.

ANDREW STEWART, second Lord Avandale, killed at Floddon in 1513. — MARGARET KENNEDY, daughter of Sir John Kennedy of Blairsquhan, Ayrshire.

ANDREW, third Lord Avandale, created Lord Stewart of Ochiltree in 1542-3, died in 1548. Twice married: first to Lady Margaret Hamilton, only child of James, first Earl of Arran.	HENRY STEWART, created Lord Methven in 1528, on his marriage with Margaret Tudor, Queen Dowager of Scotland, as her third husband. He died in 1552.	SIR JAMES STEWART of Beith, killed in 1547. He married Margaret Lindsay, daughter of John Lord Lindsay of Byres. Their eldest son was James Lord Doun.
---	---	--

ANDREW, second Lord Ochiltree, had charters to himself and his wife of lands in Ayrshire, in 1549 and 1557. In 1583, he is described as "an aged man."	— AGNES CUNNINGHAM, daughter of John Cunningham of Caprington, Ayrshire.
--	--

ANDREW, Master of Ochiltree, died 10th September 1578, during his father's life. Was twice married. His eldest son, who in 1592, was aged 32, succeeded to the titles on his grandfather's death.	CAPTAIN JAMES STEWART, created Earl of Arran by King James the Sixth in 1581. D. in 1596.	MARGARET STEWART married, 1st, JOHN KNOX, in 1564; 2dly, Andrew Ker of Faldonsyde, in 1574. D. about 1612.	Other three sons, and a daughter, Isobell Stewart.
---	---	--	--

The family of Knox by his second wife, consisted of three daughters.

At the meeting of the General Assembly, held in March 1572-3, the following supplication on behalf of Mrs. Knox and her daughters was presented:—

REVEREND FATHERS, trustie and wellbelovits, We greit you heartily well: Seeing JOHN KNOX, minister of the word of God, is now departed this life, after his long and faithfull travells in the Kirk, leaving behind him Margaret Stewart, his relict, and his three daughters begotten of her, unprovided for; and seeing his deserts merit to be favourably remembered, in the help of his posterity, We will, effectuously require, and pray you, to give and conferr to the said Margaret relict and three daughters foresaids, the pension which the said umquhill John had of the Kirk in his time, for the nixt year after his decease, viz. of the year of God 1573 years, to their education and support; extending to five hundreth merks money, two chalders of wheat, six chalders bear, four (two) chalders of oats, to be lifted for that year out of the samine assignations and places that he had it of in his time; Wherein we doubt not but ye shall doe a work acceptable to God; and we will also receive it in thankfull and good pleasure. Thus we committ you to God. At Edinburgh, the 26th day of November 1572.—Your assured friend,

JAMES, REGENT.

Sess. 3d. March 1572-3.

The Assembly, remembering the long and faithfull travells made in the Kirk of God be unquhill JOHN KNOX, minister of Edinburgh, lately departed in the mercy of God, leaving behind him Margeret Stewart his relict and his three daughters gotten on her unprovided for; and seeing his long travells and deserts merites to be favourably remembered in his posteritie, being also required most earnestly thereto be my Lord Regent's Grace, as his letters direct thereupon bear, have granted and consented to give, and be the tenor hereof, grants, gives, consents, and dispones to the said Margaret relict, and her three daughters of the said unquhil John, the pension which he himself had in his time of the Kirk, and that for the year next approaching and following his deceis, viz. of the yeir of God 1573 yeires to their education and support, extending to five hundreth merks money, twa chalders of wheat, sax chalders bear, four chalders aittis to be uplifted for that year allanerly, out of the samine assignations and places that he had it in his time; and therefore requires, and in the name of God desires, the Lords of Counsell and Session to grant and give letters, at the instance of the said relict and bairns of the said unquhil John Knox, to cause them be answered, obeyed and payed of the said pension of the yeir forsaid, in the same form, and better if need be, as was granted to himself in his time.

It need excite no surprise that this young widow, within two years, should have contracted a second marriage, with Andrew Ker of Faldonsyde, pronounced and usually written Fawdonsyde, near Melrose. He was a widower, and is erroneously called by Dr. M'Crie and others, Sir Andrew Ker. He never had the honour of knighthood. He was a stout and zealous promoter of the Reformation; but being a chief actor, in company with his cousin, Patrick Lord Ruthven, in the murder of Riccio, in 1566, he has been characterized "as one of the most ferocious of the conspirators." He was then about forty years of age. In completing this second marriage, "Andrew Ker of Fawdonsyde" had granted a charter of alienation "to Margaret Stewart, relict of unquhile Johnne Knox, minister of Goddis word, now his spouse, in her wedowheid," in life-rent, of one-third of certain lands in East Lothian, which he had inherited from his mother, Margaret Halyburton, one of the co-heiresses of Patrick, sixth Lord Halyburton of Dirleton, who died in 1506. This charter was confirmed 8th April 1574, and was again renewed 21st March 1585-6. The following is a facsimile of his signature, in the year 1594-5.

The Laird of Faldonsyde died 19th December 1598, and by his testament appointed Margaret Stewart, his spouse, sole executrix; his son, by his first wife, George Ker "now of Fawdonsyde," becoming her cautioner when it was confirmed by the Commissaries of Edinburgh. His wife survived till about the year 1612. Mr. John Ker, one of their children, became a zealous and eminent Presbyterian minister at Preston, or Saltpreston, in 1605. He was a member of the Glasgow Assembly in 1638, and died in 1642. One of his sons, Mr. Andrew Ker, was also distinguished. He was admitted Advocate in July 1633, succeeded Johnston of Warriston as Clerk of the General Assembly, appointed one of the English Judges, by Cromwell, but was deprived, and resumed his practice at the bar. He died in March 1672.¹

¹ Brodie's Diary, p. 326.

MARTHA KNOX, the eldest daughter of the Reformer, was born probably towards the end of the year 1565. Owing to some vague tradition, it has always been stated that she became the first wife of Mr. James Fleming, minister of Bathans, or Yester. There seemed such a discrepancy in their ages, that I could not help calling it in question, and after careful investigation such a statement can be disproved in the most conclusive manner. In May 1584, when about eighteen years of age, she was married to ALEXANDER FAIRLIE, eldest son and heir of Robert Fairlie of Braid, in the neighbourhood of Edinburgh. She appears to have been his third wife. At least his marriage-contract with Marion, daughter of Sir Simon Prestoun of Craigmillar, is dated 3d August 1570; while in a charter of confirmation, 15th March 1573-4, Elspet Lauder is described as then his spouse. His marriage-contract with Martha Knox is in the name of Andrew Ker of Fawdonsyde, her stepfather, who pays or assigns as her tocher the sum of 1000 marks, to be invested, in land or annual rents, by Fairlie for the benefit of their children. It is dated 7th of April 1584. She died 1st December 1592; and by her confirmed testament, we learn that she had three sons and one daughter, Elspet, John, William, and Nathanael Fairlie. This sets at rest the question of James Fleming having ever been the Reformer's son-in-law. If Fleming was twice married, it is within the bounds of possibility that Elspet Fairlie might have been his first wife, which would clear up the tradition, but we are not possessed of any information either regarding her, or the early history of Fleming, with the exception that he took his degree of A.M. in the University of Edinburgh, 28th July 1610. He became minister of Bathans, or Yester, in May 1625, where he remained till his death, in April 1653. His wife, Jean Livingstone, survived him; and their son, Mr. Robert Fleming, is well known as the author of "The Fulfilling of the Scriptures." Of the three sons, Fairlies, the only thing I can ascertain is, that John Fairlie and William Fairlie were educated at Edinburgh, and received the degree of A.M., 25th July 1607.¹ Their father, Alexander Fairlie of Braid,² survived till October 1622, and was succeeded by the eldest son, of his former marriage, Robert Fairlie of Braid.

MARGARET KNOX, the Reformer's second daughter, was born at Edinburgh, probably in 1567 or 1568. She married ZACHARY PONT, the eldest son of Mr. Robert Pont, minister, and one of the Lords of Session (1572-1584), till the Assembly prohibited any of their brethren holding civil offices. He was for several years Commissioner of Murray, as well as minister of the parish of St. Cuthbert's, Edinburgh, till his death, at the advanced age of eighty-one, on the 8th May 1606. Zachary was the brother of Timothy Pont, so honourably distinguished by his skill and exertions in his topographical surveys of the wilder districts of Scotland, being the first to lay down very accurate maps of the country. They were students in St. Leonard's College, St. Andrews, being incorporated in 1579-80, and afterwards taking their degrees as Masters of Art. Neither of them seem to have entered the ministry for several years. Zachary obtained a letter under the Privy Seal, 8th October 1590, appointing him chief Printer within this realm;³ but his name has not been discovered connected with any book printed in Scotland. From a contract with his brother-in-law, John Welsh, in 1596, it appears that he was indebted in the sum of 1000 marks.⁴ In 1599 he is styled Portioner of Schyresmiln, valued as the three merks land, in the Lordship of Culross. In 1601 we find his ¹ At the baptism of a child of Mr. John Ker, minister of Preston, in 1611, one of the witnesses was John Fairlie, burgess of Edinburgh,—not improbably the same who died 23d September 1620, but his confirmed testament has nothing to connect him with the family of Braid.

² In 1601, Nicolas Dundas, of the family of Fingask, is named as his spouse.—I am indebted to Alexander Sinclair, Esq., for drawing my attention to various notices of the Fairlies, when I had ascertained their connexion with Knox.

³ Principal Lee's Memorial for the Bible Societies of Scotland, App. p. 33.

⁴ Other notices in 1602 and 1605 are given in M'Crie's Life of Knox, vol. ii. p. 356.

name as minister of the united parishes of Bower and Watten, in the county of Caithness. On the death of Mr. Robert Innes, Pont, "present minister at Bour and Watin," was appointed Archdean of Caithness, 2d September 1608; but in 1614 we find Mr. Richard Merchieston, Archdean of Caithness, settled as minister of Bower and Watten, "his stipend ij^c [200] merkis money, with the vicarage, and be the Earl of Caithness xl bollis victuall, with manse and gleib." It is not said whether the vacancy was occasioned by Pont's death or resignation. But this is distinctly stated in a "Letter of Presentation in favour of Mr. Richard Merchistoun, to all and hail the Archdeanerie of Caithnes . . . vacant throw the deceis of umquhile MR. ZACHARIE PONT, last Archdene of Caithness," 20th January 1619.

Of Pont's family we have no certain information, nor is it known whether his wife survived him. In the testament of Mr. James Pont, Commissary of Dunblane in 1602, a bequest was made in favour of Robert Pont, son to Mr. Zacharie Pont and Margaret Knox, "to hold him at the scuillis," which implies that he was then in the course of his education.

In the Session Register of Saltpreston, where his step-brother-in-law, Mr. John Ker, was minister, is this entry:—

Bapt. 26 Oct. Mr. Zacharie Pont and Margaret Knox, ane 1609. sone, his name Samuel. Witnesses, Mr.
Alex^r Home, Rob^t Hammiltoun baillie, David Lyndsay, David Ker.

In the Register of Acts of Caution for Presentees to Benefices, we find his signature in 1608.

Mr Zacharie Pont

ELIZABETH KNOX, the Reformer's third and youngest daughter, was born probably about 1570. Her husband, MR. JOHN WELSH, or WELSCH, was celebrated in the annals of the Presbyterian Church for his zeal, learning, and active labours in the ministry.

He was a younger son of Welsh of Collieston, and was born in the parish of Irongray, in Galloway, about the year 1569, and was educated at the University of Edinburgh, under Rollock, where he took his degree of A.M. in August 1588. He was first ordained as minister of Selkirk (1589-1594), and translated successively to Kirkcudbright (1594-1601), and Ayr (1601-1606). While at Selkirk, he no doubt became acquainted with Elizabeth Knox, who resided with her step-father at Faldonsyde; and their marriage may be placed in the year 1594.

It is well known that Welsh and other five ministers were tried and convicted of treason, at Linlithgow, in January 1606, upon the charge of declining the jurisdiction of the Privy Council, by holding the General Assembly, which had been duly indicted to meet at Aberdeen in July 1605; but in other words, for opposing the King's favourite scheme of introducing Episcopacy into the Scottish Church. A sentence of banishment was passed; and Welsh and his family were transported to France. He speedily acquired great facility in the language, and continued to officiate as a minister in the French Protestant Church. One of his letters, in 1619, is signed in this form,¹—

The troubles in France in 1621, and the persecution of the Protestants, dispersed most of their congregations. Welsh came to London, being desirous to revisit Scotland on account of his health; but King James in his implacable disposition refused this request; and Welsh died in London of a lingering disease, in May 1622.² His wife survived him nearly three years, as we learn from her confirmed testament, that she de-

¹ Wodrow Miscellany, p. 563.

² A somewhat meagre Life of Welsh, attributed to Mr. James Kirkton, appeared at Edinburgh, 1703, 4to, and has been reprinted. A more detailed biography, animated by a true love for his hero, I am happy to say, is in preparation by the Rev. James Young, editor of "The Godly Band," 1557: see infra, p. 674.

ceased at Ayr, in January 1625.¹ She appointed her property to be equally divided in favour of her three children, Mr. Josias Welsh, Nathanael Welsh, and Luysse Welsh.²

The question naturally arises, whether any lineal descendants of these three daughters of the Reformer still exist? This I must leave to be solved by future inquirers. After careful investigation, I consider the probability of such descendants existing as extremely doubtful. Various persons, indeed, have attempted to trace their descent from the Reformer, as an honourable distinction, but one and all of them, I suspect, will only be able to claim descent from some collateral branch. The table on page lxxiv. will point most clearly the line of inquiry to be pursued.

Of his immediate relatives, Knox himself only mentions two, a brother, William, and a nephew, Paul Knox. It has been assumed as a fact by later writers, that this William Knox was the first minister of Cockpen, a parish in the Presbytery of Dalkeith, about ten miles to the south of Edinburgh. I feel unwilling to disturb this assumption, but from a comparison of dates and other circumstances, it seems to me to rest on no satisfactory ground. He is not so styled by any old authority. Had this brother, even without the ordinary preparations to fit him for the ministry, been deemed qualified for the office, his name would doubtless have been included in the lists prepared by the Assembly in 1560, nor would he have waited for seven years to be admitted to serve in two small landward parishes; nor remained unnoticed as being present at meetings of Assembly; and, above all, some notice of him would have assuredly been found, as attending upon his brother, in the minute accounts of the Reformer's last illness.

I therefore feel inclined to suggest that William Knox,

¹ Her testament is printed by Dr. M'Crie in the Appendix to his Life of Knox.

² William Welsh, Doctor of Medicine, was served heir of his mother, Elizabeth Knox, at the Borough Court of Ayr, 6th March 1625.

merchant in Preston, and the only brother of the Reformer, was never in the ministry, but that in all probability he had three sons who became ministers respectively of Cockpen, Kelso, and Lauder. My conjecture is, that they were born between the years 1542 and 1554. But first let us attend to the facts recorded of Knox's brother, which may be stated in a few words.

In a letter of the Earl of Glencairne from Douchal, on the 11th of April 1547, to Thomas Bishop, &c., he explains that he was prevented by illness from keeping his first diet at Glencairne (having at that time just succeeded to the title), but that his intention was to be there on the 27th. He adds, that he must first see his friends in the Castle of St. Andrews, "and quhill (until) then, I haif haldin William Knox, that he may advertize you thereafter of our purpose in that behalf."¹ This allusion seems to show that William Knox was a person well known, who had been employed in political affairs, while carrying on his business as an active, enterprising merchant. Singularly enough, the letter was written only one day after John Knox, who was then unknown, had entered the Castle of St. Andrews with his pupils.

The next intimation we meet with, is a formal letter addressed by the Governor of Scotland to King Edward the Sixth, on the 24th February 1551-2, requesting letters "of saulf conduct and sure passport, in dew forme, to oure lovit William Knox in Prestoun, and thrie factouris or attornayis for him, togedder with six persons with him in cumpany, saulfie and surelie to cum within youre realme of England . . . (with merchandise), and to sell the same to the lieges of youre realme; and in lykwyis to by from thame all kynd of gudis and merchandice lawfull," &c.² This was the usual form of application for permission to pass from one kingdom to the other, to transact their lawful business. In September 1552, the English

¹ Orig. in H.M. State Paper Office.

² Orig. in H.M. State Paper Office.

Council granted a patent to William Knox, merchant, giving him liberty, for a limited time, to trade to any port of England, in a vessel of one hundred tons burden.¹ In the letters to Mrs. Bowes, from Newcastle, in the following year, Knox says, "My brother hath communicat his hailt hart with me, and I persave the michtie operation of God."² In another place, "My brother, William Knox, is presentlie with me. What ye wald haif frome Scotland, let me knaw this Monunday at nyght, for he must depart on Tyisday."³

In July or August 1559, Lord Seyton, the Provost of Edinburgh, we are told, pursued Alexander Whitelaw, "as he came from Prestoun, accompanied with William Knox, towards Edinburgh, and ceassit not to persew him till he cam to the town of Ormestoun; and this he did, supposing that the said Alexander Quhitlaw had been John Knox."⁴

Such are the scanty notices of the Reformer's brother. That eight years later he may have become minister of the united parishes of Cockpen and Carrington, is possible; but if so, it is singular that his name should never once be mentioned as his brother during Knox's life, nor any reference to such relationship at a subsequent period, during nineteen years that he survived him. I have therefore ventured to suggest, that the minister of Cockpen, whose name occurs in the Register of Ministers, 1567, may have been one of the sons of the elder William Knox, merchant in Preston. Knox, in his testament, 1572, makes a contingent reversion in the event of his two sons leaving no issue, "To my bruder Williame Knox, and his airis quhatsumevir." No designation is here given, but all we can infer is, that he was then alive.

That William Knox, whose name first occurs in 1567 as minister of the parishes of Cockpen and Carringtoun, was nearly related to the Reformer, is indisputable. He had for stipend £120,

¹ Quoted by Strype in his Memorials.

² Supra, vol. iii. p. 356.

* Ib. vol. iii. p. 361.

⁴ Ib. vol. i. p. 393.

with the manse and gleib, and a third of the vicarage, extending to seven marks. In 1574, two other churches were joined, Clerkingtoun and Tempill, with a reader at each of the four kirks, but this made no change on his stipend. In 1580 he obtained a grant of the vicarage of Cockpen. His signature in 1578 is attached to a document given in facsimile, in the Wodrow Miscellany, p. 408, having some resemblance to the Reformer's.

But nothing particular connected with him appears in the Presbytery books of Dalkeith, until the year 1589, when his eldest son, of the same name, born about 1568, having completed his studies at St. Andrews, and obtained his degree of A.M. in 1589, was admitted assistant and successor to his father. The following is an extract from the records of the Synod of Lothian and Tweeddale, 18th September 1589 :—

“ Anent the ordinance maid in this Assemblie, in the quhilk it was appointed that some brethren suld heir Mr. William Knox, and judge of his qualification, certain brethren haifing hard him and reporting of the soundness of his doctrine and abilitie to enter in the function of the ministrie, and the brether of the Presbytrie of Dalkeyth testifying of the honestie of his lyf, the Assemblie has agreit that the said Mr. William be joynt with his father William Knox, minister at Cockpen, and that he help him in the function of the ministrie, exercising him self in the said office.”

In or about February 1592, the name of William Knox, minister of Cockpen, disappears from the Presbytery records of Dalkeith, in consequence, it may be presumed, of his death. His son, Mr. William Knox, continued as minister of Cockpen till his death in 1633, leaving several children, some of whom were ministers. James Knox, the second son, was a student at the University of Edinburgh, where he received the degree of A.M., 28th July 1596 ; and was elected one of the regents, 2d June 1598. This office he resigned in 1605, when he was presented to the church of Kelso, where he remained as minister till his death, 16th August 1633 ; and was succeeded by his eldest son, Mr. Robert Knox.

I will not attempt to trace the descendants of the first minister of Cockpen, although aided by a genealogical table, prepared by a most competent and accurate investigator of our Ecclesiastical and Commissariat Records,¹ but shall merely point out what has occurred to myself, as requiring to be either affirmed or corrected. That no notice of him occurs in Knox's Will, was no doubt owing to the circumstance of his having previously obtained a benefice in the Church :—

PAUL KNOX, who is specially mentioned in the Reformer's will, as his nephew, was, I presume, the second son of the elder William Knox. A sum of money was left "to hald him at the scullis," that is, to complete his education. He was then a student in St. Salvator's College, St. Andrews, where he had obtained in 1571 his degree as Bachelor of Arts, followed in due course by that of Master. He must have been, during his uncle's residence at St Andrews, in daily communication with him. Mr. Paul Knox became minister of Kelso and Ednam in 1574 and 1575. He had apparently but a short career, as another person was appointed to that charge in 1576.

¹ The Rev. Hew Scott, M.A., minister of Anstruther Wester. It is earnestly to be desired that Mr. Scott's Collections, regarding the succession of ministers in every parish of Scotland, from the Reformation to modern times, should be published.

Mr. JOHN KNOX, who appears as minister of Lauder from 1576 to 1583, was, I conjecture, a younger brother. He also was a student at St. Andrews, becoming a Bachelor in 1573, and Master of Arts in 1575. Whether he was the same person who succeeded as minister of Melrose (from 1585 to 1623), is perhaps doubtful. The name of Mr. John Knox, as minister, became very frequent during the following century. We also find a Mr. John Knox, merchant in Edinburgh, who died in 1617.

I NOW take leave of a long and somewhat laborious undertaking. In considering various matters connected with its progress, I cannot but feel grateful to Divine Providence in having been spared to bring the work to a close; since more than once, owing to some adverse circumstances, the chance of doing so seemed to be nearly hopeless. Unless for the existence of the WODROW SOCIETY, instituted in 1841, the scheme itself might perhaps have proved only an idle dream. When the two volumes containing the History of the Reformation had been finished, further progress was interrupted by the premature termination of that Society in 1848. The publication, however, was resumed, and the next three volumes were printed at the expense of Messrs. Johnston and Hunter, publishers; but the speculation was not successful, and before Volume Fifth could be circulated, the whole stock was exposed for sale, and passed into the hands of the present publisher, Mr. T. G. Stevenson.¹

I do not profess any blind admiration of the Reformer, although this undertaking has been a labour of love. There are passages in his works which I could wish he had not written; but his History was not a compilation from old materials; it was intended for living witnesses, narrating what had taken place under their own eyes. It could not be expected that a person in Knox's position should be able to avoid occasionally the use of bitter reflections on his opponents, or of sarcastic raillery in regard even to tragical events. His work also suffered from the liberties used, in the shape of interpolated passages in the ordinary editions, since 1644. But the Reformer needs no apology; and I feel persuaded, that the more narrowly his character is scrutinized by an unprejudiced person, the higher will he be esteemed for the manner in which he fulfilled his mission as the leader at a most important crisis of national history. Knox cannot be said to have possessed the impetuous and heroic boldness of a Luther when surrounded with danger. On the other hand, he never was capable of sacrificing conviction to measures of expediency; nor, like Cranmer, "with the sincerest zeal for religion, feebly suffering the renown of the Reformation to be tarnished by compliances with the fancied expediency of the time." "It is not thus," adds a late

¹ As the name of the BANNATYNE CLUB is connected with a limited portion of the impression, I may state that all the copies, excepting the paper, are identically the same. I wish also to add, that I never had any pecuniary interest in the publication, but that, before undertaking the work, as Secretary of the Bannatyne Club, I stipulated with the Wodrow Society and the Publishers, to have copies for the use of the members printed off on paper to be furnished by the Club; and in return for this permission, the Club would willingly place at my disposal a moderate sum for each volume, sufficient, as I reckoned, to defray various charges for transcripts, collations, and indexes, which I could not personally overtake, but the expenses of which would otherwise have fallen upon the Publishers.

eloquent writer,¹ “ that great things are to be achieved in the struggle of human progress.” On more than one occasion Knox displayed a timidity, or shrinking from danger, scarcely to have been expected from one who boasted of his willingness to endure the utmost torture, or suffer death in his Master’s cause. Happily he was not put to the test, whether at the stake he might have exhibited the fortitude and resignation of a Latimer and other martyrs; yet he returned with alacrity to the scene of action, not terrified by the mockery of punishment which hung suspended over his head as a condemned heretic. The day after his arrival in Edinburgh, he writes:² “ I see the battell shall be great, for Sathan rageth even to the uttermost; and I am come, I praise my God, even in the brunt of the battell. Assist me, sister, with your prayers, that now I shrink not when the battell approacheth.” His determination to preach in the great Church of St. Andrews, in June 1559, in “ the same place where he was first called to the office of a preacher;” when attempted to be dissuaded by the threats of personal violence,³ was not unworthy of the high-hearted resolution of Luther when urged to disregard the summons to attend the Diet at Worms. With the zeal and fervour of an Apostle, Knox might boast at least of a moral courage and intrepidity which nothing could daunt, in the firm persuasion of the righteousness of the cause of the Reformation, and of its ultimate success.

It was not likely that a man like Knox should escape from reproach and slander. But with this, he says, he was not greatly moved. His contemporaries bore willing testimony to the blamelessness of his life and conduct, while indignantly refuting the calumnies of Popish writers, who held him up as a monster of depravity. It is utterly in vain to protest against the silly belief that has prevailed in more recent times, that he was the ruthless destroyer of our abbey churches and monastic buildings. The feeble attempts to revive a charge that Knox was accessory to the murder of David Riccio, are scarcely worthy of notice; but there is no occasion to deny that he regarded "the slaughter of that villain Davie," "an abuser of the commonwealth," to be "a just act, and worthy of all praise."¹ He also openly maintained that it was the duty of the Christian magistrate to put to death all incorrigible idolaters, professed infidels, and enemies of the truth.² At that period, any true principles of toleration were unknown. But instead of either devising the means, or sharing in acts of deliberate murder, it has been stated, and I know of nothing to controvert such an assertion, that he never was accessory to the death of a single individual for his religious opinions. This freedom from a persecuting spirit is one of the noblest features in Knox's character, neither led away by enthusiasm, nor party feelings, nor success, to retaliate the oppressions and atrocities that disgraced the adherents of Popery. And in proof of the influence which Knox could have exerted for such an end, Randolph's words to Sir William Cecill, a few weeks after Queen Mary's arrival in Scotland, may be quoted, when he says:—"Where your Honour exhorteth us to stoutnes, I assure you the voyce of one man is able in one hour to putt more lyf in us than fyve hundreth trumpettes continually blustering in our eares."³

¹ Rev. George Croly, LL.D., in his Luther and the Reformation in England, p. 229. Lond. 1858. 4to.

² To Mrs. Anna Locke, infra, p. 21.

³ See his own account in vol. i. pp. 348 and 349.

It does not fall within my plan, however agreeable this might be, to quote passages of eulogy from the works of living authors. But it is pleasing to refer to those of some of his contemporaries who were personally acquainted with him. Bishop Ridley, in reference to the Frankfurt disputes (in 1555), writes to Grindall:—"Alas! that our brother KNOX could not bear with our Book of Common Prayer! Matters against which although, I grant, a man (as he is) of wit and learning may find to make apparent reasons; but I suppose he cannot be able soundly to disprove by God's Word. . . . Surely Mr. Knox, in my mind, is a man of much good learning, and of an earnest zeal: the Lord grant him to use them only to His glory."¹ John Bale, Bishop of Ossory, in his enlarged work "De Scriptoribus Magnæ Britanniae," dedicates to Alexander Alesius and John Knox, in 1558, that portion of it relating to Scotland. In addressing the latter he says:—"But you, my most affectionate brother KNOX, both England and Germany, but especially our brotherly agreement in the doctrine of Christ our Lord, have bound to me. For there is no one who does not praise, admire, and welcome your faith, constancy, and patience, proved as they are by so many troubles, so great persecution, and long and grievous exile. And again and again I beseech you to continue to employ the divine talent to the glory of Christ, and to the comfort of the Church. But I need not here enlarge in your praise, which I am aware is better known than to appear to need my frigid proclamation. You will be pleased that I dedicate to you the memoirs of your countrymen, unless I am deceived in my opinion of your kindness. However worthless my dedication may be, it is at least the result of a good and friendly spirit."

¹ Vol. i. p. 235.

² See General Index, vide Idolatry.

³ Edinburgh, 7th Sept. 1561.—(Wright's Queen Elizabeth, vol. i. p. 72.)

The biographical notice of Knox by Beza, published in his volume, containing a series of woodcut portraits of the Reformers, is well known, and needs not be quoted. I refer to the "ICONES, id est Veræ Imagines Virorum doctrina simul et pietate Illustrium," but there is an allusion to Knox's death in the scroll of an unpublished letter, written in 1573 on the occasion of Mr. Andrew Melville's return to his own country, in which he says, "We have been afflicted beyond belief by the death of MR. KNOX, for the death of good men always appears premature."²

¹ See vol. iv. p. 61, from the Works of Nicolas Ridley, D.D., sometime Lord Bishop of London, Martyr, 1555.—(Parker Society), 1841, p. 533.

² MSS. Letters of Theod. Beza, in the Public Library, Geneva. The words of the original are: "Ex D. Cnoxi obitu incredibilem quandam dolorem coepi

There is a French translation of Beza's work, published in 1581, under the title of, "Les Vrais Pourtraits des Hommes Illustres en piété et doctrine, etc. A Geneve, 1581." 4to. The translator was Simon Goulart, who added various French verses by himself in addition to those translated from Beza. As Dr. M'Crie says he had not seen this volume, Goulart's lines upon Knox may be quoted as follows :—

“ L'Escosse ne m'est plus obscure ni sauvage,
Ayant à verité si bien tendu les mains :
Ores ses nourrissons entre tous les humains
Font au Seigneur Jesus un excellent hommage.

L'Eternel les benit de cest heur davantage,
Qu'apres avoir rendu les assaux d'erreur vains,
Les pasteurs et troupeaux, marchans en lieux certains,
Ont la paix des esprits et des corps en partage.

O Dieu, c'est de ta main que procede cest heur !
La gloire en soit rendue à ta saincte faveur.
Soit aussi reconu ce Cnox, qui ton image
(Assavoir ta parole) aux Escossois rendit,
Et qui fait qu' à present l'homme fidele dit
Que l'Escosse n'est plus obscure ni sauvage.”

In his person Knox was of small stature, and never having recovered his bodily strength from the effects of the hardship experienced on board the French galleys, he was not of a frame well fitted to endure long-continued toil, labour, and incessant anxiety. I much regret that no authentic portrait, painted from the life, has been discovered. Some of those exhibited in public galleries, have not a shadow of resemblance. We must, therefore, be content to form our conceptions of his personal appearance from the small woodcut in Beza's "Icones," 1580, mus, quod bonorum virorum immaturus semper obitus videatur. Illud tamen nostrum dolorem multum lenivit," etc.

Unluckily I omitted to transcribe the entire letter, on the supposition of its having been printed.

and the similar portrait in Verheiden, 1602, of which accurate facsimiles are given.¹

The writings of Knox may be divided into four classes.¹

I. HISTORICAL.—This comprises his History of the Reformation in Scotland. When commenced in the year 1559, it was intended to limit the narrative to a brief period. But as the course of events were evolved, Book Second being the original portion, was subdivided, and Book First added as a necessary introduction; while Book Fourth, terminating with the year 1564, was chiefly written in 1566. Any subsequent additions consisted of a few marginal notes; the materials for a continuation of the History, being employed by others, after Knox's death, in compiling Book Fifth, and the volume of Memorials published under the name of Richard Bannatyne.

II. ADMONITORY.—His Public Letters may be included under this head: such as his Admonition and Letters to the Faithful, to the Godly in England, to the Professors of the Truth, to the Queen Regent; also his Appellation, his First Blast, and his Reasoning with the Abbot of Crossraguell.

III. DEVOTIONAL.—His Expositions on the Sixth Psalm, on the Fourth Chapter of Matthew, and his Sermon preached in St. Giles' Church, Edinburgh, in 1565, are but a small contribution to this class; but it may be enlarged with his Discourse at Durham against the Doctrine of the Mass, the Common Prayers, the Treatise on Fasting, the Order of Excommunication, and his Answer to Tyrie the Jesuit.

IV. LETTERS.—His earlier religious correspondence with Mrs. Bowes might be placed under the previous division, while his letters of a later period have chiefly reference to events of a public nature.

We are not to judge of Knox as an author by any common standard. His works for the most part were hastily prepared, volume of Select Writings of Knox in

¹ Vol. i. p. xiii.; vol. vi. p. xiii.

² Suggested by the editor of the little

“British Reformers.”

not in the enjoyment of literary ease and retirement, but under the pressure of anxious care, or constant and exciting occupation. His was a life of action, not of contemplation: "Wonder not," he says in 1565, when constrained in his own defence to publish his one solitary sermon,—“Wonder not that of all my study and travail within the Scriptures of God these twenty years, I have set forth nothing in expounding any portion of Scripture . . . considering myself rather called of my God to instruct the ignorant, comfort the sorrowful, confirm the weak, and rebuke the proud, by tongue and lively voice, in these most corrupt days, than to compose books for the age to come.”¹

We cannot however but regret that probably no small number of the Reformer's letters has perished. In particular, there were in England, other ladies as well as Mrs. Anna Lock, with whom he seems to have kept up an epistolary intercourse, besides foreign divines and political correspondents. The letters that are preserved sufficiently show how erroneous is the estimate usually formed of him as being a person of repulsive and harsh demeanour. He could, indeed, stand unmoved while his Sovereign was shedding "salt tears;" but as Randolph, in a letter to Cecill, somewhat cynically says, "Mr. Knoxe spoke upon Tuesday unto the Quene. He knocked so hastelye upon her harte, that he made her weep, as well you know there be of that sexe that wyll do that as well for anger as for greef."² But he himself, in recording this first conference, states, that when asked by one of his friends, What he thought of the Queen? he answered, "If there be not in her a proud mynd, a crafty witt, and ane indurat heart against God and his treuth, my judgment faileth me;" and, in a marginal note he adds, this was "his judgment of the Queene at the first, and ever since."³

At a subsequent interview, when the Queen was "in a vehe-

¹ Infra, p. 229.

² Wright's Queen Elizabeth and her Times, vol. i. p. 72.

³ Vol. ii. p. 286.

ment fume" with Knox, on account of his rigorous mode of alluding to her proposed marriage with Darnley, and to her uncles, she cried out that never Prince was used as she was, having, she said, "sought your favouris by all possible meanes." After "the owling, besydes womanlie weeping, which stayed her speech," the said John, in his reply, uses these memorable words, "Without the preaching place (that is, out of the pulpit), Madam, I think few have occasioun to be offendit at me; and thair, Madam, I am nott maister of my self, but man (must) obey Him who commandis me to speik plane, and to flatter no flesche upon the face of the earth."¹ Elsewhere he adds, he took God to record, that he never had pleasure to see any creature weep; yea, not his children when his own hands had beaten them, "much less can I rejoice in your Majesties weeping."² When, it may be asked, was a triumph of such magnitude and importance ever accomplished with less sacrifice of blood, or less sullied by personal suffering?

Well may Scotland be proud of such a man as KNOX, and of the great and noble work which he was so instrumental in achieving! His character rises superior to detraction, and will ever stand forth worthy of admiration; stern and resolute in his purpose; zealous in his endeavours to correct existing abuses; undaunted in his opposition to all false doctrine and idolatry, and heroic in his incorruptible integrity. Yet while so uncompromising in all his public duties as a faithful minister of Christ, he had a heart full of loving and tender affections, and he was not less remarkable for deep self-abasement and humility.

DAVID LAING.

EDINBURGH, APRIL 1864.

¹ Vol. ii. p. 387.

² Vol. ii. p. 389. See also ib. p. 410.

LETTERS
CHIEFLY RELATING TO THE PROGRESS OF THE REFORMATION IN SCOTLAND.

M.D.LIX.—M.D.LXII.

WE have now come to the most important epoch in Knox's public career. It will be in remembrance that his visit to Scotland, in the autumn of 1555, was found to have been premature, and that his renewed intentions were frustrated, after he had reached Dieppe in October 1557,¹ by letters which "willed him to abide in these parts." Being thus constrained at that time, with a heavy heart to return to Geneva, he there resumed his ministerial labours in the English Congregation. But towards the close of the following year, more favourable accounts were received from this country; and the entire aspect of affairs in England was also changed by an unexpected occurrence, which opened up a joyful prospect to the English exiles, who, to escape from persecution, were dispersed in various parts of the Continent: this was the death of Mary Queen of England, on the 17th of November 1558. Then it was that Knox felt satisfied the time had come for casting in his lot with his countrymen who were engaged in prosecuting that great and arduous enterprise against Popish superstition and oppression, the result of which was the establishment of the Protestant Faith in Scotland.

The accession of Queen Elizabeth to the throne of England was indeed a memorable event connected with the Reformed Religion; and the changes which then took place having exercised no small influence on the affairs of Scotland, the state of England at this crisis requires a brief notice. At first, it has been remarked, "instead of interfering with religious matters, Elizabeth wished quietly to wait for the decision of a Parliament thereupon, and this from no lukewarmness," but apparently “through her intense fear of allowing innovations.”¹ On the 27th of December, she issued a proclamation, addressed to the Lord Mayor of London, condemning “unfruteful disputes in matters of religion.” But while both parties enjoyed a toleration, there is no proof that either her own sentiments were undecided, or had no influence in securing the votes of a Protestant majority when Parliament should assemble. The Queen was crowned at Westminster on the 16th of January 1558-9, and the Parliament met for business on the 25th of that month. In the opening speech, the Lord Keeper Bacon urged “the avoidance of all contention and contumelious speeches.” When the Act for restoring the supremacy was discussed, the Popish prelates, and some other members of Parliament opposed such a measure, urging that the unity of the Church of Rome, and obedience to the Apostolic See, ought to be maintained. But the Act was carried, renewing all the laws² of Henry VIII., consisting of articles and provisions made against the See Apostolic of Rome since the 20 Henry VIII., as well as those of Edward VI., in favour of the Reformation, which the Act cap. viii. 1 & 2 Philip and Mary 1553 had repealed.

¹ See Knox's Letter, vol. i. p. 269.

The Act of Elizabeth is entitled, “An Act to restore to the Crown the ancient Jurisdiction over the Estate Ecclesiastical and Spiritual, and abolishing all foreign Powers repugnant to the same.”³ Another important Act was also passed, not without opposition by Dr. Feckenham, Abbot of Westminster, and Dr. Scott, Bishop of Chester, respecting the Liturgy, viz., “An Act for the Uniformity of Common Prayer and Service in the Church, and Administration of the Sacraments.”⁴ The Book of Common Prayer, as revised in the reign of Edward VI., was thus restored and directed to be used in all places at public worship, to the exclusion of any other form. This Parliament was dissolved on the 8th of May, but it had accomplished its work, as by these enactments the Papal jurisdiction in England was abolished, and the changes then made, both in the forms of worship and of church government, constituted the essential character of the Church of England as it still exists.

¹ Liturgical Services, edited for the Parker Society volumes, by the Rev. W. K. Clay, B.D., p. x. Cambridge, 1847. 8vo.

² Parliamentary History of England, vol. i. pp. 643-660.

³ Statutes at Large, vol. ii. pp. 517-522, marked 514. ⁴ Ib. p. 514*.

In the same month of January 1559, Knox took, as it proved, his final leave of the English Congregation and his friends at Geneva, his wife and family remaining in that city until the result of these events should be seen. In his anxiety to obtain the earliest intelligence from Scotland, he proceeded as usual to Dieppe. But at that season of the year two months elapsed before any communications arrived; and, in the meanwhile, he appears to have solicited from the English Government letters of safe conduct to visit his friends in the north of England.

In his History of the Reformation,¹ he inserts what he calls his First Letter to Sir William Cecyll, dated at Dieppe, 10th April 1559, in which he says, that for the third time he now entreated leave to visit England, that he might, by preaching the Word, refresh weary souls, who thirsted for the water of life. His former applications, therefore, must have been made through some other channel, and he alludes to his messenger narrowly escaping imprisonment; but receiving no answer, he sent a double of this letter by another messenger, with a brief postscript, dated the 22d of that month.² An accurate copy of this letter is given, printed from the original preserved in the British Museum.³ The letter itself is not written in a style calculated to secure the favour of a courtier; but, besides any personal feelings, Sir William Cecyll could not be ignorant how unpalatable the name of Knox had become to his royal Mistress. The refusal, therefore, of leave to pass

¹ Vol. ii. pp. 16-22.

² From this it appears that the footnote, vol. ii. p. 22, respecting the proper date of the letter, requires to be corrected.

³ Harl. MSS., No. 7004.

through England, for a speedy return to his native country, must be attributed mainly to Elizabeth's rooted aversion to both Knox and Goodman, for their publications "On Obedience to Superior Powers," and on "The Regiment or Government of Women." It was in vain to allege that their works contained a question propounded as a general thesis on government, and had no personal reference to her Majesty, whose authority they professed themselves most willing to acknowledge.

In his "Brief Exhortation to England for the speedy embracing of the Gospel," which was written on the 12th of January 1559, Knox says, "For, in verie dede, when in dolour of hart I wrote this former lettre" (his "Epistle to the Inhabitants of Newcastle and Berwick," dated Geneva, 10th of November 1558,¹ seven days before the death of Queen Mary), "I neither looked, nor could beleve, that the Lord Jesus wolde so suddainly knocke at thy gate, or call upon thee in thy open stretes, offring himself to pardon thy iniquitie," etc.²

Under these circumstances, Knox resolved to avail himself of the first opportunity of proceeding direct by sea; and embarking at Dieppe on the 23d of April, he arrived safely at Edinburgh on the 2d of May, at a time when his presence was of the utmost importance. On the following day he addressed a short note to Mrs. Anna Lock, in which he says, "I am come, I praise my God, even in the brunt of the battell. . . . Assist me, Sister, with your prayers, that now I shrink not when the battell approacheth."³

Of Knox's subsequent proceedings, and of the final triumph of the Protestant party, when the Roman Catholic forms were abolished in Scotland, it would be superfluous in this place to give any detailed account. The subject is treated fully and with no feeble hand in his own History of the Reformation, which forms the first two volumes of this series of his Works; while Knox's own share in such transactions is inseparably blended with the general history of the kingdom.

¹ Vol. v. p. 473.

² Ib. p. 503.

³ See p. 21.

The Reformer's Letters of this period, several of which are now printed for the first time, furnish many interesting and important details corroborative of his History of the Reformation. Some of them were introduced by himself in that work, but these are now given from the originals. Occasional letters written by other individuals are likewise inserted, to illustrate more fully the progress of public events, and immediately connected with his own correspondence. The original autographs for the most part are preserved in H. M. State Paper Office, or in the British Museum. The chief exception are the Letters addressed to Mrs. Anna Lock, one of those ladies, the wives of wealthy merchants of London, who displayed their liberality in assisting the reformed ministers during the times of persecution. These letters are derived from Calderwood's History of the Kirk of Scotland, after a careful collation of the several manuscripts. The letters, no doubt, came into his hands with other materials furnished to him when engaged (1627-1636) in compiling that important work. It is not unlikely that the letters, after Mrs. Lock's death, were acquired in 1584, either by James Carmichael, John Davidson, or James Melville, during their banishment in England, or they might have been brought by her son, Henry Lock, during one of his missions to the court of James the Sixth, at the close of the century. We know, at least, that a collection of Knox's Letters had come into the possession of the celebrated Andrew Melville. In writing to Mr. Robert Durie, minister of Anstruther, but then in exile at Leyden, he says (his letter being dated Sedan, 24th May 1616), "I left with my loving and faithful gossip, your father-in-law, MR. KNOX'S LETTERS. I wish them to be furth-coming."¹ But while there is every reason to believe that Mrs. Lock's Letters no longer exist, Calderwood's fidelity in transcribing the documents inserted in his History, has never been called in question.

¹ M'Crie's Life of Knox, vol. ii. p. 373.

It is by no means improbable that a few more letters of the Scottish Reformer are in existence, and may still be recovered ; yet I can say that there is no likely quarter for discovering such letters, either at home or abroad, that has not been more or less carefully examined. For instance, in the charter-rooms of some noble families, where such autographs might have been expected, the search has not been successful, as well among the papers of the Duke of Chattelherault, at Hamilton Palace, of the Regent Earl of Murray, at the Earl of Moray's, Donybristle, and of Erskine of Dun, at the Marquis of Ailsa's, as those of Lindsay of Balcarres, in the Advocates Library. At the Earl of Morton's, Dalmahoy, among the letters of Douglas of Lochlevin, only one solitary letter is preserved. In the noble Library founded by Sir Thomas Bodley at Oxford, there are no letters of that period, although his father was one of Knox's correspondents. The papers of less important personages and families have been dispersed or destroyed ages since ; and the Records of the General Assembly unfortunately perished in the great fire at Edinburgh in February 1700.

Two quarters where such letters are actually said to be preserved, require a more especial notice. In the Memoir of Robert Surtees, Esq., published for the Surtees Society by his excellent friend, the late Rev. Dr. Raine of Durham, there is a letter by him addressed to J. G. Nichols, Esq. from Harrowgate, October 1, 1831, in which he refers to the " vast mass of the Streatlam papers which I am wading through, and which I hope may end in a separate publication ;" and he adds, " There is a neat 4to. MS. of the whole transactions of Robert Bowes, Lieger in Scotland, during great part of the reign of Elizabeth, and perhaps 500 original letters from the Regent Morton, John Knox, Alex. Erskine, Lethington, and divers Scots statesmen, with many more familiar epistles. I have brought a large parcel with me hither."¹ Surtees was too accurate in his statements to write thus unadvisedly, but the collection of original letters which he mentions has not been discovered at Streatlam Castle, after a careful search. The Bowes family being so much opposed to Knox's marriage, which prevented any intercourse during his wife's life, all that could be expected in such a collection might be a few letters to Sir George Bowes on public affairs at a later date.

The other source alluded to is the collection of Calvin's Manuscripts, which were acquired after his death, in May 1564, by the Magistrates of Geneva, and deposited in their public library. Senebier, in his "Catalogue Raisonné des Manuscrits conservés dans la Bibliothèque de la Ville et République de Genève," 1779, has given a detailed list of Calvin's own letters; but of those addressed to him, contained in eight volumes,² he merely states that they were written by all the great men of that age. He adds, it was evident, notwithstanding the prodigious number of letters, that many of them were wanting. In his subsequent work, the "Histoire Littéraire de Genève," 1786, in his brief account of Knox, with a list of his writings, he expressly states, "Dans la Bibliothèque publique de Genève on trouve plusieurs lettres de Jean Cnox à Calvin."³ Having visited the Library in the year 1838, with the intention of transcribing these letters, it was a great disappointment not only to find the volumes lying in a confused heap in a low press or cupboard at one of the windows; but, upon examining them, that not one letter written by Knox was contained in any of these volumes. Subsequent inquiries and examinations, more especially by M. Bonnet, the learned editor of Calvin's Correspondence, served to prove that my search had not been too hasty. The conclusion, therefore, is, that such letters had either been abstracted or lost through neglect, before p. 431. Durham, 1852. 8vo.

¹ Memoir of Robert Surtees, Esq.,

² MSS., Nos. 109-116, p. 288.

³ Vol. i. p. 380.

the volumes had been arranged. One of these letters to Calvin, in Latin, dated from Edinburgh, 21st October 1561, having found its way into a private collection in France,¹ was first printed, along with a fac-simile, in M. Teulet's important collection of French State Papers, at Paris, for the Bannatyne Club.²

Although the originals of such letters were lost, I still entertained the hope that transcripts of them might be contained in the very extensive series of letters of the Reformers, known as the Simler Manuscripts, in the public library of Zurich,³ which the Rev. Mr. Robinson has described in his valuable series of "Original Letters," edited for the Parker Society. But in reply to a special inquiry most kindly made by W. H. Laurence, Esq., the librarian gave an assurance that no letters of Knox were to be found in that series. I had an opportunity by personal examination, in the autumn of 1860, to be satisfied of the correctness of this report. I was glad to find that Calvin's manuscripts at Geneva are at least better appreciated than formerly.

¹ Mons. Feuillet de Conches.

² Papiers d'Etat, etc., tom. ii. p. 12, Paris, 1852, etc. 3 vols. 4to.

³ These transcripts were made by John Jacob Simler, who died 5th August 1788, and form nearly 200 volumes in folio, containing about 18,000 letters, between the years 1530 and 1600.

LETTERS, ETC.

I.—KNOX TO MRS. ANNA LOCK.

Death, the last enemy, shall be abolished, and then shall we meet to rejoice with our Head, without separation.

YOUR letters, DEARE SISTER, dated at Geneva the seventh of Februar, received I in Diep the seventene of Marche. Tuiching my negligence in wryting to you, at other times I feare it shall be little amended, except that better occasions nor yet I know be offered; for oft to write where few messengers can be found, is but folishnesse. My remembrance of yow is not yet so dead, but I trust it shall be fresh enough, albeit it be renewed be no outward token for one yeare. Of nature I am churlish, and in conditions different from many: Yet one thing I ashame not to affirme, that familiaritie once throughlie contracted was never yet broken on my default. The cause may be that I have rather need of all then that any hath need of me. However it be, as tuiching remembrance of yow, it cannot be, I say, the corporall absence of one year or two that can quenche in my hart that familiar acquaintance in Christ Jesus, which half a yeare did engender, and almost two yeares did nourish and confirme. And therefor, whither I write or no, be assuredlie perswaded, that I have yow in such memorie, as becometh the faithfull to have of the faithfull.

In answering to your Questions, I know I shall be judged extreme and rigorous. But, Sister, now it is no tyme to flatter, nor to dissemble. Our captane Christ Jesus, and Satan his adversarie, are now at plaine defyance. Their banners be displayed, and the trumpets blow upon either partie, for assembling of their armies. Our Maister calleth upon his owne, and that with vehemencie, that they depart from Babylon; yea, severelie he threateneth death and damnation to such as, either in forehead or in hand, beare the mark of the Beast. And a portion of his marke are all these dregges of Papistrie which were left in your great Booke of England,¹ any jote whereof will I never counsell any man to use. One jote, I say, of these Diabolicall inventiouns, viz. Crossing in Baptisme; Kneeling at the Lord's table; mummelling, or singing of the Letanie, a fulgure et tempestate: a subitanca et improvisa morte, etc.² The whole Order of your Booke appeareth rather to be devised for upholding of massing priests, then for any good instruction which the simple people can thereof receive. Your Sacraments wer ministred, be the most part, without the soule, and be those who to Christ Jesus wer no true ministers; and God grant that so yet they be not. Without the soule I say, they wer ministred, ¹ The revised Liturgy, or Book of Common Prayer of Edward the Sixth, authorized at this time by Queen Elizabeth to be used, and all other forms prohibited.

² It perhaps was not so much individual expressions as the general form of the English service, in having retained so much of the Popish ritual, that called forth this marked dislike on the part of Knox. In that part of the Romish service known as the Litany pro Sanctis, are the words A subitanea et improvisa morte, etc.; and in the English Prymers, 1538, etc., we have From sodeyne and unprovwyded deathe, and From sodeyn death and unarvisid.—(See Maskell's "Monumenta Ritualia Ecclesie Anglicanæ," vol. ii. pp. 95, 102.) This Litany was for the most part retained in the Book of Common Prayer, with the material omission of the constant Invocation of the Romish Saints, Orate pro nobis. But in the Liturgies of Edward the Sixth, to which Knox refers, the words are simply "From battle and murder, and from sudden death." In the Savoy Conference, in the year 1661, among the exceptions against the Book of Common Prayer, in the rubric, "From battel, and murder, and sudden death," it was stated by the Puritans, "Because the expression of 'sudden death' hath been so often excepted against, we desire, if it be thought fit, it may be thus read:—'From battel, and murther, and from dying suddenly and unprepared.'" But this suggested amendment was rejected, being one of the alterations "so nice," as if they that made them were given to change.—See Cardwell's "History of Conferences," etc. pp. 316, 352.

because they wer ministred without the Word trulie and openlie preached; and your Ministers before, for the most part, were none of Christ's ministers, but Masse-mumming priests. They wer newlie created singers or sayers of Matins, Even-song, and of Communion; to church, or to purifie women, and to burie the dead with Commendo cinerem cineri, etc., whereof no point I find enjoined to Christ's ministers, but onlie to preach Christ Jesus crucified, and to minister the Sacraments in such simplicitie, as from him they had recaved them. Yea, so bound to preach did the Apostle confesse himself, that he would not acknowledge himself to be sent to baptize; affirming therby that the cheefest office of Christ's ministers is to preache the glade tydings of the kingdome, repentance, and remission of sinnes, the seales wherof be the Sacraments; and the true ministers of them be onlie those that be appointed to preache, and also doe preache Christ Jesus, and the benefits of his death. But suche wer not your Ministers, for the most part; for the first entrie to their ministrie was, to offer Christ Jesus for the sinnes of the quick and the dead, and in that same purpose, as time hath declared, did no small number remaine. And yet, I think that Mr. Parson and Mr. Vicar shall cause his chaplane mummill the Communion, etc. I appear to jest with yow.

You ask of me, Whither it be lawfull to accompanie these childrene, at the requeest of your friends, to the Kirk, which shall be baptized after the accustomed manner in the dayes of King Edward? and Whither the Lord's Supper be trulie ministred, if the receavers be suffered to sitt or stand, and the bread being such as is commonlie used, notwithstanding of the singing of the ten Commandments out of time, and the singing of the Creed? etc. and Whither we may be partakers in that supper or not? These be your Questions, and I doe Answer yow. With Mr. Parson's pattering of his constrained prayers, and with the massemunging of Mr. Vicar, and of his wicked companions [I will not meddle].¹ But consider, Sister, what I have affirmed, to wit, that wher Christ Jesus is not preached (marke well that I say, preached), that there hath the Sacrament neither life nor soule; and farther, that I say, none can be a lawful minister of Christ's Sacrament, who first is not a minister of his blessed Word. Now, Sister, if with good conscience yow may communicat with that which, in effect, is no sacrament, and if yow may honour him, as Christ's minister, who is but a bastard, yea Christ's plaine enemy als oft as he cometh there, to find favour of him, be judge yourself. I know that both yow, and others shall find this my judgement somewhat extreme. But, I answer if any perish, I shall be guiltlesse of their blood. The matter is not of so small importance, as some suppose. The question is, whether that God or man ought to be obeyed in matters of religion? In mouth, all doe confesse that God is onlie worthy of soveraigntie. But after that many, be the instigation of the Divell, and be presumptuous arrogancie of carnall wisdome, and worldlie policie, have defaced God's holie ordinance, men feare not to follow what lawes and common consent, mother to all mischeefe, and nourse most favourable to superstition, hath established and commanded. But thus continuallie I can doe nothing but hold, and affirme all things polluted, yea execrable, and accursed, which God, be his Word, hath not sanctified in his religion. God grant yow his Holie Spirit rightlie to judge.

No man will I salute in commendation speciallie, although I bear good will to all that unfainedlie professe Christ Jesus: for to me it is written that my FIRST BLAST² hath blowne from me all my friends in England. My conscience beareth me record that yet I seek the favour of my God; and so I am in the lesse feare. The Second Blast I feare shall sound somewhat more sharp, except men be more moderat then I hear they are. My booke, as I understand, is written against.¹ Assuredlie I feare that men shall rather destroy then edifie, be such interprises. Lett no man be deceived, as that the qualitie of this time shall affray me to answeere, although corporall death should be my rewarde. No, the veritie which I affirme is invincible, and shall triumphe to the confusion of all oppugners. England hath refused me; but because, before, it did refuse Christ Jesus, the lesse doe I regard the losse of that familiaritie. And yet have I beene a secret and assured friend to thee, O England, in cases which thyself could not have remedied. God grant! that their ingratitude be not punished with severitie, and that ere they be aware. And thus, with sorrowfull hart, I committ yow to the protection of the Omnipotent.

¹ A blank occurs here in Calderwood's MS., as if such words, as are supplied within brackets, had not been deciphered.

² See this republished in vol. iv. pp. 349-420.

From Diepe, the sixte of Aprile 1559.

II.—KNOX TO SIR WILLIAM CECYLL²

The Spirite of wisdom, judgement, and sanctificatioun, I wisse you, by Jesus Christe.

As I have no pleasure with longe writinge to troble you, Right Honorable, whose mynde I knowe to be occupied in most grave matters, so labor I not with longe preface to conciliate your favors; the which I suppose to have already, (how so ever the rumours brut the contrary,) as it becometh one membre of Christes bodye to have of another. The contentes, therefore, of theis my presentes, shalbe absolved in twoo pointes. In the former, I purpose to discharge, in fewe woordes, my conscienc toward you: And in the other, somewhat must I speake, in my

¹ Evidently referring to Dr. Aylmer's "Harborowe," etc. See vol. iv. p. 354.

² Knox has inserted this letter in his History: see vol. ii. pp. 16-22. The copies differ in a number of minute particulars, not necessary to point out; except in supplying some apparent omissions in the duplicate original.

owen defence, of that poore flocke of late assembled in the most godlye reformed Church and Citty of Geneva.¹ To you, Sir, I say, that as from God ye have received life, wisdome, honours, and this presente estate in which now ye stande, so ought you wholly to imploye the same to the advancement of his glory, who only is the auctor of life, and fountaine of wisdome, and who most assuredly dothe and will honour and glorifye those that, with simple hartes, do glorifye him. The which, alas! in times past ye have not done: But beinge overcome with common iniquitye, ye have followede the worlde in the way of perdicion: For [to]² the suppression of Christ's true Evangell, to the erectinge of Idolatry, and to the shedding of the bloode of God's deare children, have you, by silence, consented and subscribed. This your horrible defection from the trueth knowne and professed, hathe God unto this day mercifully spared; yea, to manes judgment, he hathe utterly forgotten and pardoned the same. He hathe not intreated you as he hath done others (of like knowledge), whome, in his angere (but yet most justly according to their deserte), he did shortly strike after their defection. But you (guilty in the same offences) hathe he spared, preservede, as it wer in his owen bosome, duringe the tyme of that most myserable thraldome [of that professed enemye of God, mischievous Marie]: and nowe hathe sett you at soche libertye as the fury of God's enemyes can not hurte you, except that willingly against his honour, ye take pleasure to conspire with them. As this benefit which ye have received is great, so must Godes justice require of you a thankfull hart; for, seinge that his mercy hathe spared you, beinge traytor to his Majestie; seinge further, that amongst your enemyes he hathe preserved you; and, last, seinge that you worthy of hell, he hathe promoted to honors and dignitie; of you must he require (because he is just) earnest repentance for your former defection, a hart myndfull of his mercifull providence, and a will so readye to advance his glory, that evidentlye it may appeire, that in vaine ye have [not] received theis graces of God; to the performance wherof, of necessitye it is, that carnall wisdome, and worldly pollicye, (to which both, ye are bruted to be moche inclined,) give place to God's simple and naked trueth. Very love compelleth me to say, that [except] the Spirit of God purge your hart from that venyme, which your yees¹ have seene to have ben the destruction unto others, that you shall not longe escape the rewarde of dissemblers. Call to minde what your eares harde proclaimed in the Chappell at St. James,² when this verse of the first Psalme was intreated: "Not so, O wicked, not so; but as the dust wiche the winde tossethe," etc. And consider, that now ye travell in the same way which then they dide occupy; plainly to speke, now are you in that estat and credit, in which ye shall either comfort the sorrowfull and afflicted for righteousnes sake, or els you shall oppugne the Spirit of God speakinge in his messingers. The comfort[ers] of the afflicted for godlines have promis of comfort in their greatest necessities: but the troblers of God's servants, (how contemned soever they appeire before the world,) are thretnede to leve their names in execration to the posterities followinge. The examples of the one and of the other are not only evident in the Scriptures, but also have ben latly manifested in Englande. And this is the conclusion of that which, to yourself, I say, Except that in the cause of Christes Evangell ye be founde simple, sincere, fervent, and unfayned, ye shall tast of the same cuppe that pollitique hedds have dronke before you.

¹ "The most godlie Reformed Church and Citie of the World, Geneva."—

Supra, vol. ii. p. 16.

² "For dont," in MS.

The other point concerninge my self, and the poore flocke now dispersed (and, as I feare, rudely intreatede) is this: By divers messingers I have requested soche privelege as Turkes commonly do graunt to men of every nation; to witt, that fredome should be granted me peaceably to passe through

¹ "Yees," eyes.

² See note, vol. ii. p. 18.

Englande, to the ende that with greater expedition I might repaire towards my owne contrey, the which nowe beginneth to thirste for Christ's truthe. This request I thought so reasonable, that almost I had enterede the Realme without licence demaunded; and yet I understand, that it hath ben so rejected, that the solicitors therof did hardly escape ymprisonment. And some of that poor flocke I hear to be so extremly handled, that those that most cruelly have shedd the bloode of Godes most deire children, finde this day amongst yow greater favore than they doe. Alas! this appeireth moche to repugne to Christen charity; for what so ever hath bene mine offence, this I feir not to affirme in their caus, that if any which have suffered exile in theis most dolorous days of persecutioun, deserve praise and commendation, for peace, concord, sober, and quiet livinge, it is they. And for me, howe crymynall so ever I ame in God's presence for the multitude of my sinnes, yet before his justice-seate I have a testimony of clere conscience, that since my first acquaintance with Englande, willingly I never offended person within it, except in open chare to reprove that which God condemneth can be judged offence.

But I have written (say you) a tresonable booke against the Regiment and empire of Women: if that be any offence, the poore flocke is innocent (except soche as this day loudest crye treason); for, Sir (in God's presence I writt), with none in that company did I consult thereof, before the finishinge of the same; and, therfor in Christ's name, I require that the blame may be upon me alone. The writinge of that booke I will not denye; but to prove it tresonable I think it shall be harde. For, Sir, no more doe I doubt [the truth of my principall proposition, than that I doubt] that this was the voice of God, the which first did pronounce this penaltie against Women, "In dolor shalt thou beare thy children." It is bruited that my booke is or shall be written against; if it be so, Sir, I greatly fear that flatterers shall rather hurt then helpe the matter, which they would seme to meintein; for, except that my errour be plainly shewen and refuted by bettre auctoryty then by suche lawes as from yeire to yeire may and doe change, I dare not promis silence in so weightye a busienes, lest, that in so doinge, I shall appeire to betray the veritie which is not subject to the mutability of time. And yet if any think me ennemy to the persone, nor yet to the regiment of her, whome God hath now promoted, they are utterly deceived in me. For the miraculouse worke of God's comfortinge his afflicted by an infirme vessell, I doe reverence; and the power of his most potent hande, exalting whom best pleasethe his wisdome (commaundinge nothinge against his glory) I will obey, albeit that nature and Godes most perfect ordinaunce repugne to soche regiment. More plainly to speake, if Quene Elizabeth shall confes, so that the extraordinary dispensation of Godes great mercy maketh that lawfull unto her, which both nature and Godes lawe denye [to all women]; then shall non in Englande be more willinge to meintein her lawfull auctoryty then I shal be. But if (Godes wondrous worke be sett aside) sche grounde (as God forbide) the justnes of her title upon consuetude, lawes, and ordinaunce of men; then, as I am assured, that soche folishe presumption doeth highly offend God's supreme Majestie, so doe I greatly feare that her ingratitude shall not long lacke punishment. And this, in the name of the eternall God, and of his sonne Christ Jesus (before whom both you and I shall stand, to make an account of all counsell that we give), I require you to signifye unto Her Grace [in my name]; addinge, that only humilitey and dejection of her self before God, shalbe the firmitye and stabilitye of her throne, the which I know shalbe assaulted more waies then one. If this ye conceale from Her Grace, I will make it patent to the worlde that thus farre I have communicated with you, haveing also further to speake, if my weke judgment may be hearde. Alas! Sir, is myne offence

(although in that time, and in that matter, I had written tenne books) so hainouse that I can not have licence, by preachinge of Jesus Christe, to refreshe those thirstye soules which longe have lacked the watere of life. No man will I presentlie accuse; but I feare that the leprouse have no pleasure to beholde ther faces in the clere glasse. Let non be afraide that I require to frequent the Court, either yet of any continuance to remaine in Englande; my only thirst is, in passinge to my Contrey, to communicat with you, and with some others, soche things as willingly I list not to committ to paper, neither yet to the knowledge of manye. And then, in North-pairtes, to offer God's favors to soche as I doe suppose doe moorne for their former defection. And this I suppose should be no lesse profitable to Her Grace, [and to all Godlie within England,] then it should be pleasinge to me in the fleshe.

This is the thirde time that I have beggede licence to visite the houngrye and thirstye amongst you, the which, if nowe be denied, as before God I have a testimony, that so moche I seeke not myself, as the advancement of Christ's Evangell, and the comforte of soche whome I knowe afflicted; so shall the godly understande that Englande, in refusinge me, refuseth a friende, howe smale soever the power be. The mighty Spirit of the Lord Jesus move your hart deeply to consider your dutye unto God, and the state of the Realme in which you nowe serve by his appointment. From Deype, the 10th of Aprill 1559.

Yours to commaunde in godlines,

JOHN KNOXE.

Suspectinge the former messinger to have protracted time in his journey, I have doobled my letters by this gentleman, of whose fidelity I aime fully persuaded, desiering you most effectuously by hime to signify unto me, if I may have licence only to visit the poore and dispersed flocke at Berwicke, Newcastle, and other parties in the North. I hope in God that nothinge shall hurt the common welth of Englande, that soche libertye be graunted unto me. From Diepe, the 22d of April 1559.

To the Ryght worshipfull Sir William Cecill knight, Secretary to the Quenes Majesties most honorable prevey counsell, be theis delivered at the Court in Englande.

III.—KNOX TO MRS. ANNA LOCK.

The perpetuall confort of the Holy Ghost for salutation.

THESE few lines are to signifie unto yow, dear Sister, that it hath pleased the mercifull providence of my Heavenly Father to conduct me to Edinburgh, where I arrived the second of Maii; uncertain as yet, what God shall further work in this country, except that I see the battell shall be great, for Sathan rageth even to the uttermost; and I am come (I praise my God,) even in the brunt of the battell; for my fellow-preachers have a day appointed to answer before the Queene Regent, the 10th of this instant, wher I intend (if God impede not) also to be present, be life, be death, or els be both, to glorifie His godlie name, who thus mercifully hath heard my long cryes. Assist me, Sister, with your prayers, that now I shrink not when the battell approacheth. Other things I have to communicat with yow, but travell after travell doth so occupy me, that no time is granted me to write. Advertise my brother, Mr. Goodman, of my estate, as in my other letter sent unto yow from Diep I willed yow. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ rest with yow. From Edinburgh, in haist, the thrid of May [1559].

IV.—KNOX TO MRS. ANNA LOCK.

The last enemy, Death, shall be abolished.

Yee hunger, I doubt not, deir Sister, to know the successe of Christ's Evangell, the things that have come to passe since my arrivall, and my expectatioun in this interprise, dangerous indeed, and verie strange to worldlie men, if ye sall understand the proccidings of our Brether, the true professors of Jesus Christ, since the time that they declared themselves enemies to Antichrist. After diverse requiests made to the Queene Regent by some of the nobilitie, some barouns, and some communitie; and after manie faire promises of her part, and yit nothing meant by her (as the end did declare) but craft and deceate; the whole Brethrein together did consent, that the ministrie of the Word of God, and administratioun of the Sacraments, sould be erected; and that idolatrie sould be repressed, where the most part of the people sould admitt reformatioun. And so was the kirk of Dundie reformed before my arrivall; publict prayers were in other places, which thing did so stirre the adversaries, that the preachers were summouned by the authoritie to answer, as criminall, before a civill judge. The day of their appearance was the 10th of May 1559, which was the 8th day after my arrivall. Being moved in conscience to give confessionne with my brethrein, after the rest of one day in Edinburgh, I prepared my self to repaire toward them; and so, upoun the third day after, I came to Dundie, where a great assemblie of brethrein was, for consultatioun what was most expedient in that doubtfull case. The conclusioun was, that the whole multitude and number of brethrein sould accompanie their preachers, and give confessionne of their faith with them; and so from Dundie, they departed to Sanct Johnstoun, whilk late before had received the Order of Commoun Prayers. But least that such a multitude might have engendered some suspicioun of resistance and rebellioun against the authoritie, one of the most grave and most wise barouns was directed to the Queene Regent with declaration of our mindes; which being understand by the Queene and her Counsell, it was required of us that the multitude sould stay, and not come to Stirlin, which place was appointed to the preachers to compeir; and so sould no extremitie be used, but the summounds sould be continued till farther advisement; which being glaidlie granted of us, some of the brethrein returned to their dwelling-places. But the Queene and her Counsell, nothing mindefull of her and their promise, incontinent did call the preachers, and for laike of comperance, did exile and putt them and their assistants to the horne; which deceate being spied, the brethrein soght the nixt remedie. And first, after complaint and appellatioun frome such a deceitfull sentence, they putt to their hands to reformation in Sanct Johnstoun, where the places of idolatrie of Gray and Blacke Friers, and of Charter-house monkes, were made equall with the ground; all monuments of idolatrie, that could be apprehended, consumed with fire; and preests commanded, under paine of death, to desist frome their blasphemous masse. Which thing did so inrage the venome of the serpent's seid, that a sentence of death was pronounced against man, woman, and child, indwellers there, or yit that wold assist them; yea, their citie was threatned to be utterlie destroyed, burnt, and razed; and for executioun thereof, was a great armie of Frenche and Scots men, with much ordinance, prepared. The Queene and the preests had manie favourers at the first, for they made us odious in the eares of the people, alledging our assemblies to be a tumult and insurrectioun against the authoritie, unjustlie slaundering us that we pretended not religion, but the subversiou of the authoritie, and that for that purpose we intended to fortifie the town; which wicked brute procured unto us manie enemies, who, neverthesse, understanding of our innocence, were more favourable. We did all diligence to mak our cause to be knowne, als weill to Frenchmen as unto us, as diverse writtings by us sett furth due witnesse.

In end, men of discretioun beganne to weygh our reasouns, offers, and petitionns, and therupoun perswaded the Queene to assay if we meant truelie and sincerelie in our wryttings. Our offers were, as yit they are, to serve the Authoritie among us established in all things not plainlie repugning to God, to his commandement, and glorie. Our petitionous were, that the Evangell might have free passage, and that our consciences sould not be thrall'd to men's traditionous. Our reasons for the premisses I cannot now recite. Heirupoun were messingers sent unto us, whill the two armies were within three miles. Our number exceidit not 5000, for our whole Congregation was not assembled: our adversaries were about 8000. And yit God gave unto us the hearts and boldnes, that the contrarie partie soght the appointment, which was thus concluded: that we sould leave the toun of Sanct Johnstoun free, in signe of our obedience to the Queene, and to her lieutenaunt; that we sould depart to our owne housses; and that we sould show no signe of rebellioun against the authoritie.

The Queene and her Counsell made promise, that na persoun within Sanct Johnstoun, nather yit of these that assisted them, sould be trubled for anie thing done, ather in religioun, ather yit in douncasting of places, till that the sentence of the Estates in Parliament had decided the controversie; and that no bands of Frenche souldiours sould be left behind the Queene and counsell in that toun; and that no idolatrie sould be erected, nor alteratioun made within the toun. But after she had obtained her desire, all godlie promisses were forgotten; for the Sunday nixt, after her entrie, masses wer said upoun a dycing-table (for ye sall understand all the altars were prophaned); the poore professors were oppressed; when children were slaine she did but smile, excusing the fact by the chance of fortune; and at her departure, she left 400 souldiours, Scottis men, but payed by France, to dantoun the toun. She changed the pro-veist, and exiled all godlie men. This crueltie and deceate displeased manie who before assisted her with their presence and counsell; and, among others, the Erle of Argile, and the Prior of Sanct Andrewes left her, and joyned themselves to the Congregatioun openlie; whilk, as it was displeasing to her, and to the shavelings, so was it most comfortable and joyfull to us, for by their presence were the hearts of manie erected from desperatioun.

At their commandement, I repaired to them to Sanct Andrewes, where consultatioun had, it was concluded, that Christ Jesus sould there be openlie preached, that the places and monuments of idolatrie sould be removed, and that superstitious habits sould be changed. This reformatioun there was begun the 14th of June. In the meane time, came the Bishop of Sanct Andrewes to the towne, accompanied with a great band of warriours, and gave a strait commandement, that no preaching sould be made by me, who was both brunt in figure and horned,¹ assuring the Lords, that if they suffered me to preache, that twelve hacquebutts sould light upoun my nose at once. (O burning charitie of a bloodie bishop!) But as that boast did little affray me, so did it more incense and inflamme with curage the hearts of the godlie, who with one voyce proclaimed, that Christ Jesus sould be preached in despite of Sathan. And so, that Sabboth, and three dayes after, I did occupie the publict place in the midst of the Doctors, who to this day are dumbe; even als dumbe as their idols who were brunt in their presence. The Bishop departed to the Queene frustrate of his intent, for he had promised to bring me to her either living or deid. And incontinent was a new armie assembled, and forward they marche against Sanct Andrewes.

It was not thought expedient that we sould abide them lurking in a toun, and so we past to the feilds, and mett them at Cowper, where loding was appointed for their campe; bot we prevented them, where we remained upoun their comming till the next day. When both the armies were in sight of other, within shott of cannon, and we looked for nothing but for the extremitie of battell (not that we intended to pursew, bot onlie to stand in campe, where our feild was pitched, for defense of our selves), there came frome our adversaries an ambassader desiring speeche and commouning of the Lords ; which glaidlie of us being granted, after long reasoning, the Queene offered a free remissioun for all crimes bypast, so that they wold na farther proced against friers and abbeyes, and that no more preaching sould be used publictlie. But the Lords and the whole brethrein refused suche appointment, declaring that the feare of no mortall creature sould cause them betray the Veritie knowne and professed, nather yit to suffer idolatrie to be maintained in the bounds committed to their charge. The adversaries perceaving that nather threatning, flatterie, nor deceate, could breake the bold constancie and godlie purpose of the lords, barouns, gentlemen, and commouns, who were there assembled to the number of 3000 in one daye's warning, they were content to take assurance for eight dayes, permitting unto us freedome of religioun in the meane time. In the whilk, the Abbay of Lundores, a place of blacke monkes, distant frome Sanct Andrewes twelve miles, was reformed, their altars overthrowne, their idols, vestments of idolatrie, and masse bookes, were burnt in their owne presence, and they commaunded to cast away their monkish [habits]. Diverse channons of Sanct Andrewes have given notable confessiouns, and have declared themselves manifest enemies to the Pope, to the masse, and to all superstitioun.

¹ Burned in effigy, and put to the horn. See vol. iv. p. 464.

Thus farre hath God advaunced the glorie of his deare Sonne amongst us. O that my heart could be thankfull for the super-excellent benefite of my God ! The long thirst of my wretched heart is satisfied in abundance, that is above my expectatioun ; for now, fortie dayes and moe, hath my God used my tongue in my native cuntry, to the manifestatioun of his glorie. Whatsoever now sall follow, as tuiching my owne carcase, his Holie name be praised. The thirst of the poore people, als weill as of the nobilitie heir, is wonderous great, which putteth me in comfort, that Christ Jesus sall triumphe for a space heir, in the North and extreme parts of the earth. We feare, that the tyrannie of France sall, under the cloke of religioun, seeke a plaine conqueist of us; but potent is God to confound their counsells, and to breake their force. God move the hearts of such as professe Christ Jesus with us, to have respect to our infancie, and open their eyes that they may see, that our ruine sall be their destructioun.

Communicate the contents heirof (which I write to you, least that by diverse rumors yee sould be trubled, and we slaundered), with all faithfull, but especiallie, with the afflicted of that little flocke now dispersed, and destitute of these pleasaunt pastures in which they sometime fed abundantlie. If anie remaine at Geneva, lett ather this same, or the double of it be sent unto them, and likewise unto my deir brother, Mr. Gudman, whose presence I more thrist, than she that is my owne fleshe. Will him, therefore, in the name of the Lord Jesus (all delay and excuse sett apart), to visite me, for the necessitie is great heir. If he come by sea, lett him be addressed unto Dundie, and lett him aske for George Lovell, for George Rolloke, or for William Carmichaell. If he come to Leith, lett him repaire to Edinburgh, and enquire for James Baron, Edward Hope, Adame Fullertoun, or for Johne Johnstoun, writter, by whome he will gett knowledge of me. If my Mother and my Wife come by you, will them to make the expeditioun that goodlie they can to visite me, or at least to come to the north parts, where they sall know my minde, which now I can not write, being oppressed with hourlie cares. This bearer is a poore man unknowen in the countrie, to whome, I beseeche you, shew reasonable favour and kindnes tuiching his merchandise, and the just selling therof. Thus with heartlie commendatiouns to all faithfull, I heartlie committ you to the protectioun of the Omnipotent.

Frome Sanct Andrewes, the 23d of June 1559.

V.—EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS OF SIR JAMES CROFT.

THAT may please your honorable Lordshipes to be advertised, that I had intelligence yesterday out of Scotland of a grete disension within that realme growing of two causes: One is, that syns the arryvall of Knox a grete number of the Nobillite, with a multitude of others, repayred to the said Knoxe to Dundee, where he and others dothe continewally preche. Whereupon the Regent commaunded those preachers to apere afore her at Starlynge. At Barwick, the sixth of Maye 1559.

Your most honorable Lordshipes at commaundment,

JAMES CROFT.

To the right honorable the Lordes and others of the Quenes Majestie's mooste honorable Prevy Councell at the Court.

SYNS my late advertisement to your honorable Lordshipes of the dissention in Scotland But the discensions in religion contyneweth, and Knox with other prechers remayne at St. John's towne, accompanied with sundry gentlemen, by the supportance and assistance of a grete parte of the Nobillite; and the Regent meaning to suppres them by force, hath apointed a grete number to assemble at Starlinge this nyght, and from thence to marche towarde St. John's towne.

At Barwicke, the xxiith of Maye 1559.

(Signed and indorsed with this addition:—In hast, hast, post-hast, with dilligence.)

I DID of late advertis the Lordes and others of the Councell soche vareiance as was like to growe in Scotland; and accordingle the Regent sent forthe the Duke towards Saint John's towne, where Knox and others did preache; and the same towne was also manned for defence, having there of chardge the Erle of Glincarne, accompanied with other gentelmen, and of that faction also many of the nobillite, redy to gyve assistance if neade shold require; but when the Duke with his company was come near to the towne, affreid for that many of his company were of that opinion that the others in Saint John's towne were, etc. etc.

At Barwicke, the vth of June 1559.

Yours to comaundment,

JAMES CROFT.

To Sir William Cycill knight, Secretary to the Queenes Majestie, and one of her highnes most honorable Prevy Councell, at the Courte.—Hast, hast, hast, hast, with dilligence.

Writ the vth of June, at vi of the clocke in the morninge.

You shall understande that the Nobillite dothe wholly joyne together in matters of religion (fewe or none excepted), and nowe a grete number of them at Saint Andrews, holding a Councill by common consent, have to proceade in theis matter, being fully bent to sett for God's worde, wherein yf they be lettyd they meane to make resistance, as well assured I am, that in this godly proceading they loke for the Queene's Majesties assistance.

At Barwicke, the xiiii of June 1559.

(Signed as above.)

To Sir Thomas Parry knight, Treasurer of the Quenes Majesties howsholde, etc. etc.—Hast, hast, hast, hast, for the life. Delivered at Barwicke, the xiiii of June, at thre of the clocke in the afternoon.

VI.—KNOX TO MRS. ANNA LOCK.

RECEAVING your letters, dated at London the 16th of June, at the houre expressed, and finding the opportunitie of a messenger at the verie instant to depart, I could not but scribe these few words unto you, immediatelie after I was come from the verie preaching place in Sanct Geil's Kirk in Edinburgh. The whole discourse of our proceedings I have writtin to you before; and farther ye sall understand, by this other letter directed to Adame Haliday, which ye may open, and after deliver it. The professors are in Edinburgh. The Queene¹ is retired into Dumbar. The fine² is known unto God. We meane no tumult, no alteratioun of authoritie, but onlie the reformatioun of religioun, and suppressing of idolatrie. The reasoun of Mr. Coall, and your Acts of Parliament, like me both alike;³ that is, nothing at all. I wrote not onlie against Papisticall priests, but also against dissembled professors, who preferre darknesse to light, and vanitie to the truthe. If your Reformatioun be no better nor your Acts expresse, I repent not of my absence from England. I have receaved no letter from you before that last, neither yitt anie knowledge of my brother, Mr. Gudman.⁴ More trouble than yee see lyeth upon me. As God worketh heere, ye sall know from tine to time. Remember my weaknesse, and call earnestlie, that God, our Father through Jesus Christ, his deere and onlie Sonne, may be glorifeid in his congregatiouns. Rest in Christ, with salutatioun to all faithfull. From Edinburgh, the 25th of June 1559.

¹ Mary of Lorraine, Queen Dowager, and Regent of Scotland.

² "Fine," end.

³ See introductory note, supra, p. 4.

⁴ Christopher Goodman, Knox's colleague at Geneva. He came to Scotland in October following.

VII.—KNOX TO CECYLL.

The perpetuall encrease of the Holie Ghost, with most humill commendatioun of my service.

THIS is the ferd letter, Rycht Honorable, which I have written unto you sence my departur from Geneva. Two I did direct from Diep, in tham desiring that I mycht have had license to have passed throughe England to my native country, and an other befor this, I have written from Sanct Andrewes,¹ desiring licence to vesitt the northe partes of Englande to Newcastle or Duresme, not that in any of these my requeastes, so much I speak my owen proffett, as that I do thrust to communicat with some secreat and man of solid judgment, such thinges as glaidly I wold not comitt to paper and ink. By narration of many, I understand that I am becom so odius to the Queanes Grace and to hir Counsall, that the mention of my name is displeasing to thare earis; but yit I will not ceas to offer myself, requyring you in Goddes name to present to the Quean's Grace this my letter, smelling nothing of flattery; and therfor I hope it shalbe mor acceptable, whether that eyther hir Grace, eyther yit the faythfull in hir realme, should reput me as enemye, I know no just cause. One thing I know, that England, by me to this day, hath receaved no hurt; yea, it hath receaved, by the power of God wirking in me, that benefitt which yit to none in England is knowen, neyther yit list I to boast of the same; onlie this will I say, that when England and the usurped authorities therof was enemye to me, yit was I freind to it, and the fruit of my friendschip fanned the Borderis in there greatest necessities. My eie hath long looked to a perpetual concord betuix these two Realmes, the occasion wharof is now most present, yf God shall move your hartes unfeanedlie to speak the saim for humilitie of Christ Jesus crucified, now begun heir to be preached, may joyn together the hartes of those whome Sathan by pride hath long dissevered for the furtheraunce heirof. I wold have licence to repayr towards you. God move your harte rychtlie to consider the estaite of both the Realmes, which stand in greater daunger then many do espy. The common bruit, I dowbt not, cariethe unto you the troubles that be laitly heir risen for the controversie in religion. The treucht is, that many of the nobilitie, the most part of barrons and gentilmen, with many touns and on cietie, have putt to thare handes to remove Idolatrie, and the monumentis of the saim. The Reformation is somewhat violent, becaus the adversareis be stubborn; non that professeth Christ Jesus, userpeth any thing against the autoritie; neyther yit intendest to usurpe, onles streangearis be brought in to subern and bring in bondaige the liberties of this poore contrey. If any such thing be espied, I am uncertane what shall follow. Advvertise me, yf ye please, of the Quenes Grace ansuer, if I may have licence to repayr towards you, whom I hartlie committ to the protection of the Omnipotent. From Sanct Johnston, the 28 of June 1559.

¹ The letter referred to is not preserved.

Youris to commande, in godlines,

JOHN KNOX.

I could have no tym to write the Quenes letter for continuall travalis, and for the suddane departure of the messinger. One thing yit in Goddes name I will requyr from you in my name to say to the Quenes grace, that willinglie I never offended hir Grace, and therfor sche awght not reput me an enemye.

To the right honorable Sir William Cycill knight, Secretary to the Quenes Majesties most honorable Privy Counsell, be these delivered in haist.

VIII.—WILLIAM KYRKCALDY OF GRANGE TO SIR HENRY PERCY.

THEIS salbe to certiffy you I resavit your letter this last of Junij, persavyng thairby the dout and suspitioun ye stand into for the comnyng forwardis of the Congregatioun, whome I assure you, ye neid not to have in suspitioun; for they meyne nothing bot reformatioun of religion, quhillkis schortly, throughe out this Realme, they will bring to pas; for the Quene and Monsieur Doisell, with all the Frenche men, for refuge ar retyrit to Dunbar. The forsaid Congregatioun came this last of Junij, be thre of the cloke in the mornyng, to Eddingbrought, whair they will tak ordre for the menteynance of the trew Religion, and resistyng of the Kyng of France, yf he sendis ony force agaynst them. The Duk, with allmost the hole Nobillite, hes declaret to the Quene that they are of the same religioun that the Congregatioun is of, and will tak part with them in that behalf. Herefor assure your self that the professouris of Godis worde in this realme, beares the Quene your maistres ane unfeaned love, which sell prove in deid or it be long; gyf it sell prove utherwyse esteme me no honest man; therfor repos your self upon my worde, by the which ye have found no deseate at no tyme, bot als great truthe as ever ye sell fynde here efter with eny livyng creatur. Farther, assure your self ther salbe nothyng wrought in this realme to the hurt of England, so long as it doethe menteyne the gospell of Chryste; bot ye salbe advertised therof in due tyme, yf I eyther bruk lyf, or this cuntrey; so, as I have wretyn tuys, I wolde wyshe that all meynes wer sought and no tyme pretermitted to bind up a perpetuall freyndship betwene the tuo Realmes which presently is easy to be done: therfor ones agane, put your self owt of dowt or suspitioun of thes conventions of the Congregatioun, for, as said is, there is nothing ment by them to the hurt of England, bot by the contrarie great love and freynschip.

The manour of thair procedyngis in Reformatioun, is this : They pull doune all maner of Freryes, and some Abayes, which willyngly resavis not ther reformatioun. As to paroys churchis, they cleyns them of ymages and all other monumentis of ydollatrye, and commandis that no Messis be said in them ; in place therof, the Booke sett fourthe be godlye Kyng Edward is red in the same churches. They have never as yet medlit with a penny wurthe of that which pertenis to the Kyrk, bot presently they will take ordre throughowt all the partis whare they duell, that all the fruttes of the Abayes and uther churches salbe kept and bestowet upon the faythfull Ministres, unto suche tyme as ane farther ordre be tene. Some suposes the Quene, seyng no uther remedy, will follow ther desyres, which is ane generall reformatioun throughowt the hole realme, to be maid conforme to the pure worde of God, and the Frenche men to be send awaye. Yf hir Grace will so do, they will obey and serve hir, and anex the hole revenus of the Abayis to the Crowne : yf hir Grace will not be content with this, they are determinet to heare of no agreement. Mak earnest laiboris that the Fort¹ may [be] raiset, or ellis I feare the Frenche keip it still, seyng they have few uther strenthes to keip them self into at this tyme. Command the man, that here after ye purpos to send unto me, to be veray secrete. Thus I commit you to God. The first of Jullij, in haist, redy to tak the fevre.

Youris, as ye knaw, to the deathe.

(Added in Percy's hand :)—

The letter that Knoxe wrythe to you is by the meanes of the hole Congregatione, the names of whome I sende yowe here inclosed.

HENRY PERCY.

¹ The Fort of Aymouth, near Berwick.

THE NAMES OF THE ERLIS, LORDIS, WITH SOME PRINCIPALL BARONS AND GENTILMEN OF THE CONGREGATION.

The Erle of Arguyle, and Pryour of St. Andros.

The Erles of Rothes and Montteth.

The Lordis Reven, Ogylvie, and Droumond.

The Maister of Lindsey.

The Lardis of Loychleavin, Dun, Pittarrow, Tillibarne, Glennowrchwhart. Theis forsaidis war the principalles that hes sett
St. Johnston at liberty agane.

The Erles of Glencarne and Mortoun ; the Lordis Erskain, Boyde, and Auchquhiltre, with the Schereiff of Air and Lard of Calder, met them at Eddinbrught. Thair nombre, yf the Quene and Frenche had remanit at Edinbrught, haid bene above xii thousand men ; bot seyng the departure of the saidis, they ar cum bot vi thousandis to the towne. The nombre of lardis and gentilmen I am not able to racken, that ar presently with them.

Thair be vj band with them who hath not yet declaret them selfis : the Erle Marshall, the Erle of Athoill, and Lord Forbes, with the Lardis of Drumlanerik, Loychwhinvarr, and Garlyce.
Many of the rest will subscryve with them, to keip owt the Frenche men.

IX.—KNOX TO SIR HENRY PERCY.

The myghty confort of the Holie Ghost for salutation.

RIGHT Honorable, having the oportunitie of this bearer un-suspect, I thought good to requyr of you such freindshipe, as that, from tym to tym, conference and knowledge myght be betuixt us ; I mean not my self and you, but betuixt the faythfull of both the Realmes, to the end that inconveniences pretended against both, may, by Goddis grace and myghty power, be avoided. Your faythfull freind Mr. Kyrkcaldye hath reaported to me your gentill behaviour and faythfull fidelitie in all thingis laughfull, honest, and godlie. Continew, Sir, and God by you shall wyrk mor than now appeareht. The troubles of this Realme ye hear, but the cause to many is not knowen. Persuaid yourself, and assure otheris, that we mean neyther sedition, neyther yit rebellion against any just and lauchfull authoritie, but onlie the advaancement of Christes religion, and the libertie of this poore Realme. Yf we can have the one with the other, it will fare better with England; which yf we lack, althought we murn and smart first, England will not eschape much worse truble in the end; but this had I rather communicat face to face than committ to paper and ink. This other letter I have direct to Mr. Secretary Cycill, which yf your Honour will cause to be delivered, I supposs you shall not offend him. Other thingis I have which now I can not write for continuall troubles hinging upon my wicked carcass, by reason of this tumult rased against Christ Jesus in his infancye. I pray you, Sir, to know the myndis of the Quenes Grace, and of the Counsall, tuiching our support, yf we be persewed by an armye of Frenche men; to lett me be assured by advertissement reassonably; and thus, committing you to the protection of the Omnipotent, I must hartlie desyr you to apardon my bold interprise, interprised not altogetther withoutt deliberation, as the troubles of those tymes do suffer. From Edinburgh, the first of July 1559.

Youris to command in godliness,

JOHN KNOX.

To the right worshipfull Sir Hary Percy knight, Warden Deputye.

Be these delivered in haist.

X.—SIR THOMAS PARRY AND SIR WILLIAM CECILL TO SIR HENRY PERCY.

AFTER our hartly commendations, your letter of the 28 came safely to our hands, with other ij letters included, the one to yourself, the other to me the Secretary. The matter is worth interteynment, for the sequelle therof, that maye tend towards this realme, if it be well forseene. Besides the letters ye mention, much creditte utterd to yow by Ledyngton's man, which we wold that ye had also wrytten: as the case is, we pray yow forbear not to wryte at length any intelligence to government, although ye maye imagine that the same is already knowen unto us. The matter contenned in Kyrkaldie's letter is imparted where it ought to be, and for ansuer therto, I, the Secretary, doo presently wryte my letter unto yow, which is ment that ye should shewe to Kyrkaldie for satisfaction of hym, but not to delyver the same owt of your hands, otherwise then that ye maye retorne it hyther, immediatly after that he hath sene it. We think it necessary that ye shuld speke with hym, because otherwise we see not how, without sending the letter to hym, he shuld so playnly understand our meanings. How the same may be compassed, ye best knowe; because ye might looke for more larger and particuler offer of succor than is conteyned in myne, the Secretaryes letter. But considering Kyrkaldye to be but private man, and not before otherwise [knowen] to us but in good grace with the Dowager, and besides that not perceiving by his letter that the matter moved by hym shuld come from them, of whom ye informe us by yours ye cold not presently discend to farder particularety of ansuer than we have doone. Therefore upon this, if furder matter shall playnely appere thence, and such as shall bryng creditte with it, then maye there also be furder understand to them what our meaning will be in this case. And so we end, praying yow in any wise use all expedition that ye maye in this matter. . . . So we bid yow hartely well to fare, praying yow to assure your self of our frendship to the uttermost of our power.¹

XI.—SIR WILLIAM CECILL TO SIR HENRY PERCY.

MR. PERCY, I have receaved yours, dated the xxviij of June, with other ij letters from your frends and myne, the one to yow, the other to me ; by which I parceive matter moved of no small momente, and therin doo note great wisdome in the writer. I have communicated the same with suche herin have moste authoritie and credite for theyr dignitie and wisdom. And like as the matter is of greate weighte, so it is to be circumspectly considered and prudently forsene, ye shall doo well to endeavour your self, yf it maye be brought to passe, to speake with Kirkcaldee, and to say unto hym, that for his letter I doo privately thank him for so frendly a participation with me of such a matter, and that I have emparked it in such secrete manner, and to such parties who have had very good likinge therof, as therto was behovinge ; and this therby fynde, that it is muche desyred to understand more particularly of the pourposes of the sayde Erles and other the Protestants mentioned in the saide letters, and to what end they meane to directe their actions ; and in what sort they will, and how they be able to accomplishe the same ; what dowtes they have, if any adverse powre againste their pourposes. And fynally, where it seemeth by the saide letter a thinge desyred there to be knowen, what supporte might be looked for hence, in case an army of Frenshmen shuld be broughte in thither to oppresse them ; it is also as much here desyred to be knowen, yf supporte shulde be sent hence, what manner of amitic mighte ensue betwixte these two Realmes, and how the same myght be hoped to be perpetuall, and not to be so slendre as heretofore hath bene, without other assurance of contynuaunce than from tyme to tyme hath pleased Fraunce. And yet because I meane not for wastinge of tyme to leave theyr question wholly unanswered (in the meane tyme hopinge to have our motion aunswered with convenient speede), ye maye assure hym, that rather than that Realme shulde be with a forren nation and powere oppressed and deprived of the aunciente Libertyes therto belonginge, and the Nobilitie therof, and specially such as at this presente seike to mayntayne the truethe of Christian religion, be expelled, the Authoritie of Englande wolde adventure with powre and force to ayde that Realme againste any suche forren invasion. And indeede I dare also affyrme, wolde be as sory to see that aunciente Nation to be overthrowen and oppressed as this our owne, wherin upon farther certenty understand from theme, so the same may be mayde bothe probable, and, as future things may be, assured for perpetuitie of a brotherly and nationall frendship betwixte these two Realmes, there may be shewed in playne manner more particularly of this offre. In the meane season, you shall require him to consider, that since this matter is written of, but by him alone, beinge not to me otherwise knowen but as a private gentleman, and yet one whome I well esteeme, bothe for his wisdom and his religion, he will not mislyke in me that I doo not presently, at this fyrst tyme, sende to hym any my expresse letters, consyderinge the place and office whiche I here holde, but rather committ the truste to be delyvered over by you; and yet, to make as good assurance of that whiche I write to you, as thoughe he had it confyrmed by my hand and seale. And ye shall instantly require of him, that although he privately I oughte, and so wolde, in any private matter credite him, yet it behoveth, in these common greate causes, to respecte of such personages with whome I doo conferre to have that which he shall imparte to me, to be made clere, probable, and so perfect, as in discours theruppon shuld not be found lackinge many solutions of objections, or doubtes that mighte theruppon arise, wherby the cause shulde be producted overmuch; and so do commend you to Almighty God. From Grenwiche this iij of Julij.

¹ Indorsed, "Th. Parry, W. Cecill to Sir H. Percy. 4 July 1559."

Your assured frend,

W. CECILL.

To the Right Worshipful, and my very assured frend, Sir Henry Percy, Knight.¹

XII.—LORDS OF THE CONGREGATION TO SIR W. CECILL.

RIGHT WORSHIPFULL SIR, after our hartly commendations, the contents of a letter direct by you to Sir Hary Percy was notified to us by Mr. Kyrkcaldey of Grange, this Souday, the 16th of July,² by the which we perceave, that the said Grange, of zeale and faithfull hart which hee beareht to the furtherance of this our great (and befor the world) daungerus interprise, hath traved with you, as with an unfeened favorer of Christ's trew religion, and of the libertie of your countrey, for knowledge of your mynde towards us, in case that we be assaulted by any foren invasion, or greater power then we be well able to resist. Your comfortable ansuer to that his question we have considered, to our joy and confort, as also your motions, and what ye demand; to witt, What we, the Protestants do propose? To what end we mean to direct our actions? How we will, and we be able to accomplish the sam? What dowbts we have of any adversary power? And finally, in case that support should be send from you, What manner of anytie myght ensew betwene

¹ This letter is indorsed by Sir W. Cecill,—“4th July 1559. My letter to Sir H. Percy, returned ageyn to me the 23 of July.”

² In the original the date is the 15th, but Sunday was the 16th of July. See footnote to this letter, vol. ii. p. 23.

these two Realmes, and how the sam myght be hoped to be perpetuall? etc. To which we brevely ansuer, That our hole and only purpose, as knoweht¹ God, is to advaunce the glory of Christ Jesus; the trew preaching of his Evangile within this realme; to remove superstition, and all sortes of externall idolatrie; to bridill to our powers the fury of those that hertofo have cruellie sched the blood of our brethren; and, to our utermost, to maintean the libertie of this our countrey from the tyranny and thraldome of straungers, as God shall assist us. How [we] be able to accomplish the premisses is to us unknowen; only our hope is good that Hie that hath begun this good work by us, and hath by his power to this soe confounded the faces of our adversaries, will perform the sam to his glory, which cheafly we seak in this our interprise, becaus we suppose that neyther our present daungers, neyther yet the warlick preparations which Fraunce maykeht against us, be hyd from you nor from the Counsall: we omitt that part. As touching the assurance of a perpetuall amytie to stand betwene these two Realmes; as no earhtlie thing in earht is of us mor desyred then such a joyfull connection, so crave we of God, that by his pleasur we may be those instruments by the which this unnaturall debate, which long hath continued betwene us, may ones be composed to the prase of Godd's glory, and to the confort of the faythfull in both Realmes. And yf your Wisdomes can forsee and devise the meanes and assuraunces, how the sam may be brought to pass, persuaid yourselves, not only of our consentes and assistaunce, but also of our constancye (as men may promise), till our lyves end; yea, farther, we will devulgat and set abrode a charge and commandment till our posteritie, that the amytie and league betwene you and us contracted and begun in Christ Jesus may by them be kept inviolated for ever. As for the revolting to Fraunce (which you seam to suspect and fear) we utterly abhor that infidelitie; for now dost that voce of God continuallie sound in our eares, 'Whosoever blasphemeth, or tackest in vane the name of the Eternall, shall not escape vengeance.' Our amytie or league, as it hath another fundation then pactions maid by worldlie men for worldlie proffitt; so do we not doubt but that it shall have another continuance, now we feale rather the heaven then the earht; but yet and yf we should look anything to temporall foundation, yet shulde we never have occasion to returne to Fraunce; for now we begyn to perceave and to feale the burthen of that yoke which in the end shalbe intollerable, and therfor intend we, by Godd's grace, to cast away such instruments (the Papisticall Clergye¹), as by whom this Realme hath bene befor abused. Trew it is, that as yet we have maid no mention of any change in Authoritie, neyther yet hath any such thing entered our hartes, except that extream necessitie compell us thereto. But perceaving that Fraunce, the Quene Regent heir, together with Preastes and Frenchmen, pretend nothing elles but the suppressing of Christ's evangell, the mainteanaunce of idolatrie, the ruyn of us, and the uter subversion of this poor Realme; we ar fully purposed to seak the next remeady, to withstand their tyrannie, in which mater we hartlie and unfanedlie requyr the faythfull counsall and furtherance att the Quenes and Counsalles hands for our assistance. Thus far have we hasarded to mak you participant of our purposes, estate, and request; becaus in the said letters you requyr of the said Mr. Kyrkaldye some farther ground and assurance then his owen wordes and writing, because of the place which you hold, and of the personages with whom that matter must be discour; and yet we doubt not but your Wisdom will so prudently and so closlie handell all thingis, that the adversaryes have no advantage by discovering of things to all men befor just ripnes of the action so requyr. And thus referring farther to the instructions and ¹ These words are added on the margin.

¹ It may be noticed that Knox, in writing, usually transposed the final th to ht; and also ht to th.

Right Wyggon wyth Jure and wyth your clerical power. We are most humble supplicants unto your grace albeit the same thing may seeme to be done, and as occasion hath offered. proude men your grace a perpetuall league betwixt the inhabitants of the said towne and your grace. And yet we your grace saye to the said towne of such a small and lowly stature, yet can not we the professe of Christ Jesus in the name of sublimed weale to be pynned unto your grace, and we your grace were the more compell'd to your grace. And to the said towne of the said towne. We your grace, surprised to enter in battell against the device, against rebellion, and against that sort of men, who were abusing aforesaid us as & princes made us enemies to the friends and the maintenance of strangers, of whom we were loke nothing but the subsidies of the towne weale. If in this battell we shall be victorious (as if we stand in great danger aforesaid by domynionall enemies as by the great preparation which we see to be sent against us by France) we fear that a byn shall be sent to a greater trouble. And therefore we are compelled to state ourselves against such tyranny by all such causes as we may as god shall offer and knowing your grace to your grace surprised the reformation of religion, we wish not to be required and order of your grace, of your grace, subiecty and reason, such support in the said towne danger as may see us to be insupportable, and may delay your grace and complete vengeance to Christ the advancement of Christ Jesus of the said towne and your grace your grace and complete your proude men daily, and reasonably request of us againe for a perpetuall league to stand betwixt the said towne: grace upon the parties whereto donyde, wherfor you (god willing) in any point be violated.
 as at our best we have declared in a true writing to your grace. And we we will.

Right wyth, right Jure and wyth your clerical power we pray almightie god to send your grace in his eternall riches, and to grant you prosperous success in all your goodly and to the glory of his name and to the comfort of all the said towne. Witness our hands the first of the towne of Christ Jesus. From London the 19 of July 1559 -

By your grace my humble and faithful friend

A Roberts, Esq. will
 a l. J. H. H. H.
 James Boncombe
 Wotale Bursar
 Robert Boyd
 Andro Reddill

creditt committed to the messenger.¹ We committ you to the protection of the Omnipotent; requiring farther ansuer with expedition. From Edinburgh, the 19th of July 1559.

By your assured friends,

ARCHBALD ERGYLL.

ALEX^R GLENCARNE.

JAMES SANCTANDREWS.

PATRIK RUTHWEN.

ROBERT BOYD.

ANDRO WCHELTRIE.²

To the right worshipfull Sir William Ceycill knight, cheaf secretarie to the Quenes Majestie. These deliver, etc. etc.

XIII.—LORDS OF THE CONGREGATION TO QUEEN ELIZABETH.³

RIGHT myghty, right high, and ryght excellent Prencess, with our most humell commendations unto your Majestie, Albeit that heirtofor diverss men have wissed, and as occasion hath offered, prudent men have devised a perpetuall amytie betuix the inhabitantis of these our two Realmes; and yit that no good success hath to this day ensewed of such travall and laubouris tacken, yit can not we, the professouris of Christ Jesus in this Realme of Scotland, cease to be suytaris unto your Grace, and unto your Grace's weall advised Counsall, to have eie to this our present estate. We have enterprised to enter in battell against the Devill, against Idolatrie, and against that sort of men, who befor abusing, asweall us as our Princes, maid us ennemies to our freindis and the manteanaris of straungearis, of whome we now look nothing but uter subversion of our common wealht. Yf in this battall we shalbe overthrowen (as that we stand in great daunger, asweall by domesticall ennemies as by the great preparatioun which we hear to be send against us by Fraunce), we fear that our ruyn shalbe but an entress to a greater crueltie. And tharfor we ar compelled to seak remedy against such tyrannye, by all such lauchtfull meanes as God shall offer. And knowing your Grace to have enterprised liek Reformatioun of Religion, we could not cease to requyr and crave of your Grace, of your counsall, subjectis, and realme, such support in this our present daunger, as may till us be comfortable, and may declayr your Grace and counsall unfeanedlie to thrust the advancement of Christ Jesus of his glorius goppell; and whatsoever your Grace and Counsall can prudentlie devise, and reasounably requyr of us agane for a perpetuall amitie to stand betuix the two Realmes; shall, upon our partes, neyther be denyed, neyther yit (God willing) in any point be violated: as at mor lenght we have declared in a letter written to your Majesteis Secretarie Mr. Cicill.

¹ The conclusion of this letter varies from the copy printed in his History, vol. ii. p. 25.

² This letter is, excepting the signatures, in the handwriting of Knox.

³ The original of this letter is also in Knox's handwriting, with the exception of the signatures. See the accompanying facsimile.

Right myghty, right hight and rycht excellent Prencess, we pray Almychty God to have your Grace in his eternall tuition, and to grant you prosperus success in all your godlie proceadingis to the glory of his name, and to the confort of all those which earnestlie thrist the inress of the kingdom of Christ Jesus. From Edinburgh, the 19th of Julij 1559.

By your Grace's most humill and faythfull freindis.

ARC[H]BALD ERGYLL
 ALEX^R. GLENCARNE.
 JAMES SANCTANDREWS.
 PATRIK RUTHWEN. ..
 ROBERT BOYD.
 ANDRO WCHELTRIE.

To the right myghty, ryght high, and right excellent Princess the Quen's Majestie of England.

XIV.—KNOX TO SIR WILLIAM CECILL.

The Spreit of wisdom reull your hart to the glorie of God, and to the confort of his afflicted flock.

ON[E] caus of my present writing is, Ryght Honorabil, humblye to requyr you to deliver this other letter encloseid to the Quen's Grace, quhilk conteineth in few and sempill wourdes my confessioun, what I think of hir Authoritie, how far it is just, and what may make it odius in Goddes presence. I hear thare is a confutation sett furth in prent against 'the First Blast.' God grant that the writar have no mor sought the favouris of the world, no less the glorie of God, and the stable commoditie of his countrey, then did he who interprised in that 'Blast' to uter his conscience. When I shall have tym (which now is dear and straitt unto me), to peruse that work, I will communicat my judgment with you concerning the sam. The tym is now, Sir, that all that eyther thrust Christ Jesus to ring in this yle, the liberte of the sam to be kept to the inhabitantis therof, and thare hartes to be joyned together in love unfeaned, ought rather to study how the sam may be brought to pass, then vainly to travall for the manteauance of that, wharof allready we have sein the daunger, and felt the smart. Yf the most part of Wemen be such as willingly we wold not thei should reing over us; and yf the most godlie, and such es have rare giftes and graces, be yitt mortall, we aught to tak head, least that we in establissing one judged godlie and profitable to hir countrey, mack enteress and titill to many, by whom not only shall the treuth be impugned, but also shall the countrey be brought to bondaige and slavery. God geve unto you, and otheris favorars of your countrey, eis to forsee, and wisdom to avoid the dangeris appearing.

By diverse letters, I have required licence to have veseted the North partes of England; but as yit I have reseaved no favorable ansuer. The longer, Sir, that it be delayed, the less confort shall the faythfull in those quarteris receive, yea, the weaker shall the Quen's Grace be; for yf I war not to hir Grace an assured and unfeaned frende, I wold not so instantlie begg such a libertie, in seaking wharof I suppose you be persuaded that I greatlie seak not my self. The common estaitt of thingis heir, I dowbt not but ye know. Some thingis I have (as oft I have written), which glaidly I wold communicat with you, but am not mynded to committ the sam to paper and ink. Fynd therfor the meanes that I may speak such a one as ye will credit in all thingis. The grace of the Lord Jesus rest with you.

I hartelie beseche you to have my service most humblie commended to the Quen's Grace; and in my name say to hir Grace, that whosoever mackest me odious for my work yit written by me, seaketh somewhat besides the glory of God and her Grace's prosperitie; and therfor cannot the sam man be to hir Grace so unfeaned freind as I have bein, and yit reman. At Edinburgh, in great haist, the 19th¹ of Julij 1559.

Youris to command in godlines,

JOHN KNOX.

After the scribling of thes formar lynes, cam Mr. Whitlaw, of whom, after conference, I understood the materis in which I have laubored ever sence the deathe of King Edward, now to be opened unto you: God grant you and otheris wisdom with humilitie, etc. Immediatlie after Mr. Whitlaw, cam a servand from Sir Hary Percy to Mr. Kyrcauldie, who, departing from us att Edinburgh to speak the said Sir Hary, brought newes, to the hartes of all joyfull whensoever thei shalbe divulgat. It wes thought expedient to communicat the mater onlie with those that ar stroungest, till farther knowledge of the Quens Majesties good mynd towards this action. We dowbt not the good myndis of the holl Congregatioun, which is great, as I dowbt, but by otheris ye will understand; but it is not thought expedient that so wegthy a mater be untymouslie disclosed. Trew and faythfull preacheris in the Northt partes of England, can not but greetlie advaunce this cause. Yf a learned and godlie man myght be appointed to Berwick, with licence also to preache within Scotland, I doubt not to obtean unto him the favouris of the most part of the gentillmen of the East and Mydde Bordearis. Advert one thing, Sir, that yf the hartes of the Borderaris of both partes [can be] united together in Goddis fear, our victorie [then] shalbe easy. The fear of no man, I traist¹ this day, will cause any of those that have professed them selves enemies to superstition within Scotland, [to] lift thare handis against England, so long as it will abyd in the puritie of Christes doctryn. Continuall laboris oppressing me (most unable for the sam), I am compelled to end with imperfection. The spreit of all wisdom reull your hart to the end.—Amen.

¹ The original has it the 12th, but see vol. ii. p. 26.

So much I reverence your judgment, that I will ye first see my letter, or ye deliver it, and therfor I send it open. Read and present it if ye think meat.

To the right worshipfull Sir Williame Cycill knight, cheaf Secretar to the Quen's Majestie.

XV.—KNOX TO QUEEN ELIZABETH.

TO THE VERTUOUS AND GODLIE ELIZABETH, BY THE GRACE OF GOD, QUEN OF ENGLAND, ETC., JOHNE KNOX DESIRETH THE PERPETUALL INCREASE OF THE HOLIE SPIRIT.

As your Grace's displeasure against me, most unjustlie conceived, hath beene, and is to my wretched hart a burthein greivous, and almost intollerabill; so is the testimonie of a ¹ A small portion of the letter in this part is torn out: the words enclosed within brackets may serve to supply the deficiencies.

cleene conscience to me a stay and uphold, that in desperation I sink not, how vehement that ever the temptation appear: for in Goddis presence, my conscience beareth me record, that maliciouslie nor of purpose I never offended your Grace, nor your realme; and, therefore, howsoever I be judged of man, I am assured to be absolved by Him who onelie knoweth the secreates of hartes. I cannot denie the writting of a booke against the usurped Authoritie and unjust Regiment of Women; neyther yit am I mynded to retreat or to call backe anie principall point, or proposition of the sam, till truthe and veritie doe farther appear. Bot why, that eyther your Grace, eyther anie such as unfainedlie favour the libertie of England, sould be offended at the author of suche a worke, I can perceave no just occasioun: For, first, my booke tuichest not your Grace's person in especiall, neyther yit is it prejudiciall to anie libertie of the realme, if the time and my writing be indifferentlie considered. How could I be enemie to your Grace's person, for deliverance quhairof I did more study, and interprised farther, than anie of those that now accuse me? And, as concerning your Regiment, how could I, or can I, envy that which most I have thirsted, and the which (als oblivion will suffer) I render thanks unfainedlie unto God? That is, it hath pleased Him of his eternall goodnes to exalt your head there (who sometime was in danger), to the manifestatioun of his glorie, and extirpatioun of idolatrie? And as for my offense, which I have committed against England, eyther in writting that or anie other worke, I will not refuse, that moderate and indifferent men judge and discern betuixt me and these that accuse me; to witt, whither of the partiis doe most hurt the libertie of England? I that affirme, That no Woman may be exalted above anie realme, to make the libertie of the same thrall to a stranger, proud and cruell nation; or, thai that approve whatsoever pleaseth princes for the time. If I were als weill disposed till accuse, as som of them (till their owne shame) have declared themselves, I nothing doubt, bot that in few words I should lett reasonabill men understand, that som that this day lowlie crouche to your Grace, and laubour to make me odious in your eyes, did, in your adversitie neyther show themselves faithfull friendis to your Grace, neyther yit so loving and carefull of their native contrie, as now they wold be esteemed.

But omitting the accusatioun of others, for my owne purgation and for your Grace's satisfaction I say, that nothing in my booke contained, is, or can be prejudicial to your Grace's just regiment, provided that ye be not found ungrateful unto God : Ungrate yee sall be proved in presence of his throne (howsoever that flatterers justifie your facts), if ye transfer the glorie of that honour in which ye now stand, to anie other thing, than to the dispensation of his mercie, which onlie maketh that truthfull to your Grace, which nature and law denieth to all weomen. Neyther wold I that your Grace shuld feare, that this your humiliation before God should, in anie case, infirme or weaken your just and lawfull authoritie before men. Nay, Madame, such unfained confessioun of God's benefites received, shall be the establishment of the same, not onlie to your self, bot also to your seed and posteritie ; where, contrariewise, a proud conceate and elevation of your self shalbe the occasion that your reigne shalbe unstabill, troublesom, and short.

God is witnesse, that unfainedlie I both love and reverence your Grace ; yea, I pray that your raigne may be long, prosperous, and quiet ; and that for the quietnes which Christ's members, before persecuted, have received under you. Yit if I should flatter your Grace, I were no freind, but a deceaveabill trator ; and, therefore of conscience I am compelled to say, that neyther the consent of people, proces of time, nor multitude of men, can establishe a law which God shall approve. But whatsoever He approveth (by his eternal Word) that shalbe approved, and whatsoever he dampneth, shalbe condempneth, thogh all men on earth wold hazard the justificatioun of the sam. And, therefore, Madame, the onlie way to retaine and keepe these benefites of God, haboundandlie poured now of late dayes upon you, and your realme, is unfainedlie to render unto God his mercie and undeserved grace the holle glorie of this your exaltation. Forget your birth, and all title which thereupon doth hang; and consider deepelie how, for feare of your life, you did decline from God, and bow in idolatrie. Lett it not appeare a small offence in your eyes, that ye have declined frome Christ Jesus in the day of his battall. Neyther yit wold I, that yee should esteeme that mercie to be vulgar and common which yee have receaved; to witt, that God hath covered your former offences, hath preserved you when yee were most unthankfull, and, in the end, hath exalted and raised you up not onlie frome the dust, but also from the ports of death, to rule above his people for the comfort of his Kirk.

It appertaineth to you, therefore, to ground the justnes of your Authoritie, not upon that law which from yeere to yeere doeth change, but upoun the eternall providence of Him, who, contrarie to nature, and without your deserving, hath thus exalted your head. If thus in God's presence yee humble your self, as in my heart I glorifie God for that rest granted to his afflicted flock within England, under you, a weake instrument, so will I with toung and pen justifie your Authoritie and Regiment, as the Holie Ghost hath justified the same in Deborah, that blessed mother in Israel. Bot if, these premisses (as God forbid) neglected, yee shall begin to brag of your birth, and to build your authoritie upoun your owne law, flatter you who so list, your felicitie shalbe short. Interpret my rude words in the best part, as written by him who is no enemie to your Grace.

By diverse letters, I have required licence to visit your Realme, not to seeke my self, neyther yit my owne ease or commoditie; which, if ye now refuse and denie, I must remitt my cause to God; adding this for conclusion, that commonlie it is seene, that such as refuse the counsell of the faithfull (appear it never so sharpe), are compelled to follow the deceate of flatterers, to their owne perdition. The mightie Spirit of the Lord Jesus move your heart to understand what is said, giving unto you the discretioun of spirits, and so rule you in all your actiouns and enterprises, that in you God may be glorified, his Church edified, and yee your self, as a livelie member of the same, may be an exemple and mirrour of vertue, and of godlie life to others. So be it. From Edinburgh, the 20th of Julie 1559.

Your Grace's to command in godlines,

JOHNE KNOX.

To the ryght myghtie, ryght highe, and ryght excellent Princesse Elizabeth, Quen of England.

Be these delivered.

XVI.—SIR WILLIAM CECILL TO THE LORDS OF THE CONGREGATION.

RIGHT HONORABLE and my good Lordes,—The berar herof brought the 26 of this moneth your letter dated the 19 of the same, as well to me a parte, as to my Sovereign the Quenes Majesty. By that wrytten to me, the answer to dyvers questions made by my former letters, uppon the matter moved by Mr. Kyrkaldy, towchyng your causees now in hand, I have not only with myself considered the whole contents of your letter, but also with others, as by there letter shall appere, whose estate the berar hereof can best report unto your Lordships. And now for replication to your common letter, I must nedes confess uppon the consideration of the same, the ij principall poynts intended by your procedings be such as all good Christien men ought to allow: first to abandon Idolatry, next to maynteane the liberty of your natyve Contrey from thralldome of strangers. But lyke as the ende herof be symply good of themselves, so yet the meanes thereto be divers, and thereby may arrise dyversitie of opinions : for the difference of the case is to consider, who they be that labor on this, whyther it be the office of all sortes of men this to doo, or but some ? and if it be of all sortes, then is the question ended ; if it be but belonging to some, then to whom it belongeth, and to whom not. Theis thyngs I move rather to be wayed and considered by yow then by the same to make any determination ageynst your doings. Trew it is, nothyng can be more joyefull to us that have, by creattyng our Sovereign Lady to this kyngdom, abandoned Idolatry, and brought our Salvior Christ Jesus into this kyngdom, than that the same blessing may come to yow ; and thereby this terrestriall kyngdom of Christ may be dilated through this noble Ile, and so the old great ennemyes of the trew Church of God may be kept out, and put to confusion. And lykewise to speke of the other erthly tryumph of a nationall liberty, we have such cause indede to rejoyse that we be delyvered frely from the power of strangers, and be ruled by our naturall prince, and under hir by all naturall governors and magistrats, that of all erthly joyes we knowe there is none lyke to it. And thereby may we measure in what dolor and greiff, in what affliction and calamytie, that your nation hath long lyved ; to what dangers, warres, and battells, ye have hertofore bene brought by there ambition, and if God provide not some remedy yow shall perpetually here after lyve in the same danger, untill that noble and ancient Nation shalbe by them spent and wythered. We here see how theis miseryes have afflicted yow, we see how desirouse ye bee to provide remedy therefore, we see how godly a dede it is to succor yow ; we perceave also what wayes ye take therefore, partly ye attempt some thyngs yourself, partly ye requyre some promiss of ayde ; but whyther ye doo in dede take that waye that should both sonest and suerliest leade yow therto, it may be, as it is, much dowted. Ye knowe your chief adversaryes, I meane the Popish kirkmen, be noted wise in there generation ; they be rich also wherby they make many frends. By there witt with false perswasions, by there rychess with corruption, as long as they fele no sharpeness nor offence they be bold ; but if they be once touched with feare, they be the gretest cowards. In our first Reformation here, in King Henry the vijth tyme, although in some poynts there was oversight for the helpe of the ministry and the poore, yet if the Prelacye had bene left in there pompe and welth, the victory had bene thers. I lyke no spoyle, but I allow to have good thyngs putt to good uses, as to the enrichyng of the Crowne, to the helpe of the youth of the nobilite, to the mayntenance of ministry in the Chirch, of lerning in scooles, and to releve the poore membres of Christ, being in body and lymmes impoverist. Herin I knowe of no better example in any reformed state than I have hard to be in Denmark. But your Lordships may saye, there is nowe no season to treate of this, the present tyme requyreth defence of yourselves. True it is, and this that I mentioned not impertynent therto, and to me the more marvell that ye omitt also such opportunitie to helpe yourselves. Will ye heare of a strange army comming by seas to invade yow, and seke helpe ageynst the same, and yet permitt your adversaries, who ye may expell, kepe the landyng, and strength for the others? Which of those ij is the easiest, to weaken one nomber first, or iij afterward? Suerly what moveth this to be forbore, I knowe not ; but what hurt, yea what perill shall come thereof is evident. How many of your flock in that realme lacke yow to show them selves redy to come to the fould, whylest these wolves lye gaping ageynst them? What will be the end, when the begynninge be these? Will they favor yow in Scotland, that burne there owne dayly in France? What may the Duke's Grace there look for, when his eldest sonne¹ was so persecuted, as, to save his liffe, he was forced to flee France, and go to Geneva, not without great difficultie; his second brother, the Lord David, now cruelly empresoned by Monsieur Chevignye, one chosen out to shew cruelty to your nation; dyverse others of the Erle's family putt to torture; and fynally, all the Duchy of Chastellheraltt seased to the Crowne; and to shew yow there purposed tragedy, the yong Quene so feareth, so threatneth, so voweth to destroy all the House of Hamiltons, as it is beyond all mervell to see your old Regent there can enchant the Duke's eares to here nothyng hereof: God open his hart according to his knowledge. He maketh a slender account to see his sonnes, one dryven away, the other empresoned in France, and yet to be abused to serve, as I think, ageynst his conscience, in the end to be the slawghter man of his owne famylye. It is to manifest why the Quene, in the end, wilbe more cruell ageynst his famylye notwithstanding this, his presence than ageynst yow presently. Well, my Lords, and yet this is the determynation had in there counsell first devised by the Cardinal of Lorreyne, that the taking away of iiij heades therof shall gett the matter; your purposes being souch as they be pretended, if yow think us here not utterly voyde of zeale to God, and wyll towards both our weales, this I answer, wee cannot but favor them, and nether neglect them nor see them quayle. Nevertheless, the difficulties of the tyme herein be such, as I can not so well answer yow at this instant, as hereafter, uppon furder understanding of your procedinge, I shall have better occasion. Ye knowe how late the warres have cessed betwixt this realme and that, in what termes we stand by treaty with France. What a matter of weight it is to enter into warr either not provoked, or not forseene, so many thyngs therbe to be herin (and specially by this counsell) considered as can not be conveniently wrytten nor soddenly determyned, and therefore have I imparted to this berar sondry thyngs to be declared to your Lordships, which being well resolved uppon, maye bryng furth some fruit to the glory of God, and the weale of both these Realmes. God send yow the strengthe of his spirite, not to faynte in the cause of his gospel, and to mayntene concord amongst yourselves, good, expert, trusty, and paycefull Counsellors, and increase of such noblemen to your number, as, by the authorite and fame of there names to be published abroad, your doings maye beare the unyversall name of the great Counsell of Scotland, for lack whereof your adversaries maye rejoyse, and your frends rest perplexed. Such is the valor and opinion of authoritie, and such hath bene not onely in France but in other Realmes, the laudable reformation of the commonweales almost ruynated by insolency of Governors. The bryngar herof I lyke so well for his fidelitie, as I have committed furder creditt to hym.

¹ James Earl of Arran.

Copy of my letter to the Erles of Argyle, Glencarne, Lord Priour St. Andrews, Lords Boyde, Vcheltrey.¹

XVII.—SIR WILLIAM CECILL TO KNOX.

MAISTER KNOX,—*Non est masculus neque foemina: omnes enim, ut ait Paulus, unum sumus in Christo Jesu. Benedictus vir qui confidit in Domino: et erit Dominus fiducia ejus.*²

I have resavit your letteris, at the same tyme that I have thocht to have sein your self about Stamford.³ What is now hitherto the caus of your lett, I know not. I forbear to descend to the bottome of thingis, untill I may conferr with such a one as you ar; and, thairfoire, if your chance shalbe heir-etter to cum hither, I wishe you furnished with good credite, and power to mak good resolutioun. Althocht my answer to the Lordis of Congregatioun⁴ be some whatt obscure, yitt, upoun farther understanding, ye sall find the matter plaine. I neid wishe to you no more prudence then Goddis grace, whairof God

¹ 28 July 1559. The above copy is in Cecill's own autograph, with numerous corrections and erasures.

² That is, "There is neither male nor female, for as saith Paul, they are all one in Christ Jesus." (Gal. iii. 28.)

"Blessed is the man who trusteth in the Lord: and the Lord will be his confidence."

³ See Knox's explanation, vol. ii. p. 32.

⁴ In the previous letter, No. xvi.; see also vol. ii. p. 35.

send you plentie. And so I end. From Oxfoord, the 28th of Julij 1559.

Youris, as ane member of the same body in Christ,

W. CECILL.

XVIII.—INSTRUCTIONS TO JOHN KNOX.

The penult of Julij 1559.

1. WE geve you commission to speak and propose these Heades subsequence:—

In primis, To declayr to thame to whom ye ar direct, that this league is other then heirtfoir hath bein contracted or commoned upon betuix the two Realmes.

2. To declayr the number of the Nobilitie and of the Tounes that requyr brotherlie concord with thame, and what ordour is tacken for consultatioun and determinations of maters.

3. That the league which we desyr is onlie yit proponed to the Prevy Counsall, which consisteth of a certan of the Nobilitie, but is much desyred of the hole Barrons, who partlie accuse the Counsall of negligence in that thei have so long delayed to seak support.

4. To declayr that the Duk and Erle of Huntlie have by X thare honours and fayth promessed to concurr and assist with us, in case that the Quene Regent do break any joit of this last APPOINTMENT, the heades whair of yee can declayr.

5. To requyr such support as may to us be comfortable, and X may impead the interprise of the ennemye, and that to be in such readines upon the Bordouris, that upon advertisement, or upon the sight of our enemies, thei may be able to joyn with us without long delay.

6. To requyr that the Quenes Majestie and her counsall will X laubour to dress our borderaris to our effect, and especially the Homes and the Kerris.

7. To say that of necessitie we judge it that the fort of Hay× mouht be incontinent after the sight of the French army tacken and kept by thame; for ellis that we ar assuredlie informed, that the ennemye purposeht to occupye it, and what incommodatie that shalbe ther wisdom may easilie consider.

8. Farther, that Stirvinling is a key and principall place which may devyd and cutt a sounder the Norht from the Souht,¹ and therfor yf money can be furnished to sustean a garrison thare, that we will interprise the tacken of it.

9. To declayr that som strenht most be maid by sea for the saiftie of Dondie and Sanct Johnstoun, and therfor that Broghty and the fort wold be tacken and fortified, which now wilbe easy to do, by reasson of the favour and concurrence of the hole countrie.

10. To assure thame in our names that we and our posteritie shall bynd us to be ennemyes to thare ennemeis, and freindis to thare freindis, yf that thei and we do now thoughtlie aggrie in this league proponed, that we shall never contract with Fraunce, nor appoint nor yit aggrie with tham without thare counsall, consent, and full mynd, and the sam requyr ye of thame in our names, to witt, that so we may be united in one body, that neather of both have power to do any thing, in eyther macking war or in contracting peace, without the consent of the other.

11. To declayr that the league we requyr for two causes: × formar, That the glory of God, the trew preaching of Christ Jesus, with the rycht ministratioun of his Sacramentis, may be universallie and openlie manteaned in this Yle, and that the tyrannye and superstition of that Romane Antichrist may be uterlie suppressed and abolissed in the same. Secundarlie, That the liberties, lawes, and priviledges of both these Realmes may remane inviolated by any straunge or foren power; and therfor promess you in our names, that neyther we will by our selves invaid thare Realme, albeit to the sam we be provoked by France, neyther yit will we suffer any other to molest thame, in so far as we be able to resist; and the same we will that ye requyr of thame in all our names.

¹ See note supra, p. 41.

[KNOX TO SIR JAMES CROFT.]

THESE formar Artickles war gevin unto me with commission and power to amplifye and explane the sam yf any obscuritie appeared.

The Fifth artickle tuiching the comfortable support, I was commanded thus to explane, that [not] onlie must the Quenes Grace, and hir Majesties honorable Counsall, have respect that souldiouris most be laid on garnisoun among us, and that men and schippes most be in competent readines, yf we be ssaulted, but that also some respect must be had to some of the Nobilitie who ar not able to sustean such housholds as now in the begynning of these trubles ar requisite; for the practisses of the Quene Regent, is to sture up ennemeis against every nobill man, particularlie evn in the partes where hir remaneht.

Farther, I had commission to speak Sir Hary Percie tuiching the entress of my lord Merchel, that yf his father the Erle Merchel wold plainly assist us, that then by consent of the said Sir Hary, his entress myght be prolonged upon the Lordis farther requeast.

Last, that licence may be granted and provision be maid that horses may be sold unto us for reasonable prices.

These ar the cheafe Headis which war commanded unto me to be communicated with you and with Sir Hary Percie, which I committ now hollie to your wisdom, desiring not onlie that ye signifye the sam unto the Quenis Majestie, or unto such of hir Graces counsall as ye think expedient, but also that ye mak the said Sir Hary participant of the hole, and be diligent for Chrystis saik.

The Spreit of wisdom rest with you now and ever.

(Not signed.)

Superfluus I thought to write anything to Mr. Secretary Cycill, considdering that I have opened the hole case to you. Ye will especially remember those heades that be noted with this sing X, and requyr ansuer with diligence. This other ticket ye please to send to Sir Hary Percy for my discharge; and these letteres directed to Maistres Bowes, I besech you deliver to Mr. George her sone, to be send unto hir, for I know sche longeht for knowledge of my estaite: their ar dated att Sanct Andrewes, from whens ye may alledge ye have received them amongis otheris.

Thus yet I desier your felicitie in Christ Jesus.¹

XIX.—KNOX TO SIR HENRY PERCY.

AFTER harty commendations, albeit my desyr was vehement to have spoken yow att this present, asweall for farther acquentaunce as for discharge of my deuty and commission (for unto you was I no less directed than to Sir James Croftes), yit becaus of the schortnes of tym limited unto me, and because of the uncertaintie of your present residence, I was compelled to return without the confort of your presence. The whole mater I have left in Articles with the said Sir James, not dowbting but the sam hie will communicatt with you, beseching you hartlie to do possible diligence, that answer may be had with expeditioun. Mr. Kyrkaldye doht hartlie salut you. The grace of the Lord Jesus rest with you. From Holy Yland, the second of August 1559, att nycht, in great haist.

Youris to his power in godlines,

JOHN KNOX.

Postscriptum.—Commandement was geven unto me, by the Lordes Protestantes, to requyr of yow such favouris that the ¹ Not signed, nor is the address preserved, but both this and the above Articles or Instructions (pp. 56-58) are in Knox's hand.

entress of the Lord Marischal, youre preasoner, may be prolonged, in case thay write unto you for the sam; for yf his father can be maid assured, upon thare part the presence of the young man wilbe comfortable unto thame instantlie; for we ar assured that this Appointment will not stand, for the Queen Regent hath already broken it, and therfor we can be no longar bound than we be able to mack our party good upon the feildis. It will please you, Sir, to signifye eyther to me, eyther to Mr. Kyrkcaldye, your pleasure in this case, for the Lordis will not write except thai be assured of your favouris and good will.

Rest in Christ Jesus.

To the worshipfull Sir Hary Percy knyght, Warden Deputy of the marches of England.

Deliver this in haist.

XX.—SIR HENRY PERCY TO CECILL.

AFTER most humble and harty commendatiouns, ye shall understand, that since my departure from Norham, ther hathe arryved at the Holy Island Mr. Knoxe, in suche unsecreat sort, that it is openlie knowen bothe unto England and Scotland; wherfore I think he hathe not discreatlie used his comminge, for the Dowager of Scotland hathe soe burthened me, bothe by letters to my Lord of Northumberland, as by message yesterdaie with the Lord Bothewell and Sir James Magill, that I should have conference with the Priour of St. Andrewes, and the residue of the Congregatioun; wherfor this thinge woll cause me to be the more mistrusted, but for the profe therof, I am assured she is able to mak by anie meanes. The contentes of Mr. Knoxe comminge, Sir James Crofts hathe declared unto me, that he hathe certified unto you the hole effect of his commissioun; and receiving a letter from Mr. Knoxe, I have thought good to send it unto you, to th' end youe maie see and understand all ther hole doinge to me in this weightie matter. Also

I receyved another from the L. P.¹ concerninge newis that Sir James willed me to certifie; and more over, I willed the L. P. to use a cipher that I sent him, which ye may perceive as well by his ticket as by Mr. Knox letter. . . . And thus I leave to trouble you anie further, wishing the daly encrease of your howse. Frome Barwicke, the fourthe of Awguste 1559.

Your most humblie at commaundment,

HENRY PERCY.

To the Right Honorable Sir William Cecill knight, Secretarie to the Quenes Maiestie, etc.

XXI.—THE PRIOR OF ST. ANDREWS² TO PERCY.³

TRUST Friend, we resavit your writting with maist harty charity, and sal do heirefter conforme to the samyn, God willing: forthir, the man you desyritt suld cum and speik you, sal, gif it pleis God to grant the oportunitie, cum in be the West bordour, and meit with you in Alnwyck or Neucastyl, within the space of viij or x days; quhair unto refferis al other thingis, commending you in the meyn tym to the protectioun of God, be your awin at uttermost. We also resavit your cyfre, and sal use the samyn accordingly.

(Not signed.)

XXII.—SIR JAMES CROFT TO CECILL.⁴

WHITLAW cam hither yesterday, who the same night departed with Master Knox in to Scotland. Hit semeth that you

¹ The Lord Prior (of St. Andrews), Lord James Stewart.

² Lord James Stewart, afterwards Earl of Murray.

³ This and the following note were enclosed in Sir Henry Percy's previous letter.

⁴ In cipher, and interlined.

looked to speke with Knox, who sayeth that in no wyse he can be long from his flocke; and, besydes, he is not hym self mete to treat of so greate matters, but thinks rather to devise that Master Henry Balneves, or some other wyse man, may be sent to you. Hit is now then tyme to determine what to do, for I see greate perill to both the Realmes by wasting of tyme.

And thus I commyte ye to God. At Berwicke, the iijth of Auguste 1559.

Youris to commaunde,

JAMES CROFT.

XXIII.—LORDS OF THE CONGREGATION TO SIR J. CROFT.

WITH our hartly commandations, we have understand by our last messenger, as weall the good mynde of our freinds as the things which offende theame. We have great cause to magnifie God, for that he bowest the hartes of men to treuht, equitye, and justice, with God for witness, we or he meanes; but that we ar judges slowe, negligent, and cold in our proceadings, we ar sory that any man should have that opinion of us, especiallie those whom we most especiallie favour. Ye are not ignorant, Sir, how difficil it is to persuade a multitude to the revolt of an Authoritie established. The last tym that we war persewed, our enemies war in number thrise more then we; besides that, the Castell of Edinburgh declared thei self plaine enemy to us att our utermost necessitie, which was our cause of disappointment. God grant our freinds no less fervencye in this common action then yet hath appeared amonge us. Our suriht substance and nomber being considerred, we meane nothing but plaine simplicitie and a brotherlie connection, without long delay, for we haite all doublnes; and for farther answer to their letters receaved, we have appointed a Convention at Glasgow, whare all things shalbe resolved mor fullie, and ye tharof certified. We have received your commendations from our last messenger, and understand by him your good and fervent mynd, in the which we farther desyr you to continew to the advancement of Godd's glory, and to the confort of both the Realmes. From Styrlinge, the 6th of August 1559.

By youre good friends,

AR^D. ERGYLL.

JAMES SANCTANDREWS.

To the worshipfull Sir James Croft knight, Captain to the Quenes Majesties Town and Castell of Barwick.

Deliver these.

XXIV.—KNOX TO SIR JAMES CROFT.

AFTER my most hartly commendations, we arrived saiffye (albeit not without som daunger, for our brother, Alexander Whytelaw,¹ was chased thre myles) with the Lordis, to witt with two; and becaus of the absence of the rest a Convention is appointed att Glaskew, to begin this 10 of August, in which shall all thingis be proponed, and to our knowledge determined upon, wherof the certaintie shalbe signifeid unto you with expedition. I must signyfye unto you, that onles the Counsall be mor forward in this common actioun, ye will uterlie discourage the hartes of all heir, for thei can not abyd the crym of suspition: thei will not trifill; but yf thei can not have present support of thame, thei will seak the next remeady (not that I mean that ever thei intend to return to Fraunce) to preserve thare owen bodies, whatsoever becum of the country, which our enemies may easelie occupye; and when thei have so done, mack your accompt what may ensew towardis yourself. I thank the gentillman hartlie of his benevolence tuiching his horses, wharof ye shall deliver him one againe, and the other I shall send with the nixt messenger, and thus I hartlie committ you to the protectioun of the Omnipotent. From Styrveling,¹ this 6 of August 1559, in great haist.

¹ In the letter only the initials "A. W." See vol. ii. p. 31, footnote 3.

By youris to his power in godlines,

JOHN KNOX.

To the right wyrshipfull Sir James Croftis knyght, Captain of the Quenis Majesties Town and Castell of Berwick.

Be these delivered.

XXV.—QUEEN ELIZABETH TO SIR RALPH SADLER.

ELIZABETH R.

TRUSTY and welbeloved, We grete you well. Lyke as we have uppon greate trust conceaved in you, conferred for certen speciall service to be doone by you uppon our frontiers towards Scotlande, so doo we authorise you to conferr, treat, or practise, with any maner of person of Scotland, ether in Scotland or England, for those purposees, and for the furdurance of our service, and of any other thyng that may tend to make a perpetuall concord betwixt the nation of Scotland and ours.

We doo also authorise you to reward any manner of person of Scotland, with such somes of mony as ye shall thynk mete to be taken of the some of three thousand pounds, which we have ordred shuld be delyvered unto you in gold. Wherin such discretion and secrecy is to be used, as no parte of your doings maye empayre the treatyes of peace lately concluded betwixt us and Scotland. And for enlargement of our furdur meaning in this, we referr you to consider a memoryall of certen articles to be delyvered to you by our Secretary; whereunto ye shall not nede to have furder respect than the oportunitie of the tyme will requyre.

¹ Styrveling, Striviling, or Stirling.

Gyven under Our signett the 8th of August, at Nonsuch, 1559, the first yere of our reigne.¹

To our trustie and welbeloved Sir Rafe Sadleyr knight.

XXVI.—LORDS OF THE CONGREGATION TO CECILL.

YOURE answer, rycht Wirschipfull, to our lettres and creditt said send by our messenger, Master Whitlaw, received, Strivling the 5th of August, is not so full or so plene in all things as our expectatioun war; for we of mean simplicities referring to your wisdomes thane the meanes quhair by those two Realmes mycht assuridlie heir after be joynd in perpetual amitie, looked to have recaived some especiall heades from you whiche eyther by us should have bein granted, and a man with full creditt send to you for confirmatioun of the samyn, or elles should have bein ansuerred with lyk simplicities as before we did wryte; bot the cheaf part of your letter, consisting in geiving us counsall (good and fruitfull, we grant, bot unpossible unto us now to be performed), and in schawing to us dangerous already forsein, we wer in doubt what farther till ansuer then befor wer wryettin, only we thought good breiffie to tuich the cheaf pointis of your lettre: and first, as tuiching the doubt quhich ye seame to mak, whither that this Reformatioun by us pretended and begoun apperteineth to all men within this realme, or to ane part thair of. Our consciences ar assuredlie persuaded that it doht not only appartein to us, being a part of the nobilite and counsall of this realme, to provyd to our powere that the antient liberties of the same may remain fre from the tyranny of strayngaris, bot also to suppres and abolische (so far furth as God sall assist us) all manifest idolatre and meinteinans of the samyn. In doing whairof, albeit pouer hayth failed, yit ye have lacked no good, how soevir that our procedingis be judged by those who have not sein our doinges. The confort and joy of you, now rouled by your naturall goodnes, doth no less confort us then doth our greaf, who suffer the burden of strayngeris, displease our selves, and as we wishe your felicitie to be perpetuall, so hoped we to have receaved of you such ayde as ones myght have sett us at the sam libertie. We are not ignorant that our enemies, the Popish kirkmen, ar crafty, rich, malicious, and blood-thirsty, and most glaidlie wold have thare rictes otherweis bestowed; but consider, Sir, that we have against us the established authoritie, which did evir favour you and Denmark both, in all your reformatiouns; and thairfor, that without support we can not bring thame to suche obedience as we desyr. The danger eminent by that army prepared against us in France, moved us first to seak your support, and efter to send our other messinger, Maister Knox, with fullar instructions to Sir James Croftes, which we suppose ye have receaved; whairof we desyr with possible expedition your plaine myndes and full ansuer, that we upoun the samyn may ether prepair ourselves to pyne with you for our commoun defence, or elles so provyed for some other meanes to allow the present inconvenience; becaus we neyther judge you voyd of zeal to God, neyther yit of good will towardes both our one weaknes, we certainly look for your comfortable support, when danger that ever shall appear by us entering in warr with France. We have tempted the Duke¹ by all meanes possible, but as yit of him have no certaintie, other then ane generall promise that he will not be our enemy, when that the mater shall cum to the uttermost. We cease not to provok all men to favour our cause, and of our Nobilite we have established ane Counsall; but suddanlie to discharge this authorite till that ye and we be fully accorded, it is not thought heir expedient. We hartlie desyr that the Counsall use with us playnes and simplicite in all thingis, and the sam, togyther with suich constance as flesh may promise, we hoip in God ye shall find in us, for our interpreses be suich that we think that thai aucht justlie to delyver us from all suspitioun of any doubilness, without farther pledge to be requyrit for performance of our promise. We thoct not good to troubill the Quenes Majestie with our other lettres, becaus of our former we have received no ansuer. Thus not molested you with longer witting, we bid you hartie weal to faire in the Lord. From Glasgow, the xiiij of Auguste 1559.

¹ The handwriting is Cecill's: It contains Sir Ralph Sadler's private powers.

9h. 55

¹ " Tempted the Duke," tried the Duke of Chastelherault.

Your loofing and assured freindis, in the name of the rest,

AR^P. ERGILL.

JAMES SANCTANDREWES.

To the ryght Worshipfull Sir William Cicill, cheaf Secretarie to the Quenes Majestie.

XXVII.—KNOX TO SIR WILLIAM CECILL.

DOWBLE impediment I had, ryght Wirshipfull, that I did not vesitt yow according to your expectatioun. Formar, no signification of your mynd and pleasour was maid unto me in that behalf, for only did Sir Hary Percie will me to com and speak him, which convenientlie att that tym I could not do, be reason the Frenche men (which wes the Second and cheaf caus of my stay) did then most furiuslie persew us whill our companye (the only Lordes, and thair quiet housholdis excepted) was dispersed. And then durst I not be absent for diverss inconvenientis; neather did I think my presence with you greatlie necessary, considerding that the mater which long I had thrusted, was opened and proponed by those after whom it becometh me not to speak. To whom wold God ye had send an answer mor plane and mor especial; for, albeit that Mr. Whitlaw, in his creditt, Mr. Kyrkcaldy, by his letter, and I, asweall by your letter as by that which I had learned of Sir James Croftis, did declayr and affirm your good myndis towardis tham and thare support; yit could not som of the Counsall (those I mean of greatest experience) be otherwiess persuaded, but that this alteratioun in Fraunce had altered your formar purpos; becaus the favour which we thrie do bear to England is not unknown to our country men, we hartlie desyr of you, that your favouris and good myndis may rather appear to the Counsall by your owen writeingis than by any creditt committed till any of us.

The case of these gentlemen standest thus: That onles without delay money be furnessed to pay thare soldartis (who in number ar now but 500) for thare service bipast, and to retean an other thousand footmen, with thre hundreht horsmen for a tym, thei wilbe compelled every man to seek the nixt way for his owen saiftie. I am assured (as flesche may be of flesche) that som of thame will tack a verrey hard lief, befor that ever thei compon, eyther with the Queen Regent, eyther yit with Fraunce. But this I dar not promess of all, onless in you thei see greater forwardnes to thare support. To ayde us so liberallie as we requyr, to som of you will appear excessive, and to displease Fraunce, to many will appear daungerus. But, Sir, I hope that ye consider that our destructioun war your greatest loss, and that when Fraunce shalbe our full maisteris (which God avert), thei wilbe but slender freindis to you. I hard Bouttencourt¹ brag in his creditt, after he had delivered his manassing letteris to the Priour, that the King and his Counsall wold spend the Croun of Fraunce, onles thei had our full obedience: I am assured, that onles thei had a farther respect, thei wold not buy our povertie att that price. Thei laubour to corrupt som of our great men by money, (and som of our number ar so poore, as before I wraite, that without support thei can not serve); some thei threaten, and against otheris thei have rased up a party in thare owen cuntry. In this mean tyme, yf ye ly as neutralles, what wilbe the end ye maye asily conjecture. Som of the counsall, immediatlie after the sight of your letters, departed, not weell appeased. The Erle of Argyle is gon to his countrey for putting ordour to the sam, and myndeht schortlie to return with his forse, yf assurance be had of your support. And liekwyss will the gentilmen in these lowe partes putt tham selves in readines to interprise the utermost, yf ye will assist with thame; and therfor, in the bowellis of Christ Jesus, I requyr you, Sir, to mak plane answer what thei may lippen¹ to, and att what tyme there support shalbe in readines (how daungerus is in the drift of tyme, in such materis, ye ar not ignorant). It was much mervaled that the Quens Majestie wraite no maner of ansuer, considdering that hir Graces father² (the most noble and most redowbeted of his tyme) disdayned not, lovingly to write to men fewar in number, and far inferiour in authoritie and power, then be these that wraite to hir Grace. Ansuer was maid, that hir Father being established of long tyme in authoritie, being also feared, loved, and fullie obeyed of his subjectis and consall, myght suddanlie have done many thingis daungerus to hir Grace to interprise. And this did satisfye som, but not all. It is thought verrey necessare that ye confort the Maister of Maxwell with your favorable writeingis, for his assistaunce may greatlie promot this cause. Most humblie desiring you faythfullie to trawall that Christ Jesus by his word may assuredlie conjoin the ¹ "May lippen to," may trust.

¹ The Sieur de Bettancourt had recently arrived as Ambassador from the French Court.

² "Grace's Father." Mr. Tytler thinks that Knox here "evidently alludes to the correspondence of Henry the Eighth with the murderers of the Cardinal Beaton."

hartes of those whom Sathan long hath dissevered, I unfeanedlie committ you to the protectioun of the Omnipotent. From Sanctandrews, the 15 of August 1559.

Youris to command in godlines,

JOHN KNOX.

Haist ansuer of the former Articles, for we have great need of confort att this present. Yf ye lose hartes of those that be heir, ye may perchaunce after feal that now ye fear not. Labour (yf ye think expedient) my licence to preache; fear Duresme nocht, and by that meanes ye shall know mor of my mynd. Grace be with you ever.

This other lettre is to be send to the gentilman from whom we receave advertismentis out of Fraunce; the ambassadour knoweht him.

To the right wirshipfull Sir William Cicell knyght, cheaf Secretarie to the Quenes Majestie, be thes delivered in hast.

XXVIII.—SIR JAMES CROFT TO KNOX.¹

I HAVE recyved your lettres, with others addressed to Mr. Cecil, which I have depeched unto him. Assone as any answer of the same shalbe retourned, you shall understonde it. And forasmoche as before tharryvall of your messenger here, I understode that Sir Rafe Sadler was specially directed hither from the courte for these affayres, I thought good to stay your saide messenger untill his arryvall; for that I thought to have som good matier whereof to advertise you. And now the saide Sir Rafe is here presently, who, and I also, wolde be glad to have som conference eyther with Mr. Henry Balnaves, or som other discrete and trusty man, for the better expedicion of this grete and weightie busyness which you have in hande; wheruppon you shall understonde how moche your cause is tendered, and also, I trust, receyve such comforte as shalbe to your good contentacion. And if Mr. Balnaves, or whosoever shall com, it shalbe best that he com by sea to Holy Ilande, there to remaine quyetyly with Capitayn Rede, till I may be advertised of his arryvall there, and thereuppon I shall take order for his conveyance hither, in suche secret maner as the case doth requyre.¹

¹ The handwriting is Sir Ralph Sadler's.

August 20th, 1559.

XXIX.—SIR RALPH SADLER AND SIR JAMES CROFT TO CECILL.

IT may like you to understonde, that upon th' arryvall here of me, Sir Rafe Sadler, we have conferred together upon this secrete affayree, which it hathe pleased the Quenes Majestie to committe unto us; and considering the state and perplexitie therof, albeit we cannot judge what is to be hoped for certenty at their hands whom we have to do withall,² yet we thinke it good polycie, that if they may be by any meanes encouraged and comforted to folowe their enterprises, the same be not neglected on our parts. And therefore, thinking it not amisse

¹ The Editor of Sadler's State Papers says: The first copy was worded as follows, but is now crossed out—"To be addressed hither by see to Holy Island, from the Lords, with som instructions from the Lords of the Congregation of their mynds, and intents, how they intende to procedde, with whom we may conferre what is to be don in this greate and weightie busyness, which they have in hande, wheruppon they shall understonde by the said Sir Rafe and me, how earnestly this Quenes Majestie, my saide Sovereign, doth tender their cause, and also shall receyve such comforte at her hands, as thereby they shall well perceyve that she doth no lesse tender their cause then they themselves do, and woll do as moche for the furtheraunce of the same godly action as she well may with her honour, and as the equitye of their cause requireth."

² At the hands of the Scottish nobles associated for the cause of religion, known as the Lords of the Congregation.

that they might understonde of th' arryvall of me, the saide Sir Rafe: Forasmoch as at my commyng hither here was a secret messenger sent from Knox, I, Sir James Crofts, have by him signefied the same by my lettres unto the said Knox, wishing that Mr. Henry Balnaves, or some other discrete and trustie man, might repayre in such secret maner, and to such a place, as I have apoynted here, to th' intent we might conferre with him touching their affayrees, supposing that shortly we shall receyve som answer in that parte, wherof we shall advertise you with such spede as the case shall require.

And uppon further consideracion of this matier, it semeth unto us, that nothing might more advaunce the same then the presence of th' Erle of Arrayn, in Scotland, who shoulde have more estymacion there then his father,¹ and shoulde be well hable to take the matier in hande, if his father wolde refuse; wherefore it were no evill polycie to haste him thither. For albeit the Duke hath withdrawen himself from the Regent's partie, yet is he not so fully inclyned to thothers devocion as they desire; albeit they have good hope of the same.

It seemeth they make litle or none accompt of the French power which is looked for out of France, wishing that the same shoulde rather com then not; for, as the number can not be greate, so thinke they, that the same shoulde so stirre and irritate the herts of all Scottish men, as they wolde holly and firmly adhere and sticke together, wherby their power shoulde so increase, as they shoulde be well able both to expell the French out of Scotlande, and also the better achieve the rest of their hole purpose. In which case, as I, Sir James Crofts, understonde by Knox, they woll require ayde of the Quenes Majestie, for th' enterteynement and waggis of xv^o (1500) arquebusiers, and iij^o (300) horseman, which, if they may have, then

¹ "The feeble and vacillating disposition of the Duke of Chatelherault, of which he showed so many instances when governor, had rendered him contemptible, in spite of his high rank and relation to the Crown."—(Note by Sir Walter Scott.)

Fraunce (as Knox sayeth) shall sone understonde theyre mynds. And if any such ayde shalbe required, albeit we thinke it not good, we intende not to answer them, so as they shalbe without hope thereof, yet wolde we be glad to understonde the Quenes Majestie's pleasure in that parte, wishing, if it may be loked for, that any good effect shall folow, that her Majestie shoulde not, for the spending of a grete dele more then the charge of their demande amounteth unto, pretermite such an oportunte.

And to say our poure mynds unto you, we see not but her Highnes must be at some charge with them, for of bare words onely, though they may be comfortable, yet can they receyve no comforte. The bestowing of ij or iij^m (2000 or 3000) crownes to relieve them, which have susteyned grete losses, and spent, as we understonde, in maner all they had in this matier, now to incourage them to do somewhat, and if the same be well spent, a grete dele more cannot but be well employed; and if such effect do not follow thereof as we desire, her highness must accompte that she hathe cast so moche into the see, the losse whereof may be easily born and recovered; and eyther must her Majesty adventure the losse of money amongst them, or ells leave them to themselves, for we see not that the meane can serve the turne in this parte.

Thus be we bolde to expresse our poure mynds, as men desirous to do our dueties in thys service, which we shall attende to thuttermost of our witts and power: beseeching you to let us be often advertised and instructed from tyme to tyme, of the Quenes Majesties pleasure. And that we may also understonde, as the case shall require, of such advertisements as ye shall have out of Fraunce, from tyme to tyme, wherupon we may the better direct and frame our doings here in this service.

August 20th, Anno 1559.

XXX.—KNOX TO SIR JAMES CROFT.

IMMEDIATELIE upon the receipt of your lettres, right Wirshipfull, I dispeched on[e] to the Lordis from whom I doubt not ye shall receive ansuer according to your desyr with convenient expedition. The Quen Regent heir, as befor I have written unto you, is mervalus busy in assembling all that sche can. Sche hath addressed ordinaunce and other munition to Styrvelling. Sche hath corrupted (as is suspected) the Lord Erskyn, Capitane of the Castell of Edinburgh, and hopest to receive it; but that will not so much hurt us as our ennemies supposes, yf all other thingis be prudentlie forsein. Sche breatheht nothing but treason and revolt from hir Dowghter's autoritie, but men begyn to forsee somewhat mor than thei did not long ago. I wraite unto you befor in favouris of my Wief, beseching you yit eftsones to grant hir fre and ready passage, for my wicked carcass, now presentlie lauboring in the feveris, neadeth hir service. I beseche you to grant unto the other men that cumeht for my wief, pasport to repayr towardis hir for hir better conducting. The spreit of all wisdom reull your hart in the trew fear [of] God to the end. From Londye in Fife the 23 of August 1559.

Youris to power,

JOHNE SINCLEAR.¹

O the myddis of the excess.²

Read right, and interprett all to the best.

To the wirshipfull Sir James Crofts knyght, Capitane of the Quenes Majesties towne and castell of Barwik.

Be these delivered.

¹ See No. XXXIII., letter of Croft to Cecil, infra, p. 77.

² "Excess," or exies, the trembling ague.

of August 1859 at 10 in great care the person

your O. P. P. power is within
John Law
J. L.

hours longer in life the 23 of August 1859

your O. P. P. power
John Law
J. L.

to the
of the

XXXI.—QUEEN ELIZABETH TO SIR RALPH SADLER.

ELIZABETH R.

TRUSTY and welbeloved, we greate you well. We have sene your lettres and Sir James Crofts to our Secretary, dated the 20th of this moneth, and uppon consideration aswell thereof, as uppon certen lettres sent from others there, whereof Sir James Crofts was privee, and sent them to our sayd Secretary, we think it convenient that ye shall imparte such monny as was committed to you at your departure, or so much thereof as ye shall thynk mete, in the secretest manner that ye can, to such persons, and to such intents, as maye most effectually furder and avance that manner of service, that hath bene specially recommended unto you. And therin we do recommend the maner and circumstances hereof to your discretion, using therin at your choise ether the counsell of the sayd Sir James, or Sir Henry Percy, or any other our trusty servants there.

Gyven under Our signett the 24 of August 1559.

XXXII.—KNOXUS CALVINO, S.D.

(Ad Disciplinam Ecclesiasticam interrogata.)

QUÆ sit rerum mearum conditio, Fratres in Christo colendissimi, quibus armis et machinis impetiti fuimus et simus, et quomodo Dei auxilio tuti hactenus inimicis nostris non cessi-

KNOX TO CALVIN.

(Queries relative to Ecclesiastical Discipline.)

WHAT is the state of my affairs, most venerable brethren in Christ, with what arms and instruments of war we have been and are attacked, and how, safe through the help of God, we mus, vos docere potest hic Frater, non mihi soli, sed universæ Ecclesiæ propter pietatem charus. Quem ut viscera mea, precor, suscipite : eidem significantes quæ sit vestra de subscriptis articulis sententia.

1. An ad Baptismum admitti debeant spurii, idololatrarum et excommunicatorum filii, priusquam vel parentes per resipiscentiam sese subdiderint Ecclesiæ, vel ii qui ex hujusmodi prognati sunt, Baptismum petere possint.

2. Utrum monachis et sacrificulis Papisticis, qui neque Ecclesiæ Dei serviunt, neque propter habitudinem servire possunt, annui redditus persolvendi sint, etiamsi errorem pristinum ore fateantur.

Hæc quia nego, plus æquo severus judicor, non à solis Papisticis, verum etiam ab iis qui sibi veritatis patroni videntur. Plura scribere vetant febris qua crucior, laborum moles qua have not hitherto yielded to our enemies, this brother, endeared by his piety not to me alone but to the whole church, can inform you. Receive him, I pray you, as my own bowels, and intimate to him what is your opinion on the following points.

1. Should the bastard sons of idolaters and excommunicated persons be admitted to baptism, till either the parents have by repentance submitted themselves to the church, or their offspring are qualified to ask baptism ?

2. Should the yearly revenues (of the church) be paid to Popish monks and priests who neither serve the church of God nor from their habits¹ are fit to serve it, even should they confess their former error ?

Because I answer these in the negative, I am considered unjustly severe not only by Papists, but also by those who think themselves patrons of the truth. The fever with which I am afflicted, the weight of labours that presses on me, and the premor, et Gallorum bombardæ, qui ut nos opprimant nunc appulerunt. Aderit suis is, cujus causam tuemur. Memores nostri sitis in precibus. Gratia vobiscum. Raptim, 28 August. M.D.LIX.

¹ Habitudo, properly a habit of body, seems here to mean habits whether of body or of mind.

Vobis addictissimus,

J. KNOXUS.¹

arrival of the French artillery to attack us, forbid that I should write more. He whose cause we defend will be with his own. Remember us in your prayers. Grace be with you. In haste.

Your most attached,

JOHN KNOX.

28th August 1559.

XXXIII.—POSTSCRIPT OF A LETTER FROM SIR JAMES CROFT TO SIR W. CECILL.

Berwick, 29th August 1559.

Postscript.—I, Sir James Croft, receyved this lettre, hereinclosed,² from Knox, answering somewhat to that I wrote to him of tharryval here of me the saide Sir Rafe, and of our desyre to speke with Mr. Henry Balnaves, or som other trustie man, to be sent hither from them, as we wrote to you in our last lettres. You shall not muse that he calleth himself JOHN SINCLEAR, for so his name is changed in all lettres, that passe betwixt me, the saide Sir James, and him, by both our agrements.

XXXIV.—KNOX TO MRS. ANNA LOCK.

The mightie confort of the Holie Spirit for salutatioun.

How all things proceded with us (deare Sister), from the first siege of Sanct Johnstoun till the 10th of Julie, when the last appointment was taken betwixt the Lords Protestants and the Quene Regent, with her Papists, I wrote at large to Mr. Wood, willing him to communicate the same with you, and with other brethrein of Geneva; for time to me is so pretious, that with great difficultie can I steale one houre in eight dayes, ather to satisfie my self, or to gratifie my freinds.

¹ See translation of Calvin's letter to Knox, in reply to the above, No. XLII.

² The letter marked No. xxx., supra, p. 74.

I have beene in continuall travell since the day of appointment, and notwithstanding the fevers have vexed me the space of a moneth, yitt have I travelled through the most part of this realme, where (all praise be to his blessed Majestie) men of all sorte and conditiones embrace the truthe. Enemeis we have manie, by reasoun of the Frenchemen who are latelie arrived, of whom our parteis hope goldin hills, and such support as we be not able to resist.

We doe nothing but goe about Jericho, blowing with trumpets, as God giveth strenth, hoping victorie by his power alone. Christ Jesus is preached even in Edinburgh, and his blessed sacraments rightlie ministred in all congregatiouns where the ministrie is established; and they be these:—Edinburgh, Sanct Andrewes, Dundie, Sanct Johnstoun, Brechin, Montrose, Stirline, Aire. And now, Christ Jesus is begunne to be preached upon the south borders, nixt unto you, in Jedburgh and Kelso, so that the trumpet soundeth over all, blessed be our God. We laike labourers, alas! and yee and Mr. Wood have deceived me, who, according to my request and expectatioun, hath not advertised my brother, Mr. Gudman.

He (Mr. Goodman) came to the border, but for lacke of advertisement, is returned. Mr. Smith came frome him, and is presentlie with me; but I cannot understand whether my brother is repaired. I beseeke you to inquire, and to cause him repaire to me with all diligence that is possible. If he can come by sea, it sall be most sure to addresse him to Dundie, Montrose, Sanct Andrewes, or to anie part in Fife; and lett him inquire for me, and desire to be conducted to me, and he cannot lacke freinds. Advertise yee Mr. Wood of the same, that he may doe the like diligence. If my brother¹ be not with my wife (who is not yit come unto me), I feare he cannot come to me before I sall have more than need of him.

Now, to the complaint and prayer of your letter writtin, say yee, at midnight. Be of comfort, Sister, knowing that yee fight not the battell alone. Be content to enter under mercie, to forsake your self, and to drinke of His fulnesse, in whome onlie consisteth the justice acceptable to his Father. It may appeare to you that I speeke nothing to purpose; bot when yee sall consider that the same pride remaineth in all flesh that deceived Peter, to witt, a trust in himself, yee sall understand that onlie experience of our owne infirmitie can dantoun that beast. Fight, and fruct sall succed, albeit not such as we wold, yit such as sall witnesse that we are not voide of the spirit of the Lord Jesus, who onlie is our justice, sanctificatioun, and holines. To Him be glorie for ever. Salute all faithfull acquaintance. Grace be with you.

Frome Sanct Andrewes, the 2d of September 1559.

XXXV.—KNOX TO SIR JAMES CROFT.

RIGHT WOODSHIPFULL,

THESE are to advertise you, that upon Monday the 17 of September, the Lords of the Congregacion departed from Sterling, where they had remayned certain dayes before, in consultacion upon thies present affaires. The Erle of Arrane being in their companie, they departed altogether, I saye, to Hamilton, to my lord Duke, for reconsiliacion to be made betwixt him and summe lords and other gentlemen, whome before he, and his freends having authoritie, had offended. In that companie departed bothe the men who last wer with you, together with the Larde of Graunge. God unite their harts in perfett love. Before I wrote unto you and unto Mr. Secretary, that onles summe supporte were made unto particuler men, and especiallie to those whom I did notefie in writing, that impossible it ware unto them to serve in this action. For albeit that money, by the adversarie partie, largelie offred, coulde not corrupt them, yet shulde extreame povertie compell them to remayne at home; for they are so superexpended already, that they are not hable to beare oute their trayne, and the same thing I write unto you again, requyering you to signefie the same to suche as tendre the furtheraunce of this cause. If any persuade you that they wooll or maye serve withoute supporte, they doo but deceyve you. If I did not perfetlie understand their necessitie, I wolde not write so precislie; for I nothing doubte to obteyne of them, by the authoritie of God's woord, what lyeth in their power; yea, if they coulde have money upon their lands, I shulde never so licitt for them; but the knowledge of their povertie, and the desier which I have that the cause prosper, makith me bolde to speake my judgement. If we lacke those, Sir, whome in my former lettres I expressed, our power will be weaker then men beleve. Fraunce seakith all meanes to make them freends, and to diminish our nombre. Ye are not ignorant what povertie on the one parte, and money largelie offred upon the other parte, is hable to persuade. Be advertised, and advertise you others, as you favour the successe of the cause. I have doon what in me lyeth, that corruption entre not amongst them; and at my last departing from them, I verilie beleve that they were of one mynde to promote the cause enterprised, but the power of summe is suche as before I have expressed.

¹ Evidently meaning Goodman, who accompanied Mrs. Knox in her journey, and not his brother, William Knox.

One thing must I suite of you, to witt, that either by yourselfe, or ells by Sir Rafe Sadleyr, to whome I could not write, because no acquayntaunce hathe been betwixt us, you wolde procure a licence for my mother, Elizabeth Bowis, to visitt me, and to remayne with me for a season; the comfort of her conscience, whiche cannot be quyett without God's woorde trulie preached, and his sacraments rightelie ministred, is the cause of her request, and of my care.

The Castell of Edinburghe hathe narowlie eskaped betrayeng, but nowe, I hope, it be in better assurance, because the Quene and her Frenche counsaile are disapoyntid of their purpose in that bihalfe. They have began to fortifie Leyht. Their souldiers supplie the place of pioners for augmentation of their wagis. As other things occurrith, ye shall be advertised. And this I commit you to the protection of the Omnipotent.

From St. Andrewes, the xxj of September 1559.

Yours to his power,

JOHN SINCLEAR.

XXXVI.—KNOX TO THE QUEEN REGENT.

MY duetie humblie premissid,—Your Grace's servant, Mr. Robert Lokhart, most instantlie hath required me and others, to whome your Grace's letters, as he alledged, were directed, to receive the same in secret maner, and to give him answeare accordingle. But becaus some of the number that he required were and are upon the great Counsell of this realme, and, therefore, are solemnelie sworne to have nothing to doe in secret maner, neither with your Grace, neither yitt with anie other that cometh frome you, or from your counsell, and so they could not receive your Grace's letters upon suche conditions as the said Mr. Robert required, therefore thought he good to bring to your Grace againe the saids letters closed. Yitt becaus, as he reporteth, he hath made unto your Grace some promise in my name, at his requeist I am content to testifie, by my letter and subscription, the summe of that which I did communicate with him. In Dundie, after manie words betwixt him and me, I said, That albeit diverse sinistruous reports had beene made of me, yitt did I never declare anie evident token of hatred or ini-mitie against your Grace. For, if it be the office of a verie freind to give true and faithfull counsell to them whome he seeth runne to destructioun for laike of the same, I could not be proved enemie to your Grace, but rather a freind unfained.

 For what counsell I had given to your Grace, my writtings, als weill my Letter and additioun to the same now printed,¹ as diverse others which I wrote frome Sanct Johnstoun, doe tes-tifie. I farther added, that suche an enemie was I unto you, that my tongue did both perswade and obteane, that your authoritie and regiment sould be obeyed of us in all things lawfull, till you declare yourself open enemie to this commoun wealth, as now, alas, yee have done! This I willed him, moreover, to say to your Grace, that if yee, following the counsell of flattering men, having no God but this world and their bellie, proceed in your malice against Christ Jesus and his religioun, and true ministers, that yee sould doe nothing elles but acce-lerat and hasten God's plague and vengeance upon yourself and your posteritie; and that yee, if ye did not change your purpose hastilie, sould bring yourself in suche extreme danger, that when yee would seeke remedie, it sould not be so easie to be found as it had bene before.

This is the effect and summe of all that I said at that time; and willed him, if he pleased, to communicate the same to your Grace by this my letter, written and subscribed at Edinburgh, the 6th day of October 1559.

Your Grace's to command, in all godlinesse,

JOHNE KNOX.

Postscriptum.—God move your heart yitt in time to consider that yee fight not against men, but against the Eternall God, and against his Sonne Jesus Christ, the onlie Prince of the kings of the earth.

¹ See the Letter addressed by Knox p. 69), and the same Letter augmented to the Queen Dowager in 1556 (vol. iv. in 1558 (ib. p. 423).

XXXVII.—KNOX TO MRS. ANNA LOCK.

God is marvellous in his Sancts.

YOUR letter, dated at Frankfurd, the 23d of Marche, received I in Dundie the 13th of September, and the 20th of the same, I received frome my Wife your questiouns. To both I have offer than once answered. Frome Deepe, I did write my full judgement concerning the participatioun with a bastard religion, the summe wherof was this, as I can call to minde, That we ought not to justifie with our presence such a mingle mangle as now is commaunded in your kirks; and although suche precisenes, as men that know not God terme it, appeare to proceid frome curiositie, and yit if the heart abhorre corruptioun in God's service, and feare least that by leaning with our corruptioun we be drawn in another, God sall absolve such as men unjustlie damne. As tuiching these that, onlie for negligence, absent themselves, they sall beare their owne burthein; nather can yee therof be accused, seing that ye conceale not the cause why ye assist not to their assemblie, which I thinke ye doe not. It is not the leaving off of the surplice, nather yit the removing of external monuments of idolatrie, that purgeth the Kirk frome superstitioun; for, peculiar services appointed for Sancts dayes, diverse Collects as they falslie call them, in remembrance of this or of that Sanct, as fashioun to call upoun God, not used by the prophets, nor commaunded by Christ, nor found in the prayers of the Apostles, nather yit received in anie weill-reformed Kirk, are, in my conscience, no small portioun of papisticall superstitioun. What by the superfluous things yit used in the Lord's Supper amongst you, becaus I have not seene your Booke,¹ I cannot give you other answe than oft ye have heard of my mouth, that in the Lord's actioun nothing ought to be used that the Lord Jesus hath not sanctified, nather by precept nor by practise. And, therefore, Sister, as I will not be a snare to your conscience, to bind me ather to my words, ather yit to my worke, farther than I prove by evident Scripture, so darre I not counsell you to doe that thing which my self am no wise minded to doe. Stronger reasoun have I none to give unto you, nather yit to assure my owne conscience, when I disassent from the multitude, than is the precept of my God, thus commanding not Israel onlie, but the whole kirks of the Gentiles, to the end: "Not that thing which appeareth good in thy eyes sall thou doe to the Lord thy God, but what the Lord thy God hath commanded thee, that do; adde nothing to it, diminishe nothing from it," etc. If this was commanded in these ceremonies which did prefigure Christ Jesus, what, thinke we, God doeth require in these mysteries, which exhibite and declaire Christ Jesus present? Nather my penne, nather yit my presence, can prescribe unto you how farre yee are addebtet to expone your self to daungers for these imperfectiouns in religioun which ye cannot remedie; but yee, directing your heart to advance God's glorie, sall be instructed by his Holie Spirit how farre yee may condescend, and how farre ye are bound to abstaine.

¹ "The Booke of Common Praier, and administration of the Sacramentes, and other rites and Ceremonies in the

Churche of Englande. Londini, etc. Anno 1559." There were three editions of Queen Elizabeth's Prayer Book

Alas! Sister, I feare a plague shortlie to follow this cold beginning, after so manifest a defectioun. Resteth onlie to us prayer, for the preservatioun of the afflicted flocke. True it is, sister, that of our selves we are unworthie to be heard, by reasoun of our great ingratitude; but his Majestie doeth not measure His mercie according to our deservings. Yea, mercie to me were no mercie, unlesse I were at all times confounded in my self. The exemples of God's childrein alwayes complaining of their owne wretchednes, serve for the penitent, that they slide not in desperatioun. Better is the sense and feilling of sinne so stinking in our owne nosetharles,¹ that to Christ Jesus we may runne, and have our feete washed, than the opinioun of vertue that puffeth up our pride, and maketh man carelesse to complaine before his God. Fight to the end, and yee sall triumphe by Him that is made to us of God's wisdome, justice, sanctificatioun, and redemptioun, whose Holie Spirit comfort you ever. Salute all faithful heartlie in my name :—Mr. Hickman, and his bedfellow ; Mr. Michael Locke, with his wife, as unacquented ; brother Blase ; Thomas Cole, if he be neere ; James Young, and others of acquaintance. These other writtings, after yee have read them, close, and provide that they may be surelie sent to Geneva, for the way of France is now stopped frome us. God deliver us frome their tyrannie. God be with you.

Frome Sanct Andrewes, the 15th of October 1559.

The daylie troubles more and more increassing, wold not suffer me to finishe the letters to my brethrein of Geneva. Bot and God, for his great name's sake, give us prosperous issue to expell the Frenche, who now most unjustlie possesse Leith, ye and they sall shortlie understand more. Excuse me to all brethrein that I can not write, bot especially to Adame Hali-day ; for troubles and labours ly upoun me, so that I feele some part of the case of these that before me have foughten against Sathan for deliverance of God's people. If I might have had anie leasure, I wold have written to the Brethrein, to have bene mindefull of our necessitie ; but now I cannot. God move the hearts of men to consider our cause, estate, and little power. Cause this other letter be sent to Deepe, to William Guthrie, frome my Wife.

Your brother,

JOHNE KNOX.

To Mastresse Anna Locke.

¹ Nostrils.

XXXVIII.—KNOX TO GREGORIE RAYLTON.

YOUR lettres long looked for received I in Edinburgh this 23d of October. It is most assured that such a jewell as your other writeinges due specifye,¹ is latlie cumed to our Realme, but it is kept mervalus secreat, and the rather becaus these cold blastes of winter be able to cause the beuty of suche Maij flowers faid. Thus much my eis saw and my handes tuiched. A trym staff for the Quen then Regent, sent from the persons whom befor ye did specifye, in which wer all thinges which ye expressd gorgiuslie ingraived in silver and dowble gilt. This staff was sene in the moneht of Maij in the sam schip in which I cam to Scotland, and was schawen unto me in great secreacye. The nomber and names of my neady brethren I did signifye to such as be in your cumpanye, and unto the man above.² The nomber is now agmented, and thare povertie also in such sort, that yf releaf be not provided speadely,³ I fear that mo then I murn, when we may not so weall amend it. What wold suffice every on in particular, I cannot weall assure you; but such I know thare necessitie to be, that some that daly fed forty and mo in houshold, is not now able to fead two. God confort thame for thare battall is strong. The alteration that be hear is this: the Quen Regent, with publick consent of the Lordes and barrons assembled, is deprived of all authoritie and regiment amonges us. She, her Frenchmen and assistants ar by open proclamation declared and denounced ennemies and traiters to this common-wealht, for that being thrisce required and charged to desist from fortification of Leyth, sche and thei do

¹ The Great Seal, see p. 88, note 2.

² Secretary Sir William Cecill.

³ A warrant from the Queen and a letter from Sir William Cecill to Sir Ralph Saller, dated 5th October 1559, granted a further sum of £3000.—(Sadler's State Papers, vol. ii. pp. 18-20.) Another letter specifies the kind of money that was sent, chiefly Spanish dollars, to avoid suspicion of aid from England.—(Ib. p. 23).

obstinatlie proceed in thare wicked enterprise. This was don this Mounday befor noon. Thare shalbe appointed to occupye the authoritie a great Counsall; the president and cheafe head wharof shalbe my Lord Duck. The authoritie of the Frenche King and Quen is yet received, and wilbe in wourd till thei deny our most just requeastes, which ye shall, God willing, schortlie hereafter understand, togetther with our hole proceedinges from the begynninge of this matter, which we now ar to sett furth in maner of Historie.¹ The battell is begun scharpe yneult; God geve the isshew to his glory and our comfort. Sche hath yet small advantage; for the death of two of our soldiers, and for the hurting of three gentilmen, sche hath lost two capitanes, and hath sor wounded many of her cheaf soldiers, to the number of twenty upon one day. Thei brag, and the Quen especially, that ye will leave us in the myddest of the trouble; and this sche hath of her last post which cam by you. My battall to this day hath ben verry bitter, but yf ye frustrate my expectation, and the promess that I have maid in your name, I regard not how few my dolorus dayes shalbe. What God hath wrought by me in this mater, I will not now recyte: but this I may say, that such offerrs ar refused, that mo do judge us fooles than do praise our constancye. We ar determyned to assay the utermost; but first we most have 3000 mo soldiours. For yf we assault and be repulsed, then shall our enterprise be in great hasard: and our Commons ar not able to abyde togetther. Geve advertisment therfor to such as favor us, that without delay our support be send as weall by money as by men. Yf your eis be single, ye may not lett to succour our present necessitie, whatsoever daunger appear tharof to ensew. I must farther requyr you to be a suyttar to all such as ye know to be unfeaned favorars, and especiallie to our brethren of London, to have a respect to our necessities. The Frenche schippes keap the narro watters hejr, which is to us a great som knowlege of the Greate Seale, which you lately willed us¹ to inqyr of that shoulde be sent out Fraunce into Scotland. And now you shall perceyve what the saide Knox writeth of the same, which, as he termeth it in his said lettres, he calleth a jewell, and by the thinges ingraved in the staff he writeth of, sent to the Regent from her son and doughter of Fraunce, he meaneth the armes of England, Fraunce, and Scotlande.

¹ See vol. i. p. xxvi.

XL.—KNOX TO SIR JAMES CROFT.

SUCHE is our estate, ryght Worshipfull, that onless present support be provided for us, you and we will both lament. We first, I confess, but what shall ensew experience may teache you. It was ones determined that Leyht should have been assaulted, and yet the mater standeth in debate. For some fear the interprise yf we be ones repulsed, others persuaid to putt all in the handes of God. Trew it is the number of our soldiers is few to so great an interprise, and it war no small discomfort to hasard our nobilitie, barrons, and gentilmen, upon their walles and wyle soldiours. Proclamation is made by the drum for lifting of mo men of warr, but partlie for lacke of money, and partlie becaus men have no will to hasard, we can mack no number, and therfor as ye tender the weall and furtheraunce of this cause, provide that both men and money com unto us with all possible expedition. It may appear that my demand is unreasonable, but when all reassons which may be laid in contrar of my petition shalbe ryghtlie examined, our present estate and

¹ In a letter to Sir Ralph Sadler, dated 27th of September, Sir William Cecill had made the following request:—“ I doo daylye looke for some intelligence presently. There, wherof I doo much muse, that the French have sent a great seale into Scotland, graven with th'armes of Fraunce, England, and Scotland, and with a stile for the French King and Quene, naming them K. and Q. of Fraunce, England, Scotland. Wherof I besече you to inquire as circumspectly as ye may possibly; for the manner of those proceedings be to sharpe to be long endured.”

inconvenience which may ensee our overthrow shall swallo and devour thame all. Yf ye fear to offend Fraunce, in hart it is allready att defiaunce with you, and abideth onlie the opportunitie and advantaige. If you list to craft with thame, the sending of a thousand or mo men to us can breake no league nor point of peace contracted betwix you and Fraunce: For it is free for your subjects to serve in warr any prence or nation for thare wages. And yf ye fear that such excusses shall not prevaile, you may declayr thame rebels to your Realme when ye shalbe assured that thei be in our companye.¹ Ye pay thame wages whare thei ly presentlie, and yet thei be ydill, but heir thei wold mor proffet us, if we myght have thame within 6 daies, then five thousand will do within 40 daies heir-after. My reasson is, that our nomber shall dayly diminish, so that in process we shalbe compelled to disseuer and skaile, and then never look I (onless that now we obtain our purposse) to se so many nobilmen of this Realme assemble together for that purpose. I speak my judgement frielie; judge you as God shall move your hart. I wraite befor for som support to such as without the sam ar not able to serve, but received of you no ansuer. I can do no more but declayr my opinion, which I pray God be not found trew in the end. The lord of Ormeston assisteth us not in this our daunger. The cause I leave to your judgment. I fear that mo shall schortlie follow onless remeady be provided. I cease further to trouble you, who do yit write not what truble. From Edinburgh, the 25 of October 1559.

Yours to his power,

JOHN SINCLER.

Postscript.—It is here bruted (whether it proceed of craft, or yf any such thing be indeed, I know not) that Fraunce

¹ This political "casuistry," as it has been called, is the only instance, as Knox's biographer remarks, in which we find the Reformer recommending dissimulation.—(Life of Knox, vol. i. p. 292.) Croft's answer (p. 92) is worthy of notice.

lauboureth with the highest to uterlie refuse us, and in verrey dread the Quen Dowager hath plainlie spoken that she knoweth the meanes how to frustrate our expectatioun of your support, by promess, said she, to deliver Calice.¹ Sir, our simplicitie shall appear befor God and man. This I advertyse you, for such rumors discourge many. Ansuer thame, etc. I opened the letter my selfe for scribling these few lynes. I am charged to tack the paines, by the Lordes, to visitt you, and farther above, lett me have your judgement in that case.

To the worshipfull Sir James Crofts knyght, Capitane of the Quens Majesties toun and castell of Barwick.

Deliver these in haiste.

XLI.—SIR JAMES CROFT TO KNOX.

I HAVE receyved your lettres of the 25, for answer where unto, albeit, for myn own part, I coulde be well content to satisfie your hole requests with as good will as you seme to desyre it; yet can I not but mervaile, that you, being a wise man, woll require of us such present ayde of men, money, and amuncion, as we cannot minister unto you without an open shew and manifestacion of our selfs to be as open enemyes, where as you know, by leag and treatie, we be bounde to be frends; prayeng you to consider how we may, without touche of honour and hurte of our commenwealth, being now in good peax and amytie, enter sodenly into open warre and hostylitie, being no cause of breche, no manyfest injury offred unto us. And how I, being but a servaunt and mynister here, may presume to do that you desyre, tending to a playne breche of amytie betwen so greate princes whom it toucheth, I referre to your discession; for, as to your devises how to colour our doings in that parte, you must thinke that the worlde is not so blynde but that it woll some espie the same. And surely we can not bona fronte so colour and excuse the matier, but that it woll be expounded to a playn breche of our leage and treatie, whereby the honour of the prynce can not be a litle touched; wherefore I pray you requyre that of us which we may do with honour and safetie, and you shall not fynde us unwilling.

¹ See end of the following letter, p. 92.

And touching the supporte of such as you have often written for, I coulde fynde the meanes that they might have some relief at theyr frends hands here, if I knew how the same might be conveyed unto them in such secret and close maner, as none others have notice and knowledge of the same. But, to be playn with you, ye are so open in your doings as you make men half affrayed to deale with you, which is more than wisdom and polycie doth requyre. Fynally, where you wryte that Fraunce laboureth to make us utterly refuse you, and that the Queen Douagier there hath playnely spoken that she knoweth the meanes how to frustrate your expectacion of our supporte by delyveraunce of Calice, I dare boldely say, that there is no such matier in treatie, ne yet in question; for you may be sure that Calice can not make us to neglect or refuse the establishment of this Island in perpetuell unyte and concorde, wishing to lyve no longer then to see the same, and so to leave the joye thereof to our posteritye. For the rest, I referre you to such lettres as we send at this tyme by this berer.

From Berwyck, the 27th Oct. 1559.

XLII.—KNOX TO SIR JAMES CROFT.

YOUR reasounable answer to my unreasounable requeaste, ryght Worshipfull, received I this 28 of October, and have imparted the contents of the sam to such as partlie induced me befor to write. I was not altogetther ignorant neather what myght ensew your manifestation in supporting us, nether yet how far did your commission extend in such cases. But con-siddering (as my slender witt did serve for the tym) whether war the greater daunger, the Nobilitie here to be defaitt (or yet frustrat of thare interprise), or ye to abyd the hasard of the future and suspected incommodities, it appeared to me that the former myght justly devour the other. As tuiching the leage and treatie which now ye suppose to have with such as ye term your freinds, I unfeanedlie wishe that it war so suyr that you should never have occasion to break any point contracted. But whether it may stand with wisdom to have such respect to that which som men do call honour, that in the mean tym I shall see my freind perrishe, both till his destruction and myn, I refer to the judgement of the most honorable. France was under leage and treaty of peace with England when it did manifestlie support Scotland to both our displeasure; and yet I think that thei nether wold have confessed breche of treaty nor blemyshe of honour. But omitting to urge that mater any farther, I besече God that we both reapeant not the drift of tym when the remeady shall not be so easy. Yf you understood the daunger as I do, luf should compell you somewhat to exceed the boundes of your commission. Yf you can fynd no meanes secreatlie to convey such liberaltie as freinds, without you please to bestow upon such as otherwiess cannot serve, I am less able att this present to compass such a thing then be you, and many mo of your acqueintance now present with you. But this I will yet say as of befor, that onless speady order be tacken in that case, your number will schortlie be so mean that some will reapeant that thei saw Edinburgh att this voyage. Besides those whom befor I did specifye, it will please you remember that the Master of Maxwell hath susteained great damage. Ormeston is joyned with us to the comfort of many.

Touching secreacye, which ye requyr, I dar promess for som, and for my self, but difficill it is for to bridell the tonges of a multitude in maters which must pass by publick and common suffraige. But maters which concern particuler persons ar not to my knowledge verry patent.

I hope that God hath delivered me from the most part of these civill effares, for now are men of better judgement and greater experience occupied in these maters. Young Ledington, Secreatarie,¹ is delivered from the fearfull thraldom of the Frenchmen, and is now with us in Edinburgh, who, I trust, shall releaf me of the presupposed jorney. In few words, Sir, yf ye joyn not with us in open assistaunce, we will both repent it when the remeady shalbe mor difficill. Ye have now the man to whom ye may communicat all thinges; to whom also I wold wishe ye had respect. The Lord prosper all to his glory, and to the confort of our posteritie.

In great hast from Edinburgh, this 29 of Octobre 1559.

To the right worshipfull Sir James Croftes, Capitan of the Quen at the toon and castell of Barwick.

Be these delivered.

XLIII.—CALVIN TO KNOX.²

Of Children who are to be admitted to Baptism.

IF, most excellent Brother, I answer your letter not so soon as you expected, your countryman who brought it will be my best witness that slothfulness was not the cause of the delay. You ¹ Sir William Maitland younger of Lethington. See vol. i. p. 463, vol. ii. p. 4, note 5. He relieved Knox from much of his public correspondence.

² This letter, written in Latin, is contained in Calvini Epistole, etc. It is not thought necessary to swell out this volume with adding the original Latin of some letters addressed to Knox by Calvin and Beza, as they have already been printed, and are easily accessible.

yourself also understand quite well how few opportunities of writing are afforded us, seeing that in troublous times all means of access to your country are difficult. It was delightful not only to me, but to all the pious whom I made partakers of my joy, to hear of the very abundant success of your labours. Moreover, as we wonder at success incredible in so short a time, so also we give great thanks to God, whose especial blessing here shines forth—which both suggests abundant matter for confidence in future, and should therefore encourage us to overcome all opposition. As I am not ignorant how energetic a counsellor you are, and how great readiness and power God has given you for acting such a part, I have thought it superfluous to stir up the brethren. Meantime, we are as much concerned for your dangers as if the warfare was common to us; and, as all that we can do, we join our prayers with yours, that our Heavenly Father may smite the raging enemies with madness and blindness, may confound their designs, may frustrate all their endeavours and preparations. They certainly have much difficulty in equipping a fleet, especially from scarcity of money. The serpent, however, is surer of his end by confounding all things than by attempting nothing.

As to the questions of which you ask the solution, after referring them to my colleagues, we have unanimously decided on the following answer. You do well to question whether it is right to admit the Children of idolaters and excommunicated persons to Baptism, until the parents have testified their repentance. For we should ever most carefully beware lest the sacredness of that mystery be profaned, which is certain to be the case if it is promiscuously allowed to strangers, or if any one is received without proper sponsors, and such as may be numbered among the regular members of the Church. But, as the authority of God is to be regarded in the right use of baptism, and his appointment should decide what is right, it is here proper to consider in the first place, who they are that God by his word invites to baptism. But the promise not only comprehends the offspring of each of the faithful in the first degree, but is extended to a thousand generations. Whence also it is the case, that the interruption of true religion, which has prevailed under Popery, has not abstracted the virtue and efficacy of baptism. For the origin of baptism is to be considered, and its very reason and nature are to be estimated by the promise. Wherefore we have not the least doubt that the progeny of holy and pious ancestors, although their grandfathers and parents may have been apostates, belong notwithstanding to the body of the church. For, as it was a wicked and insane superstition of Popery to steal or carry off children from Jews and Turks, and immediately hurry them to baptism—so, wherever the profession of Christianity has not wholly perished or become extinct, infants are defrauded of their right if they are kept from the common symbol—because, since God, three hundred years ago or more, has honoured them with his adoption, it is unjust that the subsequent impiety of parents should stop the course of heavenly grace. In short, as no one is received to baptism in respect or favour of his father alone, but on account of the perpetual covenant of God, so, that infants should be excluded from the initial rite of the church through the odium attached to but one parent is contrary to all reason. At the same time we admit that sponsorship is necessary. For nothing is more preposterous than that those whom we do not expect to be Christ's disciples should be engrafted into his body. Wherefore, if no relation appears to pledge his faith to the church, and to undertake the care of instructing the infant, the action is a farce, and baptism is profaned. But whatever infant is presented on the ground of a legitimate sponsorship, we see not why he should be rejected. Besides, the manner of the now renascent church is different from that of one rightly formed and settled. For while the Church is being gathered together after a fearful dispersion, since the possession of baptism has through a long series of ages survived even to our times, it ought to be retained—and in process of time the licentiousness which has crept in must be corrected, and parents must be forced to present their own children, and to be their chief sponsors. For, if in beginnings the highest perfection is rigidly exacted, it is much to be feared that many, eagerly seizing such an opportunity, will lie down in their filth. We admit, indeed, that no consideration should induce us in the slightest degree to diverge from the line divinely prescribed to us; but we think we have briefly shown that if we refuse baptism to those who are clearly of the Church's household, the prohibition would be too severe. Therefore, while better progress is expected, and discipline may be properly maintained, let infants be received on the condition we have named, that sponsors shall promise that their good and faithful education shall be their care and studious endeavour. Although at the same time we do not deny that idolaters, as often as children are born to them, should be sharply admonished, and stimulated truly to devote themselves to God, and excommunicated persons to reconcile themselves to the Church.

It is true that subsistence is not due to monks and priests from a public source, in order that they may live in useless ease. If any therefore are fit to edify the Church, let them be called to labour therein. But, seeing they are for the most part unlearned and destitute of all skill, we think they should be humanely dealt with. For, although those who give none of their labour to the church have no right to claim their maintenance, yet, since they have ensnared themselves through ignorance and error, and have spent part of their life in idleness, it were hard that they should be totally deprived of it. They ought, indeed, to be admonished rather to seek their living by honest labour than to consume what has been allotted to the ministers of the church, and to the poor. A middle course too should be adopted, by which out of rich benefices some part shall be bestowed for sacred purposes. Meantime, however, while the Church may recover the holy offerings through the death of such, we think there should be no striving about the yearly revenue, except that such should be reminded that they retain at will, and by sufferance, what they never acquired by right. They should also be exhorted not to indulge themselves too much, but contented with living frugally, rather to restore to the Church what is its own than to suffer it to be destitute of faithful pastors, or suffer the pastors themselves to starve. Farewell, excellent Sir and brother, most dear to us. We desire that you salute in our name the whole assembly of the saints, and we pray God that he may even to the end guide you all by his Spirit, sustain you by his goodness, and keep you under his protection.

Geneva, 8th of November 1559.

XLIV.—KNOX TO SIR WILLIAM CECILL.

KNOWING the sufficiencie of the bearer (ryght Worshipfull), able yneucht to signifye unto you as weall the troubles which laitlie have apprehended us, as our daungerus estate att this present, and supposing your hart not to be so hard but that the troubles of your brethren perse and wound you, albeit tharto ye be not moved by lang discourse: I thought not good to trouble you with long letter. And yit, partlie for remembraunce of my dewtie towardis you, and partlie for the love which I bear to the cause, which I doubt not but ye study to promote, I could not cease in these few wourdes to renew my old petition, which was and is, That if ye be of mynd to join with us in this common cause, that then your support be not so long delayed as that the ennemy may so plant himself amongis us, that after hee have oppressed such as heir wold resist him, hee may have occasion to attempt to greater thingis. To drive tym with Fraunce may appear to som profitable unto you, but, as befor I have written, so yit I fear not agane to afferm, that nothing hath bein, is, nor shalbe mor hurtfull to both, then that ye dissemble your favouris towardis us; for in the mean season the godlie heir ar and shalbe so oppressed, that after thei can not be able to serve, freindis do faint and fall back from the interprise. The enemye hath place to practiss not only amongis us, but also neyer your selves; and finallie, the whole multitude heir (a few number excepted) stand in such dowbt that thei can not tell to whether partie thei shall inclyn. The Frenche thei favour not, and thei see us so weak that verray freindis ar effrayed to joyn with us. In our extreamite, and when I perseaved our number so decrease that we war unable to remove the enemye from thare strentht, in greaf of hart I wrait to Sir James Croftis to provid for us som releaf of men; which petition albeit then it appeared unreasonable, yit if it had been granted I am assured that thus much the cause should tharby have been advaunced that non of the Nobilite this day in Scotland wold have manteaned the Frenche faction; besides, that the kastell of Edinburgh might have bein in assured custodye, the loss wharof I greatlie now fear, for onless greater force remove the Frenche men, thei will keap it from all victualls. Oft I have written for support to som men that I know so superexpended, that unable it is to tham to serve some promesses I have had, by the which I have putt such as began to faint in comfort of releaf. But now, becaus God hath provided men of greater knowledge to laebour in such public effares, I remitt the farther persuite to your wisdome and unto thare advertismentis, unfeanedlie desiring God so to move the hartes of those of whom we seak support, that perfitlie thei may understand what love, cayr, and solliciteud, Christ Jesus requireth the memberis of his body and trew professoris of his nam to bear on towardis another; and farther, to give unto you and unto such as laebour in this caus the spreit of wisdom in such meassour as that ye may perseave that which is righteous in His sight and profitable to the godlie in both the realmes. Amen, grace be multipleid with you ! etc. From Sanctandrois, in haist, the 18 of November 1559.

Youris to command in all godlines,

JOHN KNOX.

To the right worshipfull Sir Williame Cycell, knight, cheif Secretary to the Quen's Majestie.

Deliver these.

XLV.—KNOX TO MRS. ANNA LOCK.

LEAST that the rumors of our trubles truble you above measure, deare Sister, I thought good in these few words to signifie unto you, that our esperance is yit good in our God, that He, for his great name's sake, will give suche successe to this interprise, as nather sall these whome he hath appointed to sigh in this be utterlie confounded ; nather yit that our enemies sall have occasioun to blaspheme his veritie, nor yit triumphe over us in the end. We trusted too muche, deere Sister, in our owne strenth, and speciallie since the Erle of Arran and his freinds were joyned to our number. Amongst us also were suche as more soght the purse than Christ's glorie. We by this overthrow are brought to acknowledge what is a multitude without the present help of God, and the hollow hearts of manie are now reveeled. God mak us humble in his eyes, and then, I feare not the furie of the adversaries, who, be ye assured, doeth now so rage as yit their crueltie must needs crave vengeance frome Him whose members they persecute. Our deere brethrein and sisters of Edinburgh and Lothiane, who ly neerest these blood thristie tyrannes, are so trubled and vexed, that it is pitie to remember their estate. Our God comfort them. We stand universallie in great feare, and yit we hope deliverance. I wrote unto you before to be suter to some faithfull, that they wold move such as have abundance to consider our estate, and to mak for us some provisioun of money, to keepe souldiours and our companie together; and heirin, yit againe, I cannot cease to move you. I cannot weill write to anie other, becaus the actioun may seeme to appertaine to my countrie onlie. But becaus I trust yee suspect me not of avarice, I am bold to say to you, that if we perishe in this our interprise, the limits of Londoun will be straiter than they are now, within few yeeres. Manie things I have which I wold have required for my self, namelie, Calvine upoun Isaie, and his Institutiouns revised; but commoun troubles cause me to neglect all privat bussinesses. If ye can finde the meanes to send me the bookes before written, or anie other that be new and profitable, I will provide that yee sall receive the prices upoun your advertisement. My Wife saluteth you. Salute all faithfull heartilie in my name, especiallie these of familiar acquaintance, of whom I crave pardoun that I write not, being not so quiet as ye wold wishe. My onlie comfort is, that our troubles sall passe sooner, peradventure, than our enemies looke. Grace be with you.

From Sanct Andrewes, in haste, the 18th of November 1559.

Yours knowne,

JOHNE KNOX.

Mr. Gudman is in the west countrie, in Air, who willed me to salute you in his name, so oft as I wrote to you.

XLVI.—KNOX TO SIR JAMES CROFT.

HOSTAGES ar granted with mor glaid will, then thei war required, and other thingis ar so fully ansuered, that, as I suppose, the counsell above shall have just occasion to be satisfied in all thingis, which before war dowbtfull. The common brute is, that the French have in hand som haisty and som great enter-prise; and the rumour lackest not appearance, for thei have shipped much ordinaunce, and ar not verrey sollist to re-enforte the ruptures and daly decayes of Leyth. It is feared, that either thei shall tack Styrviling or Sanctandrois; and therfor, I was send by the Lordis from Styrviling in diligence, to advertiss, that thare earnest desyr is, that your shippes with possible expedition schew themselves upon these coastes. Tym was never mor fitt, for the most part of the French shippes, which last departed from Fraunce with men, ar driven by storme of wether towardis the northt. It is supposed that the Marquess D'Elbeuf is in thare cumpanye. If any shippes war to awaite upon thare entrie in the Fritht, thei could not eschape. If eyther Styrviling or Sanctandrois be tacken by the Frenche, after thei have possessed any of both few daies, it wold be hard to remove thame: God geve you wisdom in all thingis. There be now last arrived 900 men; the rest, as thei bruit,¹ of 15 enseinzes, ar loked for. Further, in all thingis ye wilbe instructed by the messinger, which last cam from above, who cumest, as I beleve, by the West bordour. Thus hartlie committing you to the protection of the Eternall, I cease farther to truble you. From Sanctandrois, the 26 of December 1559.

Youris, to commaund in godlines,

JOHN KNOX.

To the right worshipfull Sir James Croftis, knyght, Capitane of the Quen's Majesties town and castell of Berwick.

Be these delivered. Berwick.²

¹ As they bruit, or report.

(Sadler's State Papers, vol. ii. p. 208.)

² Enclosed in a letter from Sadler and Croft to Cecill, 31st December 1559.—

The commencement of Knox's letter is evidently lost.

XLVII.—KNOX TO MRS. ANNA LOCK.

THE letters I have receivede frome you, deir Sister, both almost at one time, the one is dated at Londoun, the 28th of November, the other, of the same place, the 2d of December. The letter of the last date I read first, which made mentioun of your truble, by reasoun of a suddane fire in a lodinging neere unto you; that yee had soght all meanes for our support, als weil of these of hie as of low degree, bot that it was not neidfull that anie thing sould be sent unto us, becaus, it was supposed, that the Hiest wold support us; and last, that yee had not receivede the Answere of your Doubts. In your other letters, after your most comfortable discourse of God's providence for his people in their greatest necessitie, yee godlie and truelie conclude, that nather could their unworthines, nather yit the want of things judged for their preservatioun, stoppe his Majesties mercie from them. Therafter, yee will me to avoide daungers, and rather to fight by prayer in some place removed frome daunger, than to expone my self to the hazard of battell; and so yee conclude, with the praising of God's mercie, as did Jeremie in his greatest anguish.

What support sould come to us by consent of counsell and authoritie, I am uncertane. But suppose that it sall be greater than yitt is bruided, that ought not to stay the liberall hands of the godlie to support us privatlie; for the publick support of an armie sall not make suche as now be superexpended able to serve without privat support. I will make the matter more plaine by one example. I know one man,¹ that since the 10th of May hath spent in this actioun thretteene thowsand crowns of the sunne,² beside his victuals, and other fructs of the ground. If he, and suche others that are in like condition with him, sall be absent, or yitt if their numbers sall decay, our enemeis sall seeme to prevaile in the feild; and therefore desired I some collection to be made, to the end that the present necessitie of some might have beene releevd. If the mater perteaned not to my native countrie, I would be more vehement in perswasion. But God sall support, even how, when, and by whom it sall please his blessed Majestie.

¹ Lord James Stewart.—(Note in Calderwood.)

² French coins with the sun on reverse.

Sorie I am, that ye have not received my Answere unto your Doubts; not so much that I think ye greatlie need them, as that I wold not putt you in suspicioun, that I contemned your requests. The rest of my Wife hath been so unrestfull since her ariving heir, that skarslie could she tell upoun the morrow, what she wrote at night. She cannot find my first extract; and therefore, if anie scruple remaine in your conscience, putt penne againe to paper, and looke for an answere, as God sall give opportunitie. God make your self participant of the same comfort which ye write unto me. And in verie deid, deir Sister, I have no lesse neid of comfort (notwithstanding that I am not altogether ignoraunt), than hath the livand man to be fed, albeit in store he hath great substance. I have read the caires and tentatiouns of Moses, and some times I supposed my self to be weill practised in suche dangerous battells. But, alas! I now perceave that all my practise before was but meere speculation; for one day of troubles, since my last arrivall in Scotland, hath more peirced my heart than all the torments of the galeyeyes did the space of 19 moneths; for that torment, for the most part, did tuiche the bodie, but this pearces the soule and inward affectiouns. Then was I assuredlie perswaded, that I sould not die till I had preached Christ Jesus, even where I now am. And yit, having now my heartie desire, I am nothing satisfied, nather yit rejoyce. My God, remove my unthankfulnes!

Frome Sanct Andrewes, the last of December 1559.

Your's, knowne in Christ,

JOHNE KNOX.

XLVIII.--KNOX TO GREGORY RAYLTON.

Dominus adjutor opportunus.

YOUR shippes, dear Brother, arrived in the first tuo dayes befor I receyved your writeing, to no lytill confort of many adfficted hart; for the verrey day of thare arrivall at May,¹ war the Frenche men with thare holl preparation advaunced in thare expedition towardis Sanct Androwes within 8 myles; and after the sight of your shippes, supposing that thei had bene the Frenche armye, with the Marquess, thei marched till thei approached within sex myles, but the certeintie knowen, thei retyred asmuch in on[e] day as thei advaunced in tuo.² What war our sobbes, and what was the dolour of my hart, I will not now express; but you may conjecture in what estaite I stood when such as wilbe called freindis did openlye say to my face, the support of England will cum when we that now suffer have no nead of it. But omitting theis dolouris, which we must devors befor we triumphe, I hartlie besech you, Brother, to put Sire Raufe and Sire James³ in mynd of my former requeastes, to witt, that men of judgment and authoritie be joyned with our Lordis heir, and that expert capitanes, faythfull and godly, be appointed not only over your owen soldiouris, but also to correct the disobedience of our throward foot men; for onles ye concurr with us continually in wisdom and in pollicy of warr, neather shall your riches nor forse greatlie advaunce this cause begun. I am judged amongis ourselves too extream, and be reason therof I have extracted myself from all public assemblies to my privat study, yet can I not cease to signifye unto you, that onles wisdom bridill the foolishe boldnes of some, all that favour the good success of this great and godlye interprise will one day murn. Yf Goddis myghty hand had not defended these two young plantes, thei had both perished in this last daunger, for what hasard took thei when with fewar than two hundreht horsemen (I compt our foot men as sipheris) thei lay without fort or walled town within thre myles of the ennemey, having also the most part of that countrey unfreindis. God is highlie to be prased in the prudent boldnes and painfull diligence of the Lard of Grangis, who continually so did annoy the ennemey that he cutted from thame all victualles by land, except when thei war compelled to move thare whole campe. He hath bein in great daunger, and was ones shott under the left breast, and yit God dyd preserve him. The gentilmen of Fife that be Protestantes have tacken such pains in this last troeble, that all men wounder of thare patience; for from the first of January that the French departed from Styrviling, till the 24 of the sam when thei reteyred, thei never cam in bed, neyther yit did thei ever sleip but in thare jackis and armour, for thei only assisted Mr. Kyrkealdye to anoy the ennemey; otheris weryed within tuo dayes. I wold therfor that a comfortable lettre should be written unto thame, exhorting thame to perseverance. The principall men ar the Mr. of Lyndsey, the lardis of Lochleven, Bavard, Londyn, Cragyhall, Raymornye, Thomas Scott of Abbottishall: thare be many otheris besydes these, but these ar those that now took greatest pain, and did farthest adventure. The Lordis heir wold be advertissed that ennemeis Scotismen shold be entreated as ennemeis, for otherwise there will never be obedience. I putt in your moult that which I cannot persuaid myself, as thingis woerthy of advertisement shall occur, I will do what I can that ye shall know the certaintie. Ye remember, Brother, my old requeast for som support to be maid to som particuler men, whom befor I expressed, and I know that it is so necessar, that withowt the sam it shall not be able to thame to serve. My judgment of our footmen I have before written to Sir James Croftis, which is, and ever hath bein, that thei shall never proffet us in our need. The sowm is great which thei consume, and there service hath hitherto bein alwaies to our displeasour, and I am assured shalbe continually, till such tym as thei be brought till better ordour and obedience. Communicat ye this as ye think expedient. The grace of the Lord Jesus be multiplied with you.

¹ The Isle of May, at the entrance of the Firth of Forth.

² See vol. ii. p. 13.

³ That is, Sadler and Croft.

From Sanctandrois, the 29 of January 1559-[60].

Your brother to power,

JOHN KNOX.

I have great need of a good horse, and therfor I pray you putt Mr. Wickleaf in mynd to haist be on ; my Mother¹ writeht that she hath on² provided, but knoweht not how to gett him conveyed.

To the worshipfull, and his most assured friendis, Gregorie Railton, be these delivered : At Barwick.

XLIX.—KNOX TO MRS. ANNA LOCK.

The eternal our God shall shortly put an end to all our troubles.

LEST that sinister rumours should trouble you above measure, dear Sister, I can not but certify you of our estate as often as convenient messengers occur. The French, as before I wrote unto you, have persued us with great furie ; but God hath so bridled them, that since the fyft day, when they putt to flight the men of Kingorne, Kirkaldie, and Dysert, they have had of us (all praise be to our God) no advantage. They lost in a morning, a lieutenant, the boldest of their companie, and fortie of their bravest souldiours, diverse of them being tane, and diverse slaine in skirmishing. They have done greatest harme to suche as did best intertaine them ; for, from them they have takin sheepe, horse, and plenishing. Our friends, and foes to them, did continuallie remove frome their way all moveables that to them apperteaned. They have cast down to the ground the Laird of Grange's principall hous, called the Grange, and have spoiled his other places. God will recompence him, I doubt not; for, in this caus, and since the beginning of this last trouble speciallie, he hath behaved himself so boldlie, as never man of our natioun hath deserved more praise. He hath beene in manie dangers, and yitt God hath delivered him above man's expectatioun. He was shot at Lundie, right under the left pape, through the jacke, doublet, and sarke, and the bullet did sticke in one of his ribbes. Mr. Whytlaw hath gottin a fall, by the which he is unable to beare armour. But, God be praised, both their lives be saved.

¹ Mrs. Bowes, his mother-in-law.

² Knox usually writes on for one.

I remained all the time in Sanct Andrewes, with sorrowfull heart; and yitt as God did minister his Spirit, comforting the afflicted; who, albeit they quaked for a time, yitt doe now praise God, who suddanlie diverted frome them that terrible plague devised for them by the ungodlie. The Frenche men approached within six miles, and yitt at a sight of certain of your ships they retired more in one day than they advanced in ten. We have had wonderful experience of God's mercifull providence; and, for my owne part, I were more than unthankfull, if I sould not confesse that God hath heard the sobs of my wretched heart, and hath not deceived me of that little sparke of hope which his Holy Spirit did kindle and foster in my heart. God give me his grace to acknowledge his benefite received, and to make suche fruiet of it as becometh his servant.

If ye can find a messenger, I heartilie pray you to send me the books for which I wrote you before. I must be bold over your liberalitie not onlie in that, but in greater things as I sall need. Please you to cause this other letter inclosed be assuredlie delivered to Myles Coverdale. Salute all faithful acquaintance, Mr. Hickman and his bedfellow, your husband, Mr. Michael and his spouse as unacquainted, especiallie remembered. I know not what of our brethren of Geneva be with you; but to such as be there, I beseeche you to say, that I think that I myself doe now find the truthe of that which oft I have said in their audience, to witt, that after our departure from Geneva sould our dolour beginne. But my good hope is in God, that it shall end to his glorie and our comfort. Rest in Christ Jesus.

From Sanct Andrewes, the 4th of February 1559-[60].

Your Brother,

JOHN KNOX.

I have writtin once or twise to Mr. Bodlie, but as yet have received no answer.

L.—KNOX TO THE DUKE OF CHATTELHERAULT AND THE LORDS AT GLASGOW.

AFTER humill commendation of my service: Albeit I have writtin offer than anis to Mr. Henrie Balnaves, etc.

[See this letter, vol. ii. pages 40-42.]

From Sanctandros, the sixt of Februar, in haist, 1559 [60].

Your Lordschipes to command in godliness,

JOHN KNOX.

LI.—KNOX TO SIR W. CECILL.

AFTER humill commendation of service, these presentis ar to requyr your confort, rycht Worschipfull, in the mater of on of my especiall freindis, a young man named Richard Anderson, who departed from us to France for dispatching of som of his busines thare in the moneht of October; and becaus that sence we have hard no word of him, it is supposed that he should be stayed in your countrey. Yf so be, I dowbt not but by your favouris, he, and thingis to him justly apperteaning, wilbe delivered; for the young man hath bein on of our number sence the first erecting of the Church in Edinburgh. His mother is the most faythfull matron, and most liberall to the sanctis afflicted, that we have in those quarteris. Yf he or she wer enemeis to this cause, thare should no earthlie thing cause me to procure in his favouris. The soun which he was to receive from the handis of a banqueur surmounted xii^c [1200] frankis. Thus am I bold to requyr of you, becaus I am assured of your favouris towardis all that unfeanedlie profess Christ Jesus, whose omnipotent Spreit assist you with wisdom, in all thingis to his glory. From Sanctandrois, the 8 of February 1559-[60].

Youris, to command in godlines,

JOHN KNOX.

To the right worshipfull Sir William Cycill, knyght, cheaf Secretary to the Quen's Majestie, and to hir Grace's most Honorabill Prevy Counsall.

Be these delivered att Court in haist.

LII.—RANDOLPH TO SIR W. CECILL.

YF suche lettres as I wrote unto your Honour the xth of thys present, are come unto your handes, you are not ignorante of all thyngis that have passed here untyll that present day; sens which tyme the Lordis of the Articles have consulted of maynie matters concerninge the state of this Realme. . . . Of the whole nombre that are present, yt stayethe the moste in the Earles Marshall, and Atholl, th'other dependinge only ether upon their autoritie or power. Their good wyll now appered more playnely then in the lettre of the Ladie Flemynge, which she desyered to be subscribed in her favour for a passeport, unto the which these two denied only to put to their handes, for that yt was a requeste to be made unto Englande. So that your Honour are not lyke to be troubled with anie suche sute, except you see ether one or bothe their handes at it. The obstinacie of these men hathe sore greved dyvers noble men that favour the cawse. Their nature is estemed dyvers; th'one fearefull and lothe to entre into anie matters of controversie, th'other obstinate and singular, withoute understandinge what daynger maye insue unto his countrie whyleste that he is careles therof. The Erle of Crafford' hathe twyse byne moved in my heringe to subscribe. The fyrste tyme, he desyered advisement with his frendes; the laste, he gave answer, that sens the lawe of oblivion was graunted, he sawe not howe anie man coulde, reservinge his duetie to his Sovereigne, gyve his consent to anie suche Contracte: howbeyt, he wolde speake a worde in councill, which was, yf he might be sure, where yt wolde please the Quenes Majestie to place herself in mariage; he wolde not stay to do more than that, and so he knewe wolde maynie moe doe. The fyrste parte of his answer he lernede of Mr. James Magille, th'other perhappes also was put into his hedde by ane other. I have spoken with my Lord Graye. I fynde yet nothyng to anie effecte. He hathe promised to give me a better answer befor his departure. The Duke's Grace also hathe bene thys day verey earnest with hys wyffe. The Erle of Eglinton is also arrived. Ther hath bein verie lyttle sayd unto hym as yet. The Lordes Drummond, Yester, and Somervell, came yesterday unto thys towne. The numbre (as yt ys saide) of Noble men is greater then of longe tyme yt hath byne at anie Parlement. The Byshoppe of St. Andrews, upon motion that was made unto hym, was contente to tawlke with the Subprior of St. Andrews, the Rectour, and two others. Thei have had much communication withowte hope; he is stowte and bolde inoughe; he rydethe and goethe at large. He came to the Duke's to supper, invited and convoide by Mr. Gawen of Kylwynnyng;¹ he was as whomly as welcome. The

¹ Gawin Hamilton, Commendator of Kilwinning. See vol. ii. p. 320, note 2.

Duke, after supper, tawlked long with him. He was better wyllinge to here hym then to beleve anie thyng he spak. Theie concluded in these wordes, that for his consciens he was deternyned, in that mynde that he was of at present, to end his lyf. For his boddie, goodes, and lyvings, he was content to yelde all into his handes. What bysydes matters of consciens, he wolde commaunde, he was alwayis reddie t'obeye; so that the Duke thynkethe to brynge him to subscribe the Contracte. The Bysshope of Dunkell remayneth as obstinat, as ignorante. Beinge moved to here Mr. Knox, he gave answere that he wolde never here an olde condemned hereticke. Mr. Knoxe hath bene wyth hym for yt, sens that tyme; so have also dyvers other that have preached. Sermons are daylie, and great audience. Though divers of the Nobles present ar not resolved in religion, yet do thei repayre daylie to the preachynges, which geveth a good hope to maynie that God wyll bowe their hartes. The Byshoppe of Dumbleane is also now come, yt is not to reason upon religion, but to do, as I here, whatsomever the Erle of Argyle wyll commande hym. Yf God have prepared hym and hys Metropolitane to die obstinate papystes, yet I wolde that theie, before theie goe to the Divell, wolde shewe some token that ons in their lyves theie loved their countrie, and sette their handes to the Contracte, as hardly I can beleeve theie wyll. That nyght that the Byshope supped with the Duke, ther were maynie, bothe noble and other offendyd, that ever he sholde receive suche humanitie in that place, and amongeste those men whome so spytefully he hath offended. Howe gratefull somever he was to the Duke, I am sure there was never man worse welcome to the Sone.¹

As concernynge the doinges of this Parlement, I thought that better to referre them to the reporte of the Lord of Lidington² then uncerteynely to wryte of that that I have nether harde nor seen. Whatsomever shalbe omitted in his lettre for lacke of tyme, I wyll supplie the same in myne, as nere the trothe as I cane, ether by his reporte or suche other as ar no les privie to those affaires then he. Touchynge other commen affaires yt maye pleas your Honour to knowe, that for the demolusion of Leithe ther is myche lesse done then the case importethe. What the staye thereof is I knowe not, except that wher so maynie matters are in hande, some are negligently overseen. I wrote unto your Honour to knowe your pleasure, for Mr. Blunte and Mr. Strude, theie are now determyned to desyer leave of the Lordes to retorne; I see also that ther is no farther use of them, except that ther are mo men to sett aworke. Lyttle London, which is nexte the sea on the easte, and Loggen's bulwarke, stoude cleane hoole. The Lordis are lothe that theie sholde departe, and yet ar theie our slowe to see thynges done owte of hande. To Dombarre the Lords have sent one hundred pioneers with a capitayne, with speciall commaundement to Sarlabos t'admytte them to worke. He hath wrytten verie humbly unto the Duke, I do not dowte but to sende your Honour the coppie of his lettre, for certayne poyntes contayned in the same. The shotte that was founde in the demolusion of Leythe is now shippinge, to be transported to Barwicke.

¹ The Duke's son.

² See the next letter, No. LIII.

The Lordes this daye consulte upon the chosynge of the 24, in which number nether the Erle Marshall nor Athell are lyke to be. That beinge ended, theie intende to propounde the confirmation of the Contracte with Englande, of the which the Lordes that are allreddie adjoyned mayke themselves assured, being the greater numbre. Of those that shall be sent into Englande, I see that of necessitie Lydingeton must be one, otherwyse the Duke can no wayes be satysfied, though I knowe he cane be evile spared from hens for dyvers respectes. I wolde that the Master of Maxwell, whoe laborethe to be Lord Heres, myght be one. I wolde gladly that the Lord Roberte myghte be th'other, for suche causes as your Honour shalbe informed shortly ether by Lydingeton or me.

My Lorde Arrane hathe more deeply wayed thynges sens your departure then before. Over myche suspicion, wher no cause was, somewhat transported his spirites. Ther hathe byne sufficient saide unto hym yn that matter. He understondethe hys errors; his Father yeldeth mych emore to reason than his nature beareth. The pestilent counsell of iij or iiij in this towne, seduce maynie honeste men bothe from good and ther countrie. Mr. Knox spareth not to tell yt them; he and Mr. Wyllokes were yesterdaye before the Lordes of the Articles, with the Bishoppes. St. Andrews desyered to have a coppie of the Confession of their Faythe. Yt was not denied hym to have yt shortly, thoughe yt be dowed that yt be to sende yt into France, before the Lordes do sende, then that he hathe any mynde t'examen the veritie or reforme hys consciens, be yt never so resonable. Beinge but yesterdaye concluded, yt was not possible to send your Honour a coppie therof so soone. For as muche as yt is purposed shortly to sende them unto you, with whatsomever shallbe more resolved upon, I do also for thys tyme tayke my leave.

Wrytten at Edenboure, the xvth [of August] at viij of the clocke in the mornyng, 1560.

Your Honour allwayes to serve,

THOMAS RANDOLPHE.

LIII.—WILLIAM MAITLAND OF LETHINGTON TO SIR WILLIAM CECILL.

SIR,—I have receaved your two severall letters, the one frome Richmond, the first off August; the other frome Otlands, the first off August. I am bound to give your Honour most hartly thanks. I must confess that I have not off late written to yow so oft as my duety requireth, awayting when some mater sould fall out in our Parliament worthy the wryting. The States are so well assembled that I remember not in my tyme to have sene so frequent a Parliament. It begouth the viij day off this instant, quhilk day the late treaty with the Frenshe was ratified by the whole number, and ordeyned that one sould shortly go to France with it, and sute the King and Quenes Majesty our Soveraines Ratification. I think that voyage shall lyght on the Lord off St. Jhons. For all other maters the order off Parliament was observed, quhilk is the first day; and choise the Lords off Articles; that is ten of every Estait who shall aviss and consult upon all articles presented unto the Estates. There is sensyne already past the CONFESSION OFF OUR FAYTH, by ane uniforme consent off the haill Lords off Articles, and to be sent to the King and Quene, wheroff within these three or four dayes, I shall send you the copy. The whole estait off the Clergy is on our syde, a few excepted off them that be present, as the Archebishop of St. Andrews,¹ the Bishopes off Dumblane² and Dunkeld.³ The Religion is lyke aneugh to fynd many favourers off the whole off all Estates. Now we meane to procede to the naming of the xxiiij of whome the Counsall must be chosen for rewling off the Realme. Thairafter to the Ratification off the treaty past at Barwick. In the meane tyme no laubours shalbe ometted that may serve to allure every man to condescend eyther to the auld, or to mak a new off as good effect. As yet, praysed be God, ther is no apparence off any division, but all lyke aneugh to continew in a good amity. Wee thought good before all things to pas the Confession. It is spoken and contended that some noblemen shall shortly come towards the Quenes Majesty to give thanks. I thynk th' Erl of Glencarne, the Lord Robert, the Maister of Maxwell, or at least two off them, shall be sent. I mon on force come with them, or els I se not how I can mainteyne amyty with the

¹ James Hamilton, Archbishop of St. Andrews, 1543-1570.

² William Chisholm, Bishop of Dumblane, 1527-1564.

³ Robert Crichton, Bishop of Dunkeld, 1550-1561. He was restored as titular Bishop in 1581, and died at a very advanced age in 1584-5.

Duke and my Lord off Arane, so earnestly have they preisted me and layd it to my charg, that no excuse will serve, and I neyther may or will lose theyr frendship. I mervell what yow ment, to write that I was reserved for the voyage off France. I think it wes not in earnest, ffor (I speake it in the presens off God) I had rather be banished Scotland ffor seven yeares than tak that journey on hand. My Lords off Arane, Argyle, and my Lord James, have commanded me to remember theyr commendations unto yow, and maist glaidly received yours as proceedinge frome theyr dearest ffrend. It will please yow to have me hartly recommended to my Lady your bedfallow, to whome with yow I wishe your harty desire.

Frome Edinbourgh, the xv day of August 1560.

Your Honour at commandment,

W. MAITLAND.

To the ryght honorable Sir William Cecill, knight, principall Secretary to the Quenes Majesty.

LIV.—THOMAS RANDOLPH TO SIR W. CECILL.

. . . . YOUR Honour shall presently receive the coppie also of the Confession of their Fayth, written in such haste¹ that I am ashamed to present yt unto you, as I may be also of al my other wrytinge, which I am forced with such haste to dispache out of my hands, that I have no leasure to consider what I wryte, as touchinge such things as ar concluded here in Parlyment, and fullie resolved upon hitherto. I never harde matters of so great importance, nether soner dispatched, nor with better will agreed unto. The matters concluded and past

¹ This ms. copy of the Confession of Faith is preserved in the State Paper Office, and differs in no essential respects from the ordinary copy. See it reprinted from the original edition of 1561, in vol. ii. pp. 93-120.

by common consent upon Saturday last in such solemne sort, at the firste daye that thei assembled, are these: Firste, That the Barons, accordinge to ane old Acte of Parliment, made in James's tyme the fyrste, the yeare of God 1427, shall have free voice in Parliment. This Acte passed without anie contradic-tioun, as well of the Bishopes Papysts, as all other present. The nexte was the ratification of the Confession of their Fayth, in the which the Bishope of St. Andrews, in maynie words saide this in effecte, That was a matter he had not byne accustomed with; he had had no sufficient tyme to examin yt, or to confer with his friends; howbeit as he yet will not utterly condemn it, so was he lothe to give his consent thereunto. To that effect also spoke the Bishops of Dunkell and Dumblane. Of the temporall Lords the Earle of Cassiles and the Earle of Caithnes said, Noe. The rest of the Lords, with common consent, and as glad a will as ever I heard men speake, allowed the same. Dyvers with protestation of their Consciens and Faythe, desyred rather presently to end their lyves than ever to thinke contrarie unto that that allowed ther. Maynie also offereit to shede ther blude in defence of the same. The olde Lord of Lyndsay, as grave and goodly a man as ever I sawe, sayd, I have lived manie yeres; I am the oldeste in thys companye of my sorte; now that yt hath pleased God to lett me see this daye, wher so manie nobles and other have allowed so worthie a work, I will say with Simion, Nunc dimittis. The olde Larde of Lundie confessed howe longe he had lived in blindnes, repented his former lyf, and imbrased the same as his trewe beleive. My Lord James, after some other purpose, saide, that he muste the sonner beleive yt to be trewe, for yit some other in the compaignie did not allowe the same, he knew that Goddes truthe wolde never be without his adversaries. The Lord Marshall saide, though he were otherwyse assured that yt was trewe, yit might he be the bolder to pronounce yt, for that he sawe ther present the pyllars of the Pope's Church, and not one of them that wolde speake agaynst yt. Maynie other to lyke effect; as the Laird of Erskin, Laird of Newbottle, the Sub-Prior of St. Andrews,¹ concludinge all in one that that was the Faythe wherin thei ought to lyve and die.

I wyll for the present most humblie take my leave. Wrytten at Edenboure, the xix of August 1560, rather in the morninge.

Your Honor's to serve,

THO. RANDOLPHE.

To the right honorable Sir William Cecill, knyght, &c.

LV.—EXTRACTS FROM RANDOLPH'S LETTERS TO SIR WILLIAM CECILL.²

. . . . THE Byshops of St. Andrews, Dunkell, Dumbleane, as soune as thei had put in their byll of complaynt of the misusinge of them and contempt of their autoritie, theie departed; and being cawled in Parliament Howse to pursue the same, no man compered. The byll put in by the Barons agaynste the Byschops contayned rather a generall accusation of all lyvinge Byshops, then anie speciall cryme that thei were burdayned with. The other three are become good Protestantes, and have subscribed the contract. The Byshop of Athens³ preacheth earnestly, and prayethe hartely for the Queene's Majestie our soueraigne, and greatly extollethe her benefyttes; Mr. Wyllocke, specially by name, prayethe both for France and Englande; Mr. Knox universally, for all prynces lyvinge in the feare of God, desyryng Him to turne the hartes of other, and to sende them in the rycht way. Mr. Goodman hathe latly byne in the

¹ Mr. John Wynrame.

² Randolph at this time was resident in Edinburgh, in the character of Queen Elizabeth's envoy at the Scottish court. It is scarcely necessary to add, that his letters furnish much important information regarding what he calls "the present state of matters in Scotland."

³ Alexander Gordon, Bishop of Galloway, and titular Archbishop of Athens.

He of Man. He lamenteth the splendre reformation of religion there, and great lacke of preachinge amonge a people so well disposed to here God's worde. He tarried ther x dayes, and preached twyse. I have tawlked of late with them all, to serche ther opinions howe a uniformity myght be had in religion, in bothe these realmes. These seme wyllinge that yt so were; maynie commodityes are alleged that mycht insue therof. Howbeit I fynde them so severe in that that thei professe, so lothe to remytte anie thing of that that thei have receaved, that I see lytle hope therof. With other I have dealt more liberally then with them. These fynde yt so expediente, that thei shall lacke no goodwyll in them therunto. Their Book of common Reformation is nowe in translatinge into Latyne, and shalbe sent unto Calvine, Viret, Beza, in Geneva; Mr. Martyr, Bullinger, and other, in Zurich. I perceave not ther opinion towards England to be such that thei wylbe content to stande in their judgment herin. Howbeit thei wyl not refuse to common with anye learned in our nation to here their judgements. The Confessioun of the Faythe shall shortly be translated and put in prente. Ordre is taken for the ministers, and places appoynted wher evrie one shall preache: Mr. Knox at Edenbourge; Wyllocks at Glasgow; and Goodman at St. Andrews. The Booke of Reformation,¹ at thys tyme, was not presented unto the Lords of the Articles; but dyvers other Acts passed agaynste the Pope and hys auctoryty, the Masse abolished, dyvers penall statutes taken away for punishment of hereticks, your Honour shall understande more at large. So muche allreddie is done, that all men that profess Chryste may lyve in freedome of their conscience. The reste shall insue as tyme wyl gyve yt place, and myche the sooner that good success do follow the suite that shalbe made unto the Quenes Majestie, wherof we have receaved some newe comforte, in that we see all the nobleman of thys Realme so wyllinge therunto, as by the byll subscribed with their owne hands yt apperethe. . . . Most humbly I tayke my leave.

¹ That is, the Book of Discipline, contained in vol. ii. pp. 183-258.

Wrytten at Edenbounge, the xxv of August 1560.

. . . . IN my last lettres unto your Honor, I was bolde somewhat at large to discourse with you of the present state of matters here, and upon suche thyngs as have byne passed and concluded in this Parliament. May yt nowe please you to understand what hathe insued from the date of my last lettre unto this present, viz, the xxviith. The Lords of the Parliament assembled in the Towbowth. . . . They have deposed the Pope, and abrogated his autorite, withoute contradiction; maynie penal statutes agaynst hereticks taken away; the Masse utterly abolished, and paynes appoynted bothe to the sayers and hearers;—the firste the confiscation of their goods; the nexte, to banishment; thyrd, the losse of thair lyves. The iii Bishops, Androwes, Dumbleane, Dunkell, beinge cawled to pursue their byll gyven to the Lords of the Articles, compered not, wherupon a decree was made for the staye of their lyvings. What other Acts, some which were published, concerned ether the commenwelthe or some private cause. The Parliament is proroged untyll yt seme good unto the Lords upon some good causes to assemble themselves agayne. . . . Most humbly I take my leave.

Wrytten at Edenbounge, the xxvii of August, at iii of the clocke, 1560.

. . . . If my poore advice myght have bene harde touching the Confession of the Faythe, yt sholde not so soone have come into the lyghte. God hathe sent it better success for the confirmation therof then was looked for. It passed men's expectatione to see it passed in such sorte as yt dyd. Before that yt was published, or maynie wordis spoken of yt, yt was presented unto certayne of the Lords to see their judgements. It was commytted unto the Laird of Lydington and the Sub-Prior to be examined. Thought theie coulede not reprove the doctrine, yet dyd theie mitigate the austeritie of maynie words and sentences which sounded to proceede reather of some evil conceaved opinion, then of anie sounde judgement. The autor of thys worke had also put in this treatie a tytle or chapitar of the obediens or dysobediens that Subjects owe unto ther Magistrates. It contayned lyttle les matter in fewe wordes then hathe bene otherwyse written more at large. The surveyors of thys worke thought it to be an unfit matter to be intreated at thys tyme, and so gave their advice to leave it owte.¹

Touchynge the Storie,² yt is not yit absolved, as I am gevin to understande. I am also made beleve that you shall have the fyrste sycht therof, as farther your honor shall knowe as soone as I can speake with the autor thereof, whoe promysed longe sens to see the same. . . .

Wrytten at Edenboure the vii of September 1560.

. . . . I have tawlked at large with Mr. Knox concerning his Hystorie.³ As mykle as ys written thereof shall be sent to your Honour, at the comynge of the Lords Embassadours, by Mr. John Woode. He hath wrytten only one Booke.⁴ If yow lyke that, he shall continue the same, or adde onie more. He sayethe, that he must have farther helpe then is to be had in thys countrie, for more assured knowledge of thyngs passed than he hath hymself, or can come bye here: yt is a work not to be neglected, and greatly wysshed that yt sholde be well handled.²

Wrytten at Edenboure, 23d September 1560.

. . . . That he (my Lorde of Arrane) hathe also wrytten unto the Conestable, as unto whome he hathe byne verie myche

¹ But this advice was not followed, the chapter, Of the Civil Magistrate, being still retained. See supra, vol. ii. p. 118.

² & ³ Knox alludes to this intention of writing his History of the Reformation in a letter to Raylton, supra, page 87. See also Introductory Notice, vol. i. p. xxvi.

⁴ This was the Second Book of his History, vol. i. p. 297.

bounde. Of all these matters ther is no man previe except Knox, and he whome he trustethe with the whole.

At Edenbourge, the iii of Januarye 1560-[61].

. . . . The Bysshope of Orkney¹ begynethe to reforme his dioces, and prechethe hymself. . . . The libertye that we have here to eate fleshe upon the Sondayes in Lent makethe us the bolder to do the same the whole weeke after. The Communion was mynesterest here upon Sondaye last; I assure your Honour with great decencie and verie good order. There were none admitted but suche as made open protestation of their belief, examined and admitted by the mynesters and deacons to the numbere of xiiij and odd. Upon Sondaye nexte theie chuse in dyvers places for all the Sheeres² Superintendants, knowne and lerned men: of those that your Honour knowethe, Mr. Willocke for Glascowe and that countrie; for St. Andrews, the Sub-Prior of the same.³ Mr. Knox thynkethe hys state⁴ honorable inoughe, yf God gyve hym strengthe to persyste in that vocation that he hathe placed hym in, and wyll receave no other. Untyll suche tyme other occasion servethe, I do most humblye take my leave.

At Edenbourge, the v of Marche 1560-[61].

. . . . Mr. Knox hathe earnestly requested me to desyr the ministers in this towne of Berwicke, that ther may be some conference betweene hym and his brethrene, ofrand them in wrytinge or other, yf yt myght stande with the Quenes pleasure. Mr. Knox in certayne articles geven unto my Lord James at this tyme hathe mytigated somewhat the rigeur of his booke, referringe myche unto the tyme that the same was wrytten.

Barwicke, the xx of Marche 1560-[61].

Your Honour to commaunde,

THOMAS RANDOLPHE.

¹ Adam Bothwell.

² Shires.

³ Dean John Wynrame.

⁴ As Minister of Edinburgh.

LVI.—CALVIN TO KNOX.¹

ABOUT four months before your last letter was delivered to me, I had received from you another, in which you were anxious to exculpate yourself, because, when I had given your friends and countrymen an answer to certain Questions, I had taken it ill that I was asked to answer them a second time. But thus the matter stands: Unless they had promised me that my letter should be safely conveyed, I should certainly have kept a copy by me; but, seeing that through their fault and inconsiderate engagement I had felt too secure, while soon afterwards they informed me that the answer, about which they had affirmed there was nothing to fear, had perished, and begged that I would again undertake the same work. I was roused, I confess, and answered that their request was suspicious, and looked like an attempt to ensnare me. Do not, however, wonder that I spoke with such asperity. I had before known for certain that my counsel on the subject did not tally with their opinion. As, therefore, I knew that they were not satisfied, it occurred to me as probable that they desired to have what was not agreeable suppressed, and to return to me that they might elicit something more to their mind. But I neither said nor suspected that you in any way acted deceitfully; and at the same instant the misunderstanding had been removed, so that there was no need of an apology. And it grieves me, that what fell from my lips has so sunk into your mind as to make you think that you were accused of bad faith or craftiness, of which I believe you to be incapable. Away then with that fear or anxiety.

I come now to your letter lately brought me by a pious brother, who has come hither to pursue his studies. I am, as I should be, greatly delighted that the Gospel has made so happy and joyful advances among you. That conflicts are got up against you, is nothing new ; but the goodness of God shines the more clearly in this, that hitherto no attempts of Satan and of wicked men have hindered you from pursuing the right course with victorious constancy, although you never would have been equal for the struggle, had not He who is higher than all sent you help from heaven. In regard to Ceremonies, I trust that your strictness, although it may displease many, will be regulated by discretion. We should, indeed, do our endeavour that the Church may be purged of all the defilements which flowed from error and superstition. We should also earnestly strive that the mysteries of God be not polluted by absurd or unmeaning mixtures. With this exception, you know well that certain things, though not positively approved, must be tolerated. I grieve much, as I ought, that your Noblemen are divided by intestine disputes ; and you are justly more vexed and tormented, because Satan is plotting in the midst of you, than you were formerly troubled by the movements of the French. But prayer should be made to God that he may remedy this evil also. Here we are surrounded with dangers. Confidence alone in the protection of heaven keeps us from terrour, though we are not free of fear. Farewell, excellent Sir and brother, worthy of the heart's affection. The Lord be ever with you, guide, defend, and sustain you by His goodness. Your widowerhood is to me grief and bitterness, as it ought to be. You found a Wife whose like is not found everywhere ;¹ but as you have rightly learned whence consolation in sorrow is to be sought, I doubt not that you bear this calamity with patience. Salute the pious brethren most dutifully in my name. My colleagues also pray for your great welfare.

¹ See p. 94, note 1.

Geneva, 23d of April 1561.

¹ Marjory Bowes, Mrs. Knox, appears to have died at Edinburgh in December 1560.

LVII.—CALVIN TO CHRISTOPHER GOODMAN.¹

YOUR letter was, for various reasons, most welcome to me. But though it were unnecessary to excuse long silence, because I am not wont to exact the duty of writing from my friends, and certainly I am persuaded that it is impossible that your love towards me can ever cease, yet I was glad to receive it, because it was a proof of your pious concern lest I should think myself neglected. Although I am not a little grieved that our brother Knox has been deprived of the most delightful of wives, yet I rejoice that he has not been so afflicted by her death as to cease his active labours in the cause of Christ and the Church. It is no common comfort that he has found in you a very faithful and thoroughly qualified assistant. Nor indeed do I see how it can be lawful for you, in such a scarcity of labourers, to leave that country; nay, rather that scarcity which you justly deplore should stir up you and others to go on with prudence. But if necessity is the sharpest stimulus to activity, this ought certainly to be our strongest inducement in the work of God, that we know that in it our endeavours can never be vain, while the children of this world are often defeated by their own zeal. Wherefore, most excellent Brother, I think you should persevere until God, by additional help, shall have more firmly established the Scottish Church.² Farewell, excellent Sir and Brother, worthy of my love. The Lord guide you by the spirit of wisdom and courage, and bless your labours. My colleagues in the ministry salute you.

Geneva, 23d of April 1561.

¹ The original of this and of the preceding letter, addressed to Knox, of same date, in Latin, are contained in the collection of Calvin's "Epistolæ et Responsa."

² Goodman remained in Scotland till the end of the year 1565. See note, vol. ii. p. 413.

LVIII.—KNOX TO QUEEN ELIZABETH.

Grace from God the father throught our Lord Jesus, with perpetuall encrease of his holie Spiritt.

MAY it please your Majestie, That it is heir certainlie spoken that the Quen of Scotland travaleht earnestlie to have a treatiss intitilled the "First Blast of the Trompett,"¹ confuted by the censure of the learned in diverse realmes, and farther that she lauboreht to inflambe the hartes of princes against the writer. And becaus that it may appear that your Majestie hath interest, that she myndeht to travall with your Grace, your Grace's counsall and learned men for judgement against such a commen ennemy to Women and to thare Regiment. It war but foolishnes to me to prescribe unto your Majestie what is to be doune in any thing; but especiallie in such thingis as men supposs do tuech myself. But of one thing I think myself assured, and thairfor I dar not conceall it. To witt, that neyther doht our Soverane so greatlie fear her owen estate by reasson of that book, neyther yit doht she so unfeanedlie favour the tranquillitie of your Majestie's reing and realme, that she wold tack so great and earnest panes; onles that her crafty counsall in so doing shot att a farther marck. Tuo yeares ago, I wrote unto your Majestie my full declaration tueching that work:² experience since hath schawen that I am not desirus of innovations, so that Christ Jesus be not in his membres openlie troden under the feitt of the ungodlie. With farther purgation I will not truble your Majestie for the present, beseching the Eternall so to assist your Highnes in all effares that in his sight ye may be found acceptable, your regiment profitable to the commewealht, and your factes to be such that justlie thei may be

¹ In 1558: see it republished in vol. ii. pp. 363-420

² In his letter to Elizabeth, supra, p. 47.

I will not trouble you with the proper objection for pedance so to assist you in all efforts. I fear in your case you may be found acceptable. I desire profusely to see you very much, and you further to be sure that together with you may be praised of all God's unto the glory of our Lord Jesus to whom we refer protection - I understand from your letter from Edinburgh
 the 5 of August 1561

For my self and my children
 I do hereby certify that I have received of you the sum of £ 100 which I have paid to the Treasurer of the Church of Edinburgh
 the 10 of August 1561
 John Knox

is not what you demand to be found in God's lines

6th August 1561
 Mr Knox
 Edinburgh

John Knox

prased of all godlie unto the cuming of our Lord Jesus, to whose myghtty protection I unfeanedlie committ your Majestie.

From Edinburgh, the 6 of August 1561.

Your Majestie's servand to command in godlines,

JOHN KNOX.¹

To the myghty and excellent Princess Elizabeht, the Quenes Majestie of England, be these delivered.

LIX.—THOMAS RANDOLPH TO SIR N. THROKMORTON.

YOU must please your Lordship to pardon me, thoughe I be shorter at thys time then wyllingly I wolde be, or then I purposede, having so muche matter in score as wyllngly I wolde that you sholde be partaker of.

The 19th of thys instant at ten of the clocke, the Quene² landed at Leethe, onlye two gallayes with her three Uncles,³ Monsieur Danville, and certeyne other gentlemen.

The noblemen here were all absent, savinge the Lord Roberte. Her arrivall was so soddayne that no man thought of her. Incontynent upon the newes here arrived the Duke's Grace fyrst, nexte the Lord James, then the Erle of Arrane. Sens that tyme the repayre hathe byne great of all sortes.

All men welcome, all men well received, good intertaynement, great cheare, and fayer wordes. I fynde no great alteration in thynges. All men persyste in the same mynde that theie were of before theie saw her. The Protestantes stowte in defence of God's cawse, and the Papystes nothyng encouraged any thyng that yet theie have founde. Yf you saye unto me that yt [is] yet but newe dayes, then I answere, that when I se newe occasion you shall here as I fynde yt. Four dayes she was with owte masse; the next Sondaye after her arrivall she had yt in her chapell, sayde be a Frenche preste. Ther were only at that, bysyds her uncles and her owne howseholde, the Erle of Montros, Lord Grehame; the Lord Hume wolde not be ther; the rest were at Mr. Knox sermoundes, as great a number as ever was anye dayes. The Erle of Cassels was that Sondaye at the preachinge, and the Mondaye at the masse; that is saide that sens that tyme he hath repented yt, and this ys but Twesdaye. I have not yet received my commission, whearfore I cane wryte nothyng of her Majestie. I looke daylie for yt. She asked the seconde daye of her arrivall what I made here, and when I dyd departe. I looked them to have byne sent for. Nowe, we stande in better termes then before, in speciall sens the Laird of St. Come's¹ arrivall with her saulf-conducte four dayes after that she was landed. She nether mette nor sawe shippe upon the sea, for all the bruit that was of her staye that shulde have byne.

¹ An accurate facsimile of this letter is here annexed, from the original in H.M. State Paper Office.

² Mary Queen of Scots.

³ The Duke d'Aumale, the Grand Prior, and the Marquis d'Elbœuf.

N Yt was concluded, upon Mundaye, that all matters touchynge religion sholde stande in the same state that she founde them. She, her selfe, to use her howse withowte reproche of persone. I se no hope of other in her then when you lefte her. Yt dothe me good to remember that ther are yet but two Byshopes arrived, Andrews and Donkell [Dunkeld], bothe in longe gownes and tyyppettes, with hattes upon their heddes, but scharce dare put their noses owte of their doores for feare of after clappes. The preste that saide the masse, when he had his God at the hygheste, had almoste for feare [sic]. I say no more for re . . . The Lord James dothe most with her; nexte in credyt is Lidington. Embassadeurs are appoynted to France, Englande, Spayne, and their names you shall knowe when I am better assured. Duke Domale and Monsieur Danville passe throughe Englande, the Prior by sea, the Marquis wyll wynter with us.

¹ James Stewart, Commendator of St. Colme, or Inch-Colm. See vol. ii. p. 53, 88.

The Erle Bothwell is commaunded not to come to the Courte for the dyfferance betwene the Erle of Arrane and hym. The Erle of Huntlye is here, he cam sixteen horses in poste. And to conclude, ther is not one that dothe absent hym self, or that is not well taken with for the fyrste face, savinge John Knox that thonderethe owte of the pulpet, that I feare no thyng so muche, that one daye he wyll marre all. He rulethe the roste, and of hym all men stande in feare. Wolde God you knewe howe myche I am amended myself : but nowe agayne in earnest.

The Frenche men are dislodged owte of Donbarre, and the Inche: Dombarre is commytted to the custodie of the Lord John of Coudingham, th'other I knowe not to whome. Proclamation is allreddie made upon the Borders for the contynuance of justice and mayntaynance of amytye with Englande. This is myche more then I thought my tyme wolde presently have served. Nowe, what somever yt please you, I am at your commaunde. Scribled in haste the 26th of Auguste, Edenboure 1561.

Your Lordship's allwayes to commaunde,

THO. RANDOLPHE.

My humble commendations unto my verie good Ladie.

To the righte worshipfull Sir Nicolas Throgmorton, knyght, Embassadour for the Quene's Majestie of Englande in France.

LX.—KNOX TO MRS. ANNA LOCK.

I daylie long for an end of miseries.

I HAVE received your token, deare Sister, without wryting. I understand your impediment, and therfor I cannot complaine. Yet if yow understood the varietie of my tentations, I doubt not but yee would have written somewhat. The permissioun of that odious idol, the Masse, by suche as have professed themselves enemeis to the same, doth hourlie threaten a suddane plague. I thrist to change this earthlie tabernacle, before that my wretched heart sould be assaulted with anie suche new dolours. I feare this my long rest sall not continue. If yow, or anie other thinke that I, or anie other preacher within this realme, may amend such enormiteis yee are deceaved; for we have discharged our consciences, but remedie there appeareth none, unless we would arme the hands of the people in whome abideth yitt some sparkes of God's feare. Our Nobilitie (I write with dolour of heart) beginne to find ease, good service of God. If they be not troubled in their professioun, they can weill enough abide the Queene to have her Masse, yea, in her owne chappell if she like. She hath beene in her progresse, and hath considered the mindes of the people for the most part to be repugnant to her devilish opinioun; and yitt, in her appeareth no amendement, but an obstinat proceeding frome evill to worse. I have finished in open preaching the Gospell of Sanct Johne, saving onlie one chapter. Oft have I craved the misereis of my dayes to end with the same; for now, Sister, I seeke for rest. My eyes have seene manie things, and yitt I feare one more terrible than all others. My inward and particular dolour releaseth nothing; yea, sometymes I am so tossed, that hard it is to discerne whether my owne wretchednesse be more offensive to God, or that which I see most damnable in others. My onlie comfort is, mercie, with an assured expectation for the end of suche miserable corruption. My Mother saluteth you. Lett me know your owne estate. Salute Mr. Hickman, with all other faithfull acquaintance. I sent to you, and to some others, the Confession of our Faith, in quairs, unbound.¹ If they came to your hands I cannot tell sent unbound. It has written, evidently in his hand, on the title-page, "To ROBERT ASK, MERCHANT GOLDSMYHT." See it reprinted in volume ii. pages 93-120.

¹ The copy of the original edition, printed at Edinburgh in 1561, in my possession (formerly in the collections of Herbert and George Chalmers) was one of the copies which Knox says he had

bot now it is no mater. I perceaved they are printed with you againe. Our Queene weareth the doole, bot she can dance daylie, doole and all. I need not to writt unto you the tydings of France, and therefore I rest, committing you to the protection of the Omnipotent.

From Edinburgh, the second of October, 1561.

LXI.—KNOX TO SIR WILLIAM CECILL.

YF God had not so often, Ryght Worshipfull, trapped the men of most singular experience in thare owen wisdome, when thei have begun mor to creditt thare owen ymaginations, then the Will of God manifestlie revealed, I wold have judged your Counsell most holsome: But becaus I fynd so many notable exemples of Godd's punishment in that behalf, I fear to do evill to theme that good may cum of it; and yet, yf to suffer impietie to be committed, which by just power myght have bein gainstand and repressed, be to commit iniquitie (as the lyght of nature be it never so obscured, doth teach us that it is) then can I not but accuse myself, in that I did not mor zelouslie gainstand that Idol at the first erecting. Men deliting to swym betwix two watters, have often compleaned upon my severitie; fearing, as it seamed, that the same should trouble the quietness of brethren. But I do fear, that that which with men terme lenitie and dulcenes, do bring upon thameselves and others mor fearfull distruction, then yit hath enséwed the vehemeny of any preacher within this Realme. That our Quen shalbe allured by any such meanes, as we yit use, is alltogidther contrary to my judgement; for as I have spoken, so se I in experience, that by permission Sathan groweht bold; for now she feareht not to sett furht proclamations contrary to those that command hoormongars, adulterars, and idolators to be punished, according to the former and established Reformation. The Papistes, I grant, blowe the belloss, but the faintness of some, flattery of others, and corrupt affections of such as ought to withstand such attemptes, ar liek shortly to distroy the face of that building, which God by his power had founded amongs us: This I write from the dolor of hart. Some of no small estimation have said, with open mouht, the Quen neyther is neyther shalbe of our opinion; and in verry dead hir hole proceadings do declayr that the Cardinalles lessons ar so deaplie prented in hir heart, that the substance and the qualitie ar liek to perische together. I wold be glaid to be deceaved, but I fear I shall not. In communication with her,¹ I espyed such craft as I have not found in such aige. Since, hath the Court been dead to me and I to it. One thing I can not conceall; to[o] much bearing is liek to break the most strong back, yf we cast not of the burthen by times. To speak plane, those that alwaies have had the favor and estimation of the most godlie, begyn to cum in contempt, becaus thei oppon not themselves mor stoutlie against impietie. Dowbt not but your counsall may somewhat reward the persons. Ye know my Lord James and Ledingthon, whome yf God do not otherwiese conduct, thei ar liek to lose that which, not without travall, hath heirtofore bien conquest. Att this verrey instant ar the Provost of Edinburgh and Balleis thairof command to ward in there Tolboght, be reason of thare Proclamation against papists and hoormongars.² The hole blame lyeht upon the necks of the two fornamed, be reasson of thare bearing. God deliver us from the plage which manifestlie appeareht. Thus being troubled, I have troubled your Honor, whom I committ to the protection of the Omnipotent.

From Edenburgh, the 7th of October 1561.

Yours to command in godliness,

JOHN KNOX.

To the right worshipfull, Sir William Cycell, knyght, cheaf Secretary to the Quene's Majesty of England.

¹ See vol. ii. p. 290.

² Ibid. p. 289.

LXII.—KNOX TO CALVIN.

Perpetuum S. F. Incrementum.

TRANQUILLITATEM rerum nostrarum inturbavit adventus Reginæ, nam, triduo postquam illa appulerat, erectum est rursus idolum illud missalicum. Semetipsos opposuerunt viri, etsi pauci, graves et autoritate clari, ratiocinantes se non posse sana conscientia permittere ut terra illa, quam Dominus verbi sui efficaciter ab externa idolatria purgaret, rursus, ipsis aspicientibus, eidem inquinamenti fœdaretur. Verum quia major pars etiam eorum qui nobiscum adhuc in doctrina consentiunt, diversum suavit, vicit tunc impietas quæ et hodie sibi vires acquirit. Habent posteriores quod indulgentiæ suæ prætexant affirmare, secundum Reginam, omnes Verbi ministros (et te quoque) in hac esse sententia quod nobis non licet prohibere quominus

LXII.—KNOX TO CALVIN.

THE arrival of the Queen has interrupted the tranquillity of our affairs. For three days after her arrival, that idol the mass was again set up. It was opposed by men of gravity and of eminent authority, although few in number, who considered that they could not, with a good conscience, suffer that land which God, by the power of His Word, had purified from outward idolatry, to be again in their very sight defiled by the same pollutions. But as the majority even of those who still agree with us in doctrine advised a different course, ungodliness had the victory at the time, and to this day acquires more strength. The latter have this to say in defence of their indulgence, that the Queen, namely, affirms that all the ministers of the Word (and yourself also) are of opinion that it is not lawful for us to prohibit her from openly professing her own illa suam religionem aperte profiteatur. Quem rumorem, tametsi ego ut falsissimum subinde reprehendo, radices tamen in multorum cordibus sic egit ut ego revellere non possum, nisi ex te sciam an hujus modi questio ad vestram ecclesiam proposita sit, et ad illam quoque quid responderint fratres? Tibi perpetuo molestus sum, et alium non habeo in cujus sinum curas meas rejiciam. Ingenue fateor, mi Pater, nec nunquam antea sensisse quam grave et difficile fuerat adversus hipochrisim pietate fucatam pugnare; apertos hostes nunquam sic timui, quum in mediis erumnis victoriam sperarem, at ita me nunc vulnerat hæc perfida a Christo defectio (quæ ab illis indulgentia tantum nominatur) ut in dies mihi vires deficiant.

Multa hic feruntur de Cranstono quodam nostrate quem mentiuntur papistæ argumentorum vehementia adigisse te ad multarum rerum palinodiam, quas prius in scriptis tuis affirmaveras; sed hæc tanquam ridicula prætereo. Scripsisset ad te religion; and, though I frequently denounce that rumour as utterly false, yet it has become so rooted in the hearts of many, that I cannot root it out, unless I learn from you whether this question has been proposed to your church, and what answer the brethren gave to it. I am a continual trouble to you, and I have no other to whom I can confide my anxieties. I frankly confess, my Father, that I never before felt how weighty and difficult a matter it is to contend against hypocrisy under the disguise of piety. I never so feared open enemies when in the midst of troubles I could hope for victory. But now this treacherous defection from Christ (which by them is styled merely an indulgence) so wounds me that my strength daily diminishes.

Many things are said here of one Cranston, a countryman of ours, who, the Papists say, compelled you, by the power of his arguments, to recant many things that you had previously

2
K. Leopoldi S. P. mandata.

tranquillitatem vestram turbavit admodum regina. nunc videtur esse appropinquat quod est vobis scilicet illud missivum. Et melius opposuerunt viri (esse enim) graves, et auctoritate eorum, etiam se non esse sine influencia permittere, ut terra illa quae domus, et orbi sui effratia ad regnum devoluta purgetur: versus ipsi appropinquat, etiam iniquitatem pedantur.

Et videtur ad hoc comes deinde sed abbas. Colitur in Jacobus ille frater reginae iniquum pueri qui solus inter illos qui in regnum impunitate se opponit. ille tamen inter et alios sustinetur in hoc quod videtur scilicet illud violenis deherbaris. Colitur in colupta tota et hanc pueri subdita flagrant. Et Johannes de dicit colupta pueri in vobis. Et Abbas de dicitur 24 octobris 1667.

Qui scripsit
Joannes Pueri

comes Arrianus, sed aberat. Salutatur te Jacobus ille frater Reginae, maxime senex, qui solus inter illos qui Aulam frequentant impietati se opponit; ille tamen inter reliquos fascinatur in hoc quod veretur idolum illud violenter deturbare. Salutatur te Ecclesia tota et tuarum precum subsidia flagitat. Dominus Jesus te diu Ecclesiae suae incolumem servet. Amen.

Edinburgi, 24 Octobris 1561.

Tui observantissimus,

JOANNES KNOX.

Servantissimo viro et domino suo colendissimo domino
JOANNI CALVINO Ecclesiae Genevensis pastori vigilantissimo.

Dentur Genevæ.¹

affirmed in your writings; but I pass by these as ridiculous. The Earl of Arran would have written to you, but he is absent. James, the Queen's eldest brother, who alone among those that frequent the Court, opposes himself to ungodliness, salutes you. Yet he among others labours under this delusion, that he is afraid to overthrow that idol by violence. The whole church salutes you, and entreats the help of your prayers. The Lord Jesus long preserve you to His Church in safety.

Your most devoted,

JOHN KNOX.

Edinburgh, 24 October 1561.

To a most faithful man, and his most worshipful master,
John Calvin, the very vigilant pastor of the Church of Geneva.

To be delivered at Geneva.

¹ In M. Teulet's "Papiers d'Etat," with a most accurate facsimile of the original. etc., tome ii., this letter is accompanied LXIII.—MAITLAND OF LETHINGTON TO SIR WILLIAM CECILL.

SIR,

I understand by your lettres sent to Mr. Randolph, that the Duke of Gwyse hath broken with Sir Nicolas Throgmorton the mater mocioned by me to the Quene's Majestie. I wishe it may be so receaved by yow, as both realmes may enoy the frenshe, which shall proceade off so godly ane accord. I wolde be glade to answer her Majestie's determinacion, sence she hath understand by Sir Peter Mewatas¹ the Quene my Maistress disposition to joyne with her in tender amety, if by the meanes off us two soche a conjunction maye be procured, we shalbe esteemed happy instruments for our countreyes. I know how unwilling yow be to enter in maters off so great consequence; yet when yow shall consider what suerty, quietnes, and commodity this mocion importeth to the Quene your Soveraygne and your native countrey, I suppose yow will be bold to uter frankly your opinion in it. God hathe by tymes offred many meanes of a godly coniunction, by what providence it hath chanced that none hath taken offre as yet I can not tell, this hath most likelyhod to come to pas as grounded upon equity, and soche as neyther party can therby think hym seft gryefed. Suerly, if this shalbe overthrowen, as other have bene heretofore, it may be juged that God is not pleased with us, and will that one off us shall ever be a plague to the other, let us doe our duety and commit the success to God. I pray yow, in your next lettres, write amply your opinion unto me, the Quene my Maistress doth so gently behave herself in every behalff as reasonably we can require: if any thing be amiss the falt is rather in ourselfes. You know the vehemence off Mr. Knox spriet, which cannot be bryddled; and that doth sometymes uter soche sentences as can not easaly be dygested by a weake stomach. I wolde wishe he sholde deale with her more gently, being a yong Princess onpersuaded, for this am I accounted to be politik, but suerly in her comorting with him she doth declare a wisdomer far exceeding her age. God grant her the assistance off his Sprict. Suerly I see in her a good towardnes, and think that the Quene your Soveraygne shalbe able to do moche with her in religion, if they ever enter in a good familiarity. I pray yow have me hartely recommended to my Lord of Penbroke. I must yet ones agayne recommend unto yow the poor marchands suyt, which this bearer doth sollicit, wherein I pray yow shew towardes him your accustomed favour; and, Sir, I take my leave, after most hartly commendacions.

¹ See vol. ii. p. 294, footnote 1.

From Edenburg, the xxv day of October 1561.

Your Honour at commandment,

W. MAITLAND.

To the Right honorable Sir William Cecill, Knyght, principall Secretary to the Quene's Majestie of Englande. These.

LXIV.—EXTRACTS, RANDOLPH TO SIR WILLIAM CECILL.

. . . . To answer some poyntes of your Honour's lettre, wheare I will crave pardon how shorte so never I be, for that thys bearer hartlye haste to be upon his waye; wheare your honor lyketh better the demenition of the bysshops and others livings then th'augmentation of the Crowne therwith, what cane I saye better then that I fynde written,—Merx meretricis et ad meretrices reversa est—I fynde yt nether done for zeale to Chryste's religion, nor hatred to the viciusnes of their lyves that had yt: yf she dyd that for neade, theie themselves to have enjoyed the whole, offred myche more. I fynde not also that all other men besyde the kirkemen ar pleased with thys. The Duke he begynnythe nowe to greve, he muste departe from vii partes of Arbrothe, the Bysshope of St. Andrews from as myche of his livinges, the Lord Claude, the Duke's sone in Englande, futurus successor to Parsolaye,¹ also the viith; the Abbot of Kilwynnyng as muche, bysydes divers others of that race, so that maynie a Hamilton shall shortelye be torned a beggyng. And I assure your Honour I knowe not whether thys be hable to make the Duke a Papyste agayne, for nowe conferunt consilia the Bysshope and he. The bysshopes are so intollerable licencius of their lyves, that yt was no longer to be endured, and a better waye to plage them ther was none then to plucke at their lyvings, in speciall by her in whome their whole hope and truste was.

At Edinbourge, the 15th Januarie, at nyght, 1561-[62].

Your Honour bounden reddye at commande,

THO. RANDOLPHE.

. . . . One thyng ther is, which St. Colme is reported to be autour of, which I wyll not conceile from your Honour, though yt be harde to believe, which is, that the Cardinall is content, and hathe persuaded thys Quene to imbrace the Religion of Englande. Thys is nowe common in all men's mouthes; maynie wyshe yt to be trewe. Other thynke us so farre from the mark, that theie saye, as good never a whyte, as never the better. By my nexte I shall have farther occasion to wryte unto your Honour hereof, by reason of some purposes that of late I have had with Mr. Knox and other mynesters, to be playne with your Honour, as wylfull as lerned, which hartely I lamente. . . .

At Edinbourge, the xxx of Januarie 1561-[2].

. . . . The Apologie is so well lyked, that there are dyvers wyshe that ther were maynie of them in thys countrie,² or at the leaste one man that were hable to set forthe so profitable

¹ Or the Abbey of Pasley, of which Lord Claude Hamilton became Comendator.

² Randolph here refers to Bishop

Jewel's celebrated work, which had just appeared, "Apologia Ecclesie Anglicanae. Londini, Anno Domini, M.D.LXII." small 8vo. In the University Library, and neadefull a worke. I have cawsed one to be given to the Bysshope of Rosse, and purpose to send one other to the Bysshope of St. Andrewes, not to do them good, which I knowe is unpossible, but to heape mischief upon their heades.

At Edinbourge, the iiii of Februarie 1561-[2].

. . . . The state of thyngs here remayne in their wonted sorte. Our Papystes mystruste greatlye the metinge. Our Protestantes as greatlye desyr yt as th'other are agaynste yt. Our preacher, to be playne with your honour, at one worde, more vehement then descryte or lerned, which I hartily lament. The lyttle brute that hathe byne here of late, that thys Quene is advised by the Cardinall to imbrace the religion of Englande, maketh them rone allmoste wyld, of the which theie both saye and preache that yt is lyttle better then when it was at the warste. I have not so amplye conferred with Mr. Knox in these matters as shortlye I muste, whoe, upon Sondag laste, gave the Crosse and the Candle such a wype, that as wyse and lerned as hym selfe wysshed hym to have hylde his peace. He recompenced the same with a mervelous, vehemente, and persingge prayer, in th'ende of his sermond, for the contynuanee of amytye and hartie love with Englande.

At Edinbourge, the xij of Februarie 1561-[2].

. . . . The Papystes here rejoyce not a lyttle of their noble campyon, the Kynge of Navarre. Theie hope nowe theie knowe not for what. The daye is nowe past that theie looked for here. Ther came latelye a booke, from the Abbot of Corserogell, the [s]lypperie Abbot, that made the booke¹ that the olde Bysshoppe of Durham² so greatlye delyghted in, sent unto Mr. Knox, con-

Edinburgh, there is a copy of this first edition, inscribed, "To the right honorable the Lorde James Stewarde, from Tho. Randolphe, Virtus pro divitiis." tayninge xx^{iiij} [83] Articles, requieringe them to be answered, wherin bothe Mr. Knox, and the moste parte of the noblemen of Scotlande, ar accused of sedition, murder, and treason. . . .

¹ See introductory notice to the Disputation with the Abbot of Crossragwell, p. 154.

² Dr. Cuthbert Tonstall.

At Edinboure, 28th Februarie, 1561-[2].

THOMAS RANDOLPHE.

LXV.—KNOX TO MRS. ANNA LOCK.

OUR estate heere is trublesome. God hath further humbled me since that day which men call Good Fryday, than ever I have beene in my life, in my bussines that God putt in my hands. And leas that the varietie of brutes¹ sould trouble you, this is the truthe :—

The great inimitie contracted betweene the Erle of Arran and the Erle Bothwell,² in the time of our former truble, was sought of manie to have beene removed ; yea, the Queen's Grace did travell in the same, and yit small comfort was espied to either of the parties. For, albeit the law of oblivion tooke away the frowning countenance for a season, yit did nather partie trust other, nather yit was that appearing, that suche constraint freindship sould long continue. Men zealous in religion, and having come to a commoun quietnes, did earnestlie travell with me, that I sould not spaire my labours to appease so great a controversie. I did long refuse, but in the end I was overcome, thinking that by their familiaritie, the kirk of God within this realme sould have received no small benefite. God did so blesse that interprise, that the like hath seldome appeared in the eyes of men : for when the most part of the friends, as weill of the offender, as of the offended, were utterlie despaired of anie comfort, by reason of extremitie that appeared in the Erle of Arran, his heart was so mollified, that he received the Erle Bothwell with lesse satisfaction than himself wold

¹ Brutes, reports.

vol. ii. p. 322-329. Calderwood's His-

² See the account given by Knox, tory, vol. ii. p. 174 179.

have offered, yea, without anie kind of ceremonie, other than the ryding to the loodging, where the two principalls mett, in the middest of the Parliament, and after few words, embraced other, and commanded all their friends to doe the same. I was present, and spake, as God gave utterance for the time. Bot, alas! my expectation was suddanlie frustrate; for the secund day after (as the Erle of Arran affirmeth), the Erle of Bothwell discovered to him the secreit of his heart, which was, to slay Lord James, Erle of Marr, Secretarie Lethington, and whosoever had credite of the Queen's Grace of that sect, and to tak possession of her Grace's bodie, for the behove of the Erle of Arran. This will not I affirme, for all the world, to have beene determined, or yit spoken of the Erle Bothwell. But the Erle of Arran hath both written and spoken to moe, alace! than to one or two. And heirof springeth our present truble, but greater appearing to follow, for suspicion once kindled, is not easie to be quenched.

Edinburgh, 6th of May 1562.

LXVI.—EXTRACTS, RANDOLPH TO SIR WILLIAM CECILL.

. . . My other requeste procedethe from Mr. Knoxe, whoe nowe, as he sayth, is a sole man, by reason of the absence of his mother-in-lawe, Mestres Boes,¹ whoe is willing to retorne agayne into thys countrie, yf she had the Quenes Majesty's licence for herself, her man, and one mayde, with a passeporte for her iij horses, of the which two shall retorne; and to take with her so myche moneye as she hathe of her owne, the some not excedinge one hondrethe pounds sterlinge. Thys is hys humble sute unto your Honour, and that he trustethe shall not be denied unto hym, assuringe your honour that onlye thys is mente herein, that she maye be a reliefe unto hym in the burdayue of howsehould and bringynge up of his chyldren, hir dawter's sonnes.

¹ Mrs. Elizabeth Bowes.

In these two former cases, my Lord President was moved at hys beinge at Edinboure, and maye yt please your Honour that Mr. Sommer maye put your Honour in remembrance hereof, unto whome I have wrytten to defraye such charge as appertayneth; and yf that maye stonde with my Sovereignes pleasure to grant these requestes, to sende bothe their licences unto me in Scotlande, with any other charge of their behaviour and usage, as well as of the Lard's sone in Englande as Mestres Boes in Scotlande. The triall that I have had of either makethe me the bolder to become the more erneste suter unto your honour in their behalfe.

Berwicke, August 4th [1562].

. . . . Mr. Knox within two dayes takethe hys progresse towards the weste to visite the Churches, as far as hys langage wyll beare hym, and Mr. Goodman towards the north, as farre as the Quene intendethe her jorneye.

At Edinboure, the xth of Auguste 1562.

. . . . Since thys I have had dyvers purposes with maynie of the Noblemen here of the dangerous state that theie themselves stonde in, yf God sholde permytte those hys ennemies in France to have the upper hande whearby ther Sovereigne sholde be encouraged, and her power to put that in execution agaynste them the greater, which from the begynnyng both she and all hers have intendyd, which nowe most manifestlye apperethe ther, as theie them selves shall fynde shortlye after here. Ther can be nothyng said unto them, but theie themselves conceive myche more, theie see their owne ruen, and fynde no remedie to avoide the daynger; my thynks also that theie rune hedlonge into the same, for nether is ther care taken nor conference had with anye, what may be done ether to the supporte of those that are nowe afflicted and travaile alone in Chryst's cawse, the over throwe of whome is the hazardinge of the whole cawse, or, at the leaste, affliction to all those that knowe his worde, or consideration had by what meanes their Sovereigne maye be allured to knowe her duetye, and to lyve in the feare of God: For thys cawse of late Mr. Knox, both privatelye and openlye, hathe bothe saide and wrytten hys mynde unto dyvers of the noblemen; for thys cawse he is presentlye in thys towne, and hathe framede a Supplication unto the Quene in the name of the whole Church; your honor shall know more hereafter of that then presentlye I cane wryte; whear your honor lykethe none so well hys earnestnes, the self same is better approved of other then yt was wonte also to be. I see not what th'one or th'other prevaillethe.

Yt is here knowne that Monsieur de Vielleville is arrived; we stonde so well assured of the Quene's Majestie deliberate mynde not to see nor permytte the ennemies of God, the cruell ministers of the Divle to have the government of the worlde, and to exercise their contynuall crueltye as hytherto theie have begone, that we neyther feare hys perswations, nor dowte anye thyng at all that he shalbe hable to alter that determinate and godlie purpose of our Sovereigne, to be all wayes and in all places the defence of Chryst's quarell and hys worde. The brute is come unto thys Princesse eares, that some preparation is a makinge in Englande to the supporte of the Protestantes.

The xvith of Auguste, at nyghte, 1562.

Mr. Knox, with the Superintendent of Lodian, is rydden towards the weste, and Mr. Goodman with the Superintendent of Angus towards the northe, to visit the Churches, and to reforme the abuses whear theie fynde reason. I send your Honor herewith the coppie of the Supplication¹ geven to the Quene by the Superintendantes and preachers. The answer vol. ii. p. 338) was not presented to the Queen for some time, this may have been the document to which Randolph here refers; see vol. ii. pp. 344, 366.

¹ This letter and Supplication are not preserved in the State Paper Office. As the Supplication in name of the General Assembly in June 1562 (see it printed,

thereunto is promised in wrytinge which is yet not come forthe, nor shall not in haste with her good wyll, thoughe ther be no-thinge ther that she thynkethe not but that obedient subjectes myghte, in humble sorte, require of their prinesse. . . . I sende your Honour here enclosed a lettre I receaved from Mr. Knox; what men these are that he wrytethe of I cane not yet come to knowledge, but have made as maynie meanes as I cane well. I am assured that theie came in at the weste borders, suche as those are lyke to be maye worke myche mischief. Dyvers that here of them are greatlye offended with them. And yf that myght stoude with my Sovereigne's pleasure, I dowte not but to fynde the meanes to have them faste inoughe; it is trewe that Mr. Knox hathe maynie tymes geven me warninge of practisers, but thys is the fyrste that ether he or anye man els culde assure me of, and yet dothe he wryte no more then your Honour may fynde in this lettre.

At Olde Aberdyne, the laste of Auguste 1562.

. . . . The state of religion remaynethe as in my former lettres I have written, I never harde more erneste and vehement preachinge. Of the Duke I here nothings, but that he is quiet. The Byschope of St. Andrewes and Bishope of Rosse are syke; maynie truste that theie wyll not escape thys wynter. Mister William Cranstons, that passed latlie by you, a great favorer of papystes, is happelie ded in thys myschevous worlde. The Abbotte of Corsragell and Maister Knox dyspute thys daye, but I knowe not what are their questions.¹ I sende your Honor here-with the last lettre that I receaved from Maister Knox, abowte two Englishe men that I wrote unto your Honour that were with the said Abbot. Theie arrived at the Weste Borders, as I am informed, from the Maister of Maxwell. Yf yowr Honor thynke yt worthie that anye thyng shalbe done agaynste them, maye yt please you that I maye knowe your Honour's advice. Divers other ther are here, as some for murther, some for theafte, that thys countrie wolde be quyte of, yf that theie were pursude. I have farther to troble your Honor, onlie to let you understande that I have receaved your lettre of the 8th of thys instant, with Pigilion's¹ lettres unto thys Quene, of whom ther is here a brute that he was in daynger of robberyng as he passed to Dover, but the greatest losse was of the Doctor's books, which hathe given us better occasion to laughe then anye sorrowe wolde have byne taken for hym yf that he had broken hys necke. Moste humble I tayke my leave.

¹ See Knox's account of this Disputation at page 149, etc.

Wrytten in haste, the 24th of September 1562.

The Duke² came unto thys towne upon Thuresdaye laste. He broute with hym the Lord Gordon³ by commandement of the Quene; upon Saterdaye he was committed unto the Castle. Upon Sondaye, at nyght, the Duke supped with Mr. Knox, wher the Duke desyered that I sholde be. Three speciall poyntes he hathe promised to performe to Mr. Knox before me; th'one is never to goe, for any respecte, from that that he hathe promised to be a professor of Chryste's worde and setter forth of the same to hys power; the nexte, all wayes to shewe hym self an obbedyent subjecte to his Sovereigne, as fare as in deutie and conscience he is bounde; the thyrde, never to alter from that promes he hathe made for the mayntenance of peace and amytie betwene bothe the realmes. I had of hym, bysydes thys, maynie good wordes my self touchynge thys latter poynte. I wyll beleeve them all as I see them tayke effecte, but truste that yt shall never lye in his worde alone. Before the Parliment be appoynted, ther shalbe a convention at New Yeres tyde. We are desyerus to here farther of the succes of thynges in France before we sommon our Parliment, les that we tyne our sillie

¹ Or M. de Pinguillon, one of Queen Mary's household.

² The Duke of Chattelherault.

³ George Lord Gordon, and fifth Earl of Huntley, was the Duke's son-in-law.

He was tried and convicted of treason, in February following; but his sentence was not put into execution. He died in the year 1576. See vol. ii. p. 360, and the footnote.

poore Messe agaynste our wylles. . . . At Edenbourge, the laste of November 1562.

. . . . Mr. Knox hathe oftayne tymes tolde me that he is to blame that he hathe not wrytten unto your Honour of longe tyme. Of late he required me to convoie letters unto your Honour. I knowe his good zeal and affection that he beareth to our nation. I knowe also that his travaile and care is great to unite the hartes of the princes and people of these two realmes in perpetuall love and hartie kyndnes. I knowe that he mystrustethe more in his owne Sovereignes parte then he dothe of ours, he hathe no hope (to use his owne termes) that she wyll ever come to God, or do good in the common welthe. He is so full of mystrust in all her doynge, wordes, and sayengs, as though he wer eyther of God's privie consell, that knowe howe he had determined of her from the begynnyng, or that he knewe the secretes of her harte so well, that nether she dyd or culde have for ever one good thought of God or of his trewe religion. Of these matters we commun ofte: I yelde as myche as in conscience I maye unto hym, though we in some thyngs dyffer in judgement, his feare is, that newe forayners be brought into this realme. I do feare and dowte the same, yet I see no lykelyhoode, nor can gyve no reason whye, more then he, whome she shall marrie; I can not thynk nor here of none that goo about her. Those that tawlke with me of Spayne can never mayke that synk into my heade; for the Sweden, she saythe her self she will not; for other farther of, theie are lyke to tayke great paynes for lyttle proffit. So that by marriage, I se not what number shall come that shall possesse thys realme agayne as before, or hable to mayke partie agaynste so maynie confirmyd Protestantess as I trust are nowe in thys realme. Yf the Guisians be victorius in France, the matter is more to be dowted, and that we feare moste; but God, I trust, hathe styrred upe suche a partie against hym that that shall passe his power, and no losse befawle hym then in th'end God sendethe unto all suche blude thyrstie tyrantes as he is.

As Mr. Knox hathe opined unto your Honour hys feare, so am I bolde also to let your Honour wytte my opinion, bothe what cawse he hathe not so dieplye to feare, nor so farre to mystruste in the goodnes of God, but thys Woman may in tyme be called to that knowledge of his truthe, or at leaste, that she have not that force to suppress his Evangell here, or to breake that amytie and concorde that is so well begone, and I truste shall tayke suche progresse that his glorie maye be knowne, and the posteritie of bothe the Realmes rejoyce for ever, and gyve hym thanks for the workers of the same. Upon Sondaye laste he inveied sore agaynst the Quene's dansynge, and lyttle exercise of her self in vertue or godlines: the report hereof beinge broughte unto her eares yesterdaye, she sent for hym. She talked longe tyme with hym, lyttle lykyng ther was betwene them of th'one or th'other, yet dyd theie so depart as no offence or slaunder dyd ryse ther upon. She neyther [suffered] hym to speake hys conscience, as he wolde answer before God, [and] as she wolde also in her doings.

Ther are certayne wycked Friers sente owte of thys cuntrye for feare of punyshment, and are receaved (as yt is reported) for mynesters in Englande. Mr. Knox hathe wrytten somewhat therof to Sir Henrie Syddenaye, as also I shall have occasion shortlye to wryte to your Honour.

At Edenbourge, the 16th of December 1562.

. . . . Men begyne here to dreame, I know not what, of thys Quene's marriage with Spayne. The papystes, I trowe, speake yt as they wolde have yt. But I am assured that when soever anye suche thyngs shall burste owte (as I wyll not saye but yt is in her harte, and further as in tyme you shall knowe), posteriora erunt pejora primis.

Mr. Knox is so harde unto us that we have layde asyde myche of our dansinge. I dowte yt more for heavines of harte, that thyngs procede not well in France then for feare of hym. Ther is thryse in the weeke an ordinarie sermonde in the Erle of Murrayes lodginge within the Quenes howse, so nere to the Masse that two so mortall enemies cane not be never joyned with owte some deadlye blowe gyven eyther upon th'one syde or th'other. One of the Quenes prestes gotte a couffe in a darke nyght, that made some what adoe. Her musitions, bothe Scottis and Frenche, refused to playe and singe at her Masse and Even songe upon Chrystmas daye. Thus is her poore soule so troubled for the preservation of her syllye Masse, that she knowethe not wher to torne for her defence of yt.

Frome Dunbarre, the 30th December 1562.

THOMAS RANDOLPHE.

THE REASONING
BETWIXT THE ABBOT OF CROSSRAGUELL AND JOHN KNOX
CONCERNING THE MASS.

M.D.LXII.

It cannot but appear singular that the Roman Catholic clergy should have manifested so little zeal during the progress of the Reformation, to maintain the cause of Popery against the Protestant party. But no systematic efforts seem to have been made, either in England or in this country, to regain their former influence, or to supply the ordinances of the Church to those who still conscientiously adhered to their doctrines and the ancient forms of worship. No doubt the Romish services were prohibited under severe penalties, but the convictions of faith will rise superior to the fiercest trials of persecution. We may therefore suppose, that the higher dignitaries were quite content when they had secured for themselves a peaceful toleration, and the enjoyment of two-thirds of their income; and that others of the priesthood, possessed of learning and zeal, who would otherwise have been foremost in the cause of truth, were precisely those who had become convinced of, and repudiated the errors of the Romish Church. But so far as religious controversy was concerned, it is necessary in this place to notice such persons as then distinguished themselves by engaging in theological discussions.

The arrival of Mary Queen of Scots, infected by French manners and education, and devotedly attached to the Roman Catholic faith, to take possession of the Throne, in August 1561, proved a great misfortune to the Reformers. Various passages in Knox's History sufficiently testify the singular influence she possessed. Among the persons who accompanied the Queen from France was her preacher and confessor, René Benoist, in Latin, Renatus Benedictus. He was a divine of some note, and produced two or three small treatises, in a vain endeavour to conciliate differences of opinion in matters of religious faith and practice. One of these was a Latin epistle, addressed to 'the most learned' John Knox, and the other Protestant ministers, dated from Holyroodhouse, the 19th of November 1561. It was translated "by a certain Frier," and was "greatly boasted of" or commended. At the urgent request of some of his brethren, David Fergusson, minister of Dunfermling, wrote an answer, paragraph by paragraph, to what he called, "this pithless Epistle." His Answer, including the Epistle itself, was printed soon after, but it is of such rarity that only one single copy has been discovered; but having recently been reprinted, it is now placed beyond the chance of destruction.¹

The Abbot Quintine Kennedy, Ninian Winzet, and James Tyrie, were the only other controversialists whose works have descended to our times. But having elsewhere furnished nearly all the information that can be gleaned respecting Winzet and Kennedy,² it is the less necessary to enlarge in this place, except in so far as Knox himself was personally concerned; and of Tyrie, some notice will be more appropriate in another part of the present volume.

NINIAN WINZET was born at Renfrew in 1518, and appointed master of the Grammar School of Linlithgow about the year 1551. His refusal to subscribe to the new Confession led to a dispute with his superiors, John Spottiswood, superintendent of Lothian, and John Kinloquhy, minister of Linlithgow, by whom he was ejected in 1561. On the 15th of February 1562, Winzet presented to the Queen a Tractate addressed to her Majesty, the prelates and nobility of Scotland, soliciting permission to propose in writing certain articles to the Protestant ministers.

¹ Tracts by David Fergusson, minister of Dunfermline, M.D.LXIII.—M.D.LXXII. Edinburgh, 1860, 8vo. Presented to the Bannatyne Club as the contribution of the late Principal Lee.

² Life of Ninian Winzet, prefixed to a republication of Winzet's Tracts, present by John B. Gracie, Esq., to the Maitland Club, 1835, 4to. Introductory notice to Abbot Kennedy's tract, in the first volume (the only one published) of "The Miscellany of the Wodrow Society," Edinburgh, 1844, 8vo.

This had a reference to his "Booke of Four-score three Questions." A few days later he specially directed three of these questions to Knox, regarding his vocation to the ministry, seeing, he says, that he had renounced his ordination to the priesthood, by which "he had sumtyme been called Schir Johne Knox." These questions and letters were printed under the title of "Certane Tractatis for Reformatioun of Doctryne and Maneris in Scotland." But Knox, excepting a few remarks from the pulpit, declined answering Winzet's letters, perhaps treating him in a somewhat supercilious manner, although it was his intention to have published an answer to these questions and tracts. But Winzet found it necessary to escape from Edinburgh in disguise, the magistrates having seized the copies of his Tractates, and imprisoned the printer, apparently interrupting the completion of his "Last Blast of the Trumpet," in July 1562. For other matters concerning Winzet, I may refer to the account of his life and writings already mentioned,¹ and shall only add, that he was appointed, in 1578, by Pope Gregory XIII., to the Abbaey of the Scottish Monastery of St. James, at Ratisbon, or Regensburg, an establishment which is still maintained. The Abbot died there on the 21st of September 1592, aged 74, and was interred within the church of the monastery. Some years ago, on visiting the place, I was interested in finding that besides the Latin inscription which has been printed,² the monument has carved in relief a half-length figure of Abbot Winzet, in his canonical dress, with a pastoral staff in his right hand, and holding a book in his left. It represents a placid, round, and intelligent countenance, such as we might imagine of a person who had for many years enjoyed the ease and retirement of a monastic life.

MR. QUINTINE KENNEDY was the fourth son of Gilbert, second Earl of Cassilis, and Isobell, daughter of Archibald second Earl of Argyle. He was born about the year 1520, and having commenced his studies in St. Salvator's College, St. Andrews, he completed them at the University of Paris. On returning to Scotland, his first preferment was to the vicarage of Girvan in Carrick. This he resigned on being presented, on the 4th of October 1547 to the vicarage of Penpont in Nithsdale, vacant by the death of an elder brother, Thomas Kennedy, who had also been educated for the Church. In the following year he was admitted to the temporalities of the monastery of Crossraguell in Carrick, by a precept under the Privy Seal, dated 23d April 1548. "Quintinus Abbas Monasterii Crucis regalis," was present at the Provincial Council held at Edinburgh, 27th November 1549.

¹ See also the Memoir of Winzet, in Irving's Lives of Scottish Writers, vol. i. p. 98, Edinburgh, 1839.

² In the Life of Winzet, 1835, p. xxi.

The success attending the Protestant preachers induced Abbot Kennedy, who enjoyed a reputation for patristic learning, to exert himself in defence of his own principles, by the publication of "Ane Compendius Tractive, conforme to the Scripturis of Almychtie God, Resson, and Authoritie, declaring the nerrest and onlie way to establische the conscience of ane Christiane man in all materis (quhilks ar in debate), concernyng Faith and Religioun. Set furth, &c. In the yeir of God 1558 yeris." 4to. This work was highly commended by his friends, and also in later times, by Bishop Keith and others. From the importance attached to it as one of the few productions of the time by Popish writers, and its great rarity, I included it in the only volume published of the "Miscellany of the Wodrow Society," 1844; and also the still rarer production, An Answer to the Abbot's work, by John Davidson, Principal of the College of Glasgow, originally printed at Edinburgh in 1563, 4to., and dedicated to Alexander Earl of Glencairne. Some letters relating to a proposed disputation between Kennedy and John Willock at Ayr, in March 1559, were first printed by Keith in the Appendix to his History, and are reprinted in the "Wodrow Miscellany." This dispute did not take place, as Willock would not submit to the Abbot's interpretation of Scripture as given by the ancient Doctors of the Church.

The Abbot's next work was An Oration in the year 1561, chiefly intended to controvert "a notable syllogisme or argument set forth by a famous preacher called John Knox," contained in his sermon or Vindication, in April 1550, before Cuthbert Tonstall, Bishop of Durham.¹ This Oration was first printed by Sir Alexander Boswell, in 1812, from a MS. in the Auchinleck Library; and as connected with Knox, and the subsequent Disputation, it is subjoined to this notice. Another work by Kennedy exists in MS., in the same Library, but somewhat mutilated. It is entitled, "Ane familiar Commune and Ressoning anent the Misterie of the Sacrifice of the Mess, betuix tua brethir, Maister Quentin Kennedy, Commendator of Crosraguell, and James Kennedy of [Uchterlour]," 1561. From a more perfect copy I have extracted the dedication,² on account of its quaint satirical allusions to Knox and the other reformers to whom it is addressed. It seems to have been this unpublished work that drew forth an elaborate answer, with the title of "The Confutation of the Abbote of Crosraguell's Masse, set furth by Maister George Hay. Imprinted at Edinburgh by Robert Lekpreuik, 1563," 4to, 96 leaves, and dedicated "To the most noble, potent, and godlie Lord James Earle of Murray." "This our Abbote," says Hay, "hath continually barked from the beginning of this mercifull visitation of our God and Reformatioun in Scotland." Dr. M'Crie³ has given a detailed account and some extracts from Hay's work, which is so rare, like most books of the kind, that I know of only two copies in existence.

But the most remarkable event in Abbot Kennedy's history, was his disputation with Knox, at Maybole, in September 1562. It lasted for three days, with the usual result of such disputes. To counteract the false reports that were circulated, Knox prepared and published the work that follows. It was reprinted by Sir Alexander Boswell in 1812, from what was esteemed to be the only existing copy, in the Auchinleck Library; but a second copy, not quite perfect, is in the possession of the Marquess of Breadalbane, Taymouth Castle.

¹ See vol. iii. p. 29.

² Infra, p. 166.

³ Life of Knox, Appendix.

Of the Abbot's subsequent history, not much remains to be noticed. In some proceedings against the Catholic clergy, Spottiswood says, that the Abbot of Crossraguell, on account of his connexions, was overlooked. Randolph, however, in his letter of news, 20th May 1563, states, that "The Bishop of St. Andrews was arraigned, so was (Malcolm Flemyng) the Prior of Whithorn, and the Abbot of Crossraguell should have been, but could not be taken." It appears that in May that year, John Archbishop of St. Andrews, the Abbot of Crossraguell, and others, were charged with the crimes of celebrating mass, attempting to restore Popery at Kirkoswald, Maybole, Paisley, and other places: some of them were convicted and put in ward.¹ But Quintine Kennedy did not long survive, having died 24th July 1564. By some accounts he was canonized as a Saint,² but for such a statement there is no foundation.

The Abbey of Crossraguell is finely situated in a valley, about two miles distant from Maybole, Ayrshire. It was an Abbey of Black Monks, of the order of Cluniacenses, or the rules of St. Benet, and was founded by Duncan, son of Gilbert Earl of Carrick, in the year 1244. The ruins of the abbey are very extensive, and views of the buildings are given in Slezer's "Theatrum Scotiæ," 1693, in Grose's "Antiquities of Scotland," and in other works. There are also views of Maybole, a collegiate establishment, founded by Sir Gilbert Kennedy of Dunure, in the year 1441, for a Provost and several prebendaries. The place where the disputation took place was the Provost's house, which is now occupied as the Red Lion Inn.³

¹ Pitcairn's Criminal Trials, vol. i. p. 427*.

² Crawford's Peerage of Scotland, p. 75.

³ Statistical Accounts of the Parish.

AN ORATION BY MR. QUINTINE KENNEDY, COMMENDATOR OF CROSSRAGUELL.

1561.

ANE EPISTOL TO THE NOBILITE AND PRINCIPALIS OF THE CONGREGATIONE.

HAVAND consideratione of the grete fervour, zele, and desire that your Lordships menis to haif towart the trew understanding and furth-setting of Goddis wourde, I haif schawin gude will (as it hes plesit God to geif me grace) according to my jugement, to oppin and mak patent ane way quharby just tryall in sumpart ma be had of the samin : And that be ane Oratione set furth in your favouris, contrar the railling ressoning, and doctrine of thais quhilkis ar rackinnit to be chief ministeris and prechouris to the Congregatioun ; sua that I be accusatioun of thar wickit and ungodlie doctrine, thrawand the scripture of Almychti God by the godlie menyng of the samyn ; and thai, be the contrar defendand thair doctrine and doingis, your pretense towart the just triall of the trew understanding of Goddis worde ma cum to sum pass ; nocht douttande bot it is your Lordships will and mynde that the treuth be tryit affir the maner, rathar nor that Cristin men salbe compellit in thare conscience, but other mesour or rasone to ganestand the samin. Gif your Lordships, or ony utheris will find falt that I dar be sua balde to impugne or accuse your Prechouris and Ministeris, because it is thoct odiuss that ony man suld tak the place or personage upon him to be ane accuser, treuly, and ye will be sa gude as diligentlie to mark and consider this our godlie pretense, ye sall persave that we do rather cleyth our self with the personage of ane defendar of the treuth nor accusar of the verite, be rasone, accusatioun, and inveying aganis all fals and ungodlie doctrine, ma propirlic be callit just defence of the verite ; quharfra, God willing, for bud nor boist, quhill that my tong ma steir, I intend nocht to desist ; prayand the gude Lord to illuminat your hertis and ouris, with his Spreit of verite, in sic maner as this our godlie pretense ma be profitable to your Lordships, and all utheris, and acceptable to Almychti God, quha of his infinite mercie and grace mot geif you and me, and all Cristiane men, ever lestande lyfe. Amen.

ANE ORATIOUNE IN FAVOURIS OF ALL THAIS OF THE CONGREGATIONE, EXHORTAND THAIM TO ASPY HOW WONDERFULLIE THAI AR ABUSIT BE THAIR DISSAIT-FULL PRECHOURIS; SET FURTH BE MASTER QUINTINE KENNEDY, COMMENDATOUR OF CORSRAGUELL, THE YEIR OF GODE 1561.

Attendite a falsis prophetis qui veniunt ad vos in vestimentis ovium, intrinsecus autem sunt lupi rapaces.—MATTH. vii.

MOVIT and constranit, nocht onclie be natural affectione, through tendernes of blude, quhilk is betuix me and diverse noble men of the Congregatione, bot rather compellit in my conscience, I haif thoct expedient to bestow and apply the talent and grace quhilk God hes gevin me, (gif thair be ony) in sik maner as ma be to the glore of God, trew setting furth of his wourd to thais quhilkes ar abusit with fals, wicked, and ungodlie doctrine; specialie, in this maist dangerus tyme, quhar-into all hereseis apperis to be assemblit and gadderit togidder, as an arrayt oist, to inwade, oppress, and utterlie dounthring the trew fayth and religione of Cristiane menne, so deirlie coft with the precieus blude and deth of Jhesus Christ our Salviour: and to the effect that we ma, be Goddis grace and favour, fulfill this our godlie pretense and purpose, shortlie will we call to remembrance ane notable syllogisme (or argument) sett furth be ane famous prechour, callit JOHN KNOX, in his Sermon aganis the Mess, in maner as efter followis:—

“ All worschipping, honoring, or service inventit be the brayne of manne in the religion of God, without his owne expres commandement, “ is ydolatrie: the Mess is inventit be the brayne of manne, without ony “ commandement of God: tharfor it is ydolatrie.”¹

Haif pacience, beluiffit brether in Jhesus Christ, and suffer me to dissiffer and declare this dissagisit syllogisme, and, God willing, I sall mak you clerly to understand gif the samin be godlie, propirle, and learnitlie appliit for confirmatione of his purpos, till prove the Mess ydolatrie. As to the first part of his syllogisme, quhar he dois affirme all worschipping of God inventit be the brayne of manne without expres command of God to be ydolatrie, it is als falss as Goddis wourd is trew;² for quhy? did not Abel, Abraham, Noe,³ and diverse utheris of the aulde fatheris,⁴ invent meanis and ways to the worschiping of God without expres commande of God, and wes acceptable to the Lord God, as the Aulde Testament techis us?⁵ Did not Cornelius centurio inlike-

¹ See Knox's "Vindication of the Doctrine that the Mass is Idolatry," 4th April 1550; Works, vol. iii. p. 34.

² Gen. 4.

⁴ Gen. 8.

³ Gen. 22.

⁵ Act. 10.

wise invent meanis and ways to the worschipping of God, without expres commande of God, quhilk wes acceptable to God, as the New Testament plainly techis ws? Thus ma we cleirly persave that this wicket syllogisme above rehersit is expres aganis the Scripture of Almychti God, bayth Aulde Testament and New. Secondlie, to preve his fals and wicket syllogisme, impropirly callis he to remembrance the Scripture of Almychti God, quhare mentione is maid how King Saule made sacrifice onto God of his owne brayne, and wes nocht acceptable to the Lorde God.¹ Mark this place of the Scripture, and it salbe easly persavit that it is all wayis impropirly appliit; for quhy? his syllogisme makis mentione of the worschipping of Gode inventit be the brayne of manne, without expres commande of God; and this place of Scripture testifeis plainly of the worschipping of God inventit be the brayne of manne, expres contrar to the commande of God. And sua may we cleirly understand that this first part of his syllogisme differis far fra the testimonie of Scripture, adducit be him for confirmatione of the samyn; bicaus thair is ane grete difference betuix the worschipping of God inventit be manne, without expres commande of God, and the worschipping of God inventit be manne, expres contrar to the command of Gode; the ane may never stand with the Scripture; the other aggreis with the Scripture, bayth Auld Testament and New, as I haif allreddy declarit. Thridlie, it is to be markit how this testimonie of Scripture, quhare mentione is made how Kyng Saul maid sacrifice onto God, is impropirly appliit to preve the Mess ydolatrie, because Saul committit na ydolatrie, albeit he wershippit God contrar to his commande; for quhy ydolatrie is to ascribe Goddis² glorie to ony uther nor to God himself, or to werschip ony uther as God; quhilk Saul did nocht, because he maid his sacrifice and oblatione to the leving God, quharthrouch he committit na ydolatrie: quharfar it is manifest, that this testimonie of Scripture is impropirly appliit for probatioune of ydolatrie. And to be assurit of the samyn, ye sall mark the wourdis of Samuel the prophete, spekande unto Saul: "Thou art becum ane fule,³ (says Samuel) that hes nocht observit the preceptis of the Lord, quhilkis he hes commandit th'." Mark how Samuel fand falt with Saul, because that Saul brek the commandement of God, and nocht that he committit ydolatrie, for all breking of the commandment of God is nocht ydolatrie, bot all ydolatrie is breking of the commandement; quhilk difference this subtile rasonare (apperandlie) hes nocht diligentlie markit;⁴ and albeit the Scripture dois affirme that stubbornes is as the wicketnes of ydolatrie, nochtthees stubbornes is nocht ydolatrie. Likewise the Scripture dois call disobedience as is the syn of wichcraft, yit disobedience is nocht wichcraft. Thus ma we persave, how menne unleirnit ar oft tymes dissivit, be the Scripturis falslie appliit. Now do I appele the conscience of all thais of the Congregation to be equal jugeis, and decern gif this syllogisme aboun rehersit be goddellie, propirle, and leirnitlie appliit, for confirmatioun of Knox wickit opinioun aganis the blissit sacrifice of the Mess. For Christis saik tak hede how miserably ye ar dissavit be the dissaitfull doctrine of your devoute doctour, of quhome sum of you hes intollerable vane persuasione, thinkand him to haif the spirit of God, as had Peter or Paule. Did ever Peter or Paule steir up seditioun amangis the peple of God be fals applicatioun of Scripturis, as your Doctour hes done, like as I haif allredly manifestlie and abundantlie provin? Did ever Peter or Paul steir up disobedience be injurius and blasphemus crying out, but schame, with oppin chaftis, aganis the magistrates (and that undeservit) as did your pestilent prechour in plane pulpete cry out, but mesour or mercie,¹ in contrar our niaist noble and godlie Princess, affirmande hir Grace (and that falslie and wicketlie) to be nurist and upbrocht in ydolatrie, persuading to all menne rather to sched thare blude, nor thai sulde suffer the Messe to be sterit up agane? Lord God, quhat Cristiane mannis hart, yhe or quhat luiffing subject, ma with pacience heir this intollerable, bludy blasphematioun, fury, and wodnes?² Dois nocht the Scripture plainlie forbid us to blasphemie the magistratis? Haif pietie, haif pietie for Christis sake, haif pietie and commiseratioun of your aune saulis, and be nocht abusit onne this maner with your dissaitfull windfallin Prechour, nocht knowand quabarra he come nor be quhat ordour.

¹ 1 Reg. 13.² Definitio.³ 1 Reg. 13.⁴ Reg. 15.

Now will we call to remembrance ane other testimonie of Scripture, impropirle appliit, quharby Knox, and diverse utheris factious prechouris to the Congregatioun, hes sterit up seditioun amangis the membris of Jhesus Christ; quhilk is ane familiar falt to him, and all deplorit heretikis, quhilkis ever hes bene sene the fayth first began. It is writtin in the Scripture of Almyhti Gode, how the Lorde commandit to distroy the ydolaturis,³ and all places quhair into thair ydolis wer had in reverence, and honorit as the leving God, quharwith hes Knox and diverse utheris, malhereux precheouris to the Congregatioun, sterit up with zele but knowlege, to wrak ane grete part of the policy of this realme: Quhairfor, in favouris of the Congregatione, we sall schaw gud will (according to our understanding) to mak thame cleirly to consider, how impropirle, falsly, and wicketlie, ar thir places of Scripture gadderit, and appliit to persuade this wickit pretence and opinioun. Treuth it is, the Lorde commandit to distroy the ydolaturis, and all places quhairinto thair ydolis wer had in reverence, and honorit as the leving God, (and that justlie) be rasone thair biggit thair templis, and all other places of prayer, to the entent that thair ydolis sulde be werschippit thairinto as the leving God. Be the contrar, I am mair nor assurit, thair wes never Cristin man quhilk ever biggit ane tempill or kirk, or any other places of prayeris, bot to the entent that the leving God sulde be deulie worschippit tharinto: quharfor, it wer the dewtie of all Cristiane menne, to quhome it appertenis to tak ordour in materis concerning religione, in case thair wer abusione, to correct the abusione conforme to the practice of the Evangel, and nocht to mak plane destructione mysordourlie, as menne dois in thir days. Did nocht our Salviour correct the abusione, quhilk he fand into the temple dedicat to the honour of God, without distructioun of the samin? quharby we are manifestlie instructit, that all temples and places, biggit be Cristiane menne, to the honour of God (in case thai war abusit), ar to be correctit, and nocht utarlie destroyit, as places biggit be the ydolaturis to ydolis. Thus may we cleirlye persave quhat abominatione and wicketnes, quhat furie and wodnes, oft tymes procedis of thrawin interpretatione, and impropir applicatioune of the Scripturis of Almighty God. Gif Knox, or ony uthir, will affirme, that the temples and kirkis of Cristiane menne ar to be destroyit as housis of ydolatrie, because the Mess is said and honorit in thaim (quhilk he callis Idolatrie), it is also false as God is trew; for quhy? the Mess wes institut be Jhesus Christ our Salviour, in his latter supper, as, God willing, we sall mak the Congregatioune and all uthiris cleirlye to understand, be our little werk, quhilk is all reddy to be sett furth, concerning the Sacrifice of the Mess. Gif it had plesit God, in dew tyme, to haif sterit up the hartis of thais of the Congregatioune, diligentlie to hafe aspiit and markit how this testimony of Scripture, and diverse uthiris, ar perversitlie appliit be thare seditiouse prechouris, contrar the godlie menyng of the samyn,¹ than had nocht the policie of this realme bene put to uter confusione and wrakment, as it is, and that nocht without grete calamite, miserie, and hurt of the commoun wele. Than had nocht the antiquiteis ande monumentis of this Realme bene schaimfullie destroyit, quhilkis in all uthir realmis ar heichly prysit and regardit be all men of godlie leirnyng and jugement. Than had nocht sa mony pure menne deit miserably under dikes through hunger, caulde, and povertie for laik of cheritie, quhilk is waxt calde through the iniquitie of thir pestilent prechouris. Than had nocht honest menne bene banist fra thair leving, incontrar all gude rasone, kyndnes, and conscience. Than had nocht sick fremmitnes bene amangis Cristin menne, quham amangis God and nature requiris maist tendernes, favour, and hartlines. Than had nocht sick suspitioune bene amangis the Nobilite of this realme, everilk ane luke-ande daly for uthiris wrakment and mischeif. Than had nocht bene sic intollerable disobedience incontrar all magistratis bath spirituall and temporall, quhilk of all synnes maist horriblie steris up the ire and wraith of Almychti God (as the Scriptour panielie techis us), conforme to the wourdis of the Apostol, sayande, "He that resistis unto the hear power, resistis unto God, and wirkis his aune dampnatione." I will nocht be sua balde (because it is Goddis privat) to aggrege the incredible and wouderfull mistemperance of the air, quhilk continualie hes bene in this realme sene this devillis dangeruss dance first begun. Alace ! alace ! with sorofull hart, weping, and teris, I am constranit to desist fra farther aggravatione of this miserable purposs ; for gif I had all the eloquence that ever had Cicero or Demostenes, I amme nocht hable to discrive the hundreth part of the samin. Nochtwithstanding, gif I wer of worthlines to geif consale, to thais to quham it appertenis to tak ordour toward the gret misordour quhilk hes bene, and is sterit up daly in this realme (be Knox and utheris factious prechouris), I walde wyss thai sulde schaw thair clemencie, mercie, and gentilnes, to the subjectis tharof, as ma stande with the commone wele of the samyn, because the falt (principalie in tymes bypaste) wes in the magistratis, quhilkis did nocht provide sic sufficient prechouris and pastouris as wer hable to hafe done thair dett and devor to the flok of Jhesus Christ committit to thair cure, quharof but dout hes procedit cheiflie ane grete part of the misordour : for it is oft tymes seyne, because the hear poweris and magistratis dois nocht provide sufficient pastouris and prechouris, quhilkis ar hable to gif sufficient instructioun to the subjectis, first to do thair dett and dewite to Almychti God, thareftir to thair magistratis, God permittis and sufferis the subjectis to rebell, and be disobedient to the lawis and commandementis, nocht onlie of the hear poweris, bot als to the commandmentis of Almychti God, takand the place of autorite misordourlie upone thaim selffis, quhilk is ane of the cheif punismentis permittit be God to cum upone the magistratis for thair negligence. The exempill is sa familiar, that we mister nocht to tak pane nor to be curioss in cersing of the samin, praying God this falt be mendit in tyme cuming be the magistratis present ; for I dar bauldly say, unto the tyme that sufficient prechouris and pastouris be sterit up to feid the flok of Jhesus Christ, sall never heresy be suppressit, nor misordour flemit out of the kirk of God.

¹ 10. Aug. Anno 1561, Edinbr.

² Exod. 22.

³ Deut. 7. et 12.

¹ Exod. 7.² Exod. 22.

To testify the favour and gret gude will that I beir to the Congregatioun, I will mak thaim to consider how incredible and wouderfullie thai ar circumvenit, abusit, and dissavit (and that nocht without grete danger to thair saules) be thair mischeant ministeris, in ministratioun of thair communion. And for the mair perfite understanding of the samyn, I will call to remembrance the sayingis of quhilkis ar writtin to the Redar, in thair buke callit the Forme of Prayeris, as eftir followis, viz.—“ As for the wourdis of the Lordis Supper, we rehers thaim nocht bicaus thai sulde change the substance of the breid and wine, or that the repetitioun tharof, with the entent of the sacrificear, sulde make the sacrament (as the papistis falslie belevis).”¹ Lord God !

¹ [The Abbot ought to have completed the sentence : “ But they are read,” etc. See the Address to the Reader, “ On the Manner of the Lord's Supper :” Reprinted from the Geneva edition of 1556, supra, vol. iv. p. 197.]

quhat devillische disdane is this ! quhilk constranis thame to alter the ordinance of Jhesus Christ oure Salviour, toward the ministratiōne of his sacrament ! Did nocht oure Salviour commande his Apostolis to do as he did, sayande, “ Do this in remembrance of me ? ” Did nocht our Salviour consecrat the breid and wyne be thir wourdis, sayande, “ This is my body ? ” Quhy than will your wickit ministeris be so blindit, through disdane, that thai will nocht consecrat the breid and wine, rehersande thir wourdis, “ This is my body,” as Christ did ? Dar ye be balde to say, that Christ consecrate nocht the breid and wine be thir wourdis, and that this terme consecrate is laitlie inventit be the Papistis. I will call to remembrance the ancheant Godlie writare Crisostome, to beir witnessing betuix yow and me, toward the use and understanding of this profunde misterie, spekand onne this maner :—“ It is nocht manne that makis our Lordis body and bluid of the breid and wyne sett furthe upone the table to be consecratit, bot it is Christ that wes crucifiit for ws. The wourdis ar pronuncit of the preist, and the breid and wine ar consecratit be Goddis wourdis and grace : He said, ‘ This is my body.’ The breide and wine quhilkis ar sett furth ar consecratit be this wourd.”¹ Hidderto Crisostome. Mark how this Godlie doctour and bischope xj^{clvi}j [1157] yeris bipast testifeis, that the breid and wine ar consecratit be the wourdis of the latter Supper. And ye think na schame falslie to affirme thir wourdis to be laitlie inventit be the Papistis. Ambrose (ane godlie doctour, approvin be the kirk of God xj^{clxxvj} [1176] yeris bipast) writis on this maner :—“ Afore that it be consecrate it is breid, bot efter that Christis wourdis be cum tharto, it is Christis body.”² Cypriane (quha wes martherit for the fayth of Jhesus Christ xij^{clxxx} xvj [1296] yeris bipast) writis onne this maner :—“ This breid, quhilk the Lorde gaif to his disciplis, beande changeit nocht as toward the outward formes, bot as concerning nature, is made flesche be the Almychti powar of the wourde.” Mark quhat preeminence, force, and effect, this godlie marthir rakkinnis to be in the wourdis of the latter Supper, quhilkis ar sa selenderly lukit onne be thir new evangelistis. Attour, dois nocht Luther (quha wes ane patrone of all perversitnes aganis the Papistis) affirme the reall presence of the Lordis body in the sacrament of the altar ;³ and that be the force and effect of the wourdis of the latter Supper, “ This is my body,” deuly pronuncit be the minister. Likewys Melancthon, spekande onne this maner :—“ It is grete fule hardenes to sett furth ony other doctrine concerning the understanding of this profunde misterie of the Supper of the Lorde, nor sic as hes bene approvin be the Kirk of aulde, affirmand that it wes ever the doctrine of the kyrk, the reale presence of the precius body and blude of oure Salviour, to be in this Sacrament ;”⁴ and to preve the samyne, he callis to remembrance the ancheant fatheris of the kirk,

¹ Homil. 48. in Joanne.

³ In Captivitate Babilonica.

² Lib. 4. de Sacramentis.

⁴ Tract. de Coena Domini contra Anabapt.

sick as Cirill, Cipriane, Chrisostom, Theophilact, and utheris diverse. Thus ma ye persave quhat force and effect is rakinnit to be in the wourdis of the latter Supper (This is my body) be thais quha in thir days are plane inimeis to the Pape and all Papistis. Treuly the breid and wyne, beande ministrat and ressavit efter this maner, be the quhilk the wourdis of the latter Supper (This is my body) ar tint in the telling, ma weill be callit and thocht ane simple signe in deid, or ellis na thing bot as uther commone breid and wyne, quharby ane Cristiane manne is alsenekill refreschit in his saull as ane thristie manne in his body, goande by ane tavernne behalding the syng of the samyne. Quharfor it is to be considerit, that thar are sum sings quhilkis onelie signifeis and ar bair signis in deid, as is the signe of the tavernne. Thar is sum signis callit "effectuis signis," quhilkis nocht onely dois signify bot als ar the samyn thing quhilk thai do signify, as breid in ane baxtaris buyth wyndo signifys breid tobe saulde, and is brede, the self quharwith menne ar corporalie refreschit; sua the blissit sacrament of the altar is nocht onelie ane signe of the Lordis body, bot als the Lordis body is realie contenit therein, quharwithoure saulis and bodeis ar refreschit, confortit, and supportit, be grace, be the quhilk we ma cum to the eternal glore, conforme to the wourdis of our Salviour, sayande, "He that eitis my flesche and drinkis my blude hes everlestand life." Quha likis to se farther in this puirpose, lat him reid our litill werk concerning the reall presence of [our Lor]dis body in the sacrament of the altar.

Now will we brevelie collect the effect and substance of our oratioune, contenit in thre heidis. In the first heid is abundantlie and sufficientlie confutit Knox disagisit syllogisme, quhilk is his fundament quharupon he gadderis and biggis all his furie, mokerie, and dispite aganis the mess, quhilk being subvertit (as it is in deid be Scripturis propirlic appliit), the rest (be rasone) biggit upon this ruinouss fundament gois to the grounde. In the secunde heid is maid manifest quhat calamite, miserie, and hurt, hes the commoun wele of this realme daly sustenit and sufferit be Knox and utheris factious prechouris to the congregatioun, thrawand the Scripture of Almycti God by the godlie menyng of the samyne, to be scheilde and buklar to thair lustis and herescis. Into the thrid, we testify our affectioune and grete gude will to all thais of the congregatioune, specialy sick as ar unleirnit, gevande thaim cleirlic to understande, how Knox, thar mischeant minister, and the rest, plays the juleour in ministratioune of the blissit sacrament of the altare, contrare to the ordinance and institutione of Jhesus Christ our Salviour, according to the doctrine and interpretatione of all menne of Godlie leirnyng and gude lyfe, quhilk is ane of the cheif sacramentis quharby Jhesus Christ our Salviour hes appointit for salvatione of manne, the frutt of his deith and passionne, tobe daly renewit and appliit. And thus we conclude, nocht deuttande bot [the congre-ga]tioune, (specialie thais [of leirning and sober] jugement) will tak this our [godlie doctrine to hert] or at the least suspend thair [opinioune] and jugement, unto the time thair ministeris and precheouris mak sufficient ansuere and confutatioun to this our Oratioune. Quharfor, with all my hart exhortis, prays, and but mercie appellis thar pestilent Precheouris,¹ puffit up with vane glore, quhilkis rackinnis thaimselfis of gretar knowlege nor Chrstis hail kirk, cumand but autorite, subvert-and, subornande, and circumvenande the simple peple, cersande thair pray like the Devillis rachis,² barkcand bauddly like bardis, aganis the blissit sacrament of the altare, the sacrifice of the mess, and all uther godlie ordinance of Jhesus Christ and his kirk, to preiss thair wittis and inginis, and to streik all thair pennis in my contrar, makande the Congregatioun and all utheris to understande, gif I do propirly, treuly, and godlie, or nocht, invey aganis thair devillische doctrine and doyingis. Failyeande tharof, recant, for schame, recant (ye famouse Precheouris) and cum in obedience to the Kirk of God, quhilk ye have stubbornlie misknawin this lang tyme bipast (and that nocht without grete dangere to your aune saulis and mony utheris), thairfor recant, in tyme recant, as ye lufe your salvatioun, and cry God mercie: To quham, with the Sone and Haly Gaist, be prayse, honour, and glore, for ever ande ever. Amen.

Progenies viperarum fugite a ventura ira: nam securis ad radicem arboris posita est: penitentiam agite.—Math. iii.

¹ On the margin of the MS., "Knox, Willock, Winrame, Gudmane, Dowglase, Heriot, Spottis[woode], and all the rest."

² ["Rachis," scenting dogs used in hunting, as distinguished from grey-hounds.]

ANE COMPENDIOUS RESSONYNG BE THE QUHILK IS MAID MANIFEST, TREULIE AND PROPRIE, CONFORME TO THE SCRIPTURIS OF ALMYCHTIE GOD (BAYTH NEW TESTAMENT AND AULD) THE MESS TO BE INSTITUTE BE JESU CHRIST OURE SALVEOUR IN THE LATTER SUPPER, INCONTRAR THE RALLING RESSONYNG OF ALL SIC, AS DOIS AFFIRME THE MESS TO BE INVENTIT BE THE BRAYNE OF MAN. SET FURT BE MAISTER QUINTYNE KENNEDY, COMMENDATOR OF THE ABBAY OF CORSRAGUELL, IN THE YEIR OF GOD ANE THOUSAND FYVE HUNDRETH THRESCOIR ANE YEIRIS.

Si ex Deo est consilium hoc aut opus, non poteritis dissolvere, ne forte et Deo repugnare videamini.—ACT. v.

TO THE REDAR IN GENERALE, AND IN SPECIALL TO KNOX, WILLOCK, WYNNAME, GUDEMAN, DOWGLAS, HEREOT, SPOTTISWOD, ATHENIS, AND ALL THE LAIF OF THE FAMOUS PRECHEOURIS TO THE CONGREGATIOUN.

HAIFAND commiseratioun and piete of ane grit parte of the subjectis of this realme, quhilkis wondirfullie and miserabillie hes beyn this lang tyme bypast circumvenit, and abusit be youre dissaitfull doctryne : persuadand wickitlie and falslie, the Mess to be Idolatrie inventit be the brayn of man. We haif be Goddis grace and favour set furth ane litle werk, quhairby (God willing) salbe maid manifest to all thais of this realme treulie according to the Scripture of Almychtie God, The Mess to be institute be Jesus Christ oure Salveour, in the latter Supper. To preif the samyn, we ground us upon the New Testament and Auld Testament, according to the doctryne and interpretatioun of the ancient Fatheris specialie thays quhilkis war disciplis to the Apostlis, and martyris for the fayth of Jesus Christ in the prymatyve Kirk, togidder with the deliberatioun and declaratioun of the maist aunceant and notable Generale Consellis quhilkis ever hes beyn sen the fayth of Jesus Christ first began, to quhom it appertenis (dewlie convenit) to tak ordour towart the trew undirstanding of the obscureteis and misteriiis of Goddis worde, quhair of we haif gadderit aucht Confirmatiouns to preif the Mess institute be Jesus Christ, prayand you aucht famous precheouris in speciall, and all the rest, to mak aucht Confutatiouns sufficient incontrair oure Confirmatiouns, or ellis to recant your railing, ressonyng, and intollerable mokrie, and dispyte aganis the Mess.

And first, I will desyr SCHIR JOHNE KNOX (quia est sacerdos Dei altissimi secundum ordinem Calvinii) to mak ane confutatioun incontrar our confirmatioun groundit apou the preistheid and oblatioun of Melchisedech.

Secundlie, I will desyr FATHER WILLOCK (quia multa contingebant illi in figuris, quhere he was ane freir) to mak ane confutatioun to oure confirmatioun groundit on the figuris of the Paschale Lamb.

Thridlie, I am assurit that MAGISTER noster WYNNAME (quha is wonderfullie learnit baith in the New Testament, Auld Testament, and mekle mair) will mak ane confutatioun groundit on the Auld Testament, New Testament, and ane notable doctryne of Vincentius Lirinensis.

Feirdlie, I will desyr DOCTOR GUDEMAN to mak ane confutatioun contrair the confirmationis of all gude men allegeit be ws to preif oure purpos.

Fiftlie, I haif na dout but DOCTOUR DOUGLAS (qui de nulla non re dubitat) will mak ane confutatioun to oure confirmatioun groundit apou the prophecie of Malachie.

Sextlie, I will desyr HEREOT (qui adhuc hesitat) to mak ane confutatioun to oure confirmatioun groundyt apou the testimoniis of the New Testament to preif the figuris of the Auld Testament, sufficient pruyf of materis of fayth concerning the New Testament.

Seventlie, I will desyr SPOTTISWOD (becaus he is Superintendent of Lowdeane) that he tak not that spot to him (he beand sa profundlie learnit in the misteris of the New Testament), bot he mak ane confutatioun to oure confirmatioun of the sacrifice of the Mess grundit on the misterie of the Supper of the Lorde.

Last of all, I wyl humyllie desyr my LORDE OF ATHENS,¹ as maist honorable, to go hindmest in this maist famous processiou, that it will pleis his Lordeschip (becaus he is mature and constant in all his deliberatiounis and consellis) to mak confutatioun to oure confirmatioun grundit apou the deliberatioun of the maist anceant Generale Consellis.

And this Confutatioun beand maid sufficient to all oure Confirmatiounis, I oblis myself be this my hand wryte to renunce my religioun and subject my self to youre factioun, quhilk I rekkyn na less in my conscience nor to renunce my God, and subject my self to evirlstand deyth and dampnatioun for the quhilk the Lorde God mot preserwe yow and me and all Christiane man for evir. Amen.

Orandum pro Inimicis.

Hodie si vocem ejus audieritis Nolite obdurare corda vestra.

¹ Alexander Gordon, titular Archbishop of Athens, and Bishop of Galway. He joined the Reformers, but they refused to allow him to undertake the office of a Superintendent, in virtue of his Episcopal ordination.

It begins—

ANE FAMILIARE RESSONYING OF THE MISTERIE OF THE SACRIFICE OFF
THE MESS, BETUIX TUA BRETHIR, MAISTER QUINTYNE KENNEDY, COMMENDATOUR OF CORSEAGUELL, AND JAMES KENNEDY OF UCHTWALLURE.¹

QUINTINUS.

JACOBUS.

J. Broder, gif it may stand with your favouris, I wald be glad to ressonne sum purposis quhilkis ar in contraversie and debait (specialie concerning the Mess, providand all wayes that I may frelie cleyth me and tak upon me (without your offense) the place and personage of thais callit heir of the new learnyng.)

Q. Broder I [am] contentit and acceptis the condition with all my harte.

¹ This MS. Ressonyng fills 46 pages, exclusive of the title, dedication, and table of contents.—For the use of the MS., I was indebted to the late Rev. George A. Griffin, Roman Catholic priest at New Abbey, in Galloway. He was a patient and accurate investigator of all matters relating to the early history and the adherents of the Romish Church in this country; and it is to be regretted that he was not encouraged by his own Superiors to publish his biographical and historical collections. This very amiable man, whom I always found most willing to communicate information, had set out, in the desire of spending the rest of his days in the Scottish Monastery at Ratisbon, but died at London on his way thither, 23d of July 1860.

Heir followeth the coppie of the reſſoning which was betuix the Abbote of Croſraguell and John Knox, in Mayboill concerning the maſſe, in the yeare of God, a thouſand ſiue hundreth thre ſcoir and two yeares.

Apocalips. xxij.

For I proteſt vnto euerie man that heareth the wordes of the prophecie of this boke: If any mā ſhall adde vnto theſe thinges, God ſhall adde vnto him the plagues, that are written in this boke.

Imprinted at Edinburgh by Robert Lekpreuik, and are to be ſolde at his houſe, at the nether bow.

Cum priuilegio.

1563.

IN 4to., black letter, 44 leaves, signatures A. to H in fours, 32 folios, numbered, exclusive of 12 preliminary leaves, containing the Title, Prologue, and the Abbot's Letters.

JOHN KNOX UNTO THE READER, WISHETH GRACE, MERCIE, AND PEACE, FROM GOD THE FATHER, AND FROM OUR LORDE
JESUS CHRISTE, WITH THE SPIRIT OF RIGHTEOUS JUDGEMENT.

AFTER that the Prophet Isayas in great vehemencie had rebuked the vanitie of idolles and idolaters, as in the 40 and 41 chapters of his prophecie doth appear,¹ at last he bursteth forth in these wordes:— “Let them bring forth there gods,” saeth he, “that they may shaw unto us thinges that are to come, or let them declare unto us thinges that have bene done before, etc. Shaw thinges that are to come, that we may understand you to be gods, let you do ether good or evill, that we may declare it.” Be which wordes, the Prophet doeth as it were in mockage, provoke idolaters, and the idoles to produce for them selves some evident testimonies by the which men might be assured, that in them was power, and that there religion had approbation of God. Which when they could not do, he is bold to prononce this sentence: “Behold ye are of nothing, and your making is of nothing—abomination hath chosen you.”² In which wordes the Prophet damneth bothe the idoles and the idolaters. The idoles, because they can declare nothing to prove any power or vertue to be in them, why they should be worshipped as gods; and the idolaters, because from God’s mouth they could bring no assurance of there adulterat and usurped religion. If this reasoning of the Prophet had sufficient strength in his aige, to shaw the vanitie of the idoles, and the phrenetick foolishnes of suche as worshipped them, then may the Godlie this day moste assuredly conclude against the great idole presented by the Papistes to be worshipped in there Masse, and against the patrons of the same, that it and they are vaine, foolish, odious, and abominable before God. It, because it hath mo makers than ever had the idoles amongst the Gentiles; and yet hath no greater power then they had. Albeit it hath bene worshipped as God him self. And they, because they worshipped there owne imagination, and the workmanship of there own hands, without any assurance of God or of his word. If any think that I speak more liberally than I am able to prove, let him consider what makers the idoles of the Gentiles had, and what makers the God of bread hath, and then let the power of bothe be compared, and let me be rebuked if I speak not the treuth. The Prophet in discription of there vanities, maketh these gries. “The earth bringeth forth the tree, it groweth by moistour, and natural wacknes,¹ it is cutted down by the hand of the hewar. A parte thereof is burnt, a parte spent in uses necessarie to man, another parte chosen to be made an idole. This is formed to the licknes of man or woman, and then set up and worshipped as a god." All these and some mo, shall we find to assist and concurre in the making of this great god of bread. The wheat is sowen and nourished in the earth; rain, dew, and heat bring it to maturitie; the reaper or scherer cutteth it doune, the carte or sled drawn by hors or some other beast, draweth it to the barne, or to the barnyard; the tasker, or the foot of the ox, tradeth it out; the fan delivereth it from the chaff; the millar and the milstones, by the help of wind or watter, maketh it to be meall; the smith maketh the yrnies that gives to that god his lenth and braid, licknes and form; the fyne substance of that god is nether wood, gold, nor silver, but watter and meal made in maner of a drammock; and then must the workmen take good hede to there hand; for, if the fyre be too hote, that god's skin must be burnt; if the yrnies be evill dight, his face will be blecked; if in making the roundnes, the ring be broken, then must an other of his fellowes, receive that honor to be made a god; and the crased or cracked miserable caik, that ones was in hope to be made a god, must be given to a babby to play him withall. And yet is not all the danger past; for, if there be not an anynted preist to play his parte aright, all the formar artificers have lost there laboure, for without him that God cannot be made: yea, if he have not intention to consecrate, the fashioned God remaneth bread, and so the blind people commit idolatrie.

¹ Isa. 40 and 41.

¹ Isa. 41.

These are the artificers and workmen that travell in making of this god: I think as many in number as the Prophet reciteth to have travelled in making of the idoles; and if the power of bothe shalbe compared, I think they shalbe found in all thinges equall, except that the god of bread is subject unto no dangers then were the idoles of the Gentiles. Men made them: men make it. They were deaf and dum: it can not speak, hear, nor see. Brieflie, in infirmitie they wholie aggre, except that (as I have said) the poore god of bread is most miserable of all other idoles; for, according to there matter, whereof they are made, they will remaine without corruption many yeares. But within one year, that god will putrifie, and then he must be burnt: they can abyde the vehemencie of the wind, frost, rain or snow. But the wind will blow that god to the sea, the rain or the snow will make it dagh again; yea, which is most of all to be feared, that god is a pray (if he be not wel kept) to rattes and mise; for they will desyre no better denner then white rounde gods ynew. But O then, what becometh of Christes natural bodie? By myracle, it flies to the heaven againe, if the Papists teach treulie; for how sone soever the mouse takes hold, so sone flieth Christ away, and letteth hir gnaw the bread. A bold and puissant mouse, but a feble and miserable god: yet, wold I ask a question; whether hath the preist or the mouse greater power? by his wordes it is made a god; by hir teith it ceaseth to be a god: let them avise, and then answer. If any think that I ought not to mock that which the world so long hath holden, and great princes yet holde in so great veneration, I answer, that not onelie I, but also all godlie ought not onlie to mock, but also to curse and detest whatsoever is not God, and yet usurpeth the name, power, and honor of God, and also that we ought bothe to mock, gain say, and abhorr, all religion obruded to the people, without assurance of God and his word, having nether respect to antiquitie, to multitude, to authoritie, nor estimation of them that mantean the same. The idoles of the Gentiles were more ancient then is the idole in the Masse. There worshippers, manteners, and patrons were mo in multitude, greater in authoritie, and more excellent before the world, then ever was any that bowed to that idole. And yet feared not the Prophet Isayas to mock and jest them,¹ yea, sharplie to rebuke them, in these wordes. "They are dung backward with shame, they shalbe ashamed whosoever trusteth in a graven ymage, and that say to the molten ymage, Ye are our gods." All the makers of graven ymages are vaine, there pleasing thinges shall not proffet them;² for they them selves are witnesses to there idoles, that they nether se, nor understand any thing, and therefore they shalbe ashamed. "Who then, (sayeth he,) shall forge a god, or a molten ymage that profiteth nothing? behold, all those that are of the fellowship thereof shalbe confounded, for the workmen them selves are men; let them all be gathered together, and stand up, yet they shall feare and be confounded together." And when he hath fully painted forth there vanitie, he concludeth, "They have not understand, for God hath shut up there eyes that they can not see, and hartes that they can not understand; none considereth in his heart, I have brunt half of it, even in the fyre, and have baken bread also upon the coalles thereof; I have rosted fleshe and eaten it, and shall I make the residew thereof an abomination? shall I bow to the stock of a tree?"³ etc. Thus, I say, we see how that the Prophet doeth triumph against the idolaters, in mocking of there madnes, and painting forth of there vanitie. Who then can justlie be offended against me or any other, albeit, by all meanes possible, we let the blind world see the vanitie of that idole; considering that by it hath the glorie of God bene more obscured then ever it was by any idole in the earth; for to none was never absolutlie given the name, nature, power, and honor of God, but to that idole allone.⁴ If any think that the Scriptures of God give unto them patrocinie, ether to beleve Christes naturall body to be there, after the wordes of consecration, (as they cal them,) ether yet to beleue that Christ Jesus, in his last Supper, did offer unto God his Father his body and blood, under the formes of bread and wine, he is miserablie deceaved; for the Scripture maketh no mention of conversion or transubstanciacion of bread in Christes naturall bodie, but witnesseth that bread remaneth bread, yea, even when the faithfull receive the same, as the¹ Apostle affirmeth in these wordes.¹ The bread that we break, is it not the communication of Christes bodie? the cup of blissing which we blisse, is it not the communion of the blood of Christe? we many are one bread, and one body, because we are all partakers of one bread." And after he sayeth, "As oft as ye shall eat of this bread, and drink of this cup, ye shew the Lordes death till he come."² Let therefore, a man try him self and so let him eat of this bread and drink of this cup," etc. By these wordes we may clearlie understand what judgement the Apostle had of the substance of that sacrament, even in the verie action of the same; and as touching that foolish opinion, that Christ Jesus did offer his body unto God his Father, under the formes of bread and wine, etc.,—(which the Papistes make the ground of there Masse) what suffrage that ever it hath by man, of God nor of his word it hath none. The Scripture doeth witness that God the Father gave his Sone unto the world, that the world might be saved by him,³ and that Jesus Christ did offer him self ones unto God for the destruction of sinne, and for to take away the sinnes of many;⁴ but that ever he did offer him self under the formes of bread and wine (as the Papistes allege) the Holy Goste doeth no where make mention; and, therefore, the faithfull not onely may reject it as the dreame and invention of man, but also are bound to abhor and detest it as a doctrine brought in by Satan, to deceave such as deleyte not in the veritie of God, to whose mouth and voice are the faithfull onely bound. Mr. Quintyne, that great patron of the Masse, in this subsequent conference, adduces for the probation of his affirmative, "Christ Jesus did offer (sayeth he), unto God his Father, in his last Supper, his body and blood, under the formes of bread and wine,"⁵ etc. For the probation hereof, I say he adduces the fact of Melchisedec that broght forth bread and wine,⁶ etc. But how sone he is ashamed thereof, and how unable he is to prove that which he alledgeth to be most easie to be proven, the diligent Reader may espy. For, perceaving him self unable ever to prove that ether Christe Jesus, or yet Melchisedec, did make any suche oblation as he and the fond Papistes do imagine, he riuneth straight to his fortres and shameles schift.⁷ "O, sayeth Mr. Quintyne, I have hurt my own cause, I was caried away

¹ ["Wacknes," humidity.]

¹ Isa. 42.² Isa. 44.³ Blindnes and induration is God's just punishment for idolaters.⁴ Let the Papists consider.

¹ 1 Cor. 10.

² 1 Cor. 11.

³ John 3.

⁴ Heb. 10. and 9.

⁵ Maister Quintynes affirmative.

⁶ Gen. 14.

⁷ Luk the ressoning of the thrid day.

with zeal, etc. It apperteined not unto me to prove any thing, but to defend my artickles as they are written." If Mr. Quintyne and his collateralles will resolve me an dout, then will I give my judgement whether he oght to prove or to defend onely. My dout is this, whether are Mr. Quintynes artickles necessarie to be beleved to salvation, or are they suche as without danger of damnation we may dout of them? If we may dout of them and not offend God, then assuredly I think that Mr. Quintyne may hold them for treuth, til that the falshead of them be manifestly declared. But if they be suche as we are bound to beleve as a treuth of God, and an doctrine necessarie to salvation, then is Mr. Quintyne bound to shaw to us that God hath pronounced them, and not man: which if he be not able to do, and that in plaine and expressed wordes, then must we reject them as deceavable and fals, according as we be taucht by our Maister, Christ Jesus, saying, "My sheip heare my voice, but a stranger they will not heare."¹ If Mr. Quintyne will not be reputed an fals prophet, and one that teacheth lies in the name of God, and so expone him self to God's hote displeasure, he may propone no doctrine to the Church of God, the assurance whereof he bringeth not from the mouth of God. If Mr. Quintyne were bawling in the scooles, or bragging of knowledge amongst the philosophers, I wold patientlie abyde that he should affirme as many paradoxes as pleaseth him; but in the Church of God to affirme that God hath spoken, when God hath not spoken, or done that which he is not able to prove by his plaine word that he hath done; so to do (I say) is altogether intolerable; and, therefore, let Mr. Quintyne searche the Scriptures for the probation of his affirmative, or els I will cry als loud as I can, that he hath lost his cause, and is convicted an manifest lear, in that he hath affirmed Jesus to have done that which no Scripture doeth witnes that he hath done. Let all men, therefore, that will not follow lies, detest the Mass, till that it find a ground within the Booke of God, as I am assured it never shall; and that shall the Reader more easyly perceave by this Conference that followeth. Read, and then judge.

¹ John 10.

THE ABBOTE'S FIRST LETTER.

M. QUINTYNE.

JOHN KNOX, I am informed that ye ar cum in this cuntrie to seik disputation, and in special to mak impugnation to certane artikles quhilk war pronouced and reheirsed be me to my flock in Kirkoswald on Sondag last wes (treulie I will not refuse disputation with you), but maist ernistlie and effectuouslie covatis the samin, sua it may be to the glorie of God and tryale of the treuth, lyke as I haif, the rest of the ministers, quhilk hes bene heir, and culd haif nane. Quhairfore, gif it pleis you this day viii dayes, in ony hous of Mayboil ye pleis, providand alwayes thair be na convocation passand xii, xvi, or xx on ather syde, quhilk is ane sufficient number to beir witnes betwix us, I sal enter in ressoning with yow, and, God willing, sall defend the saides artikles be the manifest word of God and all gude ressons, as thay ar writtin, and in special the artickle concerning the Messe. Ye salbe sure ye sall ressaif na injuris of me, nor nane that me pertenis; nor na kynde of molestatioun in word nor work, bot familiar, formall, and gentill ressoning; and think not that this is done for drifting of tyme, but be ressone I am prohibeit and forbiddin be my Lord of Cassillis, in name and behalf of the counsel, to enter in ressoning with you, or ony other, to his returning in the cuntrie, quhais command I haif promisit to obey; nottheles and he cum not betwix and the said day, I sall discharge my promis to him with diligence, quhairthrouch ye and all uthers, may se how desirous I am that the treuth cum to ane tryall, but drifting of tyme. Als ye may be sure that I am verray desyrous to haif my Lord of Cassillis (as my cheif and brother sone), and uthers my brether and freindis, quhomof I haif charge, to be auditors, quhairthrow, gif it pleis God, thay nicht haif profet of our ressoning; and gif ye pleis to accept this condicion, send me your promies under your hand writ, and I sall send you the foresaid artikles to awise on to this day viii dayes; and in the mein time ye may provide to be auditors sic as ye pleis, conforme to the number above reheirsed, and I the lyke. And gif ye will nawise enter in ressoning without convocation of strangers, the hail world may se it is bot perturbation, tumultuation, and cummer that ye seik, under the pretence of the trew setting furth of Goddes word and glorie; and this I certifie you, I will not enter in disputation with you gif ye cum with convocation, for I wil nawise be the instrument of discorde; and als it is not necessar ye cum with convocation of strangers, be ressone ye haif my Lord of Cassillis promis,¹ quhilk is sufficient warrand to you and all the rest within Carrick; and in the mein tyme, ye pleis to ressaif ane confutation of your sillogisme, quhilk I haif send to you with the Laird of Caprenton elder,² and gif ye defend the samin weill, ye ar mair able to mak impugnation to myne. Of thir heides, I require your answer in writ, with this berar, with diligence, quhairthrow I may send away to my Lord of Cassillis, as said is. And sa fair ye weill. Of Crosraguell, this Sunday the sext of September.

¹ The answer thereof was sent, but my Lord maid no reply.

² [Cunningham of Caprington: see vol. ii. p. 349.]

CROSRAGUELL.

THE ANSWER TO THE ABBOTE'S FIRST LETTER.

JOHN KNOX.

THE treuth is, that the cause of my coming in these partes was not of purpose to seak disputation, but simplie to propone unto the people Jesus Christ crucified, to be the onelie Sauviour of the world ; and to teach, further, what are the fruites that God requireth of the members of his dear Son, etc. But hearing that ye had in open audience proclamed blasphemous artickles, making promis to give further declaration of certane of them this last Sunday, lykewise in open assemblee, I could not but of conscience offer my self to be your aduersar in that cace. And this far for the cause of my coming yesterday to Kirkoswald.

That ye have required disputation of the Ministers (of whome some are not present), and could have none, I hardlie beleve it ; the contrary being assured to me by divers of honest report. That ye offer unto me familiar, formall, and gentill reasoning, with my whole hart I accept the condition ; for assuredlie, my Lord (so I style you by reason of blood, and not of office), chiding and brawling I utterlie abhor, but that ye require it to be secrete, I nether se just cause why that ye should require it, nether yet good reson why that I should grant it. If ye fear tumult, as ye pretext, that is more to be feared where many of evill mynd have a few quiet and peceable men in there danger, than where a just multitud may gainstand violence if it be offered. Of my Lord of Cassilles promes, I nothing dout as touching my owne person, for I stand in the protection of the Almightye, to whom I render hartly thanks, when his mercie and power boweth the harts of men to assist the caus of the just. But I wonder with what conscience ye can require privat conference of those artickles that ye have publickly proponed ? Ye have infected the eares of the simple ; ye have wounded the hartes of the godlie ; and ye have spoken blasphemie in open audience. Let your own conscience now be judge, if we be bound to answer you in the audience of 20 or 40, of whom the one half are already persuaded in the treuth, and the other perchance so addicted to your error, that they will not be content that light be called light, and darckness darckness. If ye be a pastor, as ye brag yourself to be, ye oght to have respect to your whole flock, yea, to the instruction of all those that are offended at your blasphemies. But now to grant unto you more then reason, I am content of the greatest nomber appointed by you, provided first, that the place be St. Johnes Kirk in Air, which is a place more convenient than any hous in Mayboill. Secondarlie, that noters and scribes be appointed faithfully to take and commit to register in oppen audience, bothe your reasones and myne, that so we may asweall avoid confusion and vaine repetitione in speaking, as forclos the diversitie of rumors which may arise by reason of oblivion, what hath bene spoken by ather partie. The day by you required I can not kepe, by reason of my formar promes made to the Maister of Maxwel, and unto the churches of Niddisdall and Galloway ; but if ye wil send unto me your artickles before the 15 of this instant, I shall appoint the day, which, by the grace of God, I shall not fail. If ye send your artickles to the baillies of Air, it shalbe sufficient discharge for you. And thus craving your answer, I hartlie desire God, if his good pleasure be, so to molifie your hart, that ye may prefer his eternal treuth, contened and expressed in his holy Word, to your own preconceived opinion. From Air, this 7 of September 1562. In haist.

Youris to command in all godlines,

JOHN KNOX.

THE ABBOTE'S SECOND LETTER,

WHEREUNTO ANSWER IS MADE BRIEFLIE TO EVERIE HEAD OF THE SAME.

M. QUINTYNE.

JOHN KNOX, I ressavd your writing this Monunday the sevint of September, and considered the heides thair of. And, first, quhair ye say your cuming in this cuntrie was not to seik disputation, but simple to propone unto the people Jesus Christ crucified to be the only Saviour of the world, praise be to God that was na newinges¹ in this cuntrie or² ye war borne.

JOHN KNOX.

I greatlie dout if ever Christ Jesus was trewlie preached by a papistickall prelat or monk.

M. QUINTYNE.

Secondlie, quhair ye alledge that I proclaimed in oppen audience blasphemous artickles (he is ane evil jndge that condemnis or he knawes) than had bene tyme to you to haif called them blasphemous quhen ye had sene them, red them, and sufficientlie confutated them.

JOHN KNOX.

I had hard them ; and, thereof, I feared not to pronounce them such as they are.

¹ " Na newinges," nothing new.

² " Or," before.

M. QUINTYNE.

Thridly, quhair ye allege that I promist declaration of the saides artickles on Sunday last was, my promes was (as my hand writ will testifie) to do the samin, providand alwayes thair had been na convocation of strangers, quhairthrow tumultuation and cummer might follow, and swa was I exonered of my promes, in that ye come thair convoied with v. or vi. scoir of strangers.

JOHN KNOX.

I lay the night before in Mayboil, accompanied with fewer than tuentie.

M. QUINTYNE.

Apperantlie mair lyke to seik perturbation and cummer, nor the glorie of God. Als I was inhibeit be my Lord of Cassilis to his returne in the cuntrie, as I wrait to you of before, for avoyding of cummers.

Fierdlie [Fourthly], gif I required disputation of John Willock, and als of Maister George Hay, gif thay had ocht to say to ony warkes set forth be me, I report me to the auditor; and als, gif they refused or not, to the tyme thay had avised with the counsell and the brethern.

JOHN KNOX.

Maister George Hay offered unto you disputation, but ye fled the barras.

M. QUINTYNE.

Quhair ye say ye can not persaif quhairfore I sould desyre secret disputation, treulie it is not secret that is in the presence of xl. persones. Quhair ye say ye dout not of my Lord of Cassilis promes, as tueching your awin person, treulie, apperantlie ye refer als lytill to his promes, as ye may, considering ye come convoied with sic ane number of strangers, as is above reheired. Quhair ye say ye stand in the protection of the Almichtie, swa dois all gude Christiane men as ye; bot, apperanlie, ye put als lytill in God's handis as ye may, that gois accompanied in everie place quhairsumever ye go with sic multitude. Quhidder it be for devotion, or protection, or rather tumultuation, God knawis, for I knaw not.

JOHN KNOX.

Ye do well to suspend judgement.

M. QUINTYNE.

Quhair ye wonder with what conscience I can require privat conference, treulie I haif mony gude ressones movand me; first, to avoid tumultuation, perturbation, and cummer.

JOHN KNOX.

Your reasones are as stark to your selfe, as ye think them.

M. QUINTYNE.

Secondly, that we may haif ane ressonable number that may beir witness of baith our pairtes, but clamor or tumultuation. Thridly, I am certane, gif we cum to the just tryall of the treuth, thair man be conference of mony buikes, quhilk can not be done commodiously in publick audience. Attoure, it wilbe mair handsum and easie for me, nor misteris, not sic crying out, as gif it war in oppen audience ; for gif the victorie consist in clamor or crying out, I will quite you the cause, but farder pley ; and yit praise be to God, I may quhisper in sic maner as I wilbe hard sufficientlie in the largest house in all Carrick.

JOHN KNOX.

The larger hous the better for the auditor and me.

M. QUINTYNE.

Quhair ye say I haif infected the earis of the simple, I have wounded the hartes of the godlie, and I haif spoken blasphemie in oppen audience, I mervell how ye forget your self, chidand and railland on this maner.

JOHN KNOX.

The speaking of the treuth is chiding unto you.

M. QUINTYNE.

Considering ye said ane lytill afore, ye did abhor all chiding and railling ; but nature passis nurtor with zow.

JOHN KNOX.

I will nether interchange nature nor nurtor with yow, for all the proffets of Crosraguell.

M. QUINTYNE.

Quhairfore I man beir with your babline and barking, as does princes, hear poweris, majestrates, and mony hundrethes better nor I. Quhair ye esteme me as ane bragand pastor, sayand, that I aucht to haif respect to my hail flock, it is question to me gif it be the weill of my flock, to mak oppen disputation in profound mysteries concerning the Christiane religion ; bot yit will I not refuse gif ony man will mak impugnation, but convocacion of strangers, or tumultuation. I haif hard of publick disputation in scoulis, but not afore ane vulgar and rude multitude of people.

JOHN KNOX.

Ye are not then so weil sene in the ancient writers as ye brag.

M. QUINTYNE.

Quhair ye desyre me to cum to dispute in St. Johnes Kirk of Air, ye may be sure I will not dispute with yow thair,¹ for mony gude ressonis, quhilkis to write war over prolix; bot gif ye pleis to conveine according to my first writing, I salbe readie at all tymes, upon viii. [eight] dayes warning, and sall send yow the artickles viii. dayes afore to avise with. And sa fair ye weil. Of Crosraguell, with diligence, the samin day and dait.

CROSRAGUELL.

JOHN KNOX.

This letter wes none otherwise answered for that tyme, but by appointing unto him the place, according to his owne desyre, albeit that no reason could have required that of me.

THE EARLE OF CASSILLIS LETTER.

EFTER hartlie commendation, forsamekil as I understand thair is ane disputation appointed betuix yow and the Abbote of Crosraguell, in Mayboill, the xxviii. [28th] of this instant, to the quhilk I am not willing that ony of myne mak disputation with yow, except it cum of your occasion, for I can not understand that ony erudition sall proceed to the auditor of the samin, bot rather contradiction and tumult, the quhilk I wald sould not be for your part, lyke as I am willing to cause the Abbote of Crosraguel to dissist. As to quhasaever that wil proffer them self to preach the trew word, conform to the consuetude of the realme, may do the samin without impediment, as I wrait to yow of before, in ony of my rowmes. And desires yow to write me ane answer of this writing, and God keip yow. Of Sainet Johnes Chapell the xxiii. [23d] of September 1562.—Be your gude freind, CASSILLIS.

THE ANSWER TO MY LORDE OF CASSILLIS WRITING.

JOHN KNOX.

After hartlie commendation of my service unto your Lordship, your Lordship's letter dated at St. Johnes Chapell the xxiii. [23d] of this instant, receaved I in Ughiltrie² the xxv. [25th] of the same. As touching the Disputation appointed, the occasion did proceed of the Abbote, who, in open audience of the people, did propone certaine artickles, whereof the moste part conteane deceavable doctrine, whiche nottheles he promised not onely to explaine, but also to manteane against any that wold impugne the same. Whereof I being advertised, and so near in the countrie, could do no les then offer my self adversary to that doctrine, which I am assured shalbe certaine damnation to all those that without repentance depart this life infected with the same. And upon that motive I repared to Kirkoswald; where, because the Abbote compered not, I preached, and after the Sermon, a servand of the Abbotes presented unto me a letter, conteaning in effect, that as he had required disputation of the other ministers, so did he of me, and did appoint unto me, that day eight dayes in Mayboill. My answer wes, that to dispute I wes hartlie content, but because I had before appointed the Maister of Maxwel to be in Dumfreis that same day, I desired the day to be prolonged to my returning from Nethesdaill. In this meane tyme, by letters past betuix us, the xxviii. [28th] of this instant is appointed, which day, be the grace of God, I mynd to keap. Nether yet in my judgement is there any just feare of tumult, for the persones that shall convene with me, will promes and keap all quietnes, and of your Lordship I nothing dout but ye will take suche ordour with your freindis, that by them there shall no occasion of trouble be offered; and albeit that the erudicion shal not perchance be such as the godlie wold desyre, yet I dout not bothe the veritie and the falshead shall appeare in there owne colors, albeit not all, yet to suche as ether have eares to hear the treuth plainly spoken, or eyes to discerne darknes from light. And, therefore, I wold most humble require of your Lordship, rather to provoke and encourage your friend to the said disputation, then in any maner to stay him; for if your Lordship do consider, that whil that he oppenlie preaches one thing, and we another, that the hartes of the people are distract, yea, and inflamed one against another, your Lordship should rather feare tumult and trouble to ensew thereof, then of mutuall conference in the audience of peceable and quiet men.¹ The number is not great that is admitted to hear, and therefore trouble is les to be feared. Please your Lordship to understand, that the veritie ought to be to us more deare then our owne lives, and therefore we may not leave the maintenance of the same for feare of that whereof the ishew is in the handes of God, to whose protection I most hartlie commit your Lordship. Of Ughiltrie, in haist, the same houre your Lordship's letter was receaved. 1562. Your Lordships to command in all godlines,

¹ My Lord delytes in rhyme without reason.

² Or, Ochiltree, in the district of Kyle, Ayrshire.

JOHN KNOX.

¹ Let the Abbote judge if he had just occasioun to accuse me as he after doeth.

THE ABBOTE'S THRID LETTER ANSWERED BY MOUTH.

M. QUINTYNE.

JOHN KNOX, I persaif the policie used be yow and others, to mak my awin ay¹ my partie. The last tyme ye come in this cuntrie, I was persuaded be my Lord of Cassillis not to rancounter yow, or els,² treulie, ye suld not haif passed unrancountered as ye did, bot ye salbe assured I sal keip day and place in Mayboill, according to my writing, and I haif my life, and my feit louse, notwithstanding ony writing that is cumin to me, fra my Lord of Cassillis, therefore keip tryst, and excuse yow not upon my Lorde of Cassillis writing, notwithstanding that I know it is purchest be your policie to put me to schame,³ and your self to advansment, quhilk sall not ly in your power; thairfore I assure yow, in cace I sould do the samin with the haissart of my lyfe, do ye the lyke, without excuse. And sa fair ye weill. Of Crosraguell this xxiii. of September. 1562. Attoure that thair be na convocation, bot conforme to your writing, or els thre scoir at the maist, of the quhilkis tuentie to be auditors on ather syde.

CROSRAGUELL.

THE ABBOTE'S FOURT LETTER.

M. QUINTYNE.

JOHN KNOX and baillies of Air, this present is till advertise yow that I ressaved writing and credit with this gentle man fra my Lord of Cassillis, certifiand me that he will keip day appointed for our disputation, thairfore keip your promes, and pretex na joukrie be my Lorde of Cassillis writing. And this fair ye weill. Of Crosraguell the xxv. of September. 1562.

CROSRAGUELL.

THE ANSWER TO THE ABBOTE'S FOURT LETTER.

JOHN KNOX.

To nether of these did I answer otherwise, then by appointing the day, and promising to keap the same. For I can patientlie suffer wantone men to speak wantonlie, considering that I had sufficientlie answered my Lord of Cassillis in that behalf.

Some other letters are omitted because they were of les importance. Follow the condicions :—

¹ "Ay," or "oye," a grandson, but sometimes used, as here, to denote a nephew.

² Brag on.

³ Ye knowe that, as ye knowe that Melchisedec offered bread and wine unto God, whiche two ye are never able to prove.

THE DAY, HOURE, CONDICIONS, AND NOMBER AGGREID UPON, FOR THE CONFERENCE BETUIX MAISTER QUINTYNE KENNEDY, ABBOTE OF CROSRAGUELL, AND JOHN KNOX, MINISTER OF EDINBURGH.

The day is the xxviij of September, 1562. The place the Provestis place of Mayboill. The houre to convene is at eight houres before none, the day foresaid : The nomber for everie part shall be fourtie persones, by there scribes and learned men, with so many mo as the house may goodly hold, be the sight of my Lord of Cassillis.

And heirupon, bothe the said Abbote and John Knox are whollylic and fullylic agreed. In witnes whereof they have subscribed these presents with there handes. At Mayboill, the xxvij of September, 1562.

CROSRAGUELL.

JOHN KNOX.

The nomber receaved within the hous foresaid, and so many besydes as pleased my Lord and his freindes, John Knox addressed him to make publict prayer, whereat the Abbote wes soir offended at the first, but whil the said John wold in nowise be stayed, he and his gave audience ; which being ended, the Abbote said, " Be my faith it is weil said." And so after that he had spoken certane wordes, he commanded one of his scribes to read openly his protestation as followeth.

HEIR FOLLOVES THE COPPIE OF THE RESSONING QUHILK WES BETUIX THE COMMENDATOR OF CROSRAGUELL AND JOHN KNOX, IN MAYBOILE, CONCERNING THE MASSE, IN THE YEARE OF GOD 1562.

M. QUINTYNE.

PERCEAVING the great perturbation, controversie, and debate quhilk is stirred up laitlie in all Christen realmes for the cause of religion (Honorable Auditor), and all being remembred of the terrible sentence contained in Scriptures toward all negligent pastors in this dangerous tyme, I was constrayned in conscience, notwithstanding my great inhabilitie, as it pleased God to support my imperfectiones, to give instruction to all those committed to my cure within my kirk of Kirkoswald, how they shoulde be able to be enarmed against all wicked and decetfull preachers, quhilk gaes about not knowing quherefra they come, nor by quhat ordre. And to the effect, that our deirlye-beloved flock might have bene the more able to have bene warre with all fals, wicked, and ungodly doctrine. Amang other godlie lessones contained in my exhortation, I inscrit certane Catholick artickles, having their warrand of the Scriptures of Almighty God, according to the doctrine of the halie Catholick Kirk, and burdyned my conscience in the presence of God, the saides artickles to be godlie, necessarie, and expedient to be beleved by all good Christiane men.

John Knox, upon Sunday the aucht day of September, came unto the said kirk of Kirkoswald, being certefied that I might not be present, and, as I was enformed to make impugnation to my saides artickles, wherethrough I wrote to him, certifying that I wold affirm the saides artickles, and in special, the artickle concerning the Masse, against him, or quhasoever pleases to make impugnation there to, upon aucht dayes warning, the place being in any hous of Maybole, the nomber tuentie on either syde, without any further convocation. Shortlie, we being agreed by writing of the day, hour, and place, quhilk was the 28 day of this instant September, I am comen, conforme to my writing, to affirme the saides artickles as they are written, beginning at the artickle concerning the Masse. Protesting alwayes, that I come not to dispute any of my artickles as maters of faith and religion disputable, considering there is ordre taken alreadie by the kirk of God (as I wold say), be the General Councelles deulie convened, quhilk represents the Universall

Kirk of Almighty God, to whom it appertaines to take ordre quhensoever question rises for maters concerning faith and religion ; but, according to the doctrine of St. Peter, and also St. Paule, to render my dett and deutie to all that inquires there fore : and after that maner to abyde gentle and formall reasoning of all that pleases, as may stand to the glorie of God, and the instruction of the auditor. And to the effect foresaid, that we may come to formal ressoning, as toward the artickle concerning the Masse, I wil ground me upon the Scriptures of Almighty God to be my warrand, conforme to my first confirmation, quhilk was gathered upon the priesthead and oblation of Melchisedec ; and was presentet you in Februare, and as yit has gotten no answer, notwithstanding that it was of sober quantitie, sextene or 20 lynes. Wherefore please you to receive this same confirmation, yet as of before, for to be the beginning of our formal Reasoning concerning the artickle of the Masse, in maner as after followes : “The Psalmest, and als the Apostle St. Paule, affirmes our Salviour to be an priest for ever according to the ordre of Melchisedec, quha made oblation and sacrifice of bread and wine unto God, as the Scripture plainly teaches us.” Now will I reason on this manner :

Read all the Evangell quha pleases, he sall find in no place of the Evangell quhere our Salveour uses the priesthead of Melchisedec, declaring himself to be an priest after the ordor of Melchisedec, but in the latter Supper, quhere he made oblation of his precious body and blude under the forme of bread and wine, prefigure by the oblation of Melchisedec : Then are we compelled to affirme that our Saviour made oblation of his bodie and blude in the latter Supper, or els he was not an priest according to the order of Melchisedec, quhilk is expres against the Scripture.

JOHN KNOX.

Johne Knox protested that he might have the coppie of this formar writting given in by my Lord in writt, to answer thereto more fullie, and at greater leaser ; which was delivered unto him.

QUINTENE.

And in lyke maner, my Lorde protested that he might have place to reply if he thought good.

THE ANSWER OF JOHN KNOX TO THE ABBOTTE'S ORATION,¹ GIVEN IN BY THE ABBOTE BEFORE THE DISPUTATION, IN WRIT.

JOHN KNOX.

WHENSOEVER it pleaseth God of his great mercy to shew the light, and to blow the trompet of his true word unto the blind and unthank-

¹ [See the Oration itself, reprinted supra, p. 157.]

ful world, after darknes and long silence, it hath the strength to move and walken, not onelie the chosen, but also the reprobate; but in diverse maner: for the one it walkeneth from ignorance, error, supersticion, vanitie, and horrible corruption, to walk before their God in knowledge, veritie, true serving of his majestie, and in puritie of life. But the other it walkeneth from there formar sluethe, and yet to there further condemnation: For suche as in the time of darknes did live as men without God, at the sound of the trompet, calling them to repentance, addes and joynes to there formar corruption blasphemie against God, and against his eternal veritie. For perceaving that the light discovereth there turpitud, and that the trompet wil not suffer them to slepe, as that they did before, without open reproche, they shame not to call light darknes, and darknes light; good evil, and evil good.¹ And to bring that to pas, to wit, that the light shine no more, doeth the whole band of such as oppone themselves to the veritie of God so earnestlie travell, that slugardes and effeminate men become active and strong souldiours to the devil. The exemples hereof are in Scriptures so common that they need no long rehearsal. For what was the estate of the fals prophetes and preastes in the days of Isayas, Jeremie, Ezechiel, Micheas, and the rest of the true prophetes of God.

What care, I say, they which by ordinarie succession ought to have taught the people of God, tooke over there charges, the complaints and attestations of the true prophetes used against them do witness: In the which they call them dum dogs, blind watchemen,² suche as regarded nothing but ambition, ryatous cheare, and lustes of the flesh;³ pastors that fedd not the flock, but fedd themselves. Finally, they terme them men, from the moste to the least, given to avarice, apostattates that had left God,⁴ his lawes, statutes, and ordinances, and hath laid them selves down to sleape in the middes of corruption, out of the which they could not be walkened.

But yet how vigilant and active they were to resist the true prophetes, and the doctrine offred by them, the Scripture doeth lykwise testifie. For then wes Isayas, and such as adheared to his doctrine, holden as monsters in the eyes of the proude preastes, and of the multitude.⁵ Then was Jeremie accused of treason, cast in presone, and dampned to death.⁶ Then wes Micheas openly striken upon the mouth;⁷ and, briefly, then did none of the true prophetes of God escape the hatred and cruel persecution of those that clamed the title and authoritie to rule in the Church. The same may be sene in the dayes of Jesus Christ; for how negligent and careles wes the whole leuiticall order (a few excepted), these wordes of our Maister, Jesus

¹ Isay. 5.

² Isay. 56, read the place.

³ Ezek. 34.

⁴ Jere. 6.

⁵ Isay. 8.

⁶ Jere. 38.

⁷ 1 Re. 22.

Christe, do witnes : " Wo be unto you, Scribes and Pharises, hipocrites, for ye steak the kingdome of heaven before men : ye yourselves do not enter ; and suche as wolde enter, ye suffer not."¹ But when the trompet began to blowe in the mouth of John the Baptist ; and when Jesus Christe began to preach, and to make mo disciples then John did ; when John called them progenie of vipers, and Jesus Christe did terme them blinde guides, how careful was the whole rable then, is easie to be espyed. For then were ambassadours send to John to knowe by what authoritie he made suche innovation amonge the people, and in the religion of God.² Then was Christe Jesus tempted with sharpe and subtil questions.³ Then was he accused for breaking of the tradiciones of the ancients.⁴ Then was he called Beelzebub ; and in the end he was procured to be hanged betuex two theves. And by whose diligence wes all this broght to pas ? Wes it not by them who before had abused the law, blinded the people, deceaved the simple, and under the title and name of God had sett up the devil and all abomination to ring over men.

For in place of God's true worshipping they had erected a market, and filthie merchandise in the temple of God.⁵ The ejection whereof did so enrage those dum dogs, that with an bay they began to barke against Jesus Christe, and his moste holsome doctrine :⁶ and that because the zeale of that great god their bellie, did altogether consume and eat them up. These things we knowe to be moste true ; and therefore we ought not to wonder albeit the true worde of God reteane the own nature, and that the self same thing chance now in our dayes that heretofore hath bene fully performed.

As for my self, I nothing dout but the great perturbation, controversie, and debate, laity stirred up in all Christen realmes for cause of religion, is the cause that my Lorde Abbote hath bene of lait dayes troubled with unaccustomed laboures. For if the supersticion, idolatrie, pride, vaine glorie, ambition, unjust possessions, superfluous rentes and filthy living, used and manteyned heretofore by suche as clame the name and authoritie of the Church,⁷ had not bene openly rebuked, and a parte thereof, in dispyte of Sathan, suppressed, it may be thoght that my Lorde, in this his impotent age, could have contented him self with the self same ease and quietnes that in his yonger age and better habilitie he enjoyed.⁸ But now the trompet soundeth dampnation to all negligent pastors, and thereof is my Lorde afrayed ; and therefore, to discharge his conscience he wil take the paine to instruct his flock, and to warne

¹ Mat. 23.

² Joh. 1.

³ Mat. 15.

⁴ Mat. 12.

⁵ Joh. 2.

⁶ Mat. 21.

⁷ The cause why Papists ar now so diligent in preaching.

⁸ [Knox, in this insinuation, seems to have forgot that he himself was about fifteen years older than the Abbot.]

them to be ware of fals teachers. I will interprete all to the best part : If my Lordes eye be single, his worke is good ; but if the light that appereth to be in him, and in his sect, be nothing but darknes, how great shall the darknes be !¹ My Lorde is a clerk, and nedeth no interpreter of suche places of Scripture. Yet for the simple, I say, that rightlie to teach the flock of Jesus Christe, requireth right institucion in Christes own doctrine ; for els a zeale without knowledge is nothing but the cause of further blindnes.² Yea, if the blinde lead the blinde, the ignorant idolater take upon him to teache the ignorant people of long time broght up in idolatrie : neither of bothe can escape condemnation so long as they follow that traine. And, therefore, it wil nothing unburding my Lordes conscience albeit that after his negligence and long silence he begin to cry to suche as he tearmes his flock, Be war of fals prophetes ; for it may be that him self be one of that nomber ; yea, perchance, the falsest that they have harde this hundreth year. For if he be a fals prophet that teacheth men to follow strange gods ;³ that prophecies a lie in the name of the Lorde,⁴ and speaketh to the people the divination and deceat of his own hart ;⁵ that causeth the people to erre, and leave the old pathes, and to walke in the pathe of the way that is not troden ; that constantlie say to them that have provoked God to angr : The Lorde heathe spoken it : Ye shall have peace ; and to all that walk after the lustes of there own hartes, shal no evil chance unto you,⁶ etc. If, finally, they be fals prophetes that be avaricious, and studie for advantage, that sowe pilloues under the arme-hoilles of wicked men,⁷ and lay sinners a sleap, and promes life to them to whome they oght not to promes it.

If these be fals prophetes, I say, as the Scripture affirmeth them to be, then standeth my Lorde Abbote in a wonderos perplexitie, and suche as beleve him in no les danger.

For God hath never pronounced suche artickles as my Lorde calleth holosome doctrine, the chief of them, to wit, the Masse, Purgatorie, Praying to Saintes, erecting of Images and suche other, have no assurance of God's worde, but are the meare dreames, statutes, and inventions of men, as there particuler examination (if my Lord pleaseth to abyde the tryal) wil more plainlie witnes ; and therefore, it is no sufficient assurance to the conscience of the auditure that my Lord burden his conscience, in the presence of God that his artickles be godly, necessar, and expedient to be beleved. For so have ever the fals prophetes done, when they and there doctrine was impugned. Did not the prophetes and preasts of Baal affirme there doctrine and religion to be godlie,

¹ Mat. 6.

² Trew knowledge is required in a trew preacher.

³ Deut. 13.

⁴ Jere. 14.

⁵ Jere. 18.

⁶ Jere. 23.

⁷ Ezek. 13.

against the prophet Elias?¹ They did not onely burden there conscience, but also offred them selves to suffer tryal (God him self being judge), before the King, and before the whole people.² The self same thing did the fals prophetes against Michaes and Jeremie;³ and therefore, yet agane, I say, my Lord's conscience (if a blind zeal be worthy of the name of conscience), will neither save him self nor others, because it is not grounded upon God, his revellid wil nor promes. If my Lorde thinketh that the holy Catholick Church is sufficient assurance for his conscience, let him understand that the same buckler had the fals prophetes against Jeremie, for they cryed: "The temple of the Lord! the temple of the Lord! the temple of the Lord!"⁴ but as he with one stroke did brust their buckler a sonder, saying, "Put not your trust in leing wordes:" so say we that how catholick (that is universal) that ever their Churche hath bene, holy are they never able to prove it, neither in lyfe, making of lawes, nor in soundnes of doctrine, as in my answer, given by mouth, I have more planely shewen. It pleaseth my Lorde to terme us, wicked and deceatful preachers, who go about not knowing wherefrom we come, nor by what ordoure; and further he feareth not to pronounce our doctrine fals, wicked, and ungodlie, for of us, and our doctrine, it is plane that my Lorde ment, and meneth.

I answer, that as by God's worde, we accuse the whole masse of mannes nature, of corruption, and wickednes, so do we not flatter our selves, but willingly confesse our selves so subject to corruption and naturall wickednes, that the good that we wold do, we do it not, but the evill that we hate, that we do; yea, we do not deny but that in our lives and outward conversation there be many things bothe worthie of reformation and reprehension. But yet if our lives shalbe compared with the lives of them that accuseth us, be it in general or be it in particular, we doubt not to be justified, bothe before God and man. For how many ministers this day within Scotland, is my Lorde Abbote (joyning with him the whole rable of the horned Bischopes), able to convict to be adulterers, fornicators, dronckards, bloodsheders, oppressors of the poore wedow, fatherles, or stranger; or, yet, that do idilly live upon the sweat of other mennes browes. And how many of them, from the hiest to the lowest, are able to abyde an assyse of the fore-named crimes. And yet shal we be called by the wicked and deceatful preachers, even as if the strongest and moste commune harlot, that ever wes knowen in the bordell, should sclander and revile an honest and pudick matron. But in somewhat must the sonnes resemble there father the devil, as that he is perpetuall enimie to treuth, and to ane honest life, so is he a lear and accusar of our brethren; and, therefore, albeit suche as serve him in idolatric, and all filthines of life, spew out

¹ 1. Reg. 18—[Elijah.]

² 2. Reg. 22.

³ [Micaiah and Jeremiah.]

⁴ Jere. 7.

against us there vennome and leis, with testimonie of a good conscience, we refer vengeance to Him to whome it apertineth ; neither yet wold we have ones opened our mouthes for the defence of our owne innocencie (for God be praised), even before the world it will utter the self, war not that in scandring our lives they go about to deface the glorious gospel of Jesus Christe, whereof it hath pleased his mercie to make us ministers : and in that cace let them be assured, that the lies, which without shame and assurance they causes vomet out against us, with shame and double confucion they shal justlie receive againe in there owne bosomes. If my Lorde Abbote alledge that he accuseth not our lives and external conversation, but our doctrine, which he termes fals, wicked, and ungodlie, we answer, that as that doeth more greive us nor the scandring of our lives, so doubt we nothing but that he that made his favorable promes, to afflicted Jerusalem in these wordes :—

“ All instrument that is prepared against thee shall not prosper, and everie tounge that shal rise against thee in judgment, thou shalt rightlie convict and condeme of impietie.”¹ We doubt not (I say), but the same God will in this our age confound the tounge that oppone them selves to his eternal veritie, which is the ground and assurance of our doctrine. And, therefore, we nothing feare to say, that my Lorde in the end shal spead no better (if he continew in that his irreverent rayling) then suche as heretofore have blasphemed Jesus Christe and his eternall veritie, to the which, albeit for the present they will not be subject, and that, because our persones and presence whom God maketh ministers of the same, are contemptible and despysed : yet in the end they shall feal that in rebelling against our admonicions, they were rebellious to the mouth of God ; and in defasing us, they have dispysed the eternal Sonne of God, who of his mercie hath sent us to rebuke there impeitie, and to reduce to knowledge, and unto the true pastor againe, suche as through blind ignorance have followed the inventions and dreames of men, and have soght justice, remission of sinnes, and reconciliation with God, by other meanes then by Jesus Christe, and by true faith in his blood. But of this point I knowe my Lorde moste doubttes, to wit, Whether God hath sent us or not ? For my Lorde sayes, We go about not knowing wherefrom we come, nor by what ordor ; we answer, That in our consciences we knowe, and he him self wil beare us record, that we are not sent by that Romane Antichriste, whome he calleth Pope, nor yet from his carnal Cardinalles, nor dum-horned Bischoppes ; and thereof we rejoyse, being assured, that as we are not sent by Christes manifest enemie in the earth, so are we sent by Jesus Christe him self, and that by suche ordor as God hath ever kept from the beginning, when publick corruption entered in the Church by sleuth, and impietie of suche as of duetie ought to have fedd the flock, and to have reteaned the people under obedience of God, aswel in religion as in life and maners. The ordor of God (I say) hath bene in suche publick corruptions, to raise up simple and obscure men, in the beginning of there vocacion, unknowen to the worlde, to rebuke the manifest defection of the people from God, to convict the pastors of there formar negligence, sleuth, and idolatrie, and to prononce them unworthie of there offices. For so was Helias sent in the dayes of Ahab,¹ Jeremie in the time of corruption, under Jehoiakin and Zedechias; Amos under Jeroboam, and the rest of the Prophets, everie one in there own tyme; and after the same ordour hath God rased up in these our dayes, suche men, as my Lord and his faction termes Heretikes, Schismatikes, Zuinglians, Lutherians, Ocolampadians, and Calvinists, to prove the Pope to be an Antichriste, his whole glorie in the earth to be altogether repugnant to the condicion of Christe's true ministers; the Masse to be idolatrie, and a bastard service of God, yea, more corrupted then ever was the Sacrifice in the dayes of the Prophetes, when yet they affirmed them to be abominable before God; purgatorie to be nothing but a pykepur; the defence of mannes frewill to do good and avoide evil, to be the damned heresie of Pelagius; the forbidding of mariage to any estate of men or woman to be the doctrine of devills; and the forbidding of meat, for conscience saik, to proceed of the same fontaine; the erecting images in churches, and in publick places of assembleis, to be against the expressed commandement of God; prayer for the dead, and unto sainctes, to be work done without faith, and therefore to be sinne. Briefly, God hath rased up men in these our dayes, so to discover the turpitud and filthines of that Babiloniane harlote, that hir verrie golden cuppe, in the which hir fornication wes hid before, is become abhominable to all suche as trust for the life everlasting. And they have, further, sett so vehement a fyre in the verry ground of hir glorie, that is, in hir usurped authoritie, that she and it are bothe like to burne to there uttermoste confusion. My Lorde and his companions feare no suche threatninges; they are but rayling knaves that dispytfully speak against there holy mother the Church. I have already said that the Prophetes in there dayes wes even so rewarded of those that had the same tytle and dignitie that now our adversaries clame, and yet did they not escape the plagues pronounced; and in the same confidence stand we, rejoysing further, that howsoever they repyne, storme, and rage, yet they that are of God hear us, knowe the voice of Jesus Christe speaking in us his weak instruments, and do flie from that horrible harlote, and from hir filthynes, which is to us a sufficient assurance that God hath sent us for the comfort of his chosen.

¹ Isay. 14.

But my Lorde perchance requireth miracles to prove our laughfull

¹ 1. Reg. 17. Jere. 35. Amo. 2.

vocation ; for so doeth Vinzet¹ procurator for the Papistes. To bothe I answer, that a treuth by it self, without myracles, hath sufficient strength to prove the laughful vocation of the teachers thereof, but miracles destitute of treuth have efficacie to deceave, but never to bring to God. But this, by the grace of God, shalbe more fully entreated in the Answer to Vinzetes Questiones² thereupon. And yet one word man I say before I make end to my Lorde, and unto the rest of the Pope's creatures, and it is this : If they will studie to keap them selves in credeit and estimation, let them never call our vocation in doubt, for we incontinent will object to them, that from the moste to the least, there is none amongs them, laughfully called to serve within the Church of God ; but all commit symonie, all are heretykes, all receive the spirit of lies, and the leprosie of Gehezi. And finally, being accused in there first ordination, they neither can give grace nor benediction to the people of God ; and this, by there own law, I offer my self to prove, as evidentic as my Lords Bischops, Abbots, Priors, and the rest of that sect, are able to prove them selves called to Ecclesiasticall function (as they terme it) by there father's Bulles, and conformation of the Pope. I wonder not a lytil that my Lorde should alledge, that I wes certified that he might not be present at Kirkoswald the day that first I offred my self to resist his vaine and blasphemous artickles. I am able to prove that by his promes he had bound him self offer then ones to be present ; and, also, that by famous gentle men, that same Sondag, in the morning, he was required either to come and teach according to his promes, and so to suffer his doctrine, in audience of suche as he named his owne flock, to be tryed, or els, to come and heare doctrine, and with sobrietic and gentilnes to oppon at his pleasure. These two heades (I say) I am able to prove. But that I wes certified that he could not be present, etc., I think it shalbe as hard to prove, as to prove that Melchisedec made Sacrifice of bread and wine unto God. But my Lorde shall have libertie of me to alledge in suche cases what pleaseth him, so long as his allegation shal not prejudice the veritie, nor give patroeynie to a lie in maters of religion. It is not of great importance whether I was certified, or not, that my Lorde could not be present, as he alledgeth. I presented my self at the day appointed, and that is some argument that I greatlie feared not my Lordes presence. The letters that have passed betuix us, together with some answers that I differed, shalbe put in register before the Disputation, that men may see the whole proceedings of bothe parties ; and this muche by writ to my Lordes first Oration, given in in writ.

Now followeth my Answer to the rest, given at that same instant by mouth.

¹ [Ninian Winzet, see supra, p. 152.]

² [Knox's proposed Answer to Winzet's Questions never appeared.]

JOHN KNOX ANSWERETH BY MOUTH.

BECAUSE I perceave, bothe in your protestation and artickle, that ye dispute not upon these maters as disputable, but as of things alreadie concluded, by the Kirk, General Counselles, and Doctors; I must say somewhat in the beginning how farre I will admit of any of the fore-named. And of the Kirk, first (I say) that I acknowledge it to be the spous of Christe Jesus, bulded upon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets;¹ so that into all doctrine it heareth the voice of the Spous onelie, and an stranger it will not heare, according to the wordes of our Master, Christ Jesus, "My shepe heare my voice,"² etc. And, therefore, if that any multitude, under the title of the Kirk, will obtrude unto us any doctrine necessar to be beleved to our salvation, and bringeth not for the same the expres worde of Jesus Christ or his Apostles, etc., men must aperdone me, although I acknowledge it not to be the Kirk of God for the reason foresaid. And unto the Generall Counselles I answer the same, to wit, that suche as hath bene gathered duelic and in the name of God, for extirpation of heresies, with my whole harte I do reverence; provided alwayes that the doctrine that they propone to be beleved, have the approbation of the plaine worde of God, or els with that Ancient I must say, that more credit is to be given to an man bringing for him the testimonie of God's Scriptures, then to an Generall Counsell affirming any doctrine without the same.³ And as concerning the authoritie of the Doctors (for whome I praise my God, as that I do for all them whome he maketh profitable instrumentes in his Kirk), I think my Lorde will bind me no straiter then he hath desyred to be bound him self, that is, that men be not received as God;⁴ and, therefore, with Augustine I consent, that whatsoever the Doctors propone, and plainly confirme the same by the evident testimonie of the Scriptures, I am hartlie content to receive the same; but els, that it be laughful to me with Jerome to say, whatsoever is affirmed without the authoritie of God's Scriptures, with the same facilitie it may be rejected as it is affirmed. And these thre admitted. So forth I enter in disputation.

M. QUINTYNE.

Thair ar divers heides quhairwith I am offended, willing that the purpose we come for may go shortlie to passe; thairfore, presentlie I will omitt and as the occasion sall serve of the Doctoures, Counsalles, and ocht elles, quhilkis ar not expresly contened in the Scriptures: and this quicklie go to the purpose.

¹ Ephc. 2.³ Panornita.² Joh. 10.⁴ Let the godlie judge if these petitions be reasonable.

JOHN KNOX.

Ye are not ignorant (my Lorde), that in everie disputation the ground ought so to be laide, that the mater disputable, or the question, either come under an perfite definicion, or els under an sufficient discription, and specially when the question is, De voce simplici; as is "Missa." Yf it please your Lordschip to defyne the Masse, or yet sufficientlie to discrive it, I will take occasion of that which I think wrong; and if not, then must I explaine my minde what Masse it is that I intend to impung, and have called Idolatrie; not the blisshed institution of the Lorde Jesus, which he hath commanded to be used in his Kirk to his gaincoming, but that which is copen in into the Kirk visible, without all approbation of the worde of God. And this Masse, I say, hath a name, a forme and action, an opinion conceived of it, and an actor of the same.¹ And unto the whole foure, I say, that neither the name, the forme and action, nor the opinion, nor actor, have there assurance of God's plaine worde.

M. QUINTYNE.

As to the diffinicion or description that I gaif the last yeir, I will abyde at it this yeir, for I am not cummin in use of "est, et non est." And as to the Masse that he wil impung, or any mannes masse, yea, and it war the Paipe's awin messe, I will mantein na thing but Jesus Christes messe, conforme to my artickle as it is writtin, and diffinition contened in my buik, quhilk he hes taine on hand to impung.

JOHN KNOX.

As I can conceave, my Lordes answer containeth thre heades. The first, is a relation to his booke as conteaning the difinicion of the Masse; the second, a declaration of his Lordschipes constancie; and the third, an affirmation that he wil affirne no masse but the masse of Jesus Christ, yea, not if it wer the Pope's owne masse.² Unto the first I answer, that I have not red his Lordeschipes booke (not excusing thereintill my own negligence), and therefore it appeareth unto me that rather his Lordship should cause the diffinition to be red out of his booke, nor to burden me with the seaking of it. As concerning his Lordshipes constancie, I beseak the eternal God to make us all constant in his eternal veritie: for inconstancie in the treuth can not lack infamie and great danger. But to me it appeareth, that in no wyse it can hurt the fame, nor conscience of the godlie, to confesse them selves men, who bothe may erre, and also be occation that others erre; and yet, when that the fuller knowledge commeth unto them, by the spirit of God, no man ought to impute unto them inconstancie, albeit they retreat there formar error, as in divers heades did that learned Augustine. But the thirde head doeth moste delite me, to wit, that my Lord hath affirmed that he will defend no Masse but the Masse of the Lorde Jesus : which if his Lordship will performe (as my good hope is),¹ then I dout not but we are on the verray point of an Christiane aggrement. For whatsoever his Lordschip shall prove to me to be done by the Lorde Jesus, that, without all contradiction, I shall embrace, providing that his Lordship alledge nothing to be done by Jesus Christe which his owne institution witnesseth not to be done.

¹ Let men judge if this be not impugnation of the Papistical Messe.

² Let men judge how favorable the sone is unto the father.

M. QUINTYNE.

I define the Messe, as concerning the substance, and effect, to be the sacrifice and oblation, of the Lordes bodie and blude, given and offered by him, in the latter Supper ; and takis the Scripture, to my warrand, according to my article as it is written. And for the first confirmation of the same, groundes me upon the sacrifice and oblation of Melchisedec. To the second, I thank John Knox of his prase and prayer of my constancie ; and in lyk maner, for Christiane cheriteis saik, prase God with all my hart, for his induretnes and pertinacie (gif swa be that he be in error), and will wish him, that he be willed to refuse his pertinacie, as I sall do my constancie gif I be in error. To the thrid, for avoiding of cavillation, I mein that I will defend no Messe as concerning the substance, institution and effect, bot that Messe onelie, quhilk is institut be Jesus Christ.

JOHN KNOX.

Omitting to further consideration the answer to the definition, to the last two heades, I shortlie answer, that I praised no constancie but that which is in the treuth ; and as touching my owen indurednes, wherewith my Lorde seameth to burden me, I plainlie protest before God, that if I knew my self in error, in that cace, or in any other that concerneth the doctrine of salvation, I should not be ashamed publictly to confesse it. But the last parte of my Lordes answer appeareth som parte to varie (in my judgement) from his formar affirmation, which I tooke to be, that his Lordship wold defend nothing in the Masse which he was not able to prove to be the verray institution of Jesus Christe. And therefore, must I have recourse unto the formar division of the Masse ; which is, in name, action, opinion, and actor ; and humblie requireth of his Lordship, that he wold signifie unto me, if he wold be content to prove the name to be given by Jesus Christe ; the whole action and ceremonies from beginning, to the end, to be the ordinance of Almighty God.² The opinion, which hath bene conceaved, taught, and written of it, for to be aggreable with the Scriptures of God. And finally, if that the actor hath his assurance of God, to do that, which he there publictly protesteth he doeth.

¹ Note my offer.

² Note if this be to shoot an pistollet at the Messe.

M. QUINTYNE.

As willing that the treuth cum to ane tryall, I will not trifle, bot schortly geves for answer,¹ I wil begin at the best first, quhilk is the substance and effect: And as to the ceremonies, actor and name, sal defend them abundantly (God willing), conform to my artickle quhen I cum thairto.

JOHN KNOX.

The ceremonies used in the Masse, and the opinion conceaved of the same, have bene holden substanciall partes thereof, into the conscience of a great multitude; and therefore, ought the conscience of the weak and infirme first to be delivered from that bondage.² For what my Lorde affirmeth of the Masse (to wit, that it is a Sacrifice), this perchance may be also alledged to aparteane to the right institution of Jesus Christe, in some cace, which ones wes void bothe of those ceremonies and that damnable opinion.

M. QUINTYNE.

I am not cumin heir to mantein the opiniones of men, but to defend the institution of Jesus Christ, conform to my artickle.

JOHN KNOX.

It appeareth to me yet againe, that my Lorde is willing to defend no thing but the verry institution of Christ Jesus.³ And I have already affirmed, that neither the name of the masse, the ceremonies used in the same, the opinion conceaved of it, neither yet that power which the actor usurpeth, hath either the institution or assurance of Jesus Christe.

M. QUINTYNE.

I am willing to defend my diffinition concerning the Messe, as I have diffined it, and takes Goddes word to my warrand,⁴ and as to the ceremonies, actor, and all the rest, sall defend, God willing, to be agreeable with Goddes word all through abundantly as tyme and place sal serve, beginning first at the substance and effect.

JOHN KNOX.

I answer, that albeit in my judgement the conscience of man ought first to have bene sett at libertie, yet hoping that my Lorde wilbe

¹ A shifting answer.

³ This is a dowble cannon against the Messe.

² Let the Papests answer if this be trew or not.

⁴ My Lord fled the Barras for the first.

content, according to his promes, that the name, ceremonies, and the rest of the accidents of the masse suffer the tryal by the worde of God, I am content shortlie to enter in the bodie of the mater; and desireth the definition to be resumed.

M. QUINTYNE.

I promes, before this honorable auditor, to defend that all contened in the action of the Messe to be aggreable with Goddes word,¹ providing alwayes we gang to the substance.

The definition being resumed,

JOHN KNOX answered,

Your Lordship is not ignorant, that in everie definition there oght to be genus, which I take your Lordship here maketh this term Sacrificium; but because the term is generall, and in the Scriptures of God is diversly taken, therefore it must be broght to a certane kinde. For in the Scriptures there be sacrifices called Eucharistica, that is, of thanks giving. The mortification of our bodies, and the obedience that we give to God in the same, is also called Sacrifice. Prayer and invocation of the name of God hath also the same name within the Scriptures. Liberalitie toward the poore, is also so termed. But there is one Sacrifice which is greatest, and, moste of all, called Propiciatorium, which is that sacrifice, whereby satisfaction is made to the justice of God, being offended at the sinnes of man, etc. Now I desire of my Lord that he appoint unto the masse, whiche of these Sacrifices best pleaseth him.

M. QUINTYNE.

Quhat ye mein be the sacrifice Propiciatorium, presentlie I will not dispute. But I tak the sacrifice upon the croce, to be the onelie Sacrifice of redemption, and the sacrifice of the Masse, to be the sacrifice of commemoration of Christ's death and passion.

JOHN KNOX.

So farre as I can conceave of my Lordes answer, he maketh no sacrifice Propiciatorie in the Messe:² which is the chief head which I intend to impung. For, as for the commemoration of Christes death and passion that I grant, and publictly do confesse, to be celebrat in the right use of the Lordes Supper, which I denie the Messe to be.

M. QUINTYNE.

It is your deutie, according to formall proceeding, to impung my warrand, quhilk I have chosen, to defend my diffinition be, and article even as it is writtin.³

¹ Let my Lord remember his promes.

³ If this be shifting or not let men

² Heir are no cannons then one. judge.

JOHN KNOX.

Protesting that this mekle is win, that the Sacrifice of the masse being denied by me to be a sacrifice Propiciatorie for the sinnes of the quick and the dead, according to the opinion thereof before conceived, hath no patron, at this present : I am content to procede.¹

M. QUINTYNE.

I protest that he hes win nothing of me as yit, and referres it to black and quhite, contened in our writing.

JOHN KNOX.

I have openlie denied the Masse to be an sacrifice Propiciatorie for the quick, etc., and the defence thereof is denied ;² and, therefore, I referre me unto the same judges that my Lorde hath clamed.

M. QUINTYNE.

Ye may deny quhat ye pleis, for all that ye deny I tak not presentlie to impung, bot quhair I began thair wil I end, that is, to defend the Messe, conforme to my artickle.³

JOHN KNOX.

Seing that neither the name, the action, the opinion, nor the actor of the Masse, can be defended for this present, I wold gladly knowe what I should impung.

M. QUINTYNE.

All above rehearsed can be defended, and salbe defended (Godwilling), and quhair ye are glaid to know quhat ye suld impung, apperanlie that sould be na newingis to yow, for I certifie yow, ye sould impung my warrand alledged for defence of my difnicion and artickle.⁴

JOHN KNOX.

If be your warrand ye understand the oblation made in bread and wine by Melchisedec, I plainly deny that Melchisedec made any oblation or sacrifice, of bread and wine, unto God, and desires the text to be judge.⁵

M. QUINTYNE.

It is your pairt to impung, and myne to defend, for I am the defender, and salbe, Godwilling.

¹ Let men now judge whither the Messe gat a wound or not.

² Note.

³ Shift on.

⁴ I did nothing but as my Lord commanded.

⁵ Have at your ground.

JOHN KNOX.

Can I impung more plane, then when I denie your ground ?

M. QUINTYNE.

I say the denying of the ground is na proper impugnation.

JOHN KNOX.

Your Lordship's ground is, that Melchisedec is the figure of Christe, in that, that he did offer unto God bread and wine ; and, therefore, that it behoved Jesus Christe to offer, in his latter Supper, his bodie and blood, under the formes of bread and wine. I answer to your ground, yet againe, that Melchisedec offered neither bread nor wine unto God :¹ And therefore it, that ye would thereupon conclude, hath no assurance of your ground.

M. QUINTYNE.

Preve that.

JOHN KNOX.

Whether that the probation of a negative should be devolved upon me, especially when I have denied your chief ground, I am content the learned judge.

M. QUINTYNE.

Moved through fervor of the tryall of the treuth of Goddes worde, I refuse logik captious cavillationis for the present (not perchance for ignorance), bot that we tyne not tyme to finnish and establis our godlie pretence for the ease and quietness of the conscience of the noble men heir present.²

JOHN KNOX.

I have els³ protested, that I abhor all cavillationes, and yet againe declares unto your Lordship, that in my judgement it is the way moste succinet, that your Lordship prove your own ground ; that is, that Melchisedec offered unto God bread and wine, which I denie.

M. QUINTYNE.

I tak the text to be my warrand and ground.

JOHN KNOX.

The text being red, the 14 of Genesis, there is no mention made of any oblation of bread and wine made by Melchisedec unto God, but ¹ Let men judge now if my Lord's ground for the Messe be not shaken.

² Gather what is spoken.

³ [Already.]

onelic that Melchisedec, being king of Salem, brocht forth bread and wine;¹ and that being priest of the moste hie God, he blessed Abraham, as the text beareth witnes. And therefore, I say that the text preveth not that any oblation of bread and wine was made unto God by Melchisedec.

M. QUINTYNE.

Ye do affirm that Melchisedec brocht furth bread and wine. I speir at yow to what effect?²

JOHN KNOX.

Will ye devolve upon me now the persone of an answerer, seing that ye refused your self of before the same?

M. QUINTYNE.

This quhilk he calles answering, is mair properlie to be called impungnation in this cace, in that, finding the text to serve nothing for my purpose, is plaine impungnation to my pretence.³ And sua are ye cled rather with the personage of ane impungnar nor ane defendar.

JOHN KNOX.

Whether that I susteane the personage of an impungner, or of an defender, I am not bound to answer what wes done with the bread and wine after that it was brocht forth. It suffiseth to me for my formare purpose, that there is no mention made in the text, that bread and wine by Melchisedec was offered unto God.

M. QUINTYNE.

It ryndes⁴ to yow to preif that Melchisedec made no oblation of bread and wine unto God.⁵

JOHN KNOX.

It suffiseth to me, that in the text there is no mention made that Melchisedec made any oblation of bread and wine unto God, as ye before alledged, and hath laide for your ground.

M. QUINTYNE.

I say the wordes of the text ar plain that Melchisedec maid oblation of bread and wine unto God,⁶ and desires yow to improve the same be the text.

¹ Gen. 14.

² Judge now if my Lord shiftes.

³ Marck what is confessed by my Lord.

⁴ [Ryndes, pertains.]

⁵ Let the learned judge if this be trew.

⁶ Note if so be.

JOHN KNOX.

My improbation is alreadie ledd ; for, in the text, there is no mention of oblation of bread and wine made unto God. And therefore, I am content that the whole world judge whether the ground be not sufficientlie improven or not.

M. QUINTYNE.

Melchisedec brocht furth bread and wine, quhilk he did not without cause, and ye deny that he brocht it furth, for the cause that I alledge, ergo, for some other cause. Quhilk gif ye wil not, nor can not shaw presentlie, I sall do deligence to cause the present auditor understand cleirly, that he brocht furth bread and wine for the cause alledged be me.¹ Providing that gif ye will not shaw the cause presently, that ye sal have na place to shaw it heirefter.

JOHN KNOX.

I answer, that he brocht forth bread and wine, the text plainly affirmeth, and I have alreadie granted ; but that he made oblation of the same, because the text proporteth it not, I can not grant it. As touching the cause wherefore he brocht it forth (if place shal be given to conjectors, and that not grounded without great probabilitie, and also with sufrage of some of the ancients, to wit, Josephus and Chrysostom). It may be said that Melchisedec, being an king, brocht forth bread and wine to refresh Abraham and his werie souldiors : And this, for your satisfaction of the cause, why he brocht forth bread and wine ; ever still sticking upon the principal ground, That because no mention is made, that Melchisedec made oblation of bread and wine unto God, I deny it, as of before.

THE PENNULT OF SEPTEMBER 1562.

M. QUINTYNE.

Of John Knox sayings above rehearsed,² I conceive twa heides in special ; the ane is, that Melchisedec maid na oblation unto God, bot he did bring furth the bread and wine to refresh Abraham and his companie. I will answer unto the saides heides formally, and on this manner : First, I wil mak impugnation unto the last heid, quhair it is thoct that he did refresh Abraham and his companie. In that the text is manifest in the contrar, in sa far as the text testifies, that Abraham and his company war refreshed be the spolze³ of the enimies, and was not refreshed, nor mistered na refreshing of Melchisedec ; cond dayes travell, after that my Lord had sleaped.

¹ Consider in what straitnes my Lord was now.

² This was the beginning of the se-

³ ["Spolze," "spolzeis," "spoolies," plunder, spoils.]

quhairfore it is manifest that Melchisedec brocht furth bread and wine unto ane other effect, nor to refresh Abraham and his companie.¹

JOHN KNOX.

My formar prove, that Melchisedec did not offer bread and wine unto God, standeth upon this ground, that the text maketh mention of no maner oblation made there unto God of bread and wine : And, therefore, in a mater of so great importance, darre not I affirme oblation to be made, whill that the Holy Ghost kepeth silence. And now unto my Lordes argument ; first, I answer, that there is no contradiction betuix these two ; Abraham and his company were refreshed of the spoolies of these enimies, and Abraham and his company were refreshed of the liberalitie of Melchisedec. And first, because in the tyme when Abraham and his company received there nourishment of the substance of these enimies, they were out of the presence of Melchisedec, and not returned unto there countrie. But albeit that they had bene even in the presence of Melchisedec, yet they might have bene nourished, partlie be his liberalitie, and partlie be there own provision. And, thirdly, because the text doeth not affirme that Abraham and his wer nourished onely of the spoile. I can not admit my Lordes argument.²

M. QUINTYNE.

For satisfaction of the auditoure, and to cum quicklie to the point without drifting of tyme, I will refuse reasoning after scoolmaner, and will go yit to the text, and depend thairupon. And on this maner sayand (saif onely that quhilk the yong men hes eatin), I inffer of this text, that it dois appeir, ye, and is manifest, that thair remaned mair nor was eitin, be Abraham and his company, for the present.

JOHN KNOX.

I do not deny, but there remained substance which was neither eatin nor consumed by Abraham and his company ; but what shalbe hereof concluded ?

M. QUINTYNE.

I infer that not onely thair remaned substance, bot thair remaned mekle mair substance nor Abraham and his company was able to consume, yea, and to gif ane great deale away ; for quhy, Abraham was victor of foure kingis, quhairthrough he obtened ane great spolze, and not onely of foure, bot also he gat the spolze of uther fyve, and gat all thair vivers and meat, quhairthrough it is manifest be the verray plaine text, that Abraham and his company had mekle mair meat nor they war able to consume, and swa mistered he nor his company na refreshing of Melchisedec, considering he and his company was bot ane meine number (as I wold say), thre hundreth and aughtene.

¹ Let my Lordes argument be noted.

² Answer to the formar argument.

JOHN KNOX.

The victorie of Abraham is in the text specified, as also the number of the kinges vainqueshed ; and that there remaned substance, yea, mekle more then was spent, I do not deny. But this wil not necessarlie conclude, but that Melchisedec of his liberalitie broght forth bread and wine to the purpose forsaid : as be conjecture is moste probable ; for men of godlines and civill honestie, do not onely shaw them selves liberal in tyme of extreme necessitie, but also wil declair there benevolence without great neid, yea, and in greatest abundance.

M. QUINTYNE.

Because John Knox speakis of substance indifferentlie, I will desire him to declair his opinion, conforme to the text, quhither Abraham and his company recovered of the nyne kingis spolzeis bread and wine, and uther sustenance ; quhilk treulie, albeit the text do no propert the same in plaine wordes, yit can na man of judgement think utherwise, as I can gif many hundreth examples in the Scriptures, and ane in speciall, quhair Jesus Christ our Lorde speakis in his awin prayer, called the Pater noster, of daylie bread, quhairinto is to be understand all required unto the sustentation of man, albeit the text dois not expresly declair the samin.

JOHN KNOX.

I have spoken of substance in generall, so instructed by the plaine text, which maketh mention neither of bread nor wine in expressed wordes, other nor of that which Melchisedec broght forth ; and by all apperance, there could not any great store of bread and wine be caried back againe by Abraham and his company, after the victorie of his enimies ; for plaine it is, that he broght nothing back, which they before did not carie away (him self and his company onely excepted). We read that they toke the pray of Sodom and Gomorra, and caried with them the substance, yea, and the victual, Loth, his substance,¹ etc. Now albeit, that in the beginning there victualles had bene great, yet being suche a company as we may justlie suppose them to have bene : and also being arrived within there own costes, it is not appearing that great store was reserved. But howsoever it be, this mater standing in conjecture, we wil of necessitie conclud no thing, seing that the Holie Ghost hath not expressed it. As touching my Lordes allegation of the daylie bread, etc., I acknowledge with his Lordschip that to be the familiar phrase of the Scripture, that, under the name of bread, is commonly taken all thinges necessar for the use of mannes bodie, like as these, "Frangere esurienti panem tuum," etc.

¹ Let this conjectur serve for answer to my Lord's argument.

M. QUINTYNE.

Havand consideration that John Knox wald cast in ane suspicion in the hartes of the honorable auditor (saifand his pardone), be continual repeticion of this word conjecture, we wil do as God will give us grace, to tak this policie out of the hartes of the auditor, and that by proper discription of arguments of inference or conjecture, quhairfore the auditor sall consider, that thair is sum conjectures and argumentes of inference quhilk necessarlie concludes and followes upon; and ar called nottheles argumentes of conjecture or inference, because the ane worde is not the other,¹ nor dois not expresly conclud the other; as, for ane familiar example, Spirat, ergo vivit, as I wald say, he aindes² ergo he lives. Quhairfore I infer that this conference of phrase, or maner of speach, quhair it is said in the text, al thair victuallis necessarily inferris breid, wine, and all uther thingis expedient to be eatin, considering thair was great abundance in the citeis quhilk war spolyeit, as do this phrase, break unto the hungrie thy bread, and swa quhatsumever may be inferred of the ane phrase, necessarlie may be inferred of the uther.

JOHN KNOX.

Hitherto I have travelled, to make difference betuix that, that man of necessitie is bound to beleve, and that which man may either beleve, or not beleve, without any hurt of conscience. What God, in expressed wordes and sentences, hath committed to us within the Scriptures, and commanded the same to be beleved, he requireth of us that necessarlie we beleve the same. But where the Spirit of God hath keped silence, and hath not in plaine sentences declared unto us the will of God our Father, there may a man suspend his judgement without hurt of conscience; yea, and more sure it is, not bouldlie to affirme, that which is keped close by the wisdome of God, then that we should rashelie affirme any thing, without the warrand of God's worde, as we are taught by the admonition of Augustine. As touching the diversitie of arguments, I know bothe the strength of them that are called Necessaria Concludentia, and of those whiche stand in probabilitie, which bothe I grant to have the strength in persuasion: but the faith of man requireth a surer ground,³ then any argument that can be deduced from nature, (to wit) it requireth hearing, and that hearing of the worde of God, according to the doctrine of the Apostle. Now, to my Lordes argument, I say it doeth not necessarlie conclude, that Abraham and his souldiers broglt more reddie meat, suche as bread and wine, back from there victorie then they were able to spend, albeit that they caried with

¹ Let the learned consider this proper discription of conjectural arguments whiche do necessarlie conclude.

² [Breathes.]

³ The ground of fayth is the word of God revealed.

Q 433

them the whole substance, yea, the whole victualles¹ of Sodom and Gomorra, etc. ; because that in the journey some might have bene lossed, in the journey no dout but muche wes spent, and in the victorie the rest might have bene dispersed or lost. For by all apperance Abraham had smal respect to bread and wine, more then to that which might reasonable susteane him and his company unto there returne.² And thus from conjecture we shal continually pas to conjecture, onles that my Lord be able to prove, that the text affirmeth in plane wordes, that suche superfluous abundance of bread and wine wes broght back, unto the time that Melchisedec met him, (and although his Lordship be able so to do, as I am assured no man is able,) yet shal alwayes Melchisedec and his liberalitie stand still unconvicted.

M. QUINTYNE.

To meit all the heides contened in John Knox, partickle above rehearsed, notwithstandinge appearanlie I am constrained to the same, yit, alwayes in favoris of the auditure, I will go schortlie to sum speciall heides.³ And first quhair he makes ane meine,⁴ that I go by naturall ressonis to persuade, to take the suspicion of men justly of me in this heid, I say, and do affirme, that I have done not⁵ in that cause as yit bot conforme to the Scriptures althrough.⁶ And quhair John Knox speakis in general of meat, our contention was for bread and wine, quhilk I inferred necessarlie of the text ; and desires him to give me ane resson schortlie, grounded upon the Scripture, quhairfore the phrase alledged be me concerning the meat sal not include bread and wine, as weil as his phrase concerning the bread, be his opinion, without expres Scripture sall include all kinde of uther meatis.

JOHN KNOX.

I purge me first, that I neither burden my Lorde with informality, neither yet, that his Lordship travelleth by naturall reason onelie, to persuade to man ; but because the whole state of the cause, (as I understand) standeth in this, whether that Abraham and his souldiors broght back againe superfluitie of bread and wine or not, I have desired the same to be proven by the expressed worde. The phrase is not mine onely, but I did aggre with my Lorde bringing in the same first. And now why I think that Abraham, and his, broght no superfluitie of bread and wine back againe ? The reason is, because the text doeth plainlie affirme, that victualles, besydes the other substance, wes caried away by the enimies. But that any victualles, besydes the substance were broght back againe, there is no specification.⁷

¹ That is, the kings vincust by Abraham.

² Let the reader advert.

³ Let the indifferent judge.

⁴ [Complaint.] ⁵ [Done nothing.]

⁶ [Throughout.]

⁷ Let all men judge if this reason be not sufficient.

M. QUINTYNE.

Because I perceave John Knox dois not meit the heid of my partickle, quhair I do mark the conferrence¹ betuix the phrases of the Scriptures alledged be us baith, quhairin (efter my judgement) consistes the marekis² point of the purpose, I will travell na further thairin, notwithstanding that I have ground of the Scripture abundantlie. And swa I wil go to ane uther heid, to assure the reader that Melchisedec brocht not furth bread and wine to refresch Abraham and his company, I wil ground me properlie upon the text, and on this maner: The text sayis, protulit or proferens, quhilk is in the singular number, as ane person bringand furth bread and wine, quhairfore necessarlie it concludes he brocht not furth bread and wine to refresch ane multitude, as Abraham and his company was, quhilk was not possible to ane person to do, but onelie to mak Sacrifice conforme to my beginning.

JOHN KNOX.

What I have answered, the benevolent reader shall after judge; to the present conjecture of my Lorde, I answer, That if Melchisedec allone without al company had brocht onely furth so muche bread and wine as he wes able goodly to carie, yet shal it not be necessarlie concluded, that therefore he brocht it not forth to gratifie Abraham; for an small portion may oftentimes be thankfull to many, but my Lorde appeareth to shoote at that ground, whiche I have not laid for my principall. And, therefore, albeit his Lordship shuld win it, yet my formar strength were litle deminished, (in my judgement,) for onles his Lordship be able to prove by the plaine wordes of the text, that the bread and wine wer brocht forth to be offered unto God, my principall ground doeth alwayes abyde. But the phrase of the Scripture, and als the ordinarie manere of speaking, doeth often tymes attribute to the principall man, that which at his commandement, or wil is done by his servandes or subjectes, whereof I offer my self to shaw in Scriptures more testimonies than one, with tyme. And yet this is not my chief ground, but this I speak for explaining of the text.

M. QUINTYNE.

Of the formar pertickle I mark twa heides in speciall, quhilk dois not onely give apperance for my pretence, bot plainlie dois convict, as the godlie and ineffectionat reader may cleirly perceave. The first heid is, quhair John Knox dois allege that Melchisedec brocht furth bread and wine to refresch Abraham and his werie companie,³ quhilk plainly differis fra his speaking present, sayand, that it was to gratifie Abraham and his company, quhairinto thair is sic manifest diffirence, as it gives

¹ [Analogy, agreement.]

² [Main point in question.]

³ Consider what shifts my Lord sought.

plaine persuasion his ground in this heid to be nochtis. Secondly, it is against the order of nature to think that ony ane man (lat be ane king and ane preist) sould bring furth that might gratifie, lat be to refresch sic ane multitude as thre hundreth and auchtene werie personis.

JOHN KNOX.

What my Lordes judgement doeth move in the harts of the auditure, I remitt to there own judgement, but I plainly affirme, that neither in my worde, nor in my dytment, is there any such repugnance or diffirence as justlie may convict me to have an evil ground ; for, in my formar sayinges, my wordes were, that, by probable conjecture, the bread and wine were broght forth by Melchisedec to refresh Abraham and his werie company.¹ I did not affirme, that he and his whole companie were thereof wholly refreshed. And in my latter wordes, I say, that albeit there had bene no more bread and wine then Melchisedec onely broght forth, yet doeth it not thereof necessarlie conclude that the same were not broght forth to gratifie Abraham. In which maner of speach, this terme gratifie, doeth nether repung, nor yet differ, from the terme refresh, otherwise, commonlie doeth in maner of speach, genus and species ; that is to say, the more generall, and the inferior. For in so far as Abraham and his company were refreshed by the bread and wine (were it never so litle), in so far doeth he bring it forth to gratifie him. Protesting plainly, that unwillinglie I am compelled thus to answer.

And thus endeth the Second dayes travell, all whole spent to answer my Lordes shifting. Whereto he wes moved, because he wes not able to prove that Melchisedec offered bread and wine unto God, as willinglie ones he tooke to prove.

M. QUINTYNE.

As dois John Knox, sa do I with all my hart, remit me to the judgemente of the auditor in this heid ; and will not report the heides of his formar pertickle for avoiding of prolixtnes. But now will I conclude with ane argument.

And thus beginnes M. Quintyne the Third day, having this argument written in paper, which he caused to be red.

M. QUINTYNE.

Quhatsumever opinion is conceaved of the Scriptures of Almightie God, havand na expres testimonie nor apperance of the same, is allutterlie to be refused (as sayis John Knox him self). Bot swa it is, that John Knox awin opinion, conceaved or contracted of the Scripture, concerning the bringing forth of bread and wine by Melchisedec, to refresche or gratifie Abraham and his werie company, is not expresly contened in the Scripture, nor hes na apperance of the samin; therefore it followis weill, that it is alluterlie be his awin judgement to be refused. Moved on godlie zeill (honorable auditor), that in this dangerous tyme, the treuth sould cum to tryal, in sic maner, as the conscience of sic as ar perturbed, (safar as lies in oure sober possibilitie,) sould be estabesled, and at quietnes; we set furth certane Artickles (as plesed God to gif us grace), unto the quhilkis John Knox tuik on hand to mak impungnation, specially to the artickle concerning the Messe: Day, houre, and place beand appointed and observed, I come to defend my Artickles, and in speciall my artickle concerning the Messe; and according to the samin, tuik me properlie to my warrand, grounded upone Goddes Word:¹ unto the quhilk warrand, John Knox, as yit, hes maid na impungnation, bot desyred me to sustene and defend the name, the actor, the ceremonies, the opinion of men conceaved of the Messe, and gif it wes ane Sacrifice propiciatorie. I beand willed, that we schortlie sould go to the ground, and effect, and substance of the purpose quhairfore we come, I stude be my artickle and warrand, as they ar written; not refusand to defend the heides above rehearsed, as tyme and place sould serve. And notwithstanding that I was sufficientlie grounded upon Gods worde, quhilk I tuik to be my warrand, and tuik lykewise upon me, farr above my habilitie, the place and personage of ane defender; nottheles through occasion that served, (as work will beir witnes,) I was constrained to tak upon me the personage of ane persewer,² farre by my appetit, yea, and the weill of my cause. And als by the opinion of all sic as wald the weill of the samin, moved on godlie zeill (as God be judge) that the trueth sould cum to a tryal, to the pleasure of God, and satisfaction of the honorable auditor,³ I beand cled with the personage of ane impungnar, expres contrar to my mynd, for sic causes as ar abone rehearsed, I maid impugnation, not be mannis⁴ imaginationis, bot be the manifest worde of God. And that thre maner of wayes: first, to tak away John Knox conceaved opinion,⁵ that Melchisedec brocht furth bread and wine, to refresche or gratifie Abraham and his werie company, I called to remembrance, how that the spulzeis of nyne kingis, and of certain citeis to, was recovered be Abraham, quhairthrough he and his company was sufficientlie refresched, and had yneuch to be refresched on, swa that they mistered⁶ not to be refreshed with breid and wine of Melchisedec. Secondlie, quhair John Knox maid question that they had not bread and wine; I returned againe to the text to verifie the

¹ Note.

¹ Let the blindest amongs the Papistes judge.

² Note that my Lorde confesses that he wes persewer, and that he hes hurt his own cause.

³ [Auditor, audience.]—Sed sero sapiunt Phruges.

⁴ [Mannis—in orig., manlie.]

⁵ Let your freinds yet judge.

⁶ [Mistered, needed.]

samin, quhilk sayes, And all thingis pertenant unto meat ; inferrand, that in this phrase was contened bread and wine, conforme to the phrase of the Scripture, quhair mention is maid onelie of bread, contenant all thingis necessar for mannis sustentacion, he findand this not sufficient satisfaction. Yit zeid I not to mannis imagination, bot to the plaine text, and grounded me upon the wordes of the text, sayand, Melchisedec brocht furth bread and wine : inferrand, in that it was spoken in the thrid person singular,¹ it was against the ordoure of nature, to think that ane man sould bring furth (especially he that was ane king and ane priest) to tak that paines to bring furth bread and wine, that nicht gratifie (lat be to refresch) thre hundreth and aughtene men. Seand that invinsible persuasions, properlie gathered upon the text, could na wise bring John Knox to confesse that thing quhilk appered unto me conforme to the Scriptures of Almichtie God, and all gude resson he sould have confessed :² Then concluded I with the Scriptures, as I did begin, as my conclusion wil beir witnes, that he wald have justified his opinion conceived of the Scripture, conform to his awin sayingis, be the expres word of God.³ And of my liberalitie wil grant him yit, gif he hes any maner of apperance of the samin, notwithstanding he said to me, he wald not gif me ane hair of his heid, gif I sould stand thir seven yeires.

JOHN KNOX.

Protesting, first, that I may answer, in writ, unto the formar argument (because, as I perceive, it wes before conceived in writ), I enter in shortlie unto the long discourse made by my Lorde : not willing to answer everie part thereof, but onely so muche, as may appear to inferme the just cause. And first, where that my Lorde affirmeth, that I have made no impungnation unto his Lordship's artickle concerning the Masse, I am content that not onelie this honorable audience, but also the whole earth be judge in that point :⁴ for I have plainlie denied, that either the Masse hath approbation of the plaine worde of God, either in name, action, opinion (to witt, written of the Masse, taucht of the Masse, and, in the conscience of men, conceived of the Masse), and finally that the actor thereof, for his usurped power, hath no greater assurance of God's worde. Which whole heades being denied to be disputed, at the present, against my Lordis artickle and ground, I did thus reason : That his Lordship wes not able to prove that Christ Jesus, in his latter Supper did offer his bodie and blood unto God his Father, under the formes of bread and wine : his Lordship, taking for his prove, the alledged Sacrifice of Melchisedec in bread and wine offered unto God. I did lykewise deny, that Melchisedec did at that cause.

¹ How shal that be proven ?³ Nor yet will do to hurt a just² But did nor does not so appear to others.

⁴ Note.

tyme (to wit, in the presence of Abraham,) offer either bread or wine unto God, which hath bene these two dayes bypast in controversie betuix his lordeship and me. I have alwayes denied, that the holy Spirit, in any notable or evident place of Scripture, doeth affirme suche an sacrifice to have bene made by Melchisedec unto God: and whil that I did hear no place of Scripture adduced for the approbation thereof, my Lorde demandand of me what then I thocht wes done with the bread and wine? I answered, that albeit I wes not bound to give my judgement, because that he wes bound to prove his affirmative (as yet I say he is bound), and thereof I wilbe content,¹ that his Lordshipes moste favorable freundes, of best judgement, yea, even if his Lordeship please, the Lordes of the Session be judges in that point. I answered, I say, that be conjecture, the bread and wine were broght furth by Melchisedec, to refreshe Abraham and his werie company. Upon which occasion his Lordship (how justlie let all men judge) did cleith him self againe, without my procurement, with the personage of ane impungnar, and did adduce suche thinges as best pleased his lordship; whereto I did answer, as the whole conference will report, and, as I suppose, sufficientlie to everie thing objected, except that because my Lord did not touche the exposition alledgede by me upon the wordes, Melchisedec allone did bring forth bread and wine (as my Lorde alledgede), I differed to bring in the conference of Scriptures to prove that it is an thing in Scripture verrie commone,² that the thing that is done at the command of any notable persone is attributed unto him self, although it be done be servaundes or subjectes at his command, which I do now shortlie. It is said in Scripture, that Noie did all that God commanded him; and plaine it is, that God commanded him to make the Arck,³ which wes in building the full space of a hundreth yeares. God further commanded him to furnish the Arck withe all kynde of victualles, which the text affirmeth that he did. Now if we shal conclude, that Noie allone cutted everie tree, Noie allone did hew everie tree, and so forth, it appeareth to me that we shal conclude a great absurditie. The same is evident in David, of whome mention is made, that he, being prophet and king, divided to the whole people, yea, unto the whole multitude of Israel, yea, bothe to men and women, an portion of bread, an portion of flesh, and an portion of wine.⁴ If we shall think that David did this with his own hand, we shall conclude in my appearance the formar absurditie. The same is manifest by many other phrases, yea, and by our daylie maner of speaking: and therefore yet as of before. I think my Lordes exposition coact,⁵ in that he will admit none to have broght forth the bread and wine but Melchisedec allone. But howsoever it be, nature that Melchisedec allone should bring forth bread, etc.

¹ Consider what judges I admit.

² Contrar the objection made of impossibilitie, and that it was against ³ Gen. vi. 7.

⁴ 2 Sam.

⁵ [Coact, forced, constrained.]

it moveth me nothing ; for unto such tyme as that my Lorde, in plaine wordes pronounced by the Holy Goste, prove that Melchisedec did offer unto God bread and wine, he hath proven nothing of that which he took on hand to prove : And therefore, I greatlie feare, that whill that which his Lordship calleth the best, is so long in finding an sure ground within the Scripture, that the rest in the end be found altogether groundles, at the least within the boke of God.¹ And therefore, I desyre, as of before, to hear his Lordshipes probation of the principal.

M. QUINTYNE.

I am sorie that we ar contrined,² on this maner, to drive tyme, ather parteis in justification of his awin cause ; bot wisses quicklie to go to the markis point, as I have ever done, conforme to my artickle and to my warrand, and makis the haile warld to judge, quhither it is my deutie, efter formall ressoning, to defend the saides artickles, or to prove, or to impung. Quhair John Knox makis ane meine that I have brocht my arguments or purposes in writ : quhat I have in worde, or writ, or utherwayes, I praise God. Bot the trueth is, according to my custome, I maid memorie, efter my repose, of sic heides as I thoct I was able to have busines ado with all ; and that I did be the grace of God onely, not that I am eschamed to be learned with ony man that wil teach me. And as to the conclusion of his partieckle, quhair he dois mak meine that I have na ground of the Scripture for the Messe (as he belevis), will God sall frustrat his expectation in that, and all uthers ;³ and assures him will God sall justifie the Messe als sufficientlie, conforme to my artickle, as he and all the rest of his opinion in Christendome salbe able to justifie be expres Scripture, or ony uther meine, that Jesus Christe is ane substance with the Father.⁴ And that it be not thoct that thir ar wantone wordes, like as the mater sould not cum to pas, bot that I wald trifle the mater, I will desyre John Knox maist humblie and hartlie, for Christes saike, lat us go schortlie, without trifling, to the purpose, and lat wark beir witnes : And swa requires, to resume my argument, and say thereto formalie, as effeires.

JOHN KNOX.

Because that everie man muste give accomptes before God, not onely of his workes, but also of his wordes and thoughts, I will make no further protestation, whether that I have defended hitherto my own opinion, or a manifest treuth ; or whether that I have impunged any treuth of God, or a manifest lie (let this be said with reverence of all persones, for the justnes of the cause), leaving, I say, the judgement to ¹ The best ground could find no ground within the Word of God.

² [Contrined, constrained.]

³ When ye perform promes, let men beleve you.

⁴ Homousion sive consubstantialis.

God ; I say that I have in plaine termes justlie oppungned bothe the groundes, broght forth by my Lord, for defence of his artickle. For in plaine wordes, I have denied that Jesus Christe, into his latter Supper, did make any Sacrifice of his bodie and blood, under the formes of bread and wine, unto God his Father ; and lykewise I have denied, that Melchisedec did offer unto God bread and wine as of before ; which groundes, because my Lorde hath not hitherto proven, I must hold them as impunged and oppungned : ever whill I hear the ground of Melchisedec plainly proven by plaine Scripture, (to wit,) that the plaine Scripture say, that Melchisedec offered unto God bread and wine,¹ or that it be of any plaine and evident Scripture, plainlie convicted, that so he did. His Lordship ought not to think it strange, although I require to answer in writ to that argument, which his Lordship hath propounded, conceived before, and committed in writ, for such I take to be the libertie of all fre disputations. Whose lauboure it wes, or is, I nothing regard. For so long as God doeth minister unto me, spirit and life, with judgement and habilitie, I intend (by His grace) til oppung that which in my conscience I hold to be damnable idolatrie. And where his Lordship sayeth, that he is als able to affirme the Masse (which I impung) to be the ordinance of God, as that I or any of my opinion, is able to prove Jesus Christe to be one substance with the Father ; with reverence of his Lordshipes personage, blood, and honor,² and with the reverence and pacience of the whole auditor,³ I say, that the assertion is not onelie rashe but also moste dangerous, yea, and in a part blasphemous. For, for to compare the greatest mysterie, yea, the whole assurance of our redemption with that, which as it hath bene used, hath no approbation of God's worde (for that I have impungned, and intendes to impung), can not lack suspition of a lightlie esteaming of our redemption. And to cut the matter short, the formar question being decided (to wit, whither that Meichisedec did offer unto God bread and wine), I offer my self, without further delay, to prove that Jesus Christe is of one substance with the Father ; and that by the evident testimonies of God's Scriptures. And, therefore, yet as of before, I humbly require his Lordship, to prepare him for his probation of the formar, to witt, of the oblation of Melchisedec.

M. QUINTYNE.

Quhair John Knox dois affirme, that in plaine termis he hes justlie impunged, baith the groundes, brocht furth be .me, for defence of my artickles, I answer, I deny that he hes maid ony impungnation. And quhair he sayes, that in plaine wordes, he hes denied that Jesus Christe, into his latter Supper, did make ony Sacrifice of his bodie and blude, ¹ Let my lord answer when he and Christ Jesus and his divinitie ought to hing in one ballance.

pleases.

² Let the godlie judge if the Masse

³ [Auditor, audience.]

under the formes of bread and wine, unto God his Father ; or that Melchisedec did offer unto God bread and wine, as of before, I answer, that it is his deutie to mak impugnation to my assercion, conform to my warrand ; for denying is na proper nor sufficient impugnation.¹ And quhair he sayes, that because I have not hidderto proven the saidis groundis, etc., I answer, that it is my deutie to defend and not to preif, conform to my artickle and my warrand. And quhair he desyres tyme to answer to my argument, proponed this day in writ, I frely grant it unto him. And quhair John Knox sayes,² that my assertion is not onely rashe, but also maist dangerous, yea, and in ane pairt blasphemous ; I answer, that quhair he sayes, I am to rashe, I wis his modestnes in this samin, sic as becumis ane sinceir Christiane, like as he is reckned to be. And quhair he callis my assertion in ane pairt blasphemous,³ than had bene tyme to have called it blasphemie, quhen he had proven it in deid sufficientlie. And quhair he sayes, it is dangerous, thair is na danger, it beand understand as I say, and treulie meines. For I am mair nor assured, that Jesus Christ our Lord is ane substance with the Father, and als that Jesus Christ is the author and institutor of the Messe.⁴ And swa dois not ane veritie mak impugnation to ane uther. Bot in this maner of speaking, I wil plaine my industrie given unto me be the grace of God, willing to contrafit⁵ the wisdome and prudence of the wise and prudent medicinar,⁶ (for we are, and sould be of resson, medicinars to the saule,) for lyke as the prudent medicinar dois expell ane vennome or poysons be contrapoysons, swa wald I expel the damnable herisies of the Calvinistes,⁷ Lutherians, and Æcolampadians, against the blisshed Sacrifice of the Masse, be conference with the damnable herisies of the Arrians, quha did alledge ten testimonies of Scripture for ane, gevand mair appearance, to preif that Christ was not ane substance with the Father, nor dois the Calvinistes, Lutherians, and Æcolampadians, to preif that the Messe is idolatrie, as I sal sufficientlie justifie, as may stand to the glorie of God and weil of my cause. To the latter pairt, quhair he sayes, to cut the mater schort, the formar question beand decided, to wit, quhither that Melchisedec did offer breid and wine unto God or not, he offeris him selfe without farther delay, to prove that Jesus Christ is ane substance with the Father, etc. I answer to the hinder pairt of this partickle. I wis⁸ of God, he and all uthers of his opinion, mistered als lytle probation or persuasion to the ane as I do to the uther, as I wald say, to beleve the Messe to be the institution of Christ Jesus, as I do mair nor assuredlie beleve Christe

¹ Your warrand is so weak that it neides no other impugnation, then to say, It is not.

² Then ye oversaw yourself.

³ Blasphemie is blasphemie before that man prove it.

⁴ Not as Papistes have used it.

⁵ [Contrafit, imitate.]

⁶ Advert what ye speak.

⁷ My Lord wolde have bursen if this byle had not broken.

⁸ [Wis, wish, desire.]

to be ane substance with the Father, and desyres na probation thereof : bot sall, God willand, preif the ane be the Scripture als expres, as he sall preif the uther.¹ And quhair he humblie desyres me to prepar me for the probation of the formar, (to wit, of the oblation of Melchisedec,) I humblie and hartlie desyre John Knox, as he will testifie his fervor, that the treuth cum to ane tryall ; and as he wil satisfie the expectation of the noble auditor, that he will mak impugnation formallie according to his deutie, to my last argument and conclusion.

JOHN KNOX.

Where my Lord to unburden him self of that which by all reason he oght to susteane, to wit, to prove his affirmative by him self proponed, sayeth, that to deny is not properlie to impung, I answer, That in that case it is most proper, for he that proponeth for him self an affirmative, and his adversar denying the same, is ever still bound to the probation thereof, and the adversar hath ever still impunged it unto he prove it, and thereupon I desire judgement.² To the second, I stil affirme that it is his Lordships deutie to prove his affirmative, whereupon standeth the victorie of his whole cause, which is be me in plaine wordes denied. To the third, I thank his Lordship hastlie, and promises unto him an answer againe in writ,³ this present conference being put to an sufficient end. To the fourt, as my protestation will witnes, I speak against the assercion onelie, and not against the persone : which yet, in my judgement, lacketh not suspicion of the formar crimes. For howsoever my Lord be persuaded of the ground and assurance of the Masse, the assurance whereof I have not yet hard, I my self am fully assured, that there be mo then ten thousand which evidentlie do knowe the vanitie and impietie of that Masse which I have impunged ; who nottheles most constantlie beleve Jesus Christe to be of one substance with the Father ; yea, that do beleve whatsoever by the Scriptures of God, can be proven necessarie for the salvation of man. Therefore yet againe I say, that to lay in any maner of equalitie that which is meste sure, and that which was never yet plainlie proven by the Scriptures of God to be the institution of Jesus Christ, is more subject to the crymes foresaid, then that I can be subject to any suspicion of immodestie for my formar wordes. To the blasphemie, I answer as before. Immediatlie to the sext. How that ever my Lord understandeth and meaneth, that his lordship is als able to prove the Masse to be the institution of Jesus Christ, as I am able to prove Christ to be one substance with the Father ; I think, that an great number will think my Lord's affirmation verrie hard to be proven ; and I my self will still continually dout unto the tyme I hear the probation led. To the sevent, as touching my Lordes comparison of the mediciner, and of his Lordship's industrie : What the pastors of the Church ought to be, the Scriptures plainly do teach us : but what universallie they have bene these nyne hundreth yeares bypast, histories, experience, and recent memorie, hath taught us, yea, and presentlie do teach us, to the great greif of all Christianitie. Where that his Lordship doeth in plaine termes condempn the Calvinistes, Lutherians, and Æcolampadians of heresie, I wold have required of his lordship delay of time, according to his desyre of me, unto the tyme that there cause had bene sufficientlie tried in an lawfull, universal counsell, deulie indicted and convened. Bot where that he compareth the doctrine of the forenamed with the damnable heresie of Arrius, I wold lykewise have wished unto his Lordship greater foresight in so grave a mater ; for howsoever the Arrians appeared to abound in testimonies of Scriptures, without all ground, indistinctlie congested, (and that because they made no difference betuix the two natures in Jesus Christe,¹) but did foolishlie appropriat to the Godhead that which did onelie aperteane to the manlie² nature ; yet think I, that my Lord shall never be able, by plaine Scripture, to impung any chief head, either affirmed or denyed, in doctrine of salvation by the foresaides persons, lyke as did the godly and learned in there ages, the foresaid damnable heresie. To the last, I have alreadie promised to answer to my Lordes argument in writ, and therefore ought not to be burdened with it now, especiallie because it is without our formar ground, and doeth not properlie aperteane to the cause. And yet, therefore, now last for conclusion, that we shal not be compelled continually to repeat on thing, I desyre my Lord, according to his deutie and reason of disputation, to bring forth his probation of his two formar groundes, be me plainly denyed.³

¹ That ar you never able to do. ground by the text, and that you have not don.

² Your Lordship took to prove your ³ And that he has received.

This Conference being ended for this tyme, my Lorde presentlie did rise, for trouble of body, and then John Knox did shortlie resume the principall groundes. And because the Noble men, heir assembled, were altogether destitute of all provision, bothe for hors and man, the said John humblie required the foresaid Lord, that it wold please him to go to Air, where that better easiment might be had for all estates ; which because my Lord utterlie refused, the said John desired, when that the said conference should be ended ? My Lord did promes, that upon licence purchased of the Quenes Majestie and her honorable Counsell, that he wold compeir in Edinburgh, and there, in there presence, finish the said Conference. The said John did promes to travel with the Secret Counsel, that the said licence might be obtained ;⁴ and desired the

¹ Let my Lorde accuse before he compair.

³ Heir my Lord stayed, and for answer offered to me a book.

² [Manlie, human.]

⁴ Whither I have so done or not mo then them selves can witnes.

foresaid Lorde to do the lyke with the Quenes Majestie : whereupon the said John Knox took instruments and documents.

M. QUINTYNE.

At the conclusion of our ressoning, I gaif John Knox ane argument in writ, desiring him that he wald justifie his opinion be expres testimonie of Scripture, or ony apperance thereof.¹ Quhairto the said John required tyme to gif answer, and the tyme nicht nawise serve of farder ressoning for sic causes as ar comprehended in the said John Knox writing. And as toward his desyre of me to Air, treulie it was the thing that I nicht not presentlie commodiously do. Bot alwayes, I will compeir before the Quenes Grace, and sic as hir Grace plesis to take to be auditors, to defend the saides Artickles, and in special the artickle concerning the Masse, as thay ar written, quhen and quhair it be hir Grace plesure, swa that the habilitie of my bodie will serve ony wise, as I hope to God it sall, to quhom be praise, glorie, and honor for ever.

CROSSRAGUELL.

THE ANSWER TO MY LORDES LAST ARGUMENT, PROPONED BY HIM IN WRIT, THE LAST DAY OF DISPUTATION.

THE Argument is this :—

M. QUINTYNE.

Whatsomever opinion is conceaved of the Scriptures of Almighty God havand na expres testimonie nor apperance of the samin, is utterlie to be refused, as sayes John Knox him self. Bot swa it is, that John Knox awin opinion, conceaved or contracted of the Scripture, concerning the bringing furth of bread and wine be Melchisedec to refresh or gratifie Abraham and his werie company, is not expresly contened in the Scripture, nor hes na apperance of the samin ; thairfore it followis weil, that it is alluterlie be his awin judgement to be refused.

JOHN KNOX.

Yf I should grant unto you, my Lorde, your whole argument, I should but declare my self ignorant of the art, and unmyndful of my owne affirmation ; but yet had ye proven nothing of your intent. The chief question and controversie betuix you and me, is not whether that

¹ The answer wes given before, so that it apperteaned not to me to prove my interpretation ; but it appertened to my Lord to prove that Melchisedec offered, etc. But that can not my Lord understand.

my interpretation of that place, which, at your instance and request, I gave, be true or not; but whether that Melchisedec the figure of Christe did offer unto God bread and wine, whiche ye have affirmed, and have laid it to be the ground and cause why it behoveth Christe Jesus to have made oblation of his bodie and blood, under the formes of bread and wine, in his latter Supper: which bothe I denied. So that it rests to you to prove that Melchisedec the figure of Christ did offer unto God bread and wine, etc., and appertaines not unto me to prove my opinion nor interpretation: for supposing that my opinion conceived of that place were to be rejected, as ye are never able to prove it to be, yet is your affirmative never the better proven; for if ye will conclude, it was not brought forth to refresh Abraham, which yet is not proven; ergo, it was brought forth to be offered unto God: babes will mock you, and send you againe to your logick.

But yet, my Lord, with your leave, I must come nearer you, and say, that the major or first part of your argument is false, and that ye falsely alledge upon me that which I never spak nor ment. Read the whole conference betwix you and me, and ye shall not find that I have simple affirmed that all opinion of man, conceived of the Scriptures, is utterlie to be rejected, onles the same be proven by the manifest worde of God; for I am not ignorant that some interpretations are tollerable, yea, and may be to the edification of the Church, although they do not fully expresse the minde of the Holie Goste in that place. But I have affirmed, and yet affirme, that nether the authoritie of the Church, the determination of the counsell, nor the opinion of the doctor, is to be received in matters of faith, and in the doctrine concerning our salvation, onles the same be proven by the expresse word of God. And therefore, my Lord, with your leave I must say, that either wilfully, or els by some oversight, ye have omitted, bothe in the major and in the minor of your argument, that which should have bene the cause and assurance of your conclusion. For thus ye ought to have reasoned, Whatsoever opinion is conceived of the Scripture of Almighty God concerning faith and the doctrine of Salvation, having no expresse testimonie of the same, is to be rejected: But so it is, that John Knox owne opinion concerning the bringing forth of bread and wine by Melchisedec, is a matter concerning faith, and the doctrine of our Salvation, and yet hath no testimonie of God's expresse worde: therefore it is to be rejected. Yf on this maner ye had reasoned, my Lord, as of necessitie ye must do, if ye conclude any thing against me, I wold have immediatlie denied the second part of your argument, and have said, That to know or define what was done with the bread and wine brought out by Melchisedec, is no article of our beleve, nether yet is it a doctrine, necessarie to the Salvation of man; for nether did Adam, Abel, Seth, Enos, Henoeh, Mathusalem, nor Noie, beleve any suche thing; nether yet is there, since the dayes of Abraham, any commandement given by God to belve suche an artickle ; yea, further, in the whole Scriptures there is no mention made what wes done with that bread and wine, and therefore it can be no artickle of our beleve, nor yet no doctrine concerning our Salvation ; and so hath your argument broken the¹ owne neck.

Yf I list, my Lord, to sport a lytill with you, I might find some occasion in the second part of your argument ; for where ye affirme that my opinion concerning the bringing forth of the bread and wine by Melchisedec to refresh Abraham and his companie, is nether expresly contained in the word of God, nether yet hath appearance of the same, and therefore utterlie it is to be rejected. Now, my Lorde, give me leave to turne this part of your argument in your owne bosom, if I can, and that so I may do, thus I reason :—

The Opinion conceived by my Lorde Abbote, concerning bread and wine, broght forth by Melchisedec to be offered unto God, is not expresly contained in God's Scriptures, therefore it is utterlie to be rejected. Be warre my Lorde, that ye be not beaten with your own batton,² for then must the Masse, yea, the best part of the same, stand upon an unsure ground, that is to say, upon the opinion of man, and having no assurance of God's expressed worde.

But now my Lorde, merynes set asyde, I humblie require you, by my pen, as I did by mouth, that depelie ye consider, with what conscience before God, ye dar affirme that doctrine to be holsome, yea, and necessary to be beveled, whereof ye are able to bring no prufe out of the manifest word of God. The second day of our Conference and disputation, when I was constrained to answer your frevole conjectures and vanities, your bragges and boste offer blowen out then ones, were, that your probation should be so evident, that the stones should heare your probation, and the dead walles should se the justnes of your cause. I paciently did abyde, although perchance with the greif of some brethren, these your wantone wordes, and thought with my self Parturiunt montes, etc. But what is now produced and broght forth, the world may se, it may appeare that ye were hard beset, when, for to avoide the prufe of your owne affirmative, ye fled to impugne that which apperteaneth nothing to the purpose. For as I was not bound to have shewen unto you what I thought wes done with the bread and wine broght forth by Melchisedec, so wes I not bound to have defended my interpretation and judgement of that place : but unto you it alwayes aperteineth, (and if ever we meit againe upon that head, it wilbe yet judged to apertaine to you,) to prove that Melchisedec did at that time offer bread and wine unto God, which I am well assured that ye are never able to do by any testimonie of God's worde. And, therefore, must I say, the Masse standeth groundles ;³ and the greatest patrone thereof, for all his sicker riding, hath ones loste his stirropes, yea, is altogether set besydes his sadil. And yet the common brute goeth, that ye, my Lorde, your flatterers and collateralles, brag greatlie of your victorie obtained in disputation against John Knox ; but I will not beleve you to be so vaine, onles I shall knowe the certantie by your owen hand writ.

¹ [The, its.]

² Let my Lord degest this.

³ Note.

Let all men now judge upon what ground the Sacrifice of the Masse standeth. The heavenly Father hath not planted within his Scriptures suche a doctrine : It followeth, therefore, that it oght to be rooted out of all godlie mennes hartes.

THE END.

Imprinted at Edinburgh by Robert Lekpreuik
Cum priuilegio.
 1563.

A SERMON
ON ISAIAH XXVI. 13.-21,
PREACHED IN ST. GILES'S CHURCH,
EDINBURGH,
19. AUGUST M.D.LXV.

THE following Sermon is remarkable in this respect, that no other specimen of Knox's pulpit discourses has been handed down to us. The incident in his history which led to its publication, is noticed both in the Preface to the Sermon itself,¹ and in the Fifth Book of the History of the Reformation ;² but it may be briefly stated in this place, in the words of his biographer :—

The marriage of Queen Mary and Lord Darnley took place in July 1565, when he was proclaimed King. "The young King," says Dr. M'Crie, "who could be either Papist or Protestant, as it suited him, went sometimes to mass with the Queen, and sometimes attended the reformed sermons. To silence the suspicions of his alienation from the Protestant religion, circulated by the insurgent Lords, he, on the 19th of August, made a solemn appearance in St. Giles's church, sitting on a throne which had been prepared for his reception. Knox preached that day, and happened to prolong the service beyond his usual time. In one part of the sermon, he quoted these words of Scripture, 'I will give children to be their princes, and babes shall rule over them ; children are their oppressors, and women rule over them ;' and, in another part of it, he mentioned that God punished Ahab, because he did not correct his idolatrous wife, Jezabel. Though no particular application was made by the preacher, the King applied these passages to himself and the Queen, and, returning to the Palace in great wrath, refused to taste dinner. The papists, who had accompanied him to church, inflamed his resentment and that of the Queen by their representations."³

¹ Infra, p. 229.

² Vol. ii. p. 497.

³ M'Crie's Life of Knox, vol. ii. p. 135.

On the afternoon of the same day Knox was commanded to appear before the Privy Council. The meeting was held in Maitland of Lethington the Secretary's chamber, where were convened the Earl of Athole, the Lord Ruthven, the Secretary, the Justice-Clerk, with the Advocate.¹ When Knox was called in, he was told he had offended the King with some words he had used, and that he must desist from preaching as long as their Majesties remained in Edinburgh. He answered, "That he had spoken nothing but according to his text; and if the Church should command him either to speak or abstain, he would obey, so far as the Word of God would permit him."²

The inhabitants of Edinburgh would by no means consent to any such prohibition; and the Town-Council, on the 23d of that month, appointed some of their number "to pass to the King and Quenis Majesties, desiring to be heard of them touching the dischargeing of John Knox, minister, of forder preaching." Another meeting was held the same day on the subject, according to the following entry in the Council Register:—

"The same day, efternone, the Bailleis, Consall, and Dekynniss foirsaid being convenit in the Counsalhous, efter lang ressoning upon the discharging of Johne Knox, minister, of farder preaching induring the King and Quenis Majesties being in this town, all in ane voce concludis and deliveris, that thai will na maner of way consent or grant that his mouth be closit, or be dischargeit in preiching the trew Word; and thairfoir willit him at his plesoure, and as God sould move his hart, to proceed fordwart in trew doctrine, as he has bene of befor: Quhilk doctrine thai wald approve and abyde at to thair lyfeis end."³

It might be thought, from this unanimous resolution, and as no mention of the subject occurs in the minutes of Privy-Council, that the prohibition was of a very temporary nature. The King and Queen left Edinburgh for Linlithgow and Stirling on the 25th of the month, yet it appears that Knox did not resume his usual ministrations in Edinburgh, unless at occasional intervals, till after Queen Mary had been deprived of her authority. During this period while those tragical events, the murders of Rizzio and of Darnley took place, Knox was employed by the Assembly in writing various public letters, and in visiting churches in the South of Scotland. He also availed himself of such an opportunity to make a journey to England to see his two sons, who were there educated after their mother's death.

¹ Supra, vol. ii. p. 497.

² Ib., p. 498.

³ Council Register, 23d August 1562, vol. iv. fol. 131.

In regard to this Sermon, Knox judged it necessary, for his own exoneration, to write in full what he had spoken, and in the exact words he had used, "so farre as memory would serve." He dates this on the last of August, adding a Preface on the 19th of September. The printed copy has no place or name of the printer, but judging from the type and the words on the title, "within the Realme of Scotland," it was most likely printed in London. In this Preface we have it on Knox's own authority, that he was not in the habit of committing his sermons to writing, but that, having by careful study prepared himself to expound the passage of Scripture selected for his text, he trusted to his feelings at the time for the mode of expression which he might use in delivery. This freedom, joined with the fervour of his animated and natural eloquence, no doubt contributed to produce the very powerful influence which he exerted upon the hearts of his hearers.

A SERMON

preached by Iohn Knox

Minister of Christ Iesus in the Publique audience of the Church of Edenbrough, within the Realme of Scotland, vpon Sunday, the 19.

of August. 1565.

For the which the said Iohn Knoxe was inhibite preaching for a season.

I. Timoth. 4.

¶ The time is come that men can not abyde the Sermon of veritie nor holsome doctrine.

To this is adjoyned an exhortation vnto all the faythfull within the sayde Realme, for the reliefe of suche as faythfully trauayle in the preaching of Gods worde. Written by the same Iohn Knoxe, at the commaun-dement of the ministerie aforesayd.

Imprinted Anno. 1566.

In small 8vo, Roman letter, signatures A to H, 4 in eights. The "Exhortation" mentioned on the title-page, will be given in a subsequent part of this volume.

JOHN KNOXE, THE SERVAUNT OF JESUS CHRIST, IN PREACHING OF HIS HOLY EVANGELL, TO THE BENE-VOLENT READER, DESIRETH GRACE AND PEACE, WITH THE SPIRITE OF RIGHTEOUS JUDGEMENT.

WONDER not, Christian Reader, that of al my studye and travayle within the Scriptures of God these twentye yeares, I have set forth nothing in exponing anye portion of Scripture, except this onely rude and indigest Sermon preached by me in the publicke audience of the Church of Edinbrough, the day and yeare above mencioned. That I did not in writ communicat my judgement upon the Scriptures, I have ever thought and yet thinke my selfe to have most just reason. For considering my selfe rather cald of my God to instruct the ignorant, comfort the sorowfull, confirme the weake, and rebuke the proud, by tong and livelye voyce in these most corrupt dayes, than to compose bokes for the age to come, seeing that so much is written (and that by men of most singular condition), and yet so little well observed; I decreed to containe my selfe within the bondes of that vocation, wherunto I founde my selfe especially called. I dare not denie (lest that in so doing I should be injurious to the giver), but that God hath revealed unto me secretes unknowne to the worlde; and also that he made my tong a trumpet, to forwarne realmes and nations, yea, certaine great personages, of translations and chaunges, when no such things were feared, nor yet was appearing, a portion wherof cannot the world denie (be it never so blind) to be fulfilled; and the rest, alas! I feare, shall followe with greater expedition, and in more full perfection, than my sorrowfull heart desireth. These revelations and assurances notwithstanding, I did ever absteyne to commit anye thing to writ, contented onely to have obeyed the charge of Him who commanded me to cry. If anye then will aske to what purpose this onely Sermon is set furth, and greater matters omitted, I answer, To let such as Sathan hath not altogether blinded see upon how small occasions great offence is nowe conceyved. This Sermon is it for the which from my bed I was called before the Councell; and, after long reasoning, I was by some forbidden to preach in Edingbrough so long as the King and Queene were in the towne. This Sermon is it that so offendeth such as would please the Court, and yet will not appeare to be enimies to the truth, that thei dare affirme that I have exceded the bonds of God's messenger. I have, therefore, faithfully committed unto writ whatsoever I could remember might have been offensive in that Sermon; to the ende, that as well the enimies of God's truth, as the professors of the same, may eyther note unto me wherin I have offended, or at the least cease to condempne me before they have convicted me by God's manifest worde. If any man thinke it easy unto me to mitigate by my pen the inconsiderate sharpnesse of my tongue, and so can not men freely judge of that my Sermon, I answeere, that neyther am I so impudent that I will study to abuse the worlde in this great light, neyther yet so voyde of feare of my God, that I will avowe a lye in His own presence. And no lesse doe I esteme it to be a lye to deny or conceile that which in His name I have once pronounced, than to affirme that GOD hath spoken, when His worde assures me not of the same, for in the publike place I consulte not with flesh and bloud what I shall propone to the people, but as the Spirit of my God who hath sent me, and unto whome I must answeere, moveth me, so I speake; and when I have once pronounced threatnings in His name (howe unpleasant so ever they be to the world), I dare no more deny them, then I dare deny that God hath made me his messenger, to forwarne the inobedient of their assured destruction. At that Sermon wer auditours unto me not onely professors of the truth, and such as favor me, but rancke papistes, dissembled hipocrites, and no small number of covetous clawbaks¹ of the new Court. Now I will appeale the conscience of them all, as they will aunswere in the presence of the Eternal God, that eyther they beare me record now writing the truth, or els note unto me the sentences offensive then by me pronounced, and now omitted in writing; for, in God's presence, I protest that, so far as memorie would serve me, I have written more vehemently than in the action I spake and pronounced; but of purpose I have omitted persuasions and exhortations which then were made for alluring suche unto the feare of God, whom gladly I would have pleased if so I could have done, and not have betrayed the manifest truth of my God. The Lorde be mercifull unto me that I did not more fullye expresse whatsoever his Holy Spirit layde before me in that text, which, I am assured, the indifferent² reader shall think I have but slenderlye handled, all circumstances being considered. O Lord! for thy great namesake, give unto us Princes and rulers that delight in thy truth, that love vertue, hate impietie, and that desire rather to be roundely taught to their salvation, than deceyveably flattered, to their everlasting confusion. Amen.

At Edingbrough, the 19. of September 1565.

¹ "Clawbaks," flatterers.

² "Indifferent," impartial.

A SERMON

PREACHED BY JOHN KNOXE.

ISAIAS, xxvi. Chap. verse 13-21.¹

13. O Lorde our God, other lordes beside thee have ruled us ; but we will remember thee onely, and thy Name.

14. The dead shal not lyve, neyther shall the dead arise, because thou hast visited and scattered them, and destroyed all their memorie.

15. Thou hast increased the nation, ô Lorde : thou hast increased the nation : thou art made glorious : thou hast enlarged all the coastes of the earth.

16. Lorde, in trouble have they visited thee : they poured out a prayer when thy chastening was upon them.

17. Like as a woman with childe, that draweth nere to the travaile, is in sorrowe, and cryeth in her paines, so have we beene in thy sight, ô Lorde.

18. We have conceived, we have borne in paine, as though we shuld have brought forth winde : there was no helpe in the earth, neither did the inhabitants of the world fall.

19. Thy deade men shall live : even with my bodye shall they rise. Awake, and sing, ye that dwell in dust : for thy dewe is as the dew of herbes, and the earth shall cast out the dead.

20. Come, my people : enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy dores after thee : hide thyselfe for a verie little while, untill the indignation passe over.

¹ The translation here used is that known as the Geneva version, first printed in the year 1560.

21. For loe, the Lorde commeth out of his place, to visite the iniquitie of the inhabitants of the earth upon them : and the earth shall disclose her bloude, and shall no more hide her slaine.

As the cunninge maryner, beinge maister, having his ship tossed with vehement tempest, and windes contrarious, is compelled oft to traverse, leaste that eyther by too muche resisting to the violence of the waves, his vessell might be overwhelmed ; or by too much libertie graunted, to be carried whither the furie of the tempest would, his ship should be driven upon the shore, and so make shipwreck. Even so doth our Prophet Isaiah, in thys texte, which presentely ye have heard read ; for he, foreseeing the gret desolation that was decreet in the counsell of the Eternal, against Jerusalem and Judah ; to weete, that the whole people that bare the name of God should be dispersed ; that the holy city should be destroyed ; the temple wherein was the Ark of the Covenant, and where God had promised to give his owne presence, should be brent with fier ; the King taken ; his sonnes in his owne presence murdered ; his owne eyes immediately after to be put out ; the nobility, some cruelly murdered, some shamefully lead away captives ; and, finally, the whole sede of Abraham rased, as it were, from the face of the earth. The Prophet, I say, fearing these horrible calamities, doth, as it were, sometimes suffer himselfe, and the people committed to his charge, to be carried away with the violence of the tempest, without further resistance ; than by pouring forth his and their dolorous complaynte before the Majestie of God ; as in the 13, 17, and 18 verse of this present text we may reade.¹ At other times he valiantly resisteth the desperat tempest, and pronounceth the fearefull destruction of all suche as trouble the Church of God ; which he pronounceth, that God wil multiply even in such time as when it appeareth utterly to be exterminate. But bycause ther is no final rest to the whole body till that the head returne to judgement, he calleth the afflicted to pacience, and promyseth such a visitation, as wherby the wickednesse of the wicked shal be disclosed, and finally recompenced in their own bosomes.

¹ THE DISPOSITION. (Marg. notc.)

These are the chiefest poyntes which, by the grace of God, we intende more largely at thys presente to entreate.

Ver. 13. First, the Prophet sayeth, "O Lorde our God, other Lordes besydes thee have ruled us."

This, no doubt, is the beginning of this dolorous complaint, in the which he first complayneth of the unjuste tyrannye that the poore afflicted Israelites sustayned during the time of their captivitie. True it is, that the Prophet was gathered to his fathers in peace before that this extremitie apprehended the people. For a hundreth yeare after his deceasse, was not the people lead away captive; yet he, foreseeing the assurance of the calamitie, did before hande endite unto them the complaynt that after they shoulde make. But at the firste sight it appeareth that the complaint hath small waight. For what newe thing was it that other Lordes than God in hys owne person ruled them, seeing that suche had bene their regiment from the beginning? For who knoweth not that Moyses, Aaron, and Josua, the Judges, Samuell, David, and other godly rulers, were men, and not God; and so other Lordes than God, ruled them in their grettest prosperitie.

For the better understanding of this complaynte, and of the minde of the Prophete, we must first observe from whence al authoritie and dominion floweth; and secondly, to what ende powers are appointed of God: The which two poynts being discussed, we shall the better understande what Lordes, and what authority rules beside God, and who are they in whom God and his mercifull presence rules.

The firste is resolved to us by the words of the Apostle, saying, "There is no power but of God." David bringeth in the eternall God speaking to Judges and rulers, saying, "I have sayde, ye are Gods, and the sonnes of the most highest."¹ And Salomon, in the person of God, affirmeth the same, saying, "By me kings raygne, and princes discern the thinges that are juste." Of which places it is evident, that it is neither birth, influence of starres, election of people, force of armes, nor, finally, what soever can be comprehended under the power of nature, that maketh the distinction betwixt the superior power and the inferior, or that doth establish the royall throne of kings; but it is the onely and perfect ordinance of God, who willeth his power, terror, and Majestie in a parte, to shine in the thrones of Kings, and in the faces of Judges, and that for the profite and comfort of man; so that who soever would study to deface the order of regiment that God hath established, and by his holy worde allowed, and bring in such a confusion as no difference shuld be betwyxt the upper powers and the subjects, doth nothing but evert and turne upside down the very throne of God, which he wil to be fixed here upon earth, as in the ende and cause of this ordinance more playnly shall appeare; which is the seconde poynte we have to observe, for the better understanding of the Prophet's wordes and minde.

The end and cause then, why God prynteth in the weake and feble flesh of man this image of his owne power and majesty, is not to puffe up flesh in opinion of it selfe; neyther yet that the heart of him that is exalted above others shall be lifted up by presumption and pryde, and so despise others; but that he shall consider that he is appoynted Lieutenaunt to one, whose eyes continually watch upon him, to see and examine howe he behaveth himself in his office. Saint Paul in fewe words, declareth the end wherefore the sword is committed to the powers, saying, "It is to the punishment of the wycked doers, and unto the praise of such as do well."²

Of which words, it is evident that the sword of God is not committed to the hande of man, to use as it pleaseth him, but only to punishe vice and maintayne vertue, that men may live in such societie as before God is acceptable. And this is the very and onely cause why God hath appoynted powers in this earth. For such is the furious rage of man's corrupt nature, that unles severe punishment were appointed, and put in execution upon malefactours, better it were that man shoulde live among brute and wilde beastes than among men.

¹ Psal. 83.

² Rom. 13.

But at this presente I dare not enter into the description of this common place; for so shuld I not satisfie the text, which, by God's grace, I purpose to absolve. This onely by the way, I would that such as are placed in authoritie should consider whether they raygne and rule by God, as that God ruleth them; or if they rule without, besides, and against God, of whom our Prophet doth here complayne.

If any lust¹ to take trial of this poynt, it is not hard; for Moses, in the election of Judges, and of a King,² describeth not onely what persones shall be chosen to that honour, but doth also give to him that is elected and chosen, the rule by the which he shall trie himselfe, whether God raygne in him or not, saying, "When he shall sit upon the throne of his kingdome, he shal write to himselfe an examplar of this lawe in a boke, by the priests the Levites: It shal be with him, and he shall reade therein all the dayes of his life, that he maye learne to feare the Lord his God, and to keepe all the words of this law, and these statutes, that he may do them; that his hart be not lifted up above his brethren, and that he turne not from the commaundement, to the right hand or to the left."

The same is repeated to Josua,³ in his inauguration to the regiment of the people, by God himselfe, saying,⁴ "Let not the boke of this lawe depart from thy mouth; but meditate in it day and night, that thou mayst kepe it, and do according to all that which is written in it ; for then shall thy way be prosperous, and thou shalt do prudently."

¹ "Lust," desire.

² Deut. 17.

³ Josua 1.

The first thing then that God craveth of him that is called to the honour of a King is, The knowledge of his will revealed in his word.¹

The second is, An upright and willing minde to put in execution suche things as God commaundeth in his lawe, without declynynge eyther to the right or left hande.

Kings then have not an absolute power in their regiment what pleaseth them ; but their power is limited by God's word :² so that if they strike where God commaundeth not, they are but murderers ; and if they spare when God commaundeth to strike, they and their throne are criminal and giltie of the wickednesse that aboundeth upon the face of the earth, for lacke of punishment.

O ! if kings and princes shuld consider what accompt shall be craved of them, as well of their ignoraunce and misknowledge of God's will, as for the neglecting of their office !

But nowe to returne to the words of the Prophet. In the person of the whole people he doth complayne unto God, that the Babilonians (whom he calleth "other Lordes besydes God," both because of their ignoraunce of God, and by reason of their crueltie and inhumanitie), hadde long ruled over them in all rigor, without pitie or compassion had upon the aunciente men and famous matrones ; for they being mortall enimies of the people of God, sought by all meanes to aggravate their yoke, yea, utterlye to have exterminate the memorie of them and of their religion from the face of the earth.

After the first part of this dolorous complaynt, the Prophete declareth the protestation of the people, saying, "Nevertheless, onely in the shall we remember thy name" (others reade it, But wee myll remember thee onely and thy name) ; but in the Hebrew there is no conjunction copulative in that sentence. The minde of the Prophete is playne, to wit, that notwithstanding the long sustayned affliction, the people of God declyned not to a false and vayne religion, but remembered God, that sometime appeared to them in his mercifull presence, which albeit then they saw not, yet would they still remember his Name; that is, they would cal to minde the doctrine and promise which sometimes they hard, albeit in their prosperity they did sufficiently glorifie God, who so mercifully ruled in the midst of them.

¹ What is required of a king or prince.

² The authoritie and power of kings is limited.

The temptation, no doubt, of the whole Isralites was gret in those dayes. They were carried captive from the land of Canaan, which was to them the gauge and pledge of God's favour towardes them; for it was the inheritance that God promised to Abraham and to his seed forever. The league and covenant of God's protection appeared to have been broken; they lamentably complayne that they saw not their accustomed signes of God's merciful presence; the true prophets were fewe, and the abominations used in Babylon were exceeding many; and so it might have appeared to them that in vayne it was that they were called the posteritie of Abraham, or that ever they had received law, or form of right religion from God. That we may the better fele it in our selves, the temptation, I say, was even such as if God shuld utterly destroy al order and policy that this day is within his Church, that the true preaching of the worde should be suppressed; the right use of sacraments abolished; idolatry and papistical abomination erected up again; and therewith, that our bodies should be taken prisoners by Turks or other manifest enimies of God and of al Godlynesse. Such, I say, was their temptation. How notable then is this their confession, that in bondage they make; to wit, that they will remember God onely, albeit he hath appeared to turne his face from them; they will remember hys Name, and will cal to minde the deliverance promised.

Hereof, have we to consider, what is our duetie, if God bring us, (as for oure offences and unthankfulness justly he may,) to the like extremitie. This confession is not the fayre flattering wordes of hypocrites, lying and bathing in their pleasures; but it is mightie operation of the Spirit of God, who leaveth not his own destitute of some comfort in their most desperate calamities.¹ This is then oure duety, not onely to confesse our God in the time of peace and quietness, but he chiefly craveth, that we avowe him in the middeste of his and our enemies. And this is not to doe; but it behoveth that the Spirite of God worke in us above all power of nature; and thus we ought earnestlye to meditate before the battayle rise more vehement, which appeareth not to be farre of. But now must we enter in somewhat more deeply to consider these judgements of God.

This people, entreated as we have heard, was the onely people upon the face of the earth to whom God was rightly knowen. Among them onely was his lawes, statutes, ordinaunces, and sacrifices used, and put in practice; they onely invocated his Name, and to them alone had he promised his protection and assistance. What then shoulde be the cause, that he shoulde give them over into this great reproche, and bring them into such extremitie, as his owne name in them shoulde be blasphemed? The prophet Ezekiell, that saw this horrible destruction forespoken by Isaiah put in just execution, giveth an answer in these wordes:² "I gave unto them lawes that were good, in the which, whosoever shoulde walke, should live in them; but they would not walke in my wayes, but rebelled against me; and, therefore, I have given unto them lawes that are not good, and judgements in the which they shall not live." The writer of the bookes of Kings and Chronicles declare this in more playne words, saying, "The Lorde sent unto them his prophets, rising early, desiring of them to retourne unto the Lorde, and to amende their wicked wayes" (for he would have spared his people and his tabernacle),” but they mocked his servants, and woulde not retourne unto the Lorde their God to walke in his wayes.”¹ Yea, Juda it selfe kept not the precepts of the Lord God, but walked in the maners and ordinances of Israell; that is, of suche as then had declyned to idolatry from the dayes of Jeroboam. And, therefore, the Lorde God abhorred the whole seede of Israell, that is, the whole body of the people; he promised them, and he gave them into the handes of those that spoyled them, and so he cast them out from his presence.

¹ The dutie of God's people.

² Eche. 20.

Hereof it is evident, that their stubborne disobedience unto God, and unto the voyces of hys prophetes, was the cause of their destruction. Nowe have we to take heede how we should use the good lawes of God, that is, his mercifull will revealed unto us in his worde, and that order of justice, that by him for the comferte of man is established among men. It is no doubt but that obedience is the moste acceptable sacrifice unto God, and that which above all things he requireth; that when he manifesteth himselfe by hys worde, that men follow according to their vocation and commaundement. Now so it is, that God, by that Great Pastor our Lorde Jesus, nowe manifestly in his worde calleth us from all impietie, as well of body, as of minde, to holynesse of life, and to his spirituall service: And for this purpose he hath erected the throne of his mercy among us, the true preaching of his word, together with the right administration of his sacrament: but what is our obedience? Let every man examine his owne conscience, and consider what statute and lawes we would have to be given unto us.

Wouldest thou, O Scotland, have a King to raigue over thee in justice, equitie, and mercy? Subject thou thyself to the Lorde thy God, obey his commaundements, and magnifie thou that word that calleth unto thee,² “ This is the way, walke into it,” and if thou wilt not, flatter not thy self -the same justice remaineth this day in God to punishe thee, Scotlande, and thee, Edenborough, in especiall, that before punished the lande of Juda and the citie of Jerusalem. "Everie realme or nation," sayth the prophet Jeremy, "that likewise offendeth, shall be likewise punished."¹ But if thou shalt see impietie placed in the seate of justice above thee, so that in the throne of God (as Salomon doth complayne)² raigneth nothing but fraude and violence, accuse thy owne ingratitude and rebellion against God. For that is the onely cause why God taketh away (as the same prophet in another place doth speake)³ "the strong man and the man of warre, the judge and the prophete, the prudent and the aged, the captain and the honorable, the counseller and the cunning artificer." "And I wil appoint, sayeth the Lorde, children to be their princes, and babes shal rule over them. Children are extorcyoners of my people, and women have rule over them."

¹ 2 Reg. 17.

² Isai. 30.

If these calamities, I saye, apprehend us, so that we see nothing but the oppression of good men, and of all godlynesse, and wicked men without God to raigne above us; let us accuse and condempne our selves as the onely cause of oure owne miseries. For if we had heard the voyce of the Lord our God, and given upright obedience unto the same, God should have blessed us, he shoulde have multiplyed oure peace, and shoulde have rewarded our obedience before the eyes of the worlde. But nowe let us heare what the Prophet sayth further.

Verse 14. "The dead shall not live, sayth he, neyther shall the tiraunts, or the dead arise, because thou hast visited and scattered them, and destroyed all their memorie."

From this 14th verse unto the end of the 19th, it appeareth that the prophet observeth no order; yea, that he speaketh thinges directly repugning one to another: For, first he sayth "The dead shal not live." After he affirmeth, "Thy dead men shall lyve.”¹ Secondly, he sayth, “Thou hast visited and scattered them, and destroyed all their memorie.” Immediately thereafter, he sayth, “Thou hast increased the nation, O Lord ! thou haste increased the nation. They have visited thee, and have poured forth a prayer before thee.”

¹ Jere. 9.

² Eccle. 3.

³ Isa. 3.

Who, I say, woulde not thinke, that these are thinges not onely spoken forth of good order and purpose, but also manifestly repugning one to another. For to live, and not to live ; to be so destroyed that no memoriall remaineth, and to be so increased that the coastes of the earth shal be replenished, seme to importe playne contradiction. For removing of this doubt, and for better understanding of the Prophete’s minde, we must understand that the Prophet had to doe with diverse sorts of men. He had to do with the conjured and manifest enimies of God’s people, the Caldes or Babilonians ; even suche, as professe Christ Jesus, have to doe with the Turke and Sarazens. He had to doe with the sede of Abraham, wherof there were three sorts. The tenne tribes all degenerate from the true worshipping, and corrupted with idolatry, as this daye are our pestilent Papistes in al realmes and nations. There rested onely the tribe of Juda and Jerusalem, where the forme of true religion was observed, the lawe taught, and ordinaunces of God outwardly kept. But yet there were in that body (I meane in the bosome of the visible Church) a great number that were hipocrits, as this day yet are among us that doe professe the Lorde Jesus, and have refused papistrie ; not a fewe that were lycentious lyvers ; some that had tourned their backe to God, that is, had forsaken al true religion ; and some that lived a most abhominable life, as Ezechiell sayeth in his vision.² And yet there were some godlye, as a fewe wheat cornes oppressed and hid among the multitude of such chaffe ; nowe, according to this diversitie, the Prophete keepeth divers purposes, and yet in moste perfecte order.

¹ Verse 15.

² Ezech. 8.

And first, after the first part of the complaint of the afflicted, as we have heard, in vehemencie of spirite, he bursteth forth against all the proude enemies of God's people, all such as trouble them, and against all such as mocke and forsake God, and sayth, "The dead shal not live: the proud giants shall not arise: thou hast scattered them, and destroyed their memoriall." In which wordes he fighteth against the present temptation and dolorous estate of God's people, and against the insolent pride of such as oppressed them; as the Prophet should say. O ye troublers of God's people, howsoever it appeareth to you in this your bloody rage, that God regardeth not your crueltie, nor considereth not what violence ye doe to his pore afflicted, yet shal ye be visited; yea, your carcasses shal fal and lye as stinking carions upon the face of the earth; ye shall fal without hope of life, or of a blessed resurrection; yea, howsoever ye gather your substance, and augment families, ye shall be so scattered that ye shall leave no memoriall of you to the posterities to come, but that which shall be execrable and odious.

Hereof have the tirauntes their admonition, and the afflicted Church inestimable comfort. The tirauntes that now doe oppresse, shal receive the same end that they which have passed before; that is, they shal dye and fal with shame, without hope of resurrection, as is aforesayd; not that they shall not arise to their owne confusion and just condempnation, but that they shal not recover power to trouble the servants of God, neyther yet shal the wicked arise, as David sayth, in the councell of the just. Now have the wicked their counceles, their thrones, and finally handelings, for the moste part, of all things that are upon the face of the earth; but the pore servants of God are reputed unworthy of mens presence, yea, they are more vile before these proude tyrauntes than is very dirt and mire that is trodden under fote: But in that glorious Resurrection this estate shal be changed;¹ for then shal such as now by their abominable living and crueltie, destroy the earth and molest God's children, see him whome they have pearced. They shal see the glory of such as now they persecute, to their terror and everlasting confusion. The remembrance hereof ought to make us patient in the dayes of affliction, and so to comfort us, that when we see tiraunts in their blinde rage treade under fote the Saints of God, that utterlie we despaire not, as that there were neyther wisdom, justice, nor power above in the heavens to repress such tirannie, and to redresse the dolors of the unjustly afflicted. No, Brethren, let us be assured that the right hand of the Lorde will change the state of thinges that be most desperate. In our God there is wisdom and power in a moment to change the joy and mirth of our enimies into everlasting mourning, and our sorrowes into joye and gladnesse that shall have no ende.

¹ Apoca.

Let us, therefore, in these apparant calamities, and marvell not that I say calamities apparant; for he that seeth not a fier begonne, that shal burne more than we loke for, unlesse God of his mercie quenche it, is more than blinde: Yet I say, let us not be discouraged, but with unfained repentance let us retourne to the Lorde our God; let us accuse and condemne our former negligence, and stedfastly depende upon his promised deliverance, and so shal our temporal sorrowes be converted into joye everlasting. The doubte that might be moved concerning the destruction of those whome God exalteth, shall be discussed, if time wil suffer, after that we have passed through-out the text. Now proceedeth the Prophet, and sayth,—

Verse 15. "Thou hast increased the nation, O Lorde, thou hast increased the nation; thou art made glorious, thou hast enlarged all the coastes of the earth."

Verse 16. "Lorde in trouble have they visited thee: they poured out a prayer when thy chastening was upon them."

In these wordes the Prophet giveth consolation to the afflicted; assuring them, that howe horrible soever that desolation shoulde be, yet shoulde the seede of Abraham be so multiplyed, that it shoulde replenish the coastes of the earth; yea, that God should be more glorified in their dispersion, than he was during the time of their prosperity. This promise, no doubt, was incredible when it was made; for who coulde have bene persuaded that the destruction of Jerusalem shuld have bene the meanes, wherby the nation of the Jewes shoulde have been increased, seeing that much rather it appeared that the overthrow of Jerusalem shoulde have bene the verie abolishing of the seede of Abraham. But we muste consider to what ende it was that God revealed himselfe to Abraham, and what is contayned in the promise of the multiplication of his seede, and of the benediction promised thereto.

First, God revealed himselfe to Abraham, and that by the meanes of his word; to let all flesh after understande, that withoute God first cal man, and reveale himselfe unto him, that "flesh can doe nothing but rebell against God;"¹ for Abraham, no doubt, was an idolater before that God called him from Ur of the Caldeis. The promise was made, "that the seede of Abraham should be multiplyed as the starres of heaven, and as the sande of the sea;"² which is not simply to be understood of his natural seede, althoughe it was sometymes greatly increased; but rather of suche as shoulde become the spiritual seede of Abraham, as the Apostle speaketh. Now if we be able to prove that right knowledge of God, his wisdom, justice, mercye, and power, was more amply declared in their captivitie, than ever it was at any tyme before; then can we not deny, but that God, even when to man's judgement he had utterly rased them from the face of the earth, did increase the nation of the Jewes, so that he was glorified in them, and did extend the coastes of the earth for their habitation. And for the better understanding hereof, let us shortly try the histories from their captivitie to their deliverance, and, after the same, to the coming of the Messias. It is no doubt but that Sathan intended by the dispersion of the Jewes, so to have prophaned the whole seede of Abraham, that among them shoulde neyther have remayned the true knowledge of God, nor yet the spirit of sanctification; but that all should have come to a like ignorance and contempt of God.

¹ Josu. 24.

² Rom. 9.

For I pray you, for what purpose was it that Daniell¹ and his fellowes were taken into the king's court, were commaunded to be fed at the king's table, and were put to the scholes of their divines, southsayers, and astrologians? It maye be thought that it proceeded of the king's humanitie, and of a zeale that he had, that they shoulde be brought up in vertue and good learning; and I doubt not but it was so understood of a great number of the Jewes. But the secret practise of the Divell was understood of Danyell, when he refused to defyle himselfe with the king's meat, which was forbidden to the seede of Abraham in the law of their God. Well, God beginneth shortly thereafter to shew himselfe myndefull of his promise made by the prophete; and he beginneth to trouble Nabuchodonezar himselfe, by shewing to him a vision in his dreame, which did the more trouble him, bicause he could not forget the terrour of it; neyther yet coulde he remember what the vision and the parcels therof were: Wherupon were called all divines, interpreters of dreames, and southsayers; of whom the King demaunded if thei could let him understand what he had dreamed: but while that they answere, that such a question used not to be demaunded of any southsayer or magitian,—for the resolution thereof onely appertained to the Gods, whose habitation was not with men,—the charge was given, that they all should be slayne; And amongst the rest Daniell was sought² (whose innocencie the devill most envied), to have suffered the same judgement. He reclaymeth, and asketh tyme to disclose the secret, (I onely touch the historie, to let you see by what meanes God increaseth his knowledge,) which being graunted, the vision is reveled unto him. He sheweth the same unto the King, with the true interpretation of it; adding, that the knowledge thereof came not from the starres, but only from the God of Abraham, who onely was, and is, the true God. Which thing understood, the King burst forth in his confession, saying, "Of a truth your God is the moste excellent of al Gods, and he is Lord of kinges, and onely he that revealeth the secretes, seeing that thou couldest open this secret."

¹ Daniell. 1.

² Daniell. 2.

And when the King after, puffed up in pride by the counsell of his wicked nobilitie, would make an Image, before the which he would that al tongues and nations subject to him should make adoration, and that Sydrack, Misacke, and Abednago, woulde not obey his unjust commaundement, and so were cast in the flaming furnace of fyre; and yet by Godes angels were so preserved, that no smell of fier remayned in their persons nor garments: this same king giveth a more notable confession, saying, "The Lord God of Sydrack, Misack, and Abednago, is to be praysed, who hath sent his angels, and delivered his worshippers that put their trust in him, who have done against the king's commaundement, who have rather given their own bodyes to torment, than that they would worship another God except their owne God. By me, therefore, is there made a decree, that whosoever shal blaspheme the God of Sydrack, Misack, and Abednago, that he shall be cut in pieces, and his house shal be made detestable."¹

Thus we see how God began even almoste in the beginning of their captivitye, to notifie his name, to multiply his knowledge, and set forth aswel his power, as his wisdom, and true worshipping, by those that were taken prisoners; yea, that were dispised, and of all men contempned, so that the name and feare of the God of Abraham was never before notified to so many realmes and nations. This wonderous worke of God proceeded from one empire to another: for Daniel being promoted to great honor by Darius, King of Perses and Medes, falleth into a desperate daunger; for he was committed to prison among lyons,¹ because that he was deprehended, breaking the king's injunction; not that the king desired the destruction of God's servants, but bicause the corrupt idolaters, that in hatred of Daniell had procured that law to be made, urged the king against his nature: But God by his angell did stop the lyons mouthes, and so preserved his servant. Which considered with the suddaine destruction of Daniell's enemies by the same lyons, King Daryus, besides his owne confession, wrote to all people, tongues, and nations after this forme:—"It is decreed by me that in all the dominions of my kingdom, men shal feare and reverence the God of Danyell, because he is the living God abiding for ever, whose kingdome shall not be destroyed, and his dominion remayneth, who saveth and delivereth, and sheweth signes and wonders in heaven and in earth; who hath delivered Daniell from the lyons."

¹ Daniell. 3.

This knowledge was yet further increased in the days of Cyrus, who giving freedome to the captives to returne to their owne native country, giveth this confession:—"Thus sayth Cyrus, the king of Persians, all the kingdomes of the earth hath the Lorde God of heaven given unto me,² and hath commaunded me that a house be built to him in Jerusalem, which is in Juda. Whosoever therefore of you that are of his people, let the Lord his God be with him, and let him passe up to Jerusalem, and let him bulde the house of the Lord God of Israell; for he only is God that is in Jerusalem."

Time will not suffer to intreate the poyntes of this confession, neyther yet did I for that purpose adduce the historie; but onely to let us see howe constantlye God kept his promise in increasing of his people, and in augmenting of his true knowledge, when that both they that were the seede of Abraham, and that religion which they professed, appeared utterly to have bene extinguished; above mens expectation, I say, he brought fredome out of bondage, light out of darkenesse, and lyfe out of death. I am not ignoraunt that the building of the temple and reparation of the walles of Jerusalem were long stayed, so that the worke had many enimies. But so did the hande of God prevaile in the ende, that a decree was given by Daryus (by him, I suppose, that succeeded to Cambises), not onely that all things necessarie for the building of the temple, and for the sacrifices that were to be there brent,¹ shoulde be ministred upon the king's charges,² but also, that whosoever shuld hinder that work, or change that decree, that a balke³ shoulde be taken out of his house, and that he shoulde be hanged therupon; yea, that his house shuld be made a donghill; and thereto he addeth a prayer,⁴ saying, "The God of heaven who hath placed his name there, roote out everye king and people, (O! that kings and nations should understande,) that shall put his hande eyther to change or to hurte this house of God that is in Jerusalem!" And so, in despite of Sathan, was the temple builded, the walles repayred, and the city inhabited; and in the moste desperate daungers it was preserved, til that the Messias promised, the glory of the seconde temple, came, manyfested himselfe to the worlde, suffered and rose againe, according to the Scriptures; and so, by sending forth his gospell from Jerusalem, did replenish the whole earth with the true knowledge of God; and so did God in perfection increase the nation and the spirituall seede of Abraham.

¹ Daniell. 6.

² 1 Esd. 1.

Wherefore, deare Brethren, we have no small consolation, if the estate of all things be this daye rightly considered. We see in what furie and rage the worlde, for the moste parte is, nowe raised against the pore Church of Jesus Christ, unto the which he hath proclaymed liberty, after this fearefull bondage of that spirituall Babylon, in the which we have been holden captives longer space than Israel was prisoner in Babylon itselfe: for if we shall consider, upon the one parte, the multitude of those that live without God; and upon the other parte, the blinde rage of the pestilent papistes, what shal we think of the small number of them that do professe Christ Jesus, but that they are as a poore sheepe, already seized in the clawes of the lyon? yea, that they, and the true religion whiche they professe, shall in a moment utterly be consumed.

¹ [Brent, burnt.]² 1 Esd. 6.³ [Balke, bawke, a beam.]⁴ A prayer.

But against this fearefull temptation, let us be armed with the promise of our God, to wit, that he will be the protector of his Church; yea, that he will multiply it, even when to man's judgement it appeareth utterly to be exterminate. This promise hath our God performed, in the multiplication of Abraham's seede, in preservation of it when Sathan labored utterlie to have destroyed it, in deliverance of the same, as we have heard from Babilon. He hath sent his sonne Christ Jesus, clad in our flesh, who hath tasted of all our infirmities (sinne except), who hath promised to be with us to the ende of the worlde. He hath further kept promise in publication, yea, in the restitution of his gloryous gospell. Shall we then thinke that he will leave his Church destitute in this moste daungerous age? Onely let us sticke to his truth, and studye to conforme our lyves to the same, and he shall multiply his knowledge and increase his people. But now let us heare what the Prophet sayth more.

Verse 16. "Lorde, in trouble have they visited thee, they poured out a prayer when thy chastening was upon them."

The Prophet meaneth that such as in the time of quietnesse did not rightly regard God nor his judgements, were compelled by sharpe corrections to seeke God, yea by cryes and dolorous complayntes to visit him. True it is, that such obedience deserveth small praise before men; for who can prayse, or accept that in good parte, which cometh as it were of mere compulsion? And yet rare it is that any of God's children doe give unfayned obedience untill the hande of God turne them; for if quietnesse and prosperitie make them not utterlie to forget their duety both towardes God and man, as David for a season, yet it maketh them carelesse, insolent, and in manye things unmindeful of those things that God chiefly craveth of them; which imperfection espied, and the daunger that therof might ensewe, our Heavenly father visiteth the sinnes of his children, but in the rodde of his mereye, by the which they are moved to retourne to their God, to accuse their former negligence, and to promise better obedience in all times therafter; as David confesseth, saying, "Before I fell in affliction, I went astray: but now will I kepe thy statuts."¹

But yet for the better understanding of the Prophetes minde, we may consider, how God doth visit man, and howe man doth visit God; and what difference there is betwixt the visitation of God upon the reprobate, and his visitation upon the chosen.

God sometymes visiteth the reprobate in his hote displeasure, pouring upon them his plagues for their long rebellion; as we have heard before that he visited the proud and destroyed their memorie. Other tymes, God is sayde to visit his people being in affliction, to whome he sendeth comferte or promise of deliverance, as he did visit the seede of Abraham, being oppressed in Egipt: and Zacharie sayth, that God had visited his people, and sent unto them hope of deliverance, when John the Baptist was borne. But of none of these visitations speaketh our Prophet here, but of that onely which we have already touched, to wit, when that God layeth his correction upon his owne children, to call them from the venomous beastes of this corrupt worlde, that they sucke not in over greate haboundance the poyson therof; and doth as it were, weane them from their mothers paps, that they may learne to receive other nourishment. True it is, that this weaning (or speaning as we terme it), from worldly pleasure, is a thing straunge to the flesh, and yet it is a thing so necessary to God's children, that unlesse they be weaned from the pleasures of the world, they can never feede upon that delectable milke of God's eternall veritie; for the corruption of the one doth eyther hinder the other to be receaved, or else so troubleth the whole powers of man, that the soule can never so digest the truth of God as that he ought to doe.

¹ Psal. 119.

Albeit this appeareth harde, yet it is moste evident; for what liquor can we receive from the breasts of the worlde but that which is in the world; and what that is, the Apostle John teacheth, saying, "What soever is in the worlde, is either the lustes of the eyes, the lustes of the fleshe, or the pride of lyfe."¹ Nowe, seeing that these are not of the Father, but of the worlde, howe can it be that our soules can feede upon chastitie, temperance, and humilitie so longe as that our stomaks are replenished with the corruption of these vices?

Now so it is, that willingly fleshe can never refuse these forenamed, but rather still delighteth it selfe in every one of them; yea, in them all, as the examples are but to evident. It behoveth therefore that God himself shal violently pul his children from these venemous breasts, that when they lacke the liquor and poyson of the one, they may visit him, and learne to be nourished of him. Oh! if the eies of worldly princes shoulde be opened, that they might see with what humor and lyquor their soules are fed, while that their whole delight consisteth in pryde, ambition, and lustes of the stinking flesh. We understande then how God doth visite men, as well by his severe judgements, as by his mercifull visitation of deliverance from trouble, or by bringing trouble upon his chosen for their humiliation; and now it resteth to understand howe man visiteth God. Man doth visite God when he ap-peareth in his presence, be it to the hearing of his worde, or to the participation of his sacraments; as the people of Israell, besides the observation of their Sabbothes and dayly oblations, were commaunded thrice a yeare to present themselves before the presence of the tabernacle, and as we doe, as often as we present ourselves to the hearing of the worde; for there is the footstole, yea, there is the face and throne of God himself, whersoever the gospell of Jesus Christ is truly preached, and his sacraments rightly ministred.

¹ 1 John 2.

But men maye, on this sorte visite God hipocritically; for they maye come for the fashion, they maye heare with deafe eares, yea, they may understand, and yet never determyne with themselves to obey that which God requyreth: and let such men be assured, that he who searcheth the secrets of hearts wil be avenged of al such. For nothing can be to God more odyous, than to mock him in his owne presence. Let every man therefore examine himselfe, with what minde, and what purpose, he commeth to heare the worde of God; yea, with what eare he heareth it, and what testimonie his heart giveth unto him, when that God commaundeth vertue, and forbiddeth impietie.

Repinest thou when God requireth obedience? Thou hearest to thine owne condempnation. Mockest thou at God's threatenings? Thou shalt feele the weight and truth of them, albeit to late, when flesh and bloude cannot deliver thee from his hande. But the visitation (wherof our Prophet speaketh) is only proper to the sonnes of God, who in the tyme when God taketh from them the pleasures of the world, or sheweth his angry countenance unto them, have their recourse unto him, and, confessing their former negligence with troubled hearts, cry for his mercy. This visitation is not proper to all afflicted, but appertaineth onely to God's children: for the reprobate can never have accesse to Goddes mercye in time of their tribulation; and that bicause they abuse as well his long pacience, as the manifolde benefits they receive from his handes : For as the same prophet heretofore sayth, " Let the wicked obtaine mercye, yet shal he never learne wisdome, but in the lande of righteousness," that is, where the very knowledge of God aboundeth, he will doe wickedly, which is a cryme above all others abominable ; for to what ende is it that God erecteth his throne among us ? but for that we shoulde feare him. Why doth he reveale his holy will unto us ? but that we shoulde obey it. Why doth he deliver us from trouble ? but that we should be witnesses unto the worlde, that he is gracious and mercifull.

Nowe when that men, hearing their duty and knowing what God requireth of them, doe malepertly fight against al equitie and justice, what, I pray you, doe they else but make manifest warre against God ? Yea, when they have received from God suche deliverance that they cannot deny but that God himselfe hathe in his great mercye visited them, and yet that they continew wicked even as before, what deserve they, but effectually to be given over into a reprobate sence, that hedlong they may runne to ruine both of body and soule ? It is almost incredible that man should be so enraged against God, that neyther his plagues, nor yet his mercy shewed, should move them to repentaunce ; but bicause the Scriptures beareth witnessse of the one and the other, let us cease to mervell, and let us firmly beleve, that such things as have bene are even presently before our eyes, albeit, manye blinded by affection can not see them.

Ahab, as in the Boke of the Kings is written, received many notable benefits of the hande of God, who did visite him in divers sortes ; sometymes by his plagues, sometimes by his worde, and sometimes by his merciful deliverance. He made him king, and for the idolatry used by him and by his wife, he plagued whole Israell by famyne. He revealed to him his will and true religion by the prophet Helias. He gave unto him sundry deliverances ; but one moste speciall, when proude Ben-hadad came to besiege Samaria, and was not content to receive Ahab's gold, silver, sonnes, daughters, and wyves, but also required, that his servants shoulde have at their pleasure whatsoever was delectable in Samaria. True it is, that his elders and people willed him not to heare the proude tirant. But who made unto him the promise of deliverance? and who appointed and put his armye in order? Who assured him of victorie? The Prophet of God onely, who assured him that by the ser-vantes of the princes of the provinces, who in number were onely 232, he shoulde deface that great armie, in the which there were thirty-two kings with all their forces: As the pro-phete of God promised, so it came to passe; victorie was ob-tained, not once only, but twice, and that by the mercifull visitation of the Lorde.

But howe did Ahab visite God againe for his great benefit received? Did he remove his idolatry? did he correct his idolatrous wife Jesabel? No, we find no such thing; but the one and the other we find to have continued and increased in former impietie. But what was the ende hereof?¹ The last visitation of God was, that dogges licked the blood of the one, and did eate the flesh of the other.² In fewe wordes, then, we may understand what difference there is betwixt the visitation of God upon the reprobate, and his visitation upon his chosen: The reprobate are visited, but never truly humbled, nor yet amended; the chosen being visited, they sobbe and they cry unto God for mercy; which obtained, they magnifie God's name, and after declare the fruites of repentaunce. Let us, therefore, that heare these judgements of our God, call for the assistance of his Holy Spirit, that howsoever it pleaseth him to visite us, that we may stoupe under his merciful hands, and unfainedly cry to him when he correcteth us; and so shall we knowe in experience, that our cryes and complaintes were not in vayne. But let us heare what the Prophet sayth further.

¹ 1 Reg. 22.

² 2 Reg. 9.

Verse 17. "Lyke as a woman (sayth he) with childe that draweth nere to the travayle, is in sorrow, and cryeth in her paines; so have we bene in thy sight, O Lorde.

Verse 18. "We have conceyved, we have borne in payne, as though we shoulde have brought forth the winde: salvations were not made to the earth; neither did the inhabitants of the earth fal."

This is the seconde parte of the Prophetes complaint, in the which he, in the person of God's people, complayneth, that of their great affliction there appeared no ende. This same similitude is used by our master Jesus Christ;¹ for when he speaketh of the troubles of hys church, he compareth them to the paynes of a woman travayling in her childe birth. But it is to another ende. For there he promiseth exceeding and permanent joy, after a sort, though it appeare trouble. But here is the trouble long and vehement, albeit, the fruite of it was not sodainely espied. He speaketh, no doubt, of that long and dolorous tyme of their captivitie, in the which they continually travelled for deliverance, but obtained it not before the complete ende of seventy yeares; during the which tyme, the earth, that is, the land of Juda, which sometimes were sanctified unto God, but was then given to be prophaned by wicked people, gat no helpe. Nor perceived any deliverance: For the inhabitants of the world fell not, that is the tirantes and oppressors of God's people, were not taken away but still remayned, and continued blasphemers of God and troublers of his church.

But bicause I perceive the houres to passe more swiftly then they have done at other tymes, I mind to contract that which resteth of this text into certayne points.

Verses 19, 20. The Prophet first fighteth against the present desperation; after he introduceth God himselfe calling upon his people; and last of all he assureth his afflicted, that God wil come, and require accompt of all the bloude-thirstie tirants of the earth. First, fighting against the present DESPERATION, he sayth :

¹ John 16.

Verse 19. “ Thy dead shall live ; even my bodye (or with my body) shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust : For thy dew is as the dew of herbes.”

The Prophete here pierseth throughe all impedimentes that nature could object ; and by the victorie of faith, he overcometh not onely the common enimies, but the great and last enimie of al, to wit, death itself. For this would he say, Lorde, I see nothing to thy chosen but miserie, to follow miserie, and one affliction to succede another ; yea, in the ende I see, that death shall devour thy dearest children. But yet, O Lorde, I see thy promise to be true, and thy love to remaine towards thy chosen, even when death appeareth to have devoured them : “ For thy deade shall live, yea, not onely shall they live, but my verie dead carcasse shall arise.” And so I see honor and glory to succede this temporall shame ; I see joye permanent to come after trouble, order to spring out of this terrible confusion ; and, finallye, I see that lyfe shal devoure death, so that death shall be destroyed, and so thy servauntes shall have lyfe.

This, I say, is the victorie of faith, when in the midst of deathe, throughout the light of Goddes worde, the afflicted see lyfe. Hipocrites, in the tyme of quietnesse and prosperitie, can generally confesse that God is true in his promises ; but bring them to the extremitie, and there ceasseth the hipocrite further to trust in God than he seeth naturall meanes whereby God useth to worke : but the true faithfull, when all hope of naturall meanes fayleth, then flye they to God himselfe, and to the truth of his promise, who is above nature, yea, whose workes are not so subject to the ordinarie course of nature, that when nature fayleth, his power and promise fayle also therewith.

Let us further observe, That the Prophete here speaketh not of all deade in generall, but sayth, "Thy dead, O Lorde, shall live;" in which wordes he maketh difference betwixt those that dye in the Lorde, and those that dye in their naturall corruption and in the olde Adam. Die in the Lord can none, except those that live in him (I meane of those that attaine to the yeares of descretion); and none live in him, except those that with the apostle can say, "I live, not I, but Christ Jesus liveth in me; the lyfe that now I live, I have by the faith of the sonne of God."¹ Not that I meane that the faithfull have at all houres suche sense of the lyfe everlasting that they feare not the deathe and the troubles of this lyfe; no, not so: for the faith of all Goddes children is weake, yea, and in manye thinges imperfect: But I meane, that such as in death, and after death shall live, muste communicate in this lyfe with Jesus Christ, and must be regenerate by the sede of lyfe;² that is, by the worde of the living and everlasting God, which who-soever despiseth, refuseth lyfe and joye everlasting.

The Prophete transferreth all the promises of God to him selfe, saying, "Even my dead body shal arise;" and immediately after giveth commaundement and charge to the dwellers in the dust, that is, to the dead carcasses of those that were departed (for the spirit and soule of man dwelleth not in the dust), that they should awake, they should sing and rejoyce; for they should arise and spring up from the earth, even as the herbes doe, after they have receaved the dew from above.

Tyme will not suffer that these particulars be so largely in-treated as they merit, and as I gladly would; and, therefore, let us first consider, that the Prophet in transferring the power and promise of God to himself, doth not vendicate to himself any perticular prerogative above the people of God, as that he alone should live and arise, and not they also; but he doth it to let them understande that he taught a doctrine whereof he was certayne, yea, and whereof they should have experience after his death : as he¹ should say, My words appeare to you now to be incredible, but the daye shall come, that I shal be taken from you ; my carcass shall be inclosed in the bosome of the earth ; and, therefore, shall ye be ledde away captives to Babylon, where ye shall remayne manye dayes and yeares, as it were, buried in your sepulchres. But then cal to minde that I sayde unto you, before hand, that my bodie shall arise ; even so shall ye rise from your graves out of Babylon, and be restored to your owne country and citie of Jerusalem. This, I doubt not, is the true meaning of the Prophet. The charge that he giveth to the dwellers in the dust, is to expresse the power of Goddes worde. Whereby, he not onely giveth life where death apparantly had prevayled, but also by it he calleth things that are not even as if they were. True it is that the prophete Isaiah saw not the destruction of Jerusalem, mucche lesse could he se the restitution of it, with his corporall eyes ; but he leaveth this, as it were, in testament with them, that when they were in the extremitie of all bondage, they shoulde call to minde what the prophet of God had before spoken.

¹ Gala. 2.² 1 Pet. 1.

And lest that his doctrine, and this promise of God made unto them by his mouth, shoulde have bene forgotten (as we are ever prone and ready to forget God's promises, when we are pressed with anye sorrow), God rayed up unto them in the midst of calamitie, his prophet Ezechiell, unto whome, among manye other visions he gave this : "The hande of the Lorde first ledde him in a place which was ful of dry and dispersed bones."² The question was demaunded of the Prophet, if these bones being wonderous dry should lyve. The Prophet answered, the knowledge therof appertained unto God. Charge was given unto him, that he shoulde speake unto the dry bones, and saye, " Thus sayth the Lorde God to these bones, Beholde, I shall give you breath, and ye shal live ; I shall give unto you sinewes, flesh, and skinne, and ye shall live." And while the Prophete spake (as he was commaunded), he heard a voyce, and he saw every bone joyne in his marrow; he saw them covered with flesh and skin; albeit, there was no spirit of lyfe in them. He was commaunded againe to speake and to say, Thus sayth the Lorde God, "Come, ô Spirite, from the foure quarters, and blow in these that are slayne, that they may lyve." And, as he prophecied, the spirite of life came: they lived and stooode upon their feete. Nowe doth the Lorde interprete what this vision ment, saying, "Sonne of man, these bones are the whole house of Israell. Behold they say, Our bones are dryed, our hope is perished, we are playnely cut of: but, Beholde, sayth the Lord, I will open your graves, I will bring you forth of them, ye shall live, and come unto the lande of Israell, and ye shall knowe that I am the Lorde."

¹ " As he," as if he.

² Ezech. 37.

This vision, I say, given to the Prophete, and by the Prophete preached to the people when they thought that God had utterly forgotten them, compelled them more dilligently to advert, what the former prophetes had spoken. It is no doubt but they caryed with them both the prophecie of Isaiah and Jeremie, so that the prophete Ezechiel is a commentarie to these wordes of Isaiah, where he sayth, "Thy dead, O Lorde, shall live; with my body they shall arise." The Prophet bringeth in this similitude of the dew¹ to answer unto that part of their fidelitie, who can beleve no further of God's promises than they are able to apprehende by naturall judgement. As he wold say, think ye this impossible that God shall give lyfe unto you, and bring you to an estate of a common wealth againe, after that ye be dead, and as it were rased from the face of the earth. But why doe ye not consider what God worketh from yeare to yeare in the order of nature? Sometimes ye see the face of the earth decked and beautified with herbes, floures, grasse, and fruites; againe ye see the same utterlye taken away by stormes and vehemencie of the winter. What doth God to replenishe the earth againe, and to restore the beauty thereof? He sendeth downe his small and soft dewe, the droppes whereof in their descending are neyther great nor visible, and yet thereby are the pores and secrete vaynes of the earth, which before, by vehemencie of frost and colde, were shut up, opened againe; and so doth the earth produce againe the like herbes, floures, and fruits. Shal ye then thinke that the dew of God's heavenly grace shall not be as effectuall in you to whome he hath made his promises, as that it is in the herbes and fruites that from yeare to yeare buddeth forth and decayeth? If ye doe so, the Prophet would say your incredibility¹ is inexcusable, bicause ye doe neyther rightlye waighe the power nor the promise of your God.

¹ In the original "deawe."

The like similitude useth the Apostle Paul against such as called the Resurrection in doubt, bicause that by naturall judgement they coule not apprehend that fleshe once putryfied and resolved, as it were, in other substance, shoulde arise againe and retourne againe to the same substance and nature.² "O foole," saith he, "that which thou sowest is not quickened except it dy; and that which thou sowest, thou sowest not that body that shall be, but bare corne, as it falleth, of wheate or some other; but God giveth it a body as it pleaseth him, even to everye seede his owne bodye." In which wordes and sentence the Apostle sharpelye rebuketh the grosse ignorance of the Corinthians, who began to call in doubt the chiefe article of our faith, the resurrection of the fleshe after that it was once resolved; bicause that naturall judgement (as saide is) reclaymed thereto.³ He reproveth (I say) their grosse ignoraunce, bicause that they might have seene and considered some proufe and document thereof in the very order of nature; for albeit the wheat, or other corne cast in the earthe, appeareth to die to putrifie, and so to be lost, yet we see that it is not perished, but that it fructifieth according to Goddes will and ordinaunce. Now, if the power of God be so manifest in raying up of the fruits of the earth, unto the which no particular promise is made by God, what shall be his power and vertue in raying up of our bodyes, seeing that thereto he is bound by the solempne promise of Jesus Christ, his Eternall Wisdome, and the veritie it selfe that can not lye; yea, seeing that the members must once communicate with the glorye of the head, howe shall our bodyes, which are flesh of his flesh and bone of his bones, lie stil for ever in corruption, seeing that our Head, Jesus Christ, is now exalted in his glory.¹ Neyther yet is this power and good will of God to be restrayned unto the last and generall Resurrection onely, but we ought to consider it in the marvellous preservation of his Church, and in the raying up of the same from the very bottome of death, when by tirauntes it hath bene oppressed from age to age.

¹ "Incredibility," unbelief.

² 1 Corin. 16.

³ "Reclaymed thereto," cried out against it.

Nowe, of the former wordes of the Prophet we have to gather this comforte, that if at anye tyme we shal see the face of the church within this realme so defaced (as I think it shall be, soner than we looke for); when we shall see, I say, vertue to be despised, vice to be mayntayed, the veritie of God to be impugned, lyes and mens inventions holden in auctoritie; and finally, when we shall see the true religion of our God, and zelous observers of the same, to be trodden under the feete of suche as in their heart saye there is no God.² Let us then call to minde, what have bene the wonderous workes of our God from the beginning; that it is his proper office to bring forthe lighte out of darkenesse, order out of confusion, lyfe out of death; and finally, that it is he that calleth things that are not, even as if they were, as before we have hard: and if in the day of our temptation (which in my judgement approacheth fast) we be thus armed, if our incredibilitie³ can not utterly be removed, yet shal it so be corrected, that dampnable desperation oppresse us not.

¹ Ephe. 5.² Psal. 14.³ Unbelief.

But nowe let us heare howe the Prophete proceedeth :—

Verse 20. “ Come (sayth he) thou my people, enter within thy chambers, shut thy dore after thee: hide thy selfe a very little while, until the indignation passe over.”

Here the Prophet bringeth in God amiably¹ calling upon his people to come to himselfe, and to rest with him unto suche time as the furie and sharpe plagues should be executed upon the wicked and inobedient. It maye appeare at the first sight, that all these words of the prophet in the person of God, calling the people unto rest, are spoken in vaine ; for we neyther finde chambers nor rest more prepared for the dearest children of God (so farre as man’s judgement can discern), than there was for the rebellious and inobedient. For such as fel not in the edge of the sworde, or dyed not of pestilence, or by hunger, were eyther caryed captives into Babylon, or else departed after into Egypt, so that none of Abraham’s seede had eyther chamber or quiet place to remayne within the lande of Canaan. For the resolution hereof, we must understand, that albeit the chambers whereunto God called his chosen be not visible, yet notwithstanding they are certaine, and offer unto God’s children quiet habitation in spirite, howsoever the flesh be travayled and tormented.

The chambers are then Goddes sure promises, unto the which God’s people is commaunded to resorte, yea, within the which they are commaunded to close themselves in the time of greatest adversitie. The maner of speaking is borrowed from that judgement and foresight which God hath printed in this our nature ; for when that men espie great tempests appearing to come, willingly they will not remayne uncovered upon the fields, but straight way they will drawe them to their houses or holdes, that they maye escape the vehemency of the same ; and if they feare any enemy to pursue them, they wil shut their dores, to the ende that sodainely the enemie shall not have entry. After this same maner God speaketh to his people; as he¹ shoulde saye, The tempest that shall come upon this whole nation shall be so terrible, that nothing shall appeare but extermination to come upon the whole body. But thou, my people, thou I saye that hearest my worde, belevest the same, and tremblest at the threatenings of my Prophetes, now when the world doth insolently resist, let such, I say, enter within the secrete chamber of my promises, let them conteyne themselves quietly there, yea, let them shut the dore upon them, and suffer not infidelitie, the mortall enemie of my truth, and of my people that depend thereupon, to have free entrie to trouble (yea, rather to murther) my promise; and so shall they perceyve that my indignation shall passe, and that such as depend upon me, shall be saved.

¹ “Amiably,” lovingly.

Thus we may perceyve the meaning of the prophete; whereof, we have first to observe, that God acknowledgeth them for his people that are in greatest affliction; yea, such as are reputed unworthy of mens presence are yet admitted with the secrete chamber of God. Let no man thinke that fleshe and bloude can sodaynely attayne to that comfort; and, therefore, most expedient it is, that we be frequently exercised in meditation of the same. Easie it is, I grant, in time of prosperitie, to say and to thinke that God is our God, and that we are his people; but when he hath given us over in the handes of oure enemies, and touned (as it were) his back unto us, then I say, stil to reclayme him to be our God, and to have this assurance that we are his people, procedeth wholly from the Holy Spirit of God as is the greatest victorie of faith, which overcometh the worlde;² for increase whereof, we ought continuallye to pray.

This doctrine we shall not think straunge, if we shall consider how sodainely our spirites are caryed away from our God, and from beleving his promise, as sone as anye great temptation doth apprehend us, then begin we to doubt if ever we beleved God's promises, if God will fulfill them to us, if we abide in his favour, if he regardeth and looketh upon the violence and injurie that is done unto us, and a multitude of suche cogitations which before lurked quietlye in our corrupted heartes, burst violently forth when we are oppressed with any desperate calamitie. Against the which, this is the remedie, once to apprehend and still to retayne God to be our God, and firmlye to beleve that we are his people whom he loveth and will defende, not onely in affliction, but even in the middest of death itselfe.

¹ "As he," as if he.

² 1 John 5.

Secondly, let us observe, That the judgements of our God never were, nor yet shall be so vehement upon the face of the earth, but that there hath bene and shall be some secrete habitation prepared in the sanctuary of God for some of his chosen, where they shall be preserved untill the indignation passe by; and that God prepareth a tyme, that they maye glorifie him againe before the face of the worlde, that sometimes despised them: and this ought to be unto us no small comfort in these appearing daungers, to wit, that we be surely persuaded, that howe vehement that ever the tempest shal be, that it yet shall passe over, and some of us shall be preserved to glorifie the name of our God, as is aforesaide.

Two vices lurke in this our nature: the one is, that we can not tremble at God's threatnings, before that the plagues apprehende us, albeit, that we see cause moste just why that his fierce wrath shuld burne as a devouring fire. The other is, that when calamities before pronounced fal upon us, then begin we to sincke downe in desperation, so that we never loke for any comfortable end of the same.

To correct this our mortall infirmitie, in time of quietnesse, we ought to consider what is the justice of our God, and howe odious sinne is. And above all other, howe odious idolatry is in his presence, who hath forbidden it, and who hath so severelye punished it in all ages from the beginning: and in the tyme of our affliction we ought to consider, what have bene the wonderous workes of our God, in preservation of his Church when it hath bene in uttermost extremitie: For never shall we finde the church humbled under the hands of tirants, and cruellye tormented by them; but therewith we shall finde Goddes juste vengeance to fall upon the cruell persecuters, and his mercifull deliverance to be shewed to the afflicted: And in taking of this tryall, we shoulde not onely cal to minde the histories of ancient times, but also we should dilligently marke what notable workes God hath wrought, even in this our age, as well upon the one as upon the other. We ought not to thinke, that oure God beareth lesse love to his church this daye, than that he hath done from the beginning: For as our God in his owne nature is immutable, so remayneth his love towardes his elect alwaies unchangeable;¹ for as in Christ Jesus he hath chosen his church before the beginning of al ages, so by him will he mayntayne and preserve the same unto the end. Yea, he will quiet the stormes, and cause the earth to open her mouth, and receyve those raging flouds of violent waters, caste out by the dragon, to drowne and cary away the woman, which is the spouse of Jesus Christ,² unto whom God for his owne name sake will be the perpetuall protector.

This sawe that notable servant of Jesus Christ, Athanasius,³ who, being exiled from Alexandria by that blasphemous apostata Julian the Emperor, sayd unto his flock, who bitterly wept for his envious banishment: "Weepe not, but be of good comforte," saide he, "for this little cloud wil sodainely vanish." A little cloude he called both the Emperor himselfe and his cruell tirannie; and albeit that small appearance there was of any deliverance to the church of God, or yet of any punishment to have apprehended the proude tirants, when the man of God pronounced these wordes, yet shortly after, God did give wit-nesse that those words did not procede from flesh nor bloud, but from God's verie Spirite. For not long after, being in warfare, he receyved a deadly wound, whether by his owne hande, or by one of his owne souldiers, the writers clearely conclude not; but casting his owne bloude against the heaven, he sayde, Vicisti tandem, Galilæe, that is, "At last thou hast overcome, thou Galilean;" so in despite he termed the Lorde Jesus. And so perished that tiraunt in his owne iniquitie; the storme ceassed, and the church of God receyved new comforte. Such shall be the ende of all cruell persecuters, their raigne shal be shorte, their end miserable, and their name shall be left in execration to Goddes people; and yet shall the church of God remayne to God's glory, after all stormes. But nowe shortly let us come to the laste point :

¹ Ephe. 1.² Apocal. 12.³ Eccle. Histo. Sozomeni. lib. 5, ca. 5.

Verse 21. "For, behold, (saith the Prophet,) the Lorde will come out of his place, to visite the iniquities of the inhabitants of the earth upon them: and the earth shall disclose her bloude, and shall no more hide her slaine."

Bicause that the finall ende of the troubles of Goddes chosen shall not be, before that the Lorde Jesus shall retourne to restore al things to their ful perfection.

The Prophet bringeth forth the eternall God, as it were from his owne place and habitation, and therewith sheweth the cause of his comming to be, that he may take accompt of al such as have wrought wickedly; for that he meaneth, where he sayth: "He will visite the iniquitie of the inhabitants of the earth upon them." And lest that any shoulde think that the wrong doers are so manye that they can not be called unto accompt, he giveth unto the earth, as it were, an office and charge to beare witness against all those that have wrought wickedlye, and chiefly against those that have shed innocent bloud from the beginning; and saith, "That the earth shall disclose her bloude, and shall no more hide her slayne men."

Yf the tirants of the earth, and such as delight in shedding of bloude, should be persuaded that this sentence is true, they shoulde not so furioslye come to their owne destruction; for what man can be so enraged, that he woulde willingly doe even before the eyes of God that which might provoke his majestie to anger; yea, provoke him to become his enemy for ever, if that he understoode how fearful a thing it is to fall into the hands of the living God?

The cause then of this blinde furie of the world is the ignorance of God; and that men thinke that God is but an Idoll; and that there is no knowledge above that beholdeth their tyrannie; neither yet justice that will, nor power that maye, repress their impietie. But yet the spirite of truth doth witnessse the contrary, affirming, that as "the eyes of the Lorde are upon the just,"¹ and as his eares are ready to receive their sobbing and prayers, so is his angry visage against such as worke iniquitie. He hateth and holdeth in abomination every deceitful and bloud thirstie man; whereof he hath given sufficient document from age to age, in preserving the one, or at the lest in revenging of their cause, and in punishing of the other.

Where it is sayde, "That the Lorde will come from his place, and that he wil visite the iniquitie of the inhabitants of the earth upon them, and that the earth shall disclose her bloude," we have to consider what moste commonly hath beene, and what shal be the condition of the Church of God; to wit, that it is not onelye hated, mocked, and despised, but that it is exposed, as it were, in a pray, unto the furie of the wicked; so that "the bloud of the children of God is spilt like water upon the face of the earth."² The understanding wherof, albeit it be unpleasant to the flesh, yet to us it is most profitable, lest that we, seing the cruell entreatings of God's servauntes, beginne to misknowe the spouse of Jesus Christ, bicause that she is not intreated in this unthankfull worlde, as that the just and upright dealings of God's children doth deserve. But contrarywise, for mercy they receive cruelty; for doing good to manye of al the reprobate, they receive evill. And this is decreed in God's eternall Councell, that the members maye follow the trace of the Head; to the ende that God, in his just judgements, should finally condempne the wicked; for howe should he punishe the inhabitants of the earth, if their iniquitie deserved it not? How should the earth disclose our bloude, if it should not be unjustly spilt? We must then commit ourselves into the handes of our God, and laye down our neckes, yea, and patientlie suffer our bloude to be shed, that the righteous Judge may require accompt, as most assuredly he shall, of all the bloude that hath beene shed, from the bloud of Abell the just, till the day that the earth shall disclose the same. I say, every one that sheddeth, or consenteth to shed the bloude of God's children, shal be guilty of the whole.¹ So that all the bloude of Goddes children shall crye vengeance, not onely in general, but also in particular, upon everye one that hath shed the bloude of anye that unjustly suffered.

¹ Psal. 33.

² Psal. 79.

And if any thinke it strange, that such as live this daye can be giltye of the bloude that was shed in the dayes of the Apostles, let them consider that the veritie itself pronounced that all the bloude that was shedde from the dayes of Abel unto the dayes of Zacharie, should come upon that unthankfull generation that heard his doctrine and refused it.² The reason is evident; for as their is two heads and captaines that rule upon the whole worlde; to wit, Jesus Christ, the Prince of justice and peace, and Sathan, called the Prince of the worlde; so are they but two armies that hath continued battaile from the beginning, and shall fight unto the ende. The quarell is one which the armie of Jesus Christ susteine, which the reprobate doe persecute; to wit, The eternall truth of the eternall

¹ A terrible, but most true sentence.

² Matth. 23.

God, and the image of Jesus Christ printed in his elect, so that whosoever in any age persecuteth any one member of Jesus Christ for his truth sake, subscribeth, as it were, with his hande, the persecution of all that have passed before him. And this ought the tirantes of this age deeply to consider; for they shall be guiltye, not onelye of the bloud shed by themselves, but of all (as saides) that hath bene shed for the cause of Jesus Christ from the beginning of the worlde.

Let the faithfull not be discouraged, although they be appointed as shepe to the slaughter-house; for He, for whose sake they suffer, shall not forget to revenge their cause. I am not ignoraunt that fleshe and bloude will thinke that kind of support too, too late; for we had rather be preserved still alive, than to have our bloud to be revenged after our death: And truelye, if our felicitie stode in this lyfe, or if death temporall should bring unto us any damage, our desire in that behalfe wère not to be dampned: but seeing that death is common to all, and that this temporall lyfe is nothing but miserie, and that death doth fully joyne us with our God, and giveth unto us the possession of our inheritance, why shuld we think it straunge to leave this worlde, and goe to our Head and soveraigne captayne, Jesus Christ?

Now last, We have to observe this maner of speaking, where that the Prophet sayth, "The earth shall disclose her bloud;" in which wordes the Prophet would accuse the crueltie of those that dare so unmercifully ryve¹ from the breastes of the earth, the dearest children of God, and cruelly cut their throts in her bosome, who is by God appointed the common mother of mankinde, so that she unwillingly is compelled to open her mouth and receyve their bloud.

If such tirannie were used against any naturall woman, as violently to pull her infant from her breastes, cut the throte of it in her own bosome, and compell here to receyve the bloude of her deare childe in her owne mouth, al nations would holde the fact so abominable, that the like had never beene done in the course of nature: And no lesse wickednesse commit they that shedde the bloud of God's children upon the face (as I have saide) of their common mother, the earth. But be of good courage O little and despised flocke of Christ Jesus, for he that seeth your grieve hath power to revenge it. He that will not suffer one teare of yours to fal, but that shall be kept and reserved in his bottle, till the fulnesse thereof be poured downe from heaven, upon those that caused you to weepe and mourne. This your mercifull God, I saye, will not suffer your bloud for ever to be covered with the earth; naye, the flaming fiers that have licked up the bloude of any of oure brethren; the earth that hath beene defiled with it, I saye, with the bloude of God's children, for otherwise to shed the bloud of the cruel bloudshedders is to purge the land from bloud, and as it were to sanctifie it: the earth I say shall purge herselfe of it, and shew it before the face of God; yea, the beastes, foules, and other creatures whatsoever, shall be compelled to render that which unjustly they have receyved, be it flesh, bloude, or bones that appartained to thy children, O Lorde! which altogether thou shalt glorifie according to thy promise, made to us in Jesus Christ, thy Sonne, to whom with Thee and the Holy Ghost, be honor, praise, and glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

¹ "Ryve," pull away, tear.

Let us now humble ourselves in the presence of our God, and, from the bottome of our heartes, let us desire him to assist us with the power of his Holy Spirite; that albeit, for our former negligences, God gave us over in the handes of other than suche as rule in his feare, that yet he let us not forget his mercy, and, that glorious Name that hath bene proclaymed amongst us; but that we may loke throughout the dolorous storme of his present displeasure, and see aswell what punishment he hath appointed for the cruell tirants, as what reward

he hath laid in store for such as continue in his feare to the ende. That it would further please him to assist, that albeit we see his Church so diminished, that it shal appeare to be brought, as it were, to utter extermination, that yet we maye be assured, that in our God there is power and will to increase the number of his chosen, even while they be enlarged to the uttermost coastes of the earth. Give us, O Lorde! heartes to visite thee in time of our affliction; and that albeit we see none ende of our dolors, that yet our faith and hope maye conduct us to the assured hope of that joyfull resurrection, in the which we shal possesse the fruite of that for the which nowe we travaile. And in the meane season, graunt unto us, O Lorde! to repose ourselves in the sanctuary of thy promise, that in thee we may finde comforte, till that this thy great indignation, begunne amongst us, may passe over, and thou thyselfe appeare to the comforte of thy afflicted, and to the terrour of thine enimies. Let us pray with heart and mouth, "Almighty God and merciful Father," etc.

Lord! in thy hands I commend my spirit; for the terrible roring of gunnes, and the noyce of armour, doe so pierce my heart, that my soule thirstith to depart.¹ The last of August 1565, at four at afternoone, written indigestly, but yet truely so far as memory would serve, of those things that in publike preaching I spake upon Sondaye, the 19 of August; for the whych I was discharged² to preach.

Be mercifull to thy flocke, O Lorde! and at thy good pleasure put an end to my miserie.

JOHN KNOXE.

¹ "The castle of Edenbrough was shooting against the exiled for Christ Jesus sake."

This marginal note refers to an event described in Book V. of the History of the Reformation, supra, vol. ii. p. 499.

² "Discharged," forbidden.

THE BOOK OF COMMON ORDER: OR THE FORM OF PRAYERS,
AND MINISTRATION OF THE SACRAMENTS, ETC., APPROVED AND RECEIVED
BY THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND.

M.D.LXIV.

So much importance in modern times is attached to Liturgical services, that it becomes desirable to ascertain the Forms of Worship which were adopted in Scotland at the period of the Reformation. In the Fourth Volume of this series, there is already given an accurate republication of "The Forme of Prayers and Ministration of the Sacraments, etc., used in the English Congregation at Geneva," from the original edition of 1556. Knox was then minister of that congregation. The same Forms, with various additions, including Calvin's Catechism, and the Psalms in English metre, were approved and received by the Church of Scotland, in 1564, and the copies usually pass under the name of KNOX'S PSALMS AND LITURGY. A more suitable title is that by which it was generally known in early times, and which I have accordingly adopted, THE BOOK OF COMMON ORDER.

During the last, as well as the present century, it has been maintained by some Episcopalian writers that the English BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER was at first adopted by our Reformers. A passage in a letter from Kirkaldy of Grange, dated 1st of July 1559, has been quoted in proof of this. The letter itself is contained in the present volume.¹ The words, in modern orthography, are these:—"As to parish churches, they cleanse them of images and all other monuments of idolatry, and command that mass shall not be said in them; in place whereof the Book set forth by godly King Edward is read in the same churches." Sir William Cecill, in writing to Sir Nicholas Throckmorton, the English ambassador at Paris, is somewhat more explicit, when mentioning the Protestants of Scotland, he says, "The parish churches they deliver, of altars and images, and have received the Service of the Church of England, according to King Edward's Booke."¹ As his letter is dated the 9th of that month, or eight days after Kirkaldy's, which had been transmitted to him, he probably was possessed of no other information on the subject.

¹ Supra, p. 34.

At a still earlier period, indeed, it is related both by Knox² and Calderwood,³ that the Lords and Barons professing Christ Jesus, after having signed "The godly Band" for their mutual defence, in December 1557, assumed the name by which they continued to be known as THE CONGREGATION; and that having convened frequently in council, "they agreed upon two heads, first, That the Common Prayers be read in the parish churches on the Sunday, with the Lessons of the New and Old Testament, conform to the ordour of the Book of Common Prayers; and, secondly, That doctrine, preaching and interpretation of Scriptures, be had and used privatelie in quiet houses, until authority was obtained from the Prince to grant public preaching by faithful and true ministers."⁴ Such arrangements, however, were merely prospective, to suit the exigencies of the times; and if we admit that the English Liturgy was actually adopted, it could have only been to a partial extent, and of no long continuance. But this, after all, is a question of very little importance, although it has been keenly disputed; for it is well to remember, that at this period there were no settled parish churches, and as there were no special congregations either in Edinburgh, or in any of the principal towns throughout the country, no ministers had been appointed. The Lords of the Congregation and their adherents were much too seriously concerned in defending themselves from the Queen Regent and her French auxiliaries, and more intent for that purpose in endeavouring to obtain the necessary aid from England, than

¹ Forbes's State Papers, vol. i. p. 155.

² Vol. i. p. 275.

³ History, vol. i. p. 328.

⁴ Vol. i. p. 275.

to be at all concerned about points of ritual observances. In the following year, when the French troops were expelled from Scotland, and the Protestant cause was ultimately triumphant, we may conjecture, that, in some measure swayed by the avowed dislike of Knox to the English service-book (as expressed in his letter to Mrs. Lock in April 1559),¹ the preference was given to the Forms of Geneva. We hear at least no more word of the English Prayer-book : and in the Book of Discipline prepared in December 1560, the only form mentioned is Our Buke of Common Ordour,² and "The Buke of our Common Ordour, callit the Ordour of Geneva." At the meeting of the General Assembly, held on the last day of December 1562, is this Act : "It is concludit that ane uniforme Ordour salbe takin and keipit in the Administratioun of the Sacraments, and Solemnization of Mariages, and Buriale of the Dead, according to the Booke of Geneva."³ On referring to vol. iv. page 155, there will be found a facsimile title-page of an edition printed at Edinburgh in the year 1562 (perhaps 1562-3), which shows its actual use at that time.

It was, however, found desirable to have the Book of Common Order enlarged, and the metrical version of the Psalms completed and reprinted in this country. No mention is made in the existing Acts of the General Assembly of the persons to whom this task was assigned, but aid had been given to the Printer for completing the volume, and at the General Assembly, on the 26th of December 1564, "It was ordained that Minister, Exhorter, and Reader, sall have one of the Psalmes Bookes latelie printed in Edinburgh, and use the Order contained therein in Prayers, Marriage, and ministratioun of the Sacraments."⁴

In printing the Book of Common Order, I have followed the edition of 1565 (which is identically the same with a copy

¹ Supra, vol. ii. p. 230.

² Ibid. p. 210.

³ The Booke of the Universall Kirk of Scotland, vol. i. p. 30. ⁴ Ibid. p. 54.

dated 1564), collating it with the earliest existing editions, of which facsimile titles, with the list of contents, are added. That this volume may not have been completed till the early part of 1565, is highly probable. In the Privy Seal Register, there is a letter of license by Queen Mary, by which, for encouraging "all sic works and volumes as tendis to the glorie of God," Lekprevik, along with the privilege of imprinting the Acts of Parliament, was authorized "TO IMPRENT ALSWA THE PSALMES OF DAVID in Scottis metir, during the space of seven zeiris eftir the dait of these presents . . . at Edinburgh, the xxij day of Marche 1564 (1564-5)."¹ But I have not thought it necessary to insert the kalendar, or to repeat such portions as are already given in the Fourth Volume. In regard to the scarcity of these early editions, I may notice, that the only known copy bearing the date 1564, is preserved in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Oxford. The copy in St. John's College, Cambridge, has the date 1565; and other two perfect copies are in private collections. In all the copies the date 1564 occurs on the title-page of the Catechism. The little volume dated 1566, I found among Bishop Kennet's books in the Cathedral Library, Peterborough. It seemed a most unaccountable edition, in its having the title, table, and kalendar, with Stewart's Sonnet,² reprinted verbatim from the Edinburgh edition 1565, while the volume itself did not correspond with the table of contents, and the Psalms were evidently printed at two different times. A subsequent examination of a similar volume, printed at Geneva in 1561, in the Cathedral Library of St. Paul's, London, enabled me to ascertain that these were one and the same edition; the separate title-pages to the Prayers, Psalms, and Catechism having the date 1561 being cancelled, and, as already stated, the preliminary leaves reprinted from the Edinburgh edition of 1565, while the Psalms, in addition to the "Four-score and Seven," printed in 1561, were supplied from the

¹ Reg. Secr. Sigilli, vol. xxxiii. fol. 19.

² See this, infra, p. 286.

English version of Sternhold and Hopkins, as it first appeared in a complete form at London in 1562.

An edition was printed at Edinburgh in 1568 by Thomas Bassandyne, which, containing some objectionable or irrelevant additions, was ordered by the General Assembly to be suppressed, and no copy has been discovered. Of the edition which came from his press in 1575, no complete copy is known. I have one with the Psalms entire, but wanting several leaves of the Prayers and Catechism. On the other hand, a perfect copy of the Prayers and Catechism, but wanting the Psalms, is in the Bodleian Library, Oxford.¹ Of the numerous subsequent editions, those most worthy of notice are,—London, Thomas Vautrollier, 1587, small 8vo; Middleburgh, Richard Schilders, 1594, and again 1602, small 8vo; Edinburgh, Henry Charteris, 1596, 12mo; Edinburgh, Robert Smyth, 1599, 12mo, without the tunes; also those printed at Edinburgh by Andro Hart, 1611, and again in 1615, small 8vo; and by the Heires of Andro Hart, 1635, small 8vo.

In reference to the Book of Common Order, it may be remarked that there was this marked difference in its use when compared with the Book of Common Prayer, that while the latter was in England prescribed as a ritual which admitted of no change, the other in Scotland was enjoined to be used chiefly as a guide or directory. Thus, in some of the rubrics, it is distinctly stated that “the minister was not expected to repeat these things, but he had the option, after closing his sermon, either to use these prayers, or to pray in the Spirit if God shall move his heart, framing the same according to the time and matter which he hath intreated of.”

This “Liturgy,” as it is usually called, with various omissions

¹ Another copy with the general title, Kalendar, and Psalms (but wanting all the Prayers and Catechism), was in the library of George Chalmers, sold by auction in 1842.

or alterations, continued to be republished at Edinburgh and Aberdeen till the years 1640 or 1643. In England some attempt had apparently been made to introduce the Geneva Form, as it was reprinted (but without the Psalms or Catechism), and “Humbly presented to the most High Court of Parliament,” London, 1641. Other two editions appeared in 1643. A reprint of this English text is included, by the Rev. Peter Hall, in his valuable and most carefully edited series, entitled “Reliquiæ Liturgicæ,” Bath, 1847, 5 vols. 18mo. The adoption of the Solemn League and Covenant, in both countries, led to a much more extensive alteration in worship and discipline, when the old forms were entirely superseded by the Confession, Catechisms, and Directories, prepared by the Westminster Assembly of Divines, and received by the Church of Scotland.

In recent times, a few solitary instances occur of an attempt to revive these early Forms of Worship and Discipline. In the year 1831, the Rev. Edward Irving published an edition of “The Confessions of Faith, and the Books of Discipline of the Church of Scotland, of date anterior to the Westminster Confession,” Lond. 1831, 12mo. To this volume there is prefixed a very able “Historical View of the Church of Scotland,” and a Preface, with remarks, in which he eulogizes the older Confessions and Forms. He has not included the Book of Common Order, but while describing its contents, he says, “Our Reformers were of opinion there should be daily service in the Church either for sermon or common prayers; with some exercise of reading the Scriptures, . . . the Lord’s Supper was to be administered at the least four times in the year; public examination was to be had annually of the knowledge of every person in the church; and a regular treatise of Fasting for the Church was prepared by the General Assembly; and many other things which I cannot particularize, all of them betokening the life of the Church, as our present condition betokens her nighness unto death.” The connexion of this noble-minded but misguided man with his mother Church had probably ceased before he introduced such Forms into his congregation of the Scottish National Church in London.

Nine years later, the Rev. Dr. Cumming of London also re-published what he calls "The Liturgy of the Church of Scotland, or John Knox's Book of Common Order," Lond. 1840. 12mo. In his Preface he advocates the revival or adoption of such Forms, and says, "I have no hesitation in observing, that we have a Liturgy little less beautiful and impressive than that of England, long used by the devout congregations of our National Church, never interdicted, and not only worth resumption, but in all respects calculated to improve our service. It may also be observed of this venerable form, that it presents at once liberty and assistance. 'Or in such like words,' is appended to many of its forms. When the preacher feels that he can pour out his heart in extemporaneous prayer, it gives him this power; but when he feels as most men occasionally feel, it presents beautiful and expressive formulæ."

In no instance do we find Knox himself using set forms of prayer; but that this Book was sanctioned, if not partly prepared by him, is undeniable. The Presbyterian forms of worship were totally unlike those of the English Church, by endeavouring to adhere more closely to Scripture, and to avoid anything approaching to Popish ceremonial worship. Thus there was not only this freedom of extemporary prayer to which Dr. Cumming alludes, but there was neither kneeling during prayer, nor while receiving the Sacrament; there were no responses or collects for particular days; the frequent repetition of the Lord's Prayer was avoided, and the Litany and the use of the Creed rejected. Congregational singing also was universally adopted; in place of the chanting, and the choral anthems, and instrumental music retained in the English service.

But the use of the Book of Common Order, so far as the liturgical part was concerned, had fallen into desuetude long before the time of the Westminster Assembly. When Archbishop Laud's Prayer Book, as it is called, was prepared, and printed in 1637, and was so unanimously rejected, among "Reasons for which the Service Booke urged upon Scotland ought to be refused," it is stated (and the words may be applicable to all congregational innovations at the present day).— "Though a prescript forme of Liturgie were lawfull, yet there is no warrant for imposing of one: for, might not able ministers (at least) make a prescript forme to themselves, which would fit them and their people best? But if it were lawfull to impose one, then there is one in this countrey already. Ought not that rather be imposed, then any other, seeing it is already established by Parliament, now of a long time? But now, if a new one ought to be imposed, then it ought to come in by a lawfull manner: by a Generall Assemblie and men chosen to make it that are knowne to have the gift of prayer themselves," etc.

It has already been noticed, that the numerous editions of "The Forme of Prayers," etc., are usually accompanied with a metrical version of the Psalms, and a translation of Calvin's Catechism. To have reprinted these, a separate volume would have been required; but although sanctioned by Knox, they cannot be considered as forming any part of the Reformer's works. For the benefit of the Highland population, a translation of "The Forme of Prayers," etc., into Gaelic, by John Carswell, afterwards Bishop of the Isles, was printed at Edinburgh in 1667.¹ The Catechism was also translated by Carswell, but we have no indication of its having been printed earlier than the year 1631; and if any Gaelic Psalms were used in public worship, no traces of such have been discovered, until a translation of the first fifty Psalms, from the present English version, was published by the Synod of Argyll in 1650.

¹ See Wodrow Miscellany, vol. 1 (all over published) p. 285.

It may, however, serve to gratify the reader's curiosity, by giving a few specimens of the old version of the Psalms from "Knox's Psalms and Liturgy." This version, it is well known, was made by various persons, between the years 1548 and 1564. To a considerable extent it is the same with that of Sternhold and Hopkins received in England when it was completed and printed in 1562. Without referring to the earlier editions of those translated by Thomas Sternhold, it is sufficient to mention that fifty-one Psalms were printed at Geneva in 1556, that the number was increased to eighty-seven in 1561,¹ and to one hundred and fifty in 1564. Of this full number, one hundred and nine, chiefly by Sternhold, Hopkins, Whittingham, and Kethe, are common with the English text. The forty-one Psalms peculiar to the Scottish editions consist of fifteen additional by William Kethe, other four by Whittingham, one by John Pulleyn, with six by Robert Pont, and fifteen by "I. C.," usually assigned to John Craig, one of the ministers of Edinburgh, but for which there is no early authority.²

The Psalms selected may serve as a specimen of these translators, and of the tunes to which the Psalms were set. Two of these, both words and music, have continued in use in our churches to the present day. The one, the Old Hundred, is universally known; while the other, the Old 124th, has an historical interest from an incident that happened on the 4th of September 1582, when the people of Edinburgh, to celebrate the return of one of the ministers who had been banished by a political faction, met him, and forming a procession in the High Street of Edinburgh, to the number of two or three thousand, they sung in harmony, this Psalm,—“Now Israel may say.”³ It is singular, however, that the tunes in nearly all the edi-

¹ There were two if not three distinct editions of these eighty-seven Psalms printed in the year 1561.

² See Notices, etc., in Appendix to Balfour's Letters and Journals, vol. iii pp. 525, etc.

³ Calderwood's History, vol. ii. p. 646.

tions, are only the air or tenor part, with the exception of that printed at Edinburgh in 1635. Many of these tunes are copied from the French Psalter of Marot and Beza, used in the French Protestant churches, and, like the English version, it was completed progressively between the years 1546 and 1562.

It has hitherto escaped notice that two or three of the early editions of the Psalms printed at Edinburgh, adopted the Scottish dialect, although on the title-page the words "in English metre" are retained. A few specimens are given to show the difference of orthography.¹

¹ From a black-letter edition, wanting the title-page, but apparently printed at Edinburgh, not later than the year 1578.

THE FORME OF

PRAYERS AND MINIS-TRATION OF THE SACRAments &c. vsed in the English Church at Geneua, approued and receiued by the Church of Scotland, whereunto besydes that was in the former boke, are also added sondrie other prayers, with the whole Psalmes of Dauid in English meter.

The contents of this boke are conteined in the page following.

I. CORINTH. III.

No man can lay any other fundation, then that which is laid, euen Christ Iesus.

PRINTED AT EDINBURGH
BY ROBERT LEKPREVIK.

M. D. L X V.

THE CONTENTS OF THE BOKE.

- 1 A kallender with an Almanack for 12. yeres.
- 2 The Confefion of the Chriftian Faith.
- 3 The order of EleCting Minifters Elders and deacons.
- 4 The affembly of the Minifterie euerie thurfday.
- 5 An order for interpretation of the Scriptures and anfwering of doubts, obferued one day in the weke.
- 6 A Confefion of our finnes vfed before the Sermon.
- 7 Another Confefion vfed in the Church of Edinburgh.
- 8 A Confefion vfed in tyme of extreame trouble.
- 9 A general prayer after the Sermō for the whole ftate of Chrifts church.
- 10 Other fortes of prayers to be vfed after the Sermon, the Sunday and day of publick prayer.
- 11 Prayers vfed in the tyme of perfecution by the Frenchemen & when the Lordes Table is miniftred.
- 12 A thankfgiuing for our deliuerance, with prayers for continuance of peace.
- 13 A prayer vfed at general and perticuler affembles.
- 14 The Miniftration of Baptifme and the Lordes Supper.
- 15 The forme of Mariage, the vifitation of the Sicke, with a prayer for the Sicke, and the maner of Buryall.
- 16 An order of Ecclefiafticall difcipline.
- 17 The 150. Pfalmes of Dauid in meter.
- 18 The Catechifme of M. Caluin.
- 19 A brief examination of Children before they be admitted to the lords Table.
- 20 Sundrie fortes of prayers.
- 21 A prayer for Scollers.
- 22 A prayer for labourers.

In small 8vo, Roman letter, containing (1.) twelve introductory leaves, and fignatures A to H, 4 in eights, pp. 117. (2.) Pfalms, fignatures a to z, and A to F in eights, pp. 460, befides four leaves of Tables. (3.) Catechism, fignatures A to I, 6 in eights.

THE FORME OF PRAYERS AND MINISTRA-
TION OF THE SACRAMENTS,
&c. vsed in the English Chrch at Geneua, aproued and receyued by the Chruche of Scotland. Whereunto beydes that was in the former boke, are also added fondrye other prayers, wyth the whole Pfalmes of Dauid in English meter.

THE CONTENTS OF
this boke are contained in the page following.

I. CORINT. III.

No man can lay any other fundacion, then that which is laid, euen Christ Iefus.

Imprimé, pour Henri le Marefchal.

M. D. LXVI.

In 16mo, contains twelve preliminary leaves, (1.) signatures A 2 to G 2. (2.)
Catechism A to N. (3.)- Psalms A 2 to N n, in eights. "The Contents of this boke" are the same as on the opposite page, but they do not correspond with the book itself. See page 280.

THE FORME OF PRAYERS AND MINI-STRATION OF THE SA-cramēts, &c. [v]sed in the English Church at Geneua, and approued by the famous and godlie learned man, John Calvin.
Vvereunto are also added the prayers which thei vse there in the French Church :

Vvith

the Confesion of Faith vvhich al then make that are receiued into the Vniverfitie of Geneua.

The contents of this boke are conteined in the page following.

I. CORINTH. III.

No man can laye any other fundation, then that which is laid, euen Christ Iesus.

PRINTED AT GENEVA
BY ZACHARIE DVRAND.
M. D. LXI.

In 16mo, contains (1.) signatures A to G 2, in eights. (2.) Psalms with separate title, dated M. D. LXI., signatures A to Y, in eights. (3.) Catechism, also with separate title, dated M.D.LXI., signatures A to N 7, in eights. "The contents of this boke" correspond very much with the similar Tables, vol. iv. pp. 154-156.

THE CL.
PSALMES OF DAVID IN ENglish metre.
WITH THE FORME OF

Prayers, and Ministration of the Sacraments &c. vsed in the Churche of Scotland. Whereunto befydes that was in the former bookes, are added also fundrie other Prayers, with a newe & exact Kallender for xvi. yeres next to come.

¶ The contentis of this Booke are specified in the page following after the declaration of the Almanak.

Printed at Edinburgh by Thomas Bassan-dine dwelling at the nether
Bow. 1575.

CVM PRIVILEGIO.

THE CONTENTES OF THE BOKE.

Veni Creator Spiritus.
The Confession of the Christian Faith,	1
Of the Ministers and their election,	11
Of their office and duetie,	12
The maner of electing the Pastors, &c.,	12
Of the Elders, and as touching their office and election,	15
Of the Deacons, and their office and election,	16
Of the Consistorie,	17
Of the wekely assemble of the Ministers, Elders, & Deacons,	18
Interpretation of the Scriptures,	20
The Confession of our sinnes vsed in the Congregation,	20
Another confession and prayer commonly vsed in the Church of Edinburgh, &c.,	22
A Prayer for the whole state of Christes Church,	30
Prayer after the Sermon,	36
Another Prayer,	48
Prayers vsed in the Churches of Scotland in the tyme of their persecution, &c.,	59
A thankesgiuing for our deliuerance,	68
A Prayer vsed at general and particular assemblies,	71
A Prayer to be vsed when God threateneth his iudgements,	75
A Prayer in the tyme of affliction,	81
A Confession of sinnes to be vsed before Sermon,	87
The ordre of Baptisme,	91
The maner of the Lordes Supper,	115
The forme of Mariage,	128
The visitation of the Sicke,	136
Of Buryal,	150
The ordre of the Ecclesiastical discipline,	150
A Prayer for the King,	158
The Psalmes of Dauid,	1
The Lordes Prayer,	498
The X Commandements,	501
The Lamentation of the Sinner,	504
The Catechisme of M. Caluin,	1

In small 8vo, (1.) Kalendar, &c., 12 leaves, and signatures A to K, in eights, pp. 159. (2.) The Psalmes with the Tunes, signatures A to I i, in eights, pp. 512. (3.) The Catechism, signatures A to N n 3, in eights, pp. 192.

THE CONFESSION OF FAITH USED IN THE ENGLISH CONGREGATION AT GENEVA : RECEIVED AND APPROVED BY THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND.

I BELEVE and confesse, my Lord God eternal, infinite, unmeasurable . . . To whome, with the Sonne and the Holie Ghost, be all praise, honour, and glorie, now and ever. So be it.

(See vol. iv. pp. 169-173.)

OF THE MINISTERS AND THEIR ELECTION.

*What things are chiefly required in the Ministers.*¹

Let the Church first diligently consider . . . the people sing a psalme and departe.

(See vol. iv. pp. 174-176.)

OF THE ELDERS, AND AS TOUCHING THEIR OFFICE AND ELECTION.

The Elders must be . . . in chusing the Ministers, as farre fourth as their vocation requireth.

(See vol. iv. p. 176.)

OF THE DEACONS, AND THEIR OFFICE AND ELECTION.

The Deacons must be . . . afore rehearsed in the Ministers and Elders.

(See vol. iv. p. 176.)

We are not ignorant that the Scriptures make mencion of a fourth kinde of Ministers, left to the Church of Christ, which also are verie profitable where time and place do permit.

These Ministers are called Teachers or Doctors . . . in godlie reverence and subjection.

(See vol. iv. p. 177.)

¹ At p. 175, the edit. 1565 reads, "Pastors or Ministers."

THE WEKELIE ASSEMBLIE OF THE MINISTERS, ELDERS, AND DEACONS.

To the intent . . . and amend.

(See vol. iv. pp. 177, 178.)

INTERPRETATION OF THE SCRIPTURES.

Everie weeke . . . before mencioned.

(See vol. iv. pp. 178, 179.)

When the Congregation is assembled at the houre appointed, the Minister useth this Confession, or like in effect, exhorting the people diligently to examine themselves, following in their hearts the tenor of his wordes.

THE CONFESSION OF OUR SINNES.

O Eternal God and moste merciful Father, we confesse, and acknowledge here before thy Divine Majestie . . . worlde without end. So be it.

(See vol. iv. pp. 181, 182.)

AN OTHER CONFESSION AND PRAYER COMMONLY USED IN THE CHURCH OF EDINBURGH, ON THE DAY OF COMMUNE PRAYERS.

O Dreadful and most mightie God, thou that from the beginning hast declared thy selfe a consuming fyre against the contemners of thy most holy precepts : and yet to the penitent sinners hast alwayes shewed thy selfe a favourable Father, and a God full of mercie ; We, thy creatures, and workmanship of thine owne handes, confesse our selves most unworthye to open our eyes unto the heavens, but farre lesse to appeare in thy presence. For our consciences accuse us, and our manifest iniquities have borne witnes against us, that we have declined from thee. We have bene polluted with idolatrie ; we have given thy glorie to creatures ; we have sought support where it was not to be founde, and have lightlyed thy most holesome admonitions. The manifest corruption of our lives in all estates, evidently proveth that we have not rightly regarded thy statutes, lawes, and holy ordinances; and this was not only done, O Lord, in the time of our blindnes, but even now, when of thy mercie thou hast opened unto us an entrance to thine heavenly kingdome by the preaching of thine holy Evangel, the whole body of this miserable Realme stil continueth in their former impietie. For the most parte, alas! following the footsteps of the blynde and obstinate Princesse, utterly despise the light of thyne Evangel, and delyte in ignorance and idolatrie; others lyve as a people without God, and without all feare of thy terrible judgements. And some, O Lord, that in mouth professe thy blessed Evangel, by their selanderous lyfe blaspheme the same. We are not ignorant, O Lord, that thou art a righteous Judge, that cannot suffer iniquitie long to be unpunished upon the obstinate transgressors; especially, O Lord, when that after so long blindnes and horrible defection from thee, so lovingly thou callest us again to thy favour and fellowship, and that yet we do obstinately rebel. We have, O Lord, in our extreme miserie, called unto thee; yea, even when we appeared utterly to have beene consumed in the furie of our enemies, and then didest thou mercifully incline thine eares unto us. Thou foughtest for us even by thine owne power, when in us there was nether wisdom nor force. Thou alone brakest the yoake from our neckes, and set us at libertie, when we by our foolishnes had made our selves slaves unto strangers: and mercifully unto this day hast thou continued with us the light of thine Evangel, and so ceasest not to heape upon us benefites both spiritual and temporal. But yet, alas! O Lord, we clearly see that our great ingratitude craveth farther punishment at thy handes, the signes whereof are evident before our eyes. (.) For the whispering of sedition, the contempt of thy graces offered, and the maintenance of idolatrie, are assured signes of thy farther plagues to fall upon us in particular for our greivous offences. And this unmeasurable untemperatnes of the ayre doeth also threaten thine accustomed plague of famine, which commonly followeth riotous excesse and contempt of the pore, wherewith, alas, the whole earth is replenished. (.)¹ We have nothing, O Lord, that we may lay betwixt us and thy judgement but thyne only mercie, freely offred to us in thy deare Son, our Lord Jesus Christ, purchased to us by his death and passion. For if thou wilt enter in judgement with thy creatures, and keepe in minde our greivous synnes and offences, then can there no flesh escape condemnation. And, therefore, we most humbly beseeche thee, O Father of mercies, for Christ Jesus thy Sonnes sake, to take from us these stony hearts, who so long have heard aswell thy mercies as severe judgements, and yet have not bene effectually moved with the same; and give unto us hearts mollified by thy Spirit, that may both conceive and kepe in mynde the reverence that is due unto thy Majestie. Looke, O Lord, unto thy chosen children labouring under the imperfections of the fleshe, and grant unto us that victorie that thou hast promised unto us by Jesus Christ thy Sonne, our onely Saviour, Mediator, and Lawgiver: To whome, with thee and the Holy Ghost, be all honour and praise, now and ever.

A CONFESSION OF SINNES, AND PETITIONS, MADE UNTO GOD IN THE TYME OF OUR EXTREAME TROUBLES, AND YET COMMONLY USED IN THE CHURCHES OF SCOTLAND, BEFORE THE SERMON.

Eternal and everlasting God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, thou that showest mercy, and kepest covenant with them that love and in reverence kepe thy commandements, even when thou powrest foorth thy hote displeasure and just judgments upon the obstinat inobedient; we here prostrat our selves before the throne of thy Majestie, from our hearts confessing, that justelie thou hast punished us by the tyrannie of strangers, and that more justelie thou mayest bring upon us againe the bondage and yoak which of thy mercy for a season thou hast removed. Our kings, princes, and people in blindnes have refused the word of thyne eternall veritie ; and in so doing, we have refused the league of thy mercy offered to us, in Jesus Christ thy Sonne, which albeit thou now of thy meere mercy hast offered to us againe in such aboundance, that none can be excused by reason of ignorance ; yet not the lesse to the judgement of men, impietie overfloweth the whole face of this realme. For the great multitude delyte them selves in ignorance and idolatrie : and suche, alas ! as appeare to reverence and embrace thy word, do not expresse the fruits of repentance, as it becometh the people, to whome thou hast showed thy selfe, so merciful and favourable. These are thy juste judgements, O Lord, whereby thou punishest sinne by sinne, and man by his owne iniquitie, so that there can be no end of sinne, except thou prevent us with thy undeserved grace. Convert us, therefore, O Lord, and we shall be converted ; suffer not our unthankfulnes to procure of thy most just judgements, that strangers againe impire over us, neither yet that the light of thy Evangel be taken from us. But howsoever it be, that the great multitude be altogether rebellious, and also that in us there remaineth perpetual imperfections, yet for the glory of thine owne Name, and for the glory of thine onely beloved Sonne Jesus Christ, whose veritie and Evangel thou of thy meere mercy hast manifested amongst us : it wil please thee to take us in to thy protection, and in thy defence, that all the worlde may know, that, as of thy meere mercy thou hast begone this worke of our salvation amongst us, so of this same mercy thou wilt continue it. Graunt us this, mercifull Father, for Christ Jesus thy Sonnes sake. So be it.

¹ These clauses included within this (.) may be used, or any of them as occasion serveth. —(Marginal note.)

This done, the people sing a Psalme all together, in a plaine tune : which ended, the Minister prayeth for the assistance of God's holy Spirit, as the same shal move his heart, and so procedeth to the Sermon ; using after the Sermon this prayer following, or suche like.

A PRAYER FOR THE WHOLE STATE OF CHRIST'S CHURCH.

Almightie God, and moste mercifull Father, . . . to whome thou hast committed the sworde.

(See vol. iv. p. 182, to last line of p. 183.)

Especially, O Lord,¹ according to our bounden duetie, we beseeche thee to maintene and increase the noble estate of the Quenes Majestie, and hir² honorable Counsell with all the Estate, and whole bodie of the Communewealth. Let thy Fatherlie favour so preserve her, and thine holie Spirit so governe her heart, that she may in suche sorte execute her office that thy religion may be purely mainteened, maners reformed, and sinne punished according to the precise rule of thine holie Worde.

And for that we be . . . we make our confession, saying,
I BELEVE IN GOD, etc.

(See vol. iv. p. 184, line 9, to p. 185.)

Then the people sing a Psalme, which ended, the Minister pronounceth one of these blessings, and so the Congregation departeth :

THE Lorde blesse us and save us ; the Lorde make his face shine upon us, and be merciful unto us ; the Lorde turne his countenance towarde us, and graunte us his peace.

The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, the love of God, and communion of the holie Ghost, be with us all. So be it.

It shall not be necessarie for the Minister dayly to repeate all these before mentioned . . . after the Sermon, weekly to be observed.

(See vol. iv. p. 186.)

These Prayers that followe are used in the French Church of Geneva. The first serveth for Sunday after the Sermon, and the other that followeth is said upon Wednesday, which is the day of Commune Prayer.

¹ See vol. iv. p. 184, footnote 2.

² In edit. 1575, "the Kinges Majestie, and his."

ANOTHER MANNER OF PRAYER AFTER THE SERMON.

Almightie God and heavenlie Father, since thou hast promised to graunte our requests, which we shal make unto thee in the name of our Lord JESUS CHRIST, thy welbeloved Sonne; and we are also taught by him and his Apostles to assemble our selves in his Name, promising that he wil be among us, and make intercession for us unto thee for the obtaining of all such things as we shal agre upon here in earth; we, therefore (having first thy commandement to praye for such as thou hast appoynted rulers and governours over us, and also for all things nedeful both for thy people, and for al sortes of men, forasmuche as our faith is grounded on thine holie worde and promises, and that we are here gathered together before thy face, and in the name of thy Sonne our Lord Jesus), we, I say, make our earnest supplication unto thee, our moste merciful God and bountiful Father, that for Jesus Christ's sake, our onelie Saviour and Mediator, it would please thee, of thine infinite mercie, freely to pardon our offences, and in suche sorte to drawe and lift up our hearts and affections towards thee, that our requestes may both procede of a fervent minde, and also be agreable unto thy most blessed wil and pleasure, which is onely to be accepted.

(.) We beseche thee, therefore, O heavenlie Father, as touching all princes and rulers unto whome thou hast committed the administration of thy justice, and namely, as touching the excellent estate of the Quenes Majestie, and all her¹ honorable Counsel, with the rest of the magistrates and commons of the realme, that it would please thee to graunte her thine holie Spirit, and increse the same from time to time in her, that she may with a pure faith acknowledge Jesus Christ thine onlie Sonne, our Lord, to be King of all kings, and Governour of all governours, even as thou hast given all power unto him both in heaven and in earth; and so give herselfe wholly to serve him, and to advance his kingdome in her dominions (ruling by thy worde her subjectes, which be thy creatures, and the shepe of thy pasture), that we being mainteined in peace and tranquillitie bothe here and everie where, may serve thee in all holines and vertue; and finally, being delivered from all feare of enemies, may render thankes unto thee all the dayes of our life.

¹ In edit. 1575, "the Kinges Majestie, and all his."

We beseeche thee also, moste deare Father and Saviour, for all suche as thou hast appoynted Ministers unto thy faithful people, and unto whome thou hast committed the charge of soules, and the ministerie of thine holie Gospel, that it would please thee so to guide them with thine holie Spirit, that they may be found faithful and zealous of thy glorie, directing alwaye their whole studies unto this end, that the poore shepe which be gone astray out of the flocke, may be sought out, and brought againe unto the Lord Jesus, who is the chief Shepherd and head of all Bishops, to the intent they may from day to day grow and increase in him unto all righteousness and holines: And, on the other part, that it would please thee to deliver all the Churches from the daunger of ravening wolves, and from hirelings, who seke their owne ambition and profit, and not the setting forth of thy glorie onely, and the safegarde of thy flocke.

Moreover, we make our prayers unto thee, O Lord God, moste merciful Father, for all men in general, that as thou wilt be knowen to be the Saviour of all the worlde by the redemption purchased by thine onely Sonne Jesus Christ; even so that such as have bene hitherto holden captive in darknes and ignorance for lacke of the knowledge of the Gospel, may, through the preaching thereof, and the cleare light of thine holy Spirit, be brought into the right way of salvation, which is to know that thou art onely very God, and that he, whome thou hast sent, is Jesus Christ: likewise, that they whome thou hast already endued with thy grace, and illuminated their hearts with the knowledge of thy worde, may continually in crease in godlines, and be plenteously enriched with spiritual benefites; so that we may altogether worship thee, both with heart and mouthe, and render due honour and service unto Christ our Maister, King, and Lawmaker.

In like maner, O Lord of all true comfort, we commend unto thee in our prayers, all such persones as thou hast visited and chastised by thy crosse and tribulation; all such people as thou hast punished with pestilence, warre, or famine; and all other persons afflicted with povertie, imprisonment, sicknes, banishment, or any like bodilie adversitie, or hast otherwise troubled and afflicted in spirit; that it would please thee to make them perceive thy fatherlie affection towards them; that is, that these crosses be chastisings for their amendment, to the intent that they shulde unfainedly turne unto thee, and so by cleaving unto thee might receive ful comfort, and be delivered from all maner of evil. But especially, we commend unto thy Divine protection, all such which are under the tyrannie of Antichrist, and both lacke this foode of life, and have not libertie to call upon thy Name in open assemblie; chiefly, our poore brethren which are imprisoned and persecuted by the enemies of thy Gospel, that it would please thee, O Father of consolations, to strengthen them by the power of thine holie Spirit, in such sorte as they never shrinke backe, but that they may constantly persevere in thine holy vocation, and so to succour and assist them as thou knowest to be moste expedient, comforting them in their afflictions, mainteining them in thy safegarde against the rage of wolves, and increasing in them the gifts of thy Spirit, that they may glorifie thee their Lord God, both in their life and in their death.

Finally, O Lord God, most deare Father, we beseech thee to graunte unto us also, which are here gathered together in the name of thy Sonne Jesus, to heare his worde preached,¹ that we may acknowledge truly, and without hypocrisie, in how miserable a state of perdition we are in by nature, and how worthely we procure unto our selves everlasting damnacion, heaping up from time to time, thy grievous punishmentes towarde us, through our wicked and sinful life, to the end, that (seing there remaineth no sparke of goodnes in our nature, and that there is nothing in us, as touching our first creation, and that which we receive of our parents, mete to enjoy the heritage of God's kingdome) we may wholly render up our selves with all our hearts, with an assured confidence unto thy dearly beloved Sonne, Jesus our Lord, our onely Saviour and Redeemer, to the intent, that he dwelling in us, may mortifie our olde man, that is to say, our sinfull affections, and that we may be renewed into a more godlie life, whereby thine holie Name (as HALLOWED BE THY NAME. it is worthy of all honour) may be advanced and magnified throughout the worlde, and in all places : likewise, that thou mayest have the tuicion and governance over us, and that we may learne dayly more and more to humble and submit our selves unto thy Majestie, in such sorte, THY KINGDOME COME. that thou mayest be counted King and governour over all, guyding thy people with the sceptre of thy worde, and by the vertue of thine holie Spirite, to the confusion of thine enemies, through the might of thy trueth and righteousnes ; so that by this meanes all power and height which withstandeth thy glorie, may be continually throwen downe and abolished, unto suche time, as the ful and perfect face of thy kingdome shal appeare, when thou shalt shewe thy selfe in judgement in the persone of thy Sonne ; whereby also we, with the rest of thy creatures, may rendre unto thee perfect and true obedience, even as thine heavenly Angels do apply themselves and onely to the performing of thy THY WILL BE DONE. commandements, so that thine onlie wil may be fulfilled without any contradiction, and that every man may bend him self to serve and please thee, renouncing their owne wiles, with all the affections and desires of the flesh. Graunt us also, good Lord, that we, thus walking in the love and dread of thine holie Name, may be GIVE US THIS DAY OUR DAILIE BREAD. nourished through thy goodness, and that we may receive at thine hands, all things expedient and necessarie for us, and so use thy gifte peaceably and quietly, to this end, that when we se that thou hast care of us, we may the more affectuously acknowledge thee to be our Father, loking for all good gifts at thine hand, and by with-drawing and pulling backe all our vaine confidence from creatures, may set it wholly upon thee, and so rest onely in thy moste bountiful mercie. And for so much as whiles we continue here in this transitorie life, we are so miserable, so fraile, and so much enclined unto sinne, that we fall continually and swarve from the right way of thy commandements, we beseech thee pardon us our innumerable offences, whereby we are in danger of thy judgement and condemnation, and forgive us so freely, that death AND FORGIVE US OUR TRESPASSES. and sinne may hereafter have no title against us, neither lay unto our charge the wicked root of sin which doeth ever more remaine in us, but grant that by thy commandment we may forget the wrongs which other do unto us, and in steade of seking vengeance, may procure the wealth of our enemies. And for as much as of our selves, we are so weake, that we are not able to stand upright one minute of an houre, and also that we are so belaid and assalted AND LEAD US NOT INTO TENTATION. evermore with suche a multitude of so dangerous enemies, that the devil, the worlde, sinne, and our owne concupiscences do never leave of to fight against us; let it be thy good pleasure to strengthen us with thy holie Spirit, and to arme us with thy grace, that thereby we may be able constantly to withstand all tentations, and to persevere in this spiritual battel against sinne, until suche time as we shal obtaine the ful victorie, and so at length may triumphantly rejoyce in thy Kingdome, with our captaine and governour Jesus Christ our Lord.

¹ If the Lordes Supper be ministred, then is here added this clause—"And to celebrate his holie Supper."—(Marginal note.)

This Prayer following, is used to be said after the Sermon, on the day which is appointed for commune Prayer : and it is very prope for our state and time, to move us to true repentance, and to turne backe God's sharpe roddes which yet threaten us.

ANOTHER PRAYER.

God Almightye and heavenlie Father, we acknowledge in our consciences, and confesse, as the trueth is, that we are not worthie to lift up our eyes unto heaven, muche lesse mete to come into thy presence, and to be bolde to thinke that thou wilt heare our prayers, if thou have respect to that which is in us ; for our consciences accuse us, and our owne sinnes doe beare witnes against us : yea, and we knowe that thou art a righteous Judge, which doest not counte sinners righteous, but punishest the fautes of such as transgresse thy commandements. Therefore, O Lord, when we consider our whole life, we are confounded in our owne hearts, and can not chuse but be beaten downe, and as it were despaire, even as though we were alreadie swallowed up in the depe goulfe of death. Notwithstanding, moste merciful Lord, since it hath pleased thee of thine infinite mercie, to commande us to call upon thee for helpe, even from the depe botome of hel ; and that the more lacke and defaute we fele in our selves, so muche the rather we shulde have recourse unto thy soveraigne bountie ; since also thou hast promised to heare and accept our requestes and supplications, without having any respect to our worthines, but onely in the Name, and for the merites of our Lord Jesus Christ, whome alone thou hast appointed to be our Intercessor and Advocate ; we humble our selves before thee, renouncing all vaine confidence in man's helpe, and cleave onely to thy mercie, and with ful confidence call upon thine holie name, to obtaine pardon for our sinnes.

First, O Lord, besides the innumerable benefites which thou doest universally bestowe upon all men in earth, thou hast given us such speciall graces, that it is not possible for us to rehearse them, no, nor sufficiently to conceive them in our mindes : As namely, it hath pleased thee to call us to the knowledge of thine holie Gospel, drawing us out of the miserable bondage of the Devill, whose slaves we were, and delivering us from moste cursed idolatrie, and wicked superstition, wherein we were plunged, to bring us into the light of thy trueth. Notwithstanding, such is our obstinacie and unkindnes, that not onely we forget those thy benefites which we have received at thy bountiful hand ; but have gone astray from thee, and have turned our selves from thy law, to goe after our owne concupiscence and lustes, and neither have given worthy honor and due obedience to thine holie worde, neither have advanced thy glorie as our duetie required. And although thou hast not ceased continually to admonish us most faithfullie by thy Worde, yet we have not given eare to thy Fatherlie admonition.

Wherefore, O Lord, we have sinned and have grievously offended against thee, so that shame and confusion apperteineth unto us, and we acknowledge that we are altogether giltie before thy judgement, and that if thou wouldest intreat us according to our demerites, we could look for none other then death and everlasting damnation. For although we wolde go aboute to cleare and excuse our selves, yet our owne conscience wolde accuse us, and our wickednes wolde appeare before thee, to condemne us. And in very dede, O Lord, we see by the corrections which thou hast alreadie used towardses us, that we have given thee great occasion to be displeased with us : for seing that thou art a just and upright Judge, it cannot be without cause that thou punishest thy people. Wherefore, for asmuche as we have felt thy stripes, we acknowledge that we have justly stirred up thy displeasure against us, yea, and yet we se thine hand lifted up to beate us afresh : for the roddes and weapons wherewith thou art accustomed to execute thy vengeance, are alreadie in thine hand ; and the threatnings of thy wrath, which thou usest against the wicked sinners, be in full readines.

Now though thou shuldest punish us much more grievously than thou hast hitherto done, and that, whereas we have received one stripe, thou wouldest give us an hundred: yea, if thou wouldest make the curses of thine Oulde Testament which came then upon thy people Israel, to fall upon us, we confesse that thou shouldest do therein very righteously, and we can not denie but we have fully deserved the same.

Yet Lord, for somuche as thou art our Father, and we be but earth and slyme; seing thou art our Maker, and we the workmanship of thine hands; since thou art our pastor, and we thy flocke; seing also that thou art our Redemer, and we are the people whom thou hast bought; finally, because thou art our God, and we thy chosen heritage, suffer not thine anger so to kindle against us, that thou shouldest punish us in thy wrath, neither remember our wickednes, to the end to take vengeance thereof, but rather chastise us gentlie according to thy mercie.

Trueth it is, O Lord, that our misdeeds have inflamed thy wrath against us, yet considering that we call upon thy Name, and beare thy marke and badge, mainteine rather the worke that thou hast begonne in us by thy free grace, to the ende that all the world may know that thou art our God and Saviour. Thou knowest that suche as be dead in grave, and whom thou hast destroyed and brought to confusion, will not set forthe thy praises; but the heavie soules, and comfortles, the humble hearts, the consciences opprest and loden with the grievous burthen of their sinnes, and therefore thyrst after thy grace, they shal set forthe thy glorie and praise.

Thy people of Israel oftentimes provoked thee to anger through their wickednes, whereupon thou didest, as right required, punish them; but so sone as they acknowledged their offences, and returned to thee, thou didst receive them alwaies to mercie: and were their enormities and sinnes never so grievous, yet for thy covenant's sake, which thou hadst made with thy servants Abraham, Isaak, and Jacob, thou hast alwayes withdrawne from them the roddes and curses which were prepared for them, in suche sort that thou didst never refuse to heare their prayers.

We have obtained by thy goodnes a farre more excellent covenant which we may alledge, that is, the covenant which thou first madest and stablished by the hand of Jesus Christ our Saviour, and was also by thy divine providence written with his blood and sealed with his death and passion.

Therefore, O Lorde, we renouncing our selves, and all vaine confidence in man's helpe, have our only refuge to this thy most blessed covenant, whereby our Lord Jesus, through the offering up of his bodie in sacrifice, hath reconciled us unto thee. Beholde therefore, O Lord, in the face of thy Christ, and not in us, that by his intercession thy wrath may be appeased, and that the bright beames of thy countenance may shine upon us to our great comfort and assured salvation: and from this time forwarde vouchsafe to receive us under thine holy tuicion, and governe us with thine holy Spirit, whereby we may be regenerat anew unto a farre better life:—

So that thy Name may be sanctified: Thy Kingdome come:

Thy Will be done in earth as it is in heaven: Give us this day our daily bread: And forgive us our detts even as we forgive our detters: And lead us not into tentation, but deliver us from evil: For thine is the Kingdome, and the power, and the glorie for ever and ever. Amen.

And albeit we are most unworthie in our owne selves to open our mouthes and to intreat thee in our necessities, yet for as much as it hath pleased thee to commande us to pray one for another, we make our humble prayers unto thee for our poore brethren and membres whome thou doest visit and chastice with thy roddes and correction, moste instantly desiring thee to turne away thine anger from them. Remember, O Lord, we beseche thee, that they are thy children, as we are ; and though they have offended thy Majestie, yet that it would please thee not to cease to procede in thine accustomed bountie and mercie, which thou hast promised shulde evermore continue towards thine elect. Vouchsafe, therefore, good Lord, to extende thy pitie upon all thy Churches, and towards all thy people, whome thou dost now chastise either with pestilence or warre, or such like thine accustomed roddes, whether it be by sicknes, prison, or povertie, or any other affliction of conscience and minde ; that it wolde please thee to comfort them as thou knowest to be most expedient for them, so that thy roddes may be instructions for them to assure them of thy favour, and for their amendement, when thou shalt give them constancie and patience, and also aswage and stay thy corrections, and so at length by delivering them from all their troubles, give them most ample occasion to rejoyce in thy mercie, and to praise thyne holy Name : Chiefly that thou woldest, O Lord, have compassion aswel on all, as on everie one of them, that employ themselves for the maintenance of thy trueth ; strengthen them, O Lord, with an invincible constancie, defend them and assist them in all things and everie where ; overthrow the crafty practises and conspiracies of their enemies and thyne ; bridle their rage, and let their bold enterprises, which they undertake against thee and the membres of thy Sonne, turne to their owne confusion ; and suffer not thy kingdome of Christians to be utterly desolate, neither permit that the remembrance of thine holy Name be cleane abolished in earth, nor that they among whome it hath pleased thee to have thy praises celebrated, be destroyed and brought to nought, and that the Turkes, Paganes, Papistes, and other infidels, might boast themselves thereby, and blaspheme thy Name.¹ (. .)

¹ To this the Minister addeth that parte which is in the former Prayer, marked thus (.), leaf 101 [p. 299].—(Marginal note.)

PRAYERS USED IN THE CHURCHES OF SCOTLAND, IN THE TIME OF THEIR PERSECUTION BY THE FRENCHMEN : BUT PRINCIPALLY
WHEN THE LORDES TABLE WAS TO BE MINISTRED.

Eternal and everlyving God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, we thy creatures, and the workmanship of thine owne hands, sometymes dead by sinne, and thral to Satan by meanes of the same, but now of thy meere mercie called to libertie and life by the preaching of thine Evangel, do take upon us this boldnes (not of our selves, but of the commandement of thy deare Sonne our Lord Jesus Christ) to poure foorth before thee the petitions and complaints of our troubled hearts, oppressed with feare, and wounded with sorrowe. Trewe it is, O Lord, that we are not worthie to appeare in thy presence, by the reason of our manifold offences; neither yet are we worþhie to obtaine any comfort of thy hands, for any righteousnes that is in us. But seing, O Lord, that to turne backe from thee, and not to call for thy support in the time of our trouble, it is the entrance to death, and the plaine way to desperation; we, therefore, confounded in our selves (as the people that on all sydes is assalted with sorrowes), do present our selves before thy Majestie as our soveraygne Capitane and onely Redemer, Jesus Christ, hath commanded us, in whose name and for whose obedience we humbly crave of thee remission of our former iniquities, aswel committed in matters of religion, as in our lyves and conversation. The examples of others that have called unto thee in their like necessities, give unto us esperance that thou wilt not reject us, neither yet suffer us for ever to be confounded. Thy people Israel did oftentimes declayne from thy lawes, and did follow the vanitie of superstition and idolatrie; and oftentimes didst thou correct and sharply punish them, but thou diddest never utterly despise them, when in their miseries unfainedly they turned unto thee. Thy Church of the Jewes were sinners, O Lord, and the most part of the same did consent unto the death of thy dear Sonne our Lord Jesus Christ ; and yet didst not thou despise their prayers, when in the time of their grievous persecution they called for thy support. O Lord, thou hast promised no les to us, then thou hast performed to them, and therefore take we boldness at thine owne commandement, and by the promise of our Lord Jesus Christ, most humbly to crave of thee, that as it hath pleased thy mercie partly to remove our ignorance and blyndnes by the light of thy blessed Evangel, that so it may please thee to continue the same light with us, til that thou deliver us from all calamitie and trouble. And for this purpose, O Lord, it will please thee to thrust out faithful workmen in this thy harvest within this realme of Scotland, to the which, after so long dareknes of Papistrie and superstition, thou hast offered the trueth of thine Evangel in all purenes and simplicitie : continue this thy grace with us, O Lord, and purge this realme from all false teachers, from dumme dogs, dissembled hypocrits, cruel wolves, and all suche as shew themselves enemies to thy true religion.¹ (.)

But now,² O Lord, the dangers which appeare, and the trouble which increaseth by the cruel tyrannie of forsworn straingers, compelleth us to complaine before the throne of thy mercy, and to crave of thee protection and defence against their most unjust persecution. That nation, O Lord, for whose pleasure, and for defence of whome, we have offended thy Majestie, and violated our faith, oft breaking the leagues of unitie and concorde, which our kings and governours have contracted with our neighbours ; that nation, O Lord, for whose aliance our fathers and predicessors have shead their blood, and we (whome now by tyrannie they oppresse) have oft sustained the hasard of battell ; that nation finally, to whom alwayes we have bene faithful, now after their long practised disceit, by manifest tyranny do seke our destruction. Worthely and justly mayst thou, O Lord, give us to be sclaves unto such tyrants, because for the maintenance of their friendship we have not feared to breake our solemned othes made unto others, to the great dishonour of thyne holie Name; and therefore justly mayest thou punish us by the same nation, for whose pleasur we feared not to offende thy divine Majestie. In thy presence, O Lord, we lay for our selves no kynde of excuse; but for thy deare Sonne Jesus Christ's sake, we cry for mercie, pardon, and grace. Thou knowest, O Lord, that their craftie wittes in many things have abused our simplicitie; for under pretence of the maintenance of our libertie, they have sought and have found the way (unles thou alone confound their counsels) to bring us in their perpetuall bondage. And now the rather, O Lord, do they seeke our destruction, because we have refused that Romane Antichrist, whose kingdome they defend in daily sheading the blood of thy Saincts. In us, O Lord, there is no strength, no wisdome, no number nor judgement to withstand their force, their craft, their multitude and diligence; and therefore, looke thou upon us, O LORD, according to thy mercie. Beholde the tyrannie used against our poore brethren and sisters, and have thou respect to that despiteful blasphemie which uncessantly they spewe fourth against thyne eternal trueth?

¹ Here may be added the Prayers for Magistrates as before (.), [p. 299.]—(Marginal note.)

² These Prayers following were first used, when both the Kings of France were lyving.—(Marginal note.)

Thou hast assisted thy Church¹ even from the beginning, and for the deliverance of the same thou hast plagued the cruel persecutors from tyme to tyme. Thy hand drowned Pharao; Thy sword devoured Amelec; Thy power repulsed the pride of Senacherib; And thyne angel so plagued Herod, that wormes and lice were punishers of his pryde. O Lord, thou remaynest one for ever; thy nature is unchangeable, thou canst not but hate crueltie, pride, oppression, and murther, which now the men whom we never offended, pretend against us: Yea further, by all meanes, they seke to banish from this realme, thy deare Sonne our Lord JESUS CHRIST: the true preaching of his worde, and faithful ministers of the same, and by tyranny they pretend to mainteine most abhominable idolatrie, and the pompe of that Romain Antichrist. Loke thou therefore upon us, O Lord, in the multitude of thy mercies: stretch out thine arme, and declare thy self protector of thy trueth: repress the pride, and daunten thou the furie of these cruell persecuters: suffer them never so to prevail against us, that the brightnes of thy word be extinguished in this realme; but whatsoever thou hast appoynted in thyne eternal counsel, to become of our bodies, yet, we most humbly beseche thee for Jesus Christ thy Sonnes sake, so to mainteine the puritie of thyne Evangel within this realme, that we and our posteritie may enjoy the fruition thereof, to the praise and glorie of thyne holie name, and to our everlasting comfort. And this we most affectuously desire of thy mercie, by the merites and intercession of our Lord Jesus Christ; to whom, with Thee and the Holie Ghost, be all honor, glory, prayse, and benediction, now and ever. So be it.

¹ Behold how mercifully God hath broken the yoake of our servitude.—(Marginal note.)

THIS IS ADDED SO OFTE AS THE LORD'S TABLE IS MINISTRED.

Now last, O Lord, we that be here assembled to celebrate the Supper of thy deare Sonne our Lord Jesus Christ, who did not onely once offer his bodie and shed his blood upon the crosse, for our ful redemption, but also to kepe us in recent memorie of that his so great a benefite, provided that his bodie and blood shulde be given to us to the nourishment of our soules. We I say, that presently are convened to be partakers of that his most holy Table, most humbly do beseech thee to grant us grace, that in sinceritie of heart, in true faith, and with ardent and unfained zeale, we may receive of him so great a benefite: to wit, that frutefully we may possesse his bodie and his blood, yea Jesus Christ himselfe, very God and very man, who is that heavenly bread which giveth life unto the worlde. Give us grace, O Father, so to eate his flesh, and so to drink his blood that hereafter we live no more in our selves, and according to our corrupt nature, but that he may live in us, to conduct and guide us to that most blessed lyfe that abydeth for ever. Grant unto us, O heavenly Father, so to celebrate this day the blessed memorie of thy deare Sonne, that we may be assured of thy favour and grace towards us. Let our faith be so exercised, that not onely we may seale the increase of the same; but also that the cleare confession thereof, with the good workes proceeding of it, may appeare before men, to the praise and glory of thyne holie name, which art God everlasting, blessed for ever. So be it.

A THANKSGIVING UNTO GOD AFTER OUR DELIVERANCE FROM THE TYRANNY OF THE FRENCHMEN; WITH PRAYERS MADE FOR THE CONTINUANCE OF THE PEACE BETWIXT THE REALMES OF ENGLAND AND SCOTLAND.

Now, Lord, seing that we enjoye comfort both in bodie and spirite, by reason of this quietnes of thy mercie graunted unto us, after our moste desperate troubles, in the which we appeared utterlie to have bene overwhelmed; we praise and glorifie thy mercie and goodnes, who piteously loked upon us when we in our owne selves were utterlie confounded. But seing, O Lord, that to receive benefites at thy hands, and not to be thankful for the same, is nothing else but a seale against us in the day of judgement; we most humbly beseche thee to graunt unto us hearts so mindefull of the calamities past, that we continually may feare to provoke thy justice to punish us with the like or worse plagues. And seeing that when we by our owne power were altogether unable to have freed our selves from the tyranny of strangers, and from the bondage and thraldome pretended against us, Thou of thyne especiall goodnes didst move the hearts of our neighbours (of whom we had deserved no such favour) to take upon them the common burthen with us, and for our deliverance not only to spend the lives of many, but also to hazarde the estate and tranquillity of their Realme and common wealth: Grant unto us, O Lord, that with such reverence we may remember thy benefits received, that after this in our defeate we never enter into hostilitie against the Realme and nation of England. Suffer us never, O Lord, to fall to that ingratitude and detestable unthankfulnes, that we should seke the destruction and death of those whom thou hast made instruments to deliver us from the tyranny of mercyles strangers. Dissipat thou the counceles of such as deceitfully travel to stirre the hearts of the inhabitants of either Realme against the other. Let their malicious practises be their owne confusion: and graunt thou of thy mercy, that love, concorde, and tranquillitie may continue and increase amongst the inhabitants of this yle, even to the comming of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whose glorious Evangel, thou of thy mercie dost cal us both to unitie, peace, and Christian concord; the ful perfection whereof we shal possesse in the fulnes of thy Kingdome, when all offences shalbe removed, iniquitie shalbe suppressed, and thy chosen children be fully endued with that perfect glorie, in the which now our Lord Jesus reigneth: to whome, with Thee and the Holy Ghost, be all honour, praise, and glorie, now and ever. So be it.

A PRAYER USED IN THE ASSEMBLIES OF THE CHURCH, ASWEL PARTICULAR AS GENERAL.

Eternal and everliving God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, thou that of thyne infinite goodnes hast chosen to thy self a Church, unto the which ever from the fal of man thou hast manifested thy self: first, by thine owne voyce to Adam; next to Abraham and his sede, then to all Israel, by the publication of thy holy law; and last, by sending of thy onely Sonne, our Lord Jesus Christ, that great Angel of thy Councel, into this worlde, and clad with our nature, to teach unto us thy holie wil, and to put an end to all revelations and prophecies; who also elected to himselfe Apostles, to whom, after his Resurrection he gave commandement to publish and preache his Evangel to all realmes and nations; promising to be with them even to the end of the worlde; yea, and moreover, that wheresoever two or three were gathered together in his Name, that he wold be there in the midst of them, not onely to instruct and teache them, but also to ratifie and confirme suche things as they shal pronounce or decree by thy Worde.

Seing, O Lord, that this hath bene thy love and fatherly care towards thy Church, that not onely thou plantedst it, rules and guydes the chosen in the same by thyne holy Spirite and blessed Worde; but also, that when the external face of the same is polluted, and the visible bodie falleth to corruption, then thou of thy mercies, providest that it may be purged and restored againe to the former puritie, aswel in doctrine as in maners: whereof thou hast given sufficient document from age to age; but especially now, O Lord, after this publike defection from thy trueth and blessed ordinance, which our Fathers and we have sene in that Romaine Antichrist, and in his usurped authoritie: Now (I meane) O Lord, thou hast reveiled thy selfe and thy beloved Sonne Jesus Christ, clearly to the world againe, by the true preaching of his blessed Evangel, which also of thy mercy is offered unto us within this Realme of Scotland; and of the same thy mercie hast made us Ministers, and burthened us with a charge within thy Church.

But, O Lord, when we consider the multitude of enemies, that oppone themselves unto thy trueth, the practises of Satan, and the power of those that resist thy kingdome, together with our owne weaknes, fewe number, and manifold imperfections; we cannot but feare the sudden way-taking of this thy great benefite: and therefore, destitute of all worldely comfort, we have refuge to thine onely mercie and grace, most humbly beseeching thee for Christ Jesus thy Sonnes sake, to oppone thine owne power to the pride of our enemies, who cease not to blaspheme thyne eternal trueth.

Give unto us, O Lord, that presentlie are assembled in thy Name, such aboundance of thy holy Spirit, that we may see those things that shall be expedient for the advancement of thy glory, in the midst of this perverse and stubburne generation. Give us grace, O Lord, that universally amongst our selves, we may agree in the unitie of true doctrine. Preserve us from damnable errors, and graunt unto us such puritie and cleanness of life, that we be not sclanderous to thy blessed Evangel. Blesse thou so our weake labours, that the fruites of the same may redound to the praise of thy holy Name, to the profite of this present generation, and of the posteritie to come, through Jesus Christ our Lord; to whome, with Thee and the Holy Ghost, be all honor and praise, now and ever. So be it.

THE ORDER OF BAPTISME.

First note, that forasmuch as it is not permitted by Gods Worde that Women shulde preache or minister the Sacraments, and it is evident, that the Sacraments are not ordeined of God to be used in private corners, as charmes, or sorceries, but left to the Congregation, and necessarilie annexed to Gods Worde, as seales of the same; Therefore, the Infant which is to be baptized shal be brought to the Church, on the day appointed to common prayer and preaching, accompanied with the Father and Godfather, so that after the Sermon, the Child being presented to the Minister, he demandeth this Question.¹

Do you present this childe. . . . and will instruct this childe.

(See vol. iv. pp. 187-190.)

¹ The transgression of God's ordinance is called Iniquitie and Idolatrie, and is compared to Witchcraft and Sorcerie. 1 Sam. 15.

How dangerous also it is, to enterprize any thing rashely, or without the warrant of God's worde, the examples of Saul, Oze, Ozias, Nadab, and Abihu, ought sufficiently to warne us.—1 Sam. 13; 2 Sam. 6; 2 Chro. 25; Levi. 10; Numb. 3.—(Marginal note.)

Then the Father (or in his absence the Godfather) shall rehearse the Articles of his Faith : which done, the Minister expoundeth the same as after followeth.

ANE EXPOSITION OF THE CREED.

The Christian faith whereof now ye have briefly heard the somme, is commonly divided in twelve Articles : but that we may the better understand what is contained in the same, we shal divide it into foure principal partes. The first shall concerne God the Father, The second, Jesus Christ our Lord. The third shal expresse to us our faith in the Holy Ghost. And the fourth and last, shal declare what is our faith concerning the Church, and of the graces of God freely given to the same.

First, of God we confesse three things, to wit, that he is our Father, Almightye, maker of heaven and earth.

Our Father we call him, and so by faith beleve him to be, not so muche, because he hath created us (for that we have common with the rest of

I BELEEVE IN GOD THE FATHER
ALMIGHTIE MAK-ER OF HEAVEN AND EARTH.

creatures, who yet are not called to that honour to have God to them a favourable Father;) but we call him Father, by reason of his free adoption, by the which he hath chosen us to lyf everlasting in Jesus Christ. And this his most singular mercie we preferre to all things, earthly and transitorie: for without this there is to mankind no felicitie, no comfort, nor finall joy; and having this we are assured that by the same love by the which he once hath freely chosen us, he shall conduct the whole course of our life, that in the end we shal possesse that immortall kingdome that he hath prepared for his chosen children. For from this fountein of God's free mercie or adoption, springeth our vocation, our justification, our continual sanctification, and finally, our glorification: as witnesseth the Apostle.¹

The same God our Father we confesse Almightye, not only in respect of that he may do, but in consideration that by his power and godly wysedome are all creatures in heaven and earth, and under the earth, ruled, gnyded, and kept in that order that his eternal knowledge and wil hath appointed them.

¹ Rom. 8.

And that is it which in the third part we do confesse, that he is Creator of heaven and earth: that is to saye, that the heaven and the earth, and the contents thereof, are so in his hand, that there is nothing done without his knowledge, neither yet against his wil, but that he ruleth them so, that in the end his godly Name shalbe gloryfied in them. And so we confesse and beleeve, that nether the devils, nor yet the wicked of the world, have any power to molest or trouble the chosen children of God, but in so farre as it pleaseth him to use them as instruments, ether to prove and trye our faith and patience, or else to stirre us to more fervent invocation of his Name, and to continual meditation of that heavenly rest and joye that abideth us after these transitorye troubles. And yet shall not this excuse the wicked, because they never loke in their iniquitie to please God, nor yet to obey his wil.

In JESUS CHRIST we confesse two distinct and perfect natures:
AND IN JESUS CHRIST HIS ONLY SONNE OUR LORD. to wit, the eternal Godhead and the perfect Manhood joyned together: so that we confesse and beleve, that that eternal Worde, which was from the begynning, and by the which all things were created, and yet are conserved and kept in their being, did, in the time appointed in the counsel of his heavenly Father, receive our nature of a Virgine, by operation of the holie Ghost. So that in his CONCEIVED BY THE HOLY GHOST. conception, we acknowledge and beleve that there is nothing but puritie and sanctification; yea, even in somuche as he is become our brother. For it behoved him that shuld purge others from their sinnes, to be pure and clene from all spot of sinne, even from his conception. And BORNE OF THE VIRGIN MARY. as we confesse and beleve him conceived by the holy Ghost, so do we confesse and beleve him to be borne of a Virgine named Mary, of the tribe of Juda, and of the familie of David;¹ that the promise of God and the prophetic might be fulfilled, to wit, "That the seede of the woman shulde breake downe the Serpent's head," and "that a Virgine shuld conceive and beare a childe, whose name shuld be Emmanuel, that is to say, God with us." The name Jesus, which signifieth a Saviour, was given unto him by the Angel, to assure us that it is he alone that saveth his people from their sinnes. He is called Christ, that is to say, Anoynted, by reason of the offices given unto him by God his Father; to wit, that he alone is appointed King, Priest, and Prophet. King, in that, that all power is given to him in heaven and earth; so that there is none other but he in heaven nor earth, that hath just authority and power to make lawes to bynd the consciences of men; neither yet is there any other that may defend our soules from the bondage of sinne, nor yet our bodies from the tyranny of man. And this he doeth by the power of his worde, by the which he draweth us out of the bondage and slavery of Satan, and maketh us to reigne over sinne; whils that we lyve and serve our God in righteousnesse and holynes of our life. A Priest, and that perpetual and everlasting, we confesse him, by reason that by the sacrifice of his own body, which he once offered up upon the crosse, he hath fullie satisfied the justice of his Father in our behalf: so that whosoever seketh any meanes besides his death and passion, in heaven or in earth, to reconcile unto them God's favour, they do not onely blaspheme, but also, so farre as in them is, renounce the fruit and efficacie of that his onely one sacrifice. We confesse him to be the onely Prophet, who hath reveiled unto us, the whole will of his Father in all things pertaining to our salvation.

This our Lord Jesus we confesse to be the onlie Sonne of God, because there is none such by nature but he alone. We confesse him also our Lord, not only by reason we are his creatures, but chiefly because he hath redeemed us by his precious blood, and so hath gotten just dominion over us, as over the people whom he hath delivered from bondage of sinne, death, hel, and the devil, and hath made us Kings and Priests to God his Father.

¹ Fruf. 3. f(?); Isa. 7. e; Mat. 1. d.

We farther confesse and beleve, that the same our Lord Jesus was accused before an earthly judge, Pontius Pilate, under whome albeit oft and divers times he was pronounced to be innocent, he suffered the death of the crosse, hanged upon a tree betwixt two theves. Which death, as it was most cruel and vile before the eyes of men, so was it accursed by the mouth of God himselfe, saying, "Cursed is everie one that hangeth on a tree." And this kynde of death sustained he in our person, because he was appointed of God his Father to be our pledge, and he that shuld beare the punishment of our transgressions. And so we acknowledge and beleve that he hath taken away that curse and malediction that hanged on us by reason of sinne. He verely died, rendring up his spirit into the hands of his Father, after that he had said, "Father into thy hands I commend my spirit." After his death,

DIED AND WAS BURIED, AND DE-SCENDED INTO HEL.

we confesse his body was buried, and that he descended to the hel. But because he was the Author of life, yea, the very lyfe itself, it was impossible that he shulde be retained under the dolors of death; and

THE THIRD DAY
HE ROSE AGAYNE
FROM THE DEAD.

therefore the third day he rose agayn victor and conqueror of death and hel; by the which his resurrection, he hath brought life agayne into the world, which he, by the power of his Holie Spirit, communicateth unto his lyvely membres; so that now unto them corporal death is no death, but an entrance into that blessed life, wherein our head, Jesus Christ, is now entred. For after that he had suffi-

HE ASCENDED IN-TO HEAVEN, AND SITTETH ON THE RIGHT HAND OF
GOD THE FATHER
ALMIGHTIE.

ciently proven his resurrection to his disciples, and unto suche as constantly did abide with him to the death, he visiblie ascended to the heavens, and was taken from the eyes of men, and placed at the right hand of God the Father Almighty, where presently he remaneth in his glory, onely Head, onely Mediator, and onely Advocate for all the members of his body: of which we have most especial comfort. First for that by his ascension the heavens are opened unto us, and an entrance made unto us, that boldly we may appeare before the throne of our Father's mercie. And, secondarylye, that we know that this honor and authoritie is given unto Jesus Christ, our head, in our name, and for our profite and utilitie. For albeit that in body he now be in the heaven, yet by the power of his Spirit he is present here with us, aswel to instruct us, as to comfort and mainteine us in all our troubles and adversiteis. From the which he shal finally deliver his whole Church, and every true member of the same, in that day when he shal visibly appeare agayn, Judge of the quicke and the dead.

For this finally we confesse of our Lord Jesus Christ, that as he was seene visibly to ascend, and so left the world, as touching that body that suffred and rose agayn; so do we constantly beleve that he shal come from the right hand of his Father, when all eyes shall see him; yea, even those that have pearced him; and then shall be gathered aswel those that then shall be

FROM THENCE HE SHAL COME TO JUDGE BOTH THE QUICKE AND THE DEAD.

found alive, as those that before have slept.¹ Separation shalbe made betwixt the lambes and the goates; that is to say, betwixt the elect and the reprobate. The one shal heare this joyful voice, "Come ye the blessed of my Father, possesse the kingdome that is prepared for you before the beginning of the worlde." The other shal heare that feareful and irrevocable sentence, "Depart from me, ye workers of iniquitie, to the fyre that never shalbe quenched." And for this cause, this day in the Scriptures is called "the day of refreshing," and "of the revelation of all secrets," because that then the just shall be delivered from all miseris, and shalbe possessed in the fulnes of their glory. Contrarywise, the reprobate shal receive judgement, and recompence of all their impietie, be it openly or secretly wrought.

¹ Matt. 25.

As we constantly beleve in God the Father, and in Jesus Christ, as before is said; so do we assuredly beleve in the Holy Ghost, whome we confesse God equal with the Father and the Sonne; by whose working and mightie operation our darkenes is removed, our eyes spiritual are illuminated, our soules and consciences sprinkled with the blood of Jesus Christ, and we retayned in the trueth of God, even to our lyves end. And for these causes, we understand that this eternal Spirit proceding from the Father and the Sonne, hath in the Scriptures divers names. Sometymes called water, by reason of his purgation, and giving strength to this our corrupt nature to bring foorth good fruite; without whome this our nature shuld utterly be barren, yea, it shuld utterly abound in all wickednes. Sometimes the same Spirit is called fyre, by reason of the illumination and burning heate of fyre that he kindleth in our hearts. The same Spirit also is called oyle, or unction, by reason that his working mollyfieth the hardnes of our hearts, and maketh us receive the print of that image of Jesus Christ, by whome onely we are sanctified.

We constantly beleve, that there is, was, and shalbe, even till the comming of the Lord Jesus, a Church, which is holy and universal; to wit, the Communion of Sainctes. This Church is holy, because it receaveth free remission of sinnes, and that by faith only in the blood of Jesus Christ. Secondly, because it being regenerat, it receiveth the Spirit of sanctification and power to walke in newnes of lyfe, and in good workes, which God hath prepared for his chosen to walk in. Not that we think the justice of this Church, or of any member of the same, ever was, is, or yet shal be so ful and perfect, that it nedeth not to stoupe under mercie; but that because the imperfections are pardoned, and the justice of Jesus Christ imputed unto such as by true faith cleave unto him. Which Church we cal Universal, because it consisteth and standeth of all tongues and nations; yea, of all estates and conditions of men and women, whome of his mercy God calleth from darknes to lyfe, and from the bondage and thraldome of synne to his spiritual service and puritie of life. Unto whome also he communicateth his Holy Spirit, giving unto them one faith, one head and soveraygne Lord, the Lord Jesus, one Baptisme and right use of Sacraments; whose hearts also he knitteth together in love and Christian concorde.

To this Church, holy and universal, we acknowledge and beleve three notable gifts to be graunted; to wit, THE FORGIVENES OF SINNES. remission of sinnes, which by true faith must be obtained in this lyfe. Resurrection of the flesh, which all shall have, albeit not in equal condition: for the reprobate (as before is sayd) shall rise but to feareful THE RESURRECTION OF THE BODY, judgement and condemnation; and the just shall rise to be possessed in glory. And this resurrection shall not be an imagination, or that one body shall ryse for another; but every man shall receive in his owne bodie as he hath deserved, be it good or evel. The juste shall receive the life everlasting, which is the free gift of God given and AND THE LIFE EVERLASTING. purchased to his chosen by Jesus Christ, our onely Head and Mediator: to whome with the Father and the Holy Ghost, be all honor and glory, now and ever.

Then followeth this Prayer.

Almightie and everlasting God, which of thine infinite . . . In whose Name we pray, as he hath taught us: Our Father, etc.

(See vol. iv. p. 190.)

When they have prayed in this sorte, the Minister requireth the childe name, which knowen, he saith,

N. I Baptise thee in the Name of the Father, of the Sonne, and of the Holie Ghost.

And as he speaketh these wordes, he taketh water in his hand, and layeth it upon the childes forehead; which done, he giveth thanks, as followeth:

Forasmuche, most holie and merciful Father, as . . . libertie of thy kingdome. So be it.

(See vol. iv. p. 191.)

THE MANER OF THE LORDS SUPPER.

The day when the Lord's Supper is ministred, which communely is used once a moneth, or so oft as the Congregation shal think expedient, the Minister useth to saye as followeth.

Let us marke, deare Brethren . . . and sundrie kindes of death.

(See vol. iv. pp. 191-193.)

And therefore, in the Name and authoritie of the eternal God, and of his sonne Jesus Christ, I excommunicate from this Table, all blasphemers of God, all idolaters,¹ all murtherers, all adulterers, all that be in malice or envie, all disobedient persons to father or mother, princes or magistrates, pastors or preachers, all theves, and disceivers of their neighbours; and finally, all suche as lyve a lyfe directly fighting against the wil of God: charging them as they wil aunswer in the presence of Him who is the righteous judge, that they presume not to prophane this most holy Table. And yet this I pronounce not to seclude any penitent person how grievous that ever his sinnes before have bene, so that he feele in his heart unfained² repentance for the same; but only such as continue in sinne without repentance. Neither yet is this pronounced against suche as aspire to a greater perfection, then they can in this present life attayne unto.

For albeit we fele . . . all praise, honor and glorie, now and ever. Amen.

(See vol. iv. pp. 193-194.)

¹ Gal. 7.

² Matt. 3.

The exhortation ended, the Minister commeth down from the pulpit, and sitteth at the Table, every man and woman in likewise taking their place as occasion best serveth : then he taketh bread and giveth thanks, either in these wordes following, or like in effect.

O Father of mercie, and God of all consolation, . . . render all thankes, praise, and glorie, for ever and ever.

(See vol. iv. pp. 194-196.)

This done, the Minister breaketh the bread, and delivereth it to the people, who distribute and divide the same among themselves, according to our Saviour Christ's commandement,¹ and likewise giveth the cuppe. During the which time, some place of the Scriptures is read, which doeth lively set forth the death of Christ,² to the intent that our eyes and senses may not onely be occupied in these outwarde signes of bread and wyne, which are called the visible word ; but that our hearts and mindes also may be fully fixed in the contemplation of the Lord's death, which is by this holie Sacrament represented. And after the action is done, he giveth thankes, saying :

Moste merciful Father, we render to thee all praise, thankes and glorie, for that it hath pleased thee of thy great mercies to graunt unto us miserable sinners, so excellent a gift and treasure, as to receive us into the³ fellowship and companie of thy deare Sonne Jesus Christ our Lord, whome thou hast⁴ delivered to death for us, and hast given him unto us, as a necessarie⁵ foode and nourishment unto everlasting life. And now we beseeche thee also, O heavenly Father, to grant us this request, that thou never suffer us to become so unkinde as to forget so worthe benefites, but rather imprint and fasten them sure in our hearts, that we may growe and increase daily more and more in true faith, which continuallie is⁶ exercised in all manner of good workes ; and so muche the rather, O Lord, confirme us in these⁷ perillous dayes and rages of Satan, that we may con-

¹ Mat. 26 ; Mar. 14 ; Luc. 22.

⁵ John 6.

² 1 Cor. 10 ; 1 Cor. 11 ; Job. 13, 14.

⁶ Luc. 17 ; Gal. 5.

³ 1 Cor. 10.

⁷ 1 Tim. 4 ; Ephe. 5 ; 2 Pet. 3.

⁴ Rom. 4.

stantlie stand and continue in the confession of the same, to the advancement of thy¹ glorie, which art God over all things, blessed for ever. So be it.

The action thus ended, the people sing the 103 Psalme, "My soule, give laude," &c., or some other of thanksgiving : which ended, one of the blessings before mencioned, is recited, and so they rise from the Table, and departe.

TO THE READER.

If so be that any wolde mervel why we follow rather this Order,² then any other in the Administration of this Sacrament, let him diligently consider, that first of all we utterly renounce the error of the Papistes : secondly, we restore unto the Sacrament his owne substance, and to Christ his propre place. And as for the wordes of the Lord's Supper, we rehearse them, not because they shulde change the substance of the bread or wine, or that the repetition thereof, with the intent of the sacrificer, shulde make the Sacrament (as the Papistes falsely beleeve) but they are red and pronounced, to teach us how to behave ourselves in that action,³ and that Christ might wisse unto our faith, as it were with his own mouth, that he hath ordained these signes to our spirituall use and comfort : We do first therefore examine our selves, according to Saint Paul's rule, and prepare our mindes, that we may be worthy partakers of so high mysteries. Then taking bread, we give thankes, breake and distribute it, as Christ our Saviour hath taught us. Finally, the ministration ended, we give thankes againe, according to his example : So that without his worde and warrant, there is nothing in this holie action attempted.

THE FORME OF MARIAGE.

After the Bannes or Contract hath beene published three severall dayes in the Congregation (to the intent that if anie person have interest or title to either of the parties, they may have sufficient time to make their chalenge,) the parties assemble at the beginning of the Sermon, and the Minister, at time convenient, sayeth as followeth.

¹ Mat. 5 ; 1 Pet. 2.

² Why this order is observed rather then any other.—(Marg. note.)

³ Mat. 20 ; 1 Cor. 11 ; Luc. 22.

OF MARRIAGE.—THE EXHORTATION.

Dearlie beloved Brethren, we are here gathered . . . as God's worde doeth appoint.

(See vol. iv. p. 198-202.)

Then the Minister commendeth them to God, in this or suche like sorte :—

The Lord sanctifie and blesse you ! the Lord powre the richesse of his grace upon you, that ye may please him, and live together in holy love to your lives end ! So be it.

Then is sung the 128 Psalme, “ Blessed are they that feare the Lord,” &c., or some other, appertaining to the same purpose.

THE VISITATION OF THE SICKE.

Because the Visitation of the Sicke is a thing verie necessarie, . . . commendeth him in the publike prayers to the Congregation.

(See vol. iv. p. 202.)

A PRAYER TO BE SAID IN VISITING OF THE SICKE.

O our good God, Lord and Father, the Creator and conserver of all things, the fountaine of all goodnes and benignitie, like as (among other thine infinite benefites which thou of thy great goodnes and grace doest distribute ordinarily unto all men) thou givest them health of bodie, to the end that they shulde the better knowe thy great liberalitie, so that they might be the more ready to serve and glorifie thee with the same : So contrariwise, when we have il behaved ourselves in offending thy Majestie, thou hast accustomed to admonish us, and call us unto thee by divers and sundry chastisements, through the which it hath pleased thy goodnes to subdue and tame our fraile flesh : but especially by the grievous plagues of sicknes and diseases, using the same as a meane to awake and stirre up the great dulnes and negligence that is in us all, and advertising us of our evil life by such infirmities and dangers, especially when as they threaten the very death ; which (as assured messengers of the same) are all to the flesh ful of extreme anguish and torments, although they be, notwithstanding, to the spirit of the elect as medicines bothe good and wholesome ; for by them thou doest move us to returne unto thee for our salvation, and to cal upon thee in our afflictions, to have thine helpe, which art our deare and loving Father.

In consideration whereof, we most earnestly praye unto thee our good God, that it wolde please thine infinite goodnes to have pitie on this thy poore creature, whome thou hast, as it were, bound and tyed to the bed by most grievous sickenes, and brought to great extremitie by the heavines of thine hand.

O Lord ! enter not into a compt with him, to render the rewarde due unto his workes ; but throw thine infinite mercy remitte all his faultes, for the which thou hast chastised him so gently, and beholde rather the obedience which thy deare Sonne Jésus Christ our Lorde hath rendred unto thee ; to wit, the sacrifice which it pleased thee to accept as a full recompense for all the iniquities of them that receive him for their justice and sanctification, yea, for their onelie Saviour.

Let it please thee, O God ! to give him a true zeale and affection to receive and acknowledge him for his onlie Redeemer ; to the end also that thou mayest receive this sicke person to thy mercie, qualifying al the troubles which his sinnes, the horror of death and dreadful feare of the same, may bring to his weake conscience. Neither suffer thou, O Lord, the assautes of the mightie adversarie to prevaile, or to take from him the comfortable hope of salvation, which thou givest to thy dearely beloved children.

And forasmuche as we are all subject to the like state and condition, and to be visited with like battel when it shal please thee to call us unto the same ; we beseech thee most humbly, O Lord, with this thy poore creature whome thou now presently chastisest, that thou wilt not extend thy rigorous judgment against him, but that thou wouldest vouchsafe to shewe him thy mercie, for the love of thy deare Sonne, Jesus Christ our Lord : who, having suffered the moste shameful and extreame death of the crosse, bare willingly the faute of this poore patient, to the end that thou mightest acknowledge him as one redeemed with his precious blood, and received into the communion of his body, to be participant of eternal felicitie in the companie of thy blessed Angels. Wherefore, O Lord, dispose and move his heart to receive by thy grace, with all mekenes, this gentle and fatherlie correction which thou hast layed upon him ; that he may indure it patiently, and with willing obedience, submitting himself with heart and minde to thy blessed wil and favourable mercie, wherein thou now visitest him after this sorte for his profit and salvation. It may please thy goodnes, O Lord! to assist him in all his anguishes and troubles : and although the tongue and voice be not able to execute their office in this behalf to set foorthe thy glorie, that yet at least thou wilt stirre up his heart to aspire unto thee onely, which art the onelie fountaine of goodnes ; and that thou fast roote and settle in his heart the swete promises which thou hast made unto us, in Christ Jesus, thy Sonne our Saviour, to the intent he may remaine constant against all the assautes and tumultes which the enemie of our salvation may raise up to trouble his conscience.

And seing it hath pleased thee, that, by the death of thy dear Sonne, life eternal shuld be communicated unto us, and by the shedding of his blood the washing of our sinnes shulde be declared, and that by his Resurrection also, both justice and immortallitie shulde be given us ; it may please thee to applie this holie and wholesome medicine to this thy poore creature in such extremitie, taking from him all trembling and dreadful feare, and to give him a stoute courage in the middes of all his present adversiteis.

And forasmuche as all things, O heavenly Father, be knowne unto thee, and thou canst, according to thy good pleasure, minister unto him all suche things as shal be necessarie and expedient; let it please thee, O Lord, so to satisfie him by thy grace, as may seme most mete unto thy Divine Majestie.

Receive him, Lord, into thy protection, for he hath his recourse and accesse to thee alone; and make him constant and firme in thy commandements and promises: and also pardon all his sinnes, both secret and those which are manifest; by the which he hath moste grievously provoked thy wrath and severe judgements against him; so as in place of death (the which both he and all we have justly merited), thou wilt graunt unto him that blessed life, which we also attend and loke for by thy grace and mercie.

Nevertheles, O heavenly Father, if thy good pleasure be that he shal yet live longer in this worlde, it may then please thee to augment in him thy graces, so as the same may serve unto thy glorie: yea, Lord, to the intent he may conforme himself the more diligently, and with more carefulnes, to the example of thy Sonne Christ Jesus; and that in renouncing him self, he may cleave fully unto him, who, to give consolacion and hope unto all sinners, to obtaine remission of all their sinnes and offences, hath caried with him into the heavens the theefe which was crucified with him upon the crosse.

But if the time by thee appoynted be come, that he shall departe from us unto thee, make him to feele in his conscience, O Lord, the frute and strength of thy grace; that thereby he may have a new taste of thy fatherlie care over him from the beginning of his life unto the very end of the same, for the love of thy deare Sonne Jesus Christ our Lord.

Give him thy grace, that with a good heart, and full assurance of faith, he may receive to his consolation so great and excellent a treasure: to wit, the remission of his sinnes in Christ Jesus thy Sonne, who now presenteth him to this poore persone in distres, by the vertue of thy promises reveiled unto him by thy worde, which he hath exercised with us in thy Church and congregation, and also in using the Sacraments, which thou therein hast established for confirmation of all their faith that trust in thee unfainedly.

Let true faith, O Lord, be unto him as a most sure buckler, thereby to avoyde the assautes of death, and more boldely walke for the advancement of eternal life; to the end that he, having a most livelie apprehension thereof, may rejoyce with thee in the heavens eternally.

Let him be under thy protection and governance, O heavenly Father; and although he be sicke, yet thou canst heale him; he is cast downe, but thou canst lift him up; he is sore troubled, but thou canst send redresse; he is weak, thou canst send strength he acknowledgeth his uncleannes, his spots, his filthines, and iniquities, but thou canst wash him and make him cleane: he is wounded, but thou canst minister most soveraigne salves; he is fearful and trembling, but thou canst give him good courage and boldnes: To be short, he is, as it were utterly lost, and as a strayed shepe; but thou canst cal him home to thee againe. Wherefore, O Lord, seeing that this poore creature (thine owne workmanship) resigneth himself wholly into thy hands, receive him into thy merciful protection. Also we poore miserable creatures, which are, as it were, in the field, ready to fight till thou withdraw us from the same, vouchesafe to strengthen us by thine Holie Spirit, that we may obtaine the victorie in thy name against our deadlie and mortal enemie; and furthermore, that the affliction and the combat of this thy poore creature in most grievous torments, may move us to humble ourselves with all reverent feare and trembling under thy mightie hand, knowing that we must appeare before thy judgement seat, when it shal please thee so to appoint. But, O Lord, the corruption of our fraile nature is such, that we are utterly destitute of any meane to appeare before thee, except it please thee to make us suche as thou thy self requirest us to be ; and further, that thou give us the spirit of meeknes and humilitie, to rest and stay wholly on those things which thou onely commandest.

But forasmuche as we be all together unworthy to enjoy such benefites, we beseche thee to receive us in the name of thy deare Sonne our Lord and Master, in whose death and satisfaction standeth wholly the hope of our salvation.

It may also please thee, O Father of comfort and consolation, to strengthen with thy grace those which imploy their travel and diligence to the ayding of this sicke persone, that they faint not by overmuch and continual labour, but rather to go heartilie and cherefully forward in doing their indevours towardes him : and if thou take him from them, then of thy goodnes to comfort them, so as they may patiently beare suche departing, and prayse thy Name in all things. Also, O heavenly Father, vouchesafe to have pitie on all other sicke persons, and such as be by any other wayes or means afflicted, and also on those who as yet are ignorant of thy trueth, and apperteine nevertheless unto thy kingdome.

In like manner on those that suffer persecution, tormented in prison, or otherwise troubled by the enemies of the veritie, for bearing testimonie to the same. Finally, on all the necessities of thy people, and upon all the ruins or decayes which Satan hath brought upon thy Church. O Father of mercy ! spread forth thy goodnes upon all those that be thine ; that we, forsaking our selves may be the more inflamed and confirmed, to rest onely upon thee alone. Graunt these our requestes, O our deare Father, for the love of thy deare Sonne our Saviour Jesus Christ ; who liveth and reigneth with thee in unitie of the Holy Ghost, true God, for evermore.

So be it.

OF BURYALL.

The corps is reverently brought to the grave, accompanied with the Congregation, without any further ceremonies: which being buryed, the Minister if he be present, and required, goeth to the Church, if it be not farre of, and maketh some comfortable exhortation to the people, touching death and resurrection.

THE ORDRE OF THE ECCLESIASTICAL DISCIPLINE.

As no citie, towne, house or familie . . . may lawfully beare.

(See vol. iv. pp. 203-206.)

Matth. xviii. "If any refuse to heare the Congregation, let him be as an heathen, and as a publicane."

WILLIAM STEWART¹ TO THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND.

SONNET.

THOU LITTLE CHURCH, TO WHOM CHRIST HATH RESTORDE THE CLEARE LOST LIGHT OF HIS EVANGEL PURE :
 THY GOD DOTH WITH ALL DILIGENCE PROCURE THAT WITH HIS WORDE, THOU MAIST BE STIL DECORDE.

THOUGH THOU HAVE LONG HIS WHOLESOME TRUETH ABHORDE, YET HIS GREAT MERCIES DID THY BLINDNES CURE, SUBMITTING THEE UNTO THE CAREFUL CURE OF SUCHE PASTOURS, AS TRUELY TEACHE HIS WORDE.

OUT OF WHOSE HANDS, (WITH GREAT THANKS,) NOW RECEIVE
 ALL DAVID'S PSALMES SET FOORTH IN PLEASANT VERSE :
 A GREATER GIFT OF THEM THOU COULDST NOT CRAVE, WHOSE ENDLES FRUTE MY PEN CAN NOT REHEARSE :
 FOR HERE THOU HAST, FOR EVERIE ACCIDENT THAT MAY OCCURRE, A DOCTRINE PERTINENT.

¹ From the edition of the "Forme of Prayers and Psalmes," printed at Edinburgh by Robert Lekprevik in 1565. This Sonnet is omitted by Bassandyne in 1575, and in later editions; if we except the English reprints mentioned at page 281. The author of the Sonnet is described in 1565, and again in 1566-7, as Ross Herald, in the Accounts of the Collector-General of the Thirds of Benefices, where we find that the annual sum of £133, 6s. 8d. was paid to "William Stewarte Ross Herald, translater of sic werkes in the Kirk as is necessar for edifying of the people." There is some uncertainty regarding Stewart's subsequent fate.

PSALMES OF DAVID

IN ENGLISH METER.

PSALME XXIII. Tho. Ster.—[W. Whittingham.]¹

From the edition printed at Edinburgh 1565.

T He Lord is onely my supporte, and he that doeth me fede: How can I then lack any thing where - of I stand in nede?

2 He doeth me folde in cottes most safe,
 the tender grasse fast by:
 And after driueth me to the streames, which runne moste pleasantly.

3 And when I fele my self nere loste,
 Then doeth he me home take,
 Conducting me in his right paths,
 euen for his owne names sake.

4 And though I were euen at deaths dore,
 yet wolde I feare none il :

For why thy rodde and shepherds croke
 I am confortd still.

5 Thou haste my table richely deckt,
 in despite of my foe:
 Thou haste mine head with baume refresht,
 my cuppe doeth ouerfloe.

And finally while breth doeth last,
 thy grace shal me defende:
 And in the house of God will I my life for ever spende.

¹ In the English Psalters printed by Daye there are two versions of this Psalm, that by Sternhold being quite different from the above, which is there rightly attributed to Whittingham. In the black-letter edition of 1578, the first and second verses are thus rendered into Scottish orthography:—

1 The Lord is only my support, and he that dois me feid:
 How can I than want ony thing,
 quhairof I stand in neid.

2 He dois me fald in coittis maist saue,
 the tender grass fast by:
 And efter dryues me to the stremes quhilk ryn maist pleasantly.

PSALME XXIV. I. C.

From the edition printed at Edinburgh 1565.

3 Now who is he that shal up go into God's holy hil,
And in his holy place also who shal continue stil.

4 The man whose hands no wrong hath wrought,
whose heart is pure and neat :
Whose minde for vanitie not sought, nor sworne hathe with deceit.

5 He that is suche the Lord wil send his blessings him upon,
And righteousnes unto him lende shal God his salvation.

6 This is the stocke and offrings eke, of those which search for thee :
Of them O Lord that thy face seke who true Isralites be.

7 Exalt your heades ye Gates on hie,
ye doores that last for aye,
Be lift : so the King of glorie
shal through you make his waye.

8 Who is this King so glorious ?
the strong and mightie Lord,
Even he that is victorious in battels tride by sword.

9 Exalt your heads ye Gates on hie,
ye doores that last for aye :
Be lifte ; so the King of glorie
shal through you make his waye.

10 Who is this glorious King, I saye ?
the Lord of hostes moste hie,
Even he is King and shalbe aye :
of everlasting glorie.

PSALME LVII. R. Po.

(From edition Edinburgh 1565.)

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1 Be mercifull to me, ô God, be merciful to me : For why? my soule in all assaultes, shall ever trust in thee,
And till these wicked stormes be past,
which ryse on everie syde : | Under the shaddowe of thy wings, my hope shal always byde. 2 I will therefore call to the Lord, who is moste high alone : To God who will his worke in me, bring to perfection. |
|---|--|

(From edition Edinburgh c. 1578.)

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1 Be mercifull to me, O God, be mercifull to me For quhy? my saull in all assaultis sall ever traist in the. And till thir wickit stormes be past, quhilk ryse on every side : Under the schaddow of thy wingis, my hope sall always byde. | And over all the eirth declair
thy glorie and thy nicht. |
| 2 I will thairfoir call to the Lord, quha is maist heich alone : To God, quha will his wark in me, bring to perfection. | 6 To trap my steps quhair I suld pas a snair thay did lay out : My saull wes pressit down for feir quhilk compast me about. Befoir me they did digge and cast, a deip and ugly pit : Zit they now fallen ar at last,
them selfis in middis of it. |
| 3 He will send down from hevin above to save me and restoir : From the rebukis of wickit men, that faine wald me devoir. | 7 My hart is reddy bent, O God, my hart is reddy bent : I will sing sangis, and psalmes of praise to the I will present. |
| God will his mercy surely send and constant treuth also : To comfort me, and to defend, aganis my cruell fo. | 8 Awalk my tounge my greit delyte my viole and my harp : I will get up by brek of day and of my God will carp. |
| 4 Allace to lang my saull dois ly amangis thir lyounis kene : That rage and fume lyke flame of fyre,
the sonnes of men I mene. | 9 I will the praise, O Lord of nicht, the pepill all amang : And eik amid the natiouns greit, of the salbe my sang. |
| Quhais teith ar lyke the groundin speir, lyke arrowis ar thair wordis : And eik thair toungis in forgeing leis ar schairp as ony swordis. | 10 For thy gudeness is wondrous greit and to the hevins dois reiche : The cloudes and elementis above, thy faithfulness do preiche. |
| 5 Exalt thy self, O God, thairfoir above the hevins hicht : | 11 Exalt thy self, O Lord, thairfoir above the hevins hicht : And over all the eirth declair,
thy glorie and thy nicht. |

PSALME C. W. Ke.

(From edition Edinburgh 1565.)

A  All people that on earth do dwell,
 Sing to the Lord with chereful voyce: Him serve with feare, his praise foorth tel: Come ye before him and re-joyce.

- | | |
|---|---|
| 3 The Lord, ye knowe, is God in dede,
 Without our aide, he did us make:
 We are his flocke: he doth us fede,
 And for his shepe he doth us take. 4 Oh, enter then his gates with praise,
 Approche with joye his courtes unto: | Praise, laude, and blesse his name alwayes,
 For it is semely so to do. 5 For why? the Lord our God is good:
 His mercy is for ever sure:
 His treuth at all tymes firmly stooode,
 And shal from age to age indure. |
|---|---|

THE SAME.

(From edition Edinburgh c. 1578.)

- | | |
|---|---|
| All pepill that on eirth do dwell,
 Sing to the Lord with cheirfull voce:
 Him serve with feir, his praise forth tell:
 Cum ze befor him and rejoyce. 3 The Lord, ze know, is gude in deid,
 Without our aide he did us mak:
 We ar his folk: he dois us feid,
 And for his schein he dois us tak. | 4 Och, enter then his gaitis with praise,
 Approche with joy his Courtis unto:
 Praise, laude, and blys his Name
 alwayis,
 For it is semelie so to do. 5 For quhy? the Lord our God is gude;
 His mercy is for ever sure:
 His trueth at all tymes firmelie stude,
 And sall from age to age indure. |
|---|---|

PSALME CXXIII. W. Whit.

(From edition Edinburgh 1565.)

N Ow Israel may say, and that truely,
 If that the Lord had not our cause mainteinde,
 If that the Lord had not our right susteinde,
 When all the worlde against us furiously,
 Made their uproares, and said we shuld all dye.

- | | |
|---|--|
| 3 Now long ago
 they had devourde us all,
 And swallowde quicke,
 for ought that we coulde deme :
 Suche was their rage,
 as we might wel esteme. 4 And as the floods, with mightie force do fall,
 So had they now
 our lyfe even brought to thrall. 5 The raging streames, moste proude in roaring noyce :
 Had long ago
 overwhelme us in the depe ; 6 But loved be God, | which doth us safely kepe ;
 From bloodie teeth,
 and their moste cruel voyce,
 Quhilk as a preye, to eat us wolde rejoyce. 7 Even as the birde out of the foulers gren ;
 Escapth away,
 right so it farth with us :
 Broke are their nettes, and we have scaped thus.¹ 8 God that made heaven and earth, is our helpe then :
 His Name hath saved
 us from these wicked men. |
|---|--|

¹ In the edition Edinburgh c. 1575, these lines read,—

Evin as the birde | out of the Fowlers girne
 Eschapis away, | richt sa it fairs with us.
 Broke ar thair nettis | and we haif chaipit thus.

PSALME CXLV. I. C.

(From edition Edinburgh c. 1578.)

- O Lord, that art my God and king,
Undoutedly I will the praise,
I will extoll and blyssingis sing,
Unto thine haly Name always.
- 2 From day to day I will the blys,
And laude thy name warld without end
- 3 For greit is God maist worthy praise, Quhais greitnes nane may comprehend.
- 4 Race sal thy warkis praise unto race
And sa declair thy power, O Lord,
- 5 The glorious bewtie of thy grace
And wondrous warkis will I record.
- 6 And all man sall thy power (O God)
Of all thy feirfull actis declair :
And I to publische all abrod,
Thy greitnes at na tyme will spair.
- 7 They sall brek out to mentioun
And specifie thy greit gudenes :
And with loud voice their sangis ilk
one,
Sall frame to schaw thy richteousnes.
- 8 The Lord our God is gracious,
Zea mercyfull is he also :
In mercy he is plentious,
Bot unto wraith and anger slowe.
- 9 The Lord to all men is bening,
Quhais mercyis al his warkis exceid.
- 10 Thy warkis ilkane thy praises sing,
And eik thy sanctis thee blys in deid.
- 11 The glorie of thy kingdome thay
Do schaw and of thy power do tell.
- 12 That sa mens sonis his micht know
may,
And kingdome greit that dois excell.
- 13 Thy kingdome hes na end at all,
Thy Lordschip ever dois remaine.
- 14 The Lord uphaldis all that fall,
And dois the febill folke sustaine.
- 15 The eysis of all thingis, Lord, attend,
And on the wait, that heir do live :
And thou in sesoun dew dois send,
Sufficient fude them to relive.
- 16 Zea, thow thine hand dois opin wide
And everie thing dois satisfie,
That live (and on this irth abyde)
Of thy greit liberalitie.
- 17 The Lord is just in his wayis all,
And haly in his warkis ilkone.
- 18 At hand to all that on him call
In trueth, that call to him alone.
- 19 The Lord will the desyre fulfill
Of sic as do him feir and dreid :
And he also their cry heir will,
And save them in the tyme of neid.
- 20 He dois preserve them mair and les,
That beir to him a loving hart,
Bot wirkers all of wickidnes
Distroy will he and clene subvert.
- 21 My mouth theirfoir my speiche sall frame
To speik the praises of the Lord :
All flesche to blys his haly name,
For ever mair eik sall accord.

TRANSLATION OF CALVIN'S CATECHISM.

Note of early Editions.

1. THE CATE | CHISME OR MANER | TO TEACHE CHILDREN THE
CHRISTIAN RELIGION, | WHEREIN THE MINISTER DEMANDETH
THE QUE | STION, AND THE CHILDE MAKETH ANSWERE. |
MADE BY THE EXCELLENT DOCTOR AND PASTOR | IN CHRISTES
CHURCHE CHURCHE, IOHN CALVIN.

(Same woodcut as in vol. iv. p. 149.)

By JOHN CRESPIN. M.D.LVI. 12mo, pp. 167.

2. THE CATECHISME, ETC. (as above.) (Printed at Geneva.)

By ZACHARIE DVRAND. MD.LXI. 16mo, 103 leaves.

3. THE CATECHISME, ETC. (as above.) (No place of printing.)

1561. 12mo, from folio 36-84, of "The Forme of Prayers," etc., and 8 leaves not numbered.

(See vol. iv. p. 153.)

4. THE CATE | CHISME OR MA | NER TO TEACHE CHILDREN THE
| CHRISTIAN RELI | GION. | * | Wherein the Minister demandeth the | Question, and the Chylde maketh |
answere: made by the excellent Do | ctor and Pastor in Christs Church, | Iohn Caluin. | Ephes. 2. | The doctrine of the Apostles and Pro- | phetes is the foundation of |
Christs Church. |

Imprinted at Edinbrough by me | Robert Lekpriuik. |

1564. | Cum Priuilegio. | Small 8vo, pp. 181.

5. THE CATECHISME, ETC. (as above, with the woodcut given at p. 291.) Printed by Thomas Bassandyne, dwelling at the nether Bow. M.D.LXXV. 12mo, pp. 192.

THE RESTE OF THE FIRSTE TABLE FOR THE PRAYERS.

(From the edition at Geneva 1561, 16mo. Nos. 1 to 10 same as at p. 288, Nos. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 9, 10, 14, 15, and 16.)

11	The Psalmes of David in meter,	000
12	The Catechisme of M. Calvin,	000
13	A brief examination of Children before they be admitted to the Lord's Table,	000
14	Sundry sortes of Prayers,	81
15	A Prayer to be sayd in visitinge of the Sicke,	87
16	A Prayer for Scholers,	90
17	The Confession of Faythe vsed at Geneva,	94
18	The Lord's Prayer in mitre,	101
19	A Prayer for Laborers,	102

PRINTED AT GENEVA.

M.D.LXI.

(From Bassandyne's Edition 1575.)

A brief examination of Children before they be admitted to the Lordes Supper,	149
A forme of prayers to be vsed in priuate houses euery morning and euening,	154
A Prayer to be said before meales,	159
A thankesgiuing after meales,	161
Another thankesgiuing before meate,	162
Another thankesgiuing after meate,	163
Euening Prayer,	165
A Prayer made at the first assemblie of the English Church at Geneua, &c.,	170
A Complaint of the tyrannie vsed against the Saintes of God, &c.,	174
A godly Prayer to be said at all tymes,	184
A Prayer to be said of the childe before he studie his lesson,	188
A Prayer to be said afore a man begin his work,	191

PRAYERS, ETC.

SUBJOYNED TO CALVIN'S CATECHISM.

EDINBURGH, IN THE YEAR 1564.

THE MANER TO EXAMINE CHILDREN, BEFORE THEY BE ADMITTED TO THE SUPPER OF THE LORD.

The Minister.

In whome doest thou beleve ?

The Childe.

I beleve in God the Father, and in Jesus Christ his Sonne, and in the Holie Ghost, and loke to be saved by none other meanes.

M. The Father, the Sonne, and the Holie Ghost, be they any more then one God ?

C. No, although they be distinct in persones.

M. What is the effect of thy faith ?

C. That God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ (and so by him of us all) is the beginning and principal cause of all things, the which he governeth in suche sorte, that nothing can be done without his ordinance and providence. Next, that Jesus Christ, his Sonne, came downe into this worlde, and accomplished all things which were necessarie for our salvation : and ascended into heaven, where he sitteth at the right hand of the Father, that is, that he hath all power in heaven and in earth, and shal come againe from thence to judge the whole worlde. Furthermore, that the Holy Ghost is very God, because he is the vertue and power of God, and printeth in our hearts the promises made unto us in Jesus Christ; and finally, that the Church is sanctified and delivered from their sinnes, through the mercies of God, and shal after this life rise againe to life everlasting.

M. Must we serve God according as he hath commanded? or els as men's traditions teache us?

C. We must serve him as he hath taught us by his worde and commandements, and not according to the commandements of men.

M. Canst thou kepe God's commandements of thy self?

C. No verely.

M. Who then doeth kepe and fulfil them in thee?

C. The Holie Gost.

M. When God then giveth thee his Holie Ghost, canst thou perfectly observe them?

C. No; not so.

M. Why? God doeth curse and reject all suche as do not everie point fulfill his commandements.

C. It is true.

M. By what meanes then shalt thou be saved, and delivered from the curse of God?

C. By the death and passion of our Lord Jesus Christ.

M. How so?

C. For because that by his death he hath restored us to life, and reconciled us to God his Father.

M. To whom doest thou make thy prayers?

C. I pray to God in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, our Advocate and Mediator, referring all my prayers to that scope which Christ our Saviour hath left us as a moste sufficient and absolute rule.

M. How many Sacraments are there in Christ's Church?

C. Two: Baptisme and the Lord's Supper.

M. What is ment by Baptisme?

C. First, it signifieth that we have forgiveness of our sinnes by the blood of Christ; secondly, it setteth before our eyes our regeneration or new spiritual birth.

M. What signifieth the Supper of the Lord?

C. That by the spiritual eating and drinking of the bodie and blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, our soules are nourished unto life everlasting.

M. What do the bread and wine represent in the Lord's Supper?

C. That as our bodies are nourished therewith, so our souls are sustained and nourished with the vertue of Christ's bodie and blood; not that they are inclosed in the bread and wine, but we must seke Christ in heaven in the glorie of God his Father.

M. By what meanes may we atteine unto him there?

C. By faith which God's Spirit worketh in our hearts, assuring us of God's promises made to us in his holie gospel.

A FORME OF PRAYERS TO BE USED IN PRIVATE HOUSES EVERIE MORNING AND EVENING.

MORNING PRAYER.

Almightie God, and most merciful Father, we do not¹ present our selves here before thy Majestie, trusting in our owne merites or worthines, but in thy manifolde mercies, which hast promised to heare our prayers and² graunt our requestes, which we shall make to thee, in the name of thy beloved Sonne Jesus Christ our Lord, who hath also commanded us to assemble our selves together in his³ Name, with ful assurance that he wil not onely be among us, but also be our Mediator and Advocate towards thy Majestie, that we may⁴ obtaine all things which

¹ Dan. 9.

² John 16.

³ Mat. 18.

⁴ 1 Tim. 2; 1 John 3.

shal seme expedient to thy blessed wil for our necessities. Therefore we beseche thee, most merciful Father, to turne thy loving countenance towardes us, and¹ impute not unto us our manifolde sinnes and offenses, whereby we justly deserve thy wrath and sharpe punishment; but rather receive us to thy mercie for Jesus Christ's sake, accepting his death and passion as a just recompence for all our offenses,² in whom onely thou art pleased, and through whom thou canst not be offended with us.

And seing that of thy great mercies we have quietlie passed this night, graunt, O heavenlie Father, that we may bestowe this day wholly in thy service, so that all our³ thoughts, wordes, and dedes may redounde to the glorie of thy Name, and good ensample to all men, who, seeing our good workes, may glorifie thee our heavenly Father. And forasmuche as of thy mere favour and love, thou hast not onely created us to thine owne⁴ similitude and likenes, but also hast chosen us to be heires with thy deare Sonne Jesus Christ, of that immortal kingdome which thou preparedst for us before the beginning of the worlde, we beseche thee to increase⁵ our faith and knowledge, and to lighten our hearts with thine holie Spirit, that we may in the meane time live in godlie conversation and integritie of life, knowing that⁶ idolaters, adulterers, covetous men, contentious persons, drunkardes, gluttons, and suche like, shal not inherit the kingdome of God.

(. .) And because thou hast commanded us to pray one for another, we do not onely make request, O Lord, for our selves and them that thou hast already called to the true understanding of thine heavenlie wil, but for all people and⁷ nations of the world, who, as they know by thy wonderful works, that thou art God over all, so they may be instructed by thine holie Spirit to beleve in thee their onlie Saviour and Redcemer.

¹ Psal. 32.³ Colo. 3.⁵ Luk. 17.⁷ Act 10; 1 Tim. 2.² 2 John 2, 3.⁴ Gene. 2.⁶ Gal. 5.

But forasmuche as they cannot¹ beleve except they heare, nor can not heare but by preaching, and none can preache except they be sent, therefore, O Lord, raise up faithful distributors of thy mysteries, who, setting aparte all worldlie respects, may, both in their life and doctrine, onely seke thy glorie. Contrarily confound² Satan, Antichrist, with all hirelings and Papiists, whom thou hast alreadie cast off into a reprobate sense, that they may not by sectes, schismes, heresies, and errours, disquiet thy litle flocke. And because, O Lord, we be fallen into the latter dayes, and³ dangerous times, wherein ignorance hath gotten the upper hand, and Satan with his ministers seke by all meanes to quenche the light of thy Gospel, we beseeche thee to mainteine thy cause against those⁴ ravening wolves, and strengthen all thy servants whom they kepe in prison and bondage. Let not thy long suffering be an occasion either to increase their tyrannie, or to discourage thy children, neither yet let our sinnes and wickednes be an hindrance to thy mercies, but with spede, O Lord, consider the great miseries and afflictions of thy poore Church, which, in sundrie places, by the rage of enemies, is grievously tormented; and this we confesse, O Lord, to come most justely for our sinnes, which (notwithstanding thy manifold benefites, whereby thou doest daily allure us to love thee, and thy sharpe threatnings, whereby we have occasion to feare thee, and spedely to repent) yet continue in our owne wickednes, and fele not our hearts so touched with that displeasure of our sins as we ought to do. Therefore, O Lord, creat in us new hearts, that with fervent mindes we may bewaile our manifold sinnes, and earnestly repent us for our former wickednes and ungodly behaviour towards thee; and whereas we can not of our selves purchase thy pardon,⁵ yet we humbly beseeche thee, for Jesus Christs sake, to shewe thy mercies upon us, and receive us againe to thy favour. Grant us, deare Father, these our requestes, and all other things necessarie for us and thy whole Church, according to thy promise in Jesus Christ our Lord; in whose Name we beseeche thee, as he hath taught us, saying, Our Father, &c.

¹ Rom. 10.² 2 Tim. 3.³ Rom. 7; 1 Cor. 3; Luke 17.² Rom. 16.⁴ Matt. 7.

A PRAYER TO BE SAID BEFORE MEALES.

All things depend upon thy providence,¹ O Lord, to receive at thine hands due sustenance in time convenient. Thou givest to them, and they gather it; thou openest thine hand, and they are satisfied with all good things.

O heavenlie Father, which art the fountaine and full treasure of all goodnes,² we beseeche thee to shewe thy mercies upon us thy children, and sanctifie these giftes which we receive of thy merciful liberalitie, granting us grace to use them³ soberly and purely, according to thy blessed wil; so that hereby we may acknowledge thee to be the autor and giver of all good things; and, above all, that we may remembre continually to seeke⁴ the spiritual foode of thy worde, wherewith our soules may be nourished everlastingly through our Saviour Christ, who is the true⁵ bread of life which came downe from heaven, of whome, whosoever eateth, shall live for ever, and reigne with him in glorie, worlde without end. So be it.

A THANKESGIVING AFTER MEALES.

Let all nations magnifie the Lord; let all people rejoyce, in praying and extolling his mercies;⁶ for his fatherlie kindnes is plentifully shewed forth upon us, and the trueth of his promise indureth for ever.

We render thanks unto thee, O Lord God, for the manifold benefites⁷ which we continually receive at thy bountiful hande, not onely for that it hath pleased thee to feed us in this present

¹ Psal. 104.

² Tit. 2.

³ John 6.

⁷ Col. 3.

² 2 Tim. 4.

⁴ John 6.

⁶ Psal. 117.

life, giving unto us all things necessarie for the same, but especially because thou hast of thy free mercies¹ facioned us new into an assured hope of a farre better life, the which thou hast² declared unto us by thine holie Gospel. Therefore, we humbly beseeche thee, O heavenly Father, that thou wilt not suffer our affections to be³ so intangled or rooted in these earthlie and corruptible things, but that we may always have our mindes directed to thee on⁴ high, continually watching for the comming⁵ of our Lord and Saviour Christ,⁶ what time he shal appeare for our ful redemption. To whome, with thee and the Holie Ghost, be all honour and glorie, for ever and ever. So be it.

ANOTHER THANKSGIVING BEFORE MEATE.

Eternal and everlasting God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who of thy most singular love which thou bearest to mankinde, hast appointed to his sustenance not onely the frutes of the earth, but also the foules of the ayre and beastes of the earth, and fishes of the sea, and hast commanded thy benefites to be received as from thine handes with thankesgiving, assuring thy children by the mouth of thine Apostle, that to the cleane all things are cleane, as the creatures which be sanctified by the worde⁷ and by prayer; graunt unto us so moderately to use these thy giftes present, that the bodies being refreshed, the soules may be more able to procede in all good workes, to the praise of thine holie Name, through Jesus Christ our Lord. So be it. Our Father which art, &c.

ANOTHER.

The eyes of all things do looke up and trust in thee, O Lord.⁸ Thou givest them meat in due season; thou openest thine hand and fillest with thy blessings everie living creature. Good Lord,

¹ Rom. 8; Tit. 3.

³ 1 Joh. 2.

⁵ 1 Cor. 1.

⁷ Tit. 1; Act. 10.

² 2 Tim. 1.

⁴ 1 Tim. 2.

⁶ Rom. 8.

⁸ Psal. 104.

blesse us and the giftes which we receive of thy large liberalitie, through Jesus Christ our Lord. So be it. Our Father, &c.

ANOTHER THANKESGIVING AFTER MEAT.

Glorie, praise, and honor be unto thee, moste merciful and omnipotent Father, who of thine infinite goodnes hast created man to thine owne image and similitude; who also hast fed, and daily feedest of thy moste bountiful hand all living creatures, graunt unto us that as thou hast nourished these our mortall bodies with corporal foode, so thou woldest replenish our soules with the perfect knowledge of the livelie word of thy beloved Sone Jesus, to whom be praise, glorie, and honour, for ever. So be it.

God save the Church universall; God comfort them that be comfortles; Lord, increase our faith. O Lord, for Christ thy Sonnes sake, be merciful to the communewealths, where thy Gospel is truly preached, and harbour graunted to the afflicted membres of Christ's bodie, and illuminate, according to thy good pleasure, al nations with the brightnes of thy word. So be it.

ANOTHER.

The God of glorie and peace, who hath created, redeemed, and presently fedde us, be blessed for ever. So be it.

The God of all power, who hath called from death that great Pastor of the shepe, our Lord Jesus, comforte and defend the flocke which he hath redemed by the blood of the eternal Testament, increase the number of true preachers, repress the rage of obstinate tyrants, mitigate and lighten the hearts of the ignorant, releve the paines of such as be afflicted, but especially of those that suffer for the testimonie of his trueth, and finally confounde Satan by the power of our Lord Jesus Christ. So be it.

EVENING PRAYER.

O Lord God, Father everlasting and full of pitie, we acknowledge and confesse that we be not worthie to lift up our eyes to heaven,¹ much lesse to present our selves before thy Majestie with confidence that thou wilt heare our prayers and graunt our requestes, if we consider our owne deservings; for our consciences do accuse us, and our sinnes witness against us, and we knowe that thou art an upright judge, which doest not justifie the sinners and wicked men, but² punishest the fautes of all such as transgresse thy commandements. Yet, most merciful Father, since it hath pleased thee to³ commande us to call on thee in all our troubles and adversities, promising even then to help us, when we feele our selves, as it were, swallowed up of death and⁴ desperation, we utterly renounce all worldlie confidence, and flee to thy sovereigne bountie as our onlie stay and refuge, beseeching thee not to call to⁵ remembrance our manifolde sinnes and wickednes, whereby we continually provoke thy wrath and indignation against us; neither our negligence and unkindnes, which have neither worthely esteemed, nor in our lives sufficientlie expressed the sweet comfort of thy Gospel reveiled unto us, but rather to accept the obedience and death of thy Sonne Jesus Christ, who, by offerring up his bodie in⁶ sacrifice once for all, hath made a sufficient recompense for all our sinnes. Have mercie, therefore, upon us, O Lord, and forgive us our⁷ offences; teach us by thine holy Spirit that we may rightly weigh them, and earnestly repent for the same; and so much the rather, O Lord, because that the⁸ reprobate, and such as thou hast forsaken, can not praise thee nor call upon thy Name, but the⁹ repenting heart, the sorrowful minde, the conscience oppressed,¹⁰ hungring and thirsting for thy grace, shall ever set forth thy praise and glorie. And albeit we be but¹ wormes and dust, yet thou art our Creator, and we be the worke of thine handes; yea, thou art our Father, and we thy children;² thou art our shepherd, and we thy flocke; thou art our Redemer, and we thy people whome thou hast bought; thou art our God, and we thine inheritance.³ Correct us not, therefore, in thine angre, O Lord, neither according to our desertes punish us, but mercifully chastise us with a fatherlie affection, that all the worlde may know that at what⁴ time so ever a sinner doeth repent him of his sinne, from the bottome of his heart, thou wilt put away his wickednes out of thy remembrance, as thou hast promised by thine holie Prophet.

¹ Luk. 15.⁴ Psal. 18.⁷ Psal. 19.⁹ Psal. 5.² Exod. 2.⁵ Psal. 79.⁸ Psal. 58.¹⁰ Psal. 107.³ Psal. 50.⁶ Heb. 9, 10.

(.)⁵ Finally, forasmuche as it hath pleased thee to make the night for man to rest in, as thou hast ordeined him the day to travel, grant, O deare Father, that we may so take our bodelie rest, that our soules may continually⁶ watche for the time that our Lord Jesus Christ shal appeare for our deliverance out of this mortal life, and in the meane season that we, not overcome by any⁷ fantasies, dreames, or other tentations, may fully set our minds upon thee, love thee, feare thee, and rest in thee; furthermore, that our slepe be not⁸ excessive or overmuch after the insatiable desires of our flesh, but onely sufficient to content our weake nature, that we may be better disposed to live in all godlie conversation, to the glorie of thine holie Name and profit of our brethren. So be it.

A PRAYER MADE AT THE FIRST ASSEMBLIE OF THE ENGLISH CHURCH AT GENEVA, WHEN THE CONFESSION OF FAITH AND WHOLE ORDERS WERE THERE RED AND APPROVED.

O Lord God Almightye and their assemblies.

(See vol. iv. p. 212.)

¹ Psa. 22.

² 2 Cor. 6.

crease of the Gospel; which also may be said here as time serveth.—[See supra, p. 346.]

³ Iere. 10; Psal. 6.

⁴ Ezek. 18.

⁶ Luke 12.

⁵ This marke directeth us to that parte of the Morning Prayer that is for in-

⁷ Mat. 6.

⁸ Luk. 21.

A COMPLAINT OF THE TYRANNIE USED AGAINST THE SAINCTES OF GOD, CONTEYNING A CONFESSION OF OUR SINNES, AND A PRAYER FOR THE DELIVERANCE AND PRESERVACION OF THE CHURCH.
 AND CONFUSION OF THE ENEMIES.

Eternal and everlasting God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hast commanded us to pray, and promised to heare us, even when we do call from the pit of desperation, the miseries of these our most wicked dayes, compel us to powre foorthe before thee the complaintes of our wretched hearts oppressed with sorowe. Our eyes do beholde, and our eares do heare the calamities and oppression, which no tongue can expresse, neither yet alas do our dull hearts rightly consider the same. For the heathen are entred into thine inheritance :¹ they have polluted thy Sanctuarie, prophaned and abolished thy blessed institutions, most cruelly murthered, and dayly do murther thy deare children. Thou hast exalted the arme and force of our enemies, thou hast exposed us to a prey, to ignominie and shame before suche as persecute thy treuth. Their wayes do prosper; they glorie in mischeif, and speake proudly against the honour of thy Name. Thou goest not foorthe as Captaine before our hostes. The edge of our sworde, which sometimes was moste sharpe, is nowe blunt, and doeth returne without victorie in battel.

It appeareth to our enemies, O Lord, that thou hast broken that league which of mercie and goodnes thou hast made with thy Church: For the libertie which they have to kil thy children like shepe, and to shed their blood, no man resisting, doeth so blinde and puffe them with pride, that they ashame not to affirme, that thou regardest not our intreating. Thy long suffering and pacience, maketh them bolde from crueltie to procede to the blasphemie of thy Name. And in the meane season, alas, we do not consider the heavines of our sinnes, which long have deserved at thine hands, not onely these temporal plagues, but also the tormentes prepared for the inobedient. For we knowing thy blessed wil, have not applied our diligence to obey the same, but have folowed, for the most parte, the vaine conversation of the blinde worlde: and therefore in very justice hast thou visited our unthankfulnes. But, O Lord, if thou shalt observe and kepe in minde for ever the iniquities of thy children, then shal no flesh abide, nor be saved in thy presence.¹ And therefore we, convicted in our owne conscience, that most justly we suffer, as punished by thine hand, do nevertheles call for mercie, according to thy promise. And first we desire to be corrected with the rodde of thy children, by the which we may be brought to a perfect hatred of sinne, and of our selves: and therefore, that it wolde please thee, for Christ Jesus thy Sonnes sake, to shewe to us and thy whole Church universally persecuted, the same favour and grace, that sometymes thou didest, when the chief membres of the same for anguish and feare, were compelled to cry: Why have the nacions raged?² why hath the people made uprores? and why have princes and kings conjured against thine anointed Christ Jesus? Then didest thou wonderfully assist and preserve thy smale and dispersed flocke: then didest thou burst up the barres and gates of yron: then didest thou shake the foundations of strong prisonnes: then didest thou plague the cruel persecuters; and then gavest thou some tranquillitie and rest, after those raging stormes and cruel afflictions.

¹ Psal. 79.

O Lord, thou remainest one for ever: we have offended, and are unworthie of any deliverance; but worthie art thou to be a true and constant God, and worthie is thy deare Sonne Christ Jesus, that thou shouldest glorifie his Name, and revenge the blasphemie spoken against the trueth of his Gospel, which is by our adversaries damned, as a doctrine deceivable and false: yea, the blood of thy Sonne is trodden under fete, in that the blood of his membres is shed for witnessing of thy trueth: and therefore, O Lord, behold not the unworthynes of us that call for the redresse of these enormities, neither let our imperfections stoppe thy mercies from us, but beholde the face of thine anointed

¹ Psal. 143.

² Psal. 2; Actes 4.

Christ Jesus, and let the equitie of our cause prevaile in thy presence. Let the blood of thy Saintes which is shed, be openly revenged in the eyes of thy Church, that mortal men may knowe the vanitie of their counsels, and that thy children may have a taste of thine eternal goodnes. And seeing that from that man of sinne, that Romaine Antichrist, the chiefe adversarie to thy deare Sonne, doeth all iniquitie spring, and mischief procede: Let it please thy Fatherlie mercie more and more to reveile his deceit and tyrannie to the worlde: open the eyes of Princes and Magistrates, that clearly they may se how shamefully they have bene and are abused by his deceivable wayes, how by him they are compelled moste cruelly to sheade the blood of thy Saintes, and by violence, refuse thy new and eternal Testament, that they in deepe consideration of the grievous offences may unfainedly lament their horrible defection from Christ Jesus thy Sonne, from hence foorth studying to promote his glorie in the dominions committed to their charges, that so yet once againe may the glorie of thy Gospel appeare to the worlde. And seing also that the chief strength of that odious beast consisteth in dissension of Princes, let it please thee, O Father, which hast claimed to thy selfe to be called the God of peace, to unite and knit in perfect love, the hearts of al those that loke for the life everlasting. Let no craft of Satã move them to warre one against another, neither yet to mainteine by their force and strength that kingdome of darke-nes: but rather that godly they may conspire (illuminated by the word) to roote out from among them, all supersticion, with the maintainers of the same.

These thy graces, O Lord, we unfainedly desire to be powred forth upon all realmes and nations, but principally, according to that duetie which thou requirest of us, we moste earnestly require, that the hearts of the inhabitants of England and Scotland, whome the malice and craft of Satã and of his suppostes, of many yeeres have dissevered, may continue in that godlie unitie, which now of late it hath pleased thee to give them, being knit together in the unities of thy word: open their eyes, that clearly they may beholde the bondage and miserie which is purposed against them both: and give unto them wisdome to avoide the same in suche sort, that in their godly concorde, thy name may be glorified, and thy dispersed flocke comforted and relieved.

The commune welthes, O Lord, where thy Gospell is truly preached, and harbour graunted to the afflicted members of Christs bodie, we commend to thy protection and mercie: Be thou unto them a defence and buckler: be thou a watchman to their walles, and a perpetual savegarde to their cities, that the craftie assautes of their enemies, repulsed by thy power, thy Gospell may have free passage from one nation to another: and let all Preachers and Ministers of the same have the giftes of thine Holie Sprit, in suche aboundance, as thy godly wisdome shall knowe to be expedient, for the perfect instruction of that flocke which thou hast redemed with the precious blood of thyne onely and welbeloved Sonne Jesus Christ: purge their hearts from all kinde of superstition, from ambition and vaine glorie, by which Satan continually laboreth to stirre up ungodly contention, and let them so consent in the unities of thy trueth, that neither the estimacion which they have of men, nether the vaine opinions which they have conceived by their writings, prevaile in them against the cleare understanding of thy blessed worde.

And now last, O Lord, we most humbly beseche thee, according to that prayer of thy deare Sonne our Lord Jesus, so to sanctifie and confirme us in thine eternall veritie, that neither the love of life temporal, neither yet the feare of torments and corporal death, cause us to denie the same, when the confession of our Faith shall be required of us: but to assist us with the power of thy Sprite, that not onely boldely we may confesse thee, O Father of mercies, to be the true God alone, and whome thou hast sent, our Lord Jesus to be the only Saviour of the worlde, but also, that constantly we may withstand all doctrine repugning to thine eternal trueth, reveiled to us in thy most blessed word. Remove from our hearts the blinde love of our selves, and so rule thou all the actions of our lyfe, that in us thy godly Name may be glorified, thy Church edified, and Satan finally confounded by the power and meanes of our Lord Jesus Christ, to whome with thee and the Holie Sprit, be all praise and glorie, before thy Congregations now and ever. So be it.

Arise, O Lord, and let thyne enemies be ashamed, let them flee from thy presence that hate thy godly Name; let the grones of thy prisoners entre in before thee, and preserve by thy power suche as be appointed to death: let not thyne enemies thus triumph to the end, but let them understand that against thee they fight. Preserve and defend the Vine which thy right hand hath planted, and let all nations se the glorie of thyne anointed.

Hasten Lord, and tary not.

A GODLIE PRAYER TO BE SAID AT ALL TIMES.

Honour and praise be given to thee, O Lord God Almightye, moste deare Father of heaven, for all thy mercies and loving kyndenes shewed unto us, in that it hath pleased thy gracious goodnes, frely and of thyne owne accorde, to elect and chuse us to salvation before the beginning of the worlde: and even lyke continuall thankes be given to thee for creating us after thyne owne image; for redeming us with the precious blood of thy deare Sonne, when we were utterly lost; for sanctifying us with thyne Holy Spirit in the revelacion and knowledge of thine holy worde; for helping and succouring us in all our neds and necessities; for saving us from all dangers of bodie and soule; for comforting us so fatherly in all our tribulacions and persecutions; for sparing us so long, and giving us so large a tyme of repentance. These benefites, O moste mercyfull Father, lyke as we acknowledge to have received them of thyne onely goodnes, even so we besече thee, for thy deare Sonne Jesus Christs sake, to graunt us alwayes thyne Holie Sprit, whereby we may continually growe in thankfulnes towardses thee, to be led into all trueth, and comforted in all our aduersities. O Lord, strengthen our faith: kindle it more in ferventnes, and love towards thee, and our neighbours for thy sake. Suffer us not, moste deare Father, to receive thy worde any more in vaine, but grant us alwayes the assistance of thy grace and Holie Sprite, that in heart, worde, and dede, we may sanctifie and do worship to thy Name.

Helpe to amplifie and increase thy Kingdome, that whatsoever thou sendest, we may be heartly wel content with thy good pleasure and will. Let us not lacke the thing, O Father, without the which we can not serve thee: but blesse; thou so all the workes of our handes that we may have sufficient, and not to be chargeable, but rather helpfull unto others: be mercifull, O Lord, to our offences. And seing our dette is great, which thou hast forgiven us in Jesus Christ, make us to love thee, and our neighbours so muche the more. Be thou our Father, our Captaine and Defender in all tentations; holde thou us by thy mercyfull hand, that we may be delivered from all inconveniences, and end our lives in the sanctifying and honour of thine holie Name, through Jesus Christ our Lord and onely Saviour. So be it.

Let thy mightie hand and outstretched arme, O Lord, be stil our defence: thy mercie and loving kyndnes in Jesus Christ thy deare Sonne, our salvation: thy true and holie word our instruction: thy grace and Holie Sprite, our comfort and consolation unto the end, and in the end. So be it.

O Lord, increase our faith.

A PRAYER TO BE SAID OF THE CHILDE, BEFORE HE STUDIE HIS LESSON.

Out of the 119. Psalme.—Wherein shal the Child adresse his way? in guiding himselfe according to thy worde. Open myne eyes, and I shal knowe the merveiles of thy Law. Give me understanding, and I shal kepe thy Law, yea I shal kepe it with mine whole heart.

Lord, which art the fountaine of all wisdom and knowledge, seing it hath pleased thee to give me the meane to be taught in my youth, for to learne to guide me godly and honestly all the course of my life ; it may also please thee to lighten myne understanding (the which of it selfe is blinde), that it may comprehend and receive that doctrine and learning which shalbe taught me : it may please thee to strengthen my memorie te kepe it well ; it may please thee also to dispose myne hearte willingly to receive it with suche desire as apperteineth, so that by myne ingratitude, the occasion which thou givest me, be not lost. That I may thus do, it may please thee to powre upon me thyne Holie Sprit, the Sprit, I say, of all understanding, trueth, judgement, wisdom, and learning, the which may make me able so to profite, that the paines that shalbe taken in teaching me be not in vaine. And to what studie so ever I apply my selfe, make me, O Lord, to addresse it unto the right end : that is, to knowe thee in our Lord Jesus Christ, that I may have ful trust of salvation in thy grace, and to serve thee uprightly according to thy pleasure, so that whatsoever I learne, it may be unto me as an instrument to help me thereunto.

And seing thou dost promise to give wisdom to the lytle and humble ones, and to confounde the proude in the vanitie of their wits, and lykewise to make thy selfe knowen to them that be of an upright heart, and also to blynde the ungodly and wicked ; I beseeche thee to facion me unto true humilitie, so that I may be taught first to be obedient unto thee, and next unto my superiors, that thou hast appointed over me : further, that it may please thee to dispose mine heart unfeinedly to seke thee, and to forsake all evil and filthie lustes of the flesh : And that in this sorte, I may now prepare my selfe to serve thee once in that estate which it shal please thee to appoint for me, when I shal come to age.

Out of the 25 Psalm.—The Lord reveileth his secrets unto them that feare him, and maketh them to knowe his alliance.

A PRAYER TO BE SAID BEFORE A MAN BEGIN HIS WORKE.

O Lord God, moste merciful Father and Saviour, seing it hath pleased thee to command us to travel, that we may relieve our nede, we beseche thee of thy grace so to blesse our labour, that thy blessing may extend unto us, without the which we are not able to continue, and that this great favour may be a witness unto us of thy bountifulnes and assistance, so that thereby we may know the fatherlie care that thou hast over us. More over, O Lord, we besech thee, that thou wouldest strengthen us with thine Holy Sprite, that we may faithfully travel in our state and vocation without fraude or deceit: and that we may indeavour our selves to followe thine holy ordinance, rather then to seke to satisfie our griedie affections or desire to gaine. And if it please thee, O Lord, to prosper our labour, give us a mynde also to help them that have nede, according to that abilitie that thou of thy mercy shalt give us, and knowing that all good things come of thee, graunt that we may humble our selves to our neighbours, and not by any meanes lyfte our selves up above them which have not received so liberal a portion, as of thy mercy thou hast given unto us. And if it please thee to trye and exercise us by greater povertie and nede then our flesh wolde desire, that thou woldest yet, O Lord, graunt us grace to knowe that thou wilt nourish us continually through thy bountiful liberalitie, that we be not so tempted, that we fall into distrust: but that we may paciently waite til thou fill us, not onely with corporal graces and benefites, but chiefly with thine heavenlie and spiritual treasures, to the intent that we may alwayes have more ample occasion to give thee thankes, and so wholly to rest upon thy mercies. Heare us, O Lord of mercie, through Jesus Christ thy Sonne our Lord. Amen.

ADDITIONAL PRAYERS, ETC.

NOT CONTAINED IN THE EDINBURGH VOLUME OF 1565.

THE FORME OF THE CONFESSION OF FAITH,¹ WHERUNTO AL
SUBSCRIBE AS ARE RECEYVED TO BE SCHOLERS IN THE UNIVERSITIE OF GENEVA ; and it is verye profitables² for all Townes, Parishes, and Congregations, to discernes³ the true Christians from Anabaptistes, Libertines, Arrians, Papistes, and other Keretikes.⁴

I Protest that I wil follow and holde the Doctrine of Faith whiche is contened in the Catechisme of this Church, and to submit my self to the Discipline which is established here :
nether will I joyne myself or consent to any sects which might trouble the peace and union that God hath here aproved by his Word. And to declare this more at large, and to cut off all cavillations and shiftes, I Confesse that there is one God only to whom we muste cleave, to serve him and worshyp him, who is also our only trust and refuge. And although he be of a pure substance and unmixt, yet is he distinct into thre per-sones. Therefore I detest al heresies which were condemned aswel by the first Council of Nice, as by the first Council of Ephesus, and in that of Chalcedonia. Likewise all the errors

¹ It will be observed that this Confession, etc., is mentioned on the title-page of the Edinburgh edition of 1562
(see vol. iv. p. 155), but it is not specified in the contents, nor is it found in the only copy of the volume that is known to exist. It is here given from the little volume as originally printed at Geneva 1561, of which only one perfect copy is known. See title, supra,

p. 290.

^{2 3 4} These words are so printed in the original edition. A few other obvious typographical errors have been corrected.

whiche have bene renued by Servet and his adherents, contentyng my self with this simplicitie, that in the only substance and essence of God there is the Father, who hath begotten from al eternitie his word, and hath also had alway his spirit in him selfe, and that every one of these persones hath his propertie in such sort, that the Divinitie remayneth still in his perfection and prope nature.

I Confesse, moreover, that God hath created not onely this visible worlde, to wit, the heaven and the earth, and all that is therein conteyned, but also the invisible spirites; wherof some have continued in the obedience of God, and the other have fallen into perdition throughe theyr owne malice. But the perseverance which the Angels had came by the fre election of God, who continued hys love and mercy towarde them, in gyyng then invincible strength to persevere alwaye in goodnes. Wherefore I deteste the errour of the Maniches, whiche imagined that the devill was evill of nature, and had even hys originall and begynninge of him selfe.

I Confesse, also, that God hath so created the worlde once, that he is still the Governour therof, in suche sorte that no thyng is done or can come but by hys counsell and providence. And albeit the devill and the reprobate labour to bryng all thynges to confusion, yea, and the faithful by the fautes that they commit, pervert good ordre and justice, yet God hath the chief superioritie above all, and turneth the evyll into good; and howsoever it be, he disposeth and governeth all with a secret bydle, and after so wonderfull a facion, that we muste reverence it with all humilitie, because we are not able to comprehend it.

↓ I Confesse, likewise, that man was created to God's image, in full perfection of hys Spirit, wil, and all partes, faculties, and powers of his soule, and that all the corruption and vice that is in him procedeth of that, that Adam, our father, did separate him selfe from God by his rebellion, and in leaving the fountaine of life and of all goodnes made him selfe sclave to all miserie; so that we are everie one borne in originall sinne, and are all accursed of God and damned frome our mother's wombe, not onely through another mantfaut, but for the wickednes that is in us, although it appeare not.

I Confesse, also, that originall sinne blindeth the Spirite and corrupteth the heart, so that we are deprived of all that apperteineth to life everlasting, insomuch as all our naturall gifts are depraved and defiled; whiche is the occasion that we can not have a good thought nor motion to do well. Therefore I detest them whiche attribute to man any fre will to attaine unto vertue by, or to prepare our selves to be in the grace of God, or to helpe hym to worke as of our selves, and to further the vertue which is given to us by the Holie Spirit.

I Confesse, also, that by the inestimable goodnes of God, Jesus Christe was given into us for a remedie, to bring us frome death to lyfe, and to restore that whiche perished in Adam; and to accomplish this, he that was the eternal wisdome of God hys Father, and of the same substance, hathe put on our flesh; so that he was made God and man in one persone. Whereupon I renounce and detest al heresies which are contrarie to this principle, as of Marcion, Manes, Nestorius, Eutiches, and suche like; and also the fond fantasies that Servet and Schuengfeld went about to bring in and set up.

As touching the meane of our salvation, I Confesse that Jesus Christ, in his death and in his resurrection, hathe fully finished and accomplished al that was requisite to abolish and put away our sinnes, and to reconcile us to God his Father; and that he hathe overcome death and the devil, to the intent that we shuld enjoye the frute of his victorie; and also that he hathe received the Holie Gost in all abundance, for to distribute to everie one of his accordinge to the measure that he thinketh good.

I Confesse, therefore, that all our righteousnes, whereby we are agreable unto God, and whereon we must al together rest, consisteth in the remission of sinnes, which he hath purchased unto us by the washing whiche we have by his blood, and by that onelie sacrifice whereby he hath appeased the angre of God towarde us. And I holde it as a detestable presumption, that men shulde attribute to themselves any merite to put the least parte of their trust therin to obtaine everlasting life.

I confesse, then, that Jesus Christ dueth not onely justifie us, by covering all oure fautes and iniquities, but also renueth us by his Spirit, and that these two pointes can not be separate, to obtaine pardone for our sinnes, and to be reformed into an holie life. But because, until we departe out of this worlde, there remaine many infirmities and vices in us, in so muche that all the good workes whiche we do, by the helpe of the Holie Gost, are spotted with some blot, we mast alwais have our refuge to the free justice which procedeth of the obedience which Jesus Christe hath prayed for us: forasmuche as we are accepted in hys Name, and that God imputeth not unto us our sinnes.

I Confesse that we are made partakers of Jesus Christe, and of all his benefites, by faith in the Gospel, when we are assured certainly of his promises towards us, whiche are contained therein. And because this passeth al our power to obtaine it, therefore I acknowledge, that we can not have this faith but by the Spirite of God, which is an especial gift, and is not communicate to any but to the elect, which are predestinate before the creation of the world with to the inheritance of salvation, and that frely, without any respect of thair dignitie or vertue.

I Confesse, also, that we are justified by faith, inasmuche as we thereby receive Jesus Christ, who is given us of the Father, for a Mediatour: and in that, that we are grounded upon the promises of the Gospel, whereby God testifieth unto us that he raketh and claimeth us for hys children as juste and pure from al spot, forasmuche as our sinnes are wasdeth [washed] away by the blood of his Sonne. Wherefore I detest the dreames of them which wolde make us to beleive that the essentiall justice of God is in us, not beinge content with that fre imputation and acceptation, whereupon the Scripture commandeth us onely to stay.

I Confesse that faith giveth us an entrance and accesse to come unto God and call upon him, whiche teacheth us to call upon him with assurance to be heard accordinge as he hathe promised us, and that this honour oght to be reserved to hym alone, as a soveraine sacrifice, whereby we declare that we have and holde all of him. And although that we be utterly unworthie to present ourselves before this Majestie, yet having Jesus Christe for our Mediatour and Advocate, we have sufficient to content our selves with all. Wherefore I detest that superstition whiche was imagined, to direct men to Saincts, to the intent that we shuld have them for patrones and advocates to pray unto God for us.

I Confesse, that aswel the trade of godlie life, as the doctrine and teachinge of faith, are contained in the Holie Scripture, and that in all perfection, so that it is not lawfull to adde any thyng thereunto, not to diminish any thyng thereof. And therefore I detest what soever men have set up of their owne invention, to make articles of oure faith thereof, or to binde mens consciences to their lawes and statutes. Generally, I reject all those maners and facions to serve God which men have broght in without the autoritie of the Word, as are al the ceremonies of the Papistrie. And I abhorre all that tyrannous yoke wherewith poore sooles [soules] have been oppressed, as is the lawe of Auricular confession, prohibition of Mariage, and suche like.

I Confesse that the Church oght to be gouverned by the Pastors and ministers, which have charge to preache the Word of God, and minister the Sacramentes; and that none oght to thrust in themselves to preache without lawfull election, to avoide confusion: and that, if they whiche are called to this office execute it not faithfully, they oght to be deposed. Also that all their power and superioritie consisteth in guiding them whiche are committed unto them by the Worde of God, so that Jesu Christe remaineth alwayes chief Pastor and onely master of this Church, and we oght to heare none but his voice. Therefore I detest the whole order of the Papistrie (whiche they call the Hierarchie) as a devillische confusion, stablished, as it were, in despite of God, and to the mockerie and reproche of all Christian religion.

I Confesse that, besyde the preachynge, because of oure rudenes and infirmytye, we have nede of Sacraments, as of salves which are to ratifie the promises of God in oure heartes; and that there are two whiche are ordeined unto us by JESUS CHRISTE, to wit, Baptisme and the Supper of the Lord, without any mo. The first is to give us entrance into the Church; and the second is to reteine us therein. So I reject the five Sacraments which the Papiste have invented of their own braine.

Albeit that the Sacramentes are pledges to assure us of the grace of God, yet I Confesse that they were unprofitable, except the Holie Ghost shulde make them effectual in us as instruments, to the intent that our faith shulde not be distracte from God, and staye upon creatures. Also, I Confesse that the Sacramentes are depraved and corrupte, when they are not referred to this ende, to seke in Jesus Christ all that apperteineth to our salvation, and when they are applied to anye other use then that our faith therby shuld be wholly confirmed towarde him. And forasmuche as the promes of adoption apperteineth to the sede of the faithfull, I Confesse that the infantes of the faithfull oght to be received into the Church by Baptisme. And herein I deteste the errour of the Anabaptistes.

Concerning the Lordes Supper, I Confesse that it is a testimonie to us of the unitie that we have with Jesus Christe, forasmuche as he dyed not onely once, and rose again for us, but also fedeth and nourisheth us with his flesh and blood, that we might be one with him, and that his life shulde be communicat unto us. And although he be in heaven untill he come to judge the worlde, yet I beleve that, by the secrete and incomprehensible vertue of his Spirite, he quickeneth oure soules with the substance of his bodye and of his blood.

In effect, I Confesse that, aswel in the Lordes Supper, as in Baptisme, God giveth us in dede and accomplisheth trully that whiche is there figured. But to obtaine so great a benefite, we muste joyne the word with the signes. Wherefore I detest the abuse and corruption of the Papistes, which have taken awaye the chief thing of the sacraments, to wit, the doctrine which shuld teach us the right use and the frute that procedeth therof, and have made thereof sorceries and charmings.

Also I Confesse, that the water, albeit it be a fraile element, yet it doeth testifie to us in dede in the Sacrament of Baptisme then [the] true presence of the blood of Christ Jesus, and of his Spirit; and that in the Supper the bread and wine are certeine and infallible pledges that we are spiritually nourished with the body and blood of Jesus Christ; and so I joyne with the signes the possession and the use of that which is there presented.

And forasmuche as the holye Supper, according as Jesus Christe ordeined it, is our singular and inestimable treasure, so much more I detest the Masse as a most abominable sacriledge and cursed abomination, whiche serveth for nothyng else but to subvert all that Jesus Christe hath left us, bothe in that that they have made it a sacrifice for the quicke and for the deade, and also in all other thinges, whiche are cleane contrarie to the pure institution of the Lordes Supper.

I Confesse that God wil have the world governed by lawes and policies, that there may be meanes to bridle and repress the disordinate affections of men. As he hath established, therefore, kingdomes, power, and gouvernement, and whatsoever doth appertaine to the estate of justice; so he wil be knowne to be the Autour of the same, to the intent that not only for his sake we suffer our superiours to beare rule, but also that we honor and esteme them with all reverence, takinge them for his lieutenantes and officers, whome he hathe put in autoritie to execute that charge which is lawefull and holye. Therefore we muste obey their lawes and statutes, pay tribute, taxes, and other dueties, and beare the yoke of subjection willingly and gladly, if so be that God, who is chief Governour, may have his autoritie reserved whole in al points.¹

A CONFESSION OF OUR SINNES, WHICH WE USE IN THE TIME WHEN THE ETERNAL CORRECTETH US WITH ANY OF HIS APPOINTED SCOURGES FOR DECLINING FROM THE PURITIE OF HIS WORDE, WHETHER IT BE IN DOCTRINE OR LIFE.²

(From the Edinburgh edition of 1562.)

O Lord God, which art mightie and dreadful, thou that kepest covenant, and shewest mercy to them that love the and do thy commandements, we have sinned, we have offended, we have wickedly and stubburnely gone backe from thy lawes and precepts; we wolde never obey thy servantes, the Prophetes, that spake in thy Name to our kinges and princes, to our forefathers, and to all the people of our land.³ O Lord, righteousnes belongeth unto thee;⁴ unto us perteineth nothing but open shame, as thou from the begining hast openly, in the sight of all agis displeasing thee,⁵ shewing thy selfe most terrible and fearful against the manifest contempt of thy graces offred; so that the curses and punishments which are written in thy law are in ful readines to be shed furth,⁶ and that in greatest ¹ After this Confession, the little Geneva volume of 1561 contains a repetition (without the music) of the Lord's Prayer, in metre, Our Father which in Heaven art, nine stanzas of six lines, which is given in nearly all the old editions of the Psalter, as translated by Dr. Coxe.

² Nehe. 1; Job 9, 38, 39, 40.
Psal. 24, 76, 77, 139.

³ Exo. 20; Luk. 7.

Gen. 5; Rom. 5.

1 Joh. 1; Psal. 32, & 109.

Leu. 26; Deue 28.

Jer. 26; Nehe. 6.

Psal. 11; Jam. 4.

Joh. 4, 6, 25; Psal. 20.

⁴ Jer. 20, 27.

⁵ Leu. 26; Deue. 27, 28, 30.

⁶ 2 Pet. 2; Prov. 26; Heb. 6. 10.

—(Marginal notes.)

abundance, if that we do not with speedie repentance turne unto thy mercy seat. Moste petifull it is, O Lord, to beholde that nether they that beare rule over us, nor we that are inferior, do lament our horrible defection from the.¹ Suche is thy juste judgements, O Lord, that thou punishest sinne by sime, and man by his owne inventions, so that there can be no end of iniquitie,² except thou prevent us with thine undeserved grace.

Therefore convert us, O Lord, and we shalbe converted, for we do not offer up our prayers trusting in our owne righteousness, but in thy manifold mercies.³

And although we can not say the contrarie, but that thou in tyme of greatest blindnes hast stirred up some to put us in minde of our declining,⁴ and to utter unto us thy eternal veritie; we notwithstanding, have moste shamefully abused the same,⁵ in obeying rather our owne lustes⁶ and affections, then the admonitions of thy Prophetes;⁷ yet we humbly beseeche thee once againe for thy Names sake,⁸ to pour some comfortable drop of thine accustomed mercie upon us;⁹ incline thine eares and open thine eyes to beholde the grievous plagues¹⁰ which are eminent, and make in us teacheable hearts, to convert betimes, or thou presse furth the uttermoste of thine judgements.

And let the afflictions and juste punishments written in thy booke be an admonition and warning aswel to us, as other nations, who shal heare of the same, lest, for like contempt, in the end like or worse plagues fall upon them.¹¹ Wherefore, O Lord, heare us; O Lord forgive us;¹² O Lord, consider and tarie not over longe, but for thy deare Sonne Jesus Christes sake,¹³ be merciful unto us, and deliver us. So shall it be knowen to all the worlde

¹ How miserable it is to returne to the olde vomit.

² Isa. 95; Rom. 10; Ephc. 2.

³ Psal. 85; Jer. 31.

⁴ Tit. 3; 2 Tim. 1.

⁵ Gal. 4, 5.

⁶ Gal. 5.

⁷ Zach. 7.

⁸ Psal. 23.

⁹ Psal. 71.

¹⁰ Psal. 23, 25.

¹¹ Matt. 11, 12; Luk. 10.

¹² Joh. 16.

¹³ Psal. 103, 108.—(Marginal Notes.)

that thou onely art the selfe same God, that ever shewest mercie to all suche as call upon thine holy Name.

A GODLIE PRAYER.

(From the Edinburgh edition of 1562.)

God the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, in whome liveth the plenitude and fulnes of all wisdome and understanding, by the presence of thy Holie Spirit, illuminate our dull and ignorant senses, and affectually promote and move our hearts, in such sort that we may attaine and come to the true knowledge and godlie understanding of thy moste blessed wil, shewed and reveled unto mankinde in thy most holy Worde, give us the grace (O heavenlie Father !), that by the promes of the same we may learne to put our whole truste and confidence in the our eternal God alone, and by the sharpe threatnings and juste punishments, which we find from time to time duely execute against the inobedient dispysers of thy holie Evangile, idolaters and hipocrites, that we may trimble in thy presence continually, fearing to offend thy godlie Majestie ; so that the whole actions of our life may be rueleed and governed, not after the appetite of our corrupt nature, but onelie according to the precise rule and ditement of thy holie Law : seing it hath pleased thee of thy infinite mercies and grace to call us from all supersticion, error, and blindnes of heart, to that dignitie, honour, and preeminence that thou communicatest thy godlie counsels with us ; that we, in depe consideration of the same, may dedicate and sanctifie our whole lives and bodies to the praise and glorie of thy holie Name ; to the comfort and consolation of Christe Jesus congregation : and finally, that every one of us to edifie and comfort one another by good exemple of life. Let us pray for this as we be taught by oure Sovereine Lorde and Master Christ Jesus. OUR FATHER, etc.

A CONFESSION OF SINNES, WITH PRAYER FOR REMISSION OF THE SAME, TO BE USED IN THESE TROUBLESOME DAYES.¹

(From the Edinburgh edition of 1562.)

O dreadful, and moste mightie God, thou that from the beginning hast declared thy selfe a consuming fire against the contemners of thy most holie precepts, and yet to the penitent thou hast shewen thy selfe a favourable Father and a God ful of mercie; we, the workmanship of thine owen handes, confesse our selves moste unworthy to open our eyes unto the heaven: for our conscience doeth accuse us, and our manifest iniquitie doeth beare witnes that we have declined from thee: we have bene polluted with idolatrie and supersticion: we have given thy glorie to creatures, and hath sought supporte where it was not to be founde, the manifest corruption of our lives doeth evidentlie prove how farr we have offended against thee: and against thy juste and moste holie commandements.

Above all this, we have further offended thee, O Lord, for some of us after knowledge of thy blessed wil, which of thy mercy thou hast reveled unto us, have followed the filthie pleasure of the flesh, and vanitie of this wicked worlde: we are not ignorant, O Lord, that thou art an just judge, who suffred not the iniquitie of obstinat transgressors long to be unpunished: and even now hast thou begonne to poure out thy displeasoure upon us, as thou doest threaten in thy Law, for strangers have oppressed us, they possess our tounes, and threatned bondage and selaverie to our whole nation and countrie. We do not denie, O Lord, but that our grievous offences and great unthankfulnes have deserved not onelie these temporal plagues, but also rejection from thy presence and perpetual condemnation; but, O Lord, if thou shuldest kepe in minde for ever the iniquitie of thy creatures, there shal no flesh abide thy judgement, and therefore we moste humbly beseeche thee, O Father of mercies, for Christ Jesus thy Sonnes sake, to remove the remembrance of our bypast iniquities, and by the power of thy Holie Spirit, so to govern us in all times to come, that all the actions of our life may tend to the advancement of thy glorie, and to the comfort of thy troubled flocke.

¹ This Confession afterwards altered: see supra, p. 294.

Remove from us, O Lord, all terrible thraldome of merciles strangers. And seing it hath pleased thee, now after our long blindnes and horrible defection from thee, to offer unto us the light of thy worde, and in the same remission of our sinnes, by the meanes of thy onely beloved Sonne Jesus Christ our Lord, let the same, thy grace undeserved of us, so continue with us, that to this generation, and to the posteritie to come, it may appeare that thou hast not called us in vaine frome darknes to light. Grante us this, and whatsoever thou knowest to appertaine to the manifestation of thy glorie, and to the comfort of thy troubled Church, for the merite and intercession of thy beloved Sonne Christ Jesus, our Sovereine Lord and onely Lawgiver, to whome with thee and the Holy Gost be all honor and glorie, now and ever. So be it.

ANE PRAYER, METE TO BE USED WHEN GOD THRETEENETH HIS JUDGEMENTS.

(From the Edinburgh edition of 1575.)

O Lorde our God, Father everlasting, and ful of compassion, heare from the heavens our prayers and supplications, which from our sorrowefull hearts and wounded consciences we powre forth presently before thy Majestie. Thow hast, O Lord, in the multitude of thy mercies, not onely created us reasonable creatures, but also of thy inestimable goodnes hast send the great Angel of the covenant, our Lord Jesus Christ, to redeme us, by whome thy wrath is taken away, the law is satisfied, and the power of death, of hel, and of Sathan, is broken. Moreover, when as we lay in the shadowe of death, and the feareful darknes of the soule, which was brought in by that man of perdition the Antechrist, and his suppostes, conspired enemies to thy Sonne our Lord Jesus, thou made the light of thy Evangel to shyne amongst us in such aboundance, that no Nation nor Country hath the lamp of thy treuth, showing the way to life everlasting, so clerely shyning amongst them, with these benefits spiritual it pleaseth thee of the same goodnes to conjune temporal blessinges : for whose eyes hath not sene thy potent arme fighting for us, whose heart is so blinded that it can not perceave in al our afflictions thy wondrous delyverance : who can not but confesse that alwayes we were covered under thy shadow.

Thou was our hope, our fortresse, and our God, thou coverit us under thy winges, and we were sure under thy feathers. But alas, O Lord, the consideration of thy benefits is a matter of sorrow to our wounded consciences ; for the multitude of thy blessinges convicts us of the more feareful unthankfulnes. In suche a light what is among us but works of darknes ; and so this thy great and inestimable kindnes, with unkindnes have we recompensed againe. Thou gently hast called us, and yet doest cal upon us, but who did heare ? thou thretneth, but who did tremble ? thou punisheth, but we wolde not receive correction. Ane fyre appeareth presently to be kendled in thy wrath, but where is the repentance amongst us to slocken it. O Lord, we know the dome, and insensible elements of the worlde admonisheth us, of our great unthankfulnes ; the heavy face of the heavens, the unnatural dealings in the earth, the contagion and infection of the aire, threatneth thy judgements. Those creaturs thou hast formed for mans comfort, but potent art thou who turneth that to the discomfort and hurt of them who repyneth against thee, which otherwise should have bene comfortabil. Besides al this things, we clerely see the enemies of thy trueth raging against thy Church to the judgement of man for to prevaile.

Yea further, Lorde, Satan takinge upon him the shappe of an Angel of light, is in this corrupt age moste besie, to shake the foundation of al trew religion ; that he may involve againe the blind world in fearful darknes. Thir thy judgements, O thou righteous Judge of the world, ar hid from the eyes of them whome the God of this world hath darkned. But, O Lord, when we consider them, we must tremble ; and when we behold them, we must stoupe and confesse that we have offended thy Majestie ; O Lord, we dare not be bold altogether to crave that thou wilt not correct, for we understand that by external afflictions and corrections, as certeine middes and bitter medicine, thou hailest the woundes and sores of the inwarde man. Yet, Lord, correct us in thy mercy, and not in thy fearece wrath, lest peradventure we be brused into poudre : When as the fyre departeth from thy presence, and is kindled in thy indignation, seperate us from the nombre of those above whose headdes thy righteous judgements doeth hing, and the sword of thy vengeance thretneeth eternal destruction ; and to this end and purpose creat in us newe heartes, give unto us the sprite of unfained repentance, worke in us a sorrowing for our sinnes, a detestation and hatrent of the same, together with a love unto righteousnes, that we, not being conforme to the wicked world, but making thy reveled wil a rule to lead our lyfe by, may offer ourselves up in a lively sacrifice unto thee, consecrating unto thy glorie bodie and soule, and al the actions of the same. Preserve us, good Lord, from the fearful thraldome of conscience and bondage of idolatrie : continue the light of thy glorious Gospel amongst us : repress the pryde of them who seketh to have the kandlestick removed, and the light shyning extinguished. Purge this countrie, by suche means as thou knowest to serve best for thy owne glorie, of murder, fornication, adulterie, incest, oppression, sacrilege, and such like other pestes, which hath defyled thine inheritance. Graunt us thankful heartes for thy benefites and manifold blessings powred upon us, for the whiche also open our mouthes to sound thy praises, and offer the sacrifice of thankesgeving wherein thou doste delyte ; inarme us with thy power, to stryve against Satan, against the fleshe, against the worlde, and against al those thinges which driveth us away from thyne obedience, that walking in thy pathes, and obeying thy blessed ordinances, we may so end our lyves in the sanctification of thy Name, that at last we maye atteine to that blessed immortalitie, and that crowne of glorie prepared for thine elect in Jesus Christ the King of glorie and God of immortalitie ; in whose Name we crave most humbly these thy graces to be powred upon us moste miserable sinners ; and further, as thy wisdome knoweth to be necessary for us, and for thy Church universal, disparsed upon the face of the whole earth : praying unto thee with al humilitie and submission of mynds, as we ar teached and commanded to pray, saying : OUR FATHER which art, etc.

A PRAYER IN TYME OF AFFLICTION.

(From the Edinburgh edition of 1575.)

Just and righteous art thou, O dreadful and most highe God, holy in al thy workes, and most just in al thy judgments, yea, even then when as thou punishest in greatest severitie. We have before, O Lord, felt thy heavy hand upon us, and when we cryed upon thee in our calamities and afflictions, moste mercifully thou inclyned thy ears unto us. But alas, O Lord, we have not answered in our lyves glorifying thy holy Name, as thou aunswered us when we called in oure distresse, but did returne unto our wounted sinne, and so provoketh thee through our misdedes unto displeasure : And therefore hast thou most justely turned thy self to punish us againe in bringing amongst us this noysome and destroying pest, according to the thretning of thy law, because we have not made our frute of thy former corrections. Our repentance, O Lord, hath bene like the dew that suddenly evanisheth away; yea, the great multitude abaide hardned in heart through their owne pryde, and, walking in the lusts of their owne hearts, securely contemned thy blessed ordinances. For who hath murred for the universal corruption of this blind age? or ceased the murtherer from his murther? the oppressour from his oppression? the deceitful man from his deceit? the contemner of thy word from his contempt? and the licentious liver from his licentiousnes? Yea, Lord, where could the man be found that soght not himself, albeit with the hurt of others and defacing of thy glorie? So universally did, and presently doeth, that root of al evil, covetousnes, ringe through out this whole cuntrie; yea, Lord, they to whome thou granted worldly blessings in greatest abundance, hath bene and is possessed with this uncleane spirit of avarice. The more thou gave, the more insatiabilly thyrsted they to have, and ceased not til they did spoyle thee of thy owne patrimonie; and yet in this matter they wil not knowe themselves to sinne and offend thy Majestie. Therefore can not thy Justice longer spare, but it must punishe and strike, as thou thretnest into thy holy Law. Now we know, Lord, that thy judgements commonly beginneth at thy owne house, and therefor hast thou begon for to correct us, albeit yet in thy mercie, and not in greatest severitie. Wherefore, good Lord, ether els in the multitude of thy mercies remove this bitter cuppe away from us, or graunt us thy grace paciently and obediently to drinke the same as geven out of thy owne hand for our amendement. We acknowledge, O Lord, that afflictions are molestsome, noysome, and hard to be borne with of fragil fleshe, but Christ Jesus hath suffered heaviar torments for us, and we have deserved more nor we susteine, who so oft hath merited the very hels. Yf it sal please thy Majestie to continew our punishment, and double our strypes, then lat it please thee in like means to eik our patience, and make oure corporal afflictions serve to our humiliation, invocation of thy

Name, and obedience to thy holy ordinances. Or if of a Fatherly pitie it shal please thee to be content with this gentle correction, let the calme appeare after this present tempest, that in respect of bothe the one and the other we may glorifie thee; in that first thou hast corrected to ammuendement, lest we shuld have slected in sinne to our destruction; and, secundly, that thou hast taken awaye the bitternes of affliction with the sweetnes of thy confortable deliverance: in thee first having respect to the necessitie, and in the laste to our infirmitie. But, Lord, againe we know albeit thy judgements thus begineth at thy owne house, and they of thy familie appeareth onely to be beaten of thee; yet the wicked shal not escape, but they shal drinke the dregges of the cup of thy indignation, let it be they escape the famine, the pest shal apprehend them; if they escape the pest, the sword shal devoure them; if they shal not fal in the edge of the sworde, thou art able to make any of the smallest and least creatures to be a stumblingblocke before their fete; where at, albeit they reche their heads above the clouds, they fal most fearefully. But, O Lord, now it is thine owne inheritance, for the which we sigh and grone before thy Majestie; loke upon it, therefore, from the heavens, and be merciful to thy people; let thy angre and thy wrathe be turned away from us, and make thy face to shine lovingly upon thine owne sanctuary. O Lord, heare; O Lord, forgive; O Lord, consider, grant our requestes, for thy owne sake, O our God, and that in the Name of thy onely begotten Sonne Jesus Christ, our onely Saviour and Mediatour, in whose name we pray unto thee, as we are teached, saying, OUR FATHER, etc.

A CONFESSION OF SINNES, TO BE USED BEFORE SERMON.

(From the Edinburgh edition of 1575.)

Trueth it is, O LORD, that we are unworthy to come in thy godly presence, by reason of our manifold sinnes and wickednes, much lesse ar we worthie to receave any grace or mercy at thy handes, if thou shulde deale with us according to our deservings; for we have sinned, O Lorde, against thee, and we have offended thy godlye and divine Majestie, if thou should beginne to reken with us even from our first conception in our mothers wombe, thou canst find nothing at al in us but occasion of death and eternall condemnation: for trueth it is, that first we were conceived in sinne, and in iniquitie was every one of us borne of oure mother; al the dayes of our lyfe we have so stil continued in sinne and wickednes, that rather we have geven oure selves to followe the corruption of this our fleshely nature then otherwaies, with that earnest care and diligence to serve and worship thee our God, as it become us; and therefore if thou should enter in judgement with us, just occasion hast thou not onely to punishe thir our wretched and mortal bodies, but also to punishe us bothe in bodie and soule eternally, if thou shoulde handle us according to the rigour of thy justice. Bot yet, O Lord, as on the owne part we acknowledge our owne sinnes and offences, together with the fearefull judgements of thee our God, that justly be reason thereof thou may powre upon us, so also on the other parte we acknowledge thee to be a merciful God, a loving and a favourable Father to al them that unfainedly turne unto thee. Wherefore, O Lord, we thy people, and the workmanship of thine owne handes, most humbly beseche thee, for Christ thy Sonnes sake, to shewe thy mercy upon us, and forgive us al our offences, impute not to us the sinnes of oure youth, neither yet receave thou a rekening of us for the iniquitie of our olde age; but as thou hast shoven thy self merciful to al them that hath truely called unto thee, so shew the like mercy and the lyke favour unto us thy poore servands. Indue our hearts, O God, with such a true and perfect acknowledging of our sinnes, that we may powre forth before thee the unfained sighs and sobbes of our troubled hearts and afflicted consciences for our offenses committed against thee. Inflamme our hearts with such a zeale and fervencie to-wardes thy glorie, that all the dayes of our lyfe our onely studie, travel, and labour may be to serve and worship thee our God in spirit, in trueth, and in veritie as thou requyrest of us; and that this may be the better performed in us, preserve us from al impediments and stayes that in any waies may hinder or stop us in the same; but in special, O Lord, preserve us from the craft of Satan, from the snares of the worlde, and from the noughtie lustes and affections of the fleshe. Make thy Spirit, O God, once to take such ful possession and dwelling in our hearts, that not onely al the actions of our life, but also al the wordes of our mouth, and the least thought and cogitation of oure mindes, may be gydit and rueled thereby. And, finally, graunt that al the time of oure lyfe may be so spent in thy true fear and obedience, that altogether we maye ende the same in the sanctification and honoring of thy blessed Name, through Jesus Christ our Lord; to whome with thee, and the Holy Gost, be al honour and glorie for now and for ever. So be it.

A PRAYER FOR THE KING.

(From the Edinburgh edition of 1575.)

O Lord Jesus Christ, most high, most mightie King of kinges, Lord of lords, the onely Ruler of Princes, the very Sonne of God, on whose right haude sitting, doest from thy throne behald al the dwellers upon earth, with most lowly hearts we beseche thee, vouchesave with favourable regarde to behald oure most gracious soveraigne lord, King James the Sixte,¹ and to replenish him with the grace of thy Holy Spirit, that he alway incline to thy wil and walke in thy way; kepe

¹ In later editions these words are varied. In edition 1596, they are, "the King and Queenes Majesties, and the Prince." In 1611, "the King and him farre of from ignorance, but through thy gift let prudence and knowledge alway abounde in his Royal heart; so instruct him (O Lord Jesus), ringing upon us in earth, that his humane Majestie alway obey thy Divine Majestie in feare and dreade: Indue him plentifully with heavenly gifts; graunt him in health and wealth long to live: Heap glorie and honour upon him: Glade him with the joye of thy countenance: So strengthen him, that he may vanquish and overcome al his and our foes, and be dread and feared of al the enemies of this his Realme. Amen.

Queenes Majesties, the Prince, and the rest of their Royall children." In 1635, "King Charles and his Queene, with their royall ofspring."

[In the various editions of the Book of Common Order, reprinted along with the Psalms, frequent changes continued to be made, until the General Assembly, on the 16th of May 1601, discharged any further alterations or additions without the allowance of the Assembly; and nothing was added afterwards by any lawful Assembly. Some of these additional Prayers are not here printed, as they apparently do not belong to Knox's period. In the edition by Henry Charteris at Edinburgh, 1596, there are four, entitled, "A Prayer for Repentance," p. 54; "Ane Confession that shall go before the reading of the Lawe, and before everie Exercise," p. 56; "An other Confession," p. 59; and "A Prayer to prepare us to Die well," p. 78. In the Collection of Confessions, etc., vol. ii. p. 268, we also find one with this title, "A Christian Exposition upon the Lord's Prayer," given from an undescribed edition printed in the year 1600; and in the editions at Middleburgh 1602, and Edinburgh 1611, there is added "A Commentarie upon the first verse of the 122 Psalme, written by the learned Doctor M. L." (Martin Luther), but the translator's name is not mentioned.]

THE ORDER OF THE GENERAL FAST, AND THE FORM OF EXCOMMUNICATION, APPROVED BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF
THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND

M.D.LXVI.—M.D.LXIX.

THE following pages serve to complete the series of Confessions, Orders, and Forms, of public authority in the Church of Scotland, at the period of the Reformation. Knox having had a chief hand in preparing these standards in matters of Doctrine and Discipline, a few explanatory remarks may not be unsuitable.

The establishment of the Reformed Religion in this country is associated with the CONFESSIO OF FAITH, when it was ratified by the Three Estates assembled in Parliament at Edinburgh on the 17th of August 1560. This Confession, consisting of twenty-five Articles or Chapters, is already printed from the original edition,¹ along with two Acts against the Sacrifice of the Mass, and the Jurisdiction of the Pope within this Realm.

The point that next demanded the serious attention of the Protestant Church was a form of Policy, which, says Knox, "by the Papists was altogether defaced."² The Parliament having been dissolved, consultation was held how this might best be accomplished; and it resulted in a commission and charge being given to Knox and other four ministers, "to draw in a volume the Policy and Discipline of the Kirk, as well, or in the same manner as they had done the Doctrine."³ Having for this end prepared the BOOK OF DISCIPLINE, it was submitted to the nobility, and others, by many of whom it was approved; but certain conditions, in the form of marginal notes and additions, were made by the Lords of Council, as expressed in the Act subscribed by them on the 27th of January 1560-61.⁴

According to this scheme, certain wise and liberal measures

¹ Knox's Works, vol. ii. pp. 91-120.

² Ibid. p. 128.

² Ibid. p. 128.

⁴ Ibid. p. 257.

were recommended for the appropriation of the rents and possessions justly appertaining to the Church, so that, in the first instance, an adequate provision should be made for the support of the ministry; that a grammar school should be erected in every parish for the instruction of youth; that the three Universities should be well endowed, and the course of study in each of the Colleges regulated according to the plan laid down; and further, that the necessitous Poor should be maintained. The proposed Book of Discipline, it is well known, was never sanctioned by any public enactment of the Legislature. In addition to the rigorous and impartial exercise of discipline, it unfortunately happened that the worldly interests of some "of the Professors" were affected by such an appropriation of the Church's patrimony which many of the nobility and courtiers had secured for themselves; and for several years the Protestant ministers were kept in nearly a state of starvation. I have already inserted this Book of Discipline in volume second,¹ from what may be reckoned the most authentic copy that has reached our times; and the only one in which the notes and additions alluded to appear in their original form, a portion of the manuscript being apparently the actual copy submitted to the Lords of Council.²

Upon the occasion of Mr. John Spottiswood, minister of Calder, being admitted Superintendent of Lothian and Tweeddale, on the 9th of March 1560-61, Knox had prepared "THE FORME AND ORDER OF THE ELECTION OF SUPERINTENDENTS;" and also "THE ORDER OF ELECTION OF ELDERS AND DEACONS." These

¹ Knox's Works, pp. 183-258.

² Ibid. p. 207. It forms a portion of Knox's MS. 1566. See vol. i. p. xxxi. and vol. ii. p. 201.—In the footnote at p. 183, in describing the 1621 edition of the First and Second Books of Discipline, I had overlooked another edition, published under this title: "The Doctrine and Discipline of the Kirke of Scotland, as it was formerly set forth by publicke authority, And at this present commanded there to be practised in the said Kirke, Anno 1641, etc. [London] Printed by Rob. Young, his Majesties Printer for Scotland, and are to be sold by John Sweeting, at the signe of the Angell in Popes-head-Allie, 1641," pp. xi. 100.

Forms were intended to serve on future occasions, and they are inserted in his History of the Reformation.¹

THE BOOK OF COMMON ORDER, contained in the division which immediately precedes this, was found to be no less indispensable. It superseded the proposed use of the English Book of Common Prayer, and was an adaptation of what had been received by the English Congregation at Geneva. This Book consisted of a set of Prayers and Offices for the common occasions of the Church, along with the Forms to be employed in administering the Sacraments of Baptism and the Lord's Supper. As already shown, the volume which also contained a metrical version of the Psalms, and a translation of Calvin's Catechism, was sanctioned by the General Assembly on the 26th of December 1564.

There now remain to be added two separate treatises, which accompany several later editions of that volume: THE TREATISE ON FASTING, 1566, and the FORM OF EXCOMMUNICATION, 1569, with a few public Letters of the time, which were prepared by Knox under the direction of the General Assembly. A general Fast, it may be remarked, was not then regarded as a mere nominal observance; while the sentence of Excommunication involved very serious consequences, both of a civil and religious kind.

After this enumeration, it may be observed, that various offices in the Church, which are mentioned in the Books of Discipline and of Common Order, were not permanent, but were, in the course of a few years, either laid aside or modified, when found to be inexpedient. Such were the several classes of Superintendents and Commissioners, of Readers and Exhorters, and of Doctors or Teachers.

It has been maintained, that by the election of SUPERINTENDENTS, the Episcopal form of Diocesan Bishops was recognised. But the office was merely of a temporary nature, in order that many parishes or localities should not be wholly deprived of religious oversight and instruction. In July 1560 as the Committee of Parliament had nominated ministers only to some of the principal towns, it became necessary to provide a remedy, that "the greatest part of this Realme should not be destitute of all doctrine." It was, therefore, proposed, that the country should be divided into ten or twelve districts, each to have a special Superintendent, whose duty it was to visit and preach in the several churches, but not to remain beyond a limited time in any one place. They had also authority "to plant" or admit persons, who, upon examination, were found suitable for vacant congregations; and to see that all beneficed persons should be resident, and not allowed to neglect their proper duties.

¹ Knox's Works, vol. ii. pp. 143-150, and 151-154.

The number of persons elected as Superintendents never exceeded the five who were first chosen. The office was one of a very arduous nature. It conferred no degree of superiority over their brethren; it had no great pecuniary advantage; while, like other members, they were subject to be censured, superseded, or deposed by the General Assembly. As their number was never increased, the Assembly from time to time appointed Commissioners or Visitors for special districts.

The Superintendents who were nominated by the Committee of Parliament, in July 1560, were—

JOHN CARSWELL, for Argyle and the Isles.

JOHN ERSKINE of Dun, for Angus and Mearns.

JOHN SPOTTISWOOD, for Lothian and Tweeddale.

JOHN WILLOCK, for Glasgow and the West.

JOHN WYNNAME, for Fife.

On the 25th December 1563, when the Superintendents were tried by the General Assembly, Spottiswood requested the Assembly to give him license to return to his former cure, as minister of Calder, "because he was not able to discharge so great a burthen as he was burthened with." It was complained of Wynrame that he did not preach during his visitations, leaving the duty to the minister of the parish. Willock was also censured for not endeavouring to procure the extermination of idolatry within his bounds. He also desired to be disburdened of the great charge lying upon him, and which he had undertaken only for a time. Erskine, it was said plainly, allowed discipline to be neglected in many kirks of Angus and Mearns; that he preached not in his visitations; and that, being burdened with the visitation of the North, he could not attend upon the charge allotted him. Carswell not being present, was passed over unchallenged. The question, Whether Superintendents ought to preach in all the kirks where they did visit, was reserved to be discussed at the end of the Assembly.¹

In addition to these five Superintendents, the Assembly, on the penult of June 1562, refused the petition of Alexander Gordon, formerly Bishop of that diocese, to be acknowledged as Superintendent of Galloway, in virtue of an alleged presentation either by the Lords of Secret Council or province of Galloway.² In December following, he was again put in nomination, with Superintendents for Aberdeen and other places, but the hail Kirk remitted this to further advisement. "Here," Calderwood remarks, "we may see, that the Bishops converted from Poperie were not suffered to exerce jurisdiction ecclesiasticall, by virtue of their Episcopall office."³ In June 1563, the necessity of the case urging them, the Assembly granted license to the Bishops of Galloway, Orkney, and Caithness, for the space of one year, "to plant kirks" within their own bounds.⁴

READERS and EXHORTERS were persons in like manner appointed to officiate in particular congregations, to which no minister had been provided. At this time three or four churches

¹ Calderwood, vol. ii. p. 244; and Booke of the Kirk, vol. i. p. 39.

² Ibid. vol. ii. p. 184; and vol. i. p. 15.

³ Calderwood, vol. ii. p. 207.

⁴ Ibid. p. 224; and vol. i. p. 32.

were grouped together, having a Minister in the principal church, and Readers in others, under his superintendence. Their duty was limited to reading the Scriptures and Common Prayers, with liberty, when qualified, to explain the Scriptures read, and exhort the people—hence the name Exhorter. But this title, after a few years, was silently dropped; and, in July 1580, when the matured scheme of Presbyterian Church government was unfolded in the Second Book of Discipline, it was concluded that the office of Reader “is no ordinary office within the Kirk of God.” It was accordingly in a great measure abolished, and probably most of those who had been so denominated were recognised as ministers; but we may conclude, that although not permitted to dispense the Sacraments, or to conduct the stated services of preaching and extempore prayers, their training as Scripture Readers may have qualified them for the higher position in the ministry.

“At the Assembly,” says Knox,¹ “in December 1562, great complaints were made that churches lacked ministers; that ministers lacked their stipends,” etc. Similar complaints were repeatedly made; and in the Letter, written in the name of the Superintendents to the Faithful, dated the 25th of December 1565, the “extreme necessity of new ministers” is strongly represented.² Thus to show the difficulties with which the Reformers had to contend between 1567 and 1571, according to the Register, there were 988 churches with 289 ministers and 715 readers, the places of 20 ministers and 97 readers not being supplied.

I may refer to an introductory note to the Register of Ministers and Readers in the year 1574, contained in the Wodrow Miscellany, for some general notices on the subject; and also to Principal Lee’s Account of the First Book of Discipline, in his Lectures on the History of the Church.

¹ Vol. ii. p. 363.

² See the letter subjoined to the Order of Fasting.

In England, judging from Bishop Jewel's account of the miserable state of the English Protestant clergy in 1570, it was long before adequate provision was made for their support, arising from the same cause, the greediness of the laity in retaining the Church lands and tithes in their own hands.

In the year 1565, the Commissioners of the General Assembly, Mr. John Craig and others, who had been appointed "to collect the heads and causes of the publick Fast," returned, and, on the 28th of December, "declared the necessitie of a publick Fast at this time; therefore the Assemblie, with ane voice, ordained Mr. Knox and Mr. Craig ministers at Edinburgh, to set out the Forme thereof, with the Exercise to be used in the same, and to cause Robert Lekprevik print it."²

The Order and Form was accordingly prepared and printed in the little volume, of which the facsimile title is given at page 391. It was to be observed for eight days, from the last Sunday of February to the first Sunday of March 1565-6. Yet Calderwood says, "The first and second Lord's day of May was celebrated universallie, and was the first Public Fast which we had after the Reformation: which Exercise became frequent afterwards;"³ and, perhaps mistaking it for another year, he afterwards states, "that the Assembly, on the 26th of June, appointed a General Fast to take place on the last two Sabbaths of July nixt, and the Communion to be ministred upon the saids Lord's days, if it may be done convenientlie."⁴ Again, on the 8th of March 1568-9, it was concluded "by the hail Brethren assemblit, that a Generall Fasting be proclaiimit throughout all Scotland, to begin in Lothian, Fyfe, and such uther places as may receive advertisement, the 13th day of this instant."⁵

Upon the occasion of a similar Fast, this Order was reprinted

¹ Calderwood's History, vol. ii. p. 304.

⁴ Calderwood's History, vol. ii. p. 324.

² Booke of the Kirk, vol. i. p. 76.

⁵ Ibid. vol. ii. p. 486; Booke of the

³ Calderwood's History, vol. ii. p. 317.

Kirk, vol. i. p. 138.

by Lekprevik in 1574, when the time of the Fast was changed, with a slight addition which is annexed, and also a facsimile of the title. This copy has frequently been reprinted, in the volume of Prayers and Psalms, by Vautrollier, Charteris, Hart, and others. Lekprevik's two editions are very rare. The marginal notes and references only occur in the edition of 1566.

In regard to "The Form of Excommunication," the General Assembly, on more than one occasion, must have had the subject before them; as we find, that on the 28th of June 1563, "Mr. Knox was requested to put in order the Forme and Manner of Excommunication;"¹ and on the 25th of June 1567, the Assembly nominated some of the members "to revise the Order of Excommunication penned be Mr. Knox, and to report their judgement to the Assemblie."² In July 1568, Messrs. Willock, Craig, and other five ministers were again appointed "to revise the Form and Order to be used in Excommunication, which is penned be Mr. Knox at the desire of the Assemblie, and to report their judgments."³ This treatise, Calderwood adds, is "extant in our Psalm Books."⁴ Their attestation is subjoined to all the copies; and, according to the title-page, it was commanded to be printed by order of the General Assembly, in June (July) 1569. The Editor of the Collection of Confessions,⁵ had the use of the first edition, printed in that year, but it is of such rarity, that the only copy I have been able to discover is preserved in a volume of early Scottish tracts in the Archiepiscopal Library at Lambeth, from which I have given the title-page in facsimile. But this Form of Excommunication was reprinted by Henry Charteris in 1596, by Andrew Hart in 1611, and it also occurs in some of the later editions of the Prayers and Psalms, as well as in the Collection of Confessions.

¹ Booke of the Kirk, from Calderwood, vol. i. p. 37.

² Ibid. p. 93.

³ Ibid. p. 131.

⁴ Calderwood's History, vol. ii. p. 424.

⁵ Edin. 1722, vol. ii.

THE ORDOVR AND DOCTRINE OF THE GENERALL
FASTE, APPOINTED be the Generall Af-femblic of the Kirkes of Scotland.
halden at Edinburgh the 25.
day of December. 1565.

Ioel 2.

Therefore also now the Lord sayeth, Turne yow vnto me with all your heart, and with Fastig, & with weaping, and with murning.

IMPRINTED AT EDINBURGH
BE ROBERT LEKPREVIK
ANNO. DOM. 1566.

THE ORDOVRE AND

DOCTRINE OF THE GENERALL

Faſt, appointed be the Generall Affembly of the Kirkes of Scotland. Halden at Edinburgh the 25. day of December 1565.

Ioel. 2.

Therefore alſo now the Lord ſayeth, Turne yow vnto me with all your hart, and with Faſting, and with weaping, and with murning.

IMPRENTED AT EDINBURGH BE
Robert Lekpreuik. Anno. 1574.

Small 8vo, roman letter, not paged,—contains A to D in eights, E in four, and F in 2.

THE SUPERINTENDENTES, MINISTERS, AND COMMISSIONERS OF KIRKES REFORMED, WITHIN THE REALME OF SCOTLAND, CONVENED IN THE GENERALL ASSEMBLIE, AT EDINBURGH, THE 25 DAY OF DECEMBER 1565. TO ALL THAT TREWLY PROFESSE THE LORD JESUS WITHIN THE SAME REALME, OR ELS WHERE, WISHE GRACE AND MERCY FROM GOD THE FATHER, AND FROM HIS ONELY SONE OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST, WITH THE PERPETUALL CONFORT OF THE HOLIE SPIRITE.

The present Troubles being somewhat considered, but greater feared shortly to follow, it wes thought expedient (dearelie beloved in the Lord Jesus) that the whole Faithfull within this Realme shuld together and at one time, prostrat themselves before their God, craving of him pardone and mercy ; for the great abuse of his former benefites, and the assistance of his Holy Spirite, by whose mightie operation we may yet so convert to our God, that we provoke him not to take from us the lyght of his Evangel, which he of his mercie hath caused so clearly of laite dayes to shine within this Realme.

But because that suche publicte Supplicationes requyre alwayes Fast- ing to be joyned therewith, and publict Fastynge craveth a certane time, and certane exercises of godlynes then to be used with greater streat- nes then at uther tymes ; the whole Assemblie, after deliberation, hath appointed the last Sonday of February, and the first Sonday of Marche nixt following the date of the said Assemblie,¹ to that moste necessare exercise (as tyme now standeth) of publict Fasting. And further, did require the same to be signified be all Ministers to their people the Sonday preceeding the said last Sonday of Februarie.²

But least that the Papistes shall think that now we begin to autho- rise and praise that which some tymes we have reprovved and dampned in them ; or els that the ignorant, who knowe not the commoditie of this moste godlie exercyse, shall contempne the same ; we have thoght expedient some what to speak to the one and to the uther. And unto the Papistes, First, we say, that as in puritie of conscience we have refused their whole abominations, and, amongst the rest, that their superstitious and Pharisaeicall maner of Fasting ; so even unto this day do we continew in the same purpose, boldely affirming that their Fasting is no Fasting that ever God approved, but that it is a deceaving of the people, and a meare mocking of God, which moste evidentlie will appeare. If in the Scriptures we searche what is the ryght end of Fasting, what Fasting pleased God, and which it is that his soul abhorreth.

¹ In the edition 1574, the time ap- pointed for the Fast, was "The second Sonday of May, and the third nixt fol- lowing."

² "The Sunday immediatelie before the said second Sonday of May." (Edit. 1574.)

Of Fasting, in the Scriptures we finde two sortes ; the one private, the other publicte. The private, is that which man or woman doeth in secrete, and before their God, for such causes as their owen conscience beareth record unto them. As David, during the time that his Sone, which was begotten in adulterie, wes struken with mortall seicknes, fasted, weapt, and lay upon the ground, because that in the seicknes of the Chylde he did consider Godes displeasure against him self ; for the removing whereof he fasted, murned, and prayed unto such tyme as he saw Godes wil fulfilled, by the awaytaking of the Chylde. Privatlie fasted Anna, wyfe to Alcana,¹ even in the verray Solempne Feastes, during the time of hir barrennes ; for she weapt and eat nothing, but in the bitternes of hir heart she prayed unto the Lord ; nether ceased she from sorow and murning, unto suche tyme as Eli the hie preist concurred with her in prayers, by whose mouth, after that he had hard her petifull complaint, she received conforte.

Of this Fasting, speaketh oure Maister, Jesus Christ, in these words, " When ye fast, be not sowl as the Hypocrytes, for they disfigure their faces that they may seme unto men to fast ; but thow, when thow fastest, anoynt thy heade and washe thy face, that thow seame not unto men to fast, but unto thy Father which seeth in secrete, and will rewarde thee opynly."² Of the same no dout speaketh the Apostle, when that he sayeth, " Defraude not one another, except it be with consent for a tyme, that ye may give yourselves to Fasting and prayer."³

To this private Fasting, which standeth chiefly in a temperat dyet, and in powring furthe of our secrete thoughtes and necessities before God, can be prescribed no certane rule, certane tyme, nor certane ceremonies ; but as the Causes and ocasioness why that exercise is used are divers (yea, so divers that seldome it is that many at ones are moved with one cause), so are diet, tyme, together with all uther circumstances, requyred to suche Fasting, put in the libertie of them that use it. To this Fasting we have bene faithfully and earnestly exhorted by oure Preachers, as oft as the Scriptures, which they entreated, offered unto them occasion. And we dout not but the godlie within this Realme have used the same as necessitie craved, albeit with the Papistes we blew no trumpetes, to appoynt thereto certane dayes.

¹ In edit. 1574, " wyfe to Elcana."—¹ Sam. 1. ² Math. 6. ³ 1 Cor. 7.

The uther kynde of Fasting is publict; so called, because that it is openlie avowed, some tymes of a Realme, some tymes of a multitude, some tymes of a cietie, and some tymes of a meaner company, yea, some tymes of particulare persones, and yet publictly used, and that for the wealth of a multitude. The Causes thereof are also divers;¹ for sometymes the feare of ennimies, some tymes the angrie face of God punishing, some tymes his threatning to distroy, some tymes iniquitie deprehended that ryghtlie before wes not considered, and some tymes the earnest zeale that some beare for preservation of Godes people, for advancing of his glorie, and performing of his worke according to his promes, move men to publicte Fasting, confession of their sinnes, and solemnpned prayers, for defence against their ennimies, recovering of Godes favoures, removing of his plagues, preservation of his people, and setting fordwarde of that worke, which he hath of his mercie promised to finishe, as in the subsequent probationes evidently shall appeare.

When Messingers came to Josaphat, saying, "There cometh a great multitude against thee, from beyond the sea, out of Aram (that is Syria), etc.,² Josaphat feared, and set him self to seke the Lord, and proclaimed a Faste throughout all Juda. And Juda gathered them selves together, to aske counsall of the Lord; they come even out of all the cieties of Juda to inqyre of the Lord. And Josaphat stoode in the congregation of Juda and Jerusalem, in the hous of the Lord, before the new court; and all Juda stoode before the Lord with their yonge ones, their wyfes and their chyldrene. And Josaphat said, O Lord God of our fathers, are not thow God in heaven, and reignest not thow in all Kingdomes of the heathen? And in thy hand is power and myght, and none is able to withstand thee.³ Haste not thow, our God, east out the inhabitantes of this land before thy people Israell, and haste given it to the sead of Abraham, thy freind, for ever? etc. But now the Amorytes, and Moabytes, and the Mont Seir, ar come to cast us out of thy possession. O Lord our God, shall thow not judge them? In us there is no strength to stand against this great multitude that commeth against us, nether knowe we what to do; but unto thee are our eyes bent, etc." Of this Historie we have the first Cause of publict Fasting, and the solemnpnitie thereof sufficiently proven. For the feare of ennimies compelled Josaphat to seik the Lord; he knowing him selfe burdened with the care of the people, exhorted them to do the same. They fra all cieties and quarters repared to Jerusalem, whereupone a statute daye the King and the people, yea, wyves and chyldrene, presented them selves before the Lord, in his holy Temple,⁴ exponed their necessitie, implored his helpe against that enraged multitude, that always ¹ Causes that ought to move men to publict Fasting.

² The prayer of Josaphat.

⁴ The ceremonie of publicte Fasting.

² 2 Paral. i. 20.

wes ennimie to Godes people, and gave open confession of their owen weaknes, leaning onely to the promes and protection of the Omnipotent. Which exemple, we and everie people likewyse assaulted, may and ought to follow in everie poynt. This onely excepted, that we are not bound to convene at any one appoynted place, as they did at Jerusalem. For to no one certane and severall place is that promes made, that then wes made to the Temple at Jerusalem,¹ which wes, that whatsoever men in their extremitie shuld ask of God in it, God shuld grant it from his holie habitation in the heaven. Jesus the Messias, then looked for, whose presence wes sought in the mercie seat, and betuix the Cherubennes, is now entered within the vale, that is, in the heaven, and there abydeth onely Mediator for us, unto whome, from all the coastes of the earth, we may lift up pure handes,² direct our prayers, supplicationes, and complaintes, and be assured that they shalbe received, in whatsoever place we convene. And yet, in tyme of suche publict exercyses, we wolde wishe that all men and wemen shuld repaire to suche places as their conscience may be best instructed, their Faith moste edified, repentance moste lively sturred up in them, and they by Godes worde may be moste assured that their just petitions shall not be repelled: Which thinges can not be done so lively in secrete and private meditation as that they are in publict Assemblie, where Christ Jesus is trewly preached: And this muche shortlie for the Firste head.

Of the Second, to wit, that the angrie face of God punishing aught to dryve us to publicte fasting, and humiliation of our soules before our God, we have two notable exemples, the one written in Josua; who, hearing and understanding that Israell had turned the back before the Cananites, and the elders of Israel rent their clothes, fell upone their faces before the Arke of the Lord unto the nyght,³ and caste dust upone their heades, in signe of their humiliation and dejection. The uther is expressed in the booke of the Judges; where Israell, being commanded by God to fight against Benjamin,⁴ because that they menteaned wicked men that deserved death, loste the first day twentie two thousand of their armie, and the second day eightene thousand. At the firste lose they were lyghtlie touched, and asked counsall if they shulde renew the battel; but at the second overthrow, the whole people repared unto the hous of the Lord, sat there, weapt before the Lord, and fasted that day unto the night; for then began they to consider Godes angrie face against them.

In this last historie there appeareth just cause why the people shulde have rune to the onely refuge of God, because that their first armie of fourtie thousand men wes utterlie destroyed. But what just occasion

¹ The promeis made to the temple of Jerusalem is now to be sought in Christe Jesus. Hebr. 7.

² In edit. 1574, "to lyft up oure handes;" 1 Tim. 2.

³ Josua, 7.

⁴ Judj. 20.

had Josua so lamentable to complaine,¹ yea, so boldly as it were to accuse God, that he had deceived him in that, that against his promeis he had suffered Israell to fall before their ennimies. Wes the lose of thrette men (no mo fel that day in the edge of the sword) so great a mater, that he shuld despare of any better successe, that he shulde accuse God that he had brought them over Jordane, and that he shuld feare that the whole army of the Lord shuld be inveroned aboute, and consumed in the rage of their ennimies? Yea, if Israell had onely looked no further then to the lose of the fourty thousand men, they had bene but feable soldioures, for they had sufficient strength remaning behinde; for what were fourtie thousand, in respect of all the trybes of Israell?

Nay, nay, (deare Brethren) it wes an uther thing then the present lose, that terrified and effrayed their consciences, and made them so effeminatlie (so wold fleshe judge) to complaine, weap, and owle before God; to wit, they saw his angrie face against them; they saw his hand fortifie their ennimies, and to fight against them, whome both he had commanded to fight, and had promised to give them victorie.² For everie commandement of God to do any thing against his ennimies hath included within it a secrete promes of his godly assistance; which they fand not in the beginning of their interpryses; and therefore they did consider the fearcenes of his displeasure, and did tremble before his angrie face, whose myghtie hand they fand to fight against them; and that wes the cause of their dolorous complaints, and fearfull crying before their God. What wes the cause that God delt so framedly³ with the one, and with the uther? We may perchance somewhat speak, when that we shall entreat of the frutes of Fasting, and of those thinges that may holde back from us the assistance of God, even when we prepare us to put his commandement in execution.

The Thride Cause of publict Fasting, is Godes threatninges pronounced, ether against a multitude, or against a persone in particulare. Of the former the exemple is Ninivie, unto the which Jonas cryed, Yet fourtie dayes, and Ninivie shalbe destroyed: which unpleasing tydinges cumming to the eares of the King, he proclamed a Faste, he humbled his owen soule, yea, even to sackcloth, and sitting in the duste, he straitlie commanded reformation of maners in all estates, yea, and that signes of repentance, of terroures, and feare, shuld appeare,⁴ not onely in men and wemen, but also in the brute beastes from whome wes all kynde of nurishment commanded to be withdrawen, to witnes that they feared aswell Godes judgementes to fall upone the creatures that served them in their impietie, as upone them selves that had provoked God to that hote

¹ Let his complaint be noted.

² Everie commandement of God to do any thing hes the secrete promes of his assistance.

³ In edit. 1574, "dealt sa fremmedlie."

⁴ What shall becume of the hardnes of our heartes in these dayes.—(Marginal notes.)

displeasure. Of the uthere the exemple is moste notable (moste notable we say) because that it fell in a wicked man, to wit, in Achab, who by instigation of his wicked wyfe Jesebell, saulde him self to do all iniquitie. And yet, when that he hard the fearefull threatninges of God pronounced by the Prophet Elias¹ against him, against his wyfe and hous, he rent his royall garmentes, put on sackcloth, sleipt therein, fasted, and yead baire-footed. What enseeded the one and the uthere of these, we shall after heare.

The Fourt Cause of publict Fasting and murning (for they two muste ever be joynd), is iniquitie deprehended, that before wes not ryghtly considered. The testimony whereof we have in Esdras, after the reduction of the captivitie, and that the temple and the work of the Lordes hous wes stayed. It wes shawen unto Esdras, that the people of Israell, the Preistes and the Levites,² were not seperat from the people of the nations, but that they did according to their abominations; for they maryed unto them selves, and unto their sonnes, the daughters of the Cananites, the Pherisites, Hithetes, Jebusites, Ammorites, Moabites, and Egiptiens, so that the holy sead wes mixt with profane Idolateris: which thing being understand and more deaply considered then it wes before, for then Esdras sawe just cause why the worke of the Lord prospered not in their handes. This considered, we say Esdras taking upone him the sinne and offence of the whole people, rent his clothes, and pulled furth the heares of his head and beard, sat as a man desolate of all conforte till the evening Sacrifice; and then rysing, he bowed his kneis, and streached furth his hande before the Lord, and made a moste semple and humble confession of all the enormities that were committed be the people, aswell before the Captivitie as after their returning; and ceased not his lamentable complaint unto suche tyme as a great multitude of men, wemen, and childrene, moved by his exemple,³ weapt vehementlie, and promised redres of that present disordour and impietie.

Of the last Cause of publict Fasting, to wit, the zeale that certane persones beare for preservation of Godes people, for advancing of his glorie, and performing of his worke according to his promes: we have examples in Mardocheus, Daniell, and in the faithfull assembled at Antioche.⁴ For when that Mardocheus herd of that cruell sentence, which, by the procurement of Haman, wes pronounced against his Nation; to wit, that upone a day, statute and affixed, shuld the Jewes, in all the provinces of the King Artaxarses, be destroyed, oulde and yong, men and wemen, and that their substance shuld be exponed in pray.⁵ This bloody sentence, we say, being herd, Mardocheus rent

¹ 1 Reg. 11.

² 1 Esdr. 9.

⁴ Ester. 4; Daniel 9; Actes 13.

³ O! that Scotland wolde follow this obedience.

⁵ So intend the Papistes this day.—
(Marginal notes.)

his clothes, put on Sackcloth, and Ashes past furth in the midst of the cietie, and cryed with a great and bitter crye; and, coming to the Kinges gate, gave knowledge to Ester what crueltie wes decreed against the Nation of the Jewes, willing her to make intercession to the king in the contrare, who, efter certane excuses, said,¹ "Go and gather all the Jewes that are in Susan, and faste for me, eat not, nor drinke not, thre dayes and thre nyghtes; and I also, and my handmades, shall likewyse faste, and then shall I enter unto the King, although that I shuld perishe."

In this we may clearely se that the zeale that Mardocheus had to preserve the people of God, moved not onely him self to publict fasting, but also Ester, the Quene, her maides, and the whole Jewes that hard of the murther intended, and moved Ester also to hazart her lyfe in going unto the King without his commandement.

Of the uther, to wit, that the earnest desyre that God's servandes have that God will performe his promes, and manteane the worke that he hath begune, exemple we have in Daniell,² and in the Actes of the Apostles. For Daniell, understanding the nomber of the yeares forespoken by the Prophet Jeremie, that Jerusalem shuld ly waist, to have bene completit in the first yeare of the reigne of Darius, turned him self unto God, fasted [humbled] him self in sackcloth and ashes, and with unfeaned confession of his owen sinnes, and of the sinnes of the people, he vehementlie prayed, That according to the promises, some tymes made be Moyses, and after rehearsed by the prophet Isay and Jeremie, he wolde suddingly send them deliverance, and that he wolde not delay it for his owen Names sake.³

When the Gentiles began to be illuminated,⁴ and that Anteochoia had so boldely received the Evange of Jesus Christ, that the disciples in it first of all tooke upone them the name of Christianes: The principall men of the same Church, thrusting no dout that the kingdome of Jesus Christ shulde further be enlarged, and that the multitude of the Gentiles shuld be instructed in the ryght way of salvation, fasted and prayed, and, whil that they wer so exercised, charge wes given that Paule and Barnabas shuld be seperated frome the rest, to the worke whereunto God had called them, etc.⁵

Of these former Histories and Scriptures, we may clearely se for what causes publict Fasting and generall supplicationes have bene made in the Church of God, and ought to be made when that ever the lyke necessities appeare, or occasions are offered. Now let us shortly heare what conforte and frute ensewed the same; for the ennemie, yea, the murtherer of all godly exercise, is desperation; for with what courage can any man with continuance call upone God, if he shall disperatly dout whether God shall accept his prayer or not? How shall he humble him self before his throne, or to what end shall he confesse his offence, if he be not perswaded that there is mercy and good will in God to pardone his sinnes, to accept him in favour, and to grant unto him more then his owen heart, in the middest of his dolour can requyre or ymagine.

¹ Ester. 4. ² Daniel 9. ³ Deut. 30; Jerem. 31. ⁴ Actes 11. ⁵ Act 13.

Trew it is, that this vennome of disperation is never throughlie purged from our heartes, so long as we cary this mortall carcasse. But yet the constant promises of our God, and the manyfolde documentes of his mercy and help, shoven unto men in their greatest extremitie, ought to animat us to follow their exemple, and to hope for the same successe that they have gotten abufe mannes expectation. Josaphat, after his humiliation¹ and prayer, obtened the victorie, with out the lose of any of his soldioures; for the Lord reased Ammon and Moab against the inhabitantes of Mount Seir, who being utterly destroyed,² everie one of the enemies of God's people, lift his sworde against another, till that of that godles multitude, there was not one left alive. Josua and the Israelites after their dejection wer comforted againe. Ninive was preserved, albeit that Jonas had cryed destruction. Yea, Achab, notwithstanding all his ungodlynnes,³ lost not the frute of his humiliation, but wes recompensed with delay of the uttermoste of the plagues, during his lyfetye. The murning of Esdras wes turned into joy, when that he saw the people willing to obey God, and the worke of the hous of the Lord to go fordwart. The bitter crying of Mardocheus, and the painefull fasting of Ester, were abundantly rewarded, when not onely wes the people of God preserved, but Haman their mortall enimie wes hanged upon the same gallous that he had prepared for Mardocheus.

Daniell, after his fasting, confession, and prayer, gat moste notable revelationes and assurance, that his people shuld be delivered, yea, that in all extremities they shuld be preserved, till that the Messias promysed unto them shuld come, and manifestly showe him self. And the godly of Anteochea wer not frustrate of their conforte, when they herd how potently God had wrought amongst the Gentiles, by the ministerie of Barnabas and Paule. So that we may boldely conclude, that as God hath never despised the petitions of such as with unfeaned heartes have sought his comfort in their necessities, so will he not send us away emptie and voyd, if with trew repentance we seak his face.

If any wolde aske, In what extremitie we finde our selves now to be that heretofore we have not sene, and what are the occasiones that shuld move us now to humble our selves before our God by Publict Fasting, more then that we did in the beginning, when this Evangile

¹ The frutes of trew Fasting, and unfeaned invocation of God.

² Let so thy enemies perishe, O Lord.

³ Unfeaned humiliation temporally profiteth the verray reprobat.—(Marginal notes.)

wes now last offered unto us, for then, by all apperance, we and it in our persones stode in greater danger, then we do yet? We answer, that the causes are mo then for greif of heart we can expresse. First, because that in the beginning we had not refused God's graces,¹ but contrariwyse with such fervencie we received them, that we could beare with no kinde of impietie; but for the suppressing of the same we nether had respect to frende, possession, land, or lyfe, but all we put in hasard that God's treuth myght be advansed, and idolatrie myght be suppressed. And, therefore did our God, by the mouth of his messingers, in all our adversities, assure us that our ennimies shuld not prevale against us, but that they shuld be subdewed under us, that our God shuld be glorified in our semple and upryght dealing.² But now, sence that carnall wisdome hath perswaded us to beare with manifest idolatrie, and to suffer this Realme, which God hath once purged, to be polluted againe with that abhominacion; yea, alace, since that some of us, that God made sometymes instrumentes to suppress that impietie, have bene the cheif men to conduct and convoy that Idole throughout all the quarters of this Realme; yea, to the houses of them that sometymes detested the Masse, as the Devill and his service; sence that time, we say, we have found the face of our God angrie against us, his threatenings have bene sharpe in the mouthes of his Messingers; which albeit for the tyme we dispysed and mocked, yet the just experience convicteth us that we were wicked, and that they in threatning us did nothing but the dewtie of God's trew Messingers.³

And this is the Second cause that move us to this publict humiliation, rather now then in the beginning; to wit, that then we followed God, and not carnall wisdome, and therefore made he few in number fearefull to many, fooles before the world to confound the wyse, and such as before never had experience in armes, made God so bolde and so prosperous in all their interpryses, that the expertest souldiours feared the poore plowmen; yea, our God faught for us by sea and by land, he moved the heartes of strangers to supporte us, and to spend their lives for our releif. But now, alace, we se no signe of his former favour, for wisdome or manhead, strength and freindes, honour and blood, joyned with godlynes, are fallen before our eyes, to let us understand what shall be our destruction, if in time we turne not to our God, before that his wrathe be further kindled. But this is not the end: For esperance (or at least some opinion) had men before that God shulde move the Quenis Majesties heart, to heare the blissed Evangle of Jesus Christ truclie preached, and so consequentlie that she shuld abandone all Idolatrie and fals Religion: But now she hath given answer in plaine wordes, that that Religion in which she hath bene nourished (and that is meare abhominatioun) she will manteane and defend. And in declaratioun thereof, of laite dayes, there is erected a displayed baner against Jesus Christ. For corrupted Hypocrites, and suche as have bene knowen deceavers of the people, are now authorized to spew out their vennome against Jesus Christ, his eternall trueth, and trew Messingers of the same. That Idole, the Masse, is now againe in divers places erected. And what hereof may ensew, yea, or what we may looke shalbe the end of suche unhappy beginnings, we desyre the godly deaply to consider.

¹ Causes that now move us to faste, that moved us not befor.

² Let the faithful call to mynde.

³ God grant that men may yet consider.—(Marginal notes.)

But let it be granted that we had not fallen back from our former fervencie; that we saw not God's angrie face threatning us with more fearefull plagues to follow; that the best parte of our Nobilitie wer not exiled this Realme, neither yet that our Sovereane were ennemie to our religion, that she beare no greater favour to flattering freres and to corrupted Papistes, then she doeth to our poore Preachers. Supponing, we say, that none of these foresaid causes we had to move us (as that we have them all, and mo, if that we list to recompt them), yet is there one, which if it move us not to humiliation, we shewe our selves more then insensible. For now is Sathan so enraged against Jesus Christ, and so odious is the light of his Evangile unto that Romaine Antichrist,¹ that to suppress it in one province, Realme, or Nation, he thinketh it nothing, unles that in all Europe the godlie, and suche as abhorre the Papisticall impietie, be therewith also utterly destroyed, and so rased from the face of the earth, that no memorie of them shal after remaine.

If any think that suche crueltie cannot fall into the heartes of men, we send them to be resolved of those Fathers of the last Counsell of Trent, who, in one of their Sessions, have thus concluded:² "All Lutheriens, Calvinistes, and suche as are of the new Religion, shall utterlie be exterminate. The beginning shalbe in France, by conducting of the Catholik kinge, Philip of Spaine, and by some of the Nobilitie of France; which mater (say they) put to some stay, the whole force of bothe, together with the Pope's army, and force of the Dukes of Savoy and Farrar,³ shall assault Geneva, and shall not leave it till that they have put it to sack, saving in it no leving creature." And with the same mercie shal so many of France, as have taisted of the new religion be served.⁴ Frome thence expedition shalbe made against the Germaines, to reduce them to the obedience of the Apostolick seat. And so shall they proceed to other Realmes and Nationes, never ceasing till that all be exterminate that will not make homage to that Romaine Idole. How

¹ The suppressing of Christes holy Evangile wes decried [decreed] in the last Counsell of Trent.

² The Counsell of Trent.

³ In later edits., Ferrare, or Ferrara.

⁴ The mercie of the Fathers of Trent.

fearefull a beginning this conclusion and determination had, France will remember mo ages then one : For how many, abufe a hundreth thousand men, wemen, babes, virgines, matrones, and aged fathers, suffered, some by sworde, some by water, some by fyre, and uther tormentes, the verray ennimies themselves are compelled to acknowledge. And albeit that God of his mercie in a parte disappoynted there cruell interpryses, yet let us not thinke that their will is changed, or their malice asswaged. No, let us be assured, that they abyde but oportunitie to finishe the worke, that cruellie against God, against his trueth, and the trew professoures of the same, they have begune. The whisperinges whereof are not secrete, neither yet the tokenes obscure, for the trafique of that dragone, now with the Princes of the earth, [and] his promyses and flattering entysementes, tend to none uther end, but to inflambe them against Jesus Christ, and against the trew professoures of his Evangle. For who can thinke that the Pope, Cardinalles, and horned Bishopes, will offer the greatest portion of their rentes, for susteaning of a warre whereof no commoditie shuld redound (as they suppose) to themselves ? If any think that we accuse them without cause, let them heare their owen wordes ; for this they wrate neare the end of the same Decree :¹

“ And to the end that the holy Fathers on their parte, appeare not to be negligent or unwilling to give their ayde and supporte unto so holy a warre, or to spaire their owen rentes and money ; have added, that the Cardinales² shall content themselves of the yearely rent of five or six thousand ducates, and the rychest Bishope of two or three thousand at the moste ; and to give franckly the rest of their revenues, to the intertenement of the warre, which is made for the extirpation of the Lutheriens and Calvinistes sect ; and for reestablishing of the Romaine Church, till suche tyme as the mater be conducted to a good and happy end.”

If these be not open declarationes in what danger all faithful stand, if they can bring their crueltie to passe, let verray idiots judge. But let us heare their conclusion. “ France and Germanie, (say they) being by these meanes so chastised, abased, and conducted to the obedience of the holie Romaine Church, the Fathers dout not but tyme shall provide both counsal and commoditie, that the rest of the Realmes about may be reduced to one flok,⁴ and one Apostolick governour and Pastour,” &c.

By this conclusion, we thinke that the verray blinde may see what is purposed against the Saintes of God in all Realmes and Nations, to

¹ The wordes of the Counsall of Trent.

² These are the successoures of the Apostles.

³ No man nedeth dout of the liberalitie of those Fathers, so that Christ Jesus may be crucified, and his Evangle exiled.

⁴ Let Scotland advert.—(Marginal notes.)

wit, destruction with crueltie, or else to make them to worship that blasphemous beast, who being an Idole, usurpeth to himselfe the name of universall Pastoure; and being knowen to be the Man of sinne and perdition, will be holden for an Apostolick governour. But some shall say, they are yet fare from the end of their purpose; and therefore we need not to be so fearefull, nor so sollist. We answer, the danger may be nerar than we beleave, yea, perchance a parte of it hath bene neirar to our neckes, then we have considered. But how so ever it be, seeing that God of his mercie hath brought furth to lyght their cruell and bloody counsell, in which we need not to dout, but still they continew; it becommeth us not to be negligent or sleuthfull; but we ought to follow the example of Ezechias, the King of Juda, who receaving not onely the dispytefull answer,¹ but also the blasphemus and threatning letter of Sennaherib, first, send unto the Prophet Isayas, and pietifully compleaned of the instant troubles, willing him to make intercession unto God for the remanent that were left. Unto whome, albeit that the Prophet answered comfortablie assuring the King, that the ennimie shuld not come so neir as to shoote darte or arrow within Jerusalem; yet ceased not the godlie King to present him self in the Temple of the Lord; and as a man despared of all worldly conforte, spred abroad the letters that proud Sennaherib had sent unto him, and made unto God his moste fervent prayer, as in the 37 chapter of the Prophet Isayas we may read.² The ennimie had turned backe, and God had put a brydle in his nosethirles. And so men myght have thought that the King neded not to have bene so solliste. But the Spirite of God instructed the heart of his servand to seak helpe where it wes onely to be found, and from the handes of God, who only wes able to put finall end to that tyrannie. The exemple (we say) of this approved servand of God, we ought to follow now, when the like distruction is intended against us, yea, not against one Realme only, but against all that professe the Lord Jesus, as before we have heard. Albeit that God of his mercy hath stayed the furie of the Papistes for a tyme, we ought not to think that their malice is changed; nether that such as trewly professe the Lord Jesus, can be in securitie, so long as that Babyloniane hoore hath power to enchant the Princes of the earth. Let us therefore, understanding that she, being dronken with the blood of the Saintes, can never repent of crueltie and murther, use against her the spiritual weaponnes,³ to wit, earnest invocation of Gods Name, by the which we finde the proude tyrannes of the earth, in tymes past, to have bene overthrown.

Abufe all these Causes foresaid, we have yet one that ought not to be omitted, to wit, the body of this Realme hath long enjoyed

¹ Isa. 36 and 37.

² Isay. 37.

the crueltie of the Papistes.—(Marginal

³ What weaponnes we shall use against note.)

quietnes, while that other nations about us have bene severly plagued. What thousandes dyed in the East Countreyes, and in England of the pest, Anno 1563,¹ 1564; their own confessions beare record. What crueltie hath bene executed in France; what townes spoyled, and murther committed, somewhat before we have declared, and more we myght, if we had not respect to brevitie and tyme; and what trouble is presently, and long hath bene, betwix Denmarke and Swaden, the posteritie of that countrey will after understand. And in all this tyme, now sex yeares² and more hath God spared us; so that the publict estate hath alwayes remaned quyet, except within these few monethes. Ought not the deap consideration of this move us now to stoupe before our God? For have we bene spared because that our rebellion to God is les then is the rebellion of those nations that we have sene punished? If so we think, we are far deceived.

For in so great light of the Evangle, we thinke that greater inobediencie wes never showen unto God, nor greater ingratitude unto his Messingers, sence the dayes of the Apostles, then of laite yeares hath bene (and yet is) within this Realme. Idolatrie is obstinatly menteaned; huredome and adulterie are but pastyme of the flesh; slaughter and murther is esteamed small sinne, if any man have freind in Court: craftie dealing with the semple, disceat and oppression, is counted gude conques (yea, allace, almoste universally); parcialitie in judgement, is but interpretation of Lawes; yea, delaying of Justice, what mater is that? What reverence is had to God's Messingers, and what respect unto the poore that now so multiplies within this Realme, (that the lyke hath seldome bene sene) thought we will cease, the stones will crye, and condemne us: and yet what superfluitie, what vanitie, what feasting, ryotous bankating hath bene (and yet is) used in Court, countrey, and townes, althought the tounges of men dar not speak, yet we think the purses of some do feal, and in their maner complaine. If these be not sinnes that crave plagues from God, we humblie desyre men to consider what are the sinnes that were layed to the charge of Sodome and Gomorha by the Prophet Ezechiell.³

Now, say we, God before our eyes hath punished uthers, and can he spare us, being more cryminall then they were? Nay, he can not. And, therefore, there restes nothing unto us but utter exterminion, if we unfeanedly turne not unto our God, before that his wraithe be further kindled against us.⁴ Judgement is begune in his owen Hous; for if within Scotland, amonges men of their estate, there wes to be fund equetie, justice, temperance, compassion upone the poore, and upryght conscience, they did moste clearely shyne in them whome God before oure eyes hath firste dejected. Therefore yet agane we say, that onely

¹ Only Anno 1564 in edit. 1574.

² So in edit. 1574

³ Ezech. 10.

⁴ O that we shuld heare before God plagues more.—(Marginal note.)

repentance can save us from plagues more grevous then they have felt, or that we have sene of many yeares within this Realme.

But now we knowe, that suche as neither lufe God, nor trewly feare his judgements (for mo Atheistes¹ we have nor consumate Papistes within this Realme) shall grudge and crye, What new ceremonie is this that now we here of? Wherefore shall we Faste! and who hath power to command us so to do? A feg for their Fasting! we will fill and farse our bellies upone the oulde fassion, etc. Let not the godly be offended at the brocardes and lardons of such godless people; but let us tremble before our God, and consider that suche hath bene the proude contempt of the wicked in all ages before us, as in the Prophetes we may read. For Isay compleaneth, saying, "When the Lord calleth to sackclothe and ashes, there is nothing heard but let us eat and drink, kill the fat, and make banquet; let us bring wyne in aboundance,² and more, and if we must dye, let us departe in joy; for so they ment, when that they said, Let us eat and drink, the morow we shall dye." But let us consider what answer they receive: "As I live, sayeth the Lord, this your iniquitie shall not be forgiven unto the death.³ I shall take from yow the myrth of wyne and oyle;⁴ your yong men shal fall by the sworde; your aged men shalbe led captives;⁵ your delicate dammes shall trote upon their fete over the river (meaning Euphrates); their buttockes shall be naked, and their shame shal not be hid,"⁶ etc. Jeremie the Prophet preached and cryed even to the King⁷ and to the Quene, and commanded them to walke in lowlynes, to do justice, to repress impietie; and so he promised that they shoulde sit still upone their Throne in joy and quyetnes; but if they wolde not, he boldelie pronounced that their carcasses shalbe cast to the heit of the Sone,⁸ and to the frost and colde of the night. Ezechiel, in his age, useth the same ordour; and in his owen bodie showeth unto them signes of humiliation,⁹ and of the plagues that shuld apprehend them for their Rebellion.

All their admonitions were dispysed, we confesse; but thereto we shulde not looke, but unto that which enseeded suche proude contempt.

If we wolde that our palices shuld be so destroyed, that they shuld remaine desolate, and be dennes to dragones; if we wolde that our land shuld be laide waist, and be a pray to our enemies;¹⁰ and if we wolde that the rest of the plagues threatned by the Prophetes, and which have apprehended the disobedient before us, shuld come upone us in full perfection, then we nede nether to faste nor pray, repent nor turne to God: but and if we desyre ether to finde mercy in this lyfe, or joy and comfort in the lyfe to come, we muste showe our selves un-

¹ That is men without God.—(Marginal note.)

² Isay 56.

³ Isay 22.

⁴ Isay 5, 6, 9.

⁵ Isay 20.

⁷ Jerem. 13.

⁹ Ezc. 21.

⁶ Jerem. 13.

⁸ Jer. 16 & 17.

¹⁰ Levit. 26.

feanedly sory for the abominations that now universally Reigne ;¹ we must be lyke Lothe in Sodome, and Noah, in that Catholick defection from God, which wes into the first age ; and by their exemples and notable deliverances² ought we to be encoraged to showe our selves sory for this present corruption, and to oppone our selves thereto to the uttermoste of our powers, unles that we wolde have portion with the wicked.

Nether ought we to be discouraged because that the contemners, godles people, and mockers of all godlynes, shall prevale us in multitude. Their number, deare Brethren, shal not hurt our innocencie, if that we with unfeaned heartes turn unto our God ; for the promes of his mercy is not bound unto the multitude, so that he will not heare but where the greatest parte is godly.³ No, deare Brethrene, wheresoever two or thre be gathered in his name, there is he in the middest of them ;⁴ and againe, whosoever incalleth the name of the Lord, he shalbe saved,⁵ yea, even when in Godes displeasure the whole worlde shalbe plagued. And therefore let us not follow the multitude in evil doing ;⁶ but let us declyne from the wayes of their vanitie, and by unfeaned humiliation of our selves, let us purches favoure, before that God's vengeance brust out lyke a fire.

THE power that we have to proclame this Fasting, is not of man, but of God, who, by the mouth of his Prophet Ezechiell, pronounceth this sentence :⁷ “ If the watcheman se the sworde, or any other plague comming upone the land, if he blowe not the trumpet, and plainly warne them to turne to God, and if the sword come and take any away, the wicked shal perishe in their iniquitie ; but their blood shalbe required from the handes of the watcheman.”⁸ Now so it is, that God of his mercy hath rased up amonges us mo watchemen then one or two, of whose mouthes we can not deny but we have hard fearefull threatninges of plagues to followe upone this proude contempt of all God's graces.

And therefore we, in the feare of our God, willing to avoyd the uttermoste of the plagues, have with one consent concluded this godly Exercise, to be used amonges us, in signe of our unfeaned humiliation ; which albeit the godles shall mock, yet are we assured, that he who ones pronounced this sentence, “ The soule that shall not be afflicted that same day,⁹ to wit, the day appointed to publict humiliation, shall perishe from amonges his people ; yea, everie soule that shall do any worke that day, I shall destroye suche a soule frome the middest of his people.”

¹ If we will not perishe with the worlde, we must be unlike unto it.

² Gen. 6 & 19.

³ The promes of Gods mercy and deliverance is not bounde to the multitude.

⁴ Math. 18.

⁶ Exod. 23.

⁸ The power that the Church hath to command publict Fasting.

⁹ Levit. 23.—(Marginal notes.)

⁵ Joel. 2.

⁷ Ezech. 33.

The ceremonie, and the certane statute day, we knowe to be abolished at the comming of Christ Jesus, together with the rest of the figurall ceremonies; but the effect thereof shall abyde so long as there abydeth an trew Church upon the face of the earth, unto the which repentance and remission of sinnes are publictly preached; and therefore, albeit we have no corporall punishment to inflict upone the contempners of that Godly exercise, yet have we the spiritual sword, which ones will stricke sorer then any material sword can or may.

The judgements and justice of our God are immutable;¹ he abydeth the same and one God that drowned the world by water; that consumed Sodome and Gomorha with fyre from heaven;² that plagued Pharo,³ destroyed Jerusalem, and hath executed his fearee judgements in all ages, yea, and even before our eyes. It is the same God (we say) that this day by his faithfull servandes calleth us to repentance, whose voces if we contempne, we declare our selves Rebellious to our God, mockers of his threatninges, and suche as sometymes in despyte cryed, "We will walk according to the lust of our owen heartes,⁴ and let the counsal of the holy one of Israell cum as it list," etc. And if so we do, then wo, yea, wo and double damnation unto us, for then even as assuredly as God liveth,⁵ so assuredly shall the plagues thatoure eares have oft heard, be poured furth upone us, even in the eyes of this same perverst generation, with whome we contempne God, and before whome we are nether feared nor eshamed stubbornlye to procead from sinne to contempt. Our hope is better of yow (deare Brethren) that have professed the Lord Jesus with us within this Realme, albeit that this we speake to let yow understand what Rebellion hath bene in flesh before us, and how it hath bene punished, that we may learne to stoupe before our God by unfeaned repentance; and then we shall be assured that, according to the promes made by the mouth of Joel, our God shal leave unto us a benediction, albeit that the vehement fyre of his wraith shall consume the inobedient.

But now, least that we shoulde thinke that the observation of the ceremonie is yneugh to please God, we must understand what thinges must be joined with fructful Fasting, and what thinges they are that may make our Fasting odious to our God. And first we have to understand, that Fasting by it selfe considered, is no suche thing as the Papistes heretofore have ymaged; to wit, that it is a worke meritorious, and a satisfaction for the sinnes before committed.⁶ No, all they that faste with that intent, renounceth the merites of Christ's death and passion, in so farre as they ascrive to Fasting (whiche is but an exercise used by man) that whiche is onely proper to Jesus Christ; which is, that he by offering

¹ Malach. 3. ² Gen. 7; Gen. 19.

³ Exod. 8, 9, 10, & 14.

⁴ Isay 22; Jerc. 2, 5, 6.

⁵ Let Scotland yet be forewarned.

⁶ The opinion of Papistical Fasting.

(Marginal notes.)

up himself ones for all,¹ hath made perfit for ever, those that shall be sanctified. We must further understand, that, as the Kingdome of God is nether meat nor drink, so is nether Fasting by it selfe semple considered,² the cause why that Kingdome is granted to the chosen, nether yet eating (moderat we meane,) any cause why the reprobate are frustrat thereof. But unto Fasting there must be somewhat joyned, if that God shall looke upone it at any tyme in his favour.³ The Prophet Joel is witnes hereof, who in the persone of God, said unto suche as he had severly threatned. "Turne unto me in your whole heart, in fasting and murning."⁴ In which wordes the Holie Ghoste first requyreth the conversion of the heart unto God, and thereto joyneth fasting and murning, as witnesses of the sorow that we have for our former offences, and feare that we have of his seveir judgements; the releif whereof we publicly professe we can obteane by no uther meanes, but by God's fre mercie from whome we have before declyned.⁵ So that the verray exercise of Fasting, and the murning, and prayer therewith annexed, do solemnedly protest, that by our Fasting, we merite not; for he that still confeseth his offence, and in bitternes of heart cryeth for mercy, doeth not brage of his merites. If the Papistes reply, Yet God looketh to the fasting, and heareth the prayers of suche as ryghtly humble themselves before him,—we deny not; but thereto we adde, that rightly did never man humble him self before God, that trusted or glorified in the merites of his owen workes;⁶ for without Faith it is unpossible to please God, and faith dependeth upone the promes of God's fre mercie through Jesus Christ, and not upone the merites of any workes. The Pharisie, in braging, was rejected; but the Publican, in denying him self,⁷ and calling for mercie, was justified, not by his workes, which he had not, but by grace and mercy, for the which he sobbed. Daniel fasted, confessed his sinnes, and the sinnes of the people, and thereto he added moste earnest and fervent prayers. But doeth he alledge any of them as a cause why God shuld ather be mercyfull to him or to the people, nay, we finde no suche thing, but the plaine contrarie, for thus he concludeth: "Now therefore our GOD, heare the supplication and prayer of thy servand,⁸ and showe thy pleasing visage unto thy Sanctuary, that lyeth waiste for the Lordes saik. O my God, give thy eare that thow mayest heare; and open thyen eyes, that thow maiste see the waist places of the cietie which beareth thy name: for we alledge not our ryghteousnes in our prayers, that we poure furthe before thee, but thy moste abounding mercy: Lord! heare; Lord! be mercyfull; Lord! take head, and helpe, and delay not, for thine owen self, my God!"

¹ Heb. 9. 10.² Rom. 14.⁶ Trew humiliation dependeth upone mercy, and not upone workes.—(Marginal notes.)³ Fasting by itself is but a dead and unprofitable ceremonie.⁴ Joel. 2.⁵ Let the Papistes consider.*⁷ Luc. 18.⁸ Daniel 9.

We may plainly se whereupon this excellent servand of God grounded himself to purches God's favour ; to wit, upone the Lord, that is, upone the Saviour and Mediator promised, upone the moste abundant mercie of God, and upone God himselfe ; for he understoode what God had promised, aswell by the mouth of Moyses, as by the Prophet Isais, saying : " Beholde that I am, yea, even I am the Lord, and there is no God but I : I kill, and I give lyfe againe : I give the wound, and I shall heale :¹ For my owen Names saike will I do it, sayeth the Eternall." Apone these and the lyke promises, we say, did all the Sainctes of God in all their extremities depend, and did looke to receave comforte, without all respect to their owen workes ; they dampned the best of their owen workes, and called them nothing but filthiness before God.² And therefore yet, as of before, we boldely affirme, that the Papisticall fasting wes not onlie vaine (for what fasting is it to absteane from fleshe, and to fill the bellie with fishe, wyne, spyce, and uther delicates ?) but also it wes odious unto God,³ and blasphemous to the death of Jesus Christ, for the causes forewritten. And this muche shortly for those thinges that must be joyned with frutefull Fasting.

Now we have to consider what thinges may make our Fasting odious, besydes this proude opinion of merite, whereof we have spoken.

It is no dout but that infidelitie⁴ maketh all the workes of the reprobate odious before God, yea, even when that they do the verray workes that God hath commanded, as we may read in Matt. 5. 6. and 7., Isai 1. and 66. etc., and divers uther places. But because that infidelitie lurketh oft in the heart, and can not well be espyed but by the bitter and rotten frutes that spring thereof, the Spirite of God hath painted furthe unto us in plaine wordes, what vices may make us and all our workes odious before our God, so that nether will he heare our prayers, nor regarde our fasting. Salomon sayeth, " He that ditteth⁵ his eare from the crye of the poore, his prayer shalbe abhominable before God."⁶ And Isai, in the persone of God, sayeth : " Albeit that ye shall stretche out your handes, and multiplie your prayers, yet will I not heare yow ; for your handes are full of blood."⁷ But most plainly to our purpose speaketh the same Prophet, saying : " The hous of Jacob daylie seaketh me, and they wolde knowe my wayes, as a nation that wrought justice, and that had not left the judgement of their God.⁸ They ask me judgements of justice (that is, they querrell with me), and they desyre that God shall drowe neare. Why have we fasted (say they) and thou beholdest not ? We have afflicted our soules, and thou misknowest it."

¹ Deut. 32.

² Esay. 64.

³ The Papisticall Fasting vaine and blasphemus.

⁴ Infidelitie maketh all the workes of the reprobate odious before God.—

(Marginal notes.)

⁵ In edit. 1596, " closes ;" in edit. 1611, and others, " stoppis."

⁶ Pro. 21. ⁷ Isay 1. ⁸ Isay 58.

The Prophet answereth in the persone of God, and sayeth, "Beholde in the day of your Faste, ye will seak your will, and require all your dettes : beholde ye faste to strife and debaite, and to smyte with the fist of wickednes : ye shall not Faste as they do to daye, to make your voice be heard above," that is, to oppresse uthers ; so that they are compelled to crye unto God. "Is it suche a faste that I have chosen ? That a man shuld afflict his soule for a day, and to bow downe his head as a bulrush, and to ly downe in sackcloth and ashes ? Wilt thou call this a Fasting, or an acceptable day unto the Lord ? Is not this the Fasting that I have chosen, to louse the bandes of wickednes,¹ to take of the heavie burdinges, and to let the oppressed go fre, and that ye break everie yock ? Is it not to deale thy bread unto the hongrie ; and that thou bring the poore that wandreth unto thy hous ? When thou seest the naked, that thou cover him ; and hyde not thy self from thy owen fleshe. Then shall thy light break furth as the morning, and thy health shall growe spedelie, thy righteousnes shall go before thee, and the glorie of the Lord shall embrace thee," etc. In these most notable sentences, and in suche as follow in the same place, we have to marck what thinges may make our Fasting to be rejected of God ; what he craveth of suche as faste frutfullie ; and what promes he maketh to such as obey him. This people externallie professed God, they daylie sought his face, by reparing to the Temple, hearing of the Law, and exercising of the sacrifices ; yet did God plague them in mo sortes then one, as in the Bookis of the Kinges and Cornickles we may read. In their extremitie they ran (as to them appeared) to the uttermoste refuge, they Fasted, and unfeanedly humbled their bodies, for that the Prophet meaneth, when that he sayeth, that they Fasted till that their neckes were weakned, and made faint as a bullrashe, for verry lacke of corporall foode. They layed of their gorgious garmentes, and put on sackcloth, &c. ; and yet wer their troubles nothing releved. And that wes the cause why they querreled with God, and said : "Why have we fasted, and thou hast not sene ?" &c. And in verry deed, to the natural man it wes strange ; for God had promised that he wolde conforte his people whensoever they shuld humble themselves before him, notwithstanding their former iniquitie.²

In the externall ceremonies, nor in the corporall exercises, there could no fault be espyed. Why then doeth not God heare them ? complaine they ? God answereth, that their outwarde profession wes but hypocrisie, their Fasting wes but mocking of God, and their prayers could do nothing but provoke him to further displeasure. Because that albeit they reteaned the Name of God, and albeit that they appeared in his Temple, yet had they forsaken bothe his judgements, statutes, and holie ordinances. Albeit the bodie stouped, and was afflicted by fasting, yet remained the heart proude and rebellious against God,¹ for they followed their owen corrupted wayes: they oppressed suche as were subject unto them, their heauey yock lay upon the neckes of suche as could not ridde themselves from their bondage. Amonges them were stryfe, debaite, whisperinges of malice, yea open contention and manifest violence, which all were evident declarations of proud hartes, and impenitent soules. And therefore God giveth unto them open defyanee, in the tyme when they think that they seak his peace most earnestly. And hereto ought we this day, that professe the Lord Jesus, and have renounced abhominations of Papistrie within the Realme of Scotland, give diligent head. For it is not the semple knoweledge of the trueth onelie, nor yet the externall profession of the same, that is acceptable before God.² Nay, nay, deare Brethrene, he requireth the frutes of repentance,³ and they are, to declyne from evill, and to do good, as we may read in many places of the Scripture. Think we it a thing agreeable with the nature of the Eternall our God, that he shall receave us in favour, after that we have offended, and we will not for his saike remit the injuries that are done to us? Can we thinke to be at peace with him, when that we stubbornelie will continew in strife amonges our selves? Shal he relieve our greif, bondage, or yock, and we will not relieve the burdinges that unjustly we lay upon our brethrene? Shal he bestowe his undeserved mercie upon us, and we can showe no bowels of mercie to such as we se in miserie before our eyes? Let us not be deceived, God can not deny himself. Murder, malice, hatrent, crueltie, oppression, stryfe, thift, deceat, unjust dealing, covetousnes, avaritiousnes, and unmercifulnes unto the poore, besydes pryde, horedome, adulterie, wantonnes, and the rest of the workes of the flesh, are so odious before God,⁴ that whill that any of them reigneth in the heart of man, he and his whole workes are detestable before God. And therefore if we desyre that God's fearfull judgements shalbe stayed, let us (that knowe the trueth, and say that we professe the same) unfenedlie returne unto our God. Let us not be inferiours to the king of Ninivie, who commanded everie man to turne from his wicked wayes, and from the iniquitie that wes in his hands. Let us consider what our God craveth of us; but especiallie let Earles, Lordes, Barrons, burgesses, and artificers, consider by what meanes their substances are increased.

¹ O that Scotland shuld understand and follow.—(Marginal note.)

² Deut. 3 ; 2 Reg. 8.

It is not ynough to justifie us before God, that Civile Lawes cannot accuse us.⁵ Nay, Brethrene, the eyes of our God pearseth deaper then

¹ Let everie man examine his owen conscience.

² Psal. 34.

³ 1 Pet. 3.

⁴ The workes that may make oure Fasting odious.

⁵ Christiane justice craveth more than Civile Lawes.—(Marginal notes.)

mannes law can streache. The law of man cannot convict the Earle, the Lord, the Barrone, or Gentilman, for oppressing of the poore labourers of the ground ; for his defence is ready, I may do with my owen as best pleaseth me. The Merchand is just yneugh in his owen conceat, if before men he can not be convict of thift and deceat. The Artificer and Craftisman thinketh himselfe fre before God, albeit that he nether worke sufficient stuffe, nor yet sell for reasonable price : The worlde is evil (sayeth he), and how can men live if they do not as uther do ? And thus doeth every man leane upon the iniquite of an other, and thinketh himself sufficientlie excused when that he meitteth craft with craft, and repulseth back violence ether with deceat or els with open injurie. Let us be assured, deare brethren, that these be the sinnes which heretofore have provoked God, not onlie to plague, but also to destroy, and utterlie overthrowe stronge realmes and flourishing commonwealthes.¹

Now, seing that the justice and judgements of our God abyde for ever, and that he hath solempnedlie pronounced, that everie realme, nation, or cietie that sinneth, as did Juda and Jerusalem,² shall be likewise punished. Let that fearefull destruction that came upone them, into the whiche, after honger and pest, the sworde devoured without discretion the ryche and poore,³ the noble, and those that were of basse degre ;⁴ the yong and olde, the priests and prophetes, yea, the matrones and virgines, eschaped not the day of that sharp visitation. Let their punishment (we say) provoke us to repentance ; and so no dout we shall finde favour in the sight of our God, albeit that he hath begune to shew unto us evident signes of his displeasure justlie conceived against us.⁵ But (as God forbide) if we mocke his Messingers, and despyse his wordes, till that there be no remeadie, as they did, then can we (whome God hath rased up to instruct and forewarne yow) do nothing but take wisse of heaven and earth, yea, and of your owen conscience, that we have faithfullie instructed yow in the right way of God, aswell concerning his trew worshipping as in doing of your dewties one to another ; and also that we have forewarned yow of the plagues to come, firste by our tounses, and now by our pen, for a perpetuall memoriall to the posteritie that shall follow, who shall glorifie God ether for your conversion, or els for your just condemnation and severe punishmentes, if ye continew inobedient.

To prescribe to everie man his dewtie in particulare, we can not, because we knowe not whereintill everie man, and everie estate particularlie offendeth ; but we must remit every estate, and everie man in his vocation, to the examination of his owen conscience ; and that according as God commandeth in his hole Law, and as Christ Jesus

¹ Consulte with the 22d Chapter of the Prophet Ezechiell.

² Jere. 7.

³ 2 Paral. 26

⁴ 2 Reg. 25.

⁵ Paral. 36.

requireth, that suche as shall possesse the kingdome with him shall do : which is, " Whatsoever (sayeth he) that ye wolde men shulde do unto yow, do ye the like unto them."¹ By this reule, whiche the author of all equitie, justice, and policie bath established, send we the Earles, Lordes, Barrons, and gentilmen to trye their owen consciences, whether that they wolde be content that they shuld be entreated (if God had made them husbandmen and laubowrers of the ground), as they have entreated, and presentlie doeth entreate, suche as sometymes had a moderate and resonable life under their predecessours ; whether, we say, that they wolde be content that their steadinges and malinges should be raised from male to ferme, from one ferme to two, and so going upward, till that for povertie the ancient laubourers are compelled to leave the ground in the handes of the lord. If with this entreatment they wolde be content, we appeale [to] their owen conscience ; and if they thinke that they wolde not, then, in God's Name we require them to begin to reforme themselves, and to remember that it is not we, but that it is Christ Jesus that so craveth of them. And unto the same reule we send Judges, Lawers, Merchandes, Artificers, and finallie, even the verrey labourers of the ground themselves, that everie one in his vocation may trye how justlie, uprightlie, and mercyfullie he dealeth with his Nighbour : And if he finde his conscience accused by the former sentence of our Master, let him call for grace, that he may not onelie repent for the by past, but also amend in tymes to come ; and so shall their Fasting and Prayers be acceptable unto God.

If men think that we require the thing that is unpossible, for what were this els but to reforme the face of the whole earth ? which never wes, nor yet shalbe, till that the righteous King and Judge appeare for the restauration of all thinges : We answer, that we speak not to the godless multitude, nether yet to such as are mockers of God's judgements, whose portion is in this life,² and for whome the fyre of hell (which now they mock) is assuredlie prepared. But we speak to such as have professed the Lord Jesus with us, who have communicated with his blessed Sacramentes, have renounced idolatrie, and have avowed themselves to be new creatures in Jesus Christ, in whome they are ingrafted as livelie branches, apt to bring furth good frute.³ Now, why it shuld be thought unpossible that these men (of what vocation that ever they be) shulde begin to expresse in their lives, that which in worde they have publictie professed, we se no good reasone, unles that we wolde say that it is unpossible that God shall now work in men of this age, as we read that he hath wrought in men before us ; and that were blasphemie.

Seing that the hand of our God is no more shortned towardes us

¹ Matth. 7.

² Matth. 25.

³ Ioan. 15.

then it hath bene towards those that have past before us.¹ At God's simple commandement, Abraham left his father's hous and native countrie.² Moyses preferred the condition of the people of Israell, even in their greatest affliction, to the ryches and glorie of Pharos Courte.³ David, upon the unction of Samuell, did patientlie abide the persecution of Saul many yeares.⁴ Zacheus, at an dennar with Christ Jesus, wes not onelie content to restore whatsoever he had before defrauded, but also to give the half of all his substance to the sustentation of the poore.⁵ And the faithfull, in the dayes of the Apostles, solde their possessions and ministrat unto the indigent.⁶ None of these excellent workes crave we of the faithfull in our age, but onely those without the which the spirite of sanctification cannot be knowen to be in man; to wit, that everie man speak the trueth with his brother;⁷ that none oppresse nor defraude another in any busynes;⁸ that the bowels of mercy may appeare amongs suche as God hath called to his knoweledge; and finally, that we altogether that professe the Lord Jesus, and do abhorre idolatrye, abhorre also all kynde of impietie, studying to abound in all good workes, and to shyne as lyghtes in the middlest of this wicked generation:⁹ which, if we do not, we declare, no dout, that Christ Jesus dwelleth not within us, but that we ar they that heare and knowe the will of our Lord, but do not the same. And unto what curse and malidiction suche persones are subject, the parable of the fegge-tre, which wes threatned to be cut downe if it brought not furth frute; the curse given to it, upon the which Christ Jesus, being hongrie, fand no frute, and his last sentence against the reprobate, do sufficiently witness.¹⁰ In the which we have to observe, that the reprobate are adjudged to the fyre that never shalbe quenched, not onely because they committed iniquitie, but also because they were not found frutefull in good workes. Let everie man, therefore, that will avoyde plagues temporall and perpetuall, unfeanedlie studie to accomlishe in worke that which in worde and outwarde profession he doeth avowe; and upone suche, no dout, shal the blessing of God rest, when the manifest contemptners and cloked hypocrites shal be rased from the face of the earth, and shalbe cast unto uttermoste darkenes, where there shalbe weaping and gnasheing of teith without end, whiche shalbe the rewarde of all their wicked workes.

Mo thinges we wolde have written, suche as the notes upone the disconfiture of Joshua at Hay, and of the Israelites fighting against Benjamin, together with the foolishe opinion of the Papistes, who think themselves obliged to fast fourtie dayes (whiche they call their Lent), ¹ Isay 30.² Gene. 12.⁹ Coloss. 3.¹⁰ Matth. 21 & 25.³ Exod. 2.⁴ 1 Samu. 16.

Everie tre that bringeth not furth good frute, shalbe cutte down and cast in the fyre.—(Marginal note.)

⁵ Luc. 19.⁶ Act. 2.⁷ Ephe. 4.⁸ 1 Thes. 4.

because that Christ Jesus fasted fourtie dayes immediatlie after his Baptisme : but these we are compelled for this present to pretermit, be reason that the tyme appoynted to this present exercise of Fasting approacheth so nye. If God of his mercy shall please to continew the light of his Evangle amonges us, this argument will be enlarged and set furth with greater circumstances from tyme to tyme.

Now to the Ordour, Exercise, and Abstinence that is to be kept in this publict Fasting : First, it is to be observed, that the two dayes before expressed, to wit, the last Sunday of Februarie instant, and the first Sunday of Marche¹ immediatly thereafter following, ar not appoynted for any religion of tyme,² nether yet that those precised dayes shalbe observed everie yeare following ; but because that shortly thereafter, are the Estates of this Realme appoynted to convene in Parliament, Therefore the whole Assemblie thoght those dayes for the present necessitie most meit ; leaving in the libertie of the Church what tyme they will appoynt to that exercise in all tymes to cum.

The Sondayes³ are appoynted not of superstition, nether yet to bring in any schysme within the Church, but because that upone the Sunday the people (especiallie that dwell a landwart) may best attend upone Prayer, and the rest of the Exercises that ought to be joyned with publict Fasting.

THE Abstinence is commanded to be from Setterday at eight houres at nyght, till Sunday after the exercise at after noone, that is, after five houres ; and then onely bread and drinck to be used, and that with great sobrietie,⁴ that the body craving necessary food, the soule may be provoked earnestly to crave of God that which it moste neadeth ; that is, mercie for our former unthankfulnes, and the assistance of his Holy Spirite in tymes to cum.

Men that will observe this exercise, may not any of the two dayes use any kynde of gammes, but exercise themselves after the publict Assemblies in previe meditation with their God.⁵

Gorgious apparrell⁶ wolde be absteaned fra during the whole tyme of our humiliation, which is, from the one Sunday in the morning, till the nixt Sunday at nyght ; albeit that the straitnes of abstinence is to be kept, but the two dayes onely.

We do not binde the conscience of persones that be unable to beare the extremitie of the Abstinence ; and yet do we exhort them to use their libertie (if any they tak) in secret, least that others ather follow their evill

¹ In the edit. 1574, changed to " the second and thrid Sunday of Majj instant."

² The reason of the tyme.

³ The reason of the Sondayes.

⁴ The Abstinence.

⁵ No gammes may be used upone the dayes of Abstinence.

⁶ Gorgious apparel is to be left.

—(Marginal notes.)

exemple, or els judge them to be despysers of so necessarie an exercyse.¹

The tyme that shalbe spent aswell before none as after, must be left to the wisdom of the discrete Ministers, who best can judge both what the auditore may beare, and what themselves are able to sustene. But because that this exercise is extraordinary, the tyme thereof wolde be somewhat longer then it is used to be in the accustomed Assemblies. And yet we wolde not have it so tedious that it shulde be noysome to the people. And therefore we think that three houres and less, before none, and two houres at after none, shalbe sufficient for the whole exercyse publict.² The rest to be spent in previe meditation by everie familie aparte.

The Sunday preceeding the last Sunday of February, as before is said,³ shall everie Minister give advertisement to his flocke of such things as are to be done the nixt Sunday following, and of the causes of the same, with suche exhortation as God shall put into their mouthes, to make the people to embrace the just commandement of the Churche with more glaide myndes.

In Townes we think expedient that the exercise of the doctrine begine upone the Setterday⁴ at after noone, immediatly preceeding the first Sunday of Abstinence, that the people may be the better prepared religiously to use the observations of the nixt day : But in Landwart we think good that the doctrine begine the Sunday before. The argument of the Sermon and exhortation to be taken from some proper place of the Prophetes⁵—as of Joel the first, where he sayeth : “ Sanctifie a faste, appoynt the assemble,”⁶ &c. Or of Jonas the thride, where Jonas cryed, “ And yet fourtie dayes, and Ninive shalbe destroyed,”⁷ &c. Or of Jeremie the sevint where that he sayeth, “ Heare the worde of the Lord, all Juda, and ye that enter in by these gates,” &c. Or of the threttene of Lucas, upone the declaration of them that shewe to our Master the crueltie of Pylate, and upone his answer.⁸ Or upone any uther proper place within the Scripture that entreteth of repentance, of publict humiliation, of the causes, and of the frutes of the same.

This ended, as it were for preparation, the beginning shalbe upon Sunday, from the Law of God, because that all that offendeth God’s Majestie proceedeth from the transgression thereof ; and therefore, after a shorte prayer, that God will please to make his Holy word to fructifie amonges us, this Confession shalbe made.

¹ The sicke and weake are not bound to this exercyse.

² What houres before none and what after none.

³ In edit. 1574, “ the Sunday preceding the second Sunday of Maij.”

⁴ In townes the doctrine shall begine upone the Setterday.

⁵ Places proper for the first Sermon of Fasting.—(Marginal notes.)

⁶ Joel. 1.

⁷ Jonas 3.

⁸ Luc. 13.

THE CONFESSION THAT SHAL GOE BEFORE THE READING OF THE LAW, AND BEFORE EVERIE EXERCYSE.

IT is of thy mercy, O Lord, and not of our merites, that it hath pleased thee to shoue thy self unto the worlde ever from the begining, and unto us now in this last and moste corrupt age: yea, Lord, we further confesse, that nether Law nor Evangle can profite us to salvation, except that thow, of thy meare grace, worke into us abufe all power that is in this oure nature. For albeit thow teache, we shall remaine ignorant; albeit thow threaten, we shal contempne;¹ and albeit thow promes mercy and grace, yet shall we despaire and remaine in infidelitie;² onles that thow creat in us new heartes, write thy Law into the same,³ and seale in us remission of our sinnes, and that sense and feeling of thy Fatherlie mercy, by the power of thy holie Spirit. To the originall world thou spakest by Noha:⁴ To Pharao and his people by thy servand Moyses:⁵ To all Israell by the fearefull trumpet of thy Law:⁶ To the Cietie of Jerusalem by thy owen Wisdome, our Lord Jesus Christ:⁷ And to the multitude, aswel of Jewes as Gentiles, by the preaching of thy holy Apostles.⁸ But who gave obedience? Who trembled, and constantlie feared thy hote displeasure? Who did rightly acknowledge the time of their visitation? And who did embrace and kepe to the end thy fatherly promises? Onely they, O Lord, to whome thy Spirit was the inwarde teacher, whose heartes thow opened,⁹ and from whome thow removed rebellion and infidelitie: the rest were externally called, but obeyed not: they heard aswel mercy offered as threatninges pronounsed, but nether with the one nor with the uther were they affectually moved. We acknowledge, O Lord, that the same corruption lurketh in us, that budded furth in them, to their distraction and just condemnation. And therefore we moste humbly bescak thee, O Father of mercies, for Christ Jesus thy Sonnes sake, that as thow hast caused the lyght of thy worde clearly to shyne amongs us, and as thow hast plainly instructed us, by the external ministerie, in the ryght way of salvation: So it will please thee inwardly to move our dulle heartes, and by the power of thy Holy Spirit, that thow will write and seale into them that holy fear and reverence which thow cravest of thy chosen childrene, and that faithfull obedience to thy holie will, together with the feeling and sense, that our sinnes are fully purged, and frely remitted, by that only one Sacrifice, whiche onely by it self is acceptable unto thee, to wit, the obedience, death, and mediation of thy onely Sone our soverane Lord, ¹ Heb. 8. ² Psal. 51. ³ Jere. 31. ⁴ Exod. 20. ⁵ Mat. 20. and Joan 12.

⁶ Gene. 6. ⁷ Exod. 2. 3. 4. ⁸ Acts 3. 4. 14 and 16. ⁹ Joan. 6.

onely Pastor, Mediator, and Hie Preast, our Lord Jesus Christ. To whome with thee, and with the holy Ghoste, be all honour and glore, worlde without end. [Amen.]

This Confession ended, the Minister or Reader shall distinctlie read the 27. and 28. of Deuteronomie : which ended, the Minister shall wishe everie man to descend secretly into him self, to examine his owen conscience, whereinto he findeth him selfe giltie before God. The Minister himself, with the people, shall prostrate themselves, and remaine in private meditation a reasonable space, as the quarter of an houre, or more. Thereafter shal the Minister exhorte the people to confesse with him their sinnes and offences, as followeth :—

Just and ryghteous art thou, O Lord God, Father everlasting ; holy is thy Law, and moste just are thy judgements, yea, even when thou doest punishe in greatest severitie ; we do confesse, as the trueth is, that we have transgressed thy whole law, and have offended thy godly Majestie, in breaking and violating everie precept of the same ; and so moste justly may thou poure furth upone us all plagues that are threatned, and that we finde powred furth upon the disobedient at any tyme from the beginning.

And so muche the rather, O Lord, because that so long we have bene called by thy Holie word to unfeaned repentance and newnes of lyfe, and yet have we still remaned in our former rebellion : and therefore, if thou wilt enter in judgement with us, we can nether eschape confusion in this lyfe, nor just condemnation in the lyfe to cum. But Lord, thy mercy is without measure, and the treuth of thy promises abydeth for ever. Unworthy are we that thou shuldest looke upon us : but, Lord, thou hast promised that thou wilt show mercy to the moste grievous offenders, whensoever that they repent. And further, thou, by the mouth of thy deare Sone our Lord Jesus Christ, hast promised that thou wilt give thy Holy Spirite to suche as humblie cal unto thee. In boldnes of the whiche promes, we moste humbly beseak thee, O Father of mercies, that it wold please thy godly Majestie to work in our stubburne heartes an unfeaned dolour for our former offences, with some sense and fealing of thy grace and mercy, together with an earnest desyre of justice and righteousnes, in the which we are bound continually to walk. But because that nether we nor our prayers can stand before thee, be reason of that imperfectione which still remaineth in thisoure corrupted nature, we fle to the obedience and perfite justice of Jesus Christ, our onely Mediator, in whome, and by whome, we call not onely for remission of our sinnes, and for assistance of thy Holy Spirite, but also for all things that thy godly wisdome knoweth to be expedient for us, and for thy Church universall. Praying as he hath taught us, saying : OUR FATHER THAT ART, &c.

THIS ENDED, THE MINISTER SHALL READ THE TEXT WHEREUPONE HE WILL GROUND HIS SERMON.

First, he shal expone the dignitie and equitie of Gods Law.¹ Secondly, the plagues and punishmentes that ensew the contempt thereof, together with the blessinges promised to the obedient observers of it. Thridly, he sall teache Christ Jesus to be the end and perfection of the Law, who hath perfitedly accomplished that whiche wes impossible to the Law to do.² And so shall he exhorte everie man to unfeaned repentance, to steadfast faith in CHRIST JESUS, and to showe frutes of the same.

The Sermon ended, the commone prayer shalbe used, that is contained in the Psalme booke, the 46. page thereof, beginning thus: "God Almyghtie and heavenly Father," &c.³ Which ended, the 51. Psalme shalbe soung whole; and so with the benediction, the assemblie is to be demitted for that exercise.

At after noune.

Efter invocation of God's name, publicly by the Minister, and secretly by every man⁴ for a reasonable space: The Minister may take the argument of his Sermon from the beginning of 119. Psalme, where the deligent reader shall observe the properties and conditions of suche as in whose heartes God writeth his Law. Or if that be thought over hard, then may ye take the text of Johne, "God is lyght, and into him there is no dareknes: if we say we have fellowshipe with him," &c.⁵ The prayer is referred unto the Minister. The 6. Psalme shalbe soung.

The benediction and exhortation, to call to mynde wherefore that exercise is used, being ended, the publict Exercise shalbe put to end for that day.

Albeit, that to Landwart the people cannot well convene everie day betwix the two Sondayes, yet in Broughes and Townes we think they ought to convene an houre before none, and an houre and more at after none. The houre before none to be the houre accustomed to the commone prayers; the houre at after noone to be at 3 houres or after.

The Exercise of the whole Weke.

The beginning ever to be with Confession of our sinnes, and imploring of God's graces. Then certane Psalmes, and certane Histories to

¹ The heades of the first Sermon.

⁴ In later editions, "every man and ² Rom. 3. ³ See it supra, p. 304.

woman."

⁵ 1 Joan 1.

be distinctly red, exhortation to be conceaved thereupon, and prayers lykewise, as God shall instruct and inspyre the Minister or Reader.

Monday before none.

Psalm, 2. 3. and 10.
Historie, 2. of the Judges.

After none.

Psalm, the 12. 13. and 17.
Historie, the 6. of the Judges.

Tuesday before none.

Psalm, the 25. and 28.
Historie, the 7. of the Judges.

After none.

Psalm, the 36. and 40.
Historie, the 4. of the Judges.

Wednesday before none.

Psalm, the 14. and 55.
Historie, the 19. of the Judges.

After none.

Psalm, the 44. and 56.
Historie, the 20. of the Judges.

Thursday before none.

Psalm, the 49. and 57.
Historie, Esther the 3. and 4.

After none.

Psalm, the 37.
Historie, Esther the 5. 6. and 7.

Fryday before none.

Psalm, the 59. 61. and 64.
Historie, the 2. of Paralip. 20.

After none.

Psalm, the 69.
Historie, the 36. of Isai.

Setterday before none.

Psalm, the 68. and 70.
Historie, the 37. of Isai.

After none.

Psalm, the 74. and 77.
Historie, the 9. and 10. of Esd.

Sunday the last day of this publict exercise, for this tyme, before none shalbe used in all things as the former Sunday, except that the 26. of Leviticus may be red for the 28. of Deuteronomie and for the prayer shalbe used that which is to be found in the Psalme book, the 165 page, beginning, "Eternall and everlasting," &c¹

Sunday at after none.—Psalm 78. Historie, the 9. of Daniel.

The exhortation and prayers ended, for the conclusion shalbe distinctly read the 80. Psal., and so with exhortation to every man to consider to what end the whole Exercise tendeth, with benediction the assemblie shalbe demitted.²

The Exhortations and Prayers of every severall Exercise, we have remitted to be gathered by the discrete Ministers; for tyme preassed us so, that we coulde not frame them in suche ordour as wes convenient, nether yet thought we it so expedient to pen prayers unto men, as to teache them with what heart and affection, and for what causes we shulde pray in this great calamitie, appearing shortlie to overwhelme this whole Realm, unles God of his great mercy abufe mannes expectation finde the remedy. Before whome it is that we have (and presently do) prostrate our selves, for obteaning of those thinges, without whiche the lyght of his Evangle cannot long continew with us. And therefore, yet oncs againe, we exhorte, and by the power committed unto us by God, charge all that professe the Lord Jesus, and the sinceritie of his Evangle, within this Realme, that even as they love the quyetnes of their commonwealth, the continuance of Christ Jesus his holy Evangle within the same, and their owen salvation, together with the salvation of their posteritie, that unfeanedly they prostrate themselves before the Throne of God's Majestie, and in bitternes of heart pray with us :

¹ See it supra, p. 296.

² In later editions, "dimitted."

Aryse, O Lord, and let thyne ennimies be confounded. Let them fle from thy presence that hate thy godly name. Let the grones of thy afflicted enter in before thee ; and preserve thow by thy owen power, suche as be appoynted to death. Let not thy ennimies thus triumph to the end : but let them understand that against thee they fight. Preserve the wyne¹ which thy ryght hand hath planted. Oppone thy power to the power of that Romaine Antichrist, and let the glorie of thyne annoynted Jesus Christ our Lord shyne before all nations. So be it. Hasten, Lord, and tary not.²

¹ Wyne, vine.

² The original edition of 1566, contains the following letter, addressed to the Ministers of Scotland, in reference to their hardships in obtaining payment of their stipends ; and also Knox's address " To the Faithful Reader," both of which are omitted in the subsequent editions of " The Order of the General Fast."

This Order continued to be observed in all the Fasts appointed by the General Assembly : the special Causes being sometimes expressed in the proclamation.

THE SUPERINTENDENTES, MINISTERS, AND COMMISSIONERS OF KIRKES, REFORMED WITHIN THE REALME OF SCOTLAND, ASSEMBLED IN EDINBURGH THE 25 DAY OF DECEMBER 1565.
 TO THE MINISTERS OF JESUS CHRIST, WITHIN THE REALME, DESYRE GRACE AND PEACE FROM GOD THE FATHER OF
 OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST, WITH THE PERPETUALL CON-
 FORTE OF THE HOLY SPIRITE.

THE present miserie, and greater troubles appearing shortly to follow, crave, deare Brethrene, that everie one of us exhorte and admonishe another, that we recule not back in the beginning of this battel, which is cum upon us unlooked for of many. And therefore it is that we, your brethrene, partakers with yow of the afflictions of Jesus Christ, understanding the extremitie wherein the whole Ministers within this Realme now stand, for lake of reasonable provision to them selves and poore families, have thought expedient to communicate with yow our myndes by this our letter, which is, that firste we shall diligently marke those wordes of the Apostle, saying, No man shalbe crowned, onles he strive laughfully ;¹ and also that fearefull sentence of our Master Jesus Christ, saying, No man putting his hand to the plough, and looking backe, is apt to the kingdome of God.² We have ones professed our selves warriours against Sathan, and labourers in the husbandrie of the Lord our God, who of his mercy hath opened oure mouthes to exhorte uthers to contempne this wicked worlde, and to contend to enter into that heavenly Jerusalem. God hath honored us so, that men hath judged us the messingers of the Everlasting. By us hath he disclosed idolatrie, by us are the wicked of the worlde rebuked, and by us hath our God comforted the consciences of many that were oppressed with ignorance and impietie. Consider, then, deare Brethrene, what selander and offence shall we give to the weak ? What occasion of rejoycing shall the ennimies have ? And to what ignominie shall we expone the glorious Evangle of Jesus Christ ? if that we for any occasion shall desist and cease from publict preaching of the same.

We that admonishe yow are not ignorant, nether yet altogether without experience, how vehement a dart povertie is, and what troublesome cogitations it is able to rase, yea, even in men of greatest constancie. But yet, deare Brethrene, we ought earnestlie to consider with what conditiones we are entered into this moste honorable vocation, and what we chiefly seake in the preaching of the Evangle ; for if we lay before us uther conditions, then Jesus Christ laide before his Apostles, when he send them furth firste to preache the glaide tydings of his kingdome;¹ and if we seake and ymagine to our selves better entreatment of this wicked generation, then we find the derrest servands of God have gotten in the worlde, we ether deceave our selves, or els declaire us not to be trew successours of those whose doctrine we propone to the people. They were send furth as sheape, amongs the middest of wolfes; to them it wes pronounced, that they shuld be hated, they shuld be mocked; men shulde curse and persecute them for the testimonie of the treuth,² which threatnings we find not to have bene vaine, but to have fallen upone the chiefest members of Jesus Christ, as the Actes of the Apostles beare testimonie.

¹ 2 Timot. 2.

² Luc. 9.

And think we that the same Evangle which they preached can have ane uther successe in oure Ministerie then it had in theires? In giftes, we muste confesse oure selves farre inferioure to those lyghtes of the worlde; in deligence and painefull travell we can not be compared, and yet we look to be partakers of the kingdome which God hath prepared for such as paciently abyde the gainecoming of the Lord Jesus. And shall we in nothing communicate with them? They were some tymes whipped, some tymes stoned, oft cast in prison, and the blood of many sealed up their doctrine.

And shall we for povertie leave the flock of Jesus Christ before that it utterly refuse us? God forbid, deare Brethrene, for what shall discerne us from the Mercenaries and Hyrelings, if our constancie in adversitie shal not do it? The hyrelings, in tyme of quietnes, teache the treuth as we do; in giftes and utterance they commonlie exceed us in lyfe and conversation; they may for a season be irreprehensible. What is it then that maketh them hyrelings?

Our Master and Saviour Jesus Christ answereth, saying, "The mercenarie seeth the wolfe coming, and fleeth, because he is a mercenarie."³ Then the leaving of the flock, when wolfes come to invade it, proveth suche as were holden pastours to be nothing but hyrelings, we deny not; but if one Cietie we be persecuted, we may laughfully flee unto another, yea, if one Realme cast us furth, we may receive the benefite of another. But ever still with this condition, that we cast not from us the profession that publicly we have made, nether yet that we cease to fead the flock of Jesus Christ, and to gainstand the teachers of fals doctrine, so farre furth as in us lyeth. But hereinto standeth the question, Whether may we, whome God hath called to this honour, that he hath made us ambassadoures of his good will unto this unthankfull generation, desist frome our vocations? Because that we can not be provided of reasonable livinges, as God hath commanded, and our travelles deserve.

¹ Math. 10.² Joan. 16.³ Joan. 10.

The Spirit of God uniformlie through the Scriptures wil answer us. That Helias wes send to be fed by the ravens.¹ Elizeus and his scollers were compelled to gather herbes to make pottage.² Paule did oft live by the worke of his owen handes, but we never finde that they received dimission from their vocations. Seing then dear brethrene that God as yet hathe tempted none of us with the extremetic that we finde uthers before us, have suffered and overcome, let us be ashamed so suddenly to faint, even in the brunt of the battell. The price of Christ Jesus, his death and passion is committed to our charge, the eyes of men are bent upon us, and we must answer before that Judge, who will not admit everie excuse that pleaseth us, but will judge up-ryghtly, as in his worde he hath before pronounced. Let us therefore stand fast, not onely in the treuth, but also in the defence and advancing of the same, which we cannot do, if we cease from our publick vocations. Let us, deare Brethren, stand fast in the same, and commit our bodies to the care of him who feadeth the foules of the aire, and hath promysed that he knoweth whereof we have need.³ He preserved us in the darknes of our mother's bosome, he provyded our foode in their breastes, and instructed us to use the same, when we knew him not, he hath nourished us in the tyme of blyndnes and of impietie, and will he now despyse us, when we call upone him, and preache the glorious Gospell of his deare Sone our Lord Jesus? Nay, deare Brethrene, he nether will nor can, unles that infidelitie cut us of from his mercyfull providence. Let us consider that the whole earth is the Lordes, and all the fulnes of the same, that he is able to move the heartes of men as best pleaseth him. He is able to blisse and multiplie thinges that are nothing in the eyes of carnall men.⁴ It is but povertie that as yet doeth threaten us, which, if we be not able to contempne, how shall we abyde the furie and terroure of death? Which many thousands before us have suffered for the testimonie of the same treuth, which we professe and teache, and dispysed all worldly redemption, as the Apostle speaketh.⁵ This is but a gentill tryall which our Father taketh of our obedience, which if we willingly offer unto him, the bowels of his Fatherly compassion will rather cause the heavens, yea, the rockes and rivers to minister unto us thinges necessarie to the bodie, then that he shall suffer us to perishe, if we dedicate our whole lives unto him. Let us be frequent in reading (which allace, over many dispise), earnest in prayer, diligent in watcheing over the flock committed to our charge, and let our sobrietie and temperate lyfe eshame the wicked, and be exmple to the godly; and then there is no dout but the Eternall our God shall remedy this extremitie, he shall confound our ennimies, and shall shortly convert our teares and murning in joy and myrth, to the glorie of his owen Name, and to the conforte of the posteritie to cum. Through the merites and intercession of Jesus Christ oure Lord, whose Holy Spirite conforte yow and us to the end.

¹ 1. Reg. 17.² 2. Reg. 4.³ Math. 6.⁴ 2. Reg. 4; Joan. 6; Math. 14.⁵ Heb. 11.

Of Edinburgh, in our General Assemblie, the last Session thereof.
Anno. 1565.

TO THE FAITHFULL READER.

ALBEIT that nether suche as did firste command, nether yet those that have travelled to set furthe this ordour of publict Fasting, and admonitions to the Ministers, have impyre above the bodies of suche as unto whome they wryte : yet have they no dout power from God to rebuke sinne, and to crave repentance, especially of suche as God hath called to his knowledge, in the middest of this moste obstinate and corrupt generation. And therefore, in the bowels of Jesus Christ, we requyre all men to ponder and wey, what is the estate of this Realme at this present, and if they se not clearely just causes why that God shoulde punishe in his hote displeasure them, we can be content that men live at their owen quietnes. But if that justice be universally oppressed and iniquitie so menteaned, that it overfloweth this whole Realme, then dare we be bolde to cry with the Prophet Ezechiell,¹ that suche as murne not for the abominations that now habound, shall perishe in the iniquitie of this most stubburne generation. Whill that suche as semple obey God, speaking by his moste dispysed Ministers, shall avoyde vengeance bothe temporall and eternall, we dout not but suche as think themselves more wise then they declaire themselves godly, shal ask wherefore shall we be subject to the ordinances of men? Have we not the Spirit of God to teache us in all thinges? We answer, that if we as men command any thing, let it not be obeyed; but if we in this age command the same things which God in the ages before us hath commanded by his servands, let them beware, least that in dispysing of us they dispysed not also the Eternall God, whose holie worde is to us assurance of everie precept that we have given. And further, we feare not to say that suche as murne not with Jacob in his affliction, shal not rejoyse with him in the day of his deliverance, but they shalbe compelled to murne and quaike with Pharo without end.

Many thinges we have omitted to further oportunitie and better occasion. God grant that things simple spoken and uprightly ment, may be interpret according to the reule of charitie, and obedientlie followed as God requyareth.

JOHNE KNOXE, at the command of the publict Assemblie.

Math. 24.—Wache and pray, for the dayes are evill, and the righteous Judge is in readynes to cum.² Hasten, Lord, and tary not.

¹ Ezech. 9.

² Heb. 10.

[FROM THE ORDOURE AND DOCTRINE OF THE GENERAL FAST, &c.
Imprinted at Edinburgh be Robert Lekpreuik. Anno 1574.
See page 392.]

Certaine Chapters and Partes of the Scriptures used be the Ministers of Edinburgh and Halyrudhous, in the tyme of God's visitation by the Pest; in the tyme when in the Court rang all impietie, as murther, huredome, in contempt of God's word, bot especially in the tyme when the Quene wes strikken be God's hand in Jedburgh: Also in the tyme of famine and dert, and uther suche tymes as God gave occasion, and according to the maner of the scourge.

In tyme of Pest.

The 21. of Numeri, the 34. of the second buke of Samuel, 3. chap. of Ezechiel, the 91. Psalme, with uther suche places proper for the same.

In the tyme when Impietie abounded.

Ezechiell the 3.	Esayas the 3.
The 1. of Zephaniach.	Jeremias the 34.
Numeri the 16.	Oseas the 4.
Numeri the 25.	Amos the 6.
Josua the 7.	Obadiach.
1. of Samuel the 4. & 7.	Micheas the 2.
1. of Samuel the 15.	Zacharie the 5.
1. of the Kinges the 13.	Esra the 4.
2. of the Chron. the 26.	Nehemiach. 9.

In tyme of Famine.

Esayas the 58.	1. of Kinges the 17. & 18.
Haggeus the 1.	2. of Kinges the 4.
Amos the 4.	2. of Kinges 6. 7. & 8.
Amos the 8.	Zachary the 7.

And uthers such lyke partes of the Scriptures, according as the correction wes laide of God: For even as the Lord our God hes divers and sindrie wandes wherewith he scourgeth the world; bot mercyfullie correcteth his owen children for their profite, so hes he left divers examples in holy Scripture, how his chosen hes used themselves under everie sorte of correction, by him Fatherly laide upon them, as in the chapters before expressed, wes first noted, to steare man to prevent God's Judgements be trew and unfeaned repentance before the plague came.

So these chapters now noted, wes chosen be the Ministers of Edinburgh and Halyrudhous, and uthers godly their about, at such tymes as God did visite them, as is abone expressed. To testifie alsua, that the Kirk of God, nor the faithfull and discreite Ministers, are not bound at everie Humiliation to stiek scrupulously to the former, as no uther may be chosen, bot as God changeth his wandes, so may our prayers, with the examples of the Sanctes so afflicted, be changed and ordoured. Nether can the wicked justly accuse us, in so doing, of inconstancie : Bot rather ought the chosen to glorifie God, that our publict Fasting and Humiliation is not bound to mannes commandement precyselie, nor to olde customes, as the Papistes use their ceremonies ; but as God vesies us, so in that maner seak we him as he teacheth us and giveth us examples in his moste holy Word, according to his Fatherly correction.

THREE CAUSES OF THIS PUBLICT FAST.

As in these dayes we call unto him for mercy for our unthankfulness, being so oft and divers tymes delyvered, and yet his benefites so suddeanlie forget ; in that that we se sinne so to abound in all estates, God's fearefull threateninges not feared, bot the pronouncers thereof mocked and disdaned be the most part of the world.

Secundly, the great honger, famine, and oppression of the pure, although the riche and wealthy that keapes their corne whill the wyld beastes eat it, feil not the famine, whose plague suddenly followes, if hastely they prevent not God's judgements by unfeaned repentance.

Thridly, and cheifly, we humble our selves, and call upon our God for the confort and delyverance of oure afflicted brethren in France, Flanders, and uther partes : For although the plague and cruel Decreit of Trent is begune at Susan, or rather into fylthie Sodome in Pareis, that boucher-hous of Sathan, be those manesworne and cruell murtherers, yet their mynde is no les cruelly bent towards us : For if they had not pietie to drink their owen bloodes, and to se the samin ryn in the streites with Manasses, mekle less will they be moved with compassion when they shal onely heir crueltie used against strangers, except God drowne Pharao, chase and slay Sennaherib, confound and beate down with shame Herod, which muste be through the prayers of the sanctes of God, humbled under his mightie hand.

Those, and uther manyfolde Causes, as sinne unpunished in many places, the craftynes of the worldelings, with the appearant deceitfulness of fals brethren, moveth us this day to stoup under his mighty hand, which, we cal unto him for his owen Names sake, we may do without hypoerisie ; then not douting bot that the fruite and profite thereof shalbe found and sene, as at divers tymes we have felt, to his owen glorie, and comfort of his Kirk ; to whome be praise, glorie, and honour for ever. [Amen.]

THE FAYTHFULL BRETHERN WITHIN THE REALM OF SCOTLAND UNDER-WRITTIN, TO THE FAYTHFULL PROFESSOURIS OF THE LORD JESUS
IN ENGLOND, FRANCE, GERMANYE, OR ELLIS WHARE, DESYRED
GRACE AND PEACE FROM GOD THE FATHER, AND FROM HIS SONE OUR LORDE JESUS CHRIST, WITH THE PERPETUALL CONFORT OF THE HOLY SPREIT.

ALBEIT, Deare Brethern, that vertu and trew feare of God planted in the hartis of his chosin, will manifest and schew the selfe, whairsoevir it shall please his Fatherlie providence to conduct and cary his servandis and childern, that of men they nead no maner of testimonie. Yit, becaus that Sathan can transfigure himself into ane angell of lycht, and mak his suppostis appeare as manteanaris of Goddis glory, and pillars of his veritie, and also, that many tymes the innocencie of Joseph is suppressed by prejudiciall accusatioun of the wicked worldlings. We have thought expedient to signifie unto you all faythfull, to whose knowledge these our presentis shall cum, that these, our tuo derrest brethern, Maister Robert Hamyltoun, minister and preacheour of the evangell of Jesus Christ,¹ and Robert Campbell of Kynginleuch,² hath so behaved thaimselfes in thare vocations with ws, within this Realme and our native cuntre of Scotland, that justlie the veray wicked amangs ws can lay no cryme to thare charge. For the one haith so purilye taught the word of salvatioun, and the other haith so uprightlie ministred justice in all civill actions subject to his charge, that the godlic with ws can not but lament the absence of such tuo notable instrumentis who were lyghtis in the Church of Jesus Christ, comfortable to the afflicted, and fearfull to the wicked doaris in the partis whare they traved.

Yf then you ask, Why ar they dejected from ws? We ansuer, Becaus that now, to the greif of many, iniquitie commandis, tyrannic ringis, and the cause of the ryghteous is uttirlic suppressed amang ws. For, albeit of Goddis greate mercye, we have yit the evangell of Jesus Christ oppinlie preached, yit dar not the principaill men that have traved for the advancement of Goddis glorie in these last troubles

¹ Hamilton was appointed minister of St. Andrews in 1566, in the room of Christopher Goodman, who had returned to England before the close of the previous year. In 1574 he became Provost of St. Mary's College, St. Andrews, and died in April 1581. — (Wodrow Miscellany, p. 283.)

² Robert Campbell of Kinyeancleuch, Ayrshire, was an intimate friend of Knox, and a zealous Reformer.—(See some notices in the Wodrow Miscellany, pages 281-284.)

(other then thei that have determinate to offer thare bodies a sacrifice for witnessing of his treuth), appeare before the magistrats, that now for our humiliatioun are placed above ws. For causes of treasoun ar laid to the charge of innocent men, thare substances ar spoiled, and thare lives ar sought, becaus thei have traveled for maintenance of vertu and suppressing of ydolatrie, of which number, these our brethern (according to thare abilitie) haith bene tuo cheif men. Receive tham, thairfoir, we beseik you, as the servandis of God, and as our derrest brethern. In doing whairof, as you shall please God, so shall you bynd ws to the lik vicissitude upon the lik assurance. We unfynedlie crave the assistance of your prayers, that God, for Christ Jesus his Sonis saike, will, of his mercy, manteane his owin wark, that potentlie he hes begun amangis ws. This, in the end, we culd not omitt, that you shall not credeth every Testificatioun, as send from ws. That which we approve will be signed, as this is. The Lord Jesus, by his Holye Spreit, confort you and ws to the end, and trode Sathan suddanelie under our feitt. So be it.

From Edinburgh the xxvj. of December 1565.—Your loving brethern in Christ Jesus, JOHON ERSKYN, of Angus and Mernis, Superintendent.

JOHNE SPOTTISWOD, Superintendent of Lotheane and the Mars.

M. JHON WYNRAM, of Fyffe, Strathern, Fodrik and Gowrie, Superintendent.

JOHN KNOX, Minister of Edinburgh.

THE KIRKIS TESTIMONIAL

TO MR. ROBERT HAMMYLTOUN,
AND ROBERT CAMPBELL.¹

¹ The above letter was printed, probably for the first time, in the Wodrow Miscellany, p. 285, with a facsimile of part of the original. It is preserved in a volume of the Wodrow Manuscripts in the Advocates Library (folio 4. No. 92). This facsimile is here repeated, partly for the purpose of comparison with the similar facsimile in vol. i. page xxx, of the original Manuscript of Knox's History of the Reformation, both of them evidently being written by the Clerk of the General Assembly.

3

Handwritten text, likely bleed-through from the reverse side of the page. The text is extremely faint and illegible.

THE SUPERINTENDENTS, MINISTERS, AND COMMISSIONERS OF THE CHURCHES REFORMED WITHIN THIS REALME OF SCOTLANDE ASSEMBLED IN EDENBROUGH, THE XXV. DAYE OF DECEMBER 1565, TO ALL FAITHFULL WITHIN THE SAME REALME, DESIRE GRACE AND PEACE FROM GOD THE FATHER, AND FROM OUR LORDE JESUS CHRIST, WITH THE PERPETUAL CONFORT OF THE HOLYE GHOST.

THE sorowfull complayntes of all Ministers in generall, and of some nowe more to be lamented in others in particuler, being considered in this oure last Assembly (beloved in the Lord Jesus) divers men were of divers judgements, howe the grieft and povertie of such as faithfully travayle in their vocation within the Church of God might somewhat be relieved. After long reasoning it was concluded, that a supplication shuld be direct to the Quenes Majestie, requiring that respecte might be had to the extreme necessity of our Ministers.¹ But bicause that the necessity of our brethren is great, and their povertie present, and that the remedie can not be sodaine nor yet certaine, it was thought expedient that a generall admonition should be made to all the faithful, to have respect to the necessitie of the Ministers universally. But especially, that the faithfull in every parish have consideration to the necessitie of suche as travaile amongst them in true doctrine and hol-some exhortation, which admonition, whosoever dispiseth, dispiseth no doubt the chiefe dutie of a Christian.² For alas, with what conscience can we eate oure owne bread, and know the bowels of such as offers to us the breade of lyfe, and minister to us spirituall things, to crave of God and us but a reasonable sustentation, and yet can not finde suche favour at oure handes, as Turkes finde amongst Turkes, and Jewes amongst that blinded nation.

Alas, where are the bowels of mercy that sometyme were founde amongst the faithfull? How farre is this our filthye avarionnesse distant from that liberalitie which appeared in the primitive Church, when that the faithfull cast their substance at the feete of the Apostles?³ Where is that charitie which moved the Churches of Macedonia and Achaia⁴ and other cuntries to make most liberall collectours, and to send the same to relieve the indigence of the pore at Jerusalem and in Judea. Where is the zeale that was in the Galathians and Philippians,⁵

¹ The answer is, the Quene can spare nothing.

³ Act. 2; Rom. 15.

⁴ 2 Corint. 9.

² This is the commaundement of the Spirit of God. Hebr. 13.

⁵ Galat. 4; Phil. 4.

of whome the one would have given their eyes to the Apostle Paule, if that might have supported him, the other spared not to sende to their preacher, being prisoner in Rome, their supporte and comfort most liberally. If we thinke to be partakers with suche men in glorye, why studye we not to followe their vertues? If this be the same Evangel of salvation, as no doubt it is, that the Apostles preached, that now of Gods great mercy is preached to us, alas, why brings it not forth some part of the former fruites,¹ if we thinke they are but men and not Apostles that nowe preach unto us, let us consider that the Apostles were men, and receyved of men support and comforte, and also that others than the Apostles were groundd for by the liberalitie of the faithfull, as in the Actes of the Apostles maye be seene.²

We have not Paule to write unto us newe Epistles, neyther yet Mathewe, Marke, Lucas, or John, to dite unto us a newe Evangell, bicause things written are sufficient if we understande and followe the same: but of Gods great mercy we have men that open and explaine unto us not onely writings of the New, but also of the Old Testament. We have the servaunts of God indued with rare and notable graces, whom if we contempne, it is to be feared that God shall so punish our ingratitude, that he shal take from us the light of his worde, and the true messengers of the same, and suffer darkenesse agayne to apprehende us, and the slaves of Sathan tyrannously to impire above us, and then woe to us and our posteritie.³ For better it had beene that the word of lyfe had never bene shewen unto us, than that we in our default shoulde suffer our selves to be defrauded of so great a benefite. Let us therefore begin to reverence the blessed Evangell of our salvation. Reverence nor magnifie it wee can not, when that we suffer the true preachers therof to be oppressed with povertie before our eyes, and yet we shut up the bowels of mercy from them.⁴

Let us consider, deare brethren, how carefully God commaundeth in his law that the Levites,⁵ and such as served that material tabernacle, should be provided of sufficient livings, yea, let us consider with what plagues God punished Israell and Juda when his statutes and his servaunts were dispised.⁶ Shal we think that the eternall God will spare us, if we be found contemners of such as truely preache the Lorde Jesus, or lawfully beare any charge within his Church? we maye be assured that he will not. For as the bodye is more excellent than is the shadow, and as the veritie is to be preferred to the signe, so are the Ministers of the New Testament, and their spirituall service, to be preferred tu the Levites, and their carnall ceremonies, the contempt whereof can not but crave at Gods handes moste severe punishment, bicause

¹ Let everie man descend within him selfe.

² Act. 6.

³ Let Scotland advert.

⁴ Who are they that reverence not the evangelist of Jesus Christ. ⁵ Exod. 22.

⁶ Levit. 27; Nu. 28; Deut. 12.

(as sayde is) the office of the one doth farre excell the office of the other. They did but reade the law, kill the sacrifice, sley the beastes, take of the skinnes, wash the flesh, and offer the same as was commaunded in the law, and for such service were the tenthes first frutes, and other dueties appointed for their sustentation: but the Ministers of Jesus Christ have an office without al comparison more excellent, for they bring to us the glad tidinges of salvation, by the two edged sworde of Goddes worde, which is mighty in operation, they sley that old man that never fightes against God, they make his thought patent to his owne confusion, that the newe man of God maye take lyfe.¹ They wash the soules with the bloude of Jesus Christe which abundantly drops from their lips, when truely they preache the vertue and effect of the death of Jesus Christ, and rightly minister his sacramentes lefte to be used in his Church, to holde us in recent memorie of that so great a benefite.²

Finalye by them are we taught and conducted, to offer not onely prayers and thanks giving: but also our bodies and soules in a reasonable and lively sacrifice unto God by Jesus Christ. And yet (O cruell ingratitude) shal we care no more for their sustentation, than that we were nothing addicted unto them, neyther yet that God had raised them uppe after over long blindnesse, to reduce us againe to the right way of salvation, and to conduct us in the same to the end.

If we thinke that al these things may be due without ministers or without preaching, we utterly deceyve our selves. For the same order that God hath observed since that he hath collected his visible Church, he will shall be observed so long as it continueth upon the face of the earth, that is, that even as under the lawe the people were commaunded to require wisdom from the mouthes of the priestes, and Levites³ had a charge to teach and so tourne many from their iniquitie: so in this most acceptable time, did Jesus Christ ascending to the heavens, distribute his glory in divers sortes:⁴ for some he made Apostles, some Prophetes, some Evaungelistes, that is, preachers of glad tidings, some pastours, some teachers, to the end that we might all come to the unities of the faith, and to the knowledge of the Sonne of God.⁵

Now if we think that none within Scotlande lackes true faith, yea if we thinke that our children can attayne to the right knowledge of God, without true doctrine, then maye we dreame with our selves,⁶ that ministers are not necessarie, and so are we nothing addicted unto them. But if that faith commeth by hearing, and that by the hearing of Gods worde,⁷ and that Gods word is not sent unto us absolutely from heaven by Aungels, but is planted by the Holy Spirit in the heartes and mouthes of men whome God of his mercye sendes forth into the

¹ Hebr. 4; Rom. 8.

³ Deut. 17.

⁴ Math. 2.

² As Christ was crucified amongst the Galathians. Gala. 3; Rom. 12.

⁵ 1 Cor. 12; Eph. 4.

⁶ Let yet Scotland advert. ⁷ Rom. 10.

4205

world, to sowe therein the seede of his Evangell, we can not but confesse our selves debtors to our Ministers. The dispisers of whome, yea all suche as to their power supporte them not in their necessities, are before his throne judged contemptners of his owne majestie. And therefore yet once againe, let every faithfull consider what is his duetie, and let us abhor that ingratitude that we shuld suffer the servants of the Lorde Jesus to begge, or travaile in poverty before our eyes, for if we doe, we banishe from us Jesus Christ and the light of his Evangell. The Apostle commaundeth a bishop, and every true preacher of Jesus Christ is a Christian bishop among the rest of his vertues to be one that keepeth hospitalitie, and is able to receyve straungers. This can he not doe without reasonable provision, and by whome the bishop shoulde be provided, S. Paule aunswereth in these wordes:—Let him that is taught communicate in al his goods, with him that teacheth him, and againe, is it anye great thing, that while we sowe unto you spirituall things, that we should reape of you carnall things?¹ of which and many moe places it is evident, that the flock is bounden to provide for their pastor.

It will not excuse us, deare Brethren, to cry and complaine, we are compelled to answeere our bishops, persons, and vicars. Our teachers are taken up most rigorously, how shal we then be able to susteyne oure ministers. These complaintes and appearing reasons, deare Brethren, will vanish with winde, when we shal come to the straight examination of consciences before God. For are we not commaunded to honor God with our substance?² and thinke we that we doe honor him when with our substance we fil the bellies of dumb dogges, yea of God's conjured enimies, and suffer his servauntes to fall into povertie, before our eyes, if ye thinke we shall be excused bicause that the order of lawe constrayneth us thereunto, the godly feare in case this reason shall be admitted before God, lest tirannie under collour of lawe, wil take from us our tithes, and so can we not sustayne our ministers. This reason, Brethren, will be weake, yea, so weake, that we feare it shal be repelled before the incorrupt judge. For howe manye of us have complayned upon that tiraunt? Who hath made intercession to the Majestrats for redresse of that enormity. Yea, alas, howe many of us are not maintayners of those theves, and partakers of their murders, called Bishops, Abbottes, and Pryors. Let no man wonder that we terme such men with so odious termes, no, let them rather wonder, that God poureth not forth the uttermost of his vengeaunce upon the realme, and us that maintaine such tirants in their tirannie, in this great light of his Evangell. Theves they are, for they take large fee and serves not; murderers they are, bicause that by withholding the bread of lyfe, they cause the soules of men to dye for hunger of God's worde. And yet how conspire we with them, what doe we to maintayne that abuse:

¹ Gala. 6.² Pro. 3.

of those theves, we have tacks¹ by them, we have interest and title to tithes, and for love of the spoile, we maintaine their murthers in oppression of the pore. Let us not be deceyved, deare Brethren. There is no lawe made by man, that can make these lawful, neyther yet the substance of one to be the just possession of an other, without a just title.²

The tenthes were once appointed by God to the Levites, to the pore, to the widow, fatherlesse, and straungers, and the lawes of Emperours, Kings, and Princes, did after Christ, appoint the same to the like use, to wit, to the sustentation of such as travaile in the Church, for the reliefe of the pore, and for maintenaunce of learning. Nowe, say we, to transfer the tythes from these uses, the persons before named not being provided for, is both to commit theft and sacriledge, yea, the spoile of the pore is in the houses of so manye, as unjustlye possesse them, and who they are ye have before heard, neyther shall they in the ende escape that sentence of the Prophete,—The malediction of the Lorde is upon the house of the thefe.³ But yet, Brethren, let us suppose that in no sorte we did consent with those oppressions, but that we opposed our selves unto them to the uttermoste of our powers, and yet we were oppressed in our just cause by the tirannie of unjust lawes? should we yet be excused before God if we communicate not with the necessitie of the ministers of Jesus Christ? Let us be moste assured that we can not, for that sentence of our Lorde and Judge standes ever in force,—“Worthy is the laborer of his wages.”⁴ And againe, “You shall not mussell the mouth of the Oxe that treadeth forth the corne.” The execution of these precepts He wil alway require of you, howsoever we flatteroure selves in our owne imaginations, neyther doth extremitie of lawes, nor corruption of tymes excuse us before God, of the deutie he requires of us. Which thing did Abdias, servaunt to Achab, and Jesabell, rightly consider, for when by them (but Jesabell, chieflye) the Prophets of the Lord were destroyed, he hid in caves an hundreth Prophets of the Lorde,⁵ and fed them with bread and water, that is, liberallye, and sufficientlye, for then was water more scant in Israel than ale or wyne is (as yet) amongst us. Did a man feede an hundred servauntes of the Lorde, and in that tyme when things were most scant, and yet both the King and the Queene sought the subversion of true religion, and the destruction of all God’s true servants, and shal not a thousand of us and moe that have professed the Lord Jesus with in this Realme, upon our charges, sustaine two or three hundereth of such as have travailed, and yet travaile to advance the kingdome of Jesus Christ amongst us? If we doe not, fearefull shall the sentence be, that shall be pronounced against us, by him, whose voyce we shall not then be able to gainstand, when from his throne he shall say,—

¹ Tacks, leases.

² Howsoever the worlde mocke this, God shall approve it.

³ Zacha. 50.

⁴ 1 Corin. 9.

⁵ 1 Reg. 25.

“Depart from me ye workers of iniquitie, for I was hungry and ye fed me not, thirstie ye gave me no drinke, naked ye clothed me not, I lacked harbrowe, and ye receyved me not into your house.”¹

Playne it is that Christ Jesus in his owne person neyther suffers hunger nor thirst, he needes neyther clothes nor house, but as him selfe in the same place saith, “Whatsoever ye did not to the lest one of these, that ye did not to me.” Let us, deare Brethren, ponder these wordes, and let us nowe beginne to shew the fruites of repentance, and unfaynedly to magnifie the worde of our salvation. Let the bowels of our mercye be opened to oure brethren. Let never the pestilente Papists have cause to rejoyce over us, that they shall hereafter saye, that our own nigardenes banished Jesus Christ from us. Which thing if without hipocrisie and of good courage we begin to doe, then no doubt but God shall blesse the labors of our hande, he shall restore to us our former courage, and strike the hartes of our enimies with the same feare that they have felt before.

It is we, deare Brethren, it is wee that hath exponed the glorious Evangell of Jesus Christ to this daunger within this realme, for while that the moste parte of us studied for the building of our own house, the house of the Lord was neglected and dispised. And in the meane time hath the enemie so prevayled, that we and it stand in equall daunger, save that the spirituall house of God can never utterly be suppressed.² But we may fal, both temporally and eternally, if we dispise the sermon of exhortation, which calles us agayne to our first profession. If we heare and obey his voice, there is mercy, power, and good will in our God. Mercy, to pardon our former negligence, power to repress the pride of our enimies, and good will to maintaine the cause of his truth, that once of his mercy he hath made to prosper in our handes. O Lorde, for thine owne name sake, move our heartes to consider our duties. Preserve the flock to whome thou of thy mercy hast reveled thy selfe. Purge this Realme of damnable Idolatry, and continewe to our posteritie the light of thy Worde in the same puritie that thou hast offered it unto us.

Take our rude Exhortation in good part, deare Brethren, and be bolde upon us in all things not repugning to God. The grace of our Lord Jesus rest with you and us now and ever. At Edinburgh, in our Generall Assembly, the laste Session thereof, the 28. of December 1565.

JOHN KNOXE, at the commaundement of the Brethren before mencioned.

¹ Math. 25.

² God grant that this may yet be un-derstande, for oft before it was heard and mocked of manye.—(Marg. note.)

THE SUPERINTENDENTS, MINISTERS, AND COMMISSIONERS OF KIRKS WITHIN THE REALME OF SCOTLAND PRESENTLIE ASSEMBLIT, TO ALL AND SUNDRIE FAITHFUL BRETHREN TO WHOSE KNOWLEDGE
 THIR PRESENTS SALL COME, WISCHETH GRACE, MERECIE, AND PEACE
 FROM GOD THE FATHER, AND FROM OUR LORD JESUS CHRYST.

Witt your Universities, that our loving brother JOHNE KNOX,¹ bearer of thir presents, hes bein and is ane true and faithful minister of the Evangell of Jesus Chryst within this realme of Scotland, continually within thir viii yeirs bygane or therabout ; in doctrine pure, and sincere in lyfe and conversation, in our sights inculpable, and hes so fruitfully usit that talent grantit to him be the Eternal, to the advancement of the glorie of his godlie name, to the propagation of the kingdom of Jesus Chryst, and edifieing of them who heard his preaching, that of duetie we most heartlie praise his godlie Majestie, for that so great ane benefite grantit unto him for our utilitie and profite. And because he, for the naturall love and affectioun he beares to his Childrein,² now being within the realme of England, and favour to uthers his brethren, requested us to grant him licence for ane season, to repaire toward the said realme of England, for the causes above mentionat, We, after mutual conference in full Assemblie, thocht this petitioun just and reasonable, and therfor all in ane voyce grants licence to our said Brother, according to the Queens Majesties conduct, to passe to the said realme, for the purposes foirsproken and uthers his lawfull affaires, what time he sall think most commodious for his journey ; provydeing allways that he returne to this realme of Scotland before the 25 of the moneth of Junii nixt insewing, to continue in his former vocatioun, and na utherways. And this we make knowin to all and sundrie to whom it effeirs, be thir our Letters Testimonials, givin at Edinburgh in our Generall Assemblie, and third Session therof, subscriyvit be the Clerk of the same, the 27. of December [1566].

¹ " Anent Mr. Knox's request to passe to the realme of England to visite his children, and to doe his other business, the hail Assemblie grantit gladly licence, with letters testimonials of his honest conversatioun and godlie doctrine within this Realme, with provision as is conteinit in the saids letters; the tenour," etc. (as above).—Booke of the Universall Kirk of Scotland, vol. i. p. 84.

² Knox's two sons, by his first wife, Marjory Bowes, were in England for their education.

THE SUPERINTENDENTS, MINISTERS, AND COMISSIONERS OF KIRKS WITHIN THE REALME OF SCOTLAND,¹ TO THERE BRETHREN THE BISCHOPS AND PASTOURS OF ENGLAND,² WHO HES RENUNCED THE ROMANE ANTICHRYST, AND DOES PROFESSE WITH THEM THE LORD JESUS IN SINCERITIE, DESYRES THE PERPETUALL INCREASE OF THE HOLIE SPIRIT.

By word and write it is come to our knowledge, REVEREND PASTORS, that diverse of our deirest brethren, among whom are some of the best learnit within that realme, are depryvit fra Ecclesiastical functioun, and forbidden to preach, and so by you are stayed to promote the kingdome of Chryst, because ther conscience will not suffer them to take upon them, at the comandment of the Authoritie, sick garments as idolaters in the tyme of blindnes have usit in the tyme of ³idolatrie ; whilk brute cannot be but most dolorous to our hearts, myndfull of that sentence of the Apostle, saying, " If ye byte and devore ane another, take good heid lest ye be consumit ane of another."

We purpose not at this present to enter upon the ground whilk we heare of either partie to be aggriet⁴ with greater vehemence⁵ then well lykies us ; to witt, Whither sick apparrell be to be countit amongs things that is simple and⁶ indifferent, or not. Bot in the bowells of Chryst Jesus we crave, that christian charitie may so farre prevail in you, in you we say the Pastors and Leaders of the flocke in that ¹ " The Ministers and Elders of the Churches within the Realme of Scotland," p. 125, edit. 1593.

² The General Assembly " attour ordainit ane letter to be directit to the Bischops of England, that they wald be content gentle to handle the brethren preachers, touching the habits surp-cloathes and uthers abulyements, whilk appeirantlie tends more to superstition nor to edification; and requests Master Knox to put the heads in write whilk he thinks necessar to be wryten to the saids Bischops. The tenour whereof followes." —Booke of the Kirk, vol. i. p. 85.

This Letter, which occurs with variations in vol. ii. p. 545, is included in a volume of Puritanical Tracts, printed anonymously, without place or date; but at Edinburgh by Robert Waldegrave, in the year 1593, under this title:—"A parte of a register, contayninge sundrie memorable matters, written by divers godly and learned in our time, which stande for, and desire the reformation of our Church, in Discipline and Ceremonies, accordinge to the pure worde of God, and the Lawe of our Lande." 4to. Many copies of this volume were seized on their arrival in London, and delivered to " My Lordes Grace."—See Herbert's Ames, vol. iii. p. 1514, note.

³ Of their.—(Edit. 1593.)

⁴ Followed.—(Ibid.)

⁵ Violence.—(Ibid.)

⁶ Simple indifferent.—(Ibid.)

Realme, that ye doe not to uthers that whilk ye would uthers did not to you :¹ Ye cannot be ignorant how tender a thing the conscience of man is :² all that have knowledg are not alyke perswadit, yet conscience reclaimes not at the wearing of sick garments ; bot many thousands both godly and learned are utherwayes perswadit, whose consciences are continually striken with thir sentences ; “ Whatt hes Chryst Jesus to do with Belial ? What hes³ darknes adoe with light ? ” If surp-claithes,⁴ cornett-cap and tippet, has bein badges of idolaters in the verie act of ther idolatrie, what hes the preacher of Christian libertie and the oppin rebuiker of all superstition to doe with the dregges of that Romish Beast ;⁵ yea, what is he that ought not to feare either to take in his hand or foirheid, the print and marke of that odious Beast ? Our Brethren that in⁶ conscience refuses that unprofitable apparrell, does neither damne nor molest you that use sick vaine trifles : If ye sall doe the lyke to them, we doubt not but therein ye sall please God, and comfort the hearts of many whilk are woundit with the extremitie that is usit against these godlie and our belovit Brethren. Colour of rhetorick or manly⁷ perswasion will we use none, bot charitablie we desyre you to call that sentence of Peter to mynd, “ Feed the flocke of God whilk is committed to your charge, caring for it not be constraint bot willinglie ; not as thogh ye were Lords over Gods heritage, but that ye may be ensamples to the flocke.” And farther, also, we desyre you to meditate that sentence of the Apostle, saying, “ Give none offence neither to the Jewes, nor to the Grecians, nor to the Kirk of God.” In what condition of tyme ye and we both travell in the promoting of Chryst’s kingdome, we suppose you not to be ignorant, and therfor we are more bold to exhort you to walke more circumspectly, then that for sick vanities the godly sould be troubled ; for all things that may seime lawfull edifie not. If the commandment of the Authoritie urge the conscience of you and of our brethren farther than they can beare, we unfainedly crave of you that ye remember ye are callit the “ light of the world,” and “ the salt of the earth.” All civill⁸ auctoritie hes not the light of God alwayes shyning befor the eysis in there statutes and commandments ;⁹ bot there affectiouns savour over meikle of the earth and of worldlie wisdom, and therefore we thinke ye sould boldly oppone yourselves to all that power that will or darre extoll itself, not only agains God, but also agains all sick as darre burdein the consciences of the faithful, farther then God hes burdeinit

¹ Not that uthers should do unto you.
—(Ibid.)

² The conscience is tender.—(Marginal note.)

³ Fellowship is their betwixt darknes and light ?—(Edit. 1593.)

⁴ Surplesse.—(Ibid.)

⁵ Nota.—(Marginal note.)

⁶ Of.—(Edit. 1593.)

⁷ Humane.—(Ibid.)

⁸ Called to.—(Ibid.)

⁹ Before their eyes, but their affections, etc.—(Ibid.)

them be his awin word.¹ Bot heirin we may confesse our offence, in that we have entrit farther in reasoning then we purposed² and promised at the beginning ; and therfor we shortlie returne to our former humble supplicatioun, whilk is, That our brethren who among you refuse the Romish raggies, may find of you, the Prelates, sick favour as our Heid and Master comands every ane of his members to shaw to another ; whilk we looke to receive of your gentlenes, not only for that ye feare to offend God's Majestie, in troubling of your brethren for sick vaine trifles, but also because ye will not refuse the humble request of us, your brethren and fellow preachers,³ in whom albeit there appeir not great worldlie pompe, yet we suppose that ye will not so farre despyse us, bot that ye will esteime us to be of the number of them that fights agains that Roman Antichryst, and travell that the kingdom of Jesus Chryst may be universallie⁴ advanceit. The days are ill ;⁵ iniquitie abounds ; Christian charity alas is waxen cold ; and therfor we ought the more diligentlie to watch, for the houre is uncertaine when the Lord Jesus sall appeir, befor whom ye,⁶ your brethren, and we, must give account of our administratioun. And this in conclusion, we anes againe crave favours to our Brethren, whilk grantit, ye in the Lord sall command us things of double more importance.⁷ The Lord Jesus rule your hearts in true feare to the end, and give to you and us victorie over that conjured enemie of all true Religioun, to witt over⁸ that Roman Antichryst, whose woundit head Satan preases⁹ by all means to cure againe. Bot to destructioun sall he and his maintainers goe, by the power of the Lord Jesus : To whose mightie protectioun we heartlie commit you. From Edinburgh, out of our Generall Assemblie, and third Sessioun therof, the 27 of December 1566.¹⁰

Your loving Brethren and fellow-preachers in Chryst Jesus,

JOHNE CRAIG.

JOHN ROW.

JAMES MELVILL.

DAVID LINDSAY.

ROBERT PONT.

JOHN ARESKINE.

WILLIAM CHRISTESON.

JOHN WINRHAME.

NICOLL SPITTELL.

JOHN SPOTSWOOD.

¹ " Bi. Should open the treuth."—
(Marginal note.)

² Then we promised at, etc.—(Edit.
1593.)

³ Of Christ Jesus.—(Ibid.)

⁴ Universallie may be.—(Ibid.)

⁵ Evil.—(Ibid.)

⁶ Yea, your brethren, etc.—(Ibid.)

⁷ " Bi. To deale well with their brethren."—(Marginal note.)

⁸ Victorie over that Roomish Anti-christ whose, etc.—(Edit. 1593.)

⁹ Satan by all, etc.—(Ibid.)

¹⁰ In place of these names that follow, the edit. 1593 substitutes "From Eden-borough . . . Anno 1566. Your loving brethren and fellowe-preachers in Christ Jesus : JOHN DAVIDSON for JAMES NICHOLSON, Writer and Clarke of the Church of Edenborough."

THE GENERALL ASSEMBLIE OF THE KIRK OF SCOTLAND CONVEINIT AT EDINBURGH THE XXV OF DECEMBER 1566, TO THE NOBILITIE OF THIS REALME THAT PROFESSES THE LORD JESUS WITH THEM, AND HES RENOUNCEIT THAT ROMAN ANTICHRYST, DESYRE CONSTANCIE
IN FAITH AND THE SPIRIT OF RIGHTEOUS JUDGEMENT.¹

Seing that Satan, be all our negligence (Right Honorable) hath so far prevailed . . . rule your hearts in his true feare to the end. Your Lordships answer we againe crave. Givin in the Generall Assembly
. . . the 27 of December 1566.

(See vol. ii. pp. 539-541.)

LETTER TO THE PROFESSORS OF RELIGION WITHIN THIS REALM, ETC.¹,

The Lord cometh and shall not tarrie, &c.

To deplore the miseries of these our most wicked dayis (beloved Brethren), . . . Let us know your mindes with expedition.

At Edinburgh, the 27 of December 1566.

(See vol. ii. pp. 542-544.)

LETTER TO EARLS, LORDS, BARRONS, AND COMMENDATORS OF ABBAYES, FOR CALLING A MEETING OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY TO BE HELD AT EDINBURGH, IN JULY 1567.

MY LORD (or Worshipful Sir), After our maist heartlie commendations of service in the Lord Jesus : Having now of lang time travellit both in public and private with all the Estates, continually craveing of your Honours in special, that the course of the Evangell of Salvation, now once by the liberall mercie of God restorit to this realme, might continue to all your comforts, and your posterities ; and that for the mainteinance and furthering thereof, ane perfyte policie and full libertie might be grantit to this reformit Kirk within Scotland, the ministrie, the pure and failyeit provydit for sufficiently, as God and all good policie and civil lawes ordaines and requyres ; and that all superstition

¹ "MR. KNOX wrote another letter, wherein he advertised what was the danger which might ensue of the gift and power granted to the bastard Bishop of Sanct Andrews (John Hamilton) as followeth." — (Calderwood's History, vol. ii. p. 337.)

and idolatry, and the monuments therof, might be utterly removit and banishit out of this realme, quhilk God of his infinite mercy hes so lovingly and willingly callit from darkness to light. This matter indeed was lyked of all men ; but sick impediment gave the enemie of the Kirk in his members to stay the good worke of God, that moeyen could there none be had, but be the contrair, at every light occasion, the ministrie frustrat of all lyfe and sustentatioun ; the lamit and impotent members of Chryst lying in the street as dung, perishing for hunger and cold, yea and the whole flock of Chryst Jesus within this realme continuallic threatnit with the execution of that most cruell decreit of the last Councill of Trent, wherin was determinit and decreit to make ane sacrifice of the whole professors within all Europe, be the tyranny of that Roman Antichryst. We are not ignorant how farre the samein was attemptit be way of deid within the Realme of France, how farre now in Flanders and in parts neir adjacent therto ; and also quhat practising to that effect hes bein continually thir thrie yeirs by past, and even now of late dayes, within our awin bowells, be our commoun conjured enemies, alsweill within as without this realme, how they were bent to ther enterprize, if God had not of his meere mercie preveined beyond all our knowledge and expectatioun, their cruel and craftie practises. Upon the quhilk consideratioun, the Assemblie at this present convention of the Kirk, accustomed at the course of tyme occureand, hes thought it needfull to repaire the decay and ruine of that worke so vertueously begun amongst us be ane universall concurrence and consent of the hail professors of Chryst Jesus within this Realme, and be the same meanes to meet the forsaid dangers hingand over our heids, proceeding from the craft of our implacabill enemies, alsweill within as without the same ; and to that effect hes ordainit ane Generall Assemblie of the hail professors of all estates and degries within the kirks of Scotland, to be haldin heir within this towne of Edinburgh, upon the xx day of this nixt moneth of Julij, quherby ane perpetuall ordour may be takin for the libertie of the Kirk of God, sustentatioun of the ministers and failyeit members therof, and that ane sure union and conjunctioun may be had amongst the hail members for the libertie of Gods Kirk, quherby we may be able to withstand the rage and violence of the forsaid enemies. And because it hes pleased the goodnes of God so to move your Lordships heart, that ye are a notable instrument and member of his Kirk, as our hope is, so sall our prayer be, that ye may continue increasing from vertue to vertue unto life everlasting, we thought it our duetie, in name of our hail brethren heir conveyit, to notifie to your Lordship the fairsaid appointment of the said Assemblie, and in the name of the Eternal our God, to recommend to your care and solicitude the building of this ruinous house of God within this Realme : Requyreing also in his name, that ye will give your personal presence, your labours and concurrencis to that effect, as in the forsaid Assemblie to be haldin the said day, that the hail body may be comforted be the presence and good advyce of so notour ane member therof. And because we doubt nothing but your Lordship salbe present, shewing so long experience of your good part in all tymes past, we cease to trouble you with longer letter, referring the rest to be declarit be our brethren the Commissioners of the Kirk, who to this effect are direct to your Lordship, and uthers our brethren in these partis ; and we, for our part, sall earnestlie pray to God, to augment in you his love and feare, and blesse your Lordship to the comfort of his Kirk, Amen. From Edinburgh, the 26 of Junij 1567.

Be your Lordships to command with service in Chryst Jesus, in name of the rest of our Brethren here assembled.

JOHN ERSKINE OF DUN.

JOHN KNOX.

MR. JOHN SPOTTISWOOD, Superintendent of Lothian.

MR. JOHN DOWGLAS, Rector of the University of St. Andrews.

JOHN ROW.

MR. JOHN CRAIG.

(The names of the persons to whom this letter was directit, are the Erles, Huntlie, Argyle, Cassills, Rothes, Crawford, Marishall, Menteith, and Glencarne ; Lords, Boyd, Drummound, Sanquhar, Herreis, Cathcart, Yester, Fleming, Levingstoun, Forbes, Salton, Glames, Ogilvie, Gray, Oliphant, Methven, Innermeath ; Mr. of Grahane, Mr. of Sinclair, Mr. of Somervell ; Barrons, Lochinvar, Gairleis ; the Sherriff of Air, Glenurquhart, Sir James Hamiltoun, Bonytoun ; Commendators, Arbroith, Kilwinning, Dumfermeling, St. Colmes, Newbottle, Halyruidhouse.

The Superintendents and Quarters of countreyes were ordained to direct this Letter to the foirsaid persons severallie :)

TENNOUR OF THE COMMISSIONS GIVIN TO EVERY ANE OF THE FOIRSAIDS COMMISSIONERS, WITHIN EVERY ANE OF THER BOUNDS RESPECTIVE, FOLLOVES :

Forsameikle as Satan this long time in his members hes so rageit and perturbit the good successe and proceeding in Chryst's religioun within this Realme, be craftie meanes and subtill conspiracies, that the same from tyme to tyme doeth decay, in hazard altogether to be subvertit, unlesse God of his mercie find hastie remeid, and that cheiflie through the extreame povertie of the Ministers who sould preach the word of lyfe to the peiple, who therthrow are compellit, some to leave the vocatioun allutterlie, and some uthers so abstractit be carefull povertie, that they may not insist so diligently in the exercise of the word as they wold doe. Therfor the Kirk presentlie conveyit at Edinburgh in this Generall Assemblie, hes thocht it most necessar be thir presents to requeist and admonisch most brotherlie all such persons as truely professe the Lord Jesus within this Realme, of what estate or degrie that evir they be, asweill the Nobilitie, Barrones, and Gentlemen, as all uthers true professours, to conveye in Edinburgh the 20 day of Julii nixt, ther to assist with their personall presence, counsell, and power, for ordour to be tane asweill toward the establishing of Chryst's true religioun universallie throughout this haill Realme, and abolishing of the contrair, whilk is Papistrie, as the sustentation of the Ministers, not only for the present tyme and instant necessitie; but also for ane perfyte ordour to be tane and established in all tyme comeing, toward the haill libertie of the patrimonie of the Kirk, and the due restoring of the same to the just possessours therof, according to the Word of God: With certification to all and sundrie (of what estate and degrie so evir they be) that compeirs not, due advertisement being made unto them, that they salbe repute heirafter as hinderers of this godlie purpose, and as dissimulat brethiren, unworthie to be esteinit heirafter to be of Chryst's flocke, seing God of his mercie at this present hes offerit some better occasioun nor in tymes bygane, and hes begun to tred downe Satan underfoote. And for the dew requisitioun and admonitioun, in name of the Eternall God, to the effect foirsaid, to all and sundrie the Brethren, alsweill to brugh as to land, the Kirk presentlie conveyit in this Generall Assemblie, be thir presents giveth ther full power and commissioun to their lovites N. and N. for the bounds of N.

In verificatioun heirof thir presents are subscrivit be the commoun Clerk of the Kirk, in the said Generall Assemblie, and second session thereof, haldin at Edinburgh, the 26th day of Junii 1567.

(In the third Session, Mr. Johne Row, minister at Sanct Johnston, was ordained to attend upon the printing of the commission direct be the Kirk, for presenting of the foresaid missives, and to bring so manie as sall be necessarie to be sent, to be subscribed be the Clerk of the Assemblie, and the names of the Commissioners to be insert accordinglie. And in like maner, ordained Mr. Johne Wood, to cause write so manie missives as sall be needfull, to be sent to the Erles, Lords, Barrons, and other Brethrein, and to returne the said missives to be subscribed and directed.¹⁾)

¹ Booke of the Universall Kirk, vol. i. p. 97.

LETTER OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY TO MR. JOHN WILLOCK,¹ REQUESTING HIM TO RETURN TO SCOTLAND FROM ENGLAND.

Videbam Satanam sicut fulgur de Cœlo cadentem.

As the Lord our God hath at all times beene from the beginning of this his worke of Reformation and restitution of the purity of his true worship and religion within Scotland, (loving Brother in the Lord,) most beneficiall and bountifull towards this Realme, so hath he now be this last most miraculous victory and overthrow, poured furth in greatest abundance the riches of his mercie, in that not only he hath driven away the tempest and storme, but also hath quyeted and calmed all surges of persecution ; as now we may think weill our ship is received, and placed in a most happy and pleasant port ; our enemies, praised be God, are dashed ; religion established ; sufficient provision made for ministers ; ordour taken, and penalties appoynted, for all sort of transgression and transgressours ; and above all, a godly magistrat, whom God of his eternall and heavenly Providence hath reserved to this age, to put in execution whatsoever he by his law commandeth. Now then, loving Brother, as your presence was to us all in time of trouble most comfortable, so it is now of us all universally wished, but most earnestly craved be your own flock, who continually at all Assemblies have declared the force of that conjunction, the earnestness of that love, the pith of that zeal and mutual care that bindeth the Pastor with his flock, which neither be processe of time is diminished, nor be separation and distance of place restringed, nor yet be tyrannie and fear dissolved. True it is, that at this their most earnest and just petition, we have ever still winked this whyle bypast ; not but that to us all your absence was most dolourous ; but in respect of troubles, we judged more meet to await for such opportunity as now God, in this most wonderfull victory of his Evangel, hath offered.

Therfor seing all impediments are removed, and your flock still continueth in earnest suit for you, and now every where throughout returning to Scotland in October 1558, he engaged in the public work of the ministry, and proved one of the most active and zealous of the Protestant party. He was admitted Superintendent of Glasgow and the West, on the 14th of September 1561, the Duke of Chattelherault, the Earl of Arran, etc., being present.

¹ Mr. John Willock was a native of Ayrshire, and born in the early part of the sixteenth century. He belonged to one of the monastic orders, but having embraced the Reformed opinions he retired to England about the year 1539. During the persecutions, in the reign of Queen Mary, he went abroad, and practised as a physician at Embden. On

the Realme Commissioners and Superintendents placed, and one offered to them, and be them refused altogether, awaiting for yow; we could no longer stay, but agree to this their desire, in suit whereof neither through fear have they fainted, nor by charges retarded, nor yet by any kind of offer desisted; and as we have been moved to grant to them that which they have thus humbly and continually suited, we cannot but perswad ourselves but yow will satisfie the same; neither can we think that the shepherd will refuse his flock; that the father will reject the just petition of his son; least of all, that the faithfull servant of God will shut up his ears at the voice and commandment of the Kirk, or yet deny his labours to his own Country. The time is proper now to reape with blythesse that which be you before was sown in tears, and enjoy the fruit of your most wearisome and painfull labours. It shall be no less pleasant to you to see your own native Countrie at liberty and freedom, quihich ye left mourning and sobbing, under the heavie burden of most cruell servitude, then comfortable to behold the religioun of Jesus Christ throughout all the Realme flourishing, vertue increasing, vertuous men in reputation; and finally to embrace these dayes, quihich howsoever be your self they have been most piously desired, yet could yow never look to attain the same. Now, at last, to conclude, unless yow will be aneemie to your Country, yow will not refuse these requeists; unless yow will be stubborn and disobedient, yow will not contemne the commandment of the Kirk; unless yow will be careless and unthankfull, yow will not despise the humble, continuall and earnest suit of your flock; and last of all we assure our selves, that yow are not so astricted and addicted to your own particular, as that this generall and common cause should be in anywise be you neglected. Now shall yow see the kaipstone of that Work wherof ye layed the foundation. Thus we cannot look for any other answer then yee shall give be your self, and with all expedition possible.¹ Our state, yow know, is not so sure but we ever stand upon our watches; but that, we know, will not stay you, seing your compt is so layed. Thus we commit you to the protection of our Lord Jesus. At Edinburgh, in our GENERALL ASSEMBLY, and seventh Session thereof, (January 1567-8).

¹ The above letter, written by Knox in the name of the Assembly, had the effect of bringing Willock back for a time; and on the 1st of July 1568, when the General Assembly met at Edinburgh, Mr. John Willock, Superintendent, of the West, was chosen Moderator. He seems to have returned to England during the following year, as in February 1570 he wrote to Knox lamenting the death of the Regent Murray. Willock is supposed to have died about the year 1574.—(See Notices in the Wodrow Miscellany, p. 263.)

THE ORDOVRE OF

EXCOMMVNICATIONV AND OF PVBLICT REPENTANCE,

vſed in the Church of Scotland and commanded to be prented by the generall Affemblic of the ſame, in the Mo-neth of Iunij, 1569.

PRENTID AT EDINBVRGH

BE ROBERT LEKPREVIK.

ANNO. 1569.

It will be observed that the date Junij on the preceding title (and repeated in all the subsequent editions), is an error for Julij 1569, the General Assembly having met at Edinburgh on the 5th of that month. An edition at Edinburgh, in the year 1571, is mentioned in Herbert's Ames, p. 1493, apparently by mistake, as no such republication is known.

In the original edition the Order of Excommunication ends on Signature D 2, and is followed by—

“THE FORME AND ORDOUR OF THE ELECTIOUN OF THE SUPERINTENDENT, WHICH MAY SERVE IN THE ELECTIOUN OF ALL UTHER MINISTERS. AT EDINBURGH, THE 9. OF MARCHE, ANNO 1560, JOHNE KNOX BEING MINISTER.” 6 leaves, the last page being blank. Then follows—

“THE ELECTIOUN OF ELDARS AND DEACONIS IN THE CHURCH OF EDINBURGH.” 4 leaves, ending on Signature E 4, without any imprint.

These Forms are not here inserted, having already been given in the History of the Reformation, vol. ii. p. 144 to 150, and p. 151 to 154.

Small 8vo, contains A to E 4 in eights, roman letter.

THE ORDER OF EXCOMMUNICATION, AND OF PUBLIC REPENTANCE.

TO THE READER.

ALBEIT that in the Booke of Discipline the causes als weill of publick Repentance as of Excommunicatioun, ar sufficientlie expressed : Yit because the Forme and Ordour ar not so set furth, that everie Church and Minister may have assurance that they agree with utheris in proceeding, it is thocht expedient to drawe that ORDOUR which universallie within this Realme shal be observed.

AND FIRST, WE MAN UNDERSTAND WHAT CRYMES BE WORTHIE OF EXCOMMUNICATIOUN, AND WHAT OF PUBLICK REPENTANCE.

In the First, it is to be noted, that all crymes that be the law of God deserve death, deserve also Excommunicatioun from the societie of Christis Church, whither the offendar be Papist or Protestant : For it is no reason that, under pretence of diversitie of religioun, open impiety shuld be suffered in the visible body of Christ Jesus ; and thairfor wilfull murtherars, adulteraris (lauchfullie convict), sorcerars, witches, conjurars, charmars, and gevars of drinks to destroy children, and opin blasphemars (as if ony renunce God, deny the trueth and the authority of his Holie Word, rayll aganis his blessed Sacramentis), such, we say, aucht to be Excommunicat from the society of Christis Church, that their impiety may be haldin in greater horror, and that they may be the moir deiply wounded, perceaving themselves abhorred of the godly. Aganis such opin malefactoris the processe may be summar : For the cryme being knawin, advertisement aucht to be gevin to the Superintendent of the diocey, either be the Minister, or be such as can best geve informatioun of that fact ; except in reformed townis and uther places where the Ministerie is planted with Minister and Eldaris, according to the Act of the Generall Assembly made the 26 of December 1568 [1565]. And if there be no Superintendent where the cryme is committed, then aucht the informatioun to pas from such as ar offended to the nixt Superintendent, who with expeditioun aucht to direct his letters of summons to the parish church where the offender hath his residence, if the Ministerie be there planted : and if it be not, or if the offender have no certane dwelling-place, then aucht the summons to be direct to the cheife town, and best Reformed Church in that diocy, where the cryme was committed, appointing to the offender a certain day, time, and place, where and when he shall compeire befor the Superintendent and his assessors, to heare that cryme tried, as tuiching the trueth of it, and to answer for himself, why the sentence of Excommunicatioun should not be pronounced publiklie againis him. If the offender, lauchfullie warned, compeire not, inquisition being takin of the cryme, charge may be gevin be the Superintendent to the Ministers, so many as shall be thought necessar for publicatioun of that sentence, to pronounce the same the nixt Sunday, the forme whereof shall after be declared : Bot and if the offender compeire and alledge for himselfe ony reasonable defence, to wit, that he will not be fugitive from the law, but will abyde the censure thereof for that offence, then may the sentence of Excommunicatioun be suspendit till that the magistrat be required to try that cause ; wherein if the magistrats be negligent, then aucht the Church from secret inquisition to proceed till publique admonitioun, that the magistratis may be vigilant in that cause of blood, which cryith vengeance upon the hole land where it is sched without punishment. If no remedie be them can be found, then justly may the Church pronounce the offender excommunicat, as one suspect, besidis his cryme, to have corrupted the judges, revengeris of the blood : And so aught the Church to proceed to Excommunication, whither the offender be fugitive from the law, or if he procure pardoun, or elude the severity of justice by means whatsoever besydis the tryal of his innocencie.

If the offender abyde an assise, and by the same be absolved, then may not the Church pronounce excommunicatioun, bot justlie may exhort the man be whose hand the blood was sched, to enter into consideration with himself, how pretious is the lyfe of man before God, and how severly God commandeth blood (howsoever it be sched, except it be by the sword of the Magistrate) to be punished ; and so may injoin unto him such satisfactionis to be made publikly to the Church, as may bear testificatioun of his obedience and unfained repentance. If the offender be convict, and execution follow according to the cryme, then, upon the humble sute of him that is to suffer, may the Eldars and Ministers of the Church not only geve unto him consolatioun, bot also pronounce the sentence of absolutioun, and his sin to be remitted according to his repentance and faith. And thus much for Excommunication of publike Offenders.

And yit farther, we must considir, that if the offender be fugitive from the Law, so that punishment cannot be executed againis him, in that cause the Church aucht to delay no time, bot upon the notorietic of his cryme, and that he is fled from the presence of the judge, it aucht to pronounce him excommunicated publikly, and so continually to repute him, untill such tyme that the magistrat be satisfied : And so whither the offender be convict in judgment, or be fugitive from the Law, the Church aucht to proceed to the sentence of Excommunicatioun ; the Forme whereof followeth :—

THE MINISTER, IN PUBLIKE AUDIENCE OF THE PEPILL, SALL SAY,—

It is cleirlye knawin unto us that N., sometymes baptized in the Name of the Father, and of the Sone, and of the Holy Ghost, and so reputed and compted for a Christian, hath fearfullie fallin from the society of Christ's body, by committing of cruell and wilful murder (or by committing filthy adultery, &c.), which cryme be the law of God deserveth death : And because the civil sword is in the hand of God's Magistrat, who notwithstanding oft winkis at such crymes, we having place in the Ministry, with grief and dolour of our harts, ar compelled to draw the sword granted be God to his Church ; that is, to Excommunicat from the society of Christ Jesus, from his body the Church, from participatioun of sacraments, and prayers with the same, the said N. AND THEREFORE, IN THE NAME AND AUTHORITIE OF THE ETERNAL GOD, AND OF HIS SON JESUS CHRIST, We pronounce the said N. excommunicate and accursed in this his wicked fact ; and charge all that favor the Lord Jesus so to repute and hold him (or hir) untill such time as that either the Magistrat have punished the offender as Goddis law commandis, or that the same offender be reconciled to the Church again be publique repentance : And in the mean tyme we earnestlie desire all the faithful to call upon God to move the harts of the upper powers so to punish such horrible crymes, that malefactors may fear to offend, evin for feare of punishment ; and also so to touch the hart of the offender, that he may deipelicly consider how fearefull it is to fall in the hands of the eternal God, that by unfained repentance he may apprehend mercie in Jesus Christ, and so avoid eternal condemnatioun.

[THE ORDOUR TO RECEIVE THE EXCOMMUNICATE AGAIN TO REPENTANCE AND SOCIETIE OF THE FAITHFUL.]

The sentence of Excommunicatioun ones pronounced, the Church may not suddanly admit the murtherar, or convict adulterar, to repentance and society of the faithfull, albeit that pardon be purchased of the Magistrat ; bot first aucht inquisition to be taken if the murtherar have satisfied the party offended, that is, the kin and friendis of the man slain ; which if he hath not done, neither is understood willing so to do, the Church in no wayis may heare him. Bot if he be willing to satisfie, and the freinds exceed measure and the possibilitie of him that hath committed the cryme, then aucht the Church to put moderatioun to the unreasonable, in case the Civil magistrat hath not so done befor, and so proceed with him that offereth repentance, that the wilfulness of the indiscreit be not hinderance to the reconcilioun of him that earnestlie craveth the benefit and society of the Church.

And yit may not the Church receive any Excommunicat at his first request; but in such grevous crymes as befor are expressed (of utheris shall be after spokin), forty dayis at the least after his first offer may be appointed, to try whither the signes of repentance appeir in the offender or not. And yit in the mean tyme the Church may comfort him be holsome admonitiouns, assuring him of God's mercy, if he be verily penitent; he may also be admitted to the hearing of the Word; but in no wyse to participatioun of prayeris, nether befor nor after the sermon. The first forty dayis expyred, upon his new suit, the Superintendent or Sessioun may injoyne such paines as may try whether he be penitent or not: The least are, the murtherar man stand three several Sundayis in a publike place before the church dore bare-footed and bare-headed, cled in a base and abject apparrell, having the same weapen which he used in the murther, or the lyke, bloody in his hand, and in conceaved words shall say to such as shall enter into the church:—

THE CONFESSION OF THE PENITENT.

So farre hath Sathan gottin victorie ovr me, that cruelly I have shed innocent blood, for the which I have deserved death corporall and eternall; and so I grant my selfe unworthy of the common light, or yit of the companie of men: And yit because in God there is mercy that passeth all measure, and because the Magistrat hath not takin from me this wretchit lyfe, I most earnestlie desyre to be reconciled again with the Church of Christ Jesus, from the societie whereof mine iniquitie hath caused me to be excommunicated; and therefore, in the bowelis of Christ Jesus, I crave of you to pray with me unto God, that my grevous cryme may be of him remitted, and also that ye will be suppliants with me to the Church, that I abyde not thus Excommunicat unto the end.

At the last of the three Sundayis certain of the Eldaris shall receive him into the Church, and present him before the preaching place, and shall declair unto the Minister, that all that was injoynd to that offender was obedientlie fulfilled by him. Then shall the Minister recite unto him als well the grevousnes of his sin, as the mercies of God, if he be penitent. And thereafter shall require of the Church, If that they desire any farther satisfioun? And if no answer be gevin, then shall the Minister pronounce his sin to be remitted according to his repentance, and shall exhort the Church to embrace him as a brother, after that prayer and thanksgiving be gevin unto God, as after shall be descryved.

And thus far to be observed for the Ordour in receaving of thame that have committed capital crymes, be it murther, adulterie, incest, witchcraft, or utheris befor expressed.

APOSTATES TO PAPISTRIE.

Resteth yit one uther kynd of offendaris that deserve Excommunication, albeit not so summarlie, to wit, such as have bene partakers with us in doctrine and sacraments, and have returned back agane to the Papistrie, or have gevin their presence to onie part of their abhominatioun, or yit that of onie long continuance, withdrawe themselves from the societie of Christis bodie, and from the participatioun of the sacramentis, when they ar publiklie ministred. Such, no doubt, declair themselves worthie of excommunication; bot first they man be called either befor the Superintendent, with sum joyned with him, or elis befor the Eldaris and Sessioun of the best and nixt Reformed Church where the offendaris have their residence, who man accuse their defectioun, exhort them to repentance, and declair to them the danger wherein they stand.

Whom if the offendar hearith, the Sessioun or Superintendent may appoynt him ane day to satisfie the Church publikelie, whom by his defectioun he had offended. Bot if he continue stubburne, then may the Sessioun or Superintendent command the Minister or Ministers to declair the next Sunday the defectioun of such ane person, and his obstinate contempt; and this advertisement being gevin two Sundayis, the third may the sentence of Excommunication be pronounced.

OFFENCES THAT DESERVE PUBLIKE REPENTANCE, AND ORDER TO PROCEIDE THEREINTILL.

Such offences as fall not under the Civile sword, and yit ar sclanderous and offensive in the Church, deserve publike Repentance: and of these sum ar more haynous than utheris,—fornication, drunkennes used, swearing, cursed speaking, chydng, feghting, brawling, and common contempt of the ordor of the Church, breaking of the Sabbath, and such like, aucht to be in no person suffered: Bot the sclander being knawin, the offendar should be called befor the Ministry, his cryme provin, accused, rebuked, and he commanded publiklie to satisfie the Church; which if the offendar refus, they may proceid to Excommunication, as after shall be declaired. If the offendar compeir not, summons aucht to pass to the third time; and then incase he compeir not, the Church may decerne the sentence to be pronounced.

Utheris be less haynous, and yit deserve admonition, as wanton and vain words, uncomelie gestures, negligence in hearing the preachingis, or abstening from the Lordis Table when it is publiklie ministrat, suspicioun of avarice or of pryde, superfluitie or ryotousnes in cheir or rayment : these, we say, and such utheris, that of the world are not regarded, deserve admonitioun amongis the membres of Christis body : First, secretly, by one or two of those that first espy the offence, which if the person suspected hear, and geve declaratioun of amendment, then there nedeth no farther proces.

Bot if he contempne and despiseth admonitioun, then shuld the former admonisaris tak to themselfis two or three faithful and honest witnesses, in whose presence the suspected offendar shuld be admonished, and the causes of their suspitioun declaired ; to whom if then he geve significatioun of repentance, and promise of amendment, they may cut off all farther accusatioun : Bot and if he obstinately contempne both the said admonitiouns, then aucht the first and second brethren to signifie the matter to the Ministers and Eldaris in their Sessioun, who aucht to call the offendar, and, before the complainers, accuse him als weill of the cryme, as of the contempt of the admonitioun. If then he acknowledge his offence, and be willing to satisfie the brethren befor offended, and the Sessioun then present, there nedeth no farther publication of the offence.

Bot if he declair himself inobedient to the Session, then without delay the nixt Sunday aucht the cryme, and the ordor of admonitiounis passed befor, be publiklie declaired to the Church, and the person (without specificatioun of his name) be admonished to satisfie in publique that which he refused to do in secret : And that for the first. If he offeris himself to the Church befor the nixt Sunday, the discretioun of the Ministerie may tak such ordor, as may satisfie als weill the private personis that first war offended, as the Church, declairing the repentance and submission of that brother, that befor appeared stubburne and incorrigible.

Bot and if he abyde the second publict admonitioun, when that his name shall be expressed, and his offences and stubburnnes declared, then can no satisfioun be received bot in publict ; yea, it may not be received befor that he have humblie required the same of the Ministerie and Sessioun of the Church in their appointed Assemblie.

If he continue stubburne, then the third Sunday aucht he to be charged publiklie to satisfie the Church for his offence and contempt, under the pain of Excommunication ; the Order whereof shall efter be declaired. And thus a small offence or selander may justly deserve Excommunication, by reason of the contempt and disobedience of the offendar. If the offendar schaw himself penitent betwene the first admonitioun and the second, and satisfie the Ministerie of the Church, and the brethren that were befor offended in their Assemblie, then it may suffice that the Minister, at commandement of the Sessioun, declair the nixt Sunday (without compeiring or expressing of the person) his repentance and submission in these or uther wordis :—

It was signified unto you befor, deirlic beloved, that one certan brother (or brethren) was noted, or at the least suspected of some offence wherof he being admonished by one or two, appeared lightlie to regard the same ; and therefor was he and his offence notified unto the Ministerie in their Assembly, who, according to their deuty and charge, accused him of the same ; and not finding in him such obedience as the profession of ane Christian requireth, fearing that such offences and stubbornnes shuld engender contempt, and infect utheris, they war compelled to notifie unto you the cryme and the proceedingis of the Sessioun, mynding to have sought the uttermost remedie in case the offender had continued obstinate. Bot seeing that it hath pleased God to mollifie the hart of our brother, whose name we neid not to expresse, so that he hath not onlie acknowledged his offence, bot also hath fullie satisfied the brethren that first war offended, and us the Ministerie, and hath promised to abstene from all appearance of such evill, as wherof he was suspected and admonished, we have no just cause to proceed to onie farther extremitie, bot rather to glorifie God for the submission of our brother, and unfainedlie pray unto him, that in the lyke cause we and everie one of us may geve the lyke obedience.

THE FORME OF PUBLIQUE REPENTANCE.

It is first to be observed, that none may be admitted to publike repentance except that first they be admitted thereto be the Sessioun and Assemblie of the Ministeris and Eldaris ; in the which they aucht sharplie to be examinat, what feire and terour they have of God's judgmentis, what hatred of sin, and dolour for the same, and what sense and feiling they have of God's mercies : In the which if they be ignorant, they aucht diligently to be instructed ; for it is bot ane mocking to present such to publik repentance, as neither understand what sin is, what repentance is, what grace is, nor be whom God's favour and mercie is purchased. After then that the offender shall be instructed in the Assemblie, so that to have sum taist of God's judgments, bot chiefly of God's mercies in Christ Jesus, he may be presented before the publik Church upon a Sunday after the sermon, and before the Prayeris and Psalme, and then the Minister shall say,—

Beloved and dearest Brethren, we, be reason of our charge and Ministry, present befor you this brother, that by the infirmitie of the flesh and craft of Sathan, hes feirfullie fallen from the obedience of his God, by committing N. of a crime, &c. (let the sin be expressed) ; by the which he hes not only offended against the Majestie of God, bot also by the same hes gevin great sclander and offence till his holy congregatioun ; and therefore doeth till his owin confusion (bot to the glorie of God and our great confort) present himself here before you, to witnes and declair his unfained repentance, the thrist and the caire that he hes to be reconciled with God thro' Jesus Christ, and with you his brethren, whom he hes offended : and therefore it is requisite that ye and he understand what assurance we have to requyre such publik satisfaction of him, what profit we aucht to learne in the same, and what profit and utilitie redoundes to both of this his humiliatioun.

That publik Repentance is the institutioun of God, and not man's inventioun, may be plainly gaddered of the words of our Maister, commanding, " that if ony have offended his brother, in what sort so ever it be, that he shall go to him and be reconciled unto his brother." If the offence committed against one brother requyres reconciliatioun, the offence committed against many brethren requires the same. And if a man be charged be Christ Jesus to go to a man whom he has offended, and thair be confessioun of his offence requyre reconciliatioun, much moir is he bound to seik a whole multitude whom he hes offended, and befoir them with all humility requyre the same ; for that wo which our Maister Christ Jesus pronunceth against every man that hes offended the least one within his Church, remaneth upon every publik offender untill such tyme as he declair himself willing to remove the same, which he can never do untill such tyme as he let the multitude whom he hes offended understand his unfained repentance.

But because that all men of upright judgment agree in this, that publik offences requyre publik repentance, we pass to the second head, which is, What it is that we have to consider in the fall and sin of this our brother. If we consider his fall and sin in him only, without having consideration of our selfis, and of our owin corruption, we shall profit nothing, for so shall we bot despuse our brother and flatter our selfis. But if we shall earnestlie consider what nature we bear, what corruption lurketh in it, how prone and readie everie one of us is to such and greater impietie, then shall we in the sinne of this our brother accuse and damne our owin sinnes, in his fall shall we consider and lament our sinful nature ; also shall we joyne our repentance, teares, and prayeris with him and his, knowing that no flesh can be justified before God's presence, if judgement proceed without mercie. The profit which this our brother and we have of this his humiliation, is, that we and he may be assured that our God is moir reddie to receive us to mercie, through Jesus Christ his only Sone, then we ar to crave it. It is not sinne, be it never so grevous, that shall debar us from his favour, if we seik to his mercie ; for as all have sinned, and ar by themselfis destitute of God's grace, so is he reddie to shaw mercie unto all that unfainedlie call for the same ; yea, he doth not onlie receive such as come, but he, by the mouth of his deir Sone, calleth upon such as be burdened and laidened with sinne, and solemnedlie promiseth that he will refresh them.

We have besides ane uther commoditie, to wit, that if we shall heir- after fall into the lyke or greater (for we stand not by our owin power, but by grace only), that we be not eschamed in this same sort to humble our selfis and confesse our offence. Now, therefore, brother, as we all praise God in this your humiliatioun, beseiking him that it be without hypocrisie, so it becummeth ye earnestly to consider of what mind and with what hart ye present your self heir before this Assemblie. It is not your sine that shall separate you from your God, nor from his mercy in Jesus Christ, if ye repent the same ; bot hypocrisie and impenitencie, which God remove from you and us, is nowise tolerable before his presence.

The Offendar aucht to protest before God, that he is sory for his sinne, and unfainedly desyreth God to be mercifull unto him, and that for the obedience of his deir Sone our Lord Jesus Christ.

THE MINISTER.

We can only see that which is without, and according to your confessioun judge, leaving the secretis of the hart to God, who only can try and search the same. Bot because unfeaned repentance for sinne, and simple confessioun of the same, ar the mere giftis of God, we will joyne our prayeris with youris, that the one and the uther may be granted to you and us.

THE PRAYER.

Eternal and everliving God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, thow that by the mouth of thy holy Propheites and Apostillis hes plainlie pronounced, that thow desyrest not the death of ane sinner, bot rather that he may convert and live ; who also hes sent thy only Sone to suffer the cruell death of the croce, not for the just, but for such as find themselves oppressed with the burden of sinne, that by him and his advocation they may have acces to the throne of thy grace, being assured, that before thee they shall find favour and mercy : We are convened, O Lord, in thy presence, and that in the Name of this same our Lord Jesus thy deir Sone, to accuse before thee our sinnes, and before the feit of thy Majesty, to crave mercy for the same. We most humbly beseche thee, O Father of Mercies, first, that thou wilt tuich and move our harts by the power of thy Holy Spirit, in such sort, that we may come to ane trew knowledge of our sinnes ; bot cheifly, O Lord, it will please thee to move the hart of this our brother N., &c., who, as he hes offended thy Majesty, and ane great number of this thy holy congregation, by his grevous and publik sine, so doeth he not refuse publikly to acknowledge and confesse the same, as that this his humiliatioun gevin to the glory of thy Name presently doeth witnes. Bot because, O Lord, the external confessioun, without the dolour of the hart, availeth nothing in thy presence, we most humbly beseche thee, that thou wilt so effectually move his hart, and ouris also, that he and we without hypocrisie, damning that which thy law pronunceth unjust, may atteine to some sense and feeling of thy mercy, which thou hast abundantly shawen unto mankynd in Jesus Christ our Lord.

Grant, O Lord, unto this our brother, the repentance of the hart, and sincere confession of the mouth, to the praise of thy Name, to the confort of thy Church, and to the confusion of Sathan. And unto us grant, O Lord, that albeit we cannot live altogether cleine of sinne,¹ yit that we fall not in horrible crymes to the dishonor of thy holy Name, to the sclander of our brethren, and infamy of thy holy Evangel, which we professe. Let thy godly power, O Lord, so strengthen our weaknes, that nether the craft of Sathan, nor the tyranny of sinne, draw us utterly from thy obedience. Give us grace, O Lord, that by holines and innocencie of lyfe, we may declaire to this wicked generatioun what difference there is betwixt the sones of light and the sones of darknes; that men seeing our gud workis, may glorify thee, and thy Sone Jesus Christ, our only Saviour and Redemer; to whom with Thee, and the Holy Spirit, be all honor, praise, and glory, now and ever. Amen.

The Prayer finished, the Minister shall turne him to the Penitent brother, and in full audience shall say :—

You have heard,¹ brother, what is your dewtie towards the Church, which ye have offended, to wit, that willingly ye confesse that cryme that you have committed, asking God mercie for the same, and so that ye may reconcile your self to the Church which ye have offended. You have hard also the affection and care of the Church towards you your penitent brother, notwithstanding your grevous fall, to wit, that we all heir present joyne our sinnes with your sinne; we all repute and esteime your fall to be our owen; we accuse our selfis no less then we accuse you. Now, finally, we joyne our prayeris with youris, that we and ye may obtene mercy, and that by the means of our Lord Jesus Christ. Let us, therefore, brother, have this confort of you, that ye wil openlie and simplie confesse your cryme, and give to us attestation² of your unfained repentance.

The Penitent shall then openlie confesse the cryme, whatsoever it be, and shall desyre God's mercie, and pray the Church to call to God for mercie with him, and unfainedly desyre that he may be joynd againe to their society and number.

If the Penitent be confounded with shame, or such ane one as cannot distinctlie speik to the confort and instruction of the Church, the Minister shall mak repetition, that every head may be understood by it self. and thereafter shall ask the penitent if that be his confession, and if so he beleveth. His answer affirmative being receaved, the Minister shall ask the congregation if they judge any farther to be requyred for their satisfioun and reconciliation of that brother. No contradictioun being made, the Minister shall say to the Penitent :—

¹ "Sinne," and "heard," are usually printed "sine," and "hard."

² Some copies have a testimony.

We have heard, deir brother, your confession, for the which we from our hartis praise God ; for in it the Spirit of Jesus Christ hath confounded the Devill, and broken down his head and power, in that, that you, to the glorie of God, have openly damned your self and your impiety, imploring grace and mercie for Christ Jesus his Sones sake. This strenth, submission and obedience, cannot proceid from flesh and blude, but is the singular gift of the Holy Ghost : acknowledge, therefore, it to be gevin unto you by Jesus Christ our Lord ; and now tak heed, lest at any tyme ye be unmyndfull of this great benefit, which no doubt Sathan doth invy, and will assaile by all means possible, that you may abuse it. He will not cease to tempt you to fall againe in such, or crymes more horrible ; bot resist the devill, and he shall flee from you. Live in sobrietie, be instant in prayer, commend your self unfainedly to God, who as he is faithfull, so shall he give to us victorie over sinne, death, and Sathan, and that by means of our Head and soveraigne champion Jesus Christ ; to whom be all praise, glory, and honour, now and ever. Amen.

ANE ADMONITION TO THE CHURCH.

It is your dewtie, Brethren, to tak example of this our penitent brother : First, That ye be unfainedlie displeasid in your owen harts for your sinnes : Secondly, That with this our brother ye accuse them in the sight of God, imploring grace and mercie for your offences committed : And last, if any of you shall after this publikly offend, that ye refuse not with the like reverence to satisfie the Church of God, offended in you. Now only resteth, that ye remit and foryet all offences which ye have conceaved heretofore by the sinne and fall of this our brother ; accept and embrace him as ane member of Christ's body ; let none tak upon him to reproche or accuse him for any offences, that before this hour he hath committed. And that he may have the better assurance of your good will and reconciliation, prostrate your selfs before God, and render him thanks for the conversion and repentance of this our brother.

THE THANKSGEVING.

Heavenly Father, Fountaine of all mercy and consolation, we confesse our selves unworthy to be counted amongis thy children, if thou have respect to the corruption of our nature ; but seeing it hath pleased thy Fatherly goodnes, not only freely to chuse us in thy deir Sone our Lord Jesus Christ, by his death to redeme us, by his Evangel to call us, and by his Holy Spirit (which both are thine) to illuminate us ; but also that thou hast commanded thy Word and holie Evangel to be preached, to the end that the penitent shall have an assurance of the remission of their sinnes, not onlie for a tyme, bot even als oft as men from sorrowfull hartis shall call for thy grace and mercie. In consideration of this thy Fatherly adoption and ineffable clemencie shawen upon us, we cannot bot praise and magnifie thy Fatherlie mercie ; an testimonie whereof we not onlie feile in our selfis, but also see the same evidentlie in the conversion of this our brother, whom Sathan for an tyme held in bondage, bot now is set at freedome by the power of our Lord Jesus Christ, and is returned againe to the societie of his bodie. Grant unto us, heavenlie Father, that he and we may more and more be displeased for our sinnes, and proceid in all manner of gud workis, to the praise of thy holy Name, and edification of thy Church, by Jesus Christ our Lord and only Saviour. So be it.

The Thankesgiving being finished, the Minister shall requyre of the Penitent, if that he will be subject to the Discipline of the Church, in caise that he after offend : Who answering that he will, the Minister shall say, in maner of Absolution :—

If thou unfainedly repentis thy former iniquity, and beleves in the Lord Jesus, then I, in his Name, pronunce and affirme that thy sinnes ar forgevin, not only on earth, but also in heaven, according to the promises annexed with the preiching of his Word, and to the power put in the Ministerie of his Church.

Then shall the Eldaris and Deacons, with Ministers (if anie be), in the name of the hole Church, take the reconciled brother by the hand, and embrace him, in signe of full reconciliation.

Then after shall the Church sing the CIII. Psalme, so much as they think expedient ; and so shall the Assemblie, with the benediction, be dismissed.

THE FORME OF EXCOMMUNICATION.

After that all admonitions, both private and publict, be past, as before is said, then must the Church proceid to Excommunication, if the offender remain obstinate. The Sunday, therefore, after the thrid publik admonition, the Minister being before charged by the Session or Elders, shall thus signify unto the Church after the sermon :—

It is not unknowen unto you, with what lenity and carefulnes the Ministerie and the whole Church, by private and publict admonitions. hath sought N., etc., to satisfie the Church, and to declare himself penitent for his grevous crymes and rebellion, by the which he hath offended God's Majestie, blasphemed his holie Name, and offended his Church ; in whom to this day we finde nothing bot stubburnnes : We cannot, therefore, of conscience, wink anie longer at the disobedience of the saide N., lest that his example infect and hurt uthers: We are compelled, therefore, in the feare of God, to give the said N. into the hands and power of the devill, to the destruction of the flesh, if that by that meane he may be broght to the consideration of himself, and so repent and avoide that fearfull condemnation that shall fall on all inobedient in the day of the Lord Jesus. And lest that onie shuld think that we do this of manlie presumption, without the assurance of the Scriptures, ye shall shortlie hear what commandement and authoritie we have so to do.

First, We have the commandement of our Maister and Saviour Jesus Christ, to holde such for ethniks and publicanes as will not hear the voyce of the Church: but plaine it is, that this obstinate N. hath contemptuouslie refused all wholsome admonitions, and therefore we (not one or two, but the whole Church) must holde him as a publicane, that is, as one cut off from the bodie of Jesus Christ, and unworthie of anie societie with him, or with the benefites of his Church, till his new conversion and his receaving againe.

Secundarily, We have the command of the Apostle St. Paul, and that fearful sentence, which he, being absent, did notwithstanding pronounce against the incest, with his sharpe rebuke to the Corinthians, because that with greater zeale and expedition they expelled not from amonges them that wicked man. And if anie thinke that the offence of this foir-named obstinate is not so haynous as that of incest, let such understand, that mercie and favour may rather be graunted til anie uther sinne then to the contempt of holesome admonitions, and of the just and laughfull ordinances of the Church. For uther sinnes, how haynous so ever they be (so be it that they deserve not death), as by unfeaned repentance they ar remitted before God; so upon the same humble offered unto the Church, order may be taken, that the offender may be comforted, and at lenth restored to the societie of the Church againe: but such as proudlie contempne the admonition of the Church, private or publike, declare themselves stubburne, rebellious, and altogether impenitent, and therefore most justlie ought they to be Excommunicate.

The precept of God gevin under the law, to expell from the middes of God's people such as were leprous (without exception of persons), is to us an assurance that we ought to expell from the societie of Christ's body such as be striken with spiritual leprosie; for the one is no lesse infective and dangerous then is the uther. Now, seeing that we know Excommunication is God's ordinance, let us in few words understand the utility and use of the same.

By it, first, the Church is purged of open wicked doers, which is no small commodity, considering that we fecht in the middes and eyes of this wicked generation, which seiketh in us nothing more than occasion of selander. Secundarily, By it is the Church and every member of the same reteaned in obedience and feare, whereof all have need, if the fraillie of our flesh shall be rightly considered. Thirdly, By it we exercise ane singular worke of charity, while that we declare our selves carefull to kepe the flock of Christ in purity of maners, and without danger to be infected: for, as it war a worke both uncharitable and cruell to joyne together in one bed persones infected with pestilent or uther contagious and infective sores, with tender children, or with such as war hole, so it is no lesse crueltie to suffer amonges the flock of Jesus Christ such other obstinat rebelles: for trew is that sentence of the Apostle,—“A little leaven corrupteth the whole masse.” But lest that we shuld seme to usurpe power owir the Church, or to doe any thing without the knowledge and consent of the whole body, for this present we delay the sentence, willing, such as have any thing to object in the contrair, to propone the same the nixt Session day, or eles to signify the same to some of the Ministeris or Eldaris, that answer may be gevin thereto; and in the meane tyme we will call to God for the conversion of the impenitent.

A PRAYER FOR THE OBSTINAT.

Eternall and everliving God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, whose verie property is to shaw mercie, and to restore life, even when to man's judgement death hath gottin dominion over thy creatures: for thou first soght, called, accused, and convicted our father Adam after his transgression; and being so dead in sinne, and thrall to Sathan, that he could nether confesse his offence, nor yit ask mercy for the same, thou by thy free promises of mercy and grace gave unto him a new lyfe and strenth to repent. The same ordor must thou kepe, O Lord, with all thy chosen children of his posteritie: for in mannis corrupt nature there can be no obedience, whill that thou by operation of thy Holy Spirit worke the same. And therefore, we most humbly beseke thee, for Jesus Christ thy Sones sake, pitifullie to look upon this thy creature, who ones was baptized in thy Name, and hath professed himself subject to thy religioun and unto the discipline of thy Church, whome Sathan, alas, now so blyndeth, that obstinately he contemneth the one and the uther. We have followed, O Lord, the reule prescribed unto us by thy deir Sone our Lord Jesus Christ, in admonishing and threatening him; bot hidderto have profited nothing concerning him and his humiliation.

But, O Lord, as thou alone knowes, so may thou alone change and mollifie the harts of the proud and impenitent: thou, by the voce of thy Prophet Nathan, wakened David from his dedlie securitie: thou, without anie prophet, bet down the pryde of Manasses in the prison, after he had sched the blood of thy servandis, and had replenished Jerusalem with all kynd of impitie: thou turned the hart of Peter at the look of thy deir Sone our Lord Jesus Christ, efter that feirfullie, with horrible imprecationis, he had thrise openlie denyed him.

O Lord, thy mercies without measure endure for evir, to the which we efter long travell do remit this obstinat and impenitent; earnestlie desiring thee, O Father of mercies, first so to peirse his hart with the feir of thy severe judgements, that he may begin to understand, that thus contemning all wholesome admonitions, he provokis thy wraith and indignation againes himself. Open his eyis, that he may see how feirfull and terrible a thing it is to fall into thy hands: and thereafter mollifie and oynt his hart by the unction of thy Holy Spirit, that he may unfearnedly convert unto thee, and geve unto thee that honour and obedience that thou requirest in thy holy word; and so to our confort that now mourne for his rebellion, that he may subject himself to the just ordinance of thy Church, and avoide that feirfull vengeance that most assuredly shall fall upon all the inobedient. These thy graces, O heavenly Father, and farther, as thou knowest to be expedient for us, and for thy Church universall, we call for according as we are taught to pray be our soverane Maister, Christ Jesus, saying, OUR FATHER, &c.

The second Sunday, efter the sermone and publict prayeris, the Minister shall, in audience of the hole Church, ask the Eldars and Deaconis,—who man sit in an eminent and proper place, that there answer may be heard—

THE MINISTER.

Hath N., whom the last day we admonished, under the pain of Excommunication, to satisfie the Church for his publict sclander and contempt of the Ministerie, be himself, or be any uther, offered his obedience unto you?

They shall answeare as the Truth is, yea or nay.

If he hath soght the favoris of anie within the Ministerie, with promise of obedience, then shall farther process be delayed, and he commanded to appeir before the Sessioun in there nixt assemblie, where ordor may be takin for his publict repentance, as in the former head is expressed. If he have not labored to satisfie the Church, then shall the Minister proceed and say:

It can not but be dolorous to the bodie, that anie one membre thereof shuld be cut off and perish; and yit it aucht to be more feirfull to the membre then to the bodie, for the membre cut off can doe nothing but putrifie and perish, and yit the bodie may reteine lyfe and strenth. Bot the rebellious of this obstinat may proceed in one part from ignorance; for it may be that he understandeth not what excommunication is, and what is the danger of the same: I shall therefoir in few wordis oppin the one and the uther.

Laughfull excommunication (for the thundringis of that Romane Antichrist ar bot vanity and wynd) is the cutting off from the body of Jesus Christ, from participatioun of his holy sacramentis, and from publict prayeris with his Church, be publike and solemned sentence, all obstinat and impenitent personis, efter dew admonitionis : which sentence, lawghfullie pronounced on earth, is ratified in heaven, by bynding of the same sinnes that they bynd on earth. The danger hereof is greater than man can suddanly espy ; for seeing that without the body of Jesus Christ there abydeeth nothing bot death and damnation to mankynd, in what estait shall we judge them to stand, that justly are cut off from the same ?

Yea, what horrible vengeance hangeth upon them and their posteritie, notable and severe punishmentis may instruct us : Cain the murtherar was not accursed in his awin person only, bot that same malediction rang in his posteritie, and upon all that joynd therewith, till that all mankynde was destroyed by water (eight persons reserved). Cham lykewyse was accursed in his sone Canaan, the severity whereof proceeded evin to the exterminion¹ of that hole race and nation. The sempill word of our Maister Jesus Christ caused the figg-tree suddanly to wither. At the voyce of Peter, Ananias and Sapphira war stricken to death. The same God and Lord Jesus, with the power of his Holie Spirit that then was potent and just, wirkis evin now in the Ministerie of his Church, the contempt whereof he will in no wyse suffer unpunished. And therefoir ye that have acquentance or familiarity with the foir-named obstinat, declair unto him these dangeris, and will him not to tempt the uttermoist. And thus yit again let us pray to God for his conversion.

Let the former Prayer be publictly said.

The thrid Sunday, let the first questioun be proponed by the Minister to the Eldaris and Deaconis, concerning the submission of the Obstinat, so oft admonished, as was proponed the second. If repentance be offered, let ordour be takin, as is befoir said, with a charge to the Church to prayse God for the conversion of that brother. If repentance be not offered, then shall the Minister expone wherein the persone that is to be Excommunicat hath offended, how oft and by whom he hath bene admonished, als weil privatelie as publictly ; and shall demand of the Eldaris and Deaconis if it be not so : Whose answer received, the Minister shall ask the hole Church if they think that such contempt shuld be suffered amonges them : and if then no man mak intercession for the obstinat, the Minister shall proceed, and say :—

Of very conscience we are compelled to do that which to our hartis is most dolorous, to wit, to geve over in the handis of the Devill, this foirnamed obstinat contemner N., whom ones we esteined a membre of our body ; and that not onlie for the cryme that he hath committed, bot much rather for his proud contempt and intollerable rebelloun, lest that our sufferance of him in this his impietie shuld not only be imputed unto us, bot also that he shuld infect uthers with the same pestilence. And therefore we man use the last remedie, how grevous that ever it be unto us : and yit I desire you, for more ample declaratioun of your Christian charity towards him, ye pray with me unto God, now for the last, for his conversioun.

¹ This word is changed in the later copies to rooting out.

THE LAST PRAYER BEFORE THE EXCOMMUNICATIOUN.

Omnipotent, Eternall, and Mercifull Father, who, for that good-will that thou bearest unto us in Jesus Christ thy deir Sone, wilt not the death and destruction of a sinner, but rather that he, by inspiration and moving of thy Holie Spirit, convert and live ; who also doest witnes the vertew and strenth of thy word to be such, that it causeth the mountains to schaik, the rockes to tremble, and the floods to drie up ; behald, we thy children and people here prostrat before thee, most humble besaik thee, in the Name of thy deire Sone our Lord Jesus Christ, that thou wilt move and peirse the hart of our impenitent brother, whom Sathan so long hath indured and hardened ; let it please thy Majestie, be the vertew of thy Holie Spirit, that thou wilt mollifie the same. Expell his darknes, and by the light of thy grace that thou wilt so illuminat him, that now at lenth he may feil, first, How grevously he hath offended againis thy Majestie ; and, secondarly, againis thy holie Church and Assemblie. Give him thy grace to acknowledg, accuse, and damne als weil befor us whom he hath offended, as befor thy presence, this his proud contempt, lest that we, by the same provoked, be compelled, with all our greifis, to cut him off thy mysticall bodie, whom we, O Lord, unfeanedly desire to retene within thy Church, as a lyvely member of thy deir Sone our Lord Jesus. Heir us, merciful Father ; call back again this our impenitent brother that now tendith to eternal destruction ; that we al, who befor thy presence evin for his rebellion do murne, may receive him again with gladnes and joy, and so render prayse and honour unto thee befor this thy holie Congregatioun.

We grant our selfis, O Lord, unworthy whom thou should heir, because we cease not to offend thee by our continual transgression of thy holy precepts. Look not upon us, mercifull Father, in this our corrupt nature, bot look thou to thy deir Sone, whom thou of thy mere mercie hast appointed our Head, great Bishop, Advocat, Mediator, and only Propitiator. In him and in the merites of his death. We humble beseeche thee mercifullie to behald us, and suffer not the most innocent blude of thy deir Sone, sched for us, and for this our impenitent brother, to be prophaned by the tyranny and slight of Sathan. Bot, by the vertew of the same, let this our impenitent brother be broght to unfeaned repentance, that so he may escap that feirfull condemnatioun, in the which he appeireth to fall. This we ask of thee, O heavenly Father, in the boldnes of our Head and Mediator Jesus Christ, praying as he hath taught us, OUR FATHER, &c.

If after this Prayer the Obstinat compeir not to offer his Repentance, then shall the Minister proceed, and say :—

Brethren, seing that as ye have heard this obstinate and impenitent persone, N., hath so greuously offended against God, and against this his holy congregatioun, who by no means (as ye may perceave) can be broght to repentance ; whereof it is evident by the word of God, that he is fallin from the kingdome of heaven, and from the blessed society of the Lord Jesus :

And we, albeit with dolour of our hartes, may now execute that which the commandement of Jesus Christ, and the practise of his Apostle, schaweth that of our office we aucht to do, to wit, that we shall publictly declair and pronounce such to have no society with us, as declair themselfis obstinat and rebellious agains all holsome admonitions, and the blessed ordinances of his Church : and that we may do the same, not out of our awin authority, bot in the name and power of our Lord Jesus Christ, befor whom all kneis are compelled to bow, let us humblie fall down befor him, and on this maner pray, and pronounce this sentence :—

THE INVOCATIOUN OF THE NAME OF JESUS CHRIST, TO EXCOMMUNICAT THE IMPENITENT, TOGITHER WITH THE SENTENCE OF EXCOMMUNICATION.

O Lord Jesus Christ, the only and eternall King of all the chosen children of thine heavinly Father, the Head and Lawgiver of thy Church, who by thy awin mouth hast commanded that such offenders as prouddie contemne the admonitiouns of thy Church shall be cast out from the society of the same, and shall be reputed of thy professouris as prophane ethnicks ; we, willing to obey this thy precept, which also we have received be institutioun of thy Apostile, ar here presently convened in thy Name, to Excommunicate and cast furth from the societie of thy holie bodie, and from all participatioun with thy Church in sacramentis or prayeris, N. ; which thing we do at thy commandement, and in thy power and authoritie, to the glorie of thy holy Name, to the conservation and edification of this thy Church, in the which it hath pleased thee to place us Ministers, and to the extreme remedie of the stubburne obstinacie of the fore-named impenitent. And because thou hast promised thy self evir to be with us, bot especially with such as uprightly travel in the Ministry of thy Church, whom also thou has promised to instruct and guyde by the dictament of thy Holie Spirit, we most humbly beseeche thee so to governe and assist us in the execution of this our charge, that whatsoever we in thy Name do here pronounce on earth, that thou wilt ratifie the same in the heavin. Our assurance, O Lord, is thy expressed word; and therefore, in boldnes of the same HEIR I, IN THY NAME, and at the commandement of this thy present Congregation, cut off, seclude, and excommunicat from thy body, and from our societie, N., as one persone sclanderous, proud, a contempnar, and one member, for this present, altogether corrupted and pernicious to the bodie. And this his sin (albeit with sorrow of hart) by vertew of our Ministerie, we bynde and pronounce the same to be bound in heaven and earth. We farther geve over in the handis and power of the Devill the said N., to the destruction of his flesh, straitlie charging all that professe the Lord Jesus, to whose knowlege this our sentence shall cum, to repute and hold the said N. accursed, and unworthie of the familiar societie of Christians: declaring unto all men, that such as herefter befor his repentance shall hant or familiarlie accompanie with him, or partakaris of his impiety, and subject to the lyke condemnation. This our sentence, O Lord Jesus, pronounced in thy Name, and at thy commandement, we humbly desire thee to ratifie according to thy promise. And yit, Lord, thou that camest to save that which was lost, look upon him with the eyis of thy mercie, if thy good pleasure be; and so peirse thou his hart that he may feile in his breist the terrours of thy judgementis, that by thy grace he fructfully may be converted to thee; and so damning his awin impietie, he may be with the lyke solemnitie received within the bosome of thy Church, from the which this day (with greif and dolour of our hartis) he is ejected.

LORD! in thy presence, we protest that our awin affections move us not to this severitie, but onely the hatred of sin, and obedience that we geve to thy awin commandement. And therefore, O heavenlie Father, we crave the perpetuall assistance of thy Holie Spirit, not onlie to brydill our corrupted affections, but also so to conduct us in all the course of our hole lyfe, that we nevyr fal to the like impietie and contempt, bot that continuallie we may be subject to the voce of thy Church, and unto the Ministers of the same, who trewly offer to us the Word of lyfe, the blessed Evangel of thy onlie belovyt Sone Jesus Christ; to whom with thee and the Holie Spirit be all prayse, glorie, and honour, now and ever. So be it.

The Sentence pronounced, and the Prayer ended,

The Minister shall admonish the Church, that all the faithfull hold the Excommunicat as an ethnike, as before is said; that no man use his familiar companie; and yet that no man accuse him of onie uther cryme than of such as he is convicted of, and for the which he is excommunicat, bot that everie man shall secretlie call to God for grace to be granted to the excommunicat. Such as have office in the Ministerie may upon licence required of the Church, speik with the excommunicat, so long as hope resteth of his conversion; bot if he continue obstinat, then aucht all the faithfull utterly to abhor his presence and communication. And yit aucht they more earnestly to call to God, that Sathan in the end may be confounded, and the creature of God freed from his snares by the power of the Lord Jesus. And with the accustomed benediction the Assemblie shall be dismissed, after they have sung the Cl. Psalme, or one portion thereof, as it shall please the congregatioun.

THE ORDOURE TO RECEAVE THE EXCOMMUNICAT AGANE TO THE SOCIETIE OF THE CHURCH.

First, we must observe, that such as deserve death for the cryme committed, never be admitted to the Societie of the Church, untill such time as either the magistrate punish according to the law, or elles pardon the cryme, as before we have said: but such as for uther offences and for there contempt ar excommunicat, may be received when they shall earnestlie seike the favouris of the Church. They must begyne at the Ministerie, the Eldars, and Deaconis, who must expone there repentance to the Minister or Ministers in their Assemblie: a day may be appointed to the Excommunicat to present himself before them. The signes of his repentance aught to be diligentlie inquired, as what hath bene his behaviour sence the tyme of his excommunication, what he will offer for satisfaction to the Church, and unto whom he hath exponed the grieffe and dolour of his hart. If the Excommunicat be found penitent and obedient in all things, the Minister the nixt Sondag may geve advertisement to the hole Church of his humiliation, and command them to call to God for increase of the same: the nixt session day the Minister may appoint to the Excommunicat such satisfaction as they think most expedient; to the which if the excommunicat fullie agree, then may the said Ministerie appoint unto him a certane day when he shall fulfill the same.

For this is principallie to be observed, that no excommunicat persone may be receavid to the societie of the Church again, until such time as he hath stand at the church dure, at the least moe Sundayis than one; Which dayis being expirid, and the hole satisfaction complete, some of the Eldars shall passe to the excommunicat, efter that the formar prayer of the Minister in the pulpet be ended, and shall present him to an certan place appointed for the penitents, where he shall stand in the same habite, in the which he maid satisfaction, untill the sermon be ended: And then shal the same Eldars that broght him into the Church present him to the Minister, with these or the lyke wordis:

This creature of God is, N., that for his wickednes and obstinat rebellion hath bene Excommunicat from the bodie of Jesus Christ, bot now, by the power of the Spirit of God, is called back again by Repentance, so far as the judgement of man can persave, for he hath not only craved the favours of the Ministrie that he might be received into the bodie of the Church again. bot also most obediently hath subjected himself to all that we have commanded, for trial of his humiliatioun : And therefor we present him befor you to be examinat ; and if his repentance be sufficient, to be received again to the bodie of the Church.

Then shall the Minister render thanks, first to God for that part of his humiliation, and also desire the Church of God to do the same with him. Therefter he shall addresse him to the person excommunicat, and first shall lay befor him his sin ; therefter, the admonitions that war gevin unto him to satisfie the Church for the same ; and last, his proud contempt and long obstinacie, for the which he was excommunicat : And of every one he shall require his peculiar confession, with accusation of himself, and detestation of his impietie ; Which being received, he shall render thanks to God as followeth :—

We thank the mercie and goodnes of God, through Jesus Christ our Lord, for this thy conversion, N., into the which thou hast not so much aschamed thy self, as that thou hast confounded and ovirome Sathan, by whose venom and deceaveable entisements thou hitherto hast bene rebellious to the holsome admonitions of the Church : And yit because we can bot onlie see that which is externall, we will joyne our prayeris with thyne, that thy humiliation may proceed from the heart.

Let the Prayers appoynted to be said in the receaving of the Penitent [supra, p. 457] be said also here : Which ended, let the Church and the Penitent be admonished as there is expremed ; except that the cryme of his Excommunication must evir be aggredged and mentionat.

THE PRAYER CONTAINING HIS RECEAVING TO THE CHURCH.

Lord Jesus Christ, King, Teachar, and our eternal Preist, who with the preaching of thy blessed Evangel hes joynd the power to bynd and lowse the sinnes of men, who hes also pronounced, that whatsoever by thy Ministers is bound on earth shall be bound in the heavin, and also that whatsoever is lowsed by the same, shall be lowsed and absolved with the in the heavin ; look, O Lord, mercifullie upon this thy creature N., etc., whom Sathan of long tyme hath haldin in bondage, so that not onlie he drew him to iniquitie, bot also that he so hardened his hart, that he despised all admonitiouns ; for the which his sin and contempt we war compelled to excommunicat him from our bodie. Bot now, O Lord, seeing that the Spirit of our Lord Jesus Christ hath so far prevailed in him, that he is returned to our society, it wil please thee, for the obedience of our Lord Jesus, so to accept him, that his former inobedience be never laid to his charge, bot that he may increase in all godlines, till that Sathan finally be trodden under his feit and ours, by the power of our Lord Jesus Christ ; to whom with Thee and the Holy Spirit be all honor and glorie, now and evir. So be it.

THE FORME OF ABSOLUTION.

In the Name and authoritie of Jesus Christ, I, the Minister of his blessed Evangel, with consent of this hole Ministry and Church, Absolve thee, N. from the sentence of Excommunication, from the sin by thee committed, and from al censures led againes thee for the same of before, according to thy repentance, and pronounces thy sin to be loused in heavin, and thee to be receaved again to the societie of Jesus Christ, to his bodie the Church, to the participatioun of his Sacramentes, and, finally, to the fruition of all his benefits, in the name of the Father, the Sone, and the Holy Spirit. So be it.

The Absolution pronounced, the Minister shall then call him Brother, and geve him admonition to watch and pray, that he fall not in the lyke tentation, that he be thankfull for the mercie shawin unto him, and that he shaw the fructis of his conversion in lyfe and conversatioun.

Thereftir the hole Ministerie shall embrace him, and such utheris of the Church as be nixt unto him ; and then shall a Psalme of thankis-geving be song.

This Ordour may be enlarged or contractd as the wisdome of the discreet Minister shall think expedient ; For we rather shaw the way to the ignorant, than prescribe Ordour to the learned that cannot be amended.

ANE PRAYER.

Preserve the publict face of thy Church, within this Realme, O Lord : Dilait the kingdome of thy Sone Jesus Christ uniyersally ; and so farther disclois and brek down the tyrannie of that Romane Antichrist, by the power of thy Sone our Lord Jesus Christ. So be it. ANNO 1567.

Rom. 16.—Soli sapienti Deo per Jesum Christum gloria in perpetuum. Amen.

This Book is thocht necessar and profitable for the Church, and commanded to be printed be the Generall Assemblie. Set furth be JOHN KNOX Minister ; and sighted be us whose names follow, as we war appointed be the said Generall Assemblie.

JOHNE WILLOK.

DAVID LYNDSEY.

M. JOHN KNOX.

GUILIELMUS CHRISTISONIS.

ROBERT PONT.

JAMES GREG, etc.

JOHNE ROW.

AN ANSWER TO A LETTER WRITTEN BY JAMES TYRIE,
A SCOTTISH JESUIT.

M.D.LXXII.

THE following tract was Knox's latest publication. The increasing infirmities of age, aggravated by the sad and disheartening state of public affairs, having rendered him unfit for any active duty, he retired, on the 5th of May 1571, to St. Andrews, the scene of his early labours. "He left Edinburgh," says Bannatyne, "sore against his will, being compellit be the Brethren of the Kirk and Town," as his life being threatned, it was considered his remaining might prove an occasion of shedding their blood in his defence.¹ "During his stay at St. Andrews," says his biographer, "he published a Vindication of the Reformed religion, in answer to a letter written by Tyrie, a Scottish Jesuit. The argumentative part of the work was finished by him in 1568, but he sent it abroad at that time, with additions, as a farewell address to the world, and a dying testimony to the truth which he had long taught and defended."² In his prefatory address, Knox himself informs us, that when the Jesuit's letter was put into his hands by a faithful brother, requiring him to answer it, he had hastily written a reply to be communicated to the person unto whom the letter was addressed; yet regretting his having done so, it was his intention to have suppressed it. But during this interval of public employment, "in these dolorous times," and when, as he imagined, "he had taken good night of the world, and all the fasherie of the same," he was induced to send the work to press.

The answer to Tyrie was printed at St. Andrews (see p. 479): it also forms part of the volume of Knox's writings in the series of British Reformers, published by the Religious Tract Society, London. The editor, in reference to it, says,

¹ See extract, in a subsequent page, from Richard Bannatyne's Memorials.

² M'Crie's Life of Knox, vol. ii. p. 207.

“This treatise is among the most interesting of the writings of the Scottish Reformer. The sophistries of the Jesuit are completely exposed, and we have answers to many of those arguments which the Jesuits of the present day have brought forward dressed up in specious colours. The ardent desire of Knox to depart and to be with Christ is fully expressed; and the impartial reader of the letter to Tyrie, with its appendages, will be fully satisfied that Knox was not the turbulent ambitious character which his adversaries represent him to have been.”¹

A brief notice of Knox's antagonist seems to be necessary to introduce this controversy to the reader.

JAMES TYRIE was born at Drunkilbo, near Perth, in the year 1543, and probably spent some time at St. Andrews, without taking the degree of Master of Arts. In the early part of 1563, he left Scotland with Father Edmund Hay the Jesuit, to pursue his theological studies at the University of Louvain. On the 19th of August that year he was at Rome, and at the age of twenty he joined the Society of Jesus, which had but recently been founded by Ignatius Loyola. He was afterwards appointed Professor of Philosophy and Theology in the Jesuit College of Clermont, Paris. His elder brother, David Tyrie of Drunkilbo,² appears to have professed the Reformed faith; and in the year 1567 he signed the Bond of Association, connected with Queen Mary's abdication, and the appointment of the Earl of Murray as Regent.³ His brother James, anxious to reclaim him to the Romish Church, had addressed several letters to him, including the one submitted to Knox, for the purpose of answering it. The letter was “written at Paris the vj December,” but the year is not specified. According to Knox's words, “seven years,” we might conclude it was written in 1565; but Tyrie's mention of “your invisibl Kirk of Scotland but yet

¹ British Reformers, etc. — Knox, p. 262. Lond. (1830) 12mo.

² See footnote 2, p. 476.

³ Printed in Anderson's Collections, relating to the History of Mary Queen of Scotland, vol. ii. p. 231.

aucht year auld," if we should reckon from the Parliamentary proceedings in August 1560, would place it two years later, or in 1567. Dr. George Mackenzie, in his Life of Tyrie, speaks of this Letter as having been printed at Paris in 1568, but the existence of any such edition is more than doubtful.¹

After Knox's Answer had appeared in 1572, Tyrie lost no time in preparing a Refutation, which he published under the following title :—

THE REFVTATION OF ANE ANSVWER MA-DE BE SCHIR IOHNE KNOX,

to ane letter, fend be Iames Tyrie, to his vmquhyle
brother.

Sett furth be Iames Tyrie.

(Hier. 14.—Rom. 10.)

PARISIIS.

Apud Thomam brumerium in claufo brunello sub signo Olivæ.

1573.

CVM PRIVILEGIO.

This volume is a small 8vo, closely printed, and consists of fifty-seven leaves besides the title, five leaves of address "To the benevolent Reader," "Daitit at Paris the 8. of Marche 1573," and one leaf of "Errours." The author adopts the same mode as Knox in giving, under separate heads or paragraphs, portions of "The Letter," and "Schir Iohn Knox Answer," accompanied with "The Refutation." In the present volume this latter portion would be quite out of place.

¹ Lives of Scots Writers, vol. iii. p. 137.

In a letter of Henry Killigrew to Lord Burghley, from Paris, 13th May 1573, is the following reference to Tyrie's Answer:—

"His Grace thought they had brought over certayne bokes in aunsver of Mr. George Bucanan's wryghten agaynst the Scotsch (Queen), but they were others wryghten by Tirye the Jesowytt in aunsver to a booke of John Knox: one of them confesseth that ther was one of the aunsvers to Mr. George B. booke delivered to our Ambassadour in France; and further, that certayne bulles are brought over from Rome and sent to the rector of the University of Aberdyne, for serch whereof the R. grace hath taken ordre."¹

Bishop Lesley, in his well-known work, "De Origine, Moribus, et Rebus Gestis Scotorum," published at Rome in 1578, mentions Tyrie in high terms of commendation; as he is also by later Popish writers, such as Hamilton, Dempster, Cone, and Mackenzie. Sir Thomas Urquhart, with his usual bombast, styles him "a profound and universal scholar."

When Tyrie's Refutation was published, both his brother² and Knox were dead; but an answer to his work was prepared by John Duncanson, Minister of the King's household. The General Assembly, on the 7th of March 1573-4,³ appointed Spottiswood, Pont, and other five of their brethren, "to revise and consider the reply made be John Duncansone, Minister of the King's house, against Mr. James Tyrie's last book; and what the said brethren find therein to report again to the

¹ Original Letters in State Paper Office.

² On the title of the Refutation 1573 (see 475), Tyrie styles him his umquhyle brother, a word always used to denote a person deceased; and we find, from his Confirmed Testament (Edinburgh, 20th April 1577), that he and his spouse,

Margaret Fotheringham, deceist in March 1571-2; and that David Tyrie was served heir of his father, David Tyrie of Drumkilbo, Perthshire, 20th May 1572.—(Retours, Perth, No. 27.)

³ Booke of the Universal Kirk, vol. i. p. 289; Calderwood's History, vol. viii.

Assembly, to the effect it may be understood whither the said Reply may be committed to print or not."

Three years later we learn from the Assembly's proceedings, that Mr. George Hay, Minister of Ruthven, had also submitted to the Assembly, in April 1576, an answer to a work written by Tyrie.¹ Smeton, in his reply to "the Apostate" Archibald Hamilton's Dialogue, thus alludes to these Answers by Hay and Duncanson, as still unpublished in the year 1579: "Ignatianæ quosdam societatis satellites intelligo, qui nil intentatum relinquunt, ut egregiam in Pontificia tyrannide propaganda, et vera religione opprimenda operam navasse voce et scriptis videantur. His scio a perdoctis viris Georgio Hayo et Joanne Dunkesono copiose et accurate responsum: quorum scripta quia nondum in lucem prodierunt, putavi pretium aliquod operæ futurum; si hinc lectori exstaret, quo sedata posset conscientia conjuratorum CHRISTI hostium ineptias contemnere. Hoc prolixioris alicubi disputationis consilium fuit."²

John Hamilton, Regent in the College of Navarre, in his "Ane Catholik and Facile Traictise," etc., on the Sacrament of the Altar, printed at Paris in 1581, asserts that William Christison, Minister of Dundee, instead of his sitting down to prepare a refutation, caused one of Tyrie's works to be publicly burned at the Market Cross. He gives no date, but his words may be quoted:—

"Gif thou sal demand at ane Calviniste, Quha in the face of the earth befor Calvin sen the Apostlis dayis, of all the doctoris that hes beine sen syne, teachit sik doctrine as Calvin? he sal not haif ane vourd to ansueir, bot haif recourse to the invisibilitie of thair Kirk. It had bein guid to mony saulis that it had remanit invisibil.

"The Donatistis preachit that the vourd of God vas not treulie preachit vnto thair dayis, and that thair vas not ane visibil Kirk befor thair age, as S. Augustin vitnesis vritand aganis thame. This hes beine the euasione of all heretikis in all agis falsifeing Christis promeis concerning perpetual succession of pastoris, the quhilk is sa dammabil in the self, and without al probabilitie, that nether Knox nor ony of his factione sen his dead dorst tak in hand to vrit ane ansueir to maister James Tyrcis beuk concerning the Visibilitie of the Kirk: zea quhen sum of thaim scheu thair ansuer to thair General Assemblie, it become inuisibil as thair kirk vas before thame selfis: and lat be to maik ane ansueir to that mannis beuk (quha for his singulare lerning and vprichtnes of lyuing is ane gret honeur to our countrie), Christisone of Dondie causit burne the same at the market croce, and sa schauit his auin ignorance, in place to tak the pen to mak ane ansueir vsit the fyre, quhilk vas the seurest vay for him and sik vtheris, quha lyk parrokettis enterteneis the auditouris be clattering tellis. The neakit yourdis of the scripture is not the true vord of God. For S. Paul sayis, littera occidit: the letter or scripture literatlie tane, slayis, bot the scripture faithfullie exponit is the treu vord of God,"¹ etc.

¹ Booke of the Universal Kirk, vol. i. p. 361.

² Sign. ¶ iij.

Of Father Tyrie's subsequent history, very few words may suffice. He remained for several years in Paris; and in 1590 became Provincial of the Jesuits in France. He was at Rome on the 22d of September 1591; and in 1593 was appointed Assistant to the General of the Jesuits for the provinces of Germany and France. After a brief illness, Tyrie died at Rome, on the 21st of March 1597, leaving behind him for publication several manuscripts to the Library of the professed house "Il Gesù," at Rome; others are supposed to be preserved at Paris.

¹ Sign. V. iij.

AN ANSWER TO

A LETTER OF A IESVIT NAMED Tyrie, be Iohne Knox.

¶ PROV. XXVI.

Answer not a foole according to his foolishnes, least thow be lyke him : answer a foole according to his foolishnes least he be wise in his owē cōfeat

THE contrarietie appearing at the first sight, betuix thir twa sentēcis, stayit for a tyme, baith heart to meditate & hand to wryte any thing, cōtrair that blasphemous letter. But when with better mynd, God gaue me to confidder, that whosoever opponis not him self bouldly to blasphemy & manifest leis, differis lytill fra tratouris : cloking & fostering, so far as in them ly, the treafoun of traitours, & dampnable impietie of those, against whome Gods iust evengance mon burne without end, vnles spedie repentāce follow : To quyet therefore my owne conscience, I put hand to the pen as followeth.

IMPRENTIT AT SANCTANDROIS be Robert Lekpreuik. Anno. Do. 1572.

In small 8vo, roman letter, sign. A to F 5, in eights, 45 leaves, not paged.

JOHNE KNOX, the servand of Jesus Christ, now wearie of the world, and daylie luiking for the resolution of this my earthly Tabernakle, to the Faithfull, that God of his mercy sall appoint to fecht after me, desyris grace, mercy, and peace, from God the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, with the Spirite of sanctificatioun, to resist all kynd of impietie, in thir last and moste wicked dayis, wherin Sathan rages, knowing that he hes a short tyme to trouble Goddis peple.

Wonder not, gentill Reidar, that sic ane argument suld proceid fra me in thir dolorous days, after that I have taken gude-night at the world, and at all the fasherie of the same, except to lament for my awin sinnis, and for the sinnis of utheris; of whome (allace) I feir mony can not lament for themselves, becaus they have sauld themselves to wirk impietie, with all gredynes, without sens and fealing of any dolour that proceedeth from God. Yet, Lord, thow knowes thy owen, and thow drawes from iniquitie all that unfeinedly incall thy name. There ar sevin yeares past, sen a scrole, send from a Jesuite to his Brother,¹ was presented unto me be a faithfull brother, requyring sum Answer to be maid to the same; whais just petition, I, willing to obey, I pat my hand to the pen, although I fand small tyme of quyetnes; for it was immediatly efter that I was called back from exyle, be the Kirk of Edinburgh, after David's judgement.² Amongs my other caires, I scriblit that which followis, and that in few dayis; which being finished, I repented of my laubour, and purposed fullie to have suppressed it. Which, na dout, I had done, if that the Devil had not steirit up the Jesuites,¹ of purpois to trouble godlie harts, with the same argumentis which Tyrie usis, amplified and set furth, with all the dog eloquence that Sathan can devyse for suppressing of the free progres of the Evangell of Jesus Christ, and for the cuiring of that woundit head of the Beast, that Romane Antichrist, who shall to distruction in despyte of all those that studie either to erect, or yet to manteane him and his dampnable abuis: which God hes disclosit to sic as the Devill hes not blinded so that they can not discerne betuix darknes and light. The ordour that is kept in answering of his proud arrogancie and presumptuous foolishenes, the entres of the treatise will declare.

¹ David Tyrie of Drumkilbo. See p. 476, note 1.

² The death of David Rizzio, at Edinburgh, on the 9th March 1565-6.

I have added unto this Preface a meditatioun or prayer, thrawin furth of my sorrowful heart, and pronounced be my half dead toung, befor I was compelled to leave my flocke of Edinburgh, who now ar dispersed, suffering lytill les calamitie then did the faithfull efter the persecutioun of Steaphen. Lord, comfort and strenthen thame to the end, that anes we may meit in glorie; for all worldly meiting is bot vane, and an occasioun of new dolour. Call for me, deir Brethren, that God in his mercy will pleis to put end to my long and panefull battell: For now being unabill to fecht, as God sumtymes gave strenth, I thrust an end befor I be moir troubilsum to the Faithfull. And yet, Lord, let my desyre be moderat be thy Holy Spirit, and give me patience to beir whatsoever it pleises thy godlie Majestie to lay upon this my wicked carkase.

¹ The Order of the Society of Jesus at that time was recently instituted, and had already begun to develop the sophistries, with which the Jesuits have always veiled their proceedings, under an appearance of moderation.—(Part of note in vol. of British Reformers.)

THE PRAYER.

Lord Jesus, receive my spirite, and put an end, at thy gude pleasure, to this my miserable lyfe; for justice and treuth ar not to be found amonges the sonnes of men!

JOHNE KNOX, with deliberat mynd, to his God.

Be mercyfull unto me, O Lord, and call not into judgement my manyfold sinnis; and cheiffie those, whereof the world is not able to accuse me. In youth, myd age, and now, after many battelles, I find nothing into me bot vanitie and corruption. For, in quyetnes I am negligent, in trouble impatient, tending to disperation; and in the meane state, I am so caryed away with vane fantaseis, that, (allace), O Lord, they withdraw me from the presence of thy Majestie. Pryde and ambitioun assault me on the ane part, covetousnes and malice trouble me on the other: breifly, O Lord, the affectionis of the fleshe do almoste suppres the operatioun of thy Spirite. I tak thee, O Lord (who only knowes the secretis of hearts) to record, that in nane of the foirsaid I do delyte; bot that with them I am troubled, and that soir aganis the desyre of my inward man, which sobbis for my corruption, and wold repose in thy mercy alone. To the which I clame, and that in the promise that thow hes maid to all penitent sinneris (of whose number I profes myself to be one) in the obedience and death of my only Saviour, our Lord Jesus Christ. In whome, be thy meare grace, I dout not myself to be electit to eternall salvatioun, whereof thow hes gevin unto me (unto me, O Lord, most wretched and unthankfull creature) most assured signes. For being drowned in ignorance, thow hes gevin to me knowledge above the commoun sort of my brethren; my toung hes thow usit to set furth thy glorie, to oppung idolatrie, erroris, and fals doctrine. Thow hes compelled me to foirspeak, aswell delyveraunce to the afflicted, as distructioun to certane inobedient; the performance whereof, not I alone, bot the verray blind world hes alreddy sene. But above all, O Lord, thow, be the power of thy Holy Spirite, hes sealed into my heart remis- sion of my sinnes, which I acknowledge and confes my self to have received be the precious bloode of Jesus Christ ones shed; be whose perfyte obedience I am assured my manyfould rebellionis ar defaced, my grevous sinnes purged, and my saule maid the tabernackle of thy godlie Majestie. Thow, O Father of mercyes, thy Sone our Lörd 'Jesus, my only Saviour, Media- tor, and Advocate, and thy Holy Spirite, remainig in the same be trew faith; which is the only victorie that overcummeth the world.

To thee, therefoir, O Lord, I commend my spirite; for I thirst to be resolved from this body of sin, and am assured that I sall rise agane in glorie, howsoever it be that the wicked, for a tyme, sall trode me, and others thy servandes, under their feit. Be mercyfull, O Lord, unto the Kirk within this Realme; continew with it the light of thy Evangell; augment the number of trew preicheris; and let thy mercyfull provydence luik upon my desolate bedfellow, the frute of hir bosome, and my two deir children, Nathanael and Eleezer.¹ Nów, Lord, put end to my miserie!

At Edinburgh, the 12. of Marche, 1565.²

¹ "Tyrie, in his Reply," says Dr. M'Crie, "scoffs at the expression of Knox's pious affection for his family;" where he remarks, "Because I know his great occupatiouns and sollicitude he has of his wyf and childrene, that he could not tak tent to sic trifflis, I will pas this with silence," &c.

² That is the 12th of March 1565-6.

AN ANSWER TO A LETTER OF A JESUIT, NAMED TYRIE, BE JOHNE KNOX.

OF leat dayis there came to our hands a Letter, direct unto yow, right worshipfull, from JAMES TYRIE, who styleth him self your humble servitour and brother. The beginning wherof shaweth the care that he beiris of your salvatioun, his cheritie that hes moved him so oft to wryte unto yow, and thairwith covertley he accuses yow, that he hes received no answer of his former, and yet that the same cheritie moveth him stil to continew in his former sute. In the progres of the said letter he planely furthshawis what is his scope and purpos ; to wit, to alienat your mynd from the treuth of God, now of Goddis greit mercy, efter long darknes, offered to this Realme. The purpos, as we suppose, wherefore ye send the same letter unto us, is that we may give solutionis to thay thingis that he objectis aganis the treuth. Which to do wer not verray hard, provydit that his dytement wer sensible, and his argumentis formall, and propir to that which he wald perswade. But becaus, in wryting, he appeareth to us rather scabrushly to have translatit that which he wrytis furth of Latine, or of sum other forane tounge, then frely to haif expressit his awin mynd ; and becaus that his argumentis ar not onlie impertinent, but also sa generall that in na wyse they conclude that which he wold prove,—our answeres must exceid the measure of a missive ; and yet we sall avoide, sa far as we can, all unprofitabil prolixitie. But leist that any suld thinke that we deprave either his dytement or argumentis, we shal insert his hole letter, from parcell to parcell, and give answer to sic headis as either ar blasphemous aganis the treuth of God, or yet may be offensive to the waik conscience of men. In other thingis we sall not be curious. His letter thus beginnis :—

TYRIE'S LETTER.

Schir, Efter hartly commendatioun, of service, and prayeris, that I have writtin sa oft afor (we keip his awin wordis and ortographie), it come of my cheritie, that I aucht to yow, for sindrie ressounis, and of the sollicitude that cheritie causit me to have of the eternal salvation of your saule, desyrand be your answer to have knawin your mynd in that behalf ; quhilk, sen I have not obtenit as yit, I have thocht, haifand opportunitie of this beirer, to wryte this wryting amangis the rest, and to exhort yow thairby, that ye wald ernstly (as it becummis ane man to quhome God hes gevin sa mony giftis and talentis) and rypely consider be quhat way ye mon cum to that end, to the quhilk God hes creatit and redemit you.

ANSWER.

To this long preface we only answer this :—That if the Scribes and Pharesies, who compassed sea and land to mak a proselyt, gat a curse by the mouth of our maister, Jesus Christ,¹ notwithstanding all their appeirand zeale and panefull travell ; who can dout bot that sic as studie to draw back agane to superstitioun and idolatrie sic as God hes called from the same, shall receive a dowble maledictioun, under what pretence that ever they do it ? For, if thay, who brought Ethnickis and manifest Idolatouris to sum religioun, were accursed, how muche moir ar they detestable, that travell to bring men from a trew religioun to the deapest idolatrie that ever yet was upon the face of the earth ? Which long hes bene manteyned in the Papistical Kirk, whereto we persave the wryter of the letter wold entyse yow, as his subsequent perswasionis manifestly declaireth. For thus he wryteth :—

TYRIE'S LETTER.

Quhilk appeiris to me to be the only faith and religioun keipit in the Catholick Kirk of Christ sen the beginning thair of. Quhilk appeiris cleirly, be the maist plane wordis of the Propheit Isai, quhair he speikis of the Kirk, Gens et Regnum quod non servierit tibi, peribit.

Quhilk words, gif ony wald apply to thair new found kirkis, and specially to your invisibil Kirk of Scotland (bot yit aucht yeir auld), he is convictit. For it is manifest, that befor a thousand yeiris in all the world was thair pepill that trowit as thai do quha defendis the contrarie, quhilk na man bot he that wald schaw his impudence and his ignorance togidder dar deny : and of the Kirk quhair of the Propheit speikis, it is said be him, in the secund chapter, that it sal be manifest and visibl throw all the world. Quhairfoir, gif ye can not schaw quhat place of the world afoir thre hundreth yeir your Kirk was into, it folowis of necessitie, that it is na Kirk, &c. Thus far of his letter.

ANSWER.

The first part of his counsall we approve, and adde thereto, that the lyfe everlasting consistes in the knowledge of the onlie trew God, and in the knowledge of him whome he hes send, Jesus Christ.² That he that belevis in the Sone of God hes lyfe everlasting, and is alreddy past from deith to lyfe ; bot he that belevis not, sall not se lyfe, but the wraith of God abydes upon him.³ We further affirme, that without the societie and bosome of the trew Kirk, never was, is, nor salbe, salvatioun unto man. In thir and lyke generall heidis we disagre not from the Papistis ; but the difference and dout standis in the speciallis, to wit, what Faith is, and what ground it hes ; what is Religioun, and wherein it differis from superstitioun and from idolatrie :⁴

¹ Matt. 23. ² Ioan. 17. ³ Ioan 5. trew worschipperis of God and the

⁴ The heidis of difference betuix the Papistis.—(Marginal note.)

and finallie, what is the trew Kirk, and how it may be decerned from the sinagoge of Sathan. Thir heades, we say, ought he in special to have intreted unto yow, if he had bene mynded to have instructed yow in a treuth. But becaus (as the progres of his letters declareth), his mynd was to draw yow to the bondage of that Romane Antechrist, he takis generall propositionis, moste trew and most certane in themselves, whereupon he wold conclude that which is most fals and altogether pernitius to the salvatioun of man. To let the craft of Sathan moir evidently appear, we shall draw his perswasion in forme of argument, and after returne to the farther meaning of the Propheit, and to the declaratioun of thir termis, Faith, Religioun, and Catholick Kirk.

Major.—The Propheit affirmes, that whosoever sall not serve Jerusalem, shall perishe.

Minor.—But the promise maid to Jerusalem appertenis unto the Kirk.

Conclusion.—Ergo, whosoever servis not the Kirk, sall perishe.

This hole argument we admit, and most constantlie we do affirme it ; and yet sall he never be able to prove his intent, which is, that the Kirk of Scotland is no Kirk. We will oppin the wound which the wryter of the letter keapis coverit, and yet it most grevis him, as it doeth the rest of al Papistis.¹ The Realme of Scotland (all praise to God) hes refused the Pape, that Romane Antichrist ; and not only be preaching, bot also be the publict lawes, hes dampned his tyrannicall lawes, his odious superstitiounis, and usurped jurisdiction. And therefor cry the Papistis, that we ar declyned from the trew Kirk, and ar fallen back from the Catholick faith. But befor that they be able to convict us of those crimes, they mon preif two thinges.² Former, that whatsoever was promysed to Jerusalem dois properly and only appertene unto Rome ; and this mon thay do, not be conjectures, but be plane wordis, as God pronounced be his Prophet of Jerusalem. This is the first. The second is, that albeit Rome wer as able to prove a promise maid to it, as Jerusalem was, of whome it was said,—This is my rest ; heare will I dwell, becaus I have chosin it ; and albeit that the Papis of Rome, whome he styles the perpetuall successioun of that Kirk, had as an assured and plane probation, that be God they wer called, be God they wer admitted, and that be God they suld be manteyned in their ministerie and functioun, as that the Levites and successioun of Aaron had to produce at all tymes for their defence ; yet if they, (we say,) who cal themselves the successouris of the Apostlis, be not able to prove, that they have constantlie remained in the first league and covenant which Christ Jesus maid with his Apostlis, when he send them furth to preache the glaid tydingis of the kingdome, and to establishe his throne, not only amonges the Jewis, ¹ Why the Pape and Papistes hate the Kirk of Scotland.

² What Papistes must prove befor they be able to convict us, or any other natioun, of apostasie from the Kirk and trew faith.—(Marginal notes.)

bot also amonges the Gentiles, according to the former propheseis : Albeit, we say, that all thir former thay wer abill to prove (as they ar never able to do), yet have they said nothing that may help their caus, nor hurt ouris, onles that they thairwith plainly prove that the Kirk of Rome, and the successioun of the same, hes remanit and yet remaneth in the original puritie of the Apostlis, in doctrine, lyfe, lawes, and ceremonies. For thir being corrupted, the tytill of successioun will na mair help them then did the bragging of the preistis under the law, who cryit aganis the Propheit Jeremie—"the Temple of the Lord, the temple of the Lord, the temple of the Lord." What was answered unto them, let the 7. chapter of his Propheisie witnes.¹ But farther, of the successioun, and of the assurance thairof, efter.

Now mon we sunthing speak of Faith, Religioun, and the Catholick Kirk, whairwith he wold terrifie your conscience and deface the treuth : and then mon we answeere to his blasphemous tauntis and mockage. Befoir we have confessit, that to leve without Faith, without Religion, and without the societie of the Catholick Kirk, bringis with it most certanely death and dampnation. But yet, we affirme, that all opinion that is commonly receaved under the name of faith, is not faith which God approvis ; bot trew faith mon have for the ground and assurance thereof Godis expressed word, of his mercy, promysed in Christ Jesus, whereto the heart of the faithful mon consent, so moved be the Haly Gaist. And therefor we fear not to affirme, that the Papistis, having no better ground for thair faith then consent of men, decreis of counsallis, and antiquitie of tyme, have no faith, bot a fonde, yea, a dampnable opinion.² And the same we affirme of Religioun, whiche, if it be pleasing and acceptable unto God, must have his awin commandement and approbatioun for a warrand ;³ otherwise it can not be bot odious in his presence, as a thing repugning to his expres commandement, saying, not that which appearis good in thy awin evis sall thow do to the Lord thy God, bot what the Lord thy God hes commanded thee, that do thow : adde nothing to it, diminishe nothing from it.⁴ Be this precept of that Eternal God, who is immutable, and that can command nothing but that which is just, ar all people, realmes, and natiounis, (that will avow themselves to be the inheritance of the Lord,) bound and oblist to measure thair religioun, not be the exemple of other realmes, neyther yet be their owen good intentioun, or determinatioun of men, but only be the expressed word of God.⁵ So that what therein is commanded, aucht to be done be the people of God, what apperance or external shaw of hollynes that ever it hes. And, thairfoir, have we most justly rejected the rable of ceremoneis which the Papistis held for the cheif exercise of their religioun, as thingis having na better ground then the invention and consent of men.

¹ Jerem. 7.

² The warrand of religioun.

³ What ground faith hath.—(Marg. notes.)

⁴ Deut. 4 & 12.

⁵ Nota.

Now shortlie, of the Kirk commounlie callit Catholick. The name of the Kirk is commoun, and is taken aswell for the congregation of the wicked, as for the assemblie of the godlie; as it is plane be ye wordes of David, saying, "I have hated the kirk, or the assemblie of the wicked."¹ The terme Catholick, which signifyis Universall, hes not included in it that vertew which Papistes alledge, that is, that whatsoever is Catholick, that it must be gude. For if it so wer, then sin in the originall world shuld have bene gude, for it was so Catholick (that is, universall) that it overflowed the hole earth, only one hous excepted. How universall idolatrie was amongis the Gentiles, historeis witnessse; and how braid the pestilent sects of Machomet is this day spred, experience dois teach us. And yet we suppose, that no man of right judgement will either approve the one or the other, notwithstanding of their universalitie; and, therefore, we must have a better assurance of that Kirk, to which we aucht to joine our selfis, then that it is Catholick or universall: to wit, it must be holy, and the communium of sanctis; for in the Confessioun of our Faith, we say not, I beleve the Kirk universal, bot, "I beleve the holy Kirk universall, the communion of sanctis." Wherefoir we affirme, that if that Kirk, whiche is called Catholick or universall, have not holynes in the heart be trew faith, and the confessioun of the same in the mouth, and in the foirhead, it ceisis to be the immaculate spous of Jesus Christ, in whose bosome the sonnes of God ar nurished to the lyfe everlasting. And so befoir that the wryter of the letter shall be able to conviet us, that we have declyned from the holy Kirk, he must first defyne what is the verrey holynes of the Kirk, wherein it consistis, fra whome it flowis, and what is the effect of the same. And when thus he hes done, he must prove that the Kirk of Rome hes bene and is, only holy, so that no kirk befoir it did ever enjoy that tytill, nether yet that any that after may ensew it, may sa be justlie callit; and thus we think salbe verrey hard to Maister Tyrie and all the Jesuites in Europe to prove.

Bot now, that the vanitie of his argument may the moir evidentlie appeare, we wil, in as few wordis as we can, examine the mynd of the Prophet. Sic as diligently markis the scope of the Propheit Isaias, sall cleirly se, that from the 40th chapter of his Prophesie, to the end of the same, he travellis principally to comfort Jerusalem, and the natioun of the Jewis, whose miserable distruction and fearefull captivitie he foresaw in spreit, [he] pronouncd the same in his publict sermonis, and left the memoriall and undoubted register therof to the posteritie that was to follow, and was to be partakeris of all the plaigues that wer befoir spoken. And least that they, in the myddis of thair calamitie suld have disparit of any delyverance, from the same 40th chapter back, we say that the Prophet as the Messinger of Godis mercy pronounceth to Jerusalem, to Mont Syon, and to the afflicted Jewis, delyverance from captivitie, the protection of God to be their defence, the destruction of Babilone, and of all their enemies; the coming of the Messias promysed unto them the felicitie of his kingdome, the vocation of the Gentiles; and finally, the promyses flowing from mercy, that he had maid unto them to continew for ever. And among their manyfold promyses, this was one, "The kingdome and the nation that shall not serve thee, shall perishe."

¹ Psal. 26.

Now, gladly wald we learne of the wryter, to what realme, to what nation, to what province or cietie will he appoint us, that therein we may serve Jesus Christ, and his immaculate spous, the Kirk, to the end that we shall not perishe. If he will name Rome, and the Kirk thereof, then must we demand two thinges: the former, What became of all the faithfull the space of a thousand yeares that flowed betuix the making of the former promyses and the dayis of the Apostilis, what tyme the Evangel began publictly to be offered unto the Gentiles;¹ All whiche tyme Rome was nothing bot a den of idolatrie. We think he will not say that the faithfull perished; and we are bauld to say, that the faithfull served not Rome, nether yet the Kirk contentit thairin all that tyme. This is the first whereof we wold be resolved. The second is, that if the wryter will alledge that during all the tyme the promise fairsaid apperteined to Jerusalem and unto Mount Syon; but that after the ascention of Jesus Christ, and after that the Evangell was received of the Gentiles, the promise, which befoir was maid to Jerusalem was transferred unto Rome: if so be, we pray the wryter, that efter he hes consulted with the fynest Papistes, be they Jesuites, or be they others, that he wil shaw unto us where we shall find the resignation and the assurance thereof. We clearly read the promises maid to Jerusalem and unto Mount Syon. We find that the Evangell was there preached in dispyte of Sathan. We find that from thence Peter and Johne wer send to Samarea, and thereafter the Evangell was planted amonges the Gentiles. We find further, that Paule wrote to the sanctes that wer at Rome, and that he himself was caryit presoner to it, and that he remanit two yeares there under custodie in his ludgeing: bot that ever the promises maid to Jerusalem were transferred unto Rome, we find not. And, therefoir, albeit that we of the Realme of Scotland have refused Rome and the tyrannie thereof, we think not that we have refused the societie of Christis Kirk;² but that we are joynit with it, and daylie are fed of our mother's breastes, because we imbrase no other doctrine then that which first flowed furth of Jerusalem, whose cietizenenes be grace we avow our selves to be.

But now to the taunting blasphemies of the wryter. It pleis him to terme our Kirkis new found, invisible, yet but aucht yeare auld, &c., and our Evangell newly invented. Which blasphemies, albeit that man spair, yet we are assured the Eternal, our God, shall not suffer unpunished in this lyfe, and in the lyfe to cum, onles that speadie and unfeaned repentance blot away the same.

¹ Answer Papistes.

² Note, and answer directlie.—(Marginal notes.)

But the wryter left to the judgement of God, we wolde knowe of him why he calleth our Kirkis new found, and our Evangel but new invented.¹ He appeareth to give his reasone in these wordes (for sayis he) "it is manifest, that befor a thousand yeares in all the worlde was there peple that trowit as thay do quha defendis the contrare."

This reasone conteyneth in it sic foly, besydes the obscuritie and generalitie of it, that we stand in dout at what member we shall begin to confute the same.² But becaus his greatest strength appeareth to stand in this—that befor a thousand yeares, there was people in all the worlde that beleved otherwise then we beleve; to that heid we will first answer, and say, that granted, that befor a thousand yeares, there was people in all the worlde that trowed as Papistes now trow, what shall thereof yet be concluded, that our Kirkis ar new found? And will he say, that our Evangell is but newly invented? A good dialectisiane wolde answer, that albeit the antecedent wer granted, the consequent may justlie be denied. And the reasone is, becaus that nether doeth the Kirk, the faith of the same, nor the autoritie of the Evangell of Christ Jesus, depend upon that which men beleved befor that it was published. Nether yet is the age of the Kirk to be compted from the time when it pleased God of his mercy, either to reveale his word to any realme or natioun that befor was ignorant of it, or yet to reforme abuses whiche have taken roote amonges the people of God be the negligence of men. And that this reasone and propositioun is trew, the consideratioun of the planting of the Kirk, and of the divers reformatiounis maid within the same, shall witnes.

When God called Abraham from Ur of the Chaldeanes,³ and maid to him the promise of the blisshed sead, and after gave unto him the signe of circumcision; wer there not people dispersed universally upon the face of the earth, wha trowit and thought that they had a goode and perfite religioun, yea, evin that same religion (as they supposed) wherein Noha served God? And yet we knowe that the spirite of God dampneth the multitude of that age of idolatrie, and thereintill magnifies the mercy of God, who from that corrupted multitude called Abraham, and be grace maid him the father of the faithfull. Now wold we demand of the wryter of the letter, if the age of Abrahames faith should have bene measured from the errour of the multitude that past befor him? and if that the age of the Kirk gadderit within his hous shoulde have bene called an aucht yeare auld kirk, when that Abraham had so long obeyed God, while that all the world continewed in their idolatrie? We demand, (we say,) if their auld idolatrie maid Abraham's faith to be but a new found faith; and if their multitude and universalitie having for them antiquitie, maid the kirk that was in Abrahames hous to be a new found kirk? We suppose that men of judgement shal otherwise pronunce and subscribe with us, that the faith of Abraham had the same antiquitie that the word had which he beleved. Now plane it is, that the word which he beleved was the self same word which God pronounced unto the woman in the gardine, speaking aganis the serpent, saying, "I shall put inimitie betuix thee and the woman, betuix thy sead and hir sead, that sead shal beak down thy head, and thow shall break down his heale."¹ This promise, we say, being especiallie maid to Abraham, in these wordes— "In thy sead shall all the natiounis of the earth be blisshed," was the ground of his faith, lyke as that it was the ground of the faith of Adam; Abell; Seth; and of all the faithfull befoir him: so that his faith was no new faith, bot was that same faith whiche had continued amonges Godis elect from the beginning. For trew faith may not be measured from the errour of men, bot from the word and promise which the faithfull beleve. Is the word from the beginning, and the promise undoubted? then must the faith that thereupon is grounded, not onlie be trew, but also of the same age and antiquitie that the worde is. And therefore, whensoever the Papistes and we shall cum to reaken of the age of our faith, we dout nothing but that their faith, in mo principall pointis nor one or two, shalbe found verray young, and but lately invented, in respect of that only trew faith which this day in the Kirks of Scotland is professed. And the self same thing affirme we of our Kirk, and of the Evangell preached within the same; to wit, that the Evangell which of Godis mercy is revealed unto us, is not forged be man, but that it is the self same Evangel which Jesus Christ taught be his awin mouth, and that his Apostlis, at his commandement published unto the world. And therefore we say, that our Kirk is no new found Kirk, (as the wryter blasphemously rayleth,) but that it is a part of that holy Kirk universall, which is grounded upon the doctrine of the Prophetes and Apostlis; having the same antiquitie that the Kirk of the Apostles hes, as concerning doctrine, prayers, administratioun of sacramentis, and all other thinges requisite to a particulare Kirk.

¹ Tyrie's reasone.

² Answer.

³ Gen. 12.—(Marginal notes.)

But yet will the wryter of the letter alledge, that we beleve not as the moste part of men have beleved a thousand yeares and moir: for they beleved the Messe to be a Sacrifice propiciatorie for the sinnes of the quick and the dead; the Pape to be the head of the Kirk, and Christes vicar in the earth; the materiall² body of Christ Jesus, flesche, blood, and bane, to be in the Sacrament of the Altar, after that the wordis of consecration wer pronounced be a preast; Super materia debita: that the prayers of the leving profite departed, and sic others as the Catholick faith of the Papistes have concluded:

These Articles, will the wryter say, we beleve not: and therefore how can it be denyed but that our Kirk is new found, and the doctrine therof is new? We have answered, and yet we answere agane, that whatsoever Papistes have beleved befor us, whiche hath no better ground then that determination of thair owen counsall, can nether prejudice our faith grounded upon Godis expressed worde, nether yet can prove our Kirk to be but a new found Kirk. For if ane commoun error, and a superstitious worshipping of God, received of a multitude, should have that strength, that it should prevale against God's simple treuth, and against his worshipping prescribed in his word, then had the Propheit Helias bene into a miserable condition; who being but one man opposed him self to the King, to his Counsall, to his Prophetes, Preastes, and people, and in plane wordes accused thame all of apostasie from God, from his trew worshipping, and from the obedience of his law, and planely convicted them to be idolatoures, because they had imbrased a worshipping of God not conteyned in his word. It is a wonder that the king with his preastes and propheites excepted not against the Propheit, and said, how can that be idolatrie, which our kingis and people sence the dayis of Jeroboam, have used and manteyned for God's trew service? Thow art but one man, and we ar a multitude; how can it be that we all should erre, and that thow alone should please God? But no such thing find we objected unto the Propheit. But his requeast, being but one man, was obeyed; quhilk was, that God himself should judge betuix him and them, as that he did be fyre from heaven.

¹ Gen. 3.

² "Materiall:" in some copies corrected to "naturall."

This priviledge crave we to be granted to us of the Papistes in our dayis; to wit, that they suffer God to judge betuix our religioun and theirs. What he approveth, let it be approven of bothe; and what be him is not commanded, nor be the Apostles of Jesus Christ established and practised, let it be of bothe rejected, and so shall we suddanelie aggre. But if that they will still cry that we ar schismatykes and apostates, because we refuse to defyle ourselves with their abominationis, we can not but appeale from their corrupt sentence to the uncorrupt Judge, of whose favoures we are assuredly perswaded in that point, because he hath said, Follow not the multitude in evill doing; and because that we find Kingis, Propheites, and people befor us, to have done the self same thing in their days, (and therefore to have bene approved of God), whiche we in God's feare have done in our dayis: To wit, they have destroyed the monumentis of idolatrie, and have repressed the same externally be power and force, notwithstanding the antiquitie thereof, and that great multitudes adheared unto it. And this muche for the multitude, and that which the multitude moste commonly beleveth. Now to the further ressoundis of the wryter.

He first tauntis and mockis us, and our Kirk, calling it your invisible Kirk of Seotland. Secundly, he affirmeth that the Kirk wherof the Prophet speakes shalbe manifest and visible through all the world; and for his profe, alledges the second chapter of the Prophet Isai. And last, he concludes, in these wordes : "Wherefore, if ye can not shaw in what place of the world, afoir thre' hundreth yeare, your Kirk was into, it followeth of necessitie that it is no Kirk."

To these heades we must answer in ourdour : And first, we will pray the wryter, in his nixt answer, to signifie unto us, why he calleth the Kirk of Scotland invisible, seing that the ground and the persones inhabitant within the same, ar subject to the senses of all those that list to looke upone them. Yea, the doctrine taught unto us is so patent, that the verray enemies themselves ar not forbidden to heare and to judge of it. And finally, the administration of the Sacramentes within our kirkis are so publict, that none justly can compleane, that they are either debarred from hearing or from sight. And therefore, howsoever it pleaseth the wryter to delite himself in his owen vanitie, we feare not to affirme, that the Kirk of God, within Scotland this day is as visible as ever it was in Jerusalem, after that Christ Jesus ascended to the heavenes, or as that it was visible in Samarea after that it received the Evangell. Yea, we will further affirme, that the trew Kirk of Jesus Christ is as visible, yea, and as beutifull in all her proper ornamentes this day, within the Realme of Scotland, as ever she was in Corinthus, Galacia, Philipi (yea, or yet in Rome it self), what time that any of the Apostles rewled them, or that when they wer saluted be the Apostle in his Epistles for Kirkis : and this for the first head.

The answer to the second can not be so short ; for his assertion aggreis so lytle with the place of the Propheit, that we stand greatly in dout whether that ever the wryter hes travelled to understand the mynd of the Prophet. His assertion is this :—"Of the Kirk whereof the Propheit speaketh, It is said be him, in the second chapter that it shalbe manifest and visible through all the world." The wordes of the Propheit are these : "It shalbe in the last dayes, that the montane of the hous of the Lord shalbe prepared in the tope of the mountanes, and shal be exalted above the hilles, and all nationes shall flow unto it. And many people shal go and say, Cum, let us go up unto the montane of the Lord, to the hous of the God of Jacob, and he will teache us his wayes, and we will walk in his pathes. For the law shall go furth of Syon, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem ; and he shall judge among the nationes, and rebuke many people,"¹ &c. In these wordes of the Prophet we find no such thing as the Kirk shalbe manifest and visible through all the worlde. We acknowledge a promise of glade thinges to cum, to be joyned to Jerusalem, and unto Mont Syon, after the miserable destruction of the same. We find the time appointed, to wit, the last dayes. But that the promise may be the better tryed, we must know of the wryter, when these last dayis began ; and when they shalbe compleit ?² We must further know, if there be any one certane place appointed, in the which it is said, that the Kirk of God shalbe visible and manifest in all ages! These two heades being considered, it shalbe moir easie to judge of the assertioun of the wryter, and how it aggreis with the mynd of the Prophet.

¹ Isai. 2.

² Question of the last days.

And first, we think that the wryter will not deny, but the last dayes, whereof the Prophet speakes, began long befor that ever the Evangel of Jesus Christ was known or publictly received in Rome;¹ to wit, at the appearing of Jesus Christ in the fleshe, when that he revealed unto the worlde the hole will of his Father. For so are we taught be the Apostle, saying, "God in auld tymes spake unto our fateres in divers maners be the prophetes; in the last dayis he hath spoken to us be his sone,"² &c. And the Apostle Peter, in that his moste notable sermone made to Jerusalem, the day of Pentecost, affirms, that the prophesie of Joell, made as concerning the pouring furth of God's graces upon all fleshe in the laste dayes, was even then compleit, when that the Holy Spreit discended down upon those that beleved.³ So then, we have gotten the last dayes to have begun with Jesus Christ, who is the glorie of the secund temple. When think we that they ended? If the wryter will say, when Rome received the Evangel, then was the accomplishment of the last dayes; as men justly may dout therof, so will the Apostle panielie deny, saying; "The Spreit speaketh evidentlie, that in the last tymes some shall depart from the faith,"⁴ &c. Whereof we may gather, that the Apostle appointeth the last tymes to continew longer then that the Evangel was ones publictly preached; to wit, till that men should begin to fall from the faith, and give eares to the doctrine of devilles. Yea, if ye will searche the Scriptures, we shall find that the last dayes continew from the first appearing of Jesus Christ in fleshe, unto his last returning unto judgement. So that the last dayes do not onely include the first publicatioun of the Evangel, but also the defectioun from it; yea, and the restitution of it agane unto the world, be the brightnes whereof, that man of sin should be revealed and destroyed. Whereof we conclude, that if the last dayes do yet continew, whereof the Prophet maketh mention, the thinges promysed to be performed in them are not yet altogether compleit, but are in their progres, and shall so procead till that all be finished that is foirspoken be the holie Prophetes and Apostles of Jesus Christ. And so may Jesus Christ this day be working in Scotland, albeit that Papistes rage against his Evangel, as in those dayes he wrought in Jerusalem, when the preastes and the hole visible Kirk, (for the moste part,) raged against the same. But now to the secund head.

We wold knowe, if the wryter can appoint unto us any one certane place wher this holy montane of God is promysed to remane, manifestly and visiblie. For this we mak knownen to the hole world, that for the lufe we beare to the buylding and repairing of Godd's holy hous, we have endangered life and all thinges temporal : and, therefore, if the wryter can appoint unto us a certane place wherunto God hes maid promise, we shall everie one exhort another, with all diligence, to go up thereunto. But if he can appoint none, having greater assurance be Godes mouth, moir then an other, then will we cheritabillic desyre him to desist from taunting and mockage of so notable workes of God, as he of late yeares hes shawen in mo Realmes then one. Our Maister Christ Jesus appointes us to no one certane place, wher that we shalbe assured of his presence ; but rather forbidding the observatioun of all places, he sendes us to his owen spirituall presence, saying, "Wheresoever two or thre are gathered in my name, there am I in the middest of them."¹ And in an other place, "Behold I am with yow to the end of the world."² We, being grounded upon these promyses, have good hope, through Jesus Christ, that in our congregacionis we have the favourable presence of Jesus Christ, as wel in his word as in his holy Sacramentes. For in his Name alone convene we ; be him alone we call upon God our Father ; and be him alone we are assured, through the power of his Holy Spreit, to obtene our requeastes made according to his wil. We wonder greatlie that the wryter consideris not that the promise of the Prophet is, That all nationis shall cum to that holie montane. We are a nation, (how abject that ever we appeare). Why then will the wryter deny unto us fre passage to the hous of the Lord ; seing that the terme of the last dayes is not yet expyred, and seing that we desyre to be taught in the wayes of the Lord, and to walk in his pathes ; yea, seing that thousandis in Scotland refuses not to be rebuked of the Lord, and to suffer him to judge amonges us ? If the wryter will say, becaus we will not acknowledge Rome to be the mother of all other Kirkis, we answer as befoir ; let us heare the commandement of our God, charging us so to do, and our obedience shall not be long craved. For we are most willing to obey our mother, provyding that she shaw the undouted signes of a naturall mother ; but an usurped tytle without farther assurance we dar not admit. And this far for his assertion, and for the mynd of the Prophet.

¹ Nota.² Heb. 1.³ Act. 2.⁴ 1 Tim. 4. 1.⁵ Nota.

Now followeth his conclusioun in these wordes : "Wherefoir, if ye can not shaw what place of the worlde afoir thre hundreth yeares your Kirk was into, it followeth of necessitie, that it is no Kirk," &c.

How this conclusion may be rightly gathered of the wordes of the Prophet, we suffer the readers and the wryter himself to consider. And yet, becaus that till us it wer a thing most grevous so to he excommunicate that we wer no Kirk ; that is, no parcell of the holy Kirk universall ; we answer for our entres, and say,³ That befoir fifteen hundreth yeares our Kirk was in Jerusalem, in Samaria, in Antiochia, and where-soever Christ Jesus was trewly preached, and his blissed Evangell obedientlie received, whether it was amonges the Jewis or Gentiles.⁴ There we say was our Kirk, which is not bound to any one place, but is dispersed upon the face of the hole earth; having one God, one faith, one bap-tisme, and one Lord Jesus, Saviour of all that unfeanedly beleve. And so we feare not to receave the tytle and authoritie of a particulare Kirk, becaus we have all thinges be Godes word that thereto apperteanes. Yea, we are farther bold to affirme, that if ever it shall please God to bring the Kirk of Rome to hir originall puritie, that she shall not be ashamed to imbrase and reverence the pure Kirk of Scotland as her dearest sister, and nixt resembling her in all thinges, before that pryde and avarice, joyned with idilnes and ryatous leving, corrupted her ministers, and that the inventionis of men wer preferred to Godes simple treuth. We say yet agane, that whensoever the Kirk of Rome shalbe reduced to that estate in the whiche the Apostles left it, we ar assured that she shall vote in our favoures, against all such as shall deny us to be a Kirk, if God continew us in that simplicitie which this day is mocked of the world. Now let us heare how the wryter proceedeth:—

¹ Math. 18.² Math. 28.³ Nota.⁴ Answer.

TYRIE'S LETTER.

And swyftlic gif ze or any of zour cunning ministeris of zour new invented Evangell schaw me the dew succession of his Kirk sen Christ, and, by that, agree the manifest contradictioun that baith I have red and sene with my ene amangis the doctouris and principallis of zour new doctrine, I sall not only renunce the sentence quhilk I haif baldin heirtfoir, bot als sall afoir all that will heare me, confes my ignorance and fault, and sall employ all my strength to the furthsetting of zour religion, &c.

ANSWER.

Of this part of the wryter's letter, and of that which is past befor, it is easie to consider, that he wil acknowledge no kirk to be the trew Kirk of Jesus Christ, onles that it can shaw the dew succession thereof from the dayes of Jesus Christ: And farther, that the teachers of it do so aggre in doctrine, that in no point they be found to differ one from an other.¹ We answer, if the immaculate spous of Jesus Christ wer bound to these two extremities, the bondage thereof wer moste miserable; but, becaus we find our Maister Jesus Christ is moir favourable to his pure Kirk then Maister Tyrie craves, we are decreed to stand in that fredome and libertie whereunto our Head and only Sovereane Lord has called us.

We find, that he sendes not his afflicted Kirk to seak a lineal succession of any persones befor that he wil receave them; but he, with all gentilnes calleth his sheap unto him self, saying, "Cum unto me all ye that laubour and are laden, and I will ease yow."² And agane,

¹ Answer.² Math. 11.

“ All that the Father giveth me, shall come to me : and him that cometh to me I cast not away.”¹

O golden and moste comfortable sentence, pronounced of Him who can not lie ! Heir is no mention of any succession that we should clame to, befor that we be received of him who is the Head of the Kirk ; but only it is said that that which the Father giveth, and that the Sone receaveth, shall not be cast away ; nether yet will he lose any that cummeth to him, but that he will save them and rase them up at the last day. And the Apostle, speaking of the vocation of the Gentiles, sendes them not to seak a succession ; but, in the person of the Ephesians, pronunceth this sentence in favoures of all that beleve in Jesus Christ :

“ Now therefore ye ar no moir strangers and foraners, but cietizens with the sanctis and of the household of God : and ar builded upon the foundatioun of the Apostles and Prophetes, Jesus Christ him self being the cheaf corner stone ; in whome all the buylding coupled together, groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord.”² Heir we find men, who befor wer strangers, maid cietizens with the sainetes and of the household of God ; we find them buylded upon the fundation of the Apostles and Prophetes ; we find Jesus Christ to be the cheaf corner stone—but we find no mention of any sic succession as Maister Tyrie seameth rigorously and without Godes commandement to crave. And therefor we can not but wonder, why that mortall man shall crave of us that which nether God the Father, his Sone Christ Jesus, nether yet the holy Apostles in their ministerie, craved of any Realme or Nation. And therefor, let Maister Tyrie tak this for an answer : That an unjust request may justly be denied.

And yet, least that the wryter, or any other, should think themselves rather mocked then answered,³ we ade to the premises, That we are able to shaw the succession of our Kirk directly and laughfully to have flowed from the Apostles. And our reason is, becaus that in our kirkis we nether admit doctrine, ryte, nor ceremonie, which be their wrytingis, we find not authorised.⁴ And albeit that this shall not satisfie the new start up Jesuites, yet our consciences are at rest, becaus we are assured to be avowed of the Supream Judge.

The secund which he requyreth is, that we shall aggre the manifest contradiction that is amonges the principall Doctoures of our new doctrine and late invented Evangell. His blasphemie we remit be Godes hand to be punished ; and yet we wold knowe what doctrine is that which he tearmes new. Our Evangell, (as befor is said), is that same which Jesus Christ, be him selfe and be his Apostles manifested unto the world, as all sic as heare the forme of our doctrine can witnes.⁵ Where he desyres us to aggre all controversies amonges our teacheris :

¹ Jo. 6.

² Ephes. 2.

⁵ Answer to Tyreis unreasonable de-

³ Nota.

⁴ Direct answer. syre.

we answer, bona fide, that we know no controversie in doctrine, especially of that which concernes mannes salvation, within the Realme of Scotland, but that all the preacheours within our kirkis uniformly agree in doctrine and judgement, notwithstanding the diversitie of giftes. If Maister Tyrie wolde sende us to consiliate all controversies that are in Germanie and ellis where, his secund petition hes no greater reason then had the former; for of God we have no farther charge but to wathe over that flocke whiche is subject unto us. God hes reased and appointed us preacheours to the Realme of Scotland; in the boundis whereof, if we plant not trew doctrine according to the talent committed to our charge, and oppone ourselves to all kynde of erroours that may infect the flock, we shalbe criminall befoir God. But that we ar precisidly bound to ryn from countrie to countrie to agree all controversies, albeit it wer evin in the maters of religion, we find no expres commandement gevin to us in that behalf of our God. And, therefoir, we must desyre the inspection of Maister Tyrie his power, be vertew whereof he may charge us to that paneful travel, befoir that we can promise obedience.

But Maister Tyrie, we knowe will alledge, that in wryting of his letter, there was no such thing in his mynd; but that his meaning was, that becaus we did not agree fully amonges our selves in all heades, therefoir he wold not be of our Kirk: for that in plane wordes he declareth, &c. Now, all contention laid asyde, we will desyre Maister Tyrie, and the rest of his faction, deaply to consider, if they be buylded upon a sure fundatioun, whill that they have none other caus why they appone them selves to the treuth of God, now of his mercy revealed to the world, but becaus that such as profes that treuth agree not in all heades amonges them selves.

We demand then, What if they had lived in the dayis of the Apostles, when the preaching of Christ Jesus was no les odious to the visible Kirk,¹ to wit, to the posteritie of Arahon and Levi, who then rewled in Jerusalem, then hes the light of the Evangell bene of late yeares, to that Romane Antechrist, and unto suche as live be his merchandice? Wold Maister Tyrie (we ask) and his faction have refused the Evangell, becaus that in the bosome of the Kirk there arose great controversie, and that in the especiall heades of religion? For, did not some boldly affirme in the Kirk of Antiochia,² that onles the Gentiles were circumcised according to the law of Moses, they could not be saved. Which doctrine and affirmation was moir dangerous and moir sclanderous in those dayes then all the controversies that yet ar rissen amonges such as have refused the dampnable wayes of the Papistrie, for it concerneth the cheaf head of justification. And will any yet say, that therefore the Evangell was not the glade tydinges of salvatioun? And they that imbrased it trewly wer not the trew members of Jesus Christ?

¹ Nota.

² Act. 15.

We looke that men will be moir moderat then some shaw themselves to be, who, for certane controversies of far les importance then that was, dare boldly dampne the treuth and the professours of the same, becaus, say they, Proprium est hereticorum a se invicem dissentire. That is, "It is proper to heretykes to disagree amonges themselves:" whiche sentence, how ancient that ever it be, if it should be so understand as the Papist doeth—that is, whosoever disagreeis amonges them selves in materis of religion they are heretykes;—if the former sentence (we say) should be so understand, then shall we accuse mo of heresie then can be excused in any one age from Christ Jesus to this day. For did not Paul disagree from Peter?¹ Yea, he did so disagree from him, that he did resist him planly to his face, becaus that he walked not according to the right way of the treuth of the gossell. These wer two prencipall pillers; the one appointed to the Jewes, and the other to the Gentiles. What shall we say of the hote contention which fell betuix Barnabas and Paule, which separated them that befoir wer joyned in as strate conjunction as ever wer two mortall men upon the earth?² If Maister Tyrie and his Jesuites will alledge that these wer but suddane passionnes, and did not concerne any cheaf head of doctrine, the Holy Ghost will prove the contrare.³ For the one tuiched the conscience of men, concerning the fredome of meates; and the other the admission of ministers, after that they had ones fallen back from that function: which heades wer of greater weght in those dayes (as heirtfoir we have said) then any controversie which the Papistes ar able to shaw to be, or yet to have bene, betwix us that professes the Evangell and do abhorre their abhominations. Farther reasoning of this head for this present we omit, and will proceed with Maister Tyrie's letter.

TYRIE'S LETTER.

Quhairfoir, Schir, considdering that in that Kirk, in the quhilk I am be the grace of God, thair is continuall succession of doctrine, and that same self quhilk is preachit now, hes bene teicht in all ages; as it is manifest till ony man that hes red all ancient wryteris afoir our tymes. And mair over, I find it spred throw all the world, as in lyke maner it is manifest, and the experience dois teich zow; for ze will cum to na place quhair Christis doctrine is ressavit, bot ze will find the religion, at leist in mony personis. Quhairfoir, gif ze can not schaw in na uther religion the samin, it followis evidently that na uther religion is the trew religion.

¹ Gal. 2.

² Act. 15.

³ All the Reformed Churches agreed upon every essential point; there were no differences among them upon the great subjects which concern the salvation of man. See the Harmony of the Confessions of Faith of the principal Reformed Churches, A. D. 1584.

ANSWER.

To this epilog, and argument gathered thereof, we answer only this— That of a manifest lie there can no treuth be concluded.¹ His manifest and impudent lie, we say, is, That he affirms, that in that Kirk, in the which he is, there is continuall succession of doctrine,² and that the self same which is preached now hes bene taught in all ages.—This, we affirme, is a moste impudent lie. For now, and of late yeares, it hath bene taught, and of the people received, that the Messe was a sacrifice propitiatorie for the sinnis of the quick and the dead ; That the Pape was the head of the Kirk, and such other heades of moste heretical doctrine, approved in the Papisticall Kirk : which heades we affirme wer unknowen in the age of the Apostles, or yet of the Fathers that immediatly followed them. And for the probation thereof, we desyre their wrytingis to be produced, ever beginning at them who wer appointed of God to preache, and to plant the veritie in the world.

We are not bound to credite whatsoever the Fathers have spoken : but our faith, (as is befor said), is buylded upon the sure Rock, Jesus Christ, and upon the fundatioun of the Apostles and Prophetes.³ So far as any Fathers aggre therewith, we reverently do imbrase it ; but if the Fathers have affirmed anything without the warrand of the written word of the Eternall our God, to whose only voce the sheap of his pasture ar bound, it is as laughfull to us to reject that which proceedeth from man and not from God,⁴ as it is easie to them to affirme it. Maister Tyrie may know that we use the wordes of the ancientis.

It appeareth to us, to be the whole progres of Maister Tyrie's letter,⁵ that he and his factioun can acknowledge no Kirk which, in all ages, hes not bene visible to the eyes of men, having lykwise a visible succession. For, first, he affirms, that the Kirk whereof the Prophet Isaias speakes, should be manifest and visible through all the world.⁶ And heare, last, he alledgeth, that we can cum in no place where we sall not find that Religion spred, at the least, in many persones. And thereof he concludes, that if we can not prove the lyke of our Religion, it followis that it is not the trew Religion.

If Maister Tyrie recant not this assertion, he must correct his crede.⁷ And where universally befor we use to say, Credo sanctam Ecclesiam, &c., he must say *Video sanctam Ecclesiam.*⁸ For if there be no Kirk upon the face of the earth, but that which is visible, and that which may be shawen first be certane notes external, then superfluous and vane it wer to us to say, I beleve the holy Kirk universall ; but confidently we might affirme, I see the holy Kirk. If Maister Tyrie will say, We may

¹ Nota. ² Tyrie's impudencie.

⁷ Answer to his affirmaciones.

³ Ephes. 2. ⁴ Nota.

⁸ Nota.—“ I beleve in the holy

⁵ The effect of Tyrie's letter.

Church,” he must say, “ I see the holy Church.”

⁶ His affirmacionis.

bothe se and beleve, and be our sight our faith may be strengthened ; for Thomas saw the woundes in the handes, feat, and syde of Christ Jesus, and beleved ; and so may we se the Kirk, and yet beleve it. If we should grant so far to Maister Tyrie, yet wer his argument nothing helped ; for the question is not Whether that we may notifie those things that we are bound to beleve ? but the question is, If that we are not bound to beleve those things which sometymes ar utterly removed from the external senses of men ? Maister Tyrie will acknowledge no Kirk except that which hes bene, and is visible. We, in the contrare, acknowledge and reverence the spous of Christ Jesus, sometymes exyled from the world,¹ receaving sometymes the wynges of an egle that she may fle to the wyldernes, whereof God, and not of man, she hath her place prepared. We reverence her which doeth compleane, that she hath bene desolate, barrane, a captive, and a wanderer to and fro. That spous of Jesus Christ brages so lytle of her succession, visible to mannes eyes, that she is rest in admiration, who should have nurished her children during the tyme of her baniwement.²

If Master Tyrie be so well sene in the ancient wryters, as in his wryting he wold shaw him self to be, then can he not be ignorant, that it is not without great caus that the Holy Goste hath taught us to say, "I beleve the holy Kirk universall :"³ to wit, becaus that oftentimes it is that the Kirk militant is so afflicted, yea, the bewtie thereof is so obscured to the moste part of the worlde, that the synagoge of Sathan usurpes the tytle of the trew Kirk, and Babilone is preferred to Jerusalem ; so that the elect are compelled to compleane, and say, "We se not our owen signes, now is there no prophet any moir amonges us."⁴ Let the dayes of Helyas and his complaint witnes whether that the Kirk of God is alwayes so visible, that it may be pointed furth with the finger of man. Thus we wryte shortly, to give occasion to Maister Tyrie, and to such as are blinded with that errour, moir deaply to consider that artickle of their beleve, and not so rashely to condempne such as God of his mercy calles from darknes to light. Now to the rest of his letter.

TYRIE'S LETTER.

Thair is sum, I knaw, perchance for laik outhler of gude discourse or wit,⁵ measures the veritie of the things thay follow be the warldly succes thay have in the following of it. Bot surely I can not esteme zow to be of that rank ; and gif ze wer, I wald exhort zow to reid amangis the rest the sevintene and twa Psalme,⁶ and the hundreth fortie and thre Psalme ; quhairby ze wil easily understand, that nouthter the prosperous succes of zour part, (in warldly thinges I mene), preifis it that ze follow

¹ Apocal. 12.

² Isai. 49.

⁵ " Wit," understanding.

³ Note diligently.

⁴ Psalm. 71.

⁶ So in original (seventy-third).

to be of veritie, nor zit our decay and adversitie makis our part to be convicted; ze, rather, the mater being considerit as it aught to be, zour prosperitie is rather a manifest argument of Goddis wraith, nor of any trueth of veritie. For it is said be ane godly, haly, and cunning¹ man, ane xj. hundreth zeir by past, "Quod nihil infelicius felicitate peccantium, quia et penalis nutritur impunitas, et mala voluntas, velut interior hostis roboratur," &c.

ANSWER.

We might have passed by this parcell without answer, becaus that nothing in it, conceaved justly can be laid to our charge. For our worldly felicitie, prosperitie, and rest, nether is, neither yet hes bene, at any tyme sence we have imbrased the Evangel of Jesus Christ, suche as may murishe us in wickednes; nether yet are the Papists able to convict us of such impietie, as all the world know hath roun among them of mo years then an hundreth thrise told. And in the mean tyme, to what honour and worldly dignitie they are ascended, we mak them selves judges. If they say, the doctrine which we teach is wondrously spred within this hundreth yeares, so that now it hes almoste red it self furth of bondage, we wold demand of the Papistes, If the Evangell of Jesus Christ ceased to be the doctrine of salvation, what tyme the Kirkis gat rest in Judea and elles where in the dayes of the Apostles? If they answer, that they meane no such thing; then yet we demand, if the hand of the Lord be more shortened now then that it was in the primitive Kirk, so that now He may not aswell manteane his treuth, and enlarge the kingdome of his onely Sone, as that he did in the dayis of the Apostles? Whatsoever the Papistes shall answer, we are assured, that nether is his power diminished, so that he may not manteane his treuth, nether yet is his lufe so waxen cold towards his Kirk, but that he will in his anger remember upon mercy.

Why do not those cruell men consider, what innocent bloode hath bene shed for the testimonie of Christ's Evangell within these thre-score yeares? Wold they that God at no tyme should shaw pietie upon the patient suffering of his afflicted Kirk? Wolde they that the sworde should still devour? Wold they that the flaming fyres should never be quenched? If that so they wold, they shaw them selves the sones of him who hath bene a murtherer from the beginning, and yet continew in the same malice. But our God beareth towards his weak children a fatherly affectioun, whereby he is moved somtymes to stay the furie and rage of Sathan for a ceason, to the end that his chosen moir gladelly may prepare them selves to a new battell. Trew it is, the doctrine of salvation is greatly enlarged; and thereof we praise God: trew it is, that Sathan hath not universally such power to persecute, as sometymes he hath had; but will Maister Tyrie thereof conclude, that in our Kirk there is no strength ! But now to the Scriptures which Maister Tyrie coateth.¹

¹ "Cunning," learned.

Trew it is that David, in his seventy-third Psalm, (according to the compt of the Hebrewes,) affirms, that nether the worldly prosperitie of the ungodly, nor yet the affliction of the godly, ought to discourage such as feare God. In this generall head, we aggre with Maister Tyrie and with all Papistes. But we affirme, that the notes and signes, which the Holy Ghost giveth in that place, be the which the wicked shall be knowen, do no wyse apperteane to us ; but of many yeares moste evidently have appeared, and to this hour do yet appeare, in the Pape, and in many of those that manteane his kingdome. For, whether that the generation of that Romane Antechrist hath bene exemed from the troubles of men ; whether that their pryde hes bene as visible as ever was their garment ; whether that their eyes have start out for fatnes ; and finally, whether that their licentious levings, their oppression and presumption, have not planely declared that they have set their mouth against the heaven, we are content that the world (be it never so blind), the histories of their lives, (not written be us, but be their owen scribes), and the verray experience which all men now have, and heirtofoir have had of their proceedinges, beare record whether that they or we be noted in that Psalm. We give Maister Tyrie to understand, that we are better acquainted with the lives and conversationis of the Papes and Cardinales then thay think us to be ; and that we know the strength of their lawes, decries, statutes, and counsalles better then the Jesuites knowes the reule of Jesus,² albeit that presumptuously they have usurped his name. And therefor we wil crave of Maister Tyrie and of all his faction, that in wryting either to us, or yet till such as they wold perswade, that they use treuth and simplicite ; and so shall they find themselves better contented, in reading of our answers. For this, befor the Lord Jesus, we protest, that it is the treuth which we teach, and wherein we delyte ; the lufe whereof causes us abhor all mannes invention, superstition, and idolatrie. And thus far to the answers of the Scriptures which Maister Tyrie coateth.

Now to the sentence of the ancient wryter, whose name he suppresseth, we answer, That his wordes cut the throottes of the proud Papistes of that age, and of all their followers sence those dayis. For then began the taill of the Dragoun to draw the starres from the heaven to the earth ;³ then began the fontanes, which sometymes gave cleare and holsome watter to become bitter, yea, to be turued unto blood : and yet did they prosper in all worldlie felicitie, which was the caus that many godly men, lamenting that publict corruption, wer compelled to pronounce that and like sentences against the verray Kirk men that then lyved. And least that Maister Tyrie should thinke that this we affirme without authoritie, we remit him to the wrytings of Jerome, Augustine, Ambrose, Bernard, and others, that wer nether come long before, nor after the tyme that he notes; whose wrytinges, if he shall diligentlie examine, he sal find what was their judgement of the seat of Rome in their dayes. And what others, that after followed added to the former impietie of their fathers, from the day that ones the Pope wer decreed, or rather deformed, with a triple crowne, let the wryters of all ages sence beare witnes.

¹ "Coateth," quotes.

² Nota.

³ Revel. 12.

And least that Maister Tyrie shal think that we put him to to much pane, when that we send him to all wryters in generall, we shal releve him somewhat, and appoint him to two only, whome justly he can not suspect to have bene corrupted be us. The one is Abbas Joachim, a man sometymes of great authoritie and reputation amonges the Papistes; the other is Joannes Aventinus,¹ historiographur, whose historie was prented be command and with the priviledge of the Empreour Charles the Fyft. Let the wrytinges, we say, of these two, beare witnes what hes bene the judgement of divers men in divers ages, of Rome, of the pryde of the prelacie, of their corruption in lyfe and doctrine, and finally, of their defectioun from the trueth.

Abbas Joachim,² wryting upon the wordes of the Revelation of Sanct Johne, "the sext angel powred furth his phyole upon the great flood Euphrates," &c., hes this sentence, Si autem aquæ hujus fluminis quod vocatur Euphrates, populi sunt, et gentes, et lingue, quæ parent Romano imperio; si quidem civitas Romana ipsa, est nova Babilon, &c. "That if (sayeth he) the watters of this flood that is called Euphrates, be people, nationis, and tounge that obey the Romane impyre, for the cietie of Rome itself is new Babilon." This place, and that which ensewes of the drying up of the watters, evidently shawes

¹ John Aventinus, a native of Bavaria, and the author of several historical works. The one here mentioned is his great work, "Annalium Boiorum Libri Septem. Excusum Ingolstadii, 1554," folio. The privilege of the Emperor Charles V. is dated Bruxellis, pridie Idus Junii, 1554. The editor of the British Reformers remarks, "The Jesuits have alleged that Aventinus was a Lutheran in sentiment, as they desire to weaken the force of his testimony against the evil conduct of the Popes, and the vicious lives of the Romish priests."

² "Joachim, Abbot of Corazzo, and afterwards of Florence, flourished in the twelfth century. He was revered by the people as a saint and a prophet. He wrote some mystical commentaries upon the Scriptures, in which he spoke of the necessity of a reformation in the Church, and animadverted strongly upon the corrupt state in which it then was. The comment on the Revelation has been ascribed to one of his disciples."—See Dupin, Cent. xiii. (Editor of the British Reformers, 1830.)—There are several editions of the "Vaticinia sive prophetiæ Abbatis Joachimi et Anselmi episcopi Marsicani." A life by D. Gerlaise, is entitled, "Histoire de l'Abbé Joachim, surnommé le Propbète, avec l'analyse de ses ouvrages." Paris, 1745, 2 vols. 12mo.

what was the judgement of the wryter in his dayes of Rome ; to wit, that it was become new Babilon. And least that any should think that the author meaneth of the ancient Romane impyre, and not of the regiment of the Kirk that was in it, or in the dominion thereof, he explanes him selfe after whill, that he interpretes the great hoore, and the kinges of the earth who commit huredome with her. The great hoore, he sayes, the universal Fatheris affirmed to be Rome : not, says he, as concerning the congregation of the just, which sometymes was a pilgramer in it, but as concerning the multitude of the reprobate, who be their wicked workes blasphemeth and impungeth the same Kirk, being a pilgramer with hir. Let Maister Tyrie mark, that the wryter saw in Rome two Kirkis : the hoore, and her multitude dispersed in all the places of the impyre ; and the Kirk which was a stranger, blasphemeth and impunged be the multitude. And yet after he explanes him self more planely, saying, Reges vero terræ, dicti sunt prælati, quibus concessum est regimen animarum. Quorum nonnulli fornicantur cum Babilone, quumquidem ut placeant hominibus parvipendunt et negligunt mandatum Dei ; “The kinges of the earth (says he) are called the prelates, to whome the regiment of saules is committed, of whome, nevertheles, some commit fornication with Babilon ; because that they, for the pleasure of men, neglect and dispyse the commandement of God.” And least that any should thinke that suche a sentence had reckelesly eschaped him, he doubles the same wordes over agane, saying, Reges vero terræ esse prælatos Ecclesiarum, quorum aliqui fornicantur cum Babilone, superius dictum est ; “It is befoir said (sayeth he), that the kinges of the earth are the prelates of the Kirkis, of whom some commit hooredome with Babilon.” And proceades farther, saying, Et quod sequitur : Et mercatores terræ de virtute deliciarum ejus, divites facti sunt ad falsos sacerdotes et hipocritas, referendum est, qui negotiantes regnum Dei temporalibus lucris, &c. That is, “And that which followeth, (sayeth he), and the merchandes of the earth wer made riche of the power of her pleasures ; that is to be referred to the fals preastes and hypocrhites, who, making merchandice of the kingdome of God, gapes for temporall advantage,” &c. And after a lytle, upon these wordes, and the merchandes of the earth shall murne, &c., he sayes, Negotiatores terræ qui sicut superius dictum est, ipsi sunt sacerdotes bruti qui nesciunt que Dei sunt. Sacerdotes animales qui dati sunt in atrium exterius, ut manducent peccata populi : qui vendunt orationes et missas pro denariis facientes domum orationis apothecam negotiationis, facientes inquam forum publicum et speluncam latronum, &c. That is, “The merchandes of the earth, (as is before said), they are the brutish preastes, that knowe not those thinges that apperteane to God ; sensuall preastes that are placed in the outward court, that they may eat the sinnes of the people ; who sell prayers and messes for money ; making the hous of prayer and chop of merchandice, yea, making it (I say) a publick and open mercat, and a den of theves,"¹ &c.

If Master Tyrie, or any other of that sect, blame us of rayling (as commonly they use to do, when that we speak the treuth), then let him and them consider, that we learned not of Martyn Luther what kind of men the Papistes wer, but that which we speak and affirme now, we have receaved of the Papistes them selves. For this hath bene the mercifull provydence of God towards his lytle flock ever from the beginning, that when an universall corruption began to spred the self, then wer rased some, as it wer one or two amonges the hole multitude, till admonishe the present age and the posterities to come, how far men had declyned from the originall puritie, that at least God might have some testimonie that the veritie of God was not altogether buried in the earth. But now let us heare the judgements of others.

Such as be any thing aquented with the histories of the antiquitie, can not be ignorant how vehement was the contention betuix Nicolaus the first, and certane of the bishoppes of Germanie, for the divorcement and secund mariage of Lotharius King of Ungarie.² Which of the two parties had the just action, we dispute not; but what wer the crymes lade to the Pape in those dayes, we shall shortly touche. Efter that Tetogaudus³ and Guntherus, who wer the two cheaf bishoppes that opponed them selves to the pryde of the Romane Bishop, had largely purged them selves of all things wherewith he charged them, they enter in into moste bitter accusation of the said Nicolas Pape. And after other things, they lade to his charge, that most tyrannically he had oppressed the libertie of the spous of Jesus Christ. And after that they have rehearsed the principall ornaments wherewith the trew Kirk was decored, they say, Que beneficia tu veluti latro intercipis, templo Dei præripis, in teque; transfers, &c. And after, *Tu Pontificis quidem personam præ te fers, at tyrannum agitas: sub habitu, et cultu pastoris, lupum sentimus: titulus Parentem mentitur, tute factis Jovem ostentas.*⁴ That is, "Whiche benefites thow as a murtherer cutteth of, and takis away from the Kirk of God, transferring them unto thy self. Thow shawis the person of a pasture, but planely thow playes the tyranne: under the habit and clothing of a sheapherd, we feale the crueltie of a wolf." The tytle lies, for it calleth thee Father, but thow thy self into thy workes shawes the thundering of Jupiter, &c. "And therfoir (say they) we knowe not thy voce, we regarde not thy statutes, nether yet feare we thy bulles, nor thunderinges. If thow pretend to interdite us, we feare not to cut thy throt with thy owen sword;⁵ for the Holy ¹ Rejoyse Papistes, heare are Messes, but marke that they are solde.—(Marginal note). ² "Ungarie," Hungary.

³ In Aventinus, the name is printed Tetgandus. A full account of this affair is given by Fleury, in his Histoire Ecclesiastique, Liv. 50.

⁴ Aventi. lib. 4. foli. 428.

⁵ Let the Papistes confute this or elles absolve us.

Ghost is author of all the Kirkis whersoever they be dispersed upon the face of the earth." This was the judgement of many otheris then of these befoir expressed, of the Seat of Rome in those dayes, about 800 yeares after the ascension of Christ; and how the pryde and iniquitie of that Seat augmented, as also the free speaking of men against the same, the subsequentis will declare.

What lamentable tragedie was played betuix Hildebrand, called Gregor the Sevint, and Henrie the fourt, Empeour of Rome,¹ mo historiographoures then one or two do witnesse. Nether yet do those writers who wer most addict to the faction of the Pope, to wit, Gerochus, and Paulus, so cover the shame of that deceiver, but that they give sufficient light to men, to se what mischeaf lurked within the bosome of that pestilent Seat. For wryting what the said Hildebrand did, what tyme that he was first deposed from that seat, which be craft and without all ordour he did usurp, they say that he spared not largely to bestow the patrimonie of the Kirk upon soldiours, and upone capitanes of warre, upon the which, the pure cheafly should have bene susteained; yea, they affirme, that he shew him self more rigerous against the Empeour then it became a pasture² to have done. If this was their judgement who tooke upon them to defend his action and caus, what think we was the judgement of others? That shall we better understand be his accusation, and be the sentence pronounced against him be all the bishoppes of France and Germanie, who with one voce, concluded, that Hildebrand was ambitious, perjured, an usurper of the Empeoures authoritie; one that violated and brak the concord of the Kirk; and therefore, that he was unworthie of that seat. This sentence was pronounced in his owen face, whil that he was sitting in counsall in Rome, be one Rulandus, cheaf preast of Parma, who boldly, and without any salutation, offering the decreit of the Counsall, together with the Empeoures letters, said, "This Hildebrand is no bishop, no father, no pasture:² he is a theaf, a wolf, a murtherer, a tyranne; and therefoir let him be deposed," &c.

We are not ignorant that hereof ensewed great tumult, sedition, and trouble. But as that purged nothing his former infamie, so did it not stop the mouthes of many, planely to pronounce what judgement they had of him and of that seat; to wit, that he, under the tytle of Christ, did the verray work of the Antichrist; that he sat in the Tempell of God, which then was become Babilone; that he was worshipped and extolled above all that which was called God; that he glorified as if he could not erre, &c. These, and others crymes of the gates of Canossa (where the Pope then was), barefooted, etc., attended by his wife and child, is fully described in Foxe's Book of Martyrs, and other works.

¹ The Emperor Henry IV. was deposed by Gregory VII., usually called Pope Hildebrand. The account of his treatment in the depth of winter, A.D. 1077, when the Emperor appeared at

² "Pasture," pastor.

no les weight, wer lade in that age to the bishoppes and seat of Rome ; and this was far without the terme of thre hundreth yeares, within the which Maister Tyrie wolde limitat the doctrine of our Kirk. But let us heare farther.

As the practises of the bishoppes of Rome wer more and more espyed, the bishoppes of Germanie assembled them selves in Counsall at Reginoburgium ;¹ where the bishop of that same cuntrie, in his most vehement orison, made against the authors of sedition, amonges other thinges, pronounced this sentence against the bishoppes and seat of Rome. "Christ our Saviour, (says he), most diligentlie foirwarned us to be ware of fals Christes, and fals prophetes, whome he willed us to discerne and know be their workes, whome presently,² onles we be more blind, we may se." For (says he) *Romani flamines arma in omnes habent Christianos, audendo, fallendo, et bella ex bellis serendo magni facti, oves trucidant, occidunt, pacem, concordiam terris depellunt,*³ &c. That is, "These Romane preastes (he notes the hole rable) make warre against all Christianes, some tymes malepartly, sometymes craftely, and be deceat they still continew warre upon warre ; they themselves, being made great, murther and slay the sheap ; breifly, they tak peace and concord from the earth." And after a lytle, in the same orison, which is to be found in the sevint booke of the Historie foresaid, he sayes, *Hildebrandus ante annos centum atque septuaginta, primus specie religionis Antichristi imperii fundamenta jecit. Hoc bellum nefandum primus auspicatus est, quod per successores huc usque continuatur,*⁴ &c. That is, "Hildebrand (says he), before an hundreth and sevintie yeares, first under apperance of Religion, laid the fundation of the impyre of the Antechrist. He first began this unhappy warre, which to this day is continued be his successors." He farther proceades and sayes, "Beleve the man that hes experience : these preastes of Babilone desyre to regne alone ; they shal not cease unto such tyme as that they have oppressed the honor of the Romane impyre : and consequently, the trew pastures that wold fead the flocke being oppressed, and the barking dogges being removed, they shall extinguishe the treuth, they shall murther, and trode all thinges under their feat ; they shall sit in the temple of God, and be extolled above all that is worshipped,"⁵ &c.

These, and many other grave sentences, wer pronounced be the said Ebirhardus, and wer ratified and confirmed be the hole Bishoppes, and Senate of Germanie ; wherby it is evident what judgement that age had of the Bishoppes of Rome and their Colleges. To avoyde farther prolixitie, we omit the orison and judgement of Probus, the Bishop of

¹ "Reginoburgium," or Ratisbon (in German, Regensburg), on the banks of the Danube.

² Nota.

³ This day yet.—(Marginal note.)

⁴ Aven. lib. 7. (p. 683.)

⁵ Let the worlde judge.

Tullos;¹ the publict edict set furth against the Pope and against his practises in the dayes of Lodovicus the fourt Empreour,² together with the judgements of many other, which such as are exercised in reading of histories may note. So that, if Maister Tyrie, or any of his sect, shall after this accuse us, that we are the first that have disclosed that man of sin, the moste ancient wryters shall convict him, and purge us. Now shortly to the rest of his letter.

TYRIE'S LETTER.

Sen my departing fra zow I have sene sindrie congregationis, specially in Germanie, professing, as they pretendit, the trew word of God and his Evangell; bot, in veritie, betuix them thair selfis, and them and zow, I find sa greit difference and repugnance in materis of greit consequence, that gif thair wer na uther argument to let me not depart fra the Catholick Kirk, in the quhilk I was baptised, that wer sufficient, &c.

ANSWER.

When Maister Tyrie shall accuse, in special, wherein the congregationis in Germanie differ amonges them selves, and that we differ from them, then shall we shaw our judgements, whether the difference be of suche importance as it ought to dissolve the unitie of the Kirk. The Confession of our Faith, and the Ordour of our Kirk, is patent to all that lyst to read the same; when either he, or any other, shall oppunge any one or two heades of the same, so long as God pleases to reteane in this miserable life, such as of his mercy he hes made his ministers, to blow the trompet of his judgements to this most wicked generation, neither he, nor any other, that please to oppone them selves to our Confessioun, shall long crave an answer; an answer, we say, of any one or two heades which they please to oppoung. For Master Tyrie ought to understand, that the preaching ministers within the Realme of Scotland are oxen, ever laboring under the yock, and that into the husbandrie of the Lord; and therefore they can have no tyme vacant from their necessary cures, to compas countries with the Jesuits, (who ar subject to none other yocke,³ then to that of their owen election,) to espy what faultes they can finde amonges the congregationis. As we have no vacantes, (we say), to consider all tryflies that offend delicate men, who

¹ At the Council of Wurtzburg, A.D. 1237.

² Or rather Lewis the Fifth, elected Emperor in the year 1314.

³ "The other Romish ecclesiastical orders have many rules and strict devotional observances to fulfil, but the Jesuits are freed from those burdens, and even from the daily drudgery of reciting from the Breviary the service of the day. The indulgences are expressly permitted, that they may be the more active in promoting the interests of the Papacy, to which they vow unqualified obedience."—(Editor of British Reformers, 1830.)

can acknowledge no Kirk but that which in all pointes be absolute and perfyte ; so, albeit that bothe we did considder them and condempne them, yet we usurpe no autoritie above our brether, but remit all men to their owen judge, and do reverence all congregationis, who do agree with us in the principallis of our faith, as the particulare Kirkis of Jesus Christ. Albeit that in all ceremonies there be not uniformitie ; yea, and albeit that in some heades of doctrine also there appeare repugnance, yet will we not brek brotherly concord, provyding that we aggre in the principallis. Principallis, we call those heades of doctrine, without the confession and consent whereof the Kirk was not planted. By these few wordes Maister Tyrie, (if he be wyse), may understand what we meane : and so we proceed to the conclusion of his letter.

TYRIE'S LETTER.

Quhairfoir, Schir, I exhort yow, as I begouth, to think on this mater as deiply as it becumis a Christiane man ; and quhen ze have swa done advertise me of zour sentiment. In the meane time, I sall pray Almichtie God be his grace to illuminat zour spreit, to knaw in this mater the richt way, and to gif fortitude and strenth, quhen ze haif knawin it, to profes it sa far as salbe convenient to zour estate and salvatioun. Having na farther occasioun of wryting, committis zow to the protectioun of Almichtie God.

Writtin at Paris, the vi. of December, be zour maist humbill servitour and brother,

JAMES TYRIE.

Gif ze pleis to answer, ze may send zour wryting to the Baillie of Arroll,¹ quha will caus it to be send to me.

ANSWER.

Against this exhortation wil we object nothing ; for our earnest desyre is, that men diligently considder what doctrine they imbrase, what fundation and ground their faith hes, and, finally, what way they follow, thinking thereby to atteane to eternall felicitie. For this careles securitie, that universallly may be espyed in men, we dampne,² and ever have dampned. But this we feare not to affirme, as before we have written ; that the doctrine of the Papistical Kirk, now many years bypast, hath bene altogether corrupt ; that their opinion, which they call their Catholick faith, hes no sure ground within the work of God ; and that the way, which they for the moste part have followed, was the verrey way of perdition to all such as without trew repentance departed this lyfe in that blindnes ; and much more shallbe to all persons and estates that now shall manteane those abhominacions, becaus the light is come, and hes sufficiently declared the former darknes. That man of sin is so manifestlie reveled, that excuse of ignorance there resteth none; but a fearefull judgement abydes all such, that yet farther will follow his dampnable wayes.

¹ Erroll.

² " Dampne," condemn.

This, Schir, ye have our judgement, which albeit ye shall receave laitter then we wold, yet, the state of tyme being considered, we dout not but ye shall interprete all thinges to the best. Use our letter so, we pray yow, that it may come to the knowledge of the wryter to yow, whose conversion we no les seek then he appeares to seek youres. And thus we hartly commit yow to the protection of the Omnipotent.

Of Edinburgh, the 10. day of August, Anno Do. 1568.

TO THE FAITHFULL READER.

WHAT malice, invy, and heatrent of the treuth, hes moved men to brust furth against me, and my behaviour in Scotland, England, and elles where, I lytle regarde. For a good conscience susteanes me, before my God, against all the odious lies that have bene laide to my charge, now many yeares past; for the whiche, I dout not but the blasphemers shall answer (onles repentance prevene judgement), when the secreates of heartes shalbe disclosed.

The caus that I adde this imperfyte letter to the former discourse is, That they, whome Sathan hath not blinded by invy, may see and understand what a troubled conscience craves into the day of battell. Becaus that God now in his mercy hath put end to the battell of my deare mother, Maistres ELIZABETH BOWES, before that he put end to my wretched lyfe, I could not cease but declare to the worlde what was the caus of our great familiaritie and long acquaintance; whiche was nether fleshe nor bloode, but a troubled conscience upon hir part, which never suffered her to rest but when she was in the company of the faithful, of whome (fra the first hearing of the word at my mouth) she judged me to be one.

Now, seing her battell is ended, and I am upon the point shortly to follow, this I leave to the posteritie for discharge of my conscience, and to the instruction of her children: That in Scotland, England, France, and Germanie, I have heard the complaintes of divers that feared God, but of the lyke conflict as she susteyned, fra the tyme of her first acquaintance, and long before (as her owen mouth, after then ones confessed to me), til this hour, I have not knowen. For her tentation was not in the fleshe, nor for any thing that apperteyned to fleshe (no, not when she was in greatest desolation), but it was in spirite: For Sathan did continually buffette her, that remission of sinnes in Christ Jesus apperteyned nothing unto her, be reason of her former idolatrie and other iniquities: for the which, notwithstanding any worldlie comfort, I have sene her (not for a starte, but in long continuance) powre furth teares, and send to God dolorous complaints, offer then ever I heard man or woman in my lyfe. Her company to me was comfortable (yea, honorable and profitable, for she was to me and myne a mother); but yet it was not without some croce: for besydes trouble and fasherie of body susteyned for her, my mynde was seldome quyet, for doing somewhat for the comfort of her troubled conscience; whereof this rude letter is the least, and of basest¹ argument, amongs many which ly besyde me,² and so must do be reason of my inabilitie in mo sortes then one.

I hartly salute and take my good-night³ of all the faithfull in bothe the Realmes; earnestly desyring the assistance of their prayers, that without any notable sclander to the Evangell of Jesus Christ I may end my battell: for as the worlde is wearie of me, so am I of it.

Of Sanctandrois, the 12th of Julii, 1572.

JOHNE KNOX.

Lord! be mercyful to England and Scotland, for we stand bothe in a dangerous estate; and that becaus we wold not obey thy holesome admonitionis, whiche wer thyne, how contemptable that ever the persones of thy messingers wer. Yet, Lord, remember mercy for thy treuthes saik! Amen, Amen. And give us not to the opprobrie⁴ of thy enemies, of whome the Castell of Edinburgh⁵ are the principales, within this Realme. Convert them, Lord, or elles confound them, that the worlde

¹ "Basest," feeblest.

² His own letters to which Knox refers, are no doubt those already printed in vol. iii.

³ "Good-night," farewell.

⁴ "Opprobrie," reproach.

⁵ Then possessed by the Queen's adherents.

may ones agane understand that thow art a trew and a righteous God. Amen, Amen, Amen.

Followeth the Letter as it past from my hand, at Diep the 20th of Julii, 1554.

TO HIS LOVING MOTHER, MAISTRES ELIZABETH BOWES, TROUBLED IN SPIRITE, WHOME GOD COMFORT FOR HIS GREAT MERCYES SAKE. AMEN.¹

Psalme 79.—Ryse, Lord ! streache out thy hand : forget not the sobbes of the oppressed.

Right dearely beloved Mother in our Saviour Jesus Christ, now is our dolour, appointed by God, and forespoken by his prophetes, come upon us as the dolour of a woman in the birth of her first chylde ; and so is it come, as with your eares, bothe oppenly and privately, oftentymes yow have hard declared. When I remember your great infirmitie, and the strong battel that continually ye feght, and calles to my mynd how small comfort yow have in earth, I am compelled to sob and grone to Him that only may give strength, comfort, and consolation, without help of any creature unto yow in these moste dolorous dayes. And good hope I have that my petition shall not be repelled, but, for Christ Jesus' sake accepted and graunted ; albeit not in suche sort as yow and I most gladely wold, yet, I dout not, but in suche sort we shall obteane it, as his glorie and our everlasting comfort and proffeit requyreth. It hes not bene without the most speciall provydence and favoures of God, that these many dayes bypast yow have bene grevously tempted, and sore assaulted, to revolt and turne back agane to that abhominable and blasphemous idolatrie, which now in

The moste part of John Knox's preaching in the last dayes of King Edward was of trouble approaching.

I praise my God he hes shaven his mercy on her and me, in despite of Satan, if my battall wer at an end as hers is.

¹ This letter is already printed in vol. iii. page 343. It is here subjoined, on account of the marginal notes, and the special allusion to it by Knox in his preceding address " To the faithful Reader."

God's anger is erected, before the uttermost of his plaigues be powred furth upon the stubburne and inobedient, which never wold deleyte in the treuth of his word, and, therfor of his just judgmentes, most justly hes he given them over, according to there heartes desyre, to deleyte in lies, to their eternall condempnation. In the dayes, I say (dearly beloved Mother), that no apperance there was that ever such abhominaciones should have taken place so suddanelly within this Realme of England, yow wer tempted, and assaulted to turne back agane to idolatrie; whiche tempting spirite God our heavenly Father, permitted to trouble yow, partly for that he wold have yow exercised in the battell, before the great danger approached, least, (perchance), that ye might have bene overthrowen, if inprouydedly bothe occasion and temptacion at ones had assaulted yow; and partly, that by continuall repugnance, ye might learne how odious is all kynd of idolatrie in the sight of God.

2. Thess. 2. ver. 10.

Let England yet take head; for the last Mary shalbe worse then the firste, if Papistes proceed.

Nota.

Maistres Elizabeth Bowes, tempted still and yet fighting.

For Sathan useth seldome to tempt but in those thingis wherewith he knoweth God moste to be offended; as pryde, lust, covetousnes, adulterie, idolatrie, and such others; the committers whereof (and continuers in the same), pronounces Paule to have no portion in the kingdome of God.

Galath. 5.

This is my hope (beloved Mother), that in your continuall battell, so far ye have profited, that in this case, almost, ye need no admonition of me. But becaus it is my bounden dewtie, not only by a common Christiane cheritie, but also for that moste unfeaned familiaritie and tender love (according to godlynes), that we have kept, sence our first acquentance, to do the uttermoste of my power for your comfort; by pen, therefore will I wryte (becaus the bodyes be now put asunder, to mete agane at Godes plesure), that which by mouth

I had maid a faithful promise, before witnes, to Marjorie Bowes her doughter; and so as she tuk me for sone, I hartly imbraced her as my mother.¹

¹ See supra, vol. iii. p. 334.

and face to face ye have often hard. If man or angell shall laubour to bring yow back from the profession that ones ye have given, let them (in that behalf) be accursed, and in no part (concerning your faith and religion) obeyed of yow. If any trouble yow above measure (whether they be Magistrates or carnall freindes), they shall beare their just condempnation, onles they suddanly repent: but whosoever it be that shal provoke or solist yow to that abhominable idol, resist yow all such boldely to the end; learning of the Holy Ghost not to defyle the temple of God with idolles, nether yet to give your bodylie presence unto them, but, obeying God more then man, avoide all apperance of iniquitie.

The necessitie that all man hath so to do (that willingly will not deceave him self), I remit partly to that which oft yow have hard, and, partly, to a generall letter, by me written Frequent letters written by Johne Knox, to declayne from idolatrie. in great anguissie of heart, to the Congregationis;¹ of whome I hear say a great part, under pretence that they may kepe faith secrete in the heart and yet do as idolaters do, beginneth now to fall before that idoll. But oh, allace! blinded and deceived are they as they shall knowe in the Lordes sharpe visitation, which, so assuredly as our God liveth, shall shortly apprehend those back-starters amongis the myddes of idolaters. With the verray greaf of heart I wryte: better it had bene Let treuth this day speak of mo then one or two within that Realm. unto them never to have knowen the treuth, then so suddanely, with Godes great dishonour, to have returned to their vomet. God, of his infinite mercy grant unto them suddane repentance; for if the sin sleap long, I feare it shall awalke to their perpetuall confusion. But now, deare Mother, comfort yow my heart (God grant ye may) in this my great affliction and dolorous pilgramage. Johne Knox request to his mother in his sayle. Continew stoutly to the end, and bow yow never before that idoll, and so will the rest of worldlie troubles to me be more tollerable. With my owen heart I oft common;¹ yea, and, as it wer comforting my self, I appeare to triumph, that God shall never suffer yow to fall in that rebuke. I praise his mercy who suffered me not to be deceaved. Sure I am, that bothe yow wolde fear and eshame to commit that abhomination in my presence, who am but a wretched man, subject to sin and miserie lyke to yourself. But (oh, dear Mother), though no earthlie creature should be offended with yow, yet fere yow the presence and offence of him, who, present in all places, searches the verrey heart and raynes; whose indignation, ones kendilled against the inobedient (and no sin more inflammeth his wraith then idolatrie doth), no creature in heaven nor yet in earth (that only is creature), is able to appease the same. And therefore, dear Mother, avoide and fle from it even as from the death everlasting. Verray love and carefull sollicitude (whiche God knoweth), my heart taketh for yow, compelleth me so oftentimes to dowble and rehearse one thing, being uncertane when God shall graunt any opportunitie to visite yow agane. But the spirite of the Lord Jesus shall, by his owen omnipotent (and yet invinsible) power, supplie in yow that which lacketh of worldly comfort, that the glorie may be knowen to be Godes alone; who, for a tyme, useth to comfort, susteane, and fead one creature by another, but in the end he draweth us (his owen image) unto him self, that by him alone, without the help of all other, we may live, rejoyce, regne, and triumph, as He hes promysed by Jesus Christ his Sone. Joan. 16.

¹ This was Knox's "Faithful Admonition," etc., contained in vol. iii. pp. 257-320.

One thing will I not conceale from yow, deare Mother, that nether are we sure, nether yet in our heartes, can we glorifie God, as our dewtie requyreth, so long as that we have the carnall comfort and defence of creatures with us. The hole man, in body and saule, shall evidentlie prove this conclusioun. For that body, that liveth by meat, drink, sleap, clothing, and nurishment, we se it subject to infr

¹ "Common," commune.

mitie, yea, to mutabilitie and sin, as the finall death of all man declareth: and the saule, even of Goddes verrey elect, living by the lively worde of the hevinly Father, having a teacher that caries fleshe, is alwayes flowing and troubled with some feare, as in Christes Apostles and many others most manifestly we ar instructed. But when Nota. all earthly creature ceases, then shall the sufficiencie of Godes Spirite wirk his owen work. And, therefore (beloved Mother), feare not the battell that ye susteane, The feare of that nether yet the infirmitie that ye find either in godlie woman. fleshe or spirite; only absteane from external iniquitie, that yow make not your members servandes to sin, Nota. and your imperfection shal have no power to dampne yow; for Christes perfection is reputed to be youres by faith, which ye have in his bloode. Be assured (Mother), I willingly wolde not deceave yow: if any such infirmitie wer dampnable, long ago I wold have shawed you the treuth. But no more then God is displeased, albeit sometymes the body be seak, and subject to diseases—no more is he offended albeit the saule in that case be diseased and seak. And as the naturall Note the similitude. father will not kyll the body of the chyld, albeit through seaknes it faint, and abhorre comfortable meates; no more (and muche les) will our heavenly Father kyll our saules, albeit, through spiritual infirmitie and weaknes of our faith, sometymes we refuse the lively foode of his comfortable promises. Nota. Where contempt of God is by his grace removed, and a love of justice and of the lyfe to come ingrafted in the heart, there is the infallible seal and testimonie of the Holy Ghost, who shall performe his owen work in 2 Corin. 12. dew season; for the power of God is knowen in our infirmitie; and thus commit I yow to the protection of him who by grace hes called yow from darknes to light; by faith hes purged your conscience and heart, and of his fre mercy shall glorifie yow, according to his promise made unto those that obedientlie receave the message of lyfe, in Christ Jesus our Joan. 3.

 Lord. Whose omnipotent spirite rest with yow for ever and ever.

At Deip, the 20th of Julij, 1554; after that I had visited Geneva, and other parts, and returned to Deip to learne the estate of England.

Postscript.—My owen estate can I not well declare; but God shall guyde the footesteppes of him that is wilsome, and shall fead him in trouble, that never greatly sollisted for the worlde.
 If any collection might be made amonges the faithfull, it wer no shame to me to receave that which Paule refused not in his trouble. But all I remit to His provydence, that careth for his owen: Rest yet in Christ.

Youre Sone, with troubled heart,

JOHNE KNOX.

LETTERS, ETC.,
DURING THE LATER PERIOD OF KNOX'S LIFE.

M.D.LXIII.—M.D.LXXII.

IN this division I have attempted to bring together such letters and papers as relate to the closing period of the Reformer's life. During these ten years, from 1563 to 1572, many important events had taken place, in which Knox was personally concerned. Unfortunately his friendly and familiar correspondence with Mrs. Anna Lock here terminates, or has not been preserved, in which he was likely to have expressed his personal feelings in regard to such events. But his dispersed letters which have been recovered, although comparatively few in number, and wholly unconnected, are by no means unimportant. One or two of them ought perhaps to have formed a separate division, with those already printed, which were written by him at the desire of the General Assembly. Yet it is of little moment in what part of this volume such letters may occur, while it was desirable to avoid any unnecessary subdivisions, at the same time adhering as closely as possible to strict chronological order.

The following letters do not require any special introductory notice. Unless otherwise stated, the originals are preserved in H. M. State Paper Office, now transferred to the Record Office, Chancery Lane, London. They exhibit Knox in his declining years, pressed down by bodily infirmity, and groaning still more heavily in spirit at the lawless and distracted state of public affairs; as the French influence which predominated in the Queen's councils, and the atrocious events which followed each other in such rapid succession, served to retard the progress and darken the prospects that had dawned so brightly on the Reformed Church. Exposed as Knox was to the vilest calumnies, the deep attachment of his flock, during all his troubles, must at least have afforded to his mind no small consolation.

At occasional intervals, and more especially when laid aside from his ministerial duties, Knox employed himself in completing the Four Books of his History of the Reformation to the year 1564. It is elsewhere stated, as probable, that the Fifth Book was compiled from his papers.¹ We find at least, that, so late as 1571, he was collecting materials for the continuation of his History, and that, at the time of his decease, his papers and scrolls were in the hands of his faithful assistant or secretary, RICHARD BANNATYNE, who presented a Supplication respecting them to the General Assembly in March 1572-3. A small pension was granted to encourage him to proceed in arranging and transcribing these materials. It was to this circumstance that we are indebted for the existence of a volume of some importance, which was first published by Sir John Graham Dalyell, under this title, "Journal of Transactions in Scotland, during the contest between the Adherents of Queen Mary, and those of her Son, 1570, 1571, 1572, 1573. By Richard Bannatyne, Secretary to John Knox." Edinburgh, 1806, 8vo. And again, from a more perfect ms., by Mr. Robert Pitcairn, as "Memorials of Transactions in Scotland, A.D. 1569—A.D. 1573. By Richard Bannatyne, Secretary to John Knox. Printed at Edinburgh, 1836." 4to, pp. xxxii., 414.

As Bannatyne's work has thus been rendered accessible in a printed form, I have confined my selections to the portions that have a personal relation to Knox, including some letters written by or addressed to him, not elsewhere preserved. These selections form a more suitable termination to the Reformer's Works, than if larger portions of these Memorials had been thrown into an Appendix.

¹ Supra, vol. ii. p. 468.

LETTERS, ETC.

(Continued from page 148.)

LXVII.—KNOX TO ARCHIBALD EARL OF ARGYLE.

The Lord cometh and shall not tarie.

AFTER commendations of my service to your Lordship. . . .
In haist, from Glasgow, the seventh of Maii 1563.

Your Lordships to command in all godliness,

JOHN KNOX.

(See vol. ii. p. 377.¹)

LXVIII.—KNOX TO JAMES EARL OF MURRAY.—May 1563.

(See vol. ii. p. 382.²)

LXIX.—EXTRACTS—RANDOLPHE TO SIR WILLIAM CECILL.

TO-MORROWE, the xvith of thys instant, the Quene departethe of thys towne towards Edenbourge. If my happe be good, you shall shortlie here some merrie tydings of the Bysshope of St. Andrews; upon Wensdaye next he shalbe arrayned, and five other prestes, for their massinge at Easter laste. Thus moste humblye I tayke my leave.

At St. Andrews, the xvth of Maye 1563.

¹ See vol. ii. p. 375, footnote 3, for a notice of the Countess of Argyle, on whose behalf the above letter was written. In Calderwood's ms., 1636, are the following various readings:—Vol. ii. p. 377, l. 11 of the letter, No more repugnancie. l. 21, Her proud stubbornesse. l. 24, Some cryme. Next page, l. 16,

Shall turne unto yow to a yeares displeasure. l. 21, Since then, your filthie pleasure, although sweet in drinking, be more bitter then the gall in digesting, I pray the eternall God move your heart.

² This letter is only known from the extract of it given by Knox himself, and repeated by Calderwood.

YOUR Honour wyll tayke yt for a wonder to here, that the Archebysshope of St. Andrews had yesterdaye xii newe god-fathers: the shyfte that he coulde fynde was to put hym self in the Quenes wyll. Thys daye he is enterde into the Castle of Edenbourge. Ther are also condemned the Priour of Whythorne, an notable archepapyste, and five other prestes as wicked as he. The Abbot of Corserogall¹ was sommonde, and for his absence shalbe put unto the horne. Thys mervileus plague is latlie befawlen upon the clargie that theie knowe not where to hyde their heades. Many of them are copen into Englande.

At Edenbourge, the xxvth of Maye 1563.

MAY it please your Honour, the fyrste of thys instante I arrived here in Edenbourge. I harde, by the waye, that the Quene was at Cragmillour, but that the Lorde of Murray and the L. of Lidington were then presentlye in thys towne. To those I addressed me fyrste, as well to knowe somewhat as to mayke an entrie unto suche purposes as I sholde have with the Quene at my commynge. I fynde nothyng in them that myslyked me, nor no dyscouragemente why I sholde not boldelye attempte the Quene herself, so farre as I had warrante unto. I dyned that daye with them in the compaynie of the moste parte of the nobilitie then presente. I founde in them all good lykyng of my retorne. I receaved maynie good words, and gave as maynie. We repayre all togyther after dynner towardses the Quene. The honour I receaved at my arrivall myghte have contented a myche greater personage. The Quenes Majesties letters were gratfullye and thankefullye receaved. At good lengthe (or as well as I coulde) I declared my Sovereign's mynde geven me in my instructions, in utteringe whearof maynie interruptions were made by the Quene herself, and maynie questions demaunded, so that schearce in one houre I coulde utter that that myght have byne spoken in one quarter. I knowe not yet her Grace's lykyng of the matter. She willed me to confer as I had done with her self, with my Lorde of Murraye and Lorde of Lidingeton, and desyered that no man myght be farther made of Counselle. I accorded ther unto.

¹ See also supra, p. 156.

At Edenbroughe, the iiijth of September 1563.¹

(THE Assembly of the Lords, for three causes) The thyrde cawse is, that the Quene fyndethe her grieved with a letter that Mr. Knox wrote unto hys brethrene the prechers, to assyst two honest men of the Congregation, whome the Quene wolde have had punished, for troblinge a prest that, her Grace beinge in Argile, saide masse unto the reste of her howseholde remayninge in the Abbaye of Hollie-roode howse.²

At Edenbroughe, the xxj of December 1563.

FOR newes yt maye please your Honor to knowe, that the Lord Treasurer of Scotlande,³ for gettinge of a woman with chylde, muste, upon Sondaye nexte, do open penance before the whole Congregation, and Mr. Knox mayke the sermonde. Thys my Lorde of Murraye wylled me to wryte unto your Honour for a note of our griate severitie in punyshinge of offenders.

At Edenbroughe, the last of December 1563.

LXX.—KNOX TO THE BRETHREN OF THE CONGREGATION.

Wheresoever two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them.

It is not unknowen to you, deare Brethren

Frome Edinburgh, the ix of October 1563.

(Indorsed)—Mr. Knox to the Brytherene of the Congregation.⁴

(See vol. ii. pp. 395-397.)

¹ Randolph had just returned from England to Holyrood, having been sent for by Queen Elizabeth, to receive information from him on the subject of the Scottish Queen's marriage.

² See Knox, vol. ii. p. 403, note 2.

³ The person here mentioned was

Mr. Robert Richardson, Commendator of St. Mary's Isle, of whom a short notice is given in the footnote, vol. i. p. 372. See also a subsequent page of the present volume.

⁴ Several copies of this missive must have been written. One of these, un-

LXXI.—KNOX TO SIR WILLIAM CECILL.

The spreit of righteous judgement assist yow in all your godlie business.

YF I could be persuaded, ryght Wirshipfull, that the most part of our counsellouris war not all readdy so voyde of grace that secreatly thei have consented to that which in the end shalbe thare owen distruction, and also shall hasard the quiett-ness of thare nyghtbouris, my care and fear in that behalf war both att ane end; but becaus I understand more then I am assured ye do in that secreat, ye please not to be offended albeit I fear as befor, unto such tym as I fynd my self releaved by my God. Of twelve I know, nyne have consented to set forwards whatsoever may please the demander; and yit agane I write, that yf better hand be not holden to that mater by tymes, the greater part will draw the better over the score, and that or it be long. Ye shall receive, as I understand, answeris pleasing yneucht att this tym, but what is ment tym will witness. Yf the man most inward with you, and dear unto me for those graces that God hath bestowed upon him, be such as both our hartes wishe him to be, then will the few number that yit remane uncorrupted, strive for a seasson against the fors of the blinded multitud; but and yf hie follow the contrary faction (be it directlie, or be it indirectlie), then assure yourself that the rage of that storme shall anes ouerthrow the fors of the stronggest; and yit I lytill fear for my awen part; for I prase my God I have laid my compt, and fyndes my hole¹ debtis discharged by signed, in the State Paper Office, is dated 9th October. There are some slight verbal differences, but not sufficient to require notice. Knox (vol. ii. p. 393) has given a particular account of the event which occasioned the above letter, and the charges made against himself for writing it; viz., Patrick Cranstoun and others having, on Sunday the 15th August 1563, during Queen Mary's absence, made a forcible entrance into the Chapel Royal, to prevent the priest saying mass; but it is sufficient to refer to the notes relating to this occurrence, contained in vol. ii. pp. 393-400.

¹ "Hole," whole.

Jesus Christ, except that which is appointed to all flesh, which I daly thrust for. But the multitud of these calamiteis that I see appearing to fall upon this yle, and all becaus the inordinat affections of hyr that is born to be a plague to this realme, ar followed without contradiction (maid by such who of dewty ar bounden to procure the rest and commoditie of thare commonwealht). The foresight, I say, of appearing calamiteis is to me more fearfull then ten corporall deahts. The conveying of the Mess throuht those quarteris which longest have bein best reformed, hath so dejected the hartis of many, that men appear not to have that coraige thei had befor. Thus have ye the plainnes of my troubled hart, use it as ye will ansuer to God, and as ye tender your commounwealht. The sufficiencie of the bringar will instruct you in all other thingis. I pray you remember my weak judgement concernyng the furnyssing of these Norht Bordoris. The Eternall assist you with his principall Spreit now and ever.

Of Edinburgh, the 6 of October 1563.

Youris to command in godliness,

JOHN KNOX.

The Ynch, betuix Leyht and Kinggorne,¹ is left woid.² What straunge foules shall first lyght thare, God knoweht. Our lusty bloodis will to Fraunce, whetther God will or not. Judge what shall follow.

To the ryght wirshipfull Sir William Cicell, Knyght, cheaf Secretarie to the Quenis Majestie of England.

Deliver these att Court, or ellis whare in England.

¹ The island of Inchkeith, about the middle of the Firth of Forth, between Leith and Kinghorn, was taken possession of and fortified by the English in 1547. It was retaken by the French auxiliary troops on Corpus Christi day, 29th June 1549, and continued to be held by a French garrison till after the death of Mary of Lorraine, Queen-Dowager, in June 1560, when its fortifications were demolished.

² "Woid," void, deserted.

LXXII.—KNOX TO LORD ROBERT DUDLEY.¹

The Father of all mercies mak you feall the sweet odour of his grace, which by his Holie Spreit floweht to mankynd from Jesus Christ, &c. Amen.

SEING that it hath pleased your honour to call me to that familiaritie, that by writeing I may conferr with your Lordship, men myght judge me more then foolish yf I should lyghtlie esteame so great a benefitt, or yit neglect the opportunitie so liberallie offerred: one thing I fear, that my writeingis att all tymes shall be unto you more fashious nor comfortable, but as att comand I begyn, so upon the sam I shall gladly desist; and yit, befor I enter in any farther familiarite, I man protest that it be in Jesus Christ, for without him ye shall esteem no favour of man. God hath placed you in favour, credith, and in some authoritie, by which ye may greatlie advance the puritie of religion, yf uprightlie ye will apply your witts and power thereto. I am not ignorant that ye shall have many hinderars, and that many terrible blocks shalbe cast befor your feitt, yf you ones purpos openly to walk in that straitt way that leadeht to lyef; but, my Lord, yf this sentence of your God shalbe printed in your hart, "Farr be it from me (saieht the Eternall), but that I shall glorifye such as glorifye me;" yf this sentence, I say, be surelie persuaded unto your hart, and oft remembred, as it becomeht, ye shall easely overcome tentations and dangers that appear most difficill: and this for my protes-tacion. Becaus the sufficieneye of the bearer is able faythfully to reoport the estate of all common effares heir, I shall trouble your Lordship for the present only with tuo headis, the on con-

¹ Lord Robert Dudley, a favourite of Queen Elizabeth, who, at Sir William Cecil's suggestion, recommended him to Mary Queen of Scots for an husband. He was created Earl of Leicester in 1564. The English Queen was unquestionably insincere in this proposed marriage, originating, as Chalmers asserts, in "the malignity of Cecil, to involve the man whom he hated in a difficult predicament between the two Queens."

cerneht of our Nobilitie, the other the faythfull diligence of my dear Brethren, the trew preachers, with yow. Trew it is, my Lord, that zeall, joyned with knowledg, ones appeared in a great part of our nobilitie ; but allace, to the greif of many hartes, it is now judged to be waxen cold, whether it be be reasson of this laitt calme and tranquillitie, in the which every man seakeht to build his own hous, and to mack him selfe great, having small care to re-edify the hous of God : whether this, I say, be the caus, or whether becaus, from the begynnyng thei sought not the treuht, but their owen advantage, I know not, God knoweht : but this is most certen, that there appears no suche fervencye in the most part of our Nobilitie (our courteours ar coldest) as somtymes I have sein. Yea, I am eschamed and confounded within myself, when I considder so great mutacion within so schort a space ; and yet my hope is, that for his mercies saik God shall preserve some evn unto the end. I prase my God, thought Jesus Christ, that it pleaseht him to mack his woord to be effectuall in the mouhtes of many within this yle ; but allace, my Lord, when that I hear that grosse superstition is manteaned, and vane ceremonies ar required in this greatte [tyme ?] of Christ's evangill, I can not but lament, doubting in whome the falt consisteht. For the present I will compleane no farther, but concluding, I pray my God, that for Christ Jesus his Sones saik, that it will please him so to assist all that travell in the gospels of Jesus Christ, that thei may leave a testimony to this present most wicked generation, and unto the posteritie to cum, that the zeall of his hous cateht up in thame all carnall affections.

It may be that heirafter I comprehend your Lordship, my Lord President of Wales, and my Lord Secretary, in on letter ; for I suppos that in the publict effares ye all be of on mynd, and of on secrecy, but heirintill I will use your Lordship's owen advysses. Of Capitaine Cockburn, his larg commission, of his articles and ansuer, I suppos the bearer can sufficiently instruct your Lordship. Mentime . . . promessed, and our [fooles and murderars ?]¹ . . .

And thus I hartlie wishe unto your honor prosperitie, and stabilitie in Jesus Christ, to whose protection I committ your Lordship. Of Edenburgh, [the 6th] of October 1563.

Your Lordship to commaund in Jesus Christ,

JOHN KNOX.

To the ryght honorable lord, my Lord Robert Dudley,

Be these delivered att the Court in England.

LXXIII. — EXTRACTS — RANDOLPH TO SIR WILLIAM CECILL.

I am requiered by the Lord of Lidington to desier your Honour, that yf ther be a statute that contayneth all the cases of a Premunire, that yt wyll pleas your Honour to let hym have a coppie. I knowe yt is ment for the wele of the Prelates. Yt is saide that Mr. Elmer² made answer to the terrible Blaste of the Trompet. The Lord of Lidington also hartelye desyerethe to have yt

Your Honour wyll tayke yt for a great wonder, when I shall wryte unto you that MR. KNOX shall marrie a verrie nere kynswoman of the Duke's, a lord's daughter, a young lasse, not above xvi yeares of age.³ I rather thynke you wyll laughe at my madnes thus to wryte so great an unlykelye a matter then that you wyll beleeve that yt is trewe. One Paule Meffane,⁴ a preacher, brought up under Mr. Coverdall, who married an ¹ This letter has been deciphered with some difficulty, owing to its having been much injured with damp and attempts to restore the faded writing.

² John Aylmer, Bishop of London. In 1559, he published anonymously "An Harborowe, etc., against the Late Blowne Blast, concerning the Government of Wemen." See vol. ii. pp. 26, 278; and vol. iv. p. 354.

³ "The age of this young lasse" probably occasioned the marriage to be postponed till the following year. (See next page.)

⁴ Paul Methven, originally a baker in Dundee, turned preacher, and was a zealous Reformer. He was appointed minister of Jedburgh in 1560. When the scandal arose, Knox was charged by the General Assembly, 30th December 1562, to examine its truth. In June 1563 he reported that this trial

Englishe woman, minister of Gedbroughe, is convicted of manifeste advouterie. He is escaped into Englande, or, as some saye, drowned in a boate goynge over the water thitherwarde. The Erle of Morton is created Lord Chancellor. I dowte not nowe but we shall have good justice.

The venerable Prelate of St. Andrews hathe byne in thys towne. I thought to have harde when he sholde have byne committed unto the Castle for sayinge and heringe of masse, and refusinge to paye the thyrde of hys benefice to the mayntaynance of the ministers and poore. He is dimissed in hope of amende-ment; and for suche faultes with us are sildom punished.

At Edenbroughe, the xxii. of Januarie 1562[-3].

MR. KNOX hathe byne twyse proclaymede in the churche, to be married upon Palme Sondaye to Margaret Steward, daughter to the Lord Ocletrie,¹ wher at the Quene stormethe wonderfullye, for that she is of the bludde and name. Yf she keape promes, he shall not byde in Scotlande. Yf I be not deceaved, ther wilbe myche a doe before he leave yt. In thys, I wyshe that he had done otherwyse. Leavinge farther to trouble your honour at thys tyme, moste humblye I take my leave.

At Edinbourghe, the xviii of Marche 1563[-4].

THER shalbe also a newe reformation of the thyrdes of the benefices to be payde unto the preachers. The Abbot of Corsrogall is dede,² and the Kenedies reddie to fall by the eares for hys good. Mr. George Bouchanan hathe geven unto hym by the Quene the whole temporalities of that Abbacie: with spiritualities he wyll not meddle, bycause he can not preache. The Quene wolde have made hym Abbot.

At Edenbourge, the xxiiiith of October 1564.

had taken place, and that Methven was removed from his ministerial charge, and excommunicated. See vol. i. p. 300; vol. ii. pp. 87, 364. His repentance and supplication in June 1566, to be restored, is noticed in vol. ii. p. 531.

¹ Andrew Lord Stewart of Ochiltree.

² Quintine Kennedy, see supra, p. 153.

LXXIV.—MR. JOHN SPOTTISWOOD SUPERINTENDANT OF LOTHEANE, JOHN KNOX AND JOHN CRAIG, MINISTERS OF EDINBURGH, TO THE MOST REVEREND FATHERS IN GOD, THE ARCH-BISHOPS OF CANTERBURY AND YORK, DESYRE THE PER-PETUALL INCREASE OF THE HOLIE SPIRIT, ETC.

BECAUS that, in the Generall Assemblie of the Church of Scotland, begun at Edinburgh the xxvth of Decembre 1563, and there contynued certen dayes, aftre it was compleyned by oure brother, John Baroune, minister of Christe Jesus his Evangile,¹ upon Anne Goodacre, sometymes his wyfe, that she, aftre great rebellion shewen unto him, and aftre divers admonitions geven, as well by himself as by others in his name, that she should in no wyse departe from this realme, nor frome his house without his lycence, haeth not the less stubbornlie and rebelliouslie departed, seperated herself frome his societie, left his house, and withdrawne herself frome this realme, as the said John's complaint more fullie doth proport: The hole Assemblie, as well

¹ Some particulars respecting Baron may be added. From the Council Registers of Geneva, we learn that he was the son of Andrew Baron, and was a native of Edinburgh. When enrolled as a resident at Geneva, he is called a student, 14th October 1557. He was then married, but his wife's name is not specified, and had a daughter, Susanna, baptized 17th August 1557, who died 26th October in the following year. John Baron was received a free burgess of the city, 21st June 1558, and had a son named Gehut. He appears to have taken some charge of printing Knox's Treatise on Predestination.—(See Extracts, 13th November 1559, supra, vol. v. p. 16*.)

On the 8th March 1560, John Baron acknowledged to the magistrates of Geneva the kindness he had received, and asked permission to return to his country of Scotland, where, he said, the Gospel is preached, but he desired still to continue a burgess. His request was granted.

Upon Baron's return to Scotland, he published in 1562 a translation from the French of the Answer made by Theodore Beza to an Oration, and certain Articles of the Cardinal of Lorraine. In the following year he became the minister of the parish of Galston (pronounced Gawstone) in Ayrshire, where he appears to have remained till Candlemas, or February 1566 7. He was then translated to Qulhytherne or Whitehorn in Galloway. It is added, in the "Register of Ministers," etc., 1567 (pp. 39-48), "but he departed this life 1568."

as the Nobilitie, as of the Superintendants, Ministers, and Commissioners of Churches, gave to us commandement and charge, as by this other acte youre wisdomes more clearelie may perceiue, humblie to request and pray you, whome God of his providence and mercie haith erected as principalles in Ecclesiasticall jurisdiction within the realme of Englande, that it wold please you, and either of you, within your jurisdictions, to caus, by publike edictes, or els personallie apprehended, summonsd, charge, and warne the foresaid Anne to comperere before the said Superintendants, Ministers, and Session of Edinburgh, in their Consistorie, the saxtie day aftre your summondes. WE therefore, in the name of the eternall God, of his Sonne Jesus Christe, and as ye desyre synne to be punished, and as your fellow-servants in Christe Jesus, to serve you, or any of you, in the like case, most humblie requyre you to caus your edicts to be published in all such places as you know them to be expedient, chargeing the said Anne to comperere before the Session of Edinburgh, in the accustomed place of their assemblie, the xxvth day of May next to cum, to ansuer by herself, and not by her procurator, to suche crymes as shalbe layd to her charge by her said husband, and by us, for her rebellious departing, and other crymes that may be suspected to have ensewed there upon: With certification to her, that if she comperere not the said day and place, we will procede and minister justice at the said John's instance according to God's worde. Forther, we moste humblie desyre you to remitte to us, upon the expense of the said John compleyneour, this our act of the Generall Assemblie, together with your edicts or summondes duellie executed and indorsed in authentik forme. Which doing, as we doubt not, you shall please the Eternall God, and discharge that part of youre godlie office, so shall you binde us to the like or greater service, when soever it shall plais you or any pastour within that realme to charge any of us. And thus we desyre the Lorde Jesus, that great and onelie Pas-tour of the shepe, so to reull your heartes and oures, that we, with one mynde and one mowthe, may unfeynedlie seke the advancement of His name, the comfort of his troubled flocke, the mainteyning of vertue and suppressing of vice; that it will so please Him to blesse our common laubours in this his last harvest by the power of his Holie Spirit; that in the same His glorie may be illustrate, His chosen edified, and our consciences discharged. Amen.

From Edinburgh, this tenth of February 1563[-4].

Your loving Brethren in Christe Jesus, and fellow-servantes in His holie Evangile.

M. Jo. SPOTTISWOD, Superintendant of Lotheane.
 JOHN KNOX, Minister of Christ Jesus His holie Evangill.

JOHNE CRAIG, Minister of Christes Evangile.

J. GRAY.

We understand that the wicked and rebellious woman, aftre her unlawfull departing from her husband, remayned for a season at York.¹

To the Right Reverend Father in Christe, th' Archebusshop of Cantorbury, Primate of all Englonde, or, in his absence, to his Chancelor, Officiall, Commissare, or Vicegerent in the Jurisdiction Ecclesiasticall of the Province of Cantorbury, ¹ The occasion of this letter or message to the Archbishops in England, as Strype remarks, "was pretty strange and hardly weighty enough for the cognisance of so solemn an assembly."—(Life of Parker, p. 149.) Upon receiving the above letter, and the extract from the Assembly Records, Archbishop Parker, on the 14th of April 1564, enclosed them to Sir William Cecil, to ascertain his opinion in regard to such a request. The first portion of his letter may be quoted, from the Parker Correspondence, p. 209:—

"ARCHBISHOP PARKER, 14th April 1564, to SIR WILLIAM CECIL.

"SIR,—Where of late was sent to me these letters enclosed, to such effect as your honour may perceive, for that I am in doubt how agreeable it were for me to satisfy such request, I am bold to pray your honour to impart your counsel to me, the rather for that it may seem

LXXV.—ACT OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

At Edinburgh, the xxixth day of December 1563.

THE same day anent the request and supplication given in the Generall Assemblie, by John Baronne, minister of the Kirk of Gawston, bearing in effect how Anne Goodacre being his married wyfe, had of her owne wickednes and evill counsell departed from his house here in Edinburgh, in June last bepast, withoute his licence (he being in the Calston, shortway from this town), towards the realme of Englonde, notwithstanding his lettres directed unto her requyring and charging her to remayn, notwithstanding also the requestes of dyvers brethren to whom he also had written to request and charge her in his name to remayne to his returninge; not the les the said Anne had departed oute of this realme towarde Englonde, to his great greif and heartes sorowe: and therefore moste humelie requested the maiste honorable Privie Counsell there assembled, with the rest of the nobilitie, the superintendants, ministers, commissioners of provinces and kirks, to give unto him their advise, counsell, and direction, by what meanes he might be at libertie frome the foresaid wicked woman, according to the precise reull of God's worde, as at mair lenth was conteyned in the said John's supplication.

The Assemblie ordeyned lettres to be directed to the Archebushops of Cantorbury and Yorke, in name of the haile Assemblie, subscribed by the Superintendent of Lowthean, John Knox, Mr. John Craig, ministers of Edinburgh, and the scribe of the Assemblie, requesting them, vicissitudinis causa, that they should cause edicts to be proclaimed in ether of their boundes, or personal citation, to be executed against the said Anne Goodacre, that she should compere before the Superintendent of Lowthean, and Session of the Kirk of Edinburgh, the sextie daye after their citation or edict's execution, by her self, and not by her proto touch the state and order of the realm.

"The request, in my opinion, is strange, for that this vicissitudo is used at the request of them which agnise one superior governor as subjects of one realm or empire; and is also used where the abode or continuance of the party to be called is certainly known, in whose territory the party continueth. And doubtful it is to me by what authority these requesters do exercise their conference, for they make no mention of their warrant or commission. And, further, I take that the party is not bound to obey any such commandement of the Archbishops in England to appear in Scotland, the case as it is. And some doubt may rise whether they go about to practise a precedent by our assents to divorce the parties, and to license the innocent to marry again."

This application in favour of John Baron seems to have produced no effect. It was by no means likely that the Archbishops would concur, either by public edicts or personally, to apprehend, summon, and proceed against Anne Goodacre, in consequence of this complaint.

curator, to answer to sicke things as the said John Baron, hir husband, should lay to her charge, and further, to answer as law will ; with certification, that if she comperere not the said day and place, the said Superintendant and Session will procede and minister justice against her at the said John's instance, according to God's word, &c.

Gevin in the Generall Assemblie of the Kirke of Scotland, and fourth session thereof, day, year, and place aforesaid.

Extracted oute of the register of the said Generall Assemblie, by me, JOHN GRAY,¹ scribe to the same, quhilk I certifie by this my subscription and signet accustomed. J. GRAY.

LXXVI.—RANDOLPH TO QUEEN ELIZABETH.

MAYE it please your Majestie that it may not be imputed unto over greate boldenes, that at this present I write unto your Majestie not havinge anie matter of certayne knowledge, but onlie by the reporte of other ; which I fynde by lykelihoodes to beare with it suche trothe, that I thoughte it fitter to be communicated unto your Majestie alone, then to mayke it knowne to anye other before your Majestie selfe ; I send your Majestie two letteres. I thynke it a faulte hastelie to beleve, or to be over suddayne in reportes. To these I gyve the better credit, for that I knowe from whome these advertisementes come, and whoe are lyke to be the workers of these greate attemptates that are suspected : be it either to sturre troubles amongst themselves, or to bringe anye man farther of that shall move the same. More then is written in these two letteres I have not to wryte, savinge that I knowe that it hathe byne longe looked for what answer your Majestie will gyve to the laste that was sente unto your Highnes by the Quene of Scottes. I wyshe onlie that which shalbe moste to your Majesty's contentemente, and ther unto cheiflie will applie my mynde, as your Majestie, I trust, shall ever fynde with us greate trothe and good wille as any that ever was so happie to serve your Majestie, or ever did beare the name of your Majesty's servante. God, that hytherto hathe prospered all your Majesty's doynges to a happie ende, sende your Hyghnes no worce succes of this to your Majesty's comferte, then of what somever hathe byne moste to your Majesty's contentement.

¹ "Maister John Gray, scribe to the in April 1574.—(Register of Confirmed Generall Assemblie," died at Edinburgh Testaments.)

The cause of my long aboode here is knowne to Mr. Secretarie, to whome I have made requeste to have some goode arrante for my retorne, as also good occasion to do my duetie unto your Majestie presentlie, to no worce ende, I truste, then my will is that your Majestie sholde be served.

At Barwicke, the 5th of Maye 1564.

Your Majesty's moste humble and obbediente,

THO. RANDOLPHE.

To the Quenes Majestie my Sovereigne.

LXXVII.—[KIRKALDY OF GRANGE] TO THOMAS RANDOLPH.

ME LORD OF MURRAY is presently verye great, and may do quhat he will, and yit his Lordship is determenit to tak no charg upon hym, without he se mair constancye nor he hes found in tymes past; for my own part, I reseve good wordis with good contenances, for they have said to me they wald be glaid to do me pleisour. Rolletis newis ar keipeit very closs, quhilke maketh us to lyk them the better. The farthest I can learn is, and it is trew in deid, he wes not very welcum to the Quene mother, quhome now our Quene begynneth altogyther to mylyk, and we ar lyk to get litell freindscheip frome that part. Also, our Quene begynnes to complane upon her oncles unkyndnes, and says, Seyng that thay have no respect to hir weill, scho will do the best scho can for hir self. This muche I lernet of the Frenche man, as to the Kyngis goyng to Barleduce and Lyons with the dead of Marshall Brisac. I dout not bot ye have hard therof. The Erl of Lenox will obtene licence to cum home and speak the Quene. Hir meanyng therin is not knowing, bot sum suspectis scho sall at lentht be perswadit to favour his sonne. And to the effect the Erll may the mair surlye cum in this cuntry, the Quene is myndit to writ to me Lord Duc, and hes alredeye requested me Lord of Murray to speak the Erll of Argyll, quha, I assure you, will do litell in that mater, without he se a gretter mater lyk to tak effect nor his incuming. I cannot writ all that I thynk in this mater, bot the bottome of the stomok salbe laid abreid unto you at your meityng, and also lat you se quhow he may cum to intend. Amongis our selfis all thyngis ar presently in quyet, bot I fear it sall not be long; for thyngis begynes to grow to a rypnes, and there is great practeseris quho ar lyk to set all thyngis a loft, quhilkis ye sall also knaw at meityng. Heirfor, in the meantyme, I wald wyshe, as ye knaw I have alwayis done, that the Erll Botheill wer keipit still; for our Quene thynkis to have hym at all tymes redye to schaik out of hir pushet agaynst us Protestantis. Morower, the Quene Mother hathe writin to our Quene, that Lid. said to hir, that all that was spoken of the mariage with Spaine, was done to caus England grant to our desyris; heirfor meit us with the lyk, and that in gentill termes, quhill I speak with you, for I am in gud hope ye sall cum to your purpos, using the counseill of your brother. As for the Commissioneris that sulde meit me Lord of Bedford, I dout not bot ye will caus them be handlit accordynglie. This is mente for the day of trewe with the Laird of Cesford, wher ther are appoynted the Mr. Maxwell and Justice-Clerk.¹ The Bischope of St. Andros is desyries to speak with Mr. Knox: Judge ye quhat is lyk to fallow. The Quene dyet is to depart owt of St. Johnston, the viii of this present; bot becaus hir dyet hes bene oft alteret, I feir scho keip not this. Thar is syndre slawtheris maid be gentilmen in our low cuntreis, and our yles ar altogyther redye to break lous. The Lord rest with you.

At St. Johnston's, the last of Apryll [1564].²

¹ This is written on the margin.

² The signature of this letter, addressed "to his loving brother Mr. Ran-dolphe," has been carefully erased. I have no doubt that the writer of the letter was Kirkcaldy of Grange.

LXXVIII.—KNOX TO THOMAS RANDOLPH.

BOHT youris ar cumen to my handis with your bow, for the which I hartelie thank you. Rollettis tydingis ar as yit buried in the breastis of two within this realme, butt Maddye telleth ws many newes: "The mess shall up, the Bischope of Glaskier and Abbot of Dunfermling come as ambassadouris from the Generall Counsall, my Lord Bothwell shall follow, with power to putt in execution whatsoever is demanded, and our Sovereine will have done; and then shall Knox and his preaching be pulled by the earis, etc." Thus with ws ravis Maddye¹ every day; but heirupon I greatlie pans² not. The Erle of Lenox servand is familiare in Court, and it is supposed that it is not without knowledge, yea, and laubour of your Court. Some in the countrey look for the lady and the young Erle er it be long. It is whispered to me that licence is all readdy procured for thare hitthercuming. Goddis providence is inscrutable to man, befor the ischew of such thingis as are kept clos for a season in his counsall. But, to be plaine with you, that jorney and progress I lyke not. The Quens Majestie remanes at St. Johnston, as I heare, yit eight dayes, yea, and perchaunce longar. As for Edinburgh, it lyketh the ladeis nothing. In these last schippes from Fraunce and Flanderis, I have received some newes, and some are comen. Certane of the salt manis lauboraris are arrived, with mattockis, schooles,³ and certane other instrumentis; mo ar looked for. I fear thare trafique shalbe to mack salt upon salt; divin what I mean. I hear, of credible reaport, and that of such as ar prevy in the Court of France, that the jorney of Loraine goes fordward. Lettres I received, dated in Trois in Champanye, assuring that the King was so far in jorney, yf other impedimentis occurred not. The Papistis of Fraunce

¹ "Maddye," a name in common use at the time, and occurring in some of the ballads of Robert Sempill; one, for instance, ends—"Quod Maddie, prioress of the kail-market." Richard Bannatyne, in his Memorials, 1570, also speaks of "Madie in our fisch merkat," etc.

² "Pans," I care not.

³ "Schooles," shovels.

(of Paris especially) threaten destruction to all Protestantes. The Germans, almost in every cietie and province, amass men of war, and no man can tell att whose devotion. Yf ye know, I am content, yf not, my counsall is, ye look to it. Tuo bargeis, in forme and fassion liek hoyes, cam in our Forht above the Inch, and wewed all places, Sonnday and Monunday last. They saled from land to land, round about the Inche, but wold suffer no man to enter in thame, and so ar departed. Our solan geis use to vesy the Bass¹ befor the great cumpany tack possessioun. I say yit agane tack head. I hear (but not of certaintie) that Suaden will yit vesy with ane ambassadour. I pray you yit agane salut my Lord of Bedfoord, of whose good mynd towardes me I never doutted, and say to his Lordship that I think I shall have as great nead of confort or it be long, as that I had when his Lordship and I last parted in London, yf God putt not end to my battell schortlie; for heir wanton and wicked will impyres as it wer above wisdom and verteu. God send remeady. And thus ye knowe a part of my mynd; and yit yf I war with you I wolde trouble you longar. My purpos is, yf God permitt, to be in Langton the 5, 6, and 7 of May; you may appoint the place, and I will meitt you, whome the Eternall preserve. Of Edinburgh, the 3 of this instant, [May] 1564.

Salut in my name Mr. Boistock and the Italian, to whome great busines suffer me not to write.

Youris to his power,

JOHN KNOX.

To the ryght wirshipfull Mr. Randolphe, agent for the Quenes Majestie of England for the effaris of Scotland. Att Baruik. Be these delivered.

LXXIX.—EXTRACTS, BISHOP GRINDAL TO HENRY BULLINGER, ZURICH.

But enough of our affairs. Things in Scotland are not so well established as we could wish. The churches indeed still retain the pure confession of the Gospel; but the Queen of Scotland seems to be doing all in her power to extirpate it. She has lately given orders that six or seven Popish masses should be celebrated daily in her Court, where all are admitted who choose to attend; whereas she was till now content with only one mass, and that a private one, no Scotsman being allowed to be present. Moreover, when the Reformation first began, it was provided, that out of the estates of the monasteries, which were made over to the Exchequer, salaries should be paid to the ministers of the Gospel; whereas she has not made any payment whatever these three years. She has lately banished JOHN KNOX from her royal city of Edinburgh, where he has hitherto been chief minister, nor can she be induced to allow him to return. However, no public changes have as yet been made, except at Court; and the leading men of the kingdom, the nobility and citizens, have, by a great majority, made a profession of the gospel, and manifested numerous and convincing proofs of their firmness. One of the most powerful is the Lord James Stewart, Earl of Murray, the Queen's natural brother, a pious man, and of great influence with his party.¹ . . .

¹ The Bass Rock, within two miles of the coast of East Lothian, still frequent- ed during the season by myriads of solan geese, and other sea-fowl.

London, August 27, 1566.

From this you may easily imagine what great and terrible commotions have lately taken place in Scotland. In the meantime we entertain the most lively hopes, that all these things will turn out to the further advancement of evangelical doctrine. JOHN KNOX has lately returned, amidst the great rejoicing of the people, to his church in Edinburgh, from which he had heretofore been altogether banished.² . . .

London, August 29, 1567.

¹ The above is an extract, from the Zurich Letters, in the Parker Society volume, 1842, 8vo, p. 169.

The volume also contains the original letters in Latin, p. 100, which were first printed in Strype's Life of Grindal, Ap. p. 19.

² Ibid. p. 198, and p. 117.

LXXX.—THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY TO THEODORE BEZA.
 EXIMIO CHRISTI SERVO D. THEODORO BEZÆ GENEVENSIS
 ECCLESLE PASTORI DOCTISSIMO SIMUL AC VIGILANTISSIMO
 SALUTEM ET PACEM IN DOMINO.

LEGIMUS nuper literas tuas, Christiane pastor vigilantissime, ad charissimum nobis fratrem JOHANNEM KNOXUM missas quæ profecto varie nos affecerunt. Quod enim ecclesias vestras et pace et tranquillitate magna frui narras, perjucundum nobis fuit ut debuit. Quod autem reperiri quosdam scribis in Augustano συγκρητισμῶ, quos aut error aut pertinacia ad tumultus in eis movendos excitet, quorum causa etiam indictus sit principum conventus, graviter sane molesteque tulimus. Quum vero ex

TO THE VERY EMINENT SERVANT OF CHRIST, MASTER THEODORE BEZA, THE MOST LEARNED AND VIGILANT PASTOR OF THE GENEVAN CHURCH.¹

HEALTH and peace from the Lord! We have lately, most vigilant Christian pastor, read your letter sent to our very dear brother, JOHN KNOX, and it has indeed affected us in various ways: For inasmuch as you state that your churches are in the enjoyment of great peace and tranquillity, this intelligence was very gratifying to us, as it ought to be. But whereas you inform us that some persons are found in the syncretism of Augsburg, whom either ignorance or obstinacy may excite to raise disturbances among them, and for whose sake there has even been appointed a conference of the sovereigns; this is

¹ The following translation of this letter appeared in the volume of Zurich Letters printed for the Parker Society, 1842. I was much disappointed to find, after a careful search, that the original letter is not preserved at Zurich, but only a contemporary transcript, in which the signatures are most inaccurately copied. From Beza's letter, at p. 550, it appears he requested the original to be returned to him by Bullinger. It is sufficient, therefore, to subjoin the names of the subscribers to the English version, partly from the volume alluded to.

eadem epistolâ intelleximus te tuosque fratres a nobis enixe postulare ut Confessionem vestram et Expositionem Simplicem "Orthodoxæ Fidei, et dogmatum Catholicorum synceræ religionis Christianæ, concorditer ab Ecclesiæ Christi ministris, qui sunt in Helvetia, Tiguri, Bernæ, Scaphusii, Sangalli, Curie Rhætorum et apud confœderatos, Mylhusii item, et Biennæ, quibus adjunxerunt se et Genevensis Ecclesiæ ministri"¹ mense Martio recens editam, nostris suffragiis comprobaremus; in eo summam erga nos humanitatem tuam tuorumque ingenue agnoscimus et predicamus, qui Scotos gentem in ultimis terræ angulis Domino servientem cultu religionis sincero tanti æstimatis, ut eorum consensione judicetis ad religionem Christianam quam eo libello estis complexi posse multum lucis et splendoris accedere. Quare, ne studia nostra humanitati tantæ et tam æquæ indeed painful and distressing news. But as we understood from that same letter, that you and your brethren earnestly request of us to signify our approbation of your "Confession, and Simple Exposition of the orthodox faith, and catholic doctrines of the pure Christian Religion, recently set forth in the month of March, with the unanimous assent of the ministers of the Church who are in Switzerland, namely, those of Zurich, Berne, Schauffhausen, St. Gall, the Grisons, and their confederates, Mullhausen and Bienne, to which the ministers of the Church of Geneva have joined themselves;" in this we acknowledge and declare the exceeding courtesy towards us, both of yourself and your brethren, who express so much esteem for the Scots, a people serving the Lord with the pure worship of religion in the farthest corners of the earth, as to consider that their agreement will add much light and splendour to the Christian religion, which you have embraced in that treatise. Wherefore,

¹ The words within inverted commas form part of the title-page of this "Confessio et Expositio Simplex." The first edition has the imprint, "TIGURI, excudebat Christophorus Froschouerus, Mense Martio, M.D.LXVI." 4to.

postulationi deessent, simul ac tuas vidimus literas cuncti e proximis quibusque oppidis Andreapolim convolvimus, urbem literis divinis humanisque in Scotia florentissimam; ibi quanta fieri potuit celeritate librum eum inspeximus capita ejus singula expendimus, nihil inexploratum prætermisimus, omnia de Deo sacris legibus ritibusque ecclesiæ diligenter excussimus. Dici autem non potest quantum ex ea opera lætitiæ ceperimus cum perspicue cerneremus libello vestro fide optima sancte pie planeque divinitus idque breviter explicari quicquid nos in templis, in scholis, et in suggestu his octo annis perpetuis docuimus, et adhuc (Deo est gratia) docemus.

Ejus ergo patrocinium suscipere tum conscientia urgente tum officio penitus cogimur, ac omnia ejus capita, omnesque sententias, non solum adprobare sed etiam magnopere laudare. Nitithat our diligence might not be wanting to so great courtesy, and so just a request, as soon as we received your letter, we, all of us, from every town in the neighbourhood, assembled at St. Andrews, the most flourishing city as to divine and human learning in all Scotland; and there, as speedily as we could, when we had read over the book, we considered each chapter by itself, and left nothing unexplored, and diligently examined everything respecting God, the sacred laws and rights of the Church, and it is impossible to express the exceeding delight we derived from that work, when we clearly perceived that in your little book was most faithfully, holily, piously, and indeed divinely explained, and that briefly whatever we have been constantly teaching these eight years, and still by the grace of God, continue to teach, in our Churches, in the schools, and in the pulpit.

We are therefore altogether compelled, as well by our consciences, as from a sense of duty, to undertake its patronage, and not only to express our approval, but also our exceeding tur enim libellus ille prorsus literis sacris quas et profitemur et capitis periculo vel etiam sanguinis profusione parati sumus tueri. Subscriptimus autem omnes qui per angustiam concessi temporis interesse poteramus et hujus Academiae sigillo publico obsignavimus. Quod si posthac ecclesiis vestris id profuturum putaveris, et subscriptionem hujus Ecclesiae publicam et Confessionis fidei nostrae formulam, trium Ordinum Regni comitiis sanctam, ad te primo quoque tempore mitemus. Illud modo silentio tegere vix possumus quod de nataliciis feriis, de circumcissione, passione, resurrectione, ascensione, Spiritus Sancti missione in discipulos, vigesimo quarto capite dictae Confessionis conscribitur, eas ferias apud nos minime locum obtinere in praesentia; quippe qui non audemus ullum diem festum religiose celebrare nisi quem oracula divina praescripserunt. Caetera, ut diximus, commendation of every chapter and every sentence. For that little treatise rests altogether upon the Holy Scriptures, which we both profess and are prepared to defend at the risk of our lives, or even to the shedding of blood. And we have all of us, as many as by reason of the shortness of the time allowed us, were able to be present, both subscribed our names, and sealed this letter with the common seal of this University. But if you should think that it would be of use to your churches at any future time, we will send you by the first opportunity both the public subscription of this Church, and the formula of our Confession of Faith, confirmed in the Assembly of the Three Estates of the realm. This one thing, however, we can scarcely refrain from mentioning, with regard to what is written in the 24th chapter of the aforesaid Confession concerning the "festival of our Lord's nativity, circumcision, passion, resurrection, ascension, and sending the Holy Ghost upon his disciples," that these festivals at the present time obtain no place among us; for we dare not religiously celebrate any other feast-day than omnia docemus probamus et libentissime amplectimur. Has ad te literas quam brevissime scripsimus ut angustiis temporis pareremus. A te vero magnopere contendimus ne tuæ erga nos familiaritatis consuetudinem eam incoeptam intermori sinas. Id si sedulo feceris nos parem tibi gratiam referre conabimur. Dominus Jesus tuos tuorumque fratrum pios conatus ecclesiæ Christi incremento quam diutissime fortunet. Vale, Andreapoli pridie nonas Septembris anno Domini 1566.¹

what the divine oracles have prescribed. Everything else, as we have said, we teach, approve, and most willingly embrace. We have written you this letter as briefly as possible, in consequence of the shortness of the time. But we earnestly request you not to allow the friendly correspondence now commenced between us to die away. If you will diligently do this, we will endeavour to return you the like favour. May the Lord Jesus prosper as long as possible the pious exertions of yourself and brethren for the increase of the Church of Christ! Farewell.

At St. Andrews, 4th of September 1566.

Your most loving Brethren in Christ,

JOHN DOUGLASS, Rector of the University of St. Andrews, and Principal of St. Mary's College.

¹ Petrie, in his History of the Catholick Church, Rotterdam, 1662, mentions (what Calderwood has omitted) that "the Superintendents, together with many other most qualified Ministers," having convened at St. Andrews in September 1566, and having read the Letters and Confession of the Churches at Helvetia, etc., sent the answer as above. This Confession of the Kirk of Zürich being translated by Mr. Robert Pont, the General Assembly, at the meeting held the 27th of December that year, "ordained the same to be printed, together with an Epistle sent to the Assemblée of the Kirk of Scotland, approving the same, providing a note be put in the margin, where mention is made of the remembrance of some holy days."—See Booke of the Universall Kirk of Scotland, vol. i. p. 90. Calderwood's History, vol. ii. p. 333. Wodrow Miscellany, pp. 4, 335.

WILLIAM SKENE, Dean of the Faculty of Arts there, and Ordinary Professor of Law in the same College.

JOHN RUTHERFORD, Principal of St. Salvator's College.

WILLIAM RAMSAY, Professor of Humanity in the same College.

DAVID GOULD, Professor in the same.

JOHN DUNCANSON, Principal of St. Leonard's College.

JAMES WYLKIE, in the same.

JOHN WYNNAME, Superintendent of Fife and St. Andrews.

JOHN ERSKYNE, Superintendent of Angus and Mearns.

JOHN SPOTTISWOOD, Superintendent of Lothian.

JOHN KNOX, }
JOHN CRAIG, } Ministers of Edinburgh.

JOHN ROW, Minister of the town of Perth.

ROBERT HAMILTON, Minister of St. Andrews.

DAVID FERGUSON, Minister of Dunfermline.

JOHN NOREIS [URE], Minister of Lucharis.

GEORGE SCOT, Minister of Kirkaldy.

ANDREW FORRESTER, Minister of Dysart.

WILLIAM CLERK, Minister of Anstruther.

ALEXANDER SPENS, Minister of Kilconquhar.

THOMAS JAMESON, Minister of Largo.

JOHN SYMSON, Minister of Scoonie.

THOMAS BYGGAR, Minister of Kinghorne.

DAVID SPENS, Minister of Monimail.

WILLIAM CHRISTIESON, Minister of the town of Dundee.

JOHN HEPBURNE, Minister of Brechin.

THOMAS ANDERSON, Minister of Montrose.

NINIAN CLEMENT, Minister of Aberbrothock.

ADAM HERIOT, Minister of Aberdeen.

DAVID LYNDESAY, Minister of Forfar.

JAMES MELVILL, Minister of Feirne.

JAMES BALFOUR, Minister of Guthrie.

ROBERT PONT, Minister of Elgin.

DAVID LYNDESAY, Minister of Leith.
 PATRICK KYNLOCHY, Minister of Linlithgow.
 JOHN DUNCANSON, Minister of Stirling.
 ROBERT WILSON, Minister of Dalkeith.
 JOHN BURN, Minister of Musselburgh.
 ANDREW SIMPSON, Minister of Dunbar.
 JOHN BRAND, Minister of Halyroodhouse.
 GEORGE SYLVIVS.

LXXXI.—THEODORE BEZA TO HENRY BULLINGER, ZURICH.¹

I SEND you a specimen of the very extensive correspondence of Knox,² from which you will learn the entire condition of Scotland. I have added the unanimous testimony of the General Assembly of Scotland and of the principal churches,³ and we are of opinion that we must consider whether, since our common Confession is in the course of being printed a second time both in Latin and in German, there should be added to it this testimony of the Scottish churches. We shall do so when we republish the French [version], unless you think otherwise. But it is my wish that you return safely, and as soon as possible, the autograph which I send you. I had intended to send to our Mr. Haller a consolatory epistle; but you see how I have been obliged to hurry, our messenger being in haste. The Lord acknowledge him and us all in the day of His coming. Farewell, my father, and all the brethren who are with you, for whom I here continually pray God that he may more and more bless you and them.

Geneva, 8th of December 1566.

Thine,

BEZA.

¹ Translated from the original scroll among Beza's Letters. (Orig. mss., Geneva, No. 118, p. 550.)

² This letter is not preserved.

³ In the preceding letter, No. lxxx., from the Convention held at St. Andrews.

LXXXII.—EXTRACTS—SIR NICHOLAS THROKMORTON TO QUEEN ELIZABETH.¹

IT maye please your Majestie to be advertized ; I did signefye to Mr. Secretorye, by my lettres of the 11 and 12 of Julye, the daye of myne entrye into Scotlande, the causes of my staye, my lodgyng at Fas Castle, a place of the Lord Hume's, where I was met by the saide Lord and the Laird of Lyddyngton, and what had passed in conference betwixte us whilist I was at the said Fas Castle.² Synce which tyme, accompanied with the Lordes afforesaid, and with 400 horses by theyre appoyntemente for my better conduct, I cam to Edenboroughe the 12 of this present. The 13 beinge Soundaye, appoynted for a solempne Communion in thys towne, and also a solempne Fast beinge publysshed I could not have conference with the Lordes, which be assembled within thys towne, as I desyred ; that is to saye, the Erles of Athell and Moreton, the Lorde Hume, the Larde of Lyddyngton, Sir James Bawfor, Capytayne of the castle, Mr. James Magyll, and the Presydent of the Sessyon. Nevertheles, I made meanes by the Laird of Lyddyngton, that theye woulde use no protracte of tyme in myne audyence ; so I dyd lykewyse to the Earle Moreton, whom I met by chauce. I was aunswered by them bothe that, albeyt the daye weere destyned to sacred exercyses, suche as weere there of the Counsell woulde consulte uppon my mocyon touchynge myne accesse unto them, and my conference with them ; and said, ¹ Most of the letters from which these extracts are made, have been printed entire in a volume edited for the Maitland Club by the Rev. Joseph Stevenson, under this title:—"Selections from unpublished Manuscripts in the College of Arms and the British Museum, illustrating the Reign of Mary Queen of Scotland, M.DXLIII.—M.DLXVIII. Glasgow, 1837. 4to.

² Fast Castle, now in ruins, situated on a bold rocky promontory on the coast of Berwickshire.

also, that in th'afternounge eyther they woulde come to me, or I shoulde heare from them. . . .

Agaynst the 20 daye of thys monethe, there is a Generall Assemblye of all the chirches, shyres, and boroughe townes of thys realme, namelye, of suche as be contented to repayre to theys Lordes to thys towne, where yt is thought the wholle state of thys matter wyl be handled, and, I feare me, mucche to the Queen's dysadvauntage and daunger, oneles the Lorde of Lyd-dyngton and some others, which be best affected unto her, do provyde some remedye. For I perceyve the great nomber, and in manner all, but chyeffye the common people, which have assysted in theys doinges, doe greatlye dysfavour the Queen, and mynde seryouslye eyther her depryvacyon or her destruc-tyon. I have used the best meanes I can (consyderynge the furye of the worlde here), to proroge thys Assemblye, for that appeareth to me to be the best remedye. I may not speake of dys-solucyon of yt, for that may not be abyden, and I shoulde thereby brynge myselfe in great hatred and peryll. The chyfest of the Lordes which be heere preasent at thys tyme dare not shewe so mucche lenytye to the Quene as I thynke they coulde be contented, for fear of the rage of the people. The women be moost furious and impudent against the Quene, and yet the men be mad enoughe; so as a straunger over busye maye soone be made a sacrafyce amongst them. . . .

KNOX is not heere, but in the West partyes. He and the rest of the mynysters wyl be heere at thys great Assemblye, whose austerytye agaynst the Quene I feare as mucche as anye man's. //

By some conference which I have had with some of thys counsell, me thynkethe, they have intellygence that there is a dysposycion in the Quene of Scotland to leave thys realme, and to retyre herselfe eyther into Englaunde or into Fraunce, but moost willinglye into Englaunde, for suche traverces and myslykynges, as she knoweth, hath ben, and is ment unto her in Fraunce, leavyng the regymente of thys realme eyther to a number of persons deleagued and authorized by her, or to some one or moe. . . .

At Edenboroughe, the 14 of Julye 1567.

MR. KNOX arryved here in thys towne the 17 of this monethe, with whom I have had some conference; and with Mr. Cragge also, th'other mynister of thys towne. I have perswaded with them to preache and perswade lenytye. I fynde them both veyre austere in thys conference; what I shall doe hereafter I know not. They are furnyshed with manye arguments; some forthe of the Scriptures, some forthe of hystories, some grounded, as they say, apou the lawes of thys realme, some upon practyzes used in this realme, and some apou the condycyons and othe made by theyre prince at her coronacyon. The Busshop of Gallowaye, unckle to the Earle of Huntleye, hathe sent hether to theys Lordes, that hys nephewe, the Earle, and some others of that syde, maye, at Lyethcoe or Sterlynge, have some comunycacyon with some appoynted on thys syde; assurynge them that there is a good disposycion in the Lordes of thother partye to concurre with theys; affyrmynge further, that they wyll not dysseut for tryfles or unnecessarye thinges, and, as I am gevin to understande, they can be pleased the Quenes restraynte be contynued untill the murder be punysshed in all persones, wherebye the separacyon of the Quene and Bodwell is implied, the preservacyon of the Prynce, the securitye of all men, and a good order taken for the governaunce of the realme in tranquyllytie.

At Edenboroughe, thys 18 of Julye 1567.

THIS day being at MR. KNOX sermon, who tooke a peece of the Scripture forthe of the Bookes of the Kynges, and did inveygh vehementlye agaynst the Quene, and perswaded extremytye towards her, by applicacione of hys texte, I did, after the sermon, move suche of the Counsel as weere present to perswade the Lordes to advyse the preachers not to intermeddle with th'ende of theys matters, untill they were resolved amongst themselves what they were mynded to doe; for otherwyse the Mynisters goinge on so rygowrowslye (as they did in theyre daylye preachynges) might so drawe the multitude from them and theyre resolutions, that thoughe amongst themselves they woulde make choyse of some reasonable ende; yet they shoulde not be hable to brynge yt to passe, the people beinge once by the Preachers argumentes and perswacions settled another waye.

At Edenboroughe, the 19 of July 1567.

MR. KNOX dothe in hys sermons daylye praye for the continacyon of amytie betwixte Englaunde and Scotland, and dothe lykewise admonyshe hys auditorye to eschewe theyre oulde allyaunce with Fraunce as they woulde flye from the pottes of Egypte, which brought them nothyng but sugred poyson; notwithstandinge he dothe continewe hys severare exhortations as well against the Quene as agaynst Bodwell; thretnyng the greate plage of God to thys wholle countrey and natyon yf she be spared from her condigne ponyshement.

The Earles of Mar, Glenkerne, and Cassels, with the rest of theys Lordes assocyatts, wyll be heere, as I am informed, the 24 or 25 of this monethe, and not before.

The Conveneyon of all the churches (whereof I made mencyon in my last to your Majestie), notwithstandinge all my perswacyons to the contraye, dothe houlde; and thys daye (being the 21st of thys monethe) they are assembled in the Tollebowthe, where they do propounde suche matters as they entende to treat of at thys tyme. The Laird of Lyddyngeton hathe trayvaylled with soundrye of the wysest to make them desyste from dealyng in anye matter which doethe concerne the Quene or thys cryme. But, as farr as I can learne, yt wyl be very harde to wyn thys at theyre handes, for they be verye audacious; and yt appeareth theyre hartes be marvelouslye hardened against theyre Soveraygne, which God mollefy.

For as much as I heare an inkelynge that theys Lordes doe meane to desyre me to assyste with them at the coronatyon of the Prynce at Sterlynge, it may please your Majestie that I may knowe your pleasure howe to dyrecte myselfe in that matter, in case I be by them so requyred.

Thus I praye Almightye God to preserve your Majestie in perfecte helthe, longe lyffe, and prosperous felycitie.

At Edenboroughe, this 21 of Julye 1567.

It may please your Majestie that I maye knowe your further pleasure, whether I shall repayre to the Quene of Scotlande and speake with her, accordinge to your Majesties former instructions, in case the Prynce be crowned, and that theys Lordes will accorde unto me acces unto her (as I thynke they wyll not); and lykewyse, that I may know your Majesties further pleasure concerning myne abode heere, synce my commissyon of legacyon ys altered by thys mutacyon, the Prynce beinge invested with the royall estate and dygnetye, and the Quene, hys mother, depryved of the same, which, I thynke, wyll come to passe with in theys three or foure dayes; all the noblytie and gentlemen within this towne beinge readye thys daye to departe hence, to goe hence to Sterlinge, to crown the Prynce with great solempnytie. . . .

The Lordes have shewed me that Tewsdaye, the 29th of Julye, is the daye of the Kynges inauguracyon. Th'Assembley of the churches ys dyssolved, untyll yt be reassembled by the Kynges authoritye. The earles, lordes, barons, lardes, and gentlemen, assembled at thys tyme, have all subscribed to the defence of and mayntenaunce of theyre yonge Kynges regalytie, and to the suppressynge of all adversaryes to the contrarye, without excepcon.

Apon the receypt of thys my dyspatche, I trust yt shall please your Majestie to geve order for my revocacyon forthe of this countrey.

I doe intend to send my cowsen, Henrye Myddlemore, your Majesties servaunte, to Sterlynge, to th'ende he may see theyre procedynges there at thys solemnytie; and also that your Majestie may be the more trulye advertyzed of all suche thynges as shall chaunce there. Thus Almightye God preserve your Majestie in helthe, honour, and all felycytye.

At Edenbrughe, thys 26 of July 1567.

MAYE it please your Majestie, after the wrytynge of the premysses, my cowsen Henrye Myddlemore retorned from Sterlynge to thys towne; by whome I understand thynges have passed at Sterlynge as insuethe. The 29th daye of Julye (as I wrote unto your Majestie in my laste), the yonge Prynce was crowned in the greate churche of Sterlynge by the Busshop of Orkeneye, the Larde of Dun, and Superintendent of Lodyan.

MR. KNOX preached, and tooke a place of the Scripture forthe of the bookes of the Kinges, where Joas was crowned verye yonge, to treat on. Some ceremonyes accustomedlye used at the coronation of theyre prynces weere omytted, and manye reteyned. Th'othe usuallye to be mynistred to the Kyng of thys realm at hys coronation, was taken by the Erle of Moreton and the Larde of Dun on the Prynces behalfe.

The Lordes Lindseye and Rutheven dyd by theyre othe testefye publycklye that the Quene theyr Soveraigne dyd resigne wyllingelye, without compulecyon, her estate and dignytye to her Sonne, and the governemente of the realme to suche persons as by her severall commissyons she had named, which weere there publykelye red, together with her resignation, to her Sonne. After theys ceremonyes weere accomplyshed, great feastes weere made in the Castell to all the noblytie and gentlemen.

At Edinbrughe, thys laste of Julye 1567.

IT maye please your Majestie. The 22 of Auguste th'earle of Murreye was in the towne of Edenbrughe declared Regent of thys realme after thys maner. So manye lordes, barones, and gentlemen, as weere at that present in thys towne, which weere manye, dyd assemble themselves in the Tollebuthe; where the Justice Clerke dyd publykelye read the Quenes commissyon of Regenteye graunted to the sayd Earle, signed with her hande, and sealed with her prevye seale. Which donne, the sayd Justice Clerke wylled the sayd Earle, in the Quene and Kynge her sonnes name, to accepte the sayde charge, and to procede to the takynge hys othe. Whereapon th'earle of Murreye, with great modestye, as I am informed, made a longe discourse conteyninge hys insufficyenteye and dishabylytie for that charge; notwithstandinge, beinge agayne pressed by the sayd Justice Clerke, in the names of the Quene and Kynge, and by the intercessyon of the Lordes and other th'assystauntes, he the sayd Earle dyd accept yt. Whereapon the sayd Justice Clerke dyd mynister unto hym the same othe which th'earle of Moreton dyd make for the Prynce at his coronatyon at Sterlynge; the cotype whereof I doe send your Majestie herewith. Which othe beyngre solempnlye red and made by the sayd Earle, there weere certayne artyckles red unto the Lordes, proposed on the behalfe of the sayd Earle of Murrey, to be consented unto by the sayd Lordes, and promesse made by them and everye of them to be on there partes observed and kepte. Thys donne, th'earle tooke hys place, and there was great joye made amongst all sortes; and immedyatlye after, hys regenteye and aucthorytye was with heraldes and trumpettes proclamed in thys towne at the Hye Crosse, and in other places destyned for that purpose.

At Edenbrughe, thys 23 of Auguste 1567.

To the Quenes mooste excellent Majestie.

LXXXIII.—KNOX TO MR. JOHN WOOD.¹

MY purpose, beloved in the Lord, concerning that which oft and now last ye crave, I wrote to you before, frome which I can not be moved, and, therefore, of my freinds I will aske pardon, howbeit in that one head I play the churle, reteaning to myself that which will rather hurt me, than profite them, during my dayes, which I hope in God sall not be long; and then it sall be in the opinion of others, whether it sall be suppressed, or come to light.² God for his great mercies sake putt suche end to the troubles of France, as the puritie of his Evangellic may have free passage within that Realme; and idolatrie, with the meanteeners of the same, may once be overthrowen by order of justice, or otherways as His godlie wisdom hath appointed. In my opinion England and Scotland have both no lesse cause to feare than the faithfull in France; for what they suffer in present action is laid up in store, lett us be assured, for both countries. The ground of my assurance is not the determination of the Councell of Trent, for that decree is but the utterance of their owne malice; but the justice of God is my assurance, for it cannot spaire to punishe all realmes and nations that is or sall be like to Jerusalem, against whose iniquitie God long cried be his servants the prophets, but found no repentance. The truthe of God hath now of some years bene manifested to both, but what obedience, the words, works, and behaviour of men give sufficient testimonie. God grant Mr. Goodman a prosperous and happie successe in the acceptation of his charge, and in all his other interprises to God's glorie and the comfort of his kirk; and so will I the more patientlie beare his absence, weaning myself from all comfort that I looked to have received be his presence and familiaritie. Becaus I have the testimonie of a good conscience, that in writting that Treatise, against which so manie worldlie men have stormed, and yitt storme, I nather sought myself nor worldlie promotion; and becaus, as yet, I have nather heard nor seene law nor Scripture to overthrow my grounds,¹ I may appeale to a more indifferent judge than Doctor Jewell. I would most gladelie passe through the course that God hath appointed to my labours, in meditacion with my God, and giving thankes to his holie name, for that it hath pleased his mercie to make me not a lord-like Bishop, but a painfull Preacher of his blessed Evangell; in the function whereof, it hath pleased his Majestie for Christ his sonnes sake, to deliver me from the contradicioun of moe enemeis than one or two; which maketh me the more slow and lesse carefull to revenge be word or writt, whatever injury hath been done against me in my owne particular. But if that men will not cease to impugne the truthe, the faithfull will pardon me if I offend suche as for pleasure of fleshe feare not to offend God. The defence and maintenance of superstitious trifles produced never better fruct in the end than I perceave is budding amongst you; schisme, which no doubt is a forerunner of greater desolacion, unless there be speedie repentance. God comfort that dispersed little flock, amongst whom I once lived with quietnesse of conscience and contentment of heart; and amongst whom² I would be content to end my dayes, if so it might stand with God's good pleasure. For, seeing it hath pleased his Majestie, above all men's expectacion, to prosper that worke for the performing whereof I left that companie, I would even as gladelie return to them, if they stood in need of my labours, as ever I was glad to be delivered from the rage of mine enemies. I can give you no reason that I should so desire, other than that my heart so thristeth.

¹ See note to p. 560. This and the next letter are preserved in Calderwood's MSS.

² Knox evidently refers to his History of the Reformation. See vol. i. p. xxix.

The faithfull of your acquaintance here salute you. The grace of the Lord rest with you.—14th of February 1567-8.

¹ In his "First Blast," or Treatise against Female Government.

² The English Congregation at Geneva, where Knox had been Minister.

LXXXIV.—KNOX TO MR. JOHN WOOD.¹

I THANKE you heartilie, deirly beloved in the Lord Jesus, that ye had suche remembrance of me as to certifie of that point which not a little troubled and yit troubleth me. What I have done, or am able to doe in that behalfe, I will not trouble you at this present, this onlie excepted, that it will please you to travell as in the end of your letter ye write ye would doe, to witt, that my Sonnes might be denezans there.² I am informed both by letter and by tongue, besides conjectures that probablie may be gathered, that the Duke and his freinds are inflammed against me. Ofter than once I have called to minde your words to me that day, that I had beene more than vehement as some men thocht, in the end of the [13th] chapter of John's Evangell, concerning the treasonable departing of Judas frome Christ, and of the causes thereof. Before that I came furth of the preaching place, ye said, "Before my God, I thinke, your eyes sall see performed that which your mouth hath pronounced." My words

¹ In volume ii. p. 295, various particulars are given respecting the history of Mr. John Wood of Tilliedavy. He was the son of Andrew Wood of Largo, and was educated at St. Andrews for the Church. In 1548 he accompanied Lord James Stewart, Prior of St. Andrews, to France, and became his secretary when raised to the peerage as Earl of Murray. It is usually said that he was killed in Fife a few days after the assassination of the Regent Murray, his master; but the proper date, as we learn from Pitcairn's Criminal Trials (p. 140), was the 15th of April 1570. In the State Paper Office there is an Exhortation against the Hamiltons, conjectured to be of the end of February 1569-70, in which Wood's slaughter is mentioned. The paper itself is evidently an early transcript of the "Admonition direct to the trew Lordis," etc., by George Buchanan. The following is an extract of the passage relating to Wood:—

"For quhat defence can be in nobilitie, or authoritie, aganis thame that hes murtherit ane king, and sekis strangearis to murthour ane uther? Quhome sall thay spair for vertew or innocency that laillie murtherit the Regent, and yet kepis the murtherare in thair company? Or quha wilbe owersene for law degree or basse estait be thame that fetchit men out of Teviotdaill to Fyff to SLAY MAISTER JOHNNE WOD, for na uther cause bot for being ane gude servand to the Crown, and that he had espyit out sum of thair practizes." This shows that the date of Buchanan's Admonition was subsequent to April 1570. It was first printed at St. Andrews in 1571; and reprinted at London the same year.

² Perhaps meaning their admission to St. John's College, Cambridge.

were these, "I feare that suche as have entered with us in professing of the Evangell, as Judas did with Christ, sall depart and follow Judas, how soon the expectatioun of gaine and worldlie promotioun faileth them." Time will trie farther, and we sall see overmuche. We looke dailie for the arrivall of the Duke and his Frenchemen, sent to restore Satan to his kingdome, in the persone of his deerest lieutenant, sent, I say, to repress religion, not from the King of France, but frome the Cardinall of Lorane in favour of his deerest neice. Lett England take heed, for assuredlie their nighbours houses are on fire. I would, deere Brother, that ye sould travell with zealous men, that they may consider our estate. What I would say, yee may easilie conjecture. Without support we are not able to resist the force of the domesticall enemies (unlesse God worke miraculously), muche lesse are we able to stand against the puissance of France, the substance of the Pope, and the malice of the house of Gwise, unless we be comforted be others than by ourselves. Yee know our estate, and therefore I will not insist to deplore our povertie. The whole comfort of the enemeis is this, that be treason or other meanes they may cutt off the Regent, and then cutt the throat of the innocent King. How narrowlie hath the Regent escaped once, I suppose yee have heard. As their malice is not quenched, so ceaseth not the practice of the wicked, to put in execution the crueltie devised. I live as a man alreadie deid from all affairs civill, and therefore I praise my God; for so I have some quietnesse in spirit, and time to meditat upon death, and upon the troubles I have long feared and foresee. The Lord assist you with his Holie Spirit, and putt an end to my travells, to his owne glorie, and to the comfort of his Kirk; for assuredlie, Brother, this miserable life is bitter unto me. Salute your bedfellow in my name, and the rest in Christ Jesus. The faithfull here salute you. The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ rest with you for ever.

Of Edinburgh, the 10th of September 1568.

LXXXV.—THEODORE BEZA TO JOHN KNOX, RESTORER OF THE GOSPEL AMONG THE SCOTS, HIS VENERABLE BROTHER AND FELLOW MINISTER.¹

GRACE and peace, my Brother, I wish to you and all your holy churches from the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, to whom also I continually give thanks, both for his great goodness towards you, and for your singular constancy and fortitude in maintaining his worship. But, when that honourable and truly Christian declaration of your Assembly, by which you adopted the Confession of our churches, had been laid before me,² some months thereafter I intimated, both to yourself in private and to other brethren by letter, how agreeable and how pleasant to us all, and especially to the brethren of Zürich, was this your union with us in the Lord in all things, which too we trust will be everlasting, and stand firm against the very gates of hell. But, though since that time you have received no letter from me, I would not, my Brother, that you should ascribe it to either contempt or neglect, or even to a press of business, but partly to the want of bearers, of whom, indeed, I had none quite suitable, and partly to the perpetual commotions of these times, from which, although by the special kindness of God the best and greatest this state has as yet been safe, yet, since they are both, as you know, very near us, and chiefly affect those with whom we have necessarily almost all things in common, it is impossible that they should not trouble us also to a grievous extent. But I do not think it necessary to write to you at greater length concerning our affairs, as you can learn them all from this countryman of yours, evidently a very 12mo, p. 333. Also in the republication, "Secunda editio, ab ipso auctore recognita. Genevæ, M.D.LXXV." 8vo. Epist. 74, p. 304.

¹ The original Latin letter is printed as No. lxxiv., in the volume entitled "Epistolarum Theologicarum Theodori Bezae Vezelii, Liber Vnus. Genevæ, excudebat Eustathius Vignon. M.D.LXXIII."

² See supra, No. lxxx. p. 544.

good man, much better than from myself. Let me therefore add but this, that through the grace of God we are still in good health, and with perfect unanimity continue in the same position in which you formerly left us. Nay, this small school of ours has now increased so much that I believe few are better attended. Colladonius¹ and I teach divinity week about. And a third has been added in the person of our Galasius,² whom those troubles in France have driven, with almost innumerable others, into this haven. But two things hinder us from enjoying this solid comfort—one, that our church here increases indeed wonderfully, but it does so out of the ruins of others—the other, that the plague, which afflicted us last year with considerable severity, has a month since begun more or less to revive. Therefore I earnestly entreat of you and the other brethren, that with us you will beseech of God, our most merciful Father, this also, that forgetting our manifold sins he may chasten us indeed, but not rebuke us in his wrath; but rather, which is almost the sole refuge that remains to so many miserable beings, that he may by his own special goodness preserve us from all evil. As to French affairs, at the moment when I write to you, all are reported to us as prosperous, as you will learn from the bearer of this. For although our friends have received a great blow through the loss of that most illustrious hero, the Prince of Condé, yet since that time the Lord has often so refreshed them, that his death seems to have been, and is likely to be in future, a greater cause of sorrow to our enemies than to them. It is certain, indeed, that besides him very few were slain, but among those there were two justly lamented by the army, Castellier a Frenchman, and Stuard your countryman, a man, so far as I can judge, of excellent qualities, both of mind and of ¹ Nicolas Colladon, Rector of the University of Geneva, succeeded Calvin, in 1566, as Professor of Divinity.

² Nicolas Gallasius, in French De Gallars, was for some time minister of the French Congregation in London. He was the author of various works besides translations from Calvin. See vol. iv. p. 291.

body. May the Lord recompense his enemies for this most unworthy slaughter, since both these as well as the Prince of Condé were, contrary to the laws of war, most cruelly put to death after they had surrendered. But such is the lot of good men, especially in this ungrateful age. And I have no doubt (for what we hear from your quarter is rather by rumour than from sure information) that every other year may furnish similar examples among yourselves. But alas, my Brother, what a state of matters is this! For although it is by no means new that they who so very pertinaciously reject the doctrine of peace should be vexed by the spirit of discord, yet is it a sad and sorrowful thing that those who for so many years have so successfully opposed both Satan and the world by patient endurance only should be forced to defend themselves with the sword. However, provided the Lord leads his own, they shall certainly find that he is the sole arbiter both of war and of peace. But I wish we may not experience how difficult, nay, how almost impossible it is so to handle those iron weapons as to keep from hurting oneself. God alone, for whom, to use the words of Paul, we war, can cure this evil as well as all others. To him I render great thanks that he has so often been with you in ways so wonderful, and I trust you will join me in praying for the same favours to our France. But more than enough of so doleful a subject. God grant that I may soon have more and better news.

There were published last week certain prelections of mine on polygamy, divorces, and separations, which I wish you to read and to examine with care where you are. For that purpose I would willingly have sent you some copies of them, had I not been afraid of burdening this friend of ours, who, however, has promised, under favour of God, to convey at least one copy to you. Moreover, the calumnies of certain very troublesome persons compelled me to publish a sort of trifle, of which I send you two copies, one for yourself, in order that, when you also are disposed to trifle, you may seriously remember your Beza ; the other for Mr. Buchanan, who, I hope, is with you and well, and to whom I send my regards as those of an old friend. Our whole Assembly salute you and all your colleagues much in the Lord, the common Author and Defender of this our union. I especially pray you, my Brother, that you will continually remember in your prayers me, a most miserable sinner and useless insignificant man, on whom God has laid such a burden, that I may one day stand in some manner without blame before his judgment seat ; and Him in return I ask to support, by his holy and powerful Spirit, yourself and that illustrious deliverer of yours,¹ so often wonderfully preserved to you, whom I salute with all humility. Nor do I ask this of you alone, my Brother, but also earnestly entreat it of your whole Assembly of most excellent and learned men, whom all may the Lord Jesus most effectually preserve, defend, and guard, to the glory of his name, and the sure and solid edification of all the churches, to which you are indeed a singular example. Farewell.

Geneva, 3d of June 1569.

How well, my Brother, you act in uniting Discipline with Doctrine ! I beseech and conjure you so to persevere, that it may not happen to you as it has to many, who, having stuck in the threshold, cannot proceed farther, nay, sometimes even will not, a result by far the most miserable of all.

LXXXVI.—KNOX TO A FRIEND IN ENGLAND.

The dayes of trouble and affliction appeare ; but they shall end ; to the comfort of suche as patientlie suffer for righteousnesse sake.

IF frome day to day thir seven yeeres by past, I had not looked for an end of my travells, I could have no excuse of my obstinat fault toward you, beloved in the Lord, by whom I have received, beside commendations and letters, diverse tokens of your unfained freindship. Yit have I negligentlie pretermitted all office of humanitie toward you, wherinto, I acknowledge my offense. For albeit I have beene tossed with manie stormes, all the time before expressed, yit might I have gratified you and others faithfull,¹ with some remembrance of my estate, if that this my churlish nature, for the most part oppressed with melancholie, had not stayed tongue and penne from doing of their duetie. Yea, even now, when that I wold somewhat satisfie your desire, I find within my self no small repugnance. For this I find objected to my wretched heart: "Foolish man! what seekes thou, in writting of missives in this corruptible age? Hath thou not a full satietie of all the vanities under the sunne? Hath not thy eldest and stoutest acquaintance buried thee in present oblivion; and are not thou in that estate, by age, that nature it self calleth thee frome the pleasures of things temporall? Is it not then more than foolishnesse unto thee, to hunt for acquaintance on the earth, of what estat or condition so ever the persons be?" To these objections I could answere nothing (muche more, I thinke, than is writtin), but that I wold write, with what imperfections I little regard.

¹ Evidently meaning the Regent Murray.

Now, Brother, this is the thing I must write. I see England become more foolishe, than foolishe Scotland. For foolishe Scotland wold not obey the mouth of God, when he had delivered that vile adulteresse, and cruell murtherer of her owne husband, in their owne hands, to have suffered, as her iniquitie deserved; and therefore now sob they for the foolish pitie. In the meane time, what doeth England, some time reputed, in judgement and counsell, nothing inferiour to the wisest in Europe? Doeth it travell to amend our errors, and to tak away God's vengeance, which inevitable must fall upon that wicked Woman, and upon all that assist and mainteane her in that impietie? I heare, alace! the contrarie. For, uniting of the two realmes, by mariage of that wicked woman upon the man to whom I wishe a better lucke, is heere divulgat; which being refused upon our part, we are boasted with fire and sword, and that wicked woman sall be placed in authoritie again. If this phrenesie of England, in some case, doeth not justifie our former foolishnesse, this same age will beare witnessse.

¹ This remark may account for the interruption of Knox's correspondence with Mrs. Anna Lock and other friends in England, alluded to, supra, p. 523.

I know ye wearie of suche talke, and so I am assuredlie, in writting and remembring the same. And therefore I cease farther to trouble ather you or my self, beseeeking God, that to his glorie I may finishe my dayes, before that the extremitie of that trouble beginne; and that ye may live manie good dayes, after that that woe be bypast.—Amen. Salute the faithfull of acquaintance in my name, and rest in Christ Jesus.

Off Edinburgh, the 19th of August 1569.

LXXXVII.—EXTRACT, MAITLAND OF LETHINGTON TO MARY QUEEN OF SCOTS.¹

I HAVE of late dealt with dyvers ministers here, qwha will not be repugnant to a good acord, howsoever I think Nox² be inflexible. The L. of Grange, qwha by reason of this Castel may do mekle, wilbe conformable; for qwham I dare ansour he bearis yow as good will as any subject yow have, albeit for his own reputation he will ever preas to dres good wayes for .X.³ qwhilk he thinkis mon rather be drawne on be necessity, qwhan he fyndis himself in ane straitte, then that ever he wil yeald before hand, quhil he se aparande danger. In the meane season, I wald ye found the meane, if it be possible, to keepe .X. stil on the Borders, and that the officers of England dryve tyme with him, maters will frame the better in the incountry. I had no sufficient leasour to wryte to A. [the D. of Norf.] to this end.

¹ This letter is written in cyphers, but the extract is given from a contemporary deciphered copy which accompanies it.

² In the deciphered manuscript Knox's name is so written.

³ This, no doubt, refers to Sir Andrew Ker of Fernyhurst.

From the Castle of Edinbourg, the xx of Septembre [1569].

LXXXVIII.—KNOX TO SIR WILLIAM CECILL.

BENEFITES of Goddes hands received, crave that men be thankful, and daunger knowen wold be avoided. Yf ye strik not att the roote, the branches that appear to be brocken will budd againe (and that mor quicklye then men can beleue) with greater forse then we wolde wyshe. Turn your eie unto your God, forgett your self and youres when consultation is to be had in materis of such weght as presently lye upon you. Albeit I have been fremmedly handilled, yet was I never enemy to the quietnes of England. God grant you wisdome. In haist, of Edinburgh, the 2 of Januar 1569[-70].

Youres to commaund in God,

JOHN KNOX, with his one foote in the grave.

Mo daies then one wold not suffice to express what I think.

To the ryght worschippfull Sir Williame Cicill, knyght, principall Secretary to the Quenes Majestie and Consall of Englonde. Deliver these.

LXXXIX.—PRAYER USED BY JOHN KNOX AFTER THE REGENT MURRAY'S DEATH.

THE heart of Mr. Knox (says Calderwood)¹ was so heavie and dolorous after the murder of the Regent, that the day following (being the Lord's Sabboth), in the closure of his sermon, hee publiklie bewailed the great losse that the Church and State had by the death of that vertuous nobleman, and declared, that as God in his mercie giveth good and wise rulers, so hee taketh them away from a people in his wraith : Yea, in a most mourn-

¹ History, MS. 1636.

full maner he poured forth the grieffe and sorrow of his soule, by fervent supplication before the Lord, as followes :—

O LORD ! what we shall adde to the former petitions we know not ; yea, alace, O Lord, our owne consciences bear us record that we are unworthie that thou should either encrease or yet continue thy graces with us, be reason of our horrible ingratitude. In our extreme miseries we called, and thou in the multitude of thy mercies heard us ; and first thou delivered us from the tyrannie of mercieless strangers, next, from the bondage of idolatry, and last, from the yoak of that wretched Woman, the mother of all mischief, and in her place thou didst erect her Sonne, and to supply his infancie thou didst appoynt a Regent endued with such graces as the Divell himself cannot accuse or justly convict him, this only excepted that foolish pity did so farre prevaill in him, concerning execution and punishment which thou commanded to have been executed upon her, and upon her complices, the murtherers of her husband. O Lord, in what miserie and confusion found he this realme ! And to what rest and quietnesse now be his labours suddanlie he brought the same, all Estates, but speciallie the poor Commons, can witness. Thy image, Lord, did so clearlie shyne in that personage, that the divell, and the wicked to whom he is prince, could not abyde it. And so to punish our sinnes and ingratitude, who did not ryghtlie esteem so pretious a gift, thou hes permitted him to fall, to our great grieffe, in the hands of cruell and traeterous murtherers. He is at rest, O Lord, and we are left in extreme miserie ! Be mercifull to us, and suffer not Satan utterly to prevaill against thy little flocke within this realme, neither yet, O Lord, let bloode thirsty men come to the end of their wicked enterprises. Preserve, O Lord, our young King ; although he be ane infant, give unto him the spirit of sanctification, with encrease of the same as he groweth in yeares. Let his raigne, O Lord, be such as thou may be glorified, and thy little flock comforted by it. Seeing that we are now left as a flock without a pastor in civill policie, and as a shippe without a rudder in the midst of the storm, let thy providence watch, Lord, and defend us in these dangerous dayes, that the wicked of the world may see that as weill without the help of man, as with it, thou art able to rule, maintain, and defend the little flock that dependeth upon thee. And because, O Lord, the shedding of innocent blood he ever been, and yet is odious in thy presence, yea, that it defyleth the whole land where it is shed and not punished, we crave of thee, for Christ thy sonnes sake, that thou wilt so try and punish the two treasonable and cruell murderers latelie committed, that the inventars, devysers, authors, and maintainers of treasonable crueltie, may be either thoroughlie converted or confounded. O Lord, if thy mercie prevent us not, we cannot escape just condemnation, for that Scotland hath spared, and England hath maintained, the lyfe of that most wicked woman. Oppone thy power, O Lord, to the pryde of that cruell murderer of her owne husband; confound her faction and their subtile enterprises of what estate and condition soever they be; and let them and the world know, that thou art a God that can deprehend the wise in their own wisdome, and the proud in the imagination of their wicked hearts, to their everlasting confusioun. Lord, retain us that call upon thee in thy true fear. Let us grow in the same. Give thou strength to us to fight our battell, yea, Lord, to fight it lawfullie, and to end our lives in the sanctification of thy holy name.

XC.—RANDOLPH TO SIR WILLIAM CECILL.

I DOWTE not but your Honour desirethe to knowe with what sollemnitie the Regent was buried, which I could not wryte in my other lettres for lacke of tyme. He was broughte from bysyde Lythcowe te Leethe by water, and from thens secretlie to the Abbaye, untill the morninge, that he was brought by the Noble men to St. Giles Church. The bourgessis of Edensbourge and Leethe wente before hym; nexte them gentlemen of the countrie, and divers Lordes; then followed the Corse, caried by the Earles of Morton, Marre, Glancarne, and Cassels, Lordes Lindesaye, Glammes, Ocletrie, and Ruthen; ther caried his standarde before hym the Larde of Graynge, and his coate armour the Larde of Clysshe, master of his housholde, bothe upon horsbacke; his servants followed hym in their murninge apparell, with as greate sorrowe as ever I sawe. Ther preached Mr. Knox upon thys theme, Beati Mortui qui in Domino Moriantur.¹ This is all that I can wryte hereof.

At Edenbourge, the xxiith of Februarie 1569 [-70].

Your Honours to commande,

THO. RANDOLPHE.

To the right honorable Sir William Cecill, knight, Principall Secretar to the Quenes Majestie.

XCI.—LETTERS TO KNOX FROM ENGLAND, AFTER THE DEATH OF THE REGENT EARL OF MURRAY.²

IN tyme of a public Conventioune of the Estates which was holden shortly thereafter [in March 1570], Mr. Knox received letteris out of England, from diverse worthie learned and godlie divines, declaring their great inward grieffe for the untimelye death of such a greatlie renowned and truelie religious Regent. Lawrence Humfrie,³ doctore of divinitie of England, desyred him

¹ Calderwood's account of the Regent's funeral (MS. 1636) may be quoted:—"Upon Tuesday, the 14th of Februar, the Regent's corpse was caried from the Abbey of Holyroodhouse to the great Kirk of Edinburgh, and was buried in the South Ile. Mr. Knox made a sermon before the buriall, upon these words, 'Blessed are they that die in the Lord.' Manie of the Nobilitie wer present. He moved three thousand persons to shedd teares for the losse of such a good and godlie governour. The epitaph following, made be Mr. George Buchanan, was engraven in brasse, and set above his tombe—JACOBO STOVARTO, MORAVLÆ COMITI, Scotiæ Proregi, viro ætatis suæ longe optimo, ab inimicis omnis memoriæ deterrimis ex insidiis extincto, ceu patri communi Patria moerens posuit."—(Proceed. Soc. Antiq. vol. i. p. 196.)

² From Richard Bannatyne's Memorials, compared with Calderwood's MSS.

³ In Calderwood's MS., "Umfride."—Dr. Lawrence Humphrey, an eminent scholar and divine, was Queen's Professor of Divinity at Oxford, and successively Dean of Gloucester and Dean of Winchester. He died in February 1589-90.—See account of his life and writings in Wood's Athenæ Oxonienses, by Bliss, vol. i. pp. 557-561.

to put in memorie the death and lyfe of the Regent, laitie and shamefullie murthered.

MR. JOHN WILLOCK,¹ preacher, writis as followes against the murther, word be word :

It grieveth me so to write, that I can not write ony thing as I think, twiching the crueltie of these bloudie beastes (the Hammiltounes, he meanes), that devised and practised that abhominable and bloudie fact. The Lord revenge it ! And I put no doubt but that filthie fact hes so fillet thair coupe of the jugmentis of the eternall God, that their restis nothing for thame but the drinking up of the same, to thair everlasting schame and confusioune ; for the whole Church of God called and cryed, besydis the voce of the bloud itself, Vindica Domine Deus sanguinem innocentis ! And lykas, by the just judgment of God, the Benjamites wer in ane maner, routed out, so hath this cruell fact craved (not only in my judgment, but in the judgment of all upricht myndit men heir) the lyke judgment. God work in thame trew repentance, gif it be possible, when the servantis of God doe so agrie in threatning of the wicked ! The wicked, be thai never so proude, thai have cause to feir !

¹ In the biographical notice of WILLOCK, prefixed to his correspondence with the Abbot of Crossraguell in 1559, in the Wodrow Miscellany, p. 264, and also supra, p. 446, I conjectured that he died about the year 1574. From letters in the State Paper Office, I find that Willock had been connected with the church of Loughborough, in the county of Leicester; having obtained the living from the patron, Henry Duke of Suffolk, to whom he had been chaplain. The Duke was succeeded by the Hastings family, Earls of Huntingdon; and Willock was probably advanced to be Rector on the death of the former incumbent, in August 1561. He seems to have retained this living during his protracted residence in Scotland. Knox's letter to him in the name of the Assembly had the effect of bringing him back to this country in June 1568 (see p. 445). He was chosen Moderator of the two following meetings of the General Assembly in July and December that year; but he appears soon after to have returned to England. From the Parish Registers, we learn that "Master John Willocke, preacher and parson of this parish church of Loughborough, departed this life the 4th day of December, and was buried the 5th, being Sunday, in the year of God 1585." —Nichols's History and Antiquities of Leicestershire, vol. iii. p. ii., pp. 892-900.

MR. CHRISTOPHER GOODMAN,¹ whose lyfe and learning the verie wicked can not bot praise, after his dolorous complaint, writteth thus anent the Regentis deathe :—

The floure of Scotland, the crowne of nobilitie, the pillar of peace, the patrone of a godlie governement, and signe of Godis favour, hes taken his leave, and gone (I doubt not) to our mercifull God, whom he served; but woe to those devilish heidis which this foul devilish murther have devysit! Woe to that unnaturall monster, enemie to God and his countrey, and fullie possessit with Sathan, that hes beine the instrument! And woe to the whole nobilitie, and to all that profess the name of Godis peopill, gif this be nocht extremlye sought fourth, and revenged; as was the abused wife of the Levite amongis the Benjameitis! Lat yit the devysaris of the murther take heid, for God sieth thame, and his servantis smellis thame furth!

The Conventioun dissolving without resolutioun, the Erle of Mortone, bewitched also be the Secretar, left Edinburgh and past to Abirdeine, of purpose (as some alledgit) to consult with the Secretaris band; and spake with Huntlie and Athole in Drymmen; whair of the faithfull conceaved no small jelosie.

The Secretare and the Capitane of the Castell, named Sir William Kirkcaldie of Grange, knyght, a man sometymes of most honest fame and credite within this realme among the faithful, but now wrapped in factione and treason, with that most treasonabil traytour, whome the Lord sall confound, and all that in his impietie mainteanis him! Theise two, I say, as thai raiset the trouble upoun the Bordoure, be these tuo fyrebraindis, Phernherst and Balcleuche, so thai travellit with all diligence to alienat the hartis of all Scottismen fra the Queine of England; and spaired nocht to speike, that gif we seik England for maintenance of the King and punishment of the murther, they sall seik France and Spaine for the restoiring of the Queine, murtherer.

¹ He was Knox's colleague at Geneva. See supra, vol. iv. pp. 556-560.

Lord, yit oppone thy power to thair pryde! And thus I end this yeir, with a dolorus hart, the 24 of Marche 1569[-70]. Lord give thy Spreit, in abundance, to sic as it sall pleis thee to appoynte, to write efter me these thingis which I but ruidlie twiche!

XCII.—KNOX TO SIR WILLIAM DOUGLAS OF LOCHLEVEN.¹

AFTER harty commendatioun of my service unto you, rycht wyrshipfull I received your missive this last of March, perceaving tharby the bruite that ye hear of the purpose of some to tack the Castell of Sanctandrois, quhilk bruite I easely beleve be not alltogidder vane; for men will not fail to hurt what thei can the quietnes of this realme, and to reenter in thare usurped possessioun and unjust uplifting of the fruitis that never justlie did apperteane to sick idill bellies. How sick trublaris may be stayed of thare interprises, I remitt to God, to whose counsall I committ yow in that and all other cases worldly, for I have tacken my gude nycht of it, and therfor bear with me, gude Sir, albeit I writ not to the Superintendent of Fyff in the actioun that ye desyr; as concernyng the excuse of the tua ministeris, to our Superintendent, I shall do the best that I can when I meitt with him, and thus, with my harty commendatioun, I committ you to the protectioun of the Omnipotent.—Of Edinburghe, the sam hour I received youris, this Friday, att 5 after none (31st March), 1570.

Yours to power in God, trubled in body,

JOHNE KNOX.

To the Ryght Worshepful the Lard of Loghlevin.²

¹ Sir William Douglas of Lochleven, in 1588 succeeded to the title and honours of the Earldom of Morton. He survived till 1606.

² The original of this letter is in the possession of the Earl of Morton. The accompanying facsimile was engraved for the "Register of Ministers," etc., 1567, contributed by Mr. Macdonald to the Maitland Club in 1830; and was afterwards used for the "Morton Papers."

After the solemn remembrance of my former but now forgotten Saviour and myself - the gift of many precious things the Lord has we hear of the people of Israel to take the staff of Moses under the hand of the Lord - but not all together - for they will not fall to give up their own - quarters of 116 200 - and to receive in their several possessions and just uplifting of the firmly the noble faithful and obedient to state of the how like bubble man - the word of the Lord - I will to God to what I can do in that and all of it and worthy for / since I have my end of it and if I live to me and for all that I put out to the splendour of the which that we desire as when many the spirit of the for a moment to be splendour / shall do it - but I will and will / meet it / and I do to my such remembrance
I must you to the protection of the splendour of the the firm and / remember you / the finding out / after may 1870

to the most merciful
the Lord of Hosts

may be your good friend in love
John King

XCIII.—KNOX AND KIRKCALDY OF GRANGE, 1570-1571.¹

THE Queinis suddan hamecuming trotted in the mouthis of all the Kyngis enemeis. Yule [25th December 1570] was apointed for the last day. The postis gat no rest betwix the Castle of Edinburgh and the north, whair the Secretar, that grit god to the Captane, called Sir William Kirkcaldie of Grange, knycht, whose confederacie with the Kingis enemeis was long befor sene and suspected of mony. But yit the former honestie of the man stayed the hartis of all the faithfull in thair former gude opinione of him, unto such tyme as his rebellione so brusted furth as none culd excuse it. The mater fell out as followes :—

Johne Kirkcaldie, sone to umquhill Patrike Kirkcaldie, father-brother to the said Sir Williame, now Laird of Grange, receaveth some injurie in the toun of Dumfermeling, be one George Durie, as efter wilbe declaired, in whose cumpany was one Henrie Seatoun, who schort thair-etter repairing to the toun of Edinburgh, his busines being endit, was to return to his master ; and being fordwart in his jorney with his horse, which was boated at Leith, and he himself in reddines to have entered, the Lairde of Grange, captane, had gevin charge to sex of his principall servantis to stryke the said Henrie with a batton, in recompense of the injurie done to his kinsman, who attending upon the said Henrie presentit the batton to him upon the schoir of Leithe. The said Henrie, beinge unpatient to be dunge as a doge, maid him for defence, and hurt ane of the sex ; who, being unmyndfull of thair chairge receavit, left the batton and fell to the scharpest waponis thai had, and so set upon and schortly and cruellie murdered him, after that the cable of ane anker had taken his feit from him ; and socht to win thair strenth, the Castle, be speid of fute. One of the number, named Fleyming, was apprehendit, and put in the Tolbuithe of Edinburgh. The captane stormed, and bad intreat his man weill, for he wald not suffer his man to die for obeying his commandement.

That day, which was Thurisday, the 21 of December, he made his preparatiounes without and within. Without, he had the deaconis of the craftis, and be thair meanis the rable of the craftismen (reddie aneughe to uproare and tumult) wer easilie perswadit to fortifie his interpryse. Within the Castle, wer the cannones monted, and a ram was made to make oppin doores. And swa betwix sex and sewin at nycht, the most pairt of men being at supper, his men of weir and servandis ishued out of the Castle, and without ony noyse or clamour come to the Tolbuithe. The number was not grit that made the first assault ; bot the preparatioune made for thair savegarde was not little ; for all the passages be the which men micht be assembled, to have stayed thair enterpryse, were stopped be men armed with culveringis, pickis, and uther long weapones. The darknes of the nicht hid thair faces ; but God will reveale thame, at his guid pleisoure, and a vigilant magistrat mycht easilie smell thaim out ! The Captane himself, accompanied with the Lord Home, keipit the upper waird above the Over Trone to be thair saivegard, that none should cum betwixt thame and the Castle. Farder provisione was made that none shuld have acces to the com-mone bell ; and swa, all thingis put in order, the Laird of Drylay,¹ cheif leader of that band, began to requyre open doores. The jeaveler deny-ing, the ram was put to the worke, and quicklie prevailed aganis all doores ; and so was the house of justice violated, the recent murthurer reft fra the handis of the magistrates,² and libertie proclaimed to all malefactoris that wald take the captanes pairte. In the end, to give defyance to the Regent in his face, the grit ordinance of the Castell began to be dischargit ; and so cannone followed cannone until nyne wer shot. The towne was in grit feire ; but small, yea na, danger was done, except John Wallace hous was shot through, and a corne stake and a barne in the Cannongaite. And so God sent rest for that nycht.

¹ From Richard Bannatyne's Memorials.

Sunday following, which was the 24 of December, Johne Knox preiched ; and omittit not to reprove, as he mycht, sic disorder ; and affirmed that in his dayes he never sawe so slanderous, so malepairte, so fearfull, and so tyrannous a fact ; “ For (said he), gif the committar had bene a man without God, a throat-cutter, and sic ane as had never knowin the workis of God, it had movit me no moir then uther ryotis and enormiteis that my eyes have seine the prince of this world, Sathan, be his instrumentis, wicked men, raise upoun against Jesus Christ now preiched ! Bot to sie starris fall from heavin, and a man of knowledge to commit so manifest treasone, what godlie hart can not but lament, trimble, and feare ? God be mercifull, for the exemple is terrible ; and we have neid all earnestlie to call to God, ‘ lead us not into tentatioune,’ and speciallie to delyver us from the cumpany of the wicked ; for within these few yeiris men wald have luiked for uther fruitis of that man then now buddeth furth !” As the subsequentis will declair.

At this sermonde and particular reprehensioune, the Captane of the Castle was so offendit, that both God and worldlie honestie were forgot in that rage ; for in what furie he burst furth, diverse men of sufficient credite can testifie. But against him will we produce nothing which his awin hand write and plaine factis shuld nocht verefie. That same day, at eftirnoune, he wrote a ticket to Mr. Johne Craig, minister, in

¹ Alexander Crichton of Drylay.

² The above passage might have suggested to Sir Walter Scott his description, in the “ Heart of Mid-Lothian,” of the similar assault on the Tolbooth by the Porteous Mob in 1736.

this sentence ; and send it downe with a servant, wha delyverit it to Mr. Craig, being in the pulpet. The letter is this, writtin with his awin hand :—

Ticket, SIR WILLIAME KIRKCALDIE of Grange, Knycht, to MR. JOHN CRAIG.

This day Johne Knox, in his sermond, openlie called me a murtherer and a throat-cutter ! Whairin he hes spoken farther than he is able to justifie ; for I take God to be my dampnatioune, gif it was my mynd that that manis bloud sould have beine shed, whairof he hes callit me the murtherer. And the same God I desyre, from the bot-tome of my hart, to powre out his vengeance suddainlie upoun him or me, whither of us twae hes bene most desyrous of innocent bloud ! This I desyre yow, oppinlie, in Godis name, to declaire to the people. At Edinburgh Castle, the 24 of December 1570.

This ticket was presentit be the Captanes awin servand to the said Mr. Johne Craig, being in pulpet. But he wisely ansuerit, that he durst reid nathing, in that place, without the knowlege and consent of his churche. And so that dart being shot, the strength of it vanishit. And yit the brute and veritie of it posted from Edinburgh Castell to mae cuntries then one. To schaw his greife and his offence farther against Johne Knox, he directed his complent to the Sessione of Edinburgh ; in forme as followes :—

The LAIRD OF GRANGE, Captane of the Castle of Edinburgh, his Complent upoun JOHNE KNOX, givin in to the Sessione of the Churche of Edinburgh, the 28 of December.

Unto your Wisdomes humblie meanis and schawis I your servitore, and ane of your bretheren, WILLIAM KIRKCALDIE of Grange, knycht : That whair Johne Kirkcaldie, my cowsing germane, being laitlie charged to compeir in ane justice-court halden within the towne of Dumfermel-ing, upoun the xj day of December instant, to pas upoun the assise of certane persownes called for the slaughter of umquhill Johne White in Kirkcaldie, my cowsigne ; at command of the charge, as ane obedient subject, repaired to Dumfermeling in quyet and sober maner, his alone, without armore, luiking for no truble, harme, injurie, or displeasoure to have bene done to him, bot to have lived under Godis peace and the kingis. Nochttheles George Dury and Lowry Dury, brether to the Laird of Dury, and umquhill Henry Seatoun, his servand, with thair complices, come to the said Johne, as he was passand to the kirke of Dumfermeling, and efter few wordis speiking, the said George tuike him with his steikit neive upon the face, as he had bene alto-gether vyle and ignoble, and not in rancke, place, or number of gentile or honest men, without ony offence, provocatione, or occasione gevin be the said Johne in word, deed, or countenance, to be so contemptouslie and shamefullie used. And, in the meine tyme, the said Henry and remanent persounes, being with the said George Dury in cumpany, drew thair swordis, and had slaine the said Johne Kirkcaldie, my cousing, wer not the Proveist of Dumfermeling come and put thame fra him : upoun awld feid, forthocht felony, sett purpose and provisiōe. Efter the which the said Henry Seatoun, not satisfiet with thir injuries, but still malignand and perseverand in his wicked mynd and conceavit malice against me and myne, shortlie come to this burght of Edinburgh, purposelie, as apeired, to put his hatred farther in executiōne against some of my freindis, as indeid sundrie innocent men hes of befor had over grit prooffe of his unmercifull dealing, whair he mycht sie advantage or be maister, which I delyte not farder to reherse nor may serve to manifest the ground and occasiōne of the lait truble. And the said Henry, being thus in Edinburgh, most disdainfully passeth up and down the toun, and most prouddie crossed my servantis gaitis, with sic jeasting and mocking meanes and countenance, as wold have irritate and commovet the most patient fleshe leving ; throw whose contemptuous provocatiōne I was moved, and send certaine of my servandis to Leith to have dung him with ane battone, in semnable maner as he and his complices of befor dung the said Johne Kirkcaldie, my cousing, with thair neives : Which my servandis never drew sword while he had hurt ane of thame, thay nor nane of thame having uther counsall or command of me to shed that manis bloud, as I man ansuer in Godis presence, but onlie, as I have said, to have recompensed the schamefull cuffing and misusing of my kinsman, quibilk I take to be done for my cause, as your Wisdomes may easilie credite it was. For it is notoriouslie knowin, that the principallis of the saidis Henreis bloud (I mean the hous of Dury) hes done to me and myne mony grit offences, grievous injuries, and exorbitant displeasoures, the principall of that hous being the chief author of the deathe and destructiōne of my guidshire,¹ the Laird of Raithe, with the rwyne of his hous. And sensyue, have thay not daylie and continwallie molestit and trubled us, his posteritie and freindis, in our richteous tytles, native rowmes, and auld possessiones ; and yit, praised be God, we never made us to take revenge thair of, be way of deid or bludshed, but patientlie have suffered and susteained the same, as Christianes. Nochttheles, how ignomineouslie I have bene spoken of, in pulpet and publict sermond, upoun Sunday last, the 24 of December instant, be Johne Knox, our minister ; your Wisdomes selves that were auditoris thairto, can beir record. For not allanerlie hes he set me furth, in his said sermond, for a erwell homicide or manslayer, bot als for ane oppin tratoure, unmercifull murtherer, and plane throteutter, designand me be my name, in speciall, geving the auditors to understand that he had certane knowledge, prooffe, and experience of my nature and inclinacione to be bent to murther and bloodshed ; saying also, that when he sawe me in miserie, as vther puir men was, I devysed to have socht my delyverance be bloudshed, bot was stayed thairfra be the counsall of utheris, and nocht be my owin inclinacione ; which I take God to witness is nocht of veritie. Which particular accusatioune was expres contrare the actis, ordinances, and practises of our Kirke, observit in sic cases ; namelie, at the first admonitione, and aganis the rewle of Christiane charitie. And sua, in effect, hes accused, injured, and sclanderit me, in most opprobrious and particulere maner, befor ony admonitione, citatioune, or declaratioune ; and, swa far as in him lyes, condempnd me, befor tryall of my caus or declaratore preceeding ; whilk, probablie, he hes done of private grudge, to alienat the hartis of all honest men fra me, and to make me odious and contemptible, rather than for correctiounes cause. In that he hes past the bowndis of discretione, and left the order and custome of ane cairfull pastore in his rigorous and particulare threatningis, without admonitione or tryall preceeding, which mycht rather have cassin me in dispair (as God forbid), then have reduct me in the way of repentence, incaice I had bene culpable and guyltie of sic horrible crymes as he particularlie rehearsed, to my sclander and ignominie ; whair of (praised be God) my conscience is no farder burdenit, then I have declaired to Mr. Johne Craige and Mr. Clement Little.¹ Heirfoir, I beseike your Wisdomes gravely to wey and consider the premissis, and how far our minister hes transcendit his bowndis, in his speciall accusatioune and sclandering of me, chargene me wrangouslie and partiallie with sic greivous offences as are befor expressit ; And, thairfoir, your Wisdomes, be your judgment and auctoritie, will caus me to be repaired to my honour, and restored to my guid name and fame, in the self same place quhair I was so sclanderouslie calumniat, befor admonitione gevin, and cognitione tane in my caus : And thairin regard, indifferentlie, the offence of the minister, being bot fleshe and blood, and cled with manlie passiones, as uther in the flocke are. And in sa far as I, in ony wayis, have bene offensive to the Kirke, I am content, with all humilitie, at tyme and place convenient, to submit my self to your Godly willis and correctiounes. And your Wisdomes ansuere humblie I beseike.

¹ "Guidshire," grandfather : his mother being the eldest daughter of Sir John Melville of Raith.

This lettre offerit to the Sessione, and red in the same, it was thocht

¹ Mr. Clement Little, who died in 1580, was one of the Commissaries of Edinburgh. He may be said to have been the founder of the Library of the University of Edinburgh, having bequeathed his books for the use of the ministry, marked as "Gevin to Edinburgh, and Kirk of God," etc.

most reasonabill that the copie thair of sould be send to the pairtie accused ; who long befor had bene seike, and never come out in publict, except upoun the Sunday befor noune to make the sermonde. And so the lybell and accusatioune presentit to the said Johnie, (he) gave ane verball answer, that the nixt Thursday he sould answer, in write, to the principall accusatioune ; bot becaus that in it thair was monie thingis impertinent, and some so manifest and deteatable leyis, that with saife conscience, in his nixt sermond, he could nocht pas by thame with silence, he prayed the bretherin that presentit the said complent unto him, humblie to desire the Sessioune not to be offendit with him althocht he defendit his awin innocencie, seing he was ane preicher. Which being granted (as justlie it culd not be denyed), the next Sunday, in his publict sermond, he said—

I am compellit, and that be impudent and manifest lyaris, to crave of yow (loving Auditouris), as ye will ansuer to God, to beir trew and faithful witnessing. I am greivouslie accused, as a bill delyverit to the Sessioune of my kirke dois proport ; and thairfor to yow, as to my competent judges, have I my refuge, desyring yow yit once againe, as ye will ansuer befor the justice seate of God, to spair nothing of the veritie. Is there ony of yow that hard me in this publict place call the Laird of Grange, now Captane of the Castell of Edinburgh, “a cruell murtherer, ane oppin throat-cutter, and one whose nature I had long knowin to be bloud-thristie ?” etc. Or was not the conclusioun of my just reprehensioune and complent direct to the plaine contrair end ? I accused, indeid, that unjust and cruell murther ; I affirmed that the violating of the house of justice to be treason ; and finallie, I compleined that the lyke enormitie and pernitioun exemple I never sawe in Scotland. Not but I had sene murther and rebellione of befor ; ye, I have sene magistratis ganestood, and the supreme magistratis of the croun I have sene besedgit in thair awin tolbuith ; and I have sene condemned persones violentlie reft fra the gallous and gibbet ; but nane of all theis foirnamed can be compared to this last attemptat. For, giff the maisteris and authoris of this last ryote had been knowin befor to have been oppin throat-cutteris, bloud-thristie men, and sic as had bene void of the trew feir of God, I wald have bene no moir movit at this tyme then I have bene at other tymes befor : Bot to sie staris fall from heavine ; to sie men that have felt alsweill Godis judgementis as mercies, in ane pairt ; and to sie men of whome all godly hartis have had a guid opinione ; to sie, I say, sic men so far cariet away, that both God and man are nocht only forget, but also publictlic dispyset, is both dolorous and feirfull to be remembred ; for I have knawin that man in his grittest extremitie, when that he mycht have set him self at fredome be scheding of blood, at the counsall of sober men, he utterly refused all sic crueltie, and take a hasard to the fleshe most feirfull ; which God nochtwithstanding blessed, having respect to the simplicitie of his hart.¹ And thairfoir, then I said, and yit I say, that this exemple in him is the maist terrible exemple that ever I sawe in Scotland. I know that some have made uther repoir ; bot in thair face I say, that of thair father the Devill they have learned to lie ; whairin gif thai continow, without repentance, thai sall burne in hell !”

This meikle being spoiken in oppin pulpet, he made this ansuer following, in write, to have bene gevin in to the Sessioun the nixt Thurisday, for his full ansuer unto the foirsaid lybell or accusatioun :—

The Ansuer of JOHNE KNOX, minister of Christ Jesus, in preiching of his blessed Evangile, to the Complent and Accusatioun of SIR WILLIAME KIRKCALDIE of Grange, Knyght.

To the long narrative preceeding the complent of the said Williame unto your Wisdomes, and his accusatioun of me, I ansuer nothing, save only this : that his owin confessione convicts him to be a murtherer in hart, befor that his servandis committed murther ; indeid, for his owin confessione is, that he, movit be divers misbehaviouris of umquhile Henrie Seatoun, send certane of his servandis to Leith to have dung the said Henry with a batton ; which directione and charge, I avow, was murther befor God, afoir ony bluid was shed. For our maister Jesus Christ, and his Apostle Johne, pronounced the hatreat of the hart to be murther befor God ; yea, Johne affirmes, that ‘ who so loveth nocht his brother is a manslayer.’ The Apostle Paul affirmeth, that “ love worketh no evill.” And so the charge to stryk with a batton imported with it, from the first conceptione therof, murther ; which is burst furth to the knowledge of the world, in mae sortis then one. I utterlie deny that I have done or said ony thing in publict reprehension of the said Sir Williame, repugnant to the dewtie of a faithfull pastore. Yea, I feir not to affirme, that a true pastore nor a faythfull watchman I had nocht bene, gif I had keipit silence at so oppin a sclander, and so proud contempt both of God and man. And this for summar answer to this whole complent ; referring the particularis to farther opportunitie. Whair he complenis that privie admonitiones past not befor, I ansuer, that nather to him nor yit to ony that in sic sort offendis, perteaneth privie admonitione. Bot against so proude and manifest attemptates belongeth publict reprehension, that utheris may feir, according to the commandement of the Apostle Paull (1 Timothy 5). Whair he complainis that I called him “ oppin traytoure, unmerciefull murtherer, and a plaine throat-cutter,” and that I did expres him be his name, giving the people to understand that I had certane knowledge, proufe, and experience of his nature and inclinatioune, to be bent to murther and bloudshed, etc.; becaus that this pairt of his complent and accusatioune is manifestlie fals, and so far contrarious to my wordis, I omittit all ansuer and purgatioum of my self, that only excepted which in publict audience I gave upon Sunday last. But in my rigorous accusatioune, as it pleisit the said Sir Williame to terme the publict discharge of my conscience, and dewtie to God, to his kirke, and to him (then and yit, alace! I feir, sleiping in syn), that my publict denuncia-tiounne of his defectione, I say, is in ony wayis contrarious to the actes, ordinances, and practises of this or ony weill reformed kirke, or yit against the rule of Christiane charitie, I utterlie deny. For in this Kirke, since the erecting of it, this order hes bene observit, that upon the notorietye of sic enormities committed within our owin body, publict declaratioune hes bene made to the whole people, as I suppose your Wisdomes doe well aneugh remember and understand; and thairfor I superseid ony farther probatioun in that heid, and also farther apologic or defence of my self, unles your Wisdomes pleis give me new com-mandement. And so for conclusiounne, I say, the said Sir Williame maist unjustlie accuses me, who hes done nothing, in all that actione, besydis the dewtie of a faythfull pastour. That I am fleshe and bloud, and eded with manly passiones, as he alledges, I never have denyed; bot that ather fleshe or bloud inpyred in me, in rebuking his manifest impietye, that I utterlie deny; praying God, that he may deale with him so faithfullie and so uprichtlie, that ye communicate nocht with his sinnes; bot that it may pleis God so potentlie to worke with yow, that he may be brocht to the deip consideratioune of his feirfull defectione, and so to unfeaned repentance, be continwance whair of he may escaipe the vengeance pronounced, and that inevitablie sall fall upoun all im-penitent persones. And this for ansuer in generall, being reddie, as habilitie of body will serve or suffer, and gif it sall pleis yow to com-mand me, to ansuer every head in particular.

¹ This refers to the escape of Kirkcaldy and two of his companions from Mont St. Michel, in the year 1549, as described in Knox’s History, vol. i. pp. 229, 230.

Youris to command in God,

JOHNE KNOX.

Upon the declaratioune befor said, opiny made in pulpet (which was most true), the Captane tuke new purpose; and whair it was luiketh for that the said Captane shuld in proper persone cometh, and fortified his accusatioune, he send a new bill to the Sessione, the tenour whair of followes:—

New Bill to the Sessione by SIR WILLIAM KIRKCALDIE of Grange, Knycht.

Ryecht reverend ministeris, elderis, and deacons of the kirke of Edin-burgh, unto your Wisdomes, humble meanis and schawis I your servi-tore, and ane of your brethrin, William Kirkcaldie of Grange, knight, forsameikle as I gave, this day aught dayis, ane complement upoun Johne Knox, minister, ament ane part of his preiching be him made the Sondag then preceeding, concerning me; the quhilk, as I was informed by diverse that hard the same, was taene, reported, and understand be thame, and mony utheris, to my grit injury, and sclander, and defamatioune, as at mair lenth is conteinet in my said complement: Nevertheless, I understand that the said Johne Knox, minister, upon Sondag last was, hes declaired, in his sermond, his former sayingis and intent to have bene utherwayis then thai were understand be monie, as said is: As to the lament and amendement of my fault, and not to my hurt, injury, or defamatioune, I am content to give place to the treuth, and credit his awin declaratione, and swa quyet myself in the hope of the mercie of God, and not to unquyet your Wisdomes nor him, be farder persuite of the complement; only desyring, gif it pleis him and yow, for satisfactioun of sic as understoude and reported his sayingis utherwayis then he declaired, to give his saidis wordis and declaratioune in write. Utherwayis, referring the same to God, and end of the same mater, which will declair all. And your Wisdomes ansuer I beseike.

As Johne Knox was passand to the Sessione to ansuer the greivous complement, according to his promeis, this former bill was presentit unto him be two eldaris; quhilk beand red, he said, "I will goe to the Sessione and give my owin ansuer." And so creiping upon his club, came in befor them, and standing, said, "This day was assigned unto me to ansuer the complement of Sir William Kirkcaldie of Grange, knyecht; but becaus, as this lettre proportis, he is nocht willing to persew the same, whatsoever pleises yow pleises me: for, God knowis, I have never bene enimie to that man; and thairfoir, his pursuit ceasing, my defence sall sleip. Bot tuo thingis I man protest and desyre of your Wisdomes: The former, that this my easines to be intreated, nather prejudice my self, nather yit ony of my bretherin, fellow-preichouris; for quhat it is to accuse a minister for the functioun of his office, I suppose ye understand: farther, in this heid, I delay. The second is, that I desyre that ye suffer not the gentle man to sleip longer in his syn. He is snared by Sathan. It is your deutie to have compassion upon him, and, thairfoir, Superintendent, I pray yow, for the mater cheiflie tuiches yow, be faithful, and stout in your office. Admonishe him of his offence committed against God, against the partie, against the Kirke, and cheiflie against the magistrate." Heirupon was the Superintendent of Lowthiane direct to the Castell. But ansuer is not yit (to wit, the last of Februar) reported to the Sessione. But the brute came to the eares of some, that the Captane had satisfiet the Superintendent, in all thingis; and wald satisfie the Kirke, as thai wald command. But in the mean tyme, the brute went that Johne Knox had recanted, and had asked the captane mercie.

The next Sunday after, the said Johne Knox, in his sermond, declared the nature of trew repentance; and in the end, concludit that unfearned repentance brocht with it humiliatioune without excuse, and true humiliatioune procured of God delay of plagues, how scharplie that ever they were pronounced, at least for a tyme; and that heid he set fourth be the historie of Elias, who in his face rebucked Achab of Naboths slauchter, who was not participant their of, bot be approbatioune, when the fact was done.

This sermond did exasperat the Captane agane, and put him in a new raig. The fourt Sunday, it chanced the Ladie Murray to be in Edinburgh, for whose caus, to wit, to salute hir, the Captane came to the sermond (as he had nocht bene befoir almost ane whole yeir). He brocht at his back the principall murtheraris, and sic as had befoir brocken up the Tolbuithe. Johne Knox was quicke in that sermond against all sic as forget Godis benefits received, and entreating of Godis grit mercies bestowed upoun penitent sinneris. According to his commoun maner, he forewarned proud contempneris, that Godis mercie aperteined not to such as with knowledge prouddie transgressit, and after moir prouddie menteaned the same. All that scharpnes the said Laird of Grange tuike, as spoken against his persone only; and spake his pleisoure to moe then ane or twa.

Upoun this new displeasoure, the brute therof ran to all partes; swa thair is no tydingis, but this is one, that the Laird of Grange hes sworne him enemie to Johne Knox, and will slay him. Whairupoun, the bretherin of the West wrot this lettre to the Captane, as follows:—

Letter from the Bretherin of the West to the LAIRD OF GRANGE.

He that continowis to the end salbe savit.

SIR,—After hartlie commendatioune in the Lord; forsamcikle as into this our assemblee at Ayre, the secund of Januare, we have hard be report of some, that not only ye have conceived ane offence against our brother JOHNE KNOX, but also that ye are purposet to injure him be sum way of deid (a thing hard to be beleived of us): for albeit in materis of civile regiment ye doe not fullie agrie with us, yit in the actione of religione, God hes heirtfoire sa far used your labouris to the furtherance thairof, that ye have not bene a simple professore only, but also a chiefe defendar thairof, with the hasard of your lyfe, landis, and guidis: And, thairfoir, hard it is to perswade us that ye shuld be movit to doe ony harme to him, in whose protectione and lyfe (to our judgment) standis the prosperitie and incres of Godis Kirke and religione; and so, be the injureing of him, to cast doun that worke which with so grit labouris and manifold dangeris ye have helpit to build. Yit, nocht-theles, the grit cair that we have of the personage of that man, whome our God hes made both the first planter, and also the cheif waterer of his Kirk amonges us, and moves us to write these few lynis unto you ; protesting, that the death and lyfe of that our said brother is to us so pretious and deir, as is our owin lyves and deathis. Desyring to have a plaine declaratioune of your mynd in this matter with this beirar, whom we have directed unto yow with farther credite. And this nocht trubling yow with farder wryting, we committ yow to the regiment of the Spreit of God. From Ayre, the 3 of Januare 1570[-1].

GLENCAIRNE.	HEW WALLACE of Carnall.
VCHILTRIE.	JOHNE FOULERTOUN of Dreghorne.
CUNNYNGHAMEHEID.	JOHNE CATHCART of Carriltoun.
WILLIAME CUNYNGHAME of Caprintoun.	GILBERT KENNEDY of Dalquharran. JOHNE NEILSONE of Craigcaffie.
BARGANYE.	HEW KENNEDY of Benname.
JOHNE LOCKHART of Bar.	THOMAS KENNEDIE of Lamby.

XCIV.—LIBELS UPON KNOX, AND HIS ANSWERS.¹

MARCH 1570-71.

SHORT efter . . . the General Assemblie of the Kirke was to conveine in Edinburgh, to wit, upoun the first day of March 1570[-1]. Befoir this Assemblie, thair was no small boast, that the Captane of the Castle wuld accuse Johne Knox of the reproving of his murther, and of his uther enormities done ; which the said Johne heard of diverse, patientlie did abyde the time appointed, not omitting his dewtie upoun the Sunday, as the text offered occasiune. But when the Assemblie was full, and a day was past, nothing was heard ; whairat mony marvellit.

That Tuysday nycht, the secund day of the Assemblie, ther was a brawade,² or ellis a foolishe vanitie, devysed in the Castell. The one pairt of the Captanes souldieoris touke upoun thaim to scirmishe in maner of ane assault to the Castle ; the uther pairt, with his gentlemen, tuike the defence and keiping of the Castle. The skyrmeis begouth about eight houris at nycht, and so continowed quhill efter nyne. Question was demandit from the hous, “ What thei were that trubled the Captane under silence of nycht ? ” It was ansuerit (as the feares was devysed), “ The Queine of Englandis armie.” Thare began flyting, and sic flyting as commounlie we have nocht hard ; for besydis thir wordis, “ Away lubbard ! ” “ Away blewcoate ! ” “ I defy thee, whytcoite ! ”

¹ From Richard Bannatyne's Memorials.

² Bravado.

“Dyrt upoun your teithe !” “Hence knavis, and go tell that whore your maistres, sho sall nocht come heir !” “We lat you to wit, that we have men, meit, and ordinance for sevin yeiris !” And so about the end of the scirmishing, the Castle began to discharge cannones, first ane, syne ane uther, and last the third ; and so shortlie, the counterfourt assualtaris touke the flicht, and quytne was in the toun for that nicht.

At diverse tables wer diverse communicatiounes, and amongis utheris, Johne Knox, sitting with two bretherin, said, “I could expone, gif I myght speike, the mysterie of yon thrie cannones ; but becaus the nicht is fare spent, and I may nocht weill speike, I conclud with this sentence of Salomon, Ante ruinam præit fastus, “Befoir destructiounne goeth pryde,” etc. : I sawe als grit bravetie in the Castle of Sanct Androis, and yit few dayis brocht a miserable desolatione.”

The third day of the Assemblie thair was a lybell, without name, in a counterfuite hand cassin in, and fra the house of the Lordis fell into the Assemblie hous. The tenor of it, as salbe eftir declaired, was to accuse Johne Knox. The lètre being presented to the said Johne, he willed the same to be made manifest to the moderatour and bretherin of the Assemblie ; desyring thame onlie to give him place to ansuer for him self. Utheris thocht it not expedient, suddainlie, but rather to suffer tyme to wirke, that the compleners mycht open farther of thair myndis ; and so that day it passed by with silence.

The nycht following, this same lybell, with some additione, was affixed upoun the Assemblie doure ; the tenour whairof, together with Mr. Knox his marignall observations followeth :—

Unto yow, rycht honorabill Superintendentis, Ministeris, and Kirk of God, presently assembled within this burcht for reformatiounne, humble meanis and compleanis your fellow memberis¹ of Jesus Christ, professing ane self Religione with you, upoun Johne Knox, minister of this burcht. That quhair, upoun Sunday last bypast, and diverse utheris tymes of befoir, the said Johne, contrair to his professione, opinlie, in this kirk of Edinburgh, maist seditiouslie² detracted, rayled, and invyed against our soverane ladie,³ the nobilitie, and uther subjectis of this Realme, professing her grace obedience, naming her ane idolatres, and murtherer, and ane adulteres,⁴ and her subjectis, menteaneris of adulterie and idolatrie ; with mony utheris injurious and selanderous wordis, as is notorly knowin to this hail burcht. At-tour, whairas of dewtie,⁵ not only he shuld have oppeuly, in his commoune prayer, have prayit for her, bot exhorted the hail Kirk to pray for her weillfair, repentance, and conversiounne to God ; not only doeth he omitt

1. They wer nocht Gentles that accused puir Jeremy.

2. Falslie lybellit.

3. No soverane lady is shoe to me, nor yit to this realme, and so ye ar traitouris.

4. I grant the accusatiounne, bot reiding I deny.

5. Ideny dewtie in that pairt

the same, but, contrariewayis, uses all maner of imprecationes and execrationes against hir,⁶ and utherwayis speikis of her as shoe wer a reprobat, saying shoe repentis not, nor can not repent,⁷ because shoe desyris, most ressonable, to be restoired to hir owin realme and auctoritie, justly aperteining to her, both be Godis richt and manis, and whairfra shoe was unnaturallie dejected, and is wrangouslie debarit; thus entering in Godis secreit counsall, as thocht he war previe thairof, and called thairto. In which doing, he workis, sa far as lysis in him, be sic presumptious and malapairt arrogancie,⁸ to make the religione of Jesus Christ to be ewill spoken of, and the hail ministrie to be heated and abhorred; and be intermedling of civeill and profaine materis with the word of God, devydeh the church in contrarious factiones; whairupoun may ensew grit hurt and perrell, not only to the kirke, but also to the commoune welth. Heirfoir, we beseike Your Wisdoms, as yow that are apoyntit to watche above his Church, to put order to the said Johne, in the executioun of his office, that he desist fra sic intollerable and enorme railing⁹ upoun our Souverane Lady, and intromedling sic profaine causes with the word of God, far above his commissioun; utherwayis, ye wilbe thocht, in tymes cuming, Pertakeris of his Schisme, and charged thairwith, as oportunitie will serve. Unles ye put remeid heirto, the ingevaris heirof will seeke the samen with gretter unquyetnes.¹⁰

6. What I have used man has not stopped, nor shall not stop.

7. Thou art ane impudent liare! I said, and say, That pryde and repentance abyde not in a hart.

8. I know you for no judge, and thairfoir I appeile to Godis mercie, and to the ryght judgement of the Kirke.

9. Railing I deny; your Souverane Lady I know nocht; my commissioun, men can not limitate.

10. Godis gude will be done; and to that just Judge I appeale.

This preceeding lybell comming to the knowledge of sundry, the Assemblie decried to advertis the Lordis of Sessioun (wha war in the hous uprycht above thame), and for that purpose did direct unto them some bretherin and ministeris, with both the billis, to inquire gif thai knew ony thing of the ingiving of the same? Which being denyed utterlie be thame, the procutouris wer called, and thei lykwayes denyed both knowledge and counsall of and to ony sic accusatioun. Then the Assemblie commandit a publict proclamatione to be maid, as followes:—

Proclamatione by the General Assemblie.

Beacus some wrytingis are cassin in be some persones, sclanderouslie, against Johne Knox, and the ingevaris thairof are misknawin, thairfoir the Assemblie desyris ony persone or persones that will persew and stand to the samyn, to compeir and persew the samyn, and justice salbe done accordingly.

This proclamatioune, nochtwithstanding, no man wes fund to accuse ; bot this thrid bill was affixed upoun the kirke-doure, the tenour whairof followes :—

To the Rycht Honourabill Superintendentis, Ministeris, and Kirke of God, presentlie assembled for reformatiounes.

Forsameikle as upoun the Supplicatiounes gewin to yow of before, ye causit openly proclame at the counsall-hous doure, gif ony man wald compeir to persew the same, saying that Knox was readie to ansuer thairto : Gif the supplicatioune be ressonabill, and foundit vpoun ane guid caus of complent, worthie to be regardit (as thair ar most ressonabill), then ar thair sufficient, but farder pursuite, to admonishe yow (men of judgment), of your dueitie, and move you to provyde that no slander be gevin be the minister that occupyis the cheif chaire of this realme ; the ingevaris of the supplicatiounes luikis that the same be alsweill ane admonitioune to the criminall as unto your Wisdomes ; yit, give he, upoun his corrupt sence and pervers affectiounes, persistis in his arrogant malice, he sall not want ane or mae accusatoris at the nixt Assemblie, provyding he be then law byding, and not fugitive, according to his accustomet maner.

This bill being affixt upoun the kirk-dour, as said is, and upoun sundrie utheris places, was brocht be the bellman to Mr. Knox the 10 day of Marche 1570[-71], as he was putting on his cloathes ; and eftir that he had red it, delyverit it to his servant, RICHARD [BANNATYNE], commanding him to tak it to the Assemblie, which dissolved that same day. The bill being presentit, and also red, the said Richard sayis, “ I beseike your Wisdomes to heir me, and to take in guid pairt the thing that I sall speike ; for God I tak to recorde, it proceidis of na malice to ony persoun.” And so leive being grantit, he proceidis thus :—

“ It hes pleased God to make me a servant to that man, JOHNE KNOX, quhom I serve (as God beiris me witnes), not so meikill in respect of my worldlie commoditie, as for that integritie and uprychtnes which I have ever knowin, and presentlie understandis to be in him, especiallie in the faithfull administratioune of his office, in teiching of the word of God ; and give I understoud or knew that he wer a fals teichair, a seducar, a raiser of schisne, or ane that makis divisioune in the Kirke of God, as he is reported to be by the former accusatiounes, I wold not serve him for all the substance in Edinburgh. Thairfor, I desyre your Wisdomes to make it manifest and knowin, be some publict edict, that ye approve his doctrine, consent and agrie with him, that ye are of one mynd and judgment with him, and that ye sing all ane songe ; that thairby, the rest of ministeris beiring the part and burding with him (which, on my judgment, now lyes only on his back), the enemeis have no occasione to say, it is only Johne Knox that speikis against the Queine."

Thay all said thei wold beir thair part of the same burding with him ; for the which the said Richard earnestlie protested, and desyred ane act thairupon, but it was refused. Ane askit and demandit of the said Richart, " Gif his Maister bald him requyre ony sic thing ?" Bot he confessed, as the treuth was, that the thing he spake was of his owin heid, without any knowledge of his Maister ; but onlie, that he was movet be the sclanderous accusationes, and thairfoir (he said) he could do no les, of his conscience, than to desyre thair Wisdomes to remeid the foresaid fals reportes, sa far as in thame lay, which could be by no meanes better, in his judgment, than be thair publict declaratione, be edict or utherwayes, as thai thoct best, to mak it knowin to all that thei approvet the thingis that Johne Knox spake, and that thei war in the same mynd and judgment with him, twiching these thingis whair of he was accused ; leist, be their silence in this behalf, thay sould confirme the opin speikingis of the enemeis, who alledge, and say, that thai have als monie ministeris on thair syde as the King hes upon his syde.

The said Richard, being not a litiil in choler that his just desyre was refused, and that the clerke of the Sessione refused to give him ane act upon the same, whois duetie, as he thoct, was not to have bene so eirnest in refusing his requeist, he requyred Mr. George Mackiesone, witnes in the premisses, and wald have givin him ane plack to make ane act under his handwrit of the former wordis : The said Mr. George promiseist to beir witnes (as his hand write heirop testifies), but refused the plack, and said it neidit not.

Thir are the names of thame that wer present in the Assemblie, quhen the said Richard made his Protestatioune :

Mr. GEORGE HAY, Moderator.

The LAIRD of DUN, Superintendent of Angus.

Maister ROBERT PONT, Commissionar for the Kirkis of Murray.

Mr. ANDRO HAY, Commissionar of Glasgow.

Mr. DAVID WEYMIS, Minister at Glasgow.

WILLIAME CRISTESONE, Minister of Dundie.

Mr. DAVID LYNDESAY, Minister at Leith.

Mr. JOHNE CRAIG, Minister at Edinburgh.

Mr. GILBERT GAIRDEIN, Minister at Monyfuthe.

Mr. JOHNE HEPBURNE, Chantour of Murray.

DAVID FERGUSONE, Minister at Dumfermling.

DONALD ADAMSONE, Commissionar¹ of Ros.

Mr. JOHNE PRESTOUN, and ADAM FOWLARTOUN, Commissionaris² for the Kirk of Edinburgh.

¹ and ² In the MS. erroneously called " Commendatouris."

JAMES DALRUMPELL, Minister at Ayre.

JOHNE M'CRON, Minister at Straiton, in Carrike.

MR. ROBERT LOCKARD.

The LAIRD of HALTOUN.

THOMAS SUMMERWELL, Burges of Edinburgh.

MR. GEORGE M'KIESONE, Solister for the Kirke.

And JOHNE GRAY, Scribe, who tuike the speich upon him, and first refused.

GEORGE M'KEISONE, ane witness of the premises, with my hand.

The General Assemblie being dissolved, some of the bretheren travellit with Johne Knox, and that of guid mynd, that he sould pas over all sic accusationes with silence. To whome he ansuerit :—

“ The Kirk may forbid me preiching, but to stop my toung being in the pulpet it may not ; and thairfoir, either lat me be dischargit, or else lat you and the adversaires both looke for ane ansuer.” And swa Sunday beand the nixt day, the sermond endit, he ansuerit all the billis ; and first, he ansuerit the complent and title that the accusatouris cleamed to thaim selvis, calling them fellow-memberis of Jesus Christ, etc., and said :—

Albeit, it is most dolorus to my hart to make ane apologic against such as call thame selves fellow-memberis of Jesus Christ, and men professing the same religione with us ; yit, becaus it is no new thing that Godis servandis have beine accused of sic as have bene esteemed the cheif pillaris of the Kirke, it becometh me to take my lot in guid pairt ; for Jeremie was not accused of the Gentiles, bot his accusatouris were Jewis borne, and circumcised according to the law, and all externall professing and avowing the testament made with Abraham ; Paull was in mony dangeris, and, amonges the rest, he recomptis his perrelis amonges fals bretherin. Ye heir how greivouslie I am accused. I will nocht say that Tertullus accuses Paull ; bot we know that once he accused him, as in the Actes of the Apostles, the 24 cap. and 1 ver. we may reid.

Gif this accusatioune be weill weyeth, I doubt not but ye sall persave the same to be the dytement and fals style of a flattering oratore travelling to cloake impietie, and to deface the just reprehensioune of Godis Spreit. That I have called hir ane obstinate idolatrice, ane that consented to the murther of her owin husband, and ane that hes committed whordome and villanous adulterie, I glaidlie grant, and never myndis to deny ; bot railing and seditioun thair ar never able to prove in me, till that first thei compell Esai, Jeremie, and Ezechiel, St. Paull, and utheris, to recant ; of whome I have learned, plainelie and bauldlic, to call wickitnes be the awin termes—a feg, a feg, and a spead, a spead.

I fear that threatening pronounced be Esai, in these wordis, "Woe to them that call licht darknes, and darknes licht, guid ewill, and ewill guid." (Gif sho be innocent of ony of the crymes laid to her charge be me, then may I be accused as a realer; but gif thair awin conscience bearis witnes to thame, that scho is guiltie in all the foirnamed, and in every ane of thame, and in monie moe, lat thaim studie how thai salbe absolved befor God, who threatenis to cast Jesabell in a bed, and thame that committ fornicatioune with hir in grit afflictioune, except thai repent. How mony flattered hir when sho raged in her iniquitie, under the cloake of authoritie, some within this realme, and within the same citie, understandis. But how that God the just Judge hath overthrowin her pryde, and disapointed thair fals flattering promyses, the whole world can witnes, and yit they will not cease, but still thai will menteane hir as sho wer ane innocent, and unjustlie handled of her subjectis. Let her and her menteaneris compleane upoun God, who made her cheife flattereris hir cheifest enemies. What shoe salbe to thame or thai to hir, lat thaim declair. I speik of thingis certane and bypast. Now to the rest of my accusatione, I pray not for hir; I ansuer, I am not bound to pray for hir in this place, for soveran to me sho is not; and I lat thaim understand that I am not a man of law, that hes my toung to sell for silver or favore of the world. Bot to resson with them of prayer, who never understoude what trew prayer was, wer bot labore lost. I prayed till I was forbidden; but this maner of speiking the warld understandis not. They terme her thair Soverane, and them selvis the Nobilitie and subjectis professing her obedience. In this thai confes thaim selves traitouris, and so am not I bound to ansuer thame, nor yit thair accusatione, till that thei give ansuer to my peremptour. As to the imprecationes maid against hir, whair of I am accused, I have willinglie confessed that I have desyred, and in my hart desyres, that God of his mercie, for the comfort of his puire flocke within this realme, will oppone his power to hir pryde, and confound hir and hir flattereris and assistaris in hir impietie. I praise my God, he of his mercie hes not disapointed me of my just prayer; lat them call it imprecatioune or execratioune as pleises thame. It hes offer then ones stricken, and sall stryke, in despite of man; menteane and defend her who so list.

I am further accused, that I spake of thair Soverane (myne shoe is not) as that shoe wer a reprobat, affirming that shoe can not repent, etc. Wharto I ansuer, That the accuser is a calumniatour and a manifest liare, for he is never able to prove that at ony tyme I have said that shoe could nocht repent: But I have said, and yit say, that pryde and repentance abydis nocht in ane hart of ony long continowance together. What title shoe hes, or ever had, to this Realme, and to the authoritie thair of, I list not to enter into con-tentione : How shoe was dejected fra it, lat the Estaitis ansuer ; for me thei can nocht accuse, unles thei lie ; for hitherto I have lived as a subject, and obeyed as a subject, to all lauchfull ordinance of God within this realme.

Yet restis one thing that is most bitter to me, and most fearfull, gif my accusatouris wer able to prove thair accusatioune, to wit, that I proudly and arrogantlie entered in Godis secret counsall, as that I wer called therto. God be mercifull to my accusatouris, of thair rasche and ungodlie judgment ! Gif thai understoude how fearfull my conscience is, and ever hes bene, to exceid the bowndis of my vocatioune, they wold nocht so boldlie have accused me. I am not ignorant, that the secretis of God aperteine to him self alone : but thingis revealed in his law aperteinis to us and to our children for ever. What I have spoken against the adulterie, against the murther, against the pryde, and against the idolatrie of that wicked Woman, I spake not as ane that entered in Godis secret counsall, being bot one (of Godis greit mercie) called to preich according to his blissed will, revealed in his most holy word, have offer then once pronounced the threatningis of his law against sic as have bene of counsall, of knowledge, of assistance or consent that innocent bloud suld be sched : And this same thing I have pronounced against all and sundrie, that go about to menteane that wicked Woman, and the band of these murthereris, that thei suffer not the death according to his word, that the plague may be taken from this realme, which sall never be sa long as shoe and thai remaine unpunished, according to the sentence of Godis law.

Whare I am accused of intromedding civill and profaine thingis with the word of God ; I divide the Kirke in contrarious factiones ; I make the religione of Jesus Christ to be evill spoken of, and the whole ministrie to be hated and abhorred, etc. : I ansuer, that when thai sall teiche me, be Godis plaine written word, that the reprove of vice is a civile and prophane thing, and that it is a thing that pertaineth not to the ministrie, I sall do as Godis word commandis me : Bot unto that tyme (which will not be till the morne after Domesday, and not then), I mon hold that sentence and power pronounced and gevin be God to his prophetis, be Jeremie and Ezechiell, to stand for a perpetuall law and rewle to all true ministeris ; which, with Godis assistance, I purpose to follow to my lives end.

Whare thai threaten to put order to me with grit unquyetnes, unles I cease from railing of thair Soverane, I ansuer as befor : Railing I deny ; thair Soverane I know not ; lat Godis will be done in me ! I have laid my compt ; mony thingis I knowe I have omittit, but in that I find no great fault with my memorie. Lat thaim reply, gif ather thai can or dar, and I sall ansuer as it pleases God to assist me. And this ansuered to both thair first accusationes, in schort wordis I ansuer the third ; in the which my accusatoris alledge, that there complant is sufficient that the Assemblie accuse me, for thair awin discharge, etc. Whairunto I ansuer, that my accusatoris wold have the Assemblie of Christiane ministeris moir brutise and moir barbarous then an Etnick judge was in a moir notorious accusatioune : for the princes of the preistis cumming to Festus, the deputie desyred sentence against Paull ; to whom he ansuerit (Actis 25, 16), That it was nocht the consuetude of the Romanes to decerne against ony man befoir that he was accused had his accusatoris present befoir him, and that he him self had place to purge him of thingis objected against him. Now, gif my accusatoris wald that a Christiane assemblie sould condempne me at there requeist, and upoun their accusatioune, they make it inferiour to this Etnicke judge, as said is. But thai have promised to accuse me face to face, at the nixt General Assemblie, gif I be found law-byding. Whairunto I ansuer, that I praise God, that thei have nothing presentlie to accuse, when the tyme is als favourable unto thame, as ever thai will find it, gif Christ Jesus have place within this realme. Bot becaus thai know that thair persuite is unjust, they flie to the last refuge of all walterares of commone wealthis, tempora mutantur. Whither I salbe law-byding or not at that tyme I know not, for my dayes and wayes ar in the handis of Him upon whome I depend, and who hath guydet me throughe in mony troubles, and hes yit preserved me to this decreapit aige, which now is not apt to flie farre. Mairover, I think that no man is able to convict me to have bene a fugitive from the flocke, whairto I was bound, without thair awin commandement.

This Apologie, pronounced be word, befoir the secund Sunday they caused the fourth bill to be affixt, accusinge Johne Knox of seditioun, of schisme, and erroneous doctrine. As the tenour of thair accusatioune dois testifie ; which begins with a grite nota, thus :—

The Fourth Bill, accusinge JOHNE KNOX of Seditioun, of Schisme, and Erroneous Doctrine.

NOTA.—Gif the buike intitulat “The Blast of the Trumpet,” set fourth be Johne Knox, against the Regiment of Weomen, be grundeth upoun a schisme and fals doctrine (as but dout it is), why then may he not be judged, trewlie, ane seditious man and a fals doctour, that set fourth the same so arrogantlie ? And if it be groundit upoun ane infallible treuth, why then doeth he avowe and approve the contraire—I meane that regiment in the Queine of Englandis persone, which he avowes and appreives, not only in praying for the menteanance of her estate (as he hes done diverse tymes oppinlie in pulpet,) but als in suteing and procureing, be him self and utheris of his alluiring, be all meanes possible, hir aide and support against his owin native cuntrie and libertie thair of ?

It is evident, that ather his doctrine is fals, or els that he workis against the manifest treuth.

JOHNE KNOX his Ansuer to the Fourth Bill.

That nixt Sondag, the sermond endit, Johne Knox requyred a litle audience of his Congregationne. "Beclus (said he) I am accused as a schismaticke and fals doctore;" and so he red the ticket that accused him self: And thaireftir said, "God be mercifull to my accusatoris, and give thame grace cleirlye to sie and perfiltie to understand the doctrine which, be me, God hes pronounced ever since it pleased his mercie to illuminate myne eyes, and to instruct myne harte with the brightnes of his word. And God grant me patience, that without bitternes I may beare the opprobrie of the croce of Jesus Christ; whairtill I prais my God I am so assisted be his Holie Spreit, that gif I had not farther respect to you, who now of so long tyme have bene my auditoris, then I have or ever had to my self, I sould never oppin my mouth in my awin defence. But beclus I am not ignorant that Sathan, through his malice, seikis to deface the treuth of God in my waikie persone, I dar not pas by sic accusationes with silence. The ditment seames to smell of some craftie lawles man of lawes braine; and yit, gif I list to handle him as his folie deserves, I nicht easilie lat him sie, that in accusing the author of that tractat, he hes nather luikit to God, natuire, nor to just law. His dilemma begynis with a conditionall, saying, 'Gif the buike intitulat The First Blast of the Trumpet be grundit, etc.; why may not Johne Knox be called a seditious man, and a fals doctour, that so arrogantlie set fourth the same?' I will only ansuer his 'gif' with ane uther; and so say, Gif that be grundit upoun guid reasone, upoun Godis plaine treuth, and upon maist plaine and just lawes, then hes the accusatore nather God before his eyes, knowledge of just lawes, nor yit reverance to nature. And so lat one 'gif' ansuer ane uther, till that farther probatioune be produced. He baulddie affirms that that buike is grundit upon a schisme, etc.: Whairto I ansuer, that the affirmatione of ane liare may not be a sufficient proufe against me, principallie in his awin cause. A guid and wise dialectisiane wald have labored to have laid some prufe, befor that he wold have so rashlie pronounced; and so, beclus the former part of his dilemma hes no griter strenth then his awin affirmative, I say it is brocken, and he is a manifest liare. Gif ever I entreated that argument in publict or in privat, sen my last arryvell in Scotland, his argument myght have sum probabilitie; bot seing thair of I can not be convict, a schismaticke I can not be proven. Bot the secund horne of his argument the craftie accusatore thinks I can not avoid, for thus he writes: 'Gif it be grundit upoun ane infallible treuth, why then doeth he avow and approve the contraire—I meane that regiment in the Queine of Englandis persone, which he avowes and approves, nocht only in praying for the same, the mentenance of hir estate (as he hes done dyvers tymes opinlie in pulpet), but also in suiting and procuring, be himself and utheris of his alluiring, hir ayde and support against his owin native cuntrie,' etc. This horne, he thinkis so strong, that no force is able to brek it ; and yit my guid hoip is, that the hammer of Godis treuth sall shaw it to be moir fragile and waike then ever glas was. He affirmes, that I approve the contraire, to wit, that same regiment, in the persone of the Queine of England, his probatioune is, I pray for the mentenance of hir estate, and I procure her ayde and help against my native cuntrie. These appeir to my accusatoris so strong, as said is, that I am not able to avoid thaim. And yit, I say that nether of both his ressones fecht against me ; for nather doeth the prayer of Godis servantis, for the mentenance of commone wealthis, whair the people of God remaines, prove that Godis servantis allow all things done in sic commone wealthis ; nather yet dois the seiking of help (ewin from the wicked) prove that the godly justifies the wicket.

And that these, my assertiones, may be understand to be most true and suire, I will not alledge the testimoneis of prophaine wryteris, but content my self with the mouth of God, and with the factis of thame, who in thair cheif actiones wer rewled be the Spirite of God. For example, I bring the Prophetes of God that servit in Israel, from the dayes of Jeroboam, the sone of Nebat, till the destructione of that Kingdome, off whome (I meane of Godis prophetis) some comforted the kingis, althocht thai wer wicked, some forewarned thaim of dangeris, some gave them charge to fecht, with promeis of victorie ; but did ony of these actis prove that the propheites did allow and approve that kingdome of idolatrie, or thair unnaturall defectione from the hous of David ? Jeremy prayed, and commandit the Jewis to pray, for the prosperitie and health of Nabuchanedzare ; did he therfore justifie his crueltie against Jerusalem ? I am assured he did not ; as his awin prophesie beareth plane witnes. And so, my praying for the Queine of England can not prove that I do any thing contraire the treuth affirmed in that buike. This same I ansuer to the second member of his probatioune, to wit, that I seike and procure her ayde, and thairfoir I justifie hir authoritie. I ansuer, that gif he were able to prove his assertione, to wit, that I seike and procure her ayde, yet is he never able to prove that nather my doctrine is fals, or that I worke against the manifest treuth, Quia omnia munda mundis. David, pursewed be Saull, socht support and refuge of Achys, king of Gath ; did he thairfoir approve and justifie the enormitie that was used in Palestina ? My accusator may consider how easie it is to simple treuth to breke the strenth of lyes, how artificiallie that ever thai be composed.

But one thing, in the end, I may nocht pretermit, that is, to give him a lye in his throat, that either dar, or will say, that ever I socht support against my native cuntrie. What I have bene to my cuntrie, albeit this unthankful aige will not knowe, yet the aiges to come wilbe compelled to beir witnes to the treuth. And thus I ceise, requyring of all men that hes to oppone against me ony thing, that he will do it so plainlie as that I make myself and all my doingis manifest to the world ; for to me it seames ane thing most unressonabill, that, in this my decripit aige, I salbe compellit to fight against schaddowes and howlatis, that dare not abyde the lycht !

This ansuer gevin to that horned argument in publict, with gritter vehemencie then it is wrytten, accusatioun be wryting against Johne Knox ceased for a tyme ; for men had uther thingis to thinke upon.

[In Bannatyne's Memorials, the above is followed by a detailed account of the siege and surrender of Dunbarton Castle, 2d April 1571, with a letter addressed to Knox by Thomas Craufurd of Jordanhill, at the Laird of Braid's request, dated at Leith, the 14th January 1571-2 ; and also an Inventory of the munition in the Castle].

XCV.—ADDITIONAL EXTRACTS FROM RICHARD BANNATYNE'S MEMORIALS.

At this tyme (April 1571) a constant rumore rais of the returning of the Erle of Mortoun from England, with a guid dispatche. These, and uther thingis, made poore Johne Knox to be more quiet fra all sic accusationes ; and yit he ceased nocht to doe according to his accustomet manner, publictlie reproving the murther of King Harie Stewart, invented be the Queine, fortified be sic as efter God made instrumentes to confound hir, and put in executioun be Bothwell and utheris, whom God will yit disclose. He ceased not to pray in publicke for the King and for his Regent, and to exhort the people to stand constant in defence of the present autoritie ; nochtwithstanding of the Queinis braggings, and of all her lievètenntis, who had appoynted ane Conventioun at Edinburgh, the 10 of Aprile 1571 ; whair of we ceise to speike, abyding farther knowledge of the end.

The Captane of the Castle hes declared, by his letter to ane gentleman of honest fame, that he will receive the Ducke and his sones, and will accompanie thame. He hes this houre, upoun Fryday the 20 of April 1571, Claud Hammiltoun, in the Castle of Edinburgh, Arthure of Meritoun, Robert of Inchemachan : and a sort of the strongest throat-cutteris of the Hammiltounes, going plainclie upoun Edinburgh calsay. How ever that he be blindit, who soever fears God, seis his handis defyled with his maisteris bloud, in that he joynes with the menteaneris of the murther!

“ Now, Lord, be mercieful to thy puire flocke, within this realme, and cheiflie within this citie; give me strenth, Lord, to fight my battell lauchfullie; and welcome be thy merciful providence at thy guid pleisoure; for in death I doubt not to overcome death, and to get enterance in eternall lyfe be Jesus Chryst, in whois handis I commend my spreit!

“ Lord, provyde for thy flocks trew pastoris, raise thow up the spreitis of some to observe thy notable workis, faithfullie to committ the same to writ, that the posterities to come may praise thy holie Name, for thy great graces plentifully powred fourth upoun this unthankfull generacione!

“ JOHN KNOX, trusting end of travellis.”

Befoir our departoure furth of Edinburgh, this first of Maij, the Laird of Elphingstoun wret a lettre to his guid-brother, Robert Melving, that Mr. Knox sould not be trubled, etc.; for the which purpose, Robert Melving wrytes to the Laird of Braid as followes:—

Letter, ROBERT MELVING to the LAIRD OF BRAID.

SIR,—It may pleis you to wit, that I have receavit ane lettre fra my guid-brother the Laird of Elphingstoun,¹ to desyre me be cairfull that Mr. Knox incurre no displeisoure, but that the laird (meaning the Captane) and my self sould tak ordor thairin, which we have nocht pretermitted to this present; nochttheless, in respect the laird is compellit to take the assistance of some (that beiris Mr. Knox na guid will) for his owin defence, I pray you to caus him either come heir, whare he salbe preserved as our selves, or that ye convoy him to some freindis hous while ye understand sume quyeting of thir troubles. Assuir your self, albeit he hes used us utherways than we deservit, we wold be als loathe to sie his displeisoure as utheris that he lippnis moir unto. Ye will do heirin according to your wisdom, for he may get harme being at this tyme within the toun, and we innocent, which wold be ane grit greif unto us, besydis sclander without desert.—This Fryday, be youris to comand,

ROBERT MELVING.²

Post scriptum.—Lykwayis tak heid to your self, for albeit ye sal never laike our guid will and intelligence, when we know of your hurt; yit be assured thair is gritter personages heir present that will have uther respectis. Be the moir circumspect.

¹ James Johnstone of Elphinstone.

² Captain Robert Melving, Melvin, or Melville, on the 2d of June, was blown up with gunpowder, and died on the 6th of that month, as related by Bannatyne.—(Memorials, pp. 136, 137.)

Answer to this.

SIR,—I have ressaved your wryting, whairof I thanke you most hartlie. As to me to enter in to persuade Mr. Knox to remove fra his vocatione, I can not weill doe ; but thair is tuo thingis I most warne you of—Medle with him wha will, to his hurt, God sall revenge it or it be long. The uther is, that gif the Laird and ye be his friend (as ye say ye are), ther is none that is come to that toun will medle with him. But notwithstanding, I will travell as farre as I may, that he sall remove aff the toun : And for my self, I will keip my owin hous ; and gif ony persew me thair, I hope in God thair sall have na honour nor vantage.

Ane uther Letter written be a Freind.

SIR,—I have spoken the man that wrait to you, and lykwayis the principall ; first be thame selfis apart, and thairefter together, anent your owin pairt, and the uther manis that was written to you for. As to his parte, they bothe thinke it best that he remove for a season, for sen thir folkis cuming to this Toun, it hes beine plainelie ressonit, that althocht the principallis will do him nor wishe him no hurt, yit thei can not pleadge thair honouris for his savetie fra the multitude and rascall ; and they say, and it is true, when he is gone thair is no remead nor restitutione for his lyffe ; and trewly, sa farre as I can persave, they speik it of a guid hart, and upoun intentione only of his preservatioun. Therefore, Sir, I wald wishe ye suld write your guid counsall to him, to will him to remove for a season. As to your owin pairt, it hes bene spoken amonges thir folkis that are cum in, that thei sall revendge thair hearschipe upoune the Lowthiane lardis ; and named a certane of them, and named you amonges the leive. Quhairfoir, he that wreat to you thoct guide to give you advertisement thairof be the principalis avyse ; nocht in ony wayis to fray you, or to will you to remove your self or your guidis, bot allanerlie to tak tent about you, and to be the mair circumspect : Assuiring you, that thei sall, nather in counsall nor outwith, know nor haif wit of your harme, but thei sall give you intelligence of it ; and incaise it happen to be done by there intelligence, thair credit sall faillye, but it salbe redressit. Always, thei wold not wishe it to cum to that seay, gif ather your guid circumspectione or thair advertisement myght prevene it. I find it gud that ye be als walkryffe about your place and guidis as ye may. And sua committis you to God. The caus why I came not up is, that I wald help to travell with the uther man for his removing.

Settirday the fyft day of Maj 1571, Johne Knox departed the toun [of Edinburgh] sore against his will, being compellit be the bretherin of the kirk and toun ; becaus that his tarie wold be ane occasioun of farther trouble unto thame, and ane occasioun of the schedding of thair bloud for his defence, whome thei could not sie persecuted without assisting of him ; which mycht come to both thair destructiounes. This day was reinforced all the poirtis of the toun, except the Neddir Bow and Waster Port. The Communioun, this Sunday following, was delayed, becaus of the troubles.

A MEMORIALL of sic thingis as wes done in this Toun of Edinburgh, sen the depairtour of JOHNE KNOX, Minister, out of the same, sore against his will.

Fryday the fourt of Majj, the Ducke and his sone Claud come to this toun, to the number of ane hundred hors, and threescore hacquebuteris or thairby, and lyched at the Castell gate. At efternounge thei went all to the counsall in the Castell, whair all the murthereris was together, and Grange, now joyned with the Hammiltounes, wha slew his maister ; a thing befoir few wald have beleived, which causes utheris to beleive him to be als guiltie as thai war of that innocent bloud.

The Captane desyred ane assurance to certane men in the toun, of the counsall thair present, and in speciall to Johne Knox, minister, that he sould not be hurt be the Hammiltounes ; wha ansuerit, that thai could not promeis him assurance upon thair honouris, becaus thair was mony rascallis and utheris amonges thame that loved him not, that nicht doe him harme without thair knowledge.

The brether of the Toun seing thair minister in danger, come unto him with Mr. Johne Craig, also being minister, and desyrit him, in the name of God, to depairt (as oftymes thei had done befoir). But seing on nowayes him to condiscend unto thair desyres, they said, they could nocht see him in ony wayis get harme, but it behoved thame to assist and defend him against whomsoever wald hurt him ; and so, in defending him, it sould be the occasioun of thair owin destructioun ; becaus now thai were not able to resist the Hammiltounes, and the rest in the towne. Thairfoir thei charged thair said minister, Mr. Knox, in Godis name, as he tenderit thair savetie and weill, to depairt ; which gif he did nocht, that gif thair bloude wer shed for his cause and in his defence, that God wald requyre it of his handis. And so, be this occasioun, he depairted on the morne, the 8 [5th] of Majj, over the water of Leyth, and went to Abbotishall, whar he is presentlie.

This Sunday [13th of May 1571], Mr. Craige teiched the 130 Psalme ; and, in his sermond, he comparied the stait of the Kirke of God within this toun unto the stait of the Maccabeis, wha wer oppressed sumtymes by the Assyrianis and sumtymes by the Egiptianis, be whome the people of God than wer oppressed. Also, he said, that when wicked men and wicked parties contendis and stryves for thair pryde, ambitione, and worldlie honore, the Kirke is alwayes in truble. Be which maner of speich, mony wer offendit, in making the tuo parteis alyke ; and how farre unlyke the comparisone is, all men may sie. . . .

The weike preceeding [the 19th of May], ther was nather preiching nor prayer, nather was thair ony sound of bell heard in all the Toun at that tyme, except the ringing of the cannone ; whair of thair was of canone, and cannone feir, myen and battard, 500 shot at leist, besydis small brasen peices, slanges of iron, and utheris mae peices that was tane fra the Toun.

This same day [the 13th of June], the Castell Lordis sent to Mr. Craig, desyryng him to caus the Kirke to be assembled, and redd this letter unto thame sent from the Lordis, wha convenit at thrie houris efter noune. Efter the reiding of the letter the Bischope of Galloway and Sir James Balfour come in, requyryng, in the same manner, in the Lordis name wha had sent thame to the Kirke, that thei wold pray for the Quenis Majestie, thair Soverane, and for the Prince hir sonne : Whilk thinge the Lordis besocht thame, with all gentlenes and submissione, to doe ; bot it was denyed of the whole bretherin : Whairat the tuo messingeris wer not content, and discharged them to preich gif they wald nocht pray for the Queine.

The Generall Assemblie of the Kirk held in Striveling the fyft of this moneth [of August] ; but the maist part of the effairis thair of wer continowed to the Parliament, which also was continowed till the 28 of this moneth, to be in Striveling.

This same Tuysday, the 28 of August 1571, was the first day of the Parliament in Striveling, whair the Kingis grace in proper persone was present, and spake thir wordis with his owin mouth : “ Me Lordis, and the uther trew subjectis, we ar convenit heir, as I understand, to minister justice : and becaus my aige will not suffer me to exerce my chairge be myself, be reasone of my youth, I have gevin power to my guidshire¹ as Regent and Tutore to me, and yow to assist him thairin ; as ye will ansuer to God and me heirefter.”

They of the Castell of Edinburgh, lykwayis appoynted thair Parliament about this same tyme, and made thair foirfaultouris as thei pleisit, both unpoun lordis, lairdis, gentlemen and burgessis, a grit number.

¹ Matthew Earl of Lennox, the father of Darnley, was then Regent. He was slain on the 3d of September following. His grandson, James the Sixth, was at this time only five years of age.

TO HIS LOVING

BRETHREN WHOME GOD

ones Gloriously gathered in the Church of Edinburgh, and now ar disperfed for tryall of our Faith. &c.

IOHN KNOX.

IMPRESSED AT

STRIVILING BE ROBERT LEKPREVIK.

ANNO DO. M.D.LXXI.

XCVI.—KNOX TO HIS BRETHREN OF THE CHURCH OF EDINBURGH.

The Troublis of the Just sall schortlie come to an end, to the Glorie of God, and to their Eternall Comfort.

BELOVED Brethren in the Lord Jesus, pertakers now of his afflictiones, if the inhabilitie of bodie wold suffer, I wold wryte a long letter; but being in that estait that I may not wryte with my owen hand two lynes, I must abyde the good leasure of God, and desyre yow to have me excused, that I have not soner visited yow into this your dolerous persecution. When I call to mynd the fearefull threatninges of God that have bene often tymes thounded out into your eares, and doeth consider these present dayes, in the midst of my dolour, I praise my God, that Sathan hath not gotten the full victorie, as he pretended. For this seperation whiche now is made to the grief of many hartes, is yet a severe document, that the word of God hath not lost the whole strength in yow; but that God, working theirby, hath pulled yow furth from the midst of the wickit, least that ye should be with them condampned, who now moste manifestlie rebelleth bothe against God and man.

Of one thing I must put yow in mynd, and I pray God that ye may frutefully remember it, that the worde of God preached be the mouth of man, is not a vane sound, and wordes spoken without a purpois; but is the summoning of God himself, forewarning men before the judgement come. Ye have hard it planelie spoken, that we wolde till Ægypt agane, in dispyte of Jeremie, and all his admonitiones; whiche threatning for that tyme was not onelie mocked, but also boldlie spoken against. But whether this day declaireth the treuth of that and other threatninges, let the verry blynde worlde judge: for what can be to returne to Ægypt, if to joyne handes with idolaters be not? Yea, to erect an authoritie (be God justlie dampned), without ordour, bothe against God and man? Suche men, when they were spoken unto, and were plainelie admonished of their appearing defection, could not abyde to be called proude contempners of God; who now spareth not at everie moment to blaspheme God, and be their wicked workes plainelie to deny, that there is a God that maketh difference betuix vice and vertew.

Rejoyce, therefore, and praise Goddes mercyes, who hath called yow from the company of such; and continew constant into that, that God of his mercy hath wrought into yow, to wit, a feare to remaine in the faction of the wicked; which feare I pray God may daylie increase into your hartes. I knowe the assaultes that ye shal suffer are sore and hard to be ganes-standed; and therefore be yow fervent in prayer, that ye repent not that God hath chosen yow to suffer affliction with his Sone Jesus Christ. Hard it is (I say), to ganestand fleshe and blood, and whatsoever is moste pretious into this lyfe onlie, in hoip of that kingdome promised; and yet onlie they that contineweth to the end shall stand in assurance before the Lord Jesus, into that general day when vertew shall ressave a just rewarde, and vice (with the workers of impietie) shall suffer wraith and vengeance without end.

Be not ye sclandered at the multitude of them that have joyned handes with impietie: "For if thay had bene of us (as Sanct Johne sayeth) they had remaned with us." But now this their defection doeth plainelie declare, that when they were with us, they were but as corrupted humoures within the body, which behoved to be expelled furthe, before the body coulde convalesce, and come to perfection againe. Lament their fall, but follow not their trade; for howsoever they prosper into their attemptat, the end thereof shalbe their destruction temporall and eternall, onles spedie repentance prevene Goddes judgements; which to wishe is godlie, but to beleve is foolishe presumption, as oftymes ye have hard.

Luke not for fynall victorie before that the strength and pryde of flesche be beaten doun, nether be ye discouraged, albeit that iniquitie prosper before the worlde; for the tyme of their felicitie, which troubleth yow for the present, shall be short: joyne not with them, therefore, as ye will avoyde plagues present, and condampnation eternall. Be faithfull and loving one to another: let bitternes and suspicion be farre out of your hartes; and let everie one watche for the preservation of another, without grudgeing or murmuring; being assured, that as God hath appointed yow to suffer affliction for righteousnes sake, so hath he appointed yow to posses an kingdome, wherein nether Sathan, sin, nor deith, shall have power to molest yow. Rejoice in the Lord, that he hath compted yow worthie to suffer for his Name's sake. Pray for me, Brethren, that I may fight my battell laughfullie to the end. The Lord Jesus preserve yow now and ever. Amen.

Of Sanctandrois, the 17th of Julij 1571.

Your Brother to power in Christ Jesus,

JOHNE KNOX.

If I might wryte, I wolde exhort yow to remember, that by many tribulationes we must enter in the Kingdome of Heaven.

XCVII.—KNOX TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.¹

The mightie Spirit of comfort, wisdom, and concord in God, remaine ever with you. Amen.

DEARE BRETHERN,—If abilitie of bodie wald have suffered, I sould not have troublit you with this my rud dytement. I have

¹ This letter, accompanied with a Latin translation, was subjoined to a tract entitled, "Gemitus Ecclesiæ Scoticanæ, sive Tractatus de Sacrilegio," etc., Jo. Forbesii, SS. Theol. Doct., printed at Aberdeen, 1631, 4to (sig. G. 1, 2). The author, Dr. John Forbes of Corse, gives it this title:—"Magistri JOANNIS KNOXI

του μακαριτου Cygnea Cantio, sive Epistola quam in lecto doloris sui scripsit ad nationalem Synodum Ecclesiæ Scoticanæ quæ Sterlini celebrabatur, mense Augusto, A. D. 1571;" and adds this note, "Hanc gravem tanti viri præmonitionem libuit adjungere threno lachrymantis Ecclesiæ ad finem tractatus not forgot quhat was laid to my charge be famous lybells the last Assemblie, and quhat a brag the adversaries made personallie to accuse me at this Assemblie, quhilk I pray you patiently to heare, and judge of me as ye will ansuer to God; for unto you, unto that heid, submitt I my selfe; being assurit that I neither offendit God, nor yet good men, in any thing that hitherto hes bein laid to my charge. And now, Brethren, because the dayly decay of naturall strenth threatens unto me certaine and sudden departure fra the miseries of this lyfe; of love and conscience I exhort you, yea, in the feare of God, I charge and command you, that ye take heid to your selvis and the flock over the quhilk God has placit you pastours. To discourse of the behaviour of your selves, I may not; but to command you to be faithful to the flock, I dare not cease. Unfaithfull and traitours to the flock sall ye be before the Lord Jesus, if that, with your consent, directlie or indirectlie, ye suffer unworthie men to be thrust in into the ministrie of the Kirk, under quhat pretence that ever it be. Remember the Judge befor quhom ye must make account, and resist that tyrannie, as ye wald avoyd hell's fyre. This battell, I grant, will be hard; bot in the second it will be harder; that is, that with the lyke uprightnes and strenth in God, ye gainstand the mercilesse devourers of the patrimonie of the Kirk. If men will spoyle them, let them doe it to their awin perill and condemnation; but communicat not ye with their sinnes, of quhat estate soevir they be, neither be consent nor yet be silence; but be publick protestation make this knowen unto the world, that ye are innocent of sick robberie: quhilk will, or it be long, provoke God's vengeance on the committers therof; quhereof ye will seik redresse of God and man. God give you wisdome nostri de Sacrilegio, qui inscribitur Gemitus Ecclesie Scoticanæ. Atque ut omnes suis oculis videant, quam sit fideliter in Latinum sermonem translata hæc Epistola, ipsam, prout vulgari nostra lingua ab autore olim scripta est, et adhuc in Synodi illius archivis exstat, exhibeo." These archives unfortunately do not exist.

and strength, knowlege and courage in so just a cause, and me a happie end.

Of Sanctandrois, the 3d of August 1571.

Your Brother in Christ Jesus,

JOHNE KNOX.

[This letter (says Calderwood) was read, considered with mature deliberation and allowed in all points; with firme purpose to doe and proceed according to the godlie counsell contained therein, touching the affairs of the whole Kirk. And, as concerning his own part contained in the said letter, the Assemblie ordained all persons to be warned at the Tolbuith door, that had or pretended to have any thing to lay to the charge of the Superintendents or Ministers, either presently convened or absent from the Assemblie, to compear before the dissolving of the same and accuse, if they had any just matter; but chiefly those that gave infamous lybells at the last Assemblie holden in Edinburgh, in the moneth of Marche last by past; promising to hear their accusations, to try the same and to minister justice therein, in so farre as in them lyeth, according to God's word].

XCVIII.—ALEXANDER HAY TO KNOX.¹

SIR,—Returning yisternycht to Leith, I met with Richard [Bannatyne], be whome I thocht meit to send yow thir few lynis, with my maist heartlie commendatiounes. I wald be glaid to write to you guid newis in our expeditioun at this journey; but I know weill ye layke not to be abused with uncertanties and untreuthis: yit according to my knowledge and opinione, ye sall understand as I can lerne. The Lord Hunisdail² had ample commissioun; but, as now appeiris, sa

¹ From Richard Bannatyne's Memorials, compared with Calderwood's MSS.

² Henry Carey was created Baron of Hunsdon, in Hertfordshire. In Banna-tyne's MS. his name occurs as Hunisdail, and Hunnisdown indiscriminately. He was appointed about this time Governor of Berwick, by Queen Elizabeth.

restricted be instructiones, as he could do nothing but minasse thame in the Castle, and heir what on our pairt was craved and offered; and swa to adverteis the Queine and Counsall. The Merschell was in full reddines to pas to the court, when we come from Berwicke this last Weddinsday. He hes with him the writtis of baith, and is to give informatiounes of the stait of this cuntrie; whairupoun it is thocht resolutiounes salbe tacken anent the sending out of ane armie, whair of thair is alreddie some licklieheid, bot no sic fordwardnes as our necessitie craves. The matter is apparent to continow in suspence, while the Merschelis returning, who hes not only the informatiounes of both pairties in Scotland, but the opinionones of the Captanes and best experimentit men of warre in Berwicke, how the enterpryse may be performed. He luikis to have the conducting of the forces; yit utheris judges that men of gritter calling salbe imployit in that service, and that whensoever the power cumis, it salbe gritter nor we have requyred or yit luikis for. The first assay that the Castle hes gottin is be boasting and perswasiones; it is thocht nixt it salbe persewed be offering silver for it; and lastly by force; and in cais it be recoverit be ony of the last meanes, men doubtis that the Queine of England sall not be content to want it hir self, for hir suirtie, at this hand. Sua I can not tell what to say, but to behald what it salbe Godis pleisour to worke. The cauldnes of the dealing of England puttis mony in a brangle: and yit I feir they laike nocht reasone to give for the fassione of thair doing; for thei ar acquentit weill aneughe with our natures, and ar not ignorant of our fetches, as thei dissemble not in thair speiking, as I lament thair is sa just caus: for gif it wer ather peace or weir, some ressonabill order of leving wer for men. Bot as it is, all true and honest men ar wreakit, every noblman having his particular intelligence, with ane at leist to whome he is patrone, althocht it be of the cheifest enemies to the Kingis obedience and commone caus. When England findis us craving ayde to suppress the adversareis in generall, and yit every noblman to procure the savetie of ane of the cheifest in particular, na doubt thair smell our doingis, and ar the mair slaw to resolve in ony thing tuiching us. Now I wearie you, and sua will mak ane end.

I was desyred be the guid wyfe, the Clerke of Registeris wyfe, to send you the copeis of some thingis, according to a memorie left with Richard; whair of I have part, and uther part ar not in my handis. My absence this whyle hes stayed that I could not satisfie you; but alsfare as I can I sall fulfill that memorie, and sic thingis farther as ye thinke worthie, being in my handis, upoun your advertisement I sall travell to seike thaim. Thus efter my most heartlie commendatiounes, I committ you in the protectione of the Almightie.

At Leith, the first of December, 1571.

Youris assuredly to command,

ALEXANDER HAY.¹

XCIX.—ALEXANDER HAY TO KNOX.

SIR,—I ressavit your writting of the vi of this moneth fra the Superintendent, not long befor John Brand delyverit to me Richard Bannatyne's letter of the 14 of November, which I had not sene quhen himself was heir. I had no commoditie to write at the depairtore of the Superintendent, nor knew not certainly his dyet. As to the lettres writtin be you to my Lord the last Regent, now resting with God, I can not certainlie affirme whidder I haif it or not; bot gif it be in my handis, it is in Striveling, whair I sall searche for it, at my passing thither; and gif I haif it, I sall send it to you.

I have no farder certantie of the Englishe resolutiones, toward our estait, nor I had at my last wryting to you, for no

¹ Alexander Hay of Easter Kennet was Clerk of the Privy Council in 1564, and Director of Chancery in 1577. He was appointed Clerk Register and a ansuer is returned frome the court. The Lord Hunisdailis dealing is nocht pleasing : whither his owin imperfectiones of nature, or commandement, is the occasione, I will not yit judge. They have set in England our Queinis lyfe and proces, both in Latine and Englis ; whairin is conteinet the discourse of our tragicall doings ; the proces of the Erle of Bothuelis clengeing, hir sonnetis and letteris to him ; the dispositiounes of the persones execute, and cartellis efter the Kingis murther.¹ In apeirance they leive nothing unsett out, tending to hir infamy, and to make the Duke of Northfolke odious, wha hes a grit benevolence of the people. But thair slaw resolutiones in that cuntrey dois us grit harme heir, and is lyke aneughe, in worldlie appeirance, to prove incommodious to thame selvis at lenth. We may not command, and swa necessarily man suffer.

Lord of Session in 1579, and died 19th of September 1594.—(Senators of College of Justice, p. 175.)

Be commone report of some comed from Flanderis, we heir the newis of the Turkis overthrowe affirmed, for the which fyres wer made in London ; that thair hes bene a Counsall at Bruxellis, and aid of money, men, and munitione granted to our adversaries, at the Lord Seatonis procurement. He was twyse on the sea, and constrayned be tempest to returne. It is said, the Cardinall of Lorane was at the same Counsall ; and that the Prince of Oreinge, with some uther princes of Germany and noblmen of France, wer come to the fronteiris of Flanderis ; for resisting of whome, Duke D'Alva has drawin his men of warre from all the tounis whair thai lay in garaysoun, and send them to the fronteiris : That thair is a guid number of schipis at Dover-raid, and utheris the narrow sies, under the name of the Prince of Oreinge, whilkis hes taken mony of the buscheis and thair wachteris ; and that thir shippis of the Prince of Oreinge

¹ Buchanan's well known treatise, in Latin as well as in English, appears from this letter to have been printed at the end of the year 1571, apparently at London, by John Daye. The one is entitled, "De Maria Scotorum Regina, etc., plena et tragica Historia." The other, "Ane Detectioun of the Duinges of Marie Quene of Scottes, touchand the murder of hir Husband," etc. There is also a Scottish version, "Ane Detectioun," etc., "Imprentit at Sanct Androis be Robert Lekprenik, Anno.Do. M.D.LXXXII." sm. 8vo.

hes oversicht to make sale of thair weiris in ony pairt of the King of France his dominiones; which apeiris strange, gif it be trew, on the uthir pairt, that the Cardinall was at the Counsall in Bruxellis.

It is reported also, that the Admirall [Coligny] is returnet to his house, and the Cardinall of Lorane returned to the Court of France; that the marriage haldis fordward betwixt the Prince of Nawarre, and Madame Claud, the King of Frances sister; and that the same prognosticateth a warre betwix France and Spaine. The Admirall hes gottin the Kingis licence that the Protestantes may contribute amonges thaim selves, for payment of the money borrowed fra the Queine of England during the tyme of the weiris; and the toun of Deip has elis payit fyve thowsand franckis, as ane pairt of that contributioun. As I gett knowledge farder in forane materis, ye sall, God willing, be made participant.

Thair hes bene some conference betwixt some of the Superintendentis and Ministeris, and my Lord Regentis grace, and the Counsall, for agriement in materis twiching the policie of the Kirke and dispositioun of benefices. The mater is defferit till the viii of Januar. It seimes rather to differ in circumstances nor in effect; and, to speike treuth, I find the Regent willing and desyrous to have a forme agriet unto, whilk I traist he sould performe for his enterest. The stay of the aggriement in this hinderis alsweill the cause of the Kirke as of the Estaite, whair of I wald wishe your habilitie mycht trie the best and the worst. Gif ye have with you the buike I sent unto yow when I come from England, intitulat Leges Ecclesiasticæ Anglicanæ, or Reformatio Legum Ecclesiasticarum,¹ which is the worke of Johne Foxe, I will pray yow send the same to me with this beirar; and I sall doe gudwill to send yow some uthir buike to supplie the place of that, while I return it, gif ye thinke it worth; for sic thingis being in my handis as wer meit to decoir the Historie. I asked of yow befor what were the thingis you thought meit, for I have sindrie thingis in my judgement not unmeit for that purpose. And therefore, that I sall not be put to extraordinary paines to copie thingis that ye have alreddie, let me know gif ony of the thingis heirafter noted be convenient, and may serve your turne? Sic thingis as are newlie sett out, in print, I traist be not neidfull to be written; as the Discours of the Quenis doingis, hir Lettres to the Erle Bothwell, the proces of his clenging and cartellis, all which are set out bayth in Latine and Englis; in the end of which Englis buik thir sentences or conclusiones are written, whilkis I thought not gude heir to slip :

¹ "Reformatio Legum Ecclesiasticarum," etc., Lond., ex offic. Joh. Daii, 1571, 4to. Foxe was the editor, and wrote the Preface.

Now judge, Englishmen, if it be gud to change Quenis,

O uniting confounding !

Quhen rude Scotland hes vomited up ane poyson, must fyne England lick it up for a restorative ?

O vyle indignitie !

Quhile your Quenis enemie liveth, hir dangir continueth ; desperate necessitie wyll dare the uttermost.

O cruell mercie !

O ambitioun, fed with prosperitie, strengthened with indulgence, irritated with adversitie, not to be neglected, trusted, nor pardoned !¹

I have, bot thei ar in Striveling, the tuo processes of divorce betwix the Erle Bothwell and his wyfe.

Some proclamatiounes about that tyme.

Instructiones gevin to the Bischope of Dumblane to excuse that mariage.

Band of the Lordis befor that mariage.

Declaratioune of the Queine that sho was at libertie, efter her reveissing.

¹ Corrected by the old English copy of Buchanan's Detection (1571).

Proclamatioune, and bandis, at the Kingis Coronatioune and afoir.

Conditiones of the randering of Dumbar.

Some band maid about the Parliament, in December 1567.

Proclamatiounes efter the feild of Longsyde.

Negotiatione with England thairefter, while we past to Yorke; and all the publict proces we had in England.

Articles at Glasgow, in Merche 1561.

Ordour for the theives at the Bordeouris.

Articles of agriement with the Erle of Huntlie, Lord Ogilvie, Erle of Crawford, Macqyntosche, Laird of Grant.

New band of thaim with relapse.

Projectis brocht hame with Mr. Johne Wood, whairon followit the ansuer at the Conventione at Perth.

The order tacking with the theivis, in October 1569.

Proclamatiounes be the Erle of Sussex, twiching the rebellion in the north of England.

Actis and doingis efter the murther of the Erle of Murray, Regent.

Proclamatioune at the incuming of the Englishmen to Hamiltoun.

The constitutione of the Erle of Lennox, Regent.

And finallie, all sic commone thingis as past registeris ar in my handis, and salbe at commandement how sone I have commoditie to be in the rowme whair thei ar; and mon have thame copeit out of the buikis, or whair thei ar in scrollis sall send the scrollis.

Thus having too long trublet yow, efter my maist heartlie commendatiounes, committis yow in the protectione of the Almychtie God.

At Leyth, the xiiii day of December, 1571,

Youris assuredlie to use and command,

A. HAY.

C.—THEODORE BEZA TO JOHN KNOX, HIS VERY DEAR BROTHER AND FELLOW-MINISTER.¹

ALTHOUGH, my Knox, we are in body separated by so great a distance both of land and sea, yet I have not the least doubt that there has always existed, and that there will exist to the last between us, that complete union of mind which is confirmed by the bond of one and the same spirit and faith. And truly I believe that this Church of Geneva especially is often in your thoughts, as we, in our turn, have you in continual remembrance before God, which most holy reciprocity of spirit almost solely sustains me, and you also where you are, as I think, amidst so great a confusion of human affairs; for, albeit they whose citizenship is in heaven, ought to have their whole dependence on heaven, as those who, being in the body, are absent from the Lord, yet in mind sit together in heavenly places, still there is no reason why, however weak and ineffectual are those things which have the appearance of some strength and firmness, we should not contemplate heaven as it were situated on earth, the goodness, namely, of God (as seen) in his own people. From the surest proofs, I infer that the Scottish churches are such, that the numerous and severe and continued attacks of Satan, the like of which I believe no nation has hitherto borne within so few years, have not succeeded in corrupting among them the purity of doctrine, or in changing the rule of strict discipline neglected by so many nations. Blessed be the Lord our God, who has gifted thee, my brother, as placed at the helm, and others as rowers and under-rowers, with such constancy and courage. It is a great gift of God, that you carried together into Scotland both pure religion and good order, the bond by which doctrine is secured. I beseech and implore you, that ye so keep those two together, that you may always remember, that when one is lost the other cannot long endure. This, certainly, both the very nature of things (for who would expect that laws could be rightly observed except by appointing guardians and executors of them?) And also experience itself, the teacher even of fools, teach us by the example of those nations, to whom chiefly through this error, which the people will not allow to be corrected, it is certain that at this day the gospel is proclaimed in judgment rather than in mercy (I except a very few of the elect of God). But of this also, my Knox, which is now almost patent to our very eyes, I would remind yourself and the other brethren, that as Bishops brought forth the Papacy, so will false Bishops (the relicts of Popery) shall bring in Epicurism into the world. Let those who devise the safety of the Church avoid this pestilence, and when in process of time you shall have subdued that plague in Scotland, do not, I pray you, ever admit it again, however it may flatter by the pretence of preserving unity, which deceived even many of the best of those of former times. As to our own affairs, while you in your country are occupied with tragedies such as the whole of Greece never acted in its theatres, we meantime have for six whole years been struggling with the plague, nor have we yet finished the conflict, which truly has destroyed no fewer than twelve thousand persons in this, as you know, rather small town. Although, however, both evils are sent by God to chastise us for our sins, yet we know what a difference that most wise and most experienced prophet David, when bidden to choose his punishment, judged to exist between our chastisement and yours. Your struggle, therefore, was even harder than ours. But blessed be the Lord who has so tried us in this furnace, that he has consumed neither, and may he grant, that by such chastisement we may at length be made wiser. Our city indeed is not as you saw it. The benches of our school, formerly not quite full, are now empty. One or another also of ourselves has severely tried us; but we are still through the grace of God alive, and, since that vital heat, namely, that same doctrine, good order and harmony between all ranks, which you observed when here, continues unabated, we doubt not that all the members having at length recovered their vigour, the whole body will be restored to health. Help us then by your prayers to God, as we also in our turn bear you upon our heart, and have been accustomed day and night perseveringly to pray for the state of the kingdom of Scotland, and the welfare of all good men. We will, however, be glad if as often as possible you advertise us of your affairs. We shall do the same to you much more diligently than ever before, seeing that peace in France seems to have opened to us a way for that purpose, though separated by so great a distance. Farewell, excellent man, and brother much to be esteemed. Let all our very dear and much-to-be-loved brethren and fellow-ministers, and all who love our Christ in sincerity, be saluted along with you both in my name, and in the name of all our colleagues.

¹ The original is No. lxxix. p. 314, in Liber Unus," edit. 1573; p. 314. Geneva, 1575. See supra, p. 562.

Geneva, 12th of April 1572.

CI.—KNOX TO SIR JAMES DOUGLAS OF DRUMLANRIG.¹

After all troubles, thair abydis a lyfe, blissed and happie without end, to thame that dependis upoun Jesus Christ.

RYCHT worschipfull, gif I had nocht thoct to have sene your awin face befor this, ye had not laiked my waike judgment so long, in thir present troubles. This is that which God reveillis to me, that the actione that is defendit against thea traytouris and murthereris of the Castle of Edinburghe is just, and in the end sall prevaille against Sathan, and all thame that mainteanis that wicket society. But, in the meanetyme, I sie,

¹ Sir James Douglas took an active part in public affairs; and also his son, Sir William Douglas of Hawick, who predeceased him in 1572. His descendants were afterwards raised to the Peerage, first as Marquess, and then as Duke of Queensberry.

that as Jesus Chryst behovit to be crucified, so this just actione most anes be brocht to the extremitie. The secreit causis I knaw nocht, except our synis; but I sie that tressone, fostered and mainteaned within our awin bowalis, craves of God that he sall lat us taist therof. Dead Scotland, waikin! who befor wald nocht be admoniseth of trubles to cum! But now, in the middis of trubles, it seikis a wronge remeid; for it is neather England, France, nor Spaine, in whome God hes placed ony comfort to pure Scotland; bot onlie it restis in Him self, and only of Him most we receive it! I sie that the traffique with that Babilone, the Castle of Edinburghe, sall ones bring Scotland in that miserie that we and our posteritie sall murne for a tyme. Bot yit, Schir, be nocht ye, nor the faythfull, discouraged, for to destructione (as befor I have said) sall it cum; and they that presentlie sufferis sall re(joice) in this lyfe, and eternallie! Communicat this with your faythfull bedfellow, with my hartelye commendationes. And sua I committ you both to the protection of the Omnipotent.

Youris,

[JOHNE KNOX.]

Lying in Sanct Androis, half deid, the 26th of Maii 1572.

CII.—KNOX TO SIR JOHN WISCHART OF PITTARROW.

The end of all worldlie trouble and pleasure both approacheth.

Blessed are they that patientlie abide in the truthe, not joyning hands nor hearts with impietie, how that ever it triumphe.

RIGHT worshipfull, after heartie commendatiounes: Your letters, dated at Pittarrow the 14th of Julie, received I in Sanct Andrewes, the 15th of the same. The brute and rumor of Adam Gordon and his doings, and of preparations made to resist him, was diverse. But nothing that I heard moved me, for I perceave the cuppe of iniquitie is not yitt full. Of one thing I am assured, that God in his mercie will not suffer his owne to be tempted above measure, nather will he suffer iniquitie ever to be unpunished. Frome me can come no other counsell, than that which ye have heard frome the beginning of our acquaintance; to witt, that not onlie action defileth, and maketh guiltie before God, but also consent of heart, and all paction with the wicked.

Out of bed, and frome my booke, I come not but once in the weeke, and so few tydings come to me. What order God sall putt into the mind of the Authoritie to tak for staying of thir present troubles, I know not. But ever still my dull heart feareth the worst, and that, because I see no appearance of right conversioun to God, but both the parteis stands as it were fighting against God himself in justification of their wickednesse: the murtherers assembled in the Castell of Edinburgh, and their assisters, justifeing all that they have done to be weill and rightlie done, and the contrare party as little repenting the troubling and oppressing of the poore Kirk of God as ever they did. For if they can have the kirklands to be annexed to their houses, they appeare to tak no more care of the instructioun of the ignorant, and of the feeding of the flocke of Jesus Christ, than ever did the Papists, whom we have condemned, and yitt are worse ourselves in that behalfe. For they, according to their blind zeale, spared nothing that might either have mainteaned or holden up that which they took for God's service; but we, alas! in the midst of the light forget the heaven and draw to the earth.

Daylie looking for an end of my battell, I have sett furth an Answer to a Jesuite,¹ who long hath railed against our religion, as the reiding of this tractat will more plainlie lett you understand. The letter in the end,² if it serve not for this estate of Scotland, yitt it will serve a troubled conscience, so long as

¹ This mention of Kuox's Answer to Tyrie fixes the date of the letter to 1572, although Calderwood gives a part of this and of No. ciii. as "Fragments of Mr. Knox his Letters," under the year 1571. See supra, p. 479.

² His letter to Mrs. Bowes, supra, p. 515.

the Kirk of God remaineth in either realme. With my heartie commendations to your bedfellow, and to my Lord Marshall, and to the faithfull in their companie, deliver to them the bookes according to their directions, and pray the faithfull in my name to recommend me to God in their prayers; for my battell is strong, and yitt without great corporall paine. The Lord Jesus, who hath once redeemed us, who hath also of his mercie given unto us the light of his blessed countenance, continue us in that light that once we have receaved externallie, and at his good pleasure putt an end to all the troubles of his owne spouse, the Kirk, which now sobbeth and crieth, "Come, Lord Jesus! come, Lord Jesus!" whose omnipotent Spirit conduct you to the end. Amen.

Off Sanct Andrewes, the 19th of Julie [1572].

CIII.—KNOX TO MR. CHRISTOPHER GOODMAN.

BELoved BROTHER,—I cannot praise God of your trouble, but that of his mercie he hath made you one against whome Satan bendeth all his ingynes. Therof unfainedlie I praise my God, beseeeking him to strenthen you, to fight your battell lawfullie to the end. That we sall meit in this life, there is no hope; for to my bodie, it is impossible to be caried frome countrie to countrie, and of your comfortable presence where I am, I have small, yea, no esperance.

The name of God be praised, who of his mercie hath left me so great comfort of you in this life, that ye may understand, that my heart is peirced with the present troubles. Frome the Castell of Edinburgh have sprung all the murthers first and last committed in this realme; yea, and all the troubles and treasons contrived in England. God confound the wicked devisers, with their cruell vices. So long it hath pleased God to continue me in anie strength, I ceased not to forewarne these dayes publictlie, as Edinburgh can witness; and secretlie conferred, can testifie. Remedie now on earth resteth none, but onlie that both England and Scotland humble submitt themselves to the correcting hand of God, with humble confessioun of their former inobedience, that blood was not punished when He, by his servants, publictlie craved justice, according to his law. In which head your realme is no lesse guiltie than we, who now drink the bitter part of the cuppe, which God of his mercie avert from you.

And thus wearie of the world, with my heartilie commendations to all faithfull acquaintance, Mr. Bodlih¹ and his bed-fellow especiallie remembred, I committ you to the protection of the Omnipotent.

Off Sanct Andrewes [July 1572].

CIV.—KNOX TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY AT PERTH, WITH CERTAIN ARTICLES AND QUESTIONS.

Fight and faint not, for the battle is short, and the victory with Jesus Christ is rich and without end.

ALBEIT I have tain my leave not only of you, dear Brethren, but also of the whole world and all worldlie affairs; yet remaining in the flesh I could not nor cannot cease to admonish you of things, which I know to be most prejudiciall to the Kirk of Christ Jesus within this realme. Above all things, preserve the Kirk from the bondage of the Universities. Persuade them to rule themselves peaceably, and order thair schools in Christ; but subject never the pulpit to their Judgment, neither yet exempt them from your Jurisdiction. Take heid

¹ John Bodleigh, with his wife and family, came to Geneva in June 1557. His son Thomas, who was born in 1544, was educated at that University. Their names occur in the list of exiles during the time that Knox was minister of the English congregation at Geneva. Sir Thomas Bodleigh or Bodley, who was knighted by King James after his accession, and who died in 1612, was the celebrated founder of the Bodleian Library, Oxford.

that nothing proceed, under your name, be particular factions. Farther I have communicated my mind with thir two dear brethren. Hear them, and doe as ye will answer before God, who presently worketh potently, how blind that ever the world remaineth. Fight ye in the truth and for the liberty of the same, and be assured to triumph with Jesus Christ: To whose mighty protection I unfainedly commit you.

Off Sanct Andrewes, the 5th day of August 1572.

[JOHN KNOX.]

With this letter, which was sent be Mr. John Wynrame, Superintendent of Fife, and Mr. Robert Pont, were sent thir Articles following:—

1. First, Desiring a new Act to be made, ratifying all things concerning the King and his obedience that were enacted of before, without any change, and that the ministers who have contraveened the former Acts, be corrected as accordeth.

2. That sute be made to the Regent's grace and nobility maintaining the King's cause, That whatsoever proceedeth in this treaty of peace, they be mindfull the Kirk be not prejudged thereby in any sort; and they specially of the ministry, that have been robbed of their possessions within the Kirk during the time of the troubles, or otherwise dung and injured, may be restored.

3. To sute at the Regent, That no gift of any bishoprick or other benefice be given to any person contrar to the tenor of the Acts made in the time of the first Regent of good memory; and they that are given contrar the said Acts, or to any unqualified person, may be revoked and declared null be ane Act of Secret Counsell; and that all bishopricks vacand may be presented, and qualified persons nominat thereunto, within a year after the vaiking thereof, according to the order taken in Leith be the Commissioners of the Nobility and of the Kirk in the moneth of January last; and, in speciall, to complean upon the giving of the Bishoprick of Rosse to Lord Methven.

4. That no pensions of benefices great or small be given be simple donation of my Lord Regent, without consent of the possessor of the said benefices having title thereto, and the admission of the Superintendent or Commissioner of the province where this benefice lyeth, or of the Bishops lawfully elected according to the said order taken at Leith; and desire ane act of Counsell to be made thereupon unto the next Parliament, wherein the same be specially inacted, with inhibition to the Lords of Session to give any letters or decreets upon such simple gifts of benefices or pensions, not being given in manner above rehearsed; and that the Kirk presently assembled declare all such gifts null, so far as lyeth in their power.

5. That the first form of presentation to benefices, which were in the first and second Regent's time, be not changed as now it is commonly; but that this clause be contained in the presentations, That if the persons presented make not residence, or be slanderous, or found unworthy either in life or doctrine be the judgment of the Kirk (to the which alwise he shall be subject), or meet to be transported to another room at the sight of the Kirk, that the said presentation, and all that shall fall thereupon, shall be null and of no force nor effect; and this to have place also in the nomination of the Bishops.

6. That ane Act be made in this Assembly, That all things done in prejudice of the Kirk's assumptions of the Thrids, either be Papists or others, in giving of fewes, liferents, or tacks, or any otherwise disposing the said assumed Thrids, be declared null, with a solemn protestation, The whole Kirk disassenteth thereto.

7. That ane Act be made, decerning and ordaining all Bishops admitted be the order of the Kirk now received, to give account of their whole rents and intromission therewith once in the year, as the Kirk shall appoint for such causes as the Kirk may easily consider the same to be most expedient and necessar.

8. Anent the jurisdiction of the Kirk, That the same be determined in this Assembly, because this article hath been very long postponed.

9. To make sute to the Regent and Counsell for remedy against messmongers and excommunicate persons.

10. Last, That order be taken anent the procurers of the Kirk, who procure against ministers and ministry, and for sisting of justice of the Kirk's actions in the Session.

Thir Questions were also presented at this Assembly:—

1. If a Bishop, being elected to a great diocie, may be admitted beside that to the office of Rectory of ane University or Provest of a Colledge, or any other like charge, or to bruike any inferior benefice.

2. If controversy rise upon doctrine, before whom shall it be treated, where the Bishops are placed according to the order of the Kirk: Whether shall the Superintendents jurisdiction expire or not.

3. If any Abbot may sett his whole abbacie in prejudice of his successors and of the ministry, for the half of the thing it payed before, or otherwise far within the avall.

Thir Articles were read in the Assembly with the former letter. The Assembly wrote again ane Answer to Mr. Knox, thus:—

The mychtie comfort of the Holy Ghost moste strengthen yow unto the end.

WE have received your writting (dear Brother in the Lord Jesus), together with certain Articles and Questions, the which we have read and diligently considered, and find the same both reasonable and godly; and therefore we have taine like order as we could for the furtherance thereof, as thir our brethren bearers of this present will declare unto you, beseeking you to comfort yourself in the mercies of God through Jesus Christ. We think it not meet to trouble you presently with long letter, seeing our minds are all bent (as we believe) to sett forward the self same cause, which our God hath putt into our hands, to the advancement of his glory and comfort of his Kirk through Jesus Christ; to whose protection we committ you.

Off Perth, the 10th of August 1572.

Your brethren and fellow members in Jesus Christ,

Mr. JOHN WYNNAME.

BISHOP OF CATHNES.

Mr. DAVID LINDESAY.

JOHNE ARESKINE.

Mr. ROBERT PONT.

JOHNE SPOTSWOOD.

Mr. JOHNE ROW.

CV.—KNOX'S RETURN TO EDINBURGH FROM ST. ANDREWS, August 1572.¹

To this Assemblie² the Toun of Edinburgh, efter thei war come home againe to thair houses (I meane of thame that wer banished and remained not in the toun, nor tuike pairt with the traytoris of the Castell), send thair commissioneris, as alwayis before thei had done, at every Assemblie; and becaus thai wer destitute of Ministeris, desyrit that thai mycht choise whom thai pleisit to have for thair minister, becaus Mr. Johne Craig and thei had gevin uther over; for thei thoct that the said Mr. Johne Craig,³ wha befor was ane of thair ministeris,

¹ From Richard Bannatyne's Memorials.

² The General Assembly held at Perth, on the 6th of August 1572.

³ Mr. John Craig, after leaving Edinburgh, removed first to Montrose, and then to Aberdeen, but returned as minister of the King's household in 1580. He died in 1600, at the advanced age of eighty-eight.

sweyed over meikle to the sword-hand. I will say no moir of that man : but I pray God continow with him his Holy Spreit, and that he be not drawin asyde be Lethingtoun.

The Assemblie grantit unto them to choise wher thai pleased ; with a charge also to the persone whome thei wold desyre to obey, except of the tuo ministeris of Dundie and Sanct Johnstoun.¹ And thairefter the said commissoneris come to Johne Knox (now thair only minister at this present, albeit he was dwelling in Sanct Androis), to seike his advice heirin ; and also delyverit to him this lettre following, direct from the Kirke and Bretherin of Edinburgh, for to will him to returne home againe, as followes :—

THE KIRK AND BRETHERN OF EDINBURGH TO KNOX.

The comfort of the Holie Spirit, for salutioun !

OFF the restoiring of us (undeservit) of our God, to this our Toun, we beelve ye ar not ignorant ; and yit we can not excuse our sleuth, that has not as yit adverteised you thairof. But being trubled to obtaine that libertie whilk we had befor our departing thairfra, quhairin we ar as yit occupied, was and is the caus of our slaknes, quhilk we doubt not ye will accept in good part. Our estait present, in that thing whilk is to us most deir, is that ministeris may be had, of whome for the present we ar destitute (you only excepted), moves us moir then ony uther thing. And for that purpose, and treating of sic uther thingis as concerne the stait of the Kirke, we directit Nicoll Udward, with Johne Johnstoun, this beirare, to the Assemblie at Sanct Johnstoun, who will certifie you of thair ansuer, which thai thair resaved. Bot because ye ar he to whome we are mareit undir, and we to you, we wald crave, and craves of God, gif habitie of your persone mycht susteine travell, that ones againe your voice mycht be hard amonges us, and that thing reformed whilk sumtymes be you, under God, amonges us was planted. Laith we ar to disease or hurt your persone in ony wayis, and farre laither to want you, we being so joyned together in love, be God ; and knowing your cair to be no les for us than it hes bene heirtfoir, we referre your returning to your self, and your judgment. But gif it mycht stand with your will, we desyre the samyn, maist earnestlie. And knowing the sufficiencie of the beiraris, wha will declair our myndis to you at grit length, whairin ye sall give thaim credite, we committ you to the protectione of the Eternall.

Off Edinburgh, the fourth of August, 1572.

Your Bretherin and Childrene in God (with their names subservyvit with thair owin handis).

¹ William Christisone, was minister of Dundee and Mr. John Row of Perth, or St. Johnstoun.

The presenteris of this letter wer the commissioneris of the said Kirk of Edinburgh, as said is, to wit, Nicoll Udward, and Johne Johnstoun, scribe. Whilk letter when thei had delyvered, and shewed the guid will and ansuer of the General Assemblie, requyred his advise for the choise of a minister, the Superintendent of Lowthiane being present; and after some ressoning, they concludit upoun Mr. James Lowson, then sub-principall of the Colledge of Aberdein, placed thair be the first Regent, the Lord of Murray.

Maister Knox, eftir the reiding of his letter, grantit to the Commissioneris and beivaris foirsaidis to returne agane to Edinburgh; bot with this conditione, that he suld not be desyred or preissed in ony sort to temper his tounge, or cease to speake against the treasonabill dealingis of the Castell of Edinburgh; whois treasonabill and tyrannous doingis he wald cry out against, sa long as he wer able to speike. And thairfoir willed them to signifie the same to the whole Kirke and Bretherin of Edinburgh, leist thei sould afterward aither repent of his austeritie against the said Castle, or yit leist thai sould feir to be worst intreated for his caus. Whilkis wordis, or the like in effect, the said Mr. Knox oftymes repetite unto the Bretherin of Edinburgh, when he was returned, befoir he enterit the pulpet. Bot thai plainelie confessit that never meanit nor thocht to put a brydle to his tounge, but willed him to speike his conscience, as he had done afoir tymes.

The 17th of August, Mr. Knox departed out of Sanct Androis, not without dolore and displeasure of the few godly that wer in that toun; bot to the grit joy and pleasure of the rest, and specialie to the Balfouris, Kirkealdies (few thocht thei be!), and Hammiltoneis (enemies to God and to the King!) and their factione, for his severitie used against them in his sermondis, reproving their treasonable dealing, falssett, deceit, and trubling of this commonwealth; quhilk they culd not abyde! Bot especiallie the Hammiltoneis, becaus his invying against thair tressonabill murther of the first Regent; for all the tyme he was in Sanct Androis (quhilk was fra the begining of Julii, in anno 1571, till the 17 of August, in the yeir following, 1572) he preichit everie Sunday, and teichet the Prophet Daniell, to the middis of the ix chapter, always applying his text (as a faithful preichore ought to doe) according to the tyme and stait of the people; whairby the wicked and trubleris of Godis Kirk myght be knowin and painted out in their collouris! Bot, contrarielie, Mr. Robert Hammiltoun, the minister of the said toun, in all his sermondis, usit sic generalitie (as, alace! the maist part of the ministeris doe, becaus thai have no will to take upoun thaim the displeasure of men, for the reproving of vice!) that his sermondis mycht be applyed to these that susteaned the guid caus, alsweill as to the trubleris of this commoun wealth, and the puire Kirke within it: quhas doingis he always went about to suppres and cover, that the same suld not appeir to the eies of the multitude ; thinking it sufficient, as oftymes was said, to have ane approved authore for ony thing he spake. Bot the word of God aucht to be distributed as a guid and faithfull phisitiane (quhilk a minister aucht to be to the saule and conscience of men) doeth his medicine, that is, according to the disease of the patient, and not to think it sufficient to give unto him guid medicine ; for that which is guid for one, is death for another ; and that medicine that is proper and also profitable for ane disease, is most noysome and hurtfull to another ! Therfoir, as I have said, the medicine most be applyed as is most convenient for the curing of the disease of the seik ; even so most and aucht everie trew preicheore distribute the medicine of Godis trew word. But how this is done now a dayis (alace !) is moir than evident. Becaus, I say, Johne Knox did thus use himself in his sermondis, it gendrit unto him a deidlie hatred and envye of all the foirsaidis in Sanct Androis, and especiallie of the Principallis of the New College and the Auld (a few exceptit) ; and yit, be outward gesture, and befoir his face, thei wald seime and apeir to favore and love him above the rest.

The caus why I speik this is, that at the inauguratioune of the Bischope of Sanct Androis foirsaid, altogether against the mynd of Mr. Knox,¹ as he at that tyme oppinly spake in pulpet, he gritlie inveyed against sic ordour and doingis as then was uset. Bot Mr. Johne Rutherford, Proveist of the Auld College, called Sanct Salvatoris College, said that Mr. Knox did so earnestlie speike against that doing, and macking of Mr. Johne Douglas bischope, becaus he gat not the Bischoprike himself ! Whairunto Mr. Knox maid ansuer the next Sunday, in the pulpet, that he had refused a gritter Bischopricke² then ever it was, which he mycht have had with the favore of gritter men then ever the uther had this bischoprike, and yit did refuse. Bot only that he spake for discharge of his conscience ; and that the Kirke of Scotland suld not be subject to that ordore which then was used, considerding the Lordis of Scotland had subseryvit, and also confirmed in Parliament, the ordore alreadye and long agoe appointed, in the Buike of Discipline. Also the said Mr. Johne Rutherford, at what tyme one of his Colledge, called Mr. Homere Blair, hath made oratione, invective against Sanct Leonardis Colledge, affirming thaim to be als guiltie of the death of Mr. Williame Ramsay, as Jamie of Bothwelhauch was of the Regentis slauchter, whome he shot with a culvering in Linlythgow ; with other mony injuries against the young men of that Colledge. Mr. Johne Rutherford, I say, fearing Mr. Knox sould have spoken sumwhat ¹ In a previous page Bannatyne says, that on Sunday the 10th of February 1571-2, John Knox preached at St. Andrews, the Lord of Morton being present.

But he refused to inaugurate Mr. John Douglas, who had been elected Bishop of St. Andrews, etc. (Memorials, p. 22).

² The See of Rochester.

in his nixt sermond against the said oratione, or els sumquhat for the said young men, or regentis of the said College, sendis to Mr. Knox his letter following :—

MR. JOHNE RUTHERFURD, *Provost of St. Salvator's College,*¹
St. Androis, to JOHNE KNOX.

BROTHER in the Lord Jesus, I am within this half houre advertaised, that some of the regentis of Sanct Leonardis College hath bene at yow with some repourt of the thingis that was spokkin in the schooles be ane Regent of our College in his oratioune publiet : I desyre you not to medle with thea meateris, while both the parties be hard ; for the auld saying is trew, “ Wha evill speikis evill heiris ! ” It was reported what ansuer I gaive to the Bischope, be the beddell ; of the quhilkis thair was thir wordis, as was ferrit be sum to you : That I said, “ Cowper in Fyffe and Sanct Johnstoun wer ever authoris of seditioun ! ” Bot this I said, that “ in Cowper and in Sanct Johnstoun was oft seditioun, and swa the personis of these tounes shuld beine war withall. ” (Lat men tak it as they pleis !) I wald the wordis wer fals that I said. Be Godis grace, in Sanct Androis sall none be moir willing of quyetness nor I ; and I assuir you, that I never knew, nor in ony sort understude, what he that made the oratioun was to speik, whill I hard him in the schooles. And yit, when all salbe tried befor the honestest of the Universitie, it wilbe fund utherwayis nor men speikis ; and gif thair be fund fault with the man, it sall not defend him. Bot, in the meintyme, I wald ye medled nothing in the mater, as it aperteinis nothing to you ; and I assure you that we have als guid zeale in this College towardis Godis word, and als guid opinione of you, as ony uther. Ye will remember heirafter of this my advertisement. Committing you to Godis protectioun, not willing to truble you ather with wryting or talking,

Your assured Brother in the Lord Jesus,

MR. JOHNE RUTHERFURDE.

The nixt Sondag Mr. Knox, into the pulpet, declaired the contentis of this letter send unto him, without the expressing of his name that send it, schawing that hitherto nane could accuse him of meddling in

¹ Rutherford was a native of Jedburgh, and spent the early part of his life in France. He was, in the year 1553, invited by Archbishop Hamilton to accept the Professorship of Humanity in the newly erected College of St. Mary at St. Andrews ; and in 1560, having embraced the Reformed doctrines, he became Principal of St. Salvator's College in that University. As head of that College, he was ex officio Rector or Minister of the parish of Cults, in Fife. He died before December 1577, soon after republishing his work De Arte Dissereudi Libri quatur. Edinburgi, 1577, 4to. See M'Crie's Life of Melville, vol. ii. pp. 367-371, 474.

materis which aperteinet not unto him ; notwithstanding, whair offences wer oppinly committed, he of his office aught to reprove thaim, whidder thai wer done in the Colleges or not ; and that he knew the pairt of the young men of Sanct Leonardis College to be uprycht and just in that matter ; and thairfoir he wald justifie thair caus. Bot for the plainer declaratioune of this mater, we man open the same as the treuth is ; and quhilk I know to be most trew indeid.

Thair hes evir bene, of auld, a privie hatred of the uther tuo Colleges against Sanct Leonardis, which began sumwhat more to increse eftir the depairtore of the man of God, Mr. Gudeman, out of Sanct Androis, wha thair was minister ; in whais rowme Mr. Robert Hammiltoun foirsaid enterit, and was minister.

Now when the trubles began, efter the Kingis slauchter, that was murthered be the Queine, with whome the Hammiltounes joyned (to their wraike), the said Mr. Robert began to be sumwhat caulder in his sermondis then he was wont of befoir ; for in the tyme that my Lord of Murray had the handling of the Court in the Queinis tyme, he wald not spair to reprove, most seveirlye, whatsoever he knew to be done amiss, ather be the Queine, in the Court, or utherways. But now, I say, when that the Hammiltounes did joyne with the Queine in the defence of hir, efter the murther of hir owin husband, he began to grow cauld in his sermondis, and never spake a word of these materis, as gif thei never aperteinet unto him ; and sua from tyme to tyme he thus continowed, till at lenth the young men, regentis of Sanct Leonardis Colledge, thinking him to be sumwhat changed, began to admonise him, and desyre him first (as I understand) to pray for the Regent, my Lord of Murray, and the rest of his cumpany, for thair prosperous returne out of England, whair thai wer for the tyme, for tryall of the Quenis schamfull act, before the Queine of England : Bot for all thair admonishing of him, he did nathing, but rather drew uther ministeris with him to disallow all thingis done against the Queine and Kingis coronatioune ; quhilk opinly thei spak not, becaus thei durst not, at the first ; but as trubles began, so did he and thei of his faction moir and moir utter thaimselves, till at lenth the foirsaid young men of Sanct Leonardis College did opinly complaine of the said Mr. Robert and utheris of the Generall Assemblie of the Kirke, and gave in particulare accusatiounes against them, that thei did not pray for the Regentis grace foirsaid, and for the King, and for sundrie thingis spokken be thaim, tending to the derogatioune of the Kingis authoritie ; with dyverse utheris thingis, which to recite wer tuo long. And amonges the rest that wer accused, Mr. Williame Ramsay (a learned and a guid man, but seducit be the Hammiltounes factioun, and Mr. Johne Rutherford), nixt undir the said Mr. Johne, Proveist of Sanct Salvatoris Colledge, was one, for sum thingis he had spokken for pleasure of the Hammiltounes ; for thei made him belevie that a dochter of the auld chamerlandis of Sanct Androis, callit Hammiltoun, wald marie him, whome he eirnestly desyred ; whairby he was drawin to follow thair factioun : Bot Mr. Williame, being callit befor the Assemblie, tuike grit displeisour, and was not a littil commoved in his mynd, whairthrow he tuike seiknes, and schortlie died. He confessed to some that, for the pleisour of his intyseris, he did against his conscience, which movit him to gritter dolore in his hart ; bot alwayis, he deid of two or thrie dayis seiknes. Whilk his disease or seiknes apeired the Sondag befor his death, being in pulpet, and being requyred be Mr. Robert Hammiltoun, befor, to preich that Sondag efternounge, was so caried away, as ane without memorie, so that he culd not observe his mater ; and efter he come fra the pulpet, tuike his bedd, and within thrie dayis (as said is) died. A fearfull document of Godis judgmentis to monie now a dayis, wha dois cleane contrarie to thair knowledge and conscience ; upoun whome Godis judgmentis sall stryke in gritter measoure, gif God make them not repent ! Becaus, I say, the Regentis and young men of Sanct Leonardis Colledge summouned Mr. Williame Ramsay to the Generall Assemblie (as said is), which was the cause that he tuik his seiknes and died, they of the auld Colledge, callit Sanct Salvatoris Colledge, bure thaim evir since sic indignatioun, that thei socht alwayes to lay the blame of his death upoun thame ; whilk this young man did, Mr. Homer Blair, in open schooles, in his oratione (as said is). And this was the caus of his invyeing against the said Colledge ; for the whilk oratione Mr. Johne Rutherfurde, being Proveist of the said auld Colledge, wrote as we have hard.

Bot to returne to thame wha buire privie indignatioun, in hart, unto Mr. Knox for his maner of doctrine, and yit in countenance wald apeir to love him as thair brother, in speccial was the said Mr. Robert Hammiltoun, wha had sparced abroad and tauld to sundrie, that Mr. Knox was als grit a murtherer as ony Hammiltoun in Scotland, gif all thingis wer well tryed ; and thairfoir suld not cry out so fast against murthereris ! For (said Mr. Robert) he had subscrivit to the death or slauchter of the Quenis husband, me Lord Darnelie, with my Lord of Murray, quhilk sould have bene done in Sanct Johnstoun, as said is. Thir wordis Mr. James Hammiltoun declaired to me, beand Mr. Knoxis servand ; and also said, that the said Mr. Robert had diverse tymes spooken the same unto him, and to ane called Mr. Johne Carnegie, ane uther Regent that tyme in the said New Colledge. Quhilkis wordis, when I hard, I said, I could not of my honour conceill the same, but wald avow him to be the speiker thairof to me ; and willed him not to goe bake thairof. Eftir that I had declaired thir wordis to my maister, he wrote to Mr. Robert on this maner, being ewill at eas for the tyme :—

CVI.—KNOX TO MR. ROBERT HAMMILTOUN, MINISTER OF ST. ANDREWS.

Thair is nothing so secret but salbe reveiled!

BECAUS the inhabilitie of my body is sic that I may not do the thing quhilk utherwayis I wald gladly, I write unto you (not without pane) these few wordis, desyring to be resolved whidder that ye have affirmed (to ane or mae) that ye have sene my subscriptioun and consent to the murther of the Lord Darnley. Off your awin conscience and knowledge ye your self can best testifie. I crave your ansuir, affirmative or negative.

JOHNE KNOX.

Quhilk I delyverit the 15 of November, in anno 1571, and requyred his ansuir; bot his schifiting wordis, spoken to me, mycht have maid any man sufficientlie beleive that he had spoken the same. But after long talk, he willed me to give this ansuer: That he neidit not to have writtin unto him, for gif he would have send the leist boy to his hous, he sould cum to him and satisfie him. Whilkis wordis I reported agane.

Thaireftir my maister schew the mater to the rector, Mr. Johne Douglas, new maid Bischope, and to Mr. Johne Rutherford, desyring thame to speike Mr. Robert to satisfie this sclander, or elis to byd be it; whilk gif he wold nocht, he wald complene to the Kirke. Thaireaftir come the said Mr. Robert, and talketh with my maister. What it was I know not, bot when I come in upoun thame, my maister willed me schaw him that I tauld him it; which I confessed, and schew wha spake the same to me; whilk when I hard, I said, I culd nocht, neather of honestie nor honour, conceill the same; adding farder, that, "Gif I knew my maister to be sic a man, I wold nocht serve him for all the geir in Sanct Androis!"

Then the tryall of the matter was referred to me, RICHARD BANNA-TYNE, be command of my maister; whair of I thoct Mr. Robert had litle will, or none at all. After finding fit opportunitie, I confronted the said Mr. James (Hammiltoun) and Mr. Robert (Hamiltoun) together; which he denied, but the uther affirmed in his face to be most trew that he had so spoken, not only unto him, but also unto Mr. Johne Carnegie, to bring Mr. Knox in hatrent and disdaine. Mr. Robert said he suld caus the uther repent his speiking, and that he suld have him befor the Kirke to make the mendis. Then, said I, "Gif ye be innocent, and not have spoken it, ye will do so ; bot gif that be not done, it may easilie be knowin that ye have spoken the same." Bot thair was no moir thairof, except that he said he sould caus Mr. James repent it : Quhilk he and the rest of the Hammiltounes did what thei could, till at lenth he was compellit to leive the College. Utheris mocked him, calling him " Knoxis byrd !" with sic uther tauntis. God grant thaim repenting hartes, to acknowledge thair despite they have against that poure man, becaus he had a favour to Mr. Knox !

Also Mr. Archbald Hammiltoun for a long tyme come not to Johne Knoxis sermondis, becaus that he affirmed, in his teiching, that Hammiltounes wer murthereris. And a day being apointed to him to give a ressonne why he come not to the said Mr. Knoxis sermond, as he was apointed be the Superintendent and be the Bischope, Mr. Johne Douglas ? I can not tell quhither be the one, or be thame bothe, that he sould come to my maisteris hous, befor the said Bischope of Sanct Androis, the Bischope of Caitnes, Mr. Johne Wynrome, Mr. James Wilkie, Primarius of Sanct Leonardis Colledge, and Mr. Johne Rutherfurde, Deane of Facultie and Proveist of the auld Colledge. And being convenit, the said Mr. Archbald baid styfe, and said, that he was greived to sie the place (meaning the pulpet) so abused as it was. Whairunto Mr. Knox willed thame to take sic ordore as thei wald ansuer to God, as ane day thai sould, give ordore wer nocht put to his contempt. At what tyme nothing was done, saving that aither of thame maid thair protestatiounes, in forme and maner as followes :—

JOHNE KNOX'S Protestatioune.

THE 18 of Julii, 1572. The quhilk day Mr. Knox protestit, that no thing being done nor to be done in this privie assemble, prejudge the Kirke of God within Scotland, at ony tyme heirefter. And first, I protest that nather the pulpet of Sanct Androis, nather yit of ony congregatioune within the Realme, be subject to the censure of the schooles, universitie, or facultie within the same ; bot only that it be reserved to God, the Judge of all, and to the General Assemble gatherit within the same realme, lauchfullie. The ressonne of this my protestatioune is, that I luike for no better regiment in tymes to cum then hes bene in ages passing befor us ; in the whilk it is evident, that universities, orderis weill establishit, and men raised up to defend the Kirke of God, have opprest it ; and the malice of Satlian is alwaysis to be feared.

MR. ARCHBALD [HAMMILTOUN'S] Protestatioune.

THE quhilk day Mr. Archbald Hammiltoun, following the auctoritie and command of the most venerable Lordis, my Lord of Sanct Androis, Caitnes, the Deane of Facultie in Theologie, and uther principall heidis in the Universitie of Sanct Androis, compeirit in the inner chalmer of Mr. Knoxis, in the new ludgene of the Abbey, who be his owin, and be him being charged for not cuming to his preiching, agriet halilie to the said Mr. Knox first protestatioune ; protesting lykwayis with him, That nothing in this privie conventione be done suld be prejudiciall either to ane trew reformed Kirke, either to the liberties and godly constitutiounes of this our Universitie. Secondly, the said Mr. Archbald¹ protestis, That nather he, nor any uther faithfull in the Universitie, be thrallit to ony minister wha exemis him self fra ordore and godly discipline ; and cheiflie, when as the minister sall take that licence, that doctrine, to publishe in the pulpet, which afoir ordinar judges he refuses to defend in scholes, to schaw it to be consonant unto the word of God : And his resson is, that be the contentment of the whole learned and godly, it is affirmed, schooles to have bene intertained from the begining in all reformed Kirkis, to this purpose chieffie, that sanitie of doctrine mycht be reteaned, and schismes and heresies avoydit.

After Mr. Knoxis departore furth of Sanct Androis (as said is), he landit at Leith the 23 of August ; and eftir certane dayis taryeing thair, he come to Edinburgh, to the comfort of those that wer banishit, as he was ; and preichit in the pulpet of Edinburgh on Sunday the last of August. Bot becaus his voice was feeble and waik, and thairfoir culd not be hard of the whole multitude that convenit, he desyred thame to provyde for that place ; for he confessed, that his voice was never able (the best tyme that ever he was) to extend to all that come together in Sanct Geillis Kirke,² and meikle les now was it able to satisfie the auditors, seing that he was so waik, and his voice so farre spent. Thairfoir he desyrit thame that some uther place mycht be appointed for him, whair his voice mycht be hard, gif it wer but unto ane hundreth personis : Which efterwardis was done.

At this tyme was Mr. James Lowsone send for, out of Abirdeine, to cum to Edinburgh ; and thairfoir thei desyrit Mr. Knox to writ for him ; which he did, as follows :—

¹ This Mr. Archibald Hamilton soon after left Scotland for France, where he abjured the Protestant faith, and published two works, in 1579 and 1581, filled with the most calumnious statements against Knox and the other Reformers : See infra, p. 646.

² The Church of St. Giles, Edinburgh, in the course of the last three centuries has undergone so many alterations, that it is not easy to assign the precise limits of the Great Kirk to which Knox refers. It might be called the Nave of the Church, as only a portion of what is now called the High Church or New Kirk was then made use of for public worship ; and it probably was part of the south-west corner, known as " the Tolbooth Church " in which he latterly was able to preach.

CVII.—KNOX TO MR. JAMES LOWSONE.¹

All worldlie strength (yea even in thingis spirituall) decayeth; and yit sall never the worke of God decay!

BELOVIT BROTHER,—Seing that God of his mercie, far above my expectatioune, has callit me ones againe to Edinburgh, and yit that I feill nature so decayed, and daylie to decay, that I luike not for a long continowance of my battell, I wald glaidlie ones discharge my conscience into your bosome, and into the bosome of utheris in quhome I thinke the feir of God remains. Gif I hath had the habilitie of bodie, I sould not have put you to the paine to the quhilk I now requyre you, that is ones to visite me, that we may conferre together of heavinlie thingis; for into earth thaire is no stabilitie, except the Kirke of Jesus Christ, ever fightand under the crose, to whose mychtie protectione I heartlie committ you.

JOHNE KNOX.

Off Edinburgh, the 7th of September 1572.

Haist, leist ye come to laite!²

Eftir the receipt heirop, the said Mr. James come to Edinburgh, about the 15 or 16 of September, and preichit in the kirke the Fryday eftir; which was lyked of all the auditors. And the Sondag thaireftir, which was the 21 of September, Mr. Knox began and preichit in the Tolbuith, quhair he contineweth to preich every Sondag, so lang as God gave him strenth.

¹ See an account of Lowsone or Lawson, who died at London in October 1584, in M'Crie's Life of Knox, vol. ii. pp. 214-218; the Wodrow Miscellany, p. 447; and Calderwood's History, vols. iii. and iv.

² In Calderwood's MS., 1636, is this note:—"To the foresaid letter Mr.

Knox added this postscript, Accelera mi Frater, alioqui sero venies, 'Make haist, Brother, otherwise yow will come too late,' meaning that if he made any stay hee should find him dead and gone. These last words moved Mr. Lawson to take journey the more quickly."

CVIII.—HENRY KILLIGREW TO SIR WILLIAM CECILL, LORD BURGHLEY, AND ROBERT EARL OF LEICESTER.

THE Postscript of your Lordship's letter I answer thus: I trust to satisfy Morton, and for John Knox, that thing ye may see by my dyspatch to Mr. Secretary, is don and doing dayly: The people in generall well bent to England, abhorring the fact in France, and fearing their tyranny.

John Knox is now so feble as scarce can he stand alone, or speak to be hard of any audience; yet dothe he every Sunday cause himselfe to be caried to a place, where a certayn nombre do here him, and precheth with the same vehemence and zeale that ever he did. He dothe reverence your Lordship myche, and willed me once agayn to send you worde, that he thanked God he had obtained at his hands, that the gospel of Jesus Christ is truely and simply preached thorowout Scotland, which dothe so comfort him, as he now desireth to be out of this miserable lyffe. He said further, that it was not long of your Lordship that he was not a great bischope in England; but that effect growen in Scotland, he being an instrument, dothe myche more satisfy him. He desired me to make his last commendations most humbly to your Lordship, and withall, that he prayed God to increase his strong spirit in you, saying, there was never more need. And quoth he to me, "Take heed how you believe them of the Castle, for sure they will deceave you; and trust me, I know they seake nothing more than the ruyne of your Mistress, which they have been about of long tyme."

[Edinburgh, 6th of October 1572].

By your good Lordshipps most bounden

H. KYLLIGREW.¹

To the right honorable my singular good Lorde the Tresurer of Englande, and to the right honorable the Erle of Lester.

¹ Bannatyne, in mentioning Killigrew's arrival, as ambassador from Queen Elizabeth, September 1572, styles him "a good and godly Protestant."

CIX.—RICHARD BANNATYNE'S ACCOUNT OF KNOX'S LAST ILLNESS AND DEATH.

SONDAY the nynt of November 1572, was Mr. James Lowsone inaugurat in the pulpet of Edinburgh be Johne Knox, eftir that he had come fra the Tolbuith, whair he preached: And at that tyme declaired to the whole assemblie (as his waikie voice wuld serve, quhilk was heard but of a few) the dewtie of ane minister, and also thair dewtie to him lykwayis; and so made the mariage, in a maner, betwixt Mr. James Lowsone, then made minister, and the folke; and so prayسد God, that had gevin thame one in the place of himself that was now unable to teiche, and desyred God to augment him a thowsand fold above that that he had, gif it wer his pleisoure; and so with the commone blessing endit.

The Tuysday eftir this, the said Mr. Knox was stricken with a grit hoist, whairwith he being so febled, caused him upoun the 13 day leve his ordinar reading of the Byble; for ilk day he red a certane chepteris, both the Auld Testament and of the New, with certane psalmes, quhilk psalmes he passed through everie moneth once. Also the same threttein day he desyred his Wyfe to pay his servandis fies, saying, he wald never give thame another fie; quhilk on the morne he said to his servand, Jamie Campbell, in geving him his fie, "Thou will never get no moir of me in this lyfe!" And sua gave him xxs. above his said waiges.

Upoun the Thurisday, efter Mr. Knox tuike his seiknes, which pat end to his long travelis, quhilk he maist earnestlie cravet of God. Williame Maitland, sumtymes secretar, send down this letter out of the Castle to the Sessione of Edinburgh, compleaning upoun the said Mr. Knox, as followes:—

Letter from WILLIAME MAITLAND, Secretary to the Session of Edinburgh.

It is cum to our eires be credible report, that your minister, Johne Knoxe, alsweill publict in his sermondis as utherwayis, hes slanderit me as ane atheist, and enemie to all religione, in direct speiches, that I have plainlie spooken in the Castell, that "thair is nather heavin nor hell," and that "thai ar thingis devysed to fray bairnes;" with uther sic language tending to the lyke effect, unworthie of Christiane earis to be rehersit in the hearing of men. Which wordis, befor God, never at ony tyme proceidit from my mouth, nor yit ony uther sounding to the lyke purpose, nor whairof ony sic sentence mycht be gathered; for (praised be God!) I have bene brocht up from my youth and instructed in the feir of God, and to know that he has appointed heavin for the habitatioune of his elect, and also hell for the everlasting dwelling of the reprobat.

Seing he hes thus ungentlie used me, and neglected his dewtie, vocatioun, the rewle of Christiane cheritie, and all guid ordour, maliciouslie and untrewlie lieth on me, I crave redres thairof at your handis, and that ye will tak sic order thairwith, that he may be compellit to nominat his authoris, and prove his alledgance, to the end that gif it be found trew (as I am weill assured he sall not be able to verifie it in ony sort), I may worthilie be repute the man he paintis me out to be; and gif (whairof I have no doubt) the contrare fall out, ye may use him accordinglie; at leist that heireftir ye ressave not every word proceeding from his mouth as oracles; and know that he is bot a man subject to vanitie; and that mony tymes dois utter his owin passionis, and uther menis inordinat affectiones, in place of trew doctrine. It is convenient that, according to the Scriptouris, ye beleive not every spirit, but try the spreitis, whither thai ar of God or not!

W. MAITLAND.

Unto this letter the Sessione and Kirke of Edinburgh made this ansuer, on Thurisday the 20 of November, be him that brocht the letter, as followes :—

Ansuer be the Sessione and Kirke of Edinburgh.

ANENT the complante gevin in this day 8 dayis befoire the Sessione of this burcht of Edinburgh, be Johne Robertsons, in name of Williame Maitland, and subscriyvit with his hand, as he affirms; and anent the ansuer desyrit be the said Johne thairupoun, it being deferred to this day, and the Sessione of the Kirke thairwith ryplie advisit; for ansuer, findis it guid that the compliner authorise the presenter of the supplicatioune with sufficient mandat, and that he dedeigne him self (gif he seikis ony benefite of the said Kirke of the burcht foirsaid) to direct his supplicatioune to the ministeris, elderis, and deacones now present, admittand thame as judges in that caus, as use is.

Tuo or thrie dayis efter the ingeving of the said lettre, it was red to Mr. Knox, wha be ressonne of his infirmitie and seiknes could nocht ansuer the same, whilk glaidlie he wald have done, gif God had gevin him habilitie and longer dayis.

The Fryday, which was the 14 day, he rose above his accustomed dyet; and yit when he did ryse, he could scairse sit in a stuile: And then being demandit, what he wald doe up? said, he wald goe to the kirke and preich, for he thocht it had bene Sunday; and said that he had bene all nicht meditating upoun the resurrectione of Christ, which he sould have preichit after the death of Christ, whilk he had finishit in his last sermonde the Sunday befoir; for oft and monie tymes he wishit and desyred of God that he mycht end his dayis in the teiching and meditatioune of that doctrine, quhilk he did.

The Setterday, Johne Durie and Archbald Stewart come in about 12 houris, not knowing how seike he was; and for thair cause come to the table, which was the last tyme that ever he sat at ony thereafter; for he caused peirce ane hoggeid of wine which was in the seller, and willed the said Archbald send for the same so long as it lasted, for he wald never tarie untill it wer drunken.

Sunday, the 16 day, he keipit his bed, and wald take no meit (thinking it had beine the first Sunday of the Fast), quhilk the Laird of Braid¹ schew him the contraire; wha sat in the chalmer and dyned befor his bedsyde, and caused him take a litill.

Befoir, he earnestlie desyred the kirke (I meane the elderis and deacones) that he mycht bid thaim his last guidnycht, as he had done befor in the pulpet, at the inauguratioune of Mr. James Lowsone, saying, That he wald never enter that place againe.

Upoun Mononday the 17 day, the kirke come, according to his desyre, unto whome he protestit that he had taucht nothing but trew and sound doctrine, beating down, be the threatnings of Godis judgments, the proud and stubborne, and raising up and comforting the trubled consciences be the promises of Godis mercies; and that howsoever that he had bene against ony man, it was never for hatreat of the persone, but only to beat down in thame thair vice, and that quhilk was in them that rebelled against God, quhilk he wald nocht leive unpunishit, and for discharge of his conscience afoir God; and that he made not merchandise of the word, whose message he bure, to whom he most make accompt for the same. In respect quhairof (albeit he was waike and ane unworthie creature, and a fearfull man), he feared not the faces of men; and thairfoir exhorted thaim to stand constant into that doctrine quhilk they had hard of his mouth (how unworthie that ever he was), and willit thaim never to joyne with wickitnes, and speciallie with the Castle of Edinburgh, it remaining in the steat that it is, quhom God wald destroye both in bodie and saule, and thei repent not! And albeit thei sould not triumph in this world, and truble as they had done, yit prayed he thame never to have doingis with that factione, but rather chuse, with David, to flie to the montaines, then to remaine in the cumpany of the wicked. And that severitie that he used against the Laird of Grange, with quhom he hes bene sa familiar, was only to bring him to acknowledge him self, and his schamefull declyning, that thairby he mycht turne to repentence, whair of he doubted: And for this purpose he willed Mr. David Lindsay, being then present, and Mr. James Lowson, to signifie to the Laird that Johne Knox remanis the same man, now going to die, that ever he hes hard him befor, quhen he was able of body; and that thei sould will him to consider what anes he was, and the estait whairin now he standis, quhilk is pairt of his truble; and that gif he repentit not, the threatenings be him pronounced sould fall upon him and that house!

¹ Robert Fairlie of Braid.

As for ansuer to the Secretaris¹ bill, he desyred all men to consider thair workis, and specialie the rewingis of Edinburgh attoure the trubling of this quyet commoun wealth, and the Kirke of God within the same; quhilkis wer a sufficient declaratioune, to him and the whole world, that he denyed thair wer ony God to punishe sic wickitnes, or yet ony heavin or hell whairin vertew sould be rewardit or vice punished: The workaris thair of God wald destroy and punishe, as mycht be sene in the 9 Psalme, which gif thei did beleive, they wald never have committed sic ungodly and unnatural wickitnes. And for ansuer to that he said, he was "brocht up and instructed in the feir of God," etc., it was not the educatioune that made a trew Christiane, nather yit that brocht the feir and knowledge of God to ony man, but only the illuminatioune of the hart be the Spreit of God: for who was better brocht up than Julianus the apostate, and sundrie utheris? As to the nominatioune of the reportaris, quhilk the bill requyred, he refusit, althocht he could weill aneughe have done it. Whair the bill said that "Johne Knox was a man subject to vanitie, and all is not oracles that comes out of his mouth :” Whairto the said Mr. Knox ansueris, That he confessit he was but a most vile creature and a wretched man; nochttheles the thingis that he hes spoken sould be fund als trew as these oracles that have bene spooken be ony of the servandis of God befor; for he had said nothing but that whair of he was assured to be the word of God (to wit), that the justice of God sould never be satisfiet against the schedderis of innocent bloude, untill the bloud of the schedder be sched againe, be order of justice, to satisfie the same; or els, that God utherwayis move his heart unto unfained repentance; and that God walde destroye the wickit and cast them into hell, as may be sene in the 9th Psalme, quhilk he caused thaim reid; for he hes bene the chiefe author of all the trubill done both in England and Scotland. And so, with exhortatioune unto thaim all, he commendeth thaim to God; who after the prayer red for the seike (as it is in the Psalme buke), thair departit with tearis.

¹ The letter of the Secretary, Sir William Maitland, supra, p. 635.

Eftir this speiking he was the wors, and tuike a gritter and mair vehement working, for he never spake almost but with grit paine; and yit verie few come in (that he saw) to whome he gave not sum admonitione or exhortatioun.

Befoir his seiknes, he gave command to his wyfe and his servant Richard, that when God sould send him seikness, [and] that he was not able to reid him self, that then one of thaim sould reid unto him ilk day the 17 chapter of Sanct Johnes Gospel, a chapter of the Epistle to the Ephesianis, and the 53 of Esaii; whilk was done:—so that few houris, or none, of the day did pas over, whairin sumwhat was not red, besydis, according as he wald appoint, and oftymes sum sermondis of Calvine in Frenche, and of the Psalmes; and sundrie tymes when as we wald be reiding of the foirsaidis sermondis (which wer upoun the Ephesianis), thinking him to be asleip, we wald aske gif that he hard? Whairto he wald ansuer, “ I heir, I prais God, and understandis far better!” Whilk wordis he spake the last tyme, about foure houris befor his last braith.

The Lord Boyd come in unto him and said, "I know, Sir, that I have offendit you in monie thingis, and am now cum to crave you pardon." But what farder was betwixt thame I know not, for thei wer allone.

The Lord of Morton, Boyde, and the Laird of Drumlanrige, come in the Weddinsday, the 19 day. What purpose was amongis thame, none but thaim selves knew.

The next day, the Lord Lindsay, Bischope of Caitnes, and sundrie utheris gentlmen, come in, whome he exhorted to continow in the treuth that thei had hard, for uther word of saluatione thair is none! And earnestlie besought thaim (as he did to everie one that he spake unto) to "have nothing to doe with that dampnable hous of the Castell of Edinburgh! I meane nocht (sayis he) be the stanes, etc., but be thois that ar within that hous; whom God sall confound, baith in this lyfe and eternallie in body and soule, gif thai repent not, whilk appeiris nocht, and make thair names to remaine in execratioune to the posteritie to cum!"

My Lordis Ruthwen, Glencairne, and diverse utheris, at sundrie tymes, did visie him; but my Lord Ruthwen (wha come but anes) said, "Gif thair be ony thing, Sir, that I am able to doe for you, I pray you charge me." Who ansuerit, "I cair not for all the pleisoure and friendship of the world."

A gentle woman, and ane that fearis God, desyring him to praise God for that he had bene; and sa began, as it wer, to praise him, he said, "Tounge! tounge! ladie; flesche of itself is over proud, and neidis no meanis to esteame the self!" And thair also protested, as oftymes he did befor and eftir, that he did "onlie cleame to the frie mercie of God, schawed unto mankynd in the blude of his deare Sone, Jesus Christ, quhom only I embraced for his perfectione, justice, rychteousness," etc.: And willed her never to puff up flesche, which of it self was to prone and reddie to do the same, without ony uther provocatione; and so exhorted hir unto humilitie, and to "cast away stinking pryde ;” and desyred hir to remember the wordis of a woman, spoken to hir long agoe, saying, “Ladie! ladie! the blake oxe hes never trampit yit upoun your foote!” And so, with exhortatioune in the feare of God, and into that doctrine which thai have hard of him, he baid them fair weil!

At this tyme also, thir being depairtit, he sayis to the Laird of Braid, “Ilk ane biddis me guidnycht, but when will ye do it? I have bene greatly behaldin and addebted unto you, quhilk I am never able to recompence you: Bot I committ you to one who is able to doe it, that is, to the Eternal God!”

Upoun Fryday, the xxi day, he commandit Richard to gar make his kist,¹ whairin he was borne to his buriall.

Sonday, the 23 day (which was the first Sonday of the Fast), at efternounge, all being at the kirke except thame that waited upoun him, eftir that he had lyne a guid space verie quyete, as we thocht, he sayis, “Gif ony be present, lat them come and sie the worke of God!” for then he thocht to have departit, as we judged. At what tyme I send for Johne Johnstoun, he burstis furth in thir wordis, “I have been in meditatioune thir tuo last nightis of the trubled Kirke of God, the spouse of Jesus Christ, despised of the world, but precious in his sight! I have callit to God for it, and have committit it to hir Head, Jesus Christ! I have been fightand against Sathan, who is evir reddie to assault; yea, I have fochten against spirituall wickitnes in heavinlie thingis, and have prevailed! I have bene in heavin and have possession, and I have tasted of these heavinlie joyes, whair presentlie I am!” And thaireftir said the Lordis Prayer, and the Beleife, with some paraphraise, upoun everie petitione and article of thaim; and in saying, “Our Father which art in heaven,” he sayis, “Who can pronounce so holie wordis!”

Eftir the sermond, monie come in to sie him; and sum seing him draw his braith so schortlie, askit, “Gif he had ony paine?” Whilk when he understoode, ansuerit and said, “I have no moir pane then he that is now in heavin, and am content, gif God so pleis, to lye heir for sevin yeiris!" Thairfoir he said, oft and sundrie tymes, "Live in Christ, and let never fleshe feare death!" His meaning was, that gif we live in Christ, no man sall feare death.

¹ “Kist,” chest, coffin.

When he wald be lying, as we supposed, on a sleip, then was he at his meditatioune, as his manifold sentences may weill declair; as this that I have befoir said, whairin he wald oftin burst furth, "Live in Christ!" and, "Lord grant us the rycht and perfyte hatred of syn, alsweill be the document of thy mercies as of thy judgmentis!" "Lord grant trew pastoris to thy Kirke, that puritie of doctrine may be reteaned; and restore pace againe to this commonewalthe, with godly rewarlaris and and magistratis!" etc. "Anes, Lord, make ane end of truble!" "Lord I commend my spreit, saull and body, and all, into thy handis!" With innumerable sic lyke sentences.

Monday, which was the 24 of November, he departed this lyfe to his eternal rest! He rose about 9 or ten houris, and wald nocht lye (and yit he was not able to stand alone), and pat on his hoise and doublat, and sat in ane chair the space of half ane houre; and thaireftir went to bed, whair he wrocht in drawing of his end. And being askit of the gudman of Kyngincleuch, "Gif he had ony paine?" said, "It is no painefull paine, but sic a paine as, I trust, sall put end to this battell!" He sayis also to the said Robert, "I man leive the care of my wife and bairnes unto you, to whome ye man be a husband, in my rowme."¹

A litill efter none, he caused his wyfe reid the 15 chapter of the First Epistle to the Corinthianis, off the resurrectione; to son's "Memorial of two worthie Christians," etc., first printed in 1595, and included in the "Poetical Remains of Mr. John Davidson, Regent in St. Leonard's College," etc. Edinb. 1829, small 8vo.

¹ Robert Campbell of Kinzeancleuch, in Ayrshire, a zealous friend of Knox, did not long survive to fulfil this charge. He died 22d of April 1574, and his wife in the month of June following.—See Wodrow Miscellany, p. 281, and David-

whome he said, "Is not that a comfortable chapter?" A litill eftir he sayes, "Now, for the last, I commend my saule, spreit, and bodie (pointing upoun his thrie fingeris), unto thy handis, O Lord!" Thaireftir, about fyve houris, he sayis to his Wyfe, "Goe reid whair I cast my first ancre!"¹ And so shee read the 17 of Johnes Evangle; quhilk being endit, was red some of Calvinis sermondis upon the Ephesianis. We, thinking that he was a sleip, demandit gif he heard? Answerit, "I heir, and understandis far better, I praise God!"

A nycht befor, Doctour Prestoun, about ix houris at evin, demandit how he did? Said, "I have bene tempted be Sathan, and when he saw that he could not prevaile, he tempted me to have trusted in my self, or to have rejoyed or boasted of my self; but I repulsed him with this sentence, Quid habes, quod non accepisti?"

Eftir all, about sevin houris at evin, we left reiding, thinking he had been a sleip, so he lay still quhill after ten houris, except that sumtymes he wald bid weit his mouth with a litill waike aill: And half ane houre eftir ten, or thairby, we went to our ordinar prayeris (whilk was the longer or we went to thame, becaus we thocht he had bene sleipand); quhilk being endit, Doctor Prestoun sayis to him, "Sir, hard ye the prayeris?" Answerit, "I wald to God that ye and all men hard thame as I have hard thaim; and I praise God of that heavenlie sound!" Eftir the said doctor was rissin up, Robert Campbell sittis downe befor him on a stule; and suddanlie thaireftir he sayis, "Now it is cum!" for he had gevin ane long sicke and sobe. Then Richard sitting downe befor him, said, "Now, Sir, the tyme that ye have long callit to God for, to wit, ane end of your battell, is cum! And seing all naturall power now failes, remember upon these comfortable promises, which often tymes ye have schawin to us of our Salvioire Jesus Christ! And that we may understand and know that ye heir us, make us some signe." And so he lifted up his one hand, and incontinent thaireftir randerit the spreit, and sleipit away without ony paine, the day afoir said, about ellevin houris at evin; quhilk day my Lord Mortone was elected Regent, as said is.

¹ "Ancre," anchor.

On this maner departit this man of God, the lycht of Scotland, the comfort of the Kirke within the same, the mirrore of Godliness, and patrone and exemple to all trew Ministeris, in puritie of lyfe, soundnes in doctrine, and in bauldness in reproving of wickitnes; and one that caired not the favore of men (how great soever thei wer), to reprove thair abuses and synis!

In him was sic a mychtie spreit of judgment and wisdome, that the truble never come to the Kirke, sen his entering in publict preiching, but he foirsaw the end thairof; so that he had ever reddie a trew counsall, and a faythfull, to teich men that wald be taught, to take the best pairt and leife the worst; so that he that followed his counsall, in the end, had ever occasionne never to repent him: And contrarie, sic as have rejected the same, have cassin thaim selves in most schamefull wickitnes, and have come in a part, and daylie mair and mair are lyke to cum and fall to a most miserable ruyne, both of soule and body, quhilk undoubtedly sall come upoun thame, gif repentence prevene not Godis judgmentis; as may be weill veresiet this day in the Hammiltonis, the Laird of Grange, and Williame Maitland; whois end behald when it comis!

Bot heir sum may object, as mony have said, that my Lord of Murray, of guid memorie, had not deid sic a death gif he had not followed his counsall! Whairto it is ansuerit, That guid counsall is not the worse, albeit wickit men persecute thame that follow it; for so have all the godly bene persecuted from the begyning, for following the treuth and the guid counsall of God and his servantis. And as to the said Regentis slaughter, gif his counsall had bene followed when the Maister of Grahame come and drew him to Dumbartane, he plainlie said to the Regent then, that it was only done for a trane, be that meanes to cutt him off, as it come to pas. Also, when he was in Stirling, being returned from Dumbartane, he sent me¹ to my Ladie the Regentis wife, tuo sundrie tymes, and desyred her to signifie my Lord her husband, that he sould nocht come be Linlithgow. So that gif his counsall had bene followed, he had not died at that tyme. And my Ladie, the last tyme, sent Mr. Johne Woode, to desyre him to avoyde Lyulithgow. Bot God thocht us unworthie of sic a rewlar above us, and also he wald thairby have the wickitnes of utheris knawin, whilk then was hid; and thairfoir did God then tak him fra us! But let the Hammiltounes, the Laird of Grange, with the rest of that factione, lay thair compt, and reckon thair advantage and wining since!

What dexteritie in teiching, bauldnes in reproving, and hatred of wickitnes was in him, my ignorant dulness is not able to declair; whilk gif I sould preis to set out, were as who wald licht a candle to lat men sie the Sonne, seing all his vertewis ar better knowin, and nocht hid to the world, a thowsand fold better than I am able to expres.

Upoun the Weddinsday efter, he was buried, being convoyed with the Regent and the Lordis that were in the toun for the tyme, with monie a sorrowfull hairt!

CX.—THE ACCOUNT OF KNOX'S LAST ILLNESS AND DEATH, PUBLISHED BY MR. THOMAS SMETON, IN 1579.

[To the preceding account of the close of Knox's life, the similar narrative by a learned contemporary, translated from the Latin, may be added. This translation appeared in "The Christian Magazine, or Evangelical Repository," vol. vi. p. 353-

¹ The transcriber of the MS. inserts the words—"meaning, Mr. Knox sent Richard his servant."

362. Edinb., September, 1802, 8vo.¹ I have reason to believe it was contributed to that periodical by the subsequently distinguished biographer of Knox.

MR. THOMAS SMETON was born at Gask, near Perth, in the year 1536. After completing his academical studies in St. Salvator's College, St. Andrews (his name occurring as Incorporated in 1553, and a Determinant in 1556), he was appointed one of the Regents in that College. Still adhering to the Roman Catholic faith at the period of the Reformation, he went abroad, and we find him at Paris and Rome, where he attached himself to the Society of Jesuits. But at length, having abjured the Popish doctrines, he narrowly escaped the massacre at Paris in 1572; and being permitted to return in the company of Secretary Walsingham to England, he obtained employment as a schoolmaster at Colchester. Alexander Hay, Clerk of Privy Council, in a letter to Sir Francis Walsingham, dated from Edinburgh, 19th October 1576, says, "For Mr. Thomas Smetoun, it wes your Honour's letters that maid him and me to be first acquainted. And, according to your opinioun of him, I tak him to be a verie honest man, and well learned, and wes sorey at his heir being that he found so slender intertainment and welcuming. Yet his vertew can not but acquire unto him favour and lyvehood. And quhen he sall cum agane in this cuntrie he sall not want my pure gudewill quhair I can ony wyss wishe him well or stande him in stead."²

In the following year (1577) Smeton became minister of Paisley, and at the special request of Mr. Andrew Melville, he prepared his Answer to the work of Archibald Hamilton³ entitled, "De Confusione Calvinianæ Sectæ apud Scotos Ecclesie nomen ridicule usurpantis, Dialogus." Parisiis, 1577, small 8vo. A facsimile of the title of Smeton's volume is given on the opposite page.

¹ A few slight corrections have been adopted, chiefly on the authority of Dr. M'Crie himself, in his Life of Knox.

² Orig. Letter in State Paper Office.

³ See note, supra, p. 631.

AD VIRVLENTVM

ARCHIBALDI HAMILTONII
APOSTATÆ DIALOGVM, DE CONfusione Caluinianæ sectæ apud Scotos, impiè conscriptum orthodoxa responfio.

¶ THOMA SMETONIO SCOTO AVCTORE.

In qua celebris illa quæftio de Ecclefia, de vniuerfalitate, fuc-ceffione, & Romani Epifcopi primatu breuiter, dilucidè, & accuratè tractatur.

¶ Adiecta eft vera hiftoria extremæ vitæ & obiust eximij viti Ioan. Knoxij Ecclefia Scoticanæ inftauratoris fideliffimi.

¶ EDINBURGI,

Apud Iohannem Roffeum

Pro Henrico Charteris. Anno Do. 1579.

¶ CVM PRIVILEGIO REGALI.

Hamilton replied to Smeton in another volume, "Calviniana Confusionis Demonstratio, contra maledicam ministrorum Scotiæ responsionem." Parisiis, 1581, small 8vo. Both of his volumes are dedicated to Mary Queen of Scots.

In 1580, when Melville was translated to St. Andrews, Smeton became his successor as Principal of the University of Glasgow. He was skilled in the learned languages, and greatly esteemed. His premature death occurred on the 13th of December 1583, in the forty-seventh year of his age, "after eight days sickness (says Calderwood) in a hot fever, to the great sorrow of all good men."¹

The actual writer of the following narrative is not named. Calderwood quotes it as Smeton's, but at the time of Knox's death he had not returned to this country; and I have little hesitation in ascribing it to Mr. JAMES LAWSON, KNOX'S successor as minister of Edinburgh.² But Smeton in his own work, in refuting Hamilton's slanders, says, "This illustrious servant of God, JOHN KNOX, I shall clear from your feigned accusations and slanders, by the testimony of a venerable Assembly rather than by my own denial. 'This pious duty, this reward of a well-spent life, all its members most cheerfully discharge to their excellent instructor in Christ Jesus. This testimony of gratitude they all owe to him, who, they know, ceased not to deserve well of all till he ceased to breathe. Released from a body exhausted in Christian warfare, and translated to a blessed rest, where he has obtained the sweet reward of his labours, he now triumphs with Christ.' But beware, sycophant, of insulting him when dead; for he has left behind him as many defenders of his reputation as there are persons who were drawn by his faithful preaching from the gulf of ignorance to the knowledge of the gospel."]

¹ See M'Crie's Life of Knox, vol. ii. pp. 219, 238; Life of Melville, second edition, vol. i. pp. 158-162, vol. ii. pp. 379-383; Calderwood's History, vol. iii. p. 405, etc.

² See supra, p. 632.

EXIMII VIRI IOHANNIS KNOXII, SCOTICANÆ ECCLESIÆ INSTAURATORIS FIDELISSIMI, VERA EXTREMÆ VITÆ ET OBITUS HISTORIA, A PIO QUODUM, ET DOCTO VIRO DESCRIPTA, QUI AD EXTREMUM USQUE SPIRITUM ÆGROTANTI ASSEDIT.

A TRUE ACCOUNT OF THE CONCLUDING PART OF THE LIFE AND DEATH OF THAT ILLUSTRIOUS MAN, JOHN KNOX, THE MOST FAITHFUL RESTORER OF THE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND, DRAWN UP BY A PIOUS AND LEARNED MAN, WHO SAT BY HIM DURING HIS SICKNESS UNTIL HIS LATEST BREATH.

WHEN Almighty God hath in mere mercy raised up men eminent for piety and genius, as so many lights to the world, it is an old artifice and malicious scheme of Satan to endeavour to spread false reports against them, to load them with feigned crimes, and cruelly and undeservedly to tear their characters while they are alive, and their memories after they are dead. Nor has he wanted instruments who have voluntarily rushed upon the wicked attempt. This has been verified by the experience of all ages, but more especially of late, as to the life and death of JOHN KNOX, concerning whom I may truly and ingeniously say, that I know not if God ever lodged greater piety, or a more noble genius, in a frail and weak body. Certain I am, that it will be difficult to find one in whom more of the gifts of the Holy Spirit shone, to the solid comfort and joy of the Church of Scotland. No one spared himself less in undergoing fatigues of body and mind; no one was more intent on discharging the duties of the province assigned to him. Yet, during his life, no one was more persecuted with the hatred of wicked men, or wounded with the calumnies of evil-speakers, although (such was his magnanimity) this only served to make him more bold in his opposition to their ways. Nor did it satisfy these instruments of the devil to persecute him when alive, but they must also treat him with indignity after he is dead. This certain scurrilous declaimers have frequently done; and of late Archibald Hamilton, a wretched apostate, if indeed we can call him an apostate, who has never yet forsaken his atheism. How odiously, how falsely, and with what lawless effrontery, this person hath written concerning the death of so great and pious a man, in his foolish book, entitled, "Concerning the Confusion of the Calvinian Sect," is well known to those faithful persons who were present when that man of God, of blessed memory, commended his spirit into the hands of the Lord. I therefore have thought that it would not be an unprofitable task to write down, in as few words as possible, the true history of the concluding scene of his life and of his death, until a more copious narration of his life and actions shall be composed; that thus, in the meantime, the falsehood, hatred, and virulence of this miserable apostate may be made evident to all, and the deserved honour of this eminent servant of God may remain.

The man of God began to feel his weak body gradually broken by the numerous labours which he patiently and constantly underwent for promoting the glory of God, and propagating the gospel of Jesus Christ; but his incredible perspicacity of mind and wisdom, instead of being diminished or languishing, to the astonishment of all, every day increased. In addition to his labours, many other things so grievously afflicted the godly man, that he pined away with thoughtfulness, tears, and sighs. For, in the year of our Lord 1569[-70], on the 23d day of January, James Stewart, the good Regent, the ornament and light of our nation, inferior to none in the observance of religion and the love of justice, was, on account of our numerous and great sins, assassinated by the treachery of that wretch,

James Hamilton, who thus brought on the ruin of himself and almost the whole nation. This illustrious man being particularly dear to Knox, on account of his great piety and integrity of life, it is impossible to describe what grief he felt at his death. He foresaw what difficulties, commotions, and mischiefs would follow upon it to the dejected and much-afflicted commonwealth. These things rushing frequently into his mind, vehemently affected, disturbed, tormented him. Add to this, that at that time, besides the prevalence of irreligion, which he had always courageously set himself against, many who had at first deserved well of religion, appeared to be gradually making defection from it, to corrupt the royal authority and patronize the crimes of wicked men, and thus bring the commonwealth, and even religion itself, into the greatest danger; than which, what could be more painful to a pious breast? By the wicked perfidy of these persons, the good man, with many others eminent for piety, was obliged, much against his inclination, to leave Edinburgh, being in a manner driven from it by the authority of the Ecclesiastical Senate. All these things added new griefs and sufferings to those which he formerly endured. In the mean time he went to St. Andrews, where, at the beginning, he had founded a church, to the ministry of which Goodman, a man of singular piety and learning, had succeeded. But instantly Satan raised against him many enemies there, especially when he had opposed himself to those wretches who had conspired against the King's majesty. Among these the chief was the apostate Hamilton, who at that time made the highest pretences to religion and piety, but now has gone into all the filthy puddle of Popery. While he was engaged in this contest with the world, and the agents of the devil, on the 24th day of August, in the year of our Lord 1572, happened the horrid and hitherto unparalleled massacre of the Protestants in France. At this time, indeed, the Pope (that man of perdition, whom the Lord will destroy by the spirit of his mouth, and utterly abolish by his illustrious coming), with his base shavelings,¹ had formed the plan of butchering in one day all the professors of the Christian and Reformed religion. The perpetration of this wicked deed in France he committed to his eldest son, the French king (whom, having already finished his infamous life, the Lord hath dragged before his tribunal and judged), who himself acting the part of a bloody butcher, under the perfidious mask of friendship and religion, made the streets of almost every city of that cruel nation to run with the blood of the righteous. No reverence was shown to the hoary head, no regard to the most learned men. Aged matrons, virgins, girls, and even infants just taken from the womb, and women, immediately upon having finished an unhappy labour, were partly trampled to death in the streets by the armed ruffians, and partly drowned in the Seine; a few being thrown into prison, were immediately after horribly murdered. O heavens! do ye not weep? O earth! dost thou not tremble? But blessed be God, who made this blood of martyrs the seed of the gospel. This massacre, added to the former anxieties, and the painful recollection of them, sunk deeply into the breast of every good man, and in an especial manner grieved and agitated Knox.

About this time, as the fury of the Civil War had subsided and given way to the introduction of peace in Scotland, and those who had been banished from Edinburgh were returning, Knox received letters from the Council, inviting him to return to the city. Upon this he left St. Andrews with the grief and tears of the godly, but to the great joy of the wicked, to whom he had been a continual terror while he had remained there in that turbulent time; and being accompanied by many pious brethren, he returned to Edinburgh, where he was earnestly expected and joyfully received by his congregation. Without delay he immediately began the discharge of his ministerial office, and preached to the people in the church two sermons full of comfort; but his voice, now become more feeble, was not sufficient to reach so numerous an auditory. As soon as he perceived this, he earnestly requested of the Ecclesiastical Senate that they would assign to him another place of worship more commodious and suited to his strength. A less place was therefore assigned to him, which did not admit such a crowd, where he delivered to the people some homilies upon the passion of Jesus Christ our Lord. He began with the 26th chapter of Matthew. Often did he express an ardent desire to finish his life in this doctrine. That godly man, and excellent preacher of the word, Craig,¹ being at this time employed elsewhere, and Knox alone being insufficient for such a congregation, especially in the present debilitated state of his body, permission was given to the people of Edinburgh by the General Assembly, which was held at Perth, to chuse any minister of the Word whom they thought most fit, wherever they could find him, and it was ordered that he whom Knox, the Superintendent of Lothian, and the Church of Edinburgh, should judge most fit, should be called to this station. It was unanimously agreed that JAMES LAWSON should be called from the College of Aberdeen to join his labours for the edification of that church, who, upon letters from the Superintendent and the Magistrates of the city, came from the north to Edinburgh, that he might at least see his friend Knox. Along with these Knox sent a letter, breathing the truest piety, and anticipating his happy departure, to which these were subjoined in a postscript, "Make haste, my Brother, otherwise you will come too late;" signifying, that unless he hastened his journey he would find him dead, whom he wished so much to see alive.²

¹ Romish priests were so called by Protestants on account of their shaven heads.

When James Lawson arrived at Edinburgh, he preached

¹ Mr. John Craig, formerly Knox's colleague. See supra, p. 622, note 3.

² See this Letter, supra, p. 632.

different times to the people publicly assembled. On the 9th of November 1572, he was chosen and admitted by the ministry of Knox, the authority of the Ecclesiastical Senate, and the public suffrages of the Church; on which occasion, with many and solemn words, he testified from the pulpit his fidelity in preaching the eternal word of God, he magnified the mercy of God in substituting Lawson in his place, and fervently prayed for an increase of the grace of God, and of the Holy Spirit unto him; which prayers Almighty God hath not suffered to be in vain. Having finished these things, after he had pronounced the blessing upon the people, with a mind more cheerful than usual, but with a weak body, and leaning upon his staff, he departed, accompanied by almost the whole assembly to his house, from which he did not again come forth in life. On the 10th he was seized with a violent cough, so that, through the obstruction caused by a continual defluxion, he began to breathe with great difficulty. Upon seeing this, many who ardently desired to enjoy his agreeable company (if it should please the Lord to spare him longer), advised to call for the assistance of physicians, particularly of Dr. Preston. He readily complied, saying, that he was unwilling either to despise or neglect ordinary means, although he knew that the Lord would soon put an end to his warfare. The next day he caused the wages of all his servants to be paid, and exhorted them, in a very solemn manner, to walk in the fear of the Lord, and to lead a life becoming Christians educated in such a family. The same day the increase of his disease forced him to leave off his ordinary practice of reading; for it was his practice to read himself, every day, some chapters both of the Old and New Testaments, but especially the Psalms, and the gospel history. In the mean time he gave directions to his wife, Margaret Stewart, a pious woman, who was extremely attentive to him, and Richard Ballentine,¹ a servant who was dear to him on account of his religion and piety, to read to him every day, with a distinct voice, the 17th chapter of John, one or other of the chapters of the Epistle to the Ephesians, and the 53d chapter of Isaiah, which they punctually and diligently attended unto. Moreover, he himself did choose from time to time such Psalms as he wished, in meditating upon which he received great refreshment, both in his life and at his death. On the 14th he rose from bed at seven o'clock, and being asked why he did not lie still, when he was so sick, he answered, that he had been employed all that night in meditating upon the resurrection of Jesus Christ our Lord, and was now ready to ascend the pulpit, to communicate that consolation to others which he had enjoyed in his own mind, while yet he could scarcely be supported by the assistance of two men upon whom he leaned. Thus he ardently desired to be found in the work of the Lord even to his last breath. Some days having elapsed, upon the 22d of that month he sent for the ministers, elders, and deacons of the Church, that he might converse with them about spiritual and heavenly things; that being assembled together he might bid them farewell, and pray for their felicity in the Lord. When they met he received them in the following words: "The day approaches," said he, "is now before the door, for which I have frequently and fervently thirsted, when having finished my great labours, and almost infinite sorrows, I shall depart and be with Christ. And now my God is my witness, whom I have served in the Spirit in the gospel of his Son, that I have taught nothing but the true and solid doctrine of the gospel of the Son of God, and have had it for my only object, to instruct those that were ignorant of divine things, to confirm the faithful, to raise up and strengthen by the promises of grace the minds of those who were weak, timid, and agitated by a sense of their sins, and to fight against the proud and such as rebelled against God, by the awful threats of Divine judgements. I know that many have complained much and loudly, and do still complain, of my too great severity ; but God knows that my mind was always free from hatred to the persons of those against whom I denounced the heavy judgements of God. In the mean time, I cannot deny but that I felt the greatest abhorrence at the sins in which they indulged ; still, however, keeping this as the one thing in view, that if it were possible I might gain them to the Lord. But a certain reverential fear of my God, who called me, and was pleased of his grace to make me a steward of divine mysteries, to whom I knew I must render an account, when I shall appear before his tribunal, of the manner in which I have discharged the embassy which he hath committed unto me,—had such a powerful effect as to make me utter so intrepidly whatever the Lord put into my mouth, without any respect of persons. Therefore I profess before God and his holy angels, that I never made gain of the sacred word of God, that I never studied to please men, never indulged my own private passions or those of others, but faithfully distributed the talent intrusted to my care for the edification of the Church over which I did watch. Whatever obloquy wicked men may throw upon me respecting this matter, I rejoice in the testimony of a good conscience. In the mean time do you, my dear brethren, persevere in the eternal truth of the gospel of the Son of God, give diligent attention to the flock over which the Lord hath set you, and which he hath redeemed by the blood of his only-begotten Son. And thou, Lawson, fight the good fight, and perform the work of the Lord joyfully and resolutely. The Lord from on high bless you, and the whole Church of Edinburgh, against whom, as long as they persevere in the word of truth, which they have heard of me (God having been pleased to make me a Minister of it), the gates of hell shall not prevail. Beware of those, of whom you know there are many here, who not only deny the King's authority, but also have made defection from the truth which they once acknowledged and professed, against whom I denounce, that unless they are brought to repentance, and return to that way from which they have wandered, they shall be miserable both in soul and body. But as I breathe with difficulty, I must here have done." Upon this, we who were present, being covered both with tears and with joy, when we thought of the warfare which he had so courageously borne, and the joy to which he was hastening, with common consent poured out prayers to the Lord; which being finished, James Lawson and David Lindsay conversed with him alone, the rest having gone away. "Among other things, there is one," said he, "which yet grievously afflicts me. You have formerly been witnesses of the courage and constancy of Grange in the cause of the Lord, but now, alas! into what a gulph has he precipitated himself? I entreat you not to refuse the request which I now make to you: Go, and tell him in my name, that unless he is yet brought to repentance he shall die miserably; for neither the craggy rock in which he miserably trusts, nor the carnal prudence of that man whom he looks upon as a demi-god, nor the assistance of foreigners, as he falsely flatters himself, shall deliver them; but he shall be disgracefully dragged from his nest to punishment, and hung on a gallows in the face of the sun, unless he speedily amend his life, and flee to the mercy of God. The man's soul is dear to me, and I would not have it perish, if I could save it." They promised their assistance to him in this affair; and having gone up to the Castle of Edinburgh, they discoursed with Grange, but were not able to move him from his purpose by any arguments; which obstinacy the Lord afterwards severely punished (as Knox had more than once foretold), when he was publicly brought to the gallows.

¹ The name Bannatyne, Bellenden, and Ballantyne, was used indiscriminately.

In the meantime, some days passed; many of the chief Nobility in the land visited him, among whom were the Earl of Morton (who a short time after was declared Regent), Boyd also, and others. There likewise came to him several pious women, who were of high descent and education ; many godly men also flocked in crowds to his door ; all of whom he solidly exhorted to piety ; nor did he suffer any one to depart without consolations which he suggested to them under the extraordinary impulse of the Spirit. On the 20th November he ordered the wooden chest to be made in which his body was to be deposited. Through the whole period of his distress these words were frequently in his mouth, "Come, Lord Jesus, sweet Jesus, into thy hands I commend my spirit : look propitiously, O Lord, upon thy Church which thou hast redeemed : restore peace to this afflicted commonwealth : raise up faithful pastors who shall take care of thy Church : grant, O Lord, that we may be excited by the examples of thine anger, and by a sense of thy mercy, to detest sin, and to serve thee from the heart." In the midst of his meditations he would often break out in such addresses as this to those who stood by : " O serve the Lord in fear, and death shall not be dreadful to you. Nay, death shall be blessed to those to whom the death of the only begotten Son of God is efficacious." About the 23d, death approaching nearer, he breathed with greater difficulty.

When Robert Campbell, a pious man, and very dear to Knox, anxiously inquired whether he felt great pain, he answered he did not consider nor feel that to be pain which should put an end to so many distresses, and be the beginning of eternal joy. By and by, after he had carefully caused the places of Scripture, formerly mentioned, to be read, he himself repeated the Lord's Prayer, the Apostles' Creed, and added certain meditations of his own concerning each of the petitions and articles of faith, to the great comfort of those who were present. When he had ended these things, lifting up his hands to heaven, " Lord," said he, " into thy hands I commend my spirit. Thou knowest, O Lord, my pains ; I do not murmur to thee ; nay, O Lord, if it seems good to thee, I am not reluctant to bear for many years those troubles and griefs, which in thy just judgment thou hast laid upon me. Do thou only continue to shine upon my mind through Jesus Christ. All that night he was somewhat worse than usual. In the meantime he ordered the 15th chapter of I. Corinthians to be read over and over. When this was ended, he repeatedly said to himself, "O what sweet and salutary consolation has the Lord afforded me from that chapter!" The following day, about twelve o'clock, he sat up in bed, but not long, for the weakness of his body did not suffer him; at three o'clock afternoon one of his eyes failed, nor did his tongue perform its office so expeditiously as formerly. At six o'clock, however, he said, "Read the passages which I selected, especially the 17th chapter of John, since there I have cast anchor." When this was done, he rested until ten o'clock, but during almost the whole of that time he uttered frequent groans, moanings, and sighs, so that those who stood by could easily understand that he was contending with a grievous temptation. There were present John Johnston, a man eminently good and pious, Robert Campbell, a most affectionate Christian, his pious wife, and others, who all expected every instant the departure of his soul from the body. But he having at length, as it were, awakened, they asked him how he was, and what was the cause of such sighs? He answered, "I have indeed formerly sustained many contests in this frail life, and many assaults from Satan, but at this time that roaring lion hath most furiously attacked me, and put forth all his strength, that he might devour and make an end of me at once. Often before hath he placed my sins before my eyes, often tempted me to despair, often has he endeavoured to entangle me with the allurements of the world; but these weapons being broken by the sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God, he could accomplish nothing. But now he has attacked me in another way; for the cunning serpent has endeavoured to persuade me that I have merited Heaven itself and a blessed immortality by the faithful discharge of the ministerial office committed to me. But blessed be God, who suggested to me those passages of Scripture by which I was able to grapple with him and extinguish this fiery dart; amongst which were these, 'What hast thou that thou hast not received?' and, 'By the grace of God I am what I am;' and, 'Not I, but the grace of God in me;' and thus being vanquished, he went away; wherefore I give thanks to my God by Jesus Christ, who was pleased to grant me the victory. And I am firmly persuaded that he shall not attack me farther, but that in a short time, without any great bodily pain, and without any distress of mind, I shall exchange this mortal and miserable life for an immortal and blessed life, through Jesus Christ." In the meantime evening prayers were read; being asked if he heard them, he answered, "I wish that you may have heard them with the same ears, and understood them with the same mind with which I heard and understood. Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." As there now appeared certain indications of immediate death, those who stood by requested him that he would give some certain sign that he closed his life in that eternal truth of God which he had taught, and in the steady assurance of a blessed immortality through Jesus Christ, which he had so often thirsted for; wherefore acquiring, as it were, new strength when he was just dying, he raised his hands towards heaven, and giving two sighs, his soul departed from the mortal body (at 11 o'clock of the night of the 24th of November) without any motion of the feet, or of any other part of his body, so that he rather seemed to fall asleep than die. Surely, whatever opprobrious things profane persons may say, in him God hath set us an example both of living and dying well.

A P P E N D I X :
CONTAINING ADDITIONAL NOTES AND CORRECTIONS.

ADDITIONAL NOTES AND CORRECTIONS.

VOLUME FIRST.

Page xiii.—CHRONOLOGICAL NOTES, &c.—There are some inaccuracies in these Notes which are elsewhere corrected. For instance, in line 1, “at the village of Gifford,” should rather have been, “Knox was born at Giffordgate, in the immediate vicinity of Haddington.” See Preface in the present volume. Line 7, for “great-grandfather,” read “his mother’s father.”

Page xiv. line 11.—The name Rannalton Law, and the date, are incorrect. See Preface in this volume.

Page xxii.—By some oversight the death of the Earl of Lennox is placed under the year 1570 instead of 1571. Lines 2 and 3 should therefore be deleted, and be placed after line 8, to read—1571. The Earl of Lennox was assassinated on the 30th of September, and, on the following day, John Earl of Mar was chosen his successor as Regent of Scotland.

Page xxxviii.—To this enumeration of the Manuscript copies of the Four Books of Knox’s History of the Reformation, there has to be added one in folio, purchased some years ago for the British Museum. It is marked: Addit. MSS., No. 5796 XII.D., and contains pp. 664. It has the marginal notes, and seems to correspond with the MS. of 1566, but the transcript is not older than about 1700.

Page 12.—In reference to the death of ROBERT BLACKADER, Archbishop of Glasgow, I may refer to a short communication which I read to the Society of Antiquaries, in 1856 (Proceedings, vol. ii. p. 222). Having obtained some extracts from the contemporary Diary of the Venetian Maria Sanuto, by Rawdon Brown, Esq., the allusion to Blackader as “the rich Scottish Bishop” who arrived at Venice in May 1508, on his way to Jerusalem, is too obvious to be mistaken. But the same Diary, which describes his honourable reception by the Doge, and the Latin oration he made in praise of the Seignory, also records, that the vessel from Jaffa, in Palestine, having returned to Venice in November 1508, out of thirty-six pilgrims from the Holy Land, on board of the said vessel, this "rich Bishop" was one of twenty-seven who died during the voyage.

Pages 14-36, and 500-516.—MR. PATRICK HAMILTON, THE MARTYR.

Since this volume was printed, there has appeared an interesting work by Professor Lorimer of London, under the title of "Precursors of Knox ; or, Memoirs of Patrick Hamilton, the first Preacher and Martyr of the Scottish Reformation." Edinburgh, 1857. Small 8vo. The author has brought together all the existing facts, including many that "were perfectly new to history." It is the less necessary, therefore, to supply any additional notes. At the time, I could not have access to a perfect copy of the Second Edition of Foxe's Martyrs, which was printed in the year 1570, but I am now able to state that the Third Edition, in 1576, from which I quoted, is nearly a verbatim reprint of the second ; and that the extracts at pages 507-516 are precisely the same in both editions.

The various important facts relating to Hamilton which Professor Lorimer has brought to light, are partly derived from the writings of Alexander Alesius, more specially from his Exposition of the 37th Psalm, quoted by Jacobus Thomasius, in 1683, and other old writers, but overlooked, from its rarity, in our own days. It so happened I had made a few extracts from a copy of that work in the Imperial Library, Vienna, much about the same time that my reverend friend, Dr. Lorimer, was examining another copy in one of the German University Libraries, while engaged in collecting materials for his intended work on the Life and Writings of Alesius, Professor in the University of Leipzig, who was personally acquainted with Patrick Hamilton, and was present at St. Andrews during his trial and martyrdom in 1528. The work referred to has this title :—"Primus Liber Psalmorum juxta Hebræorum et divi Hieronymi Supputationem, Expositus ab ALEXANDRO ALESIO, D. in celebri Academia Lipsensi." Lipsiæ, 1554 ; folio. See the extracts in Professor Lorimer's "Precursors of Knox," p. 236.

It now appears that Hamilton had taken his degree of Master of Arts at Paris in 1520, and that he had likewise pursued his studies at Louvain and Marpurg before he was Incorporated at St. Andrews. Alesius praises his learning and skill in musical composition, and states that, not long before his condemnation, he had taken to wife a lady of high rank ; and this serves to remove the odium which I had thrown on his memory in mentioning, at page 525, his supposed illegitimate daughter. Taking him all in all, PATRICK HAMILTON, titular Abbot of Ferne, was one of those noble characters of whom Scotland has so much reason to be proud.

I have also to add a note regarding two works, from which quotations are made in reference to Patrick Hamilton. The original edition of Francis Lambert's work (see pp. 502-3) has the following title:—“EXEGESEOS FRANCISCI LAMBERTI Auenionensis, in sanctam Diui Ioannis Apocalypsim, Libri VII. In Academia Marpurgensi prælecti.” Small 8vo, sign. A to Z, and a to t in eights. On the reverse of fol. 325 is this imprint:—“Apud inclytvm Hessiæ Marpurgum, Anno M.D.XXVIII. quarto idus Septembres.” The dedication to Philip Landgrave of Hesse is quite the same as in the later edition of 1539, and the passage relating to Hamilton (vol. i. p. 503) has no date.

In the Bannatyne Miscellany, vol. iii. p. 345, I gave several Extracts, with a facsimile of the title-page, of JOHN GAW'S “Richt Way to the Kingdom of Hevin,” printed at Malmoe, in Sweden, in 1533, from the only copy known to exist. Later inquiries in Denmark and Sweden were unsuccessful in obtaining any notices of the author, but in the Royal Library, Copenhagen, I had an opportunity to examine a rare volume, which shows that the chief portion of Gaw's work was translated from the Danish. Having afterwards sent to that Library a copy of the Bannatyne Miscellany, I requested the Librarian, my old and esteemed friend the late Mr. Bölling, to compare the Extracts with the original, and he favoured me with the following memorandum:—

“The title of CHRISTIAN PEDERSEN'S Book is:—Den rette vej | till Hiemmerigis Rige | Han læris her i de thi Guds bud | ord, och i Credo, och Pater no- | ster I huilke hvsert christet mēni | ske finder alt det sō staar i scriff- | ten, Och alle de ting som hannē | er nötte- lige och tilbörilige ath | vide til sin sielis sælighed | Læss bogen till ende | da skalt dw det | saa finde |  M.D.XXXI. ***”

“The above title stands in a frame, that has the arms of Denmark, viz., Three lions at the top, and three crowns and a lion at the bottom. The book has 124 leaves, with signatures A to Q iiij. 12mo. Our copy wants leaf, p. viij. The Extracts in the Bannatyne Miscellany are a literal Translation of the Danish text.”

The address of John Gaw to the Reader, on the use of these orisons or prayers, in which he trusted so much in “his auld blindnes,” and the concluding “Epistil to the Nobil Lordis and Barons of Scotland,” do not of course form any part of Pedersen's original work.

The author, Christian Pedersen, who was born at Svendborg about the year 1480, was a canon at Lund, and having studied at Paris, he took his Master's Degree in 1511. After renouncing the Papistical religion, he endeavoured to suppress his earlier writings in defence of that doctrine, deploring his having published in them miracles and fables which he describes as merely the inventions and dreams of men. In 1529 he published a revised translation of the New Testament in Danish. It was printed at Antwerp, as the art of printing was not introduced at Malmoe till the year when Gaw's volume was printed.¹

Pedersen's own work is printed in the same peculiar type as Gaw's, and has this imprint: "Denne bog er prentet in Andorp och rettet aff Christien Pedersen son vaar Canick i Lund: Aar efter Guds byrd. M.D.XXXJ." Small 8vo.

At page 528, line 4.—After the words "in passing through that town" (Malmoe), supply an omission, to read, "and also at Lund, the seat of a University," &c.

Pages 53, 58, 60.—The following notice, which occurs in the Diurnal of Occurrents, p. 18, furnishes probably the correct dates when Norman Gourlay and David Stratoun suffered martyrdom:—"Upon the xxvj day of August, thair was callit befor the Bischope of Ross, be ane commissioun of the Bischope of Sanctandris, for the opynions of Mertene Luter, thir personis followand, Schir William Kirk, chaiplane, Adam Deir, Johnne Stewart in Leith, ———— Hamiltoun, sister sone to the Scherreffe of Linlithgow, with Mr. William Johnnestoun, with sindrie utheris, baith men and wemen, in Edinburgh, in presence of the Kingis grace and chargeris, viz., bischopes, priestis, blak freris and gray, in solempt processioun, and brynt thair faggatis with thair opynionis.

"Upon the xxvj day of August, Mr. Normond Gourlay was first abjurit, syne callit, and thairefter degradit for heresie; and ane David Strathque [Stratoun] wald not objure, bot was constant, who was brynt with the said Normand."

Page 63, line 5.—BISHOP OF DUNBLANE.—This was the elder William Chisholm, Bishop of that See in 1527. He died in 1564, having alienated much of the patrimony of the Church in favour of his natural children and other relatives. George Crichton, mentioned in the footnote, was the Bishop of Dunkeld. Dr. Mc'Crie styles Chisholm Bishop of Brechin, in place of John Hepburn.

Page 64, note 3.—Sir Andrew Oliphant, chaplain to the Bishop of St. Andrews, was taken prisoner when the French troops were defeated by the Lords of the Congregation in February 1559-60.—(Sadler's State Papers, vol. ii. p. 240).

Page 67, note 1.—The date of Sir James Hamilton's beheading at the Cross of Edinburgh, is ascertained by the following notice in the teratur Lexicon, vol. ii. p. 455; Bibliotheca Sussexiana, vol. ii. p. 400.

¹ Worm's Lexicon over Lærde Mænd, vol. ii. p. 179; Nyerup og Kraft's Lit-

Diurnal of Occurrents, p. 23 :—" Upon the xvj day of August, the year of God 1540 yeris, Schir James Hamiltoun of Fynnart, knycht, was convictit be ane assyise, and heidit at the skaffald at the Trone of Edinburgh, the Kingis grace being in Seytoun."

Page 71, footnote 2.—The year 1548 is a typographical error for 1558. See subsequent note in vol. i. p. 293, respecting the Queen's uncle, Charles, Cardinal of Lorraine, as the proposed successor to Lord James Stewart as Commendator of the Abbacies of Melrose and Kelso.

Page 72, footnote 4, to read, " William fourth Earl of Glencairn, &c., and Sir Ralph Sadler, in a letter to Henry VIII., says of the old Earl, ' Furthermore, he hath written to your Majesty,' " &c.

Page 106, footnote 4.—The year 1515 is a typographical mistake for 1525, in the brief notice of Mr. David Borthwick, vol. ii. p. 44, note 5. In May 1538, " Mr. Dawe (David) Borthwick " was Captain of Tantallon, when he borrowed from the town and baillies of Haddington certain " geir," required for the King's service in the work of Tantallon.—(See Mr. T. Thomson's Extracts from the Haddington Records, in Proceedings of the Society of Antiquaries, vol. ii. p. 403.)

Pages 125-171, 534-537.—MR. GEORGE WISHART, THE MARTYR.

In the Appendix, p. 534, I expressed some doubt respecting George Wishart having been nearly connected with the family of Pittarrow, as it seemed strange that no allusion to this should be found in the contemporary notices of Sir John Wishart, the Comptroller, who is alleged to have been his Brother : in all probability he was his Nephew. I observe, however, distinct assertion of the fact by Dr. John Gordon (who became Dean of Salisbury), in his rare tract entitled, " Assertiones Theologicæ pro Vera Veræ Ecclesiæ nota quæ est solius Dei Adoratio," &c., Rupellæ, 1603, 8vo, which is dedicated " Nobili et generoso juveni Joanni Sophocardio Pittarroensi," and concludes with the following paragraph :—

" Accipe ergo, mi Sophocardi, has Assertiones quibus conficiendis ausam præbuisti, ut non tibi solum, sed et Christianis omnibus qui servari expetunt prosint : Et memoriam GEORGII SOPHOCARDII PATRUI TUI MAGNI in scrinio pectoris reconde, qui pro veritate Christiana fortiter strenueque dimicans impia pseudo-Episcoporum condemnatione, qui tunc rerum potiebantur apud Scotos, flammis olim traditus, nunc fruitur splendore præsentis Christi, pro cujus gloria propaganda nec facultatibus nec vitæ pepercit."

I shall add, therefore, what appears to be the pedigree of the Wisharts of Pittarrow during the sixteenth century :—

- I. Dom. Johannes Wyschart miles, Dominus de Pettarrow, 6th July 1442.
- II. Jacobus Wischeart de Pettarro, 3d January 1471-2.
- III. Johannes Wischeart de Pyttaro, served heir of his father James, 29th July 1491. Charters to John Wischeart of Pettarro, and Jonet Lyndsay, his spouse, in July 1507 and October 1510. Contract betwixt Mr. James Wyscheart and John Wyscheart, his brother, relating to certain portions of the lands of Redhall, Balfeith, &c., which they had conquest infestment from John Wyscheart de Pettarrow, their father, 19th March 1508-9.
- IV. Mr. James Wischeart of Pettarrow, Clerk of Justiciary and King's Advocate. Charters to him and Elizabeth Learmonth, his spouse, 30th April 1512. He died towards the end of 1524. John Wischeart, as above, his brother, 19th March 1509. William Wischeart, brother of umquhile Mr. James Wischeart, 1526.—James Strathquhyn of Monboddoo, and Wylam Wischeart, brudyr-german to umquhile Master James Wyscheart of Pattarrow, appointed wards of certain landis, aye and till the perfyt age of the ayr or ayres of the sayd Master James, 28th October 1525.
- MR. GEORGE WISCHEART, the Martyr, was apparently the younger brother of the Justice-Clerk.
- A Letter under the Privy Seal to Elizabeth Lermonth, relict of umquhile Maister James Wischeart of Petterow, Clerk of Justiciarie and Advocate to the Kingis Grace, "to her and her small faderless bairns," 22d November 1524. (Reg. Secr. Sig., vol. vij. f. 171.)
- V. John Wishart of Pettarrow, eldest son and heir of the King's Advocate (No. IV.), obtained the honour of knighthood in February 1561-2, and was appointed Comptroller. Janet Falconer, Lady Pittarrow, died 27th January 1580; and Sir John, who died without issue, 28th September 1585, by his will nominates his brother's son as his heir and successor. This heir-apparent was the son of Mr. James Wischart, who had predeceased his brother the Comptroller.
- In his will Sir John also mentions two brothers, George and William Wischearts, then alive. Georgius Wischart, frater-germanus Joannis Wischart de Pettarrow, 14th June 1565. (Dundee Protocol Book, see vol. i. p. 536.)
- VI. Sir John Wischart of Pittarrow married Jean, daughter of William Douglas of Glenbervie, 31st May 1576. He succeeded his uncle in 1585. He lived to a good old age, and a charter was granted to him and his spouse in 1603.
- VII. His son, the third Sir John, to whom Dean Gordon's work is dedicated, made an unfortunate marriage with the daughter of Forrester of Carden. His brother James, who married Margaret Riccarton, sold the lands of Pittarrow, and went to Ireland, where he was slain. A younger brother, Mr. William Wischart, was minister of Leith and parson of Restalrig, but he was deposed in 1639, and died in Cornwall, leaving an only son, John, who was slain at Edgehill.

During the sixteenth century there were other two families of the name distantly connected with the Wischarts of Pittarrow, but of whom a brief notice may be added, without attempting to point out the connexion.

WISHART OF CARNBEG.

Mag. Jacobus Wischart, Clericus Regis, had a charter under the Great Seal of the lands of Carnbegs, 11th August 1511.

James Wischart of Carnbeg deceased, and John Wischart, his son and heir, 24th March 1553.

Alexander Wischart of Carnbeg, and Marjory Falconar, his spouse, 20th October 1557.

James Wischart of Balfeyth, brother of Alexander Wischart of Carnbeg, died in April 1575.

Mr. Patrick Wischart, lawfull son to umquhill Alexander Wischart of Carnbeg, died 23d January 1593-4. Issabell Gray, his relict spouse.

WISHART OF LOGYWISHART.

John Wischart of Logy Wischart, charters to 1510. In a sasine dated 24th September 1526, John Wischart of Logy Wischart, reference is made to his non-entry to certain lands since the death of his father, Alexander Wischart.

Ane protectione to Johne Wischart of Logy Wischart, Christian Ogilvy, his spouse, Johne Wischart, George Wischart, Alexander Wischart, Katharine Wischart, and Christian Wischart, their sons and daughters, and William Wischart, brother to the said John Wischart. At Edinburgh, last July 1538. (Reg. Secr. Sig., vol. xii. fol. 6.)

George Wischart, ane of the Archearis of the Kingis gaird in France, died in Dundee in the month of July 1581. Mention is made in his confirmed Testament of Thomas Wischart, his brother's son, and of Christian Wischart, his own sister. Another brother, Alexander Wischart, in the Barnehill in the Mernis, died in December 1580, leaving three sons and three daughters by his spouse, Janet Cheape.

Ane honorabill man, Johne Wischart of that ilk, quha deceissit in (blank) 1574. His Testament, &c., gevin up be his awin mouth at Logywisheart: Marian Gardin, his relict spouse, and Thomas Wischart, his second son.

John Wischart of that ilk, died in October 1592. His children, George, and other three sons and two daughters.

Page 129.—The date, assigned to the time when the pestilence was raging in Dundee, is confirmed by an incidental notice in an old Protocol book, as follows:—" 22 Decr. 1566.—The quhilk day Willyam Car grantit hym auchtand till the airis of umquhile Richard Barre, quha decessit in the pest in anno fourty fyve yeris the somene of xxvj^s viij^d, for the maile of ane bwythe in the said umquhile Richard's land."

Page 130.—Sir John Wigton, "the desperate priest," hired to assassinate Wishart, was a chaplain in Dundee, and obtained from the Provost of the collegiate church of Foulis and chapter a presentation to the vicarage pensionary in the parish church of Ballumby, 6th November 1538. It appears from the household-book of Cardinal Beaton, that Wigton, Curate of Ballumby, had been incarcerated in the Castle of St. Andrews in 1543, during the Cardinal's absence.

Page 131.—Bishop Lesley says, "In this progress (of the Governor, in July 1552) Sir George Douglas of Pettendreich, knycht, brodir to the Erle of Angus, quha had bene a man of great wit and experience, decessit in the tyme of the asis (Justice Courts) in Glasgow; quhome I do heir remember, for that he was so well knawin in his tyme in France, Scotland, and in Inglande, for his politeque and wechtie affaires in the oft changes of the governement of Scotlande, quhairin his inventionis and moyens was not the leist."—(Historie, p. 244.)

Page 140, note 4.—For the words, "He died, probably in exile, in September 1556," read, "Patrick Earl of Bothwell, at the time of his death, was residing in Dumfriesshire as Lieutenant on the Borders." The Diurnal of Occurrents states, "In the moneth of October [1556], Patrick Erle of Bothuile, Lieutenant at Annand, for danting of the thevis, decessit" (p. 67); and Chalmers says he died at Dumfries, aged 44.—(Life of Mary Queen of Scots, vol. iii. p. 5.)

The letter of Emery Tylney, in 1543, which is mentioned in the brief notice of George Wishart, vol. i. p. 535, gives such an interesting and graphic description of the Martyr's person and habits, that it may be quoted in this place. It does not occur in the earlier editions of Foxe's Book of Martyrs, having been communicated to the author apparently after the edition of 1576, and first occurs in vol. ii. pp. 1267-8 of the fourth (1583) and is repeated in subsequent editions of that important work. Regarding the writer of the letter, he is identified by Messrs. Cooper, in their "Athenæ Cantabrigienses" (vol. i. p. 559), as Emery or Edmund Tydney, one of the "poor scholars" of Corpus Christi College, who appears to have taken no degree. He published at London, in 1568, "A brief and pleasant Discourse of Duties in Mariage, called the Flower of Friendshipp," dedicated to Queen Elizabeth. It was republished in 1571, and again in 1577.

Foxe introduces the letter in the following terms, immediately after the first paragraph, which is quoted at page 149 :—

"But before I enter into his [George Wishart's] Articles, I thought it not impertinent somewhat to touch concerning the life and conversation of this godly man, according as of late came to my hands, certified in writing by a certaine scholler of his, sometime named Emery Tydney, whose words of testimoniall, as he wrote them to me, heere follow :—

[EMERY TYLNEY'S ACCOUNT OF MASTER GEORGE WISCHART.]

About the yeare of our Lord a thousand, five hundreth, fourtie and three, there was, in the Universitie of Cambridge, one Maister George Wischart, commonly called Maister George of Bennet's Colledge, who was a man of tall stature, polde headed, and on the same a round French cap of the best ; judged of melancholy complexion by his physiognomie ; blacke-haired, long-bearded, comely of personage, well spoken after his cuntry of Scotland ; courteous, lowly, lovely, glad to teach, desirous to learne, and was well travailed ; having on him for his habit or clothing never but a mantell frieze gowne to the shooes, a blacke Millian fustian doublet, and plaine black hosen, course new Canvasse for his Shirtes, and white falling bandes and Cuffes at his hands. All the which apparell he gave to the poore, some weekley, some monethly, some quarterlye, as hee liked, saving his French Cappe, which hee kept the whole yeare of my being with him.

Hee was a man modest, temperate, fearing God, hating covetousnesse ; for his charity had never ende, night, noone, nor daye. He forbare one meale in three, one day in foure for the most part, except something to comfort nature. Hee lay hard upon a pouffe of straw, coarse new Canvasse Sheetes, which, when he changed, hee gave away. Hee had commonly by his bedside a tubbe of water, in the which (his people beeing in bed, the candle put out, and all quiet) hee used to bathe himselfe, as I, being verie yong, being assured, often heard him, and, in one light night, discerned him. Hee loved me tenderly, and I him, for my age, as effectually. Hee taught with great modestie and gravitie, so that some of his people thought him severe, and would have slaine him ; but the Lord was his defence. And hee, after due correction for their malice, by good exhortation amended them and hee went his way. O! that the Lord had left him to mee, his poore boy, that he might have finished that hee had begunne; for in his religion hee was, as you see heere in the rest of his life, when hee went into Scotland with divers of the Nobilitie that came for a treatie to King Henrie the Eight. His learning no lesse sufficient than his desire, alwayes prest and readie to do good in that he was able, both in the house privatly, and in the Schoole publikely, professing and reading divers outhours.

If I should declare his love to me and all men, his charitie to the poore in giving, relieving, caring, helping, providing, yea, infinitely studying how to do good unto al, and hurt to none, I should sooner want words then just cause to commend him.

All this I testify with my whole heart and trueth of this godly man. He that made all, governeth all, and shall judge al, knoweth that I speake the troth, that the simple may be satisfied, the arrogant confounded, the hypocrite disclosed.—Τέλος.

EMERY TYLNEY.

Dogmata ejusdem Georgii.

Fides sola sine Operibus justificat.

Opera ostendant et ostentant Fidem.

Romana ecclesia putative caput mundi.

Lex canonica caput Papæ.

Missæ ministerium, mysterium Iniquitatis.

“To the said Maister George, being in captivitie in the Castle of St. Andrewes, the Deane of the same towne, was sent by the commandment of the Cardinall,” &c., foot of page 149.

Page 185.—A facsimile of the brass tablet at Ormiston, with the engraved inscription, composed by George Buchanan, on Alexander Cockburn, is given in the Proceedings of the Antiquarian Society, vol. iv. p. 225.

Page 187, and App. No. X., p. 537.—JOHN ROUGH.—In addition to the notice of this zealous preacher, a few words may be supplied. He obtained a pension of £20 from Henry VIII., and returned to England previously to the capitulation of the Castle of St. Andrews, in July 1547. “John Ruthe, Scottishman,” was one of the persons authorized to preach in England during the reign of Edward VI. According to Calderwood, John Rough “came first to Carlill, and from thence to the Duke of Somerset, then Lord Protectour of England, and had appointed to him out of the King’s treasure twentic pounds of yearlie stipend, and was sent as preacher to serve at Carlill, Berwicke, and Newcastle, from whence, after he had taken a countrywoman of his to wife, he was called, by the Archbishop of York that then was [Robert Holgate], unto a benefice nigh to the town of Hull, where he continued till the death of King Edward the Sixth.”—(History, vol. i. p. 251.) His name is included among the persons who fled to the Continent in 1553.—(Strype’s Life of Cranmer, p. 314.)

At the foot of pages 537 and 540, the year 1558, instead of 1557, is erroneously specified as the date of his martyrdom. In the foot-note, p. 187, the correct date is given.—See also “The Names of the Martyrs, vol. iv. p. 535.

Page 205.—Leon Strozzi, Knight of St. John of Jerusalem, and Prior of Capua, was Lieutenant-General of the French Galleys which came to Scotland in 1547. He quitted for a time the service of France in 1551, and retired to Malta; but three years later he was killed during the French invasion of the territory of Piombino.—See the account of the Généraux des Galères, in Anselme’s Histoire Généalogique de France, tome vii. p. 931.

Page 205, line 14, to read, “Betuix ten houris and elleven, thare fell,” etc. In the same page, line 24, Satterday, the last of Julij [1547].

Page 226.—HENRY BALNAVES.—His treatise on Justification by Faith was revised by KNOX, but instead of Extracts (as proposed in the foot-note), the work is republished entire in the Appendix to Volume Third; where its discovery, after Knox’s death, is fully explained. It was first published at Edinburgh, under the title, “A Confession of Faith,” etc., in the year 1584.—See vol. iii. pp. 4, 418. Want of space prevents me inserting in this place some additional letters written by Balnaves, preserved in the State Paper Office.

Page 259.—The legitimation of Alexander Carpentyne, bastard son of Mr. John Carpentyne, Vicar of Lenthrehan, 20th April 1541, is recorded in the Privy Seal Register (vol. xv. fol. 65).

In the Register of Signatures, in the Comptroller’s office, is an agreement betwixt John Wischart of Pittarro, Knycht comptroller, and Alexander Carpenter, maister brouster to his Grace, to the effect that, upon receiving “sic quantitie of beir (barley) as salbe sufficient to the yearly provision of aile to hir Mājesties household; the said Alexander sal furnis 11 gallonis for every boll, counting 18 pek to the boll, the said Alexander having sic fee as he had in unquhill hir derrest Motheris tyme of gude memorie. ALEX^R. CARPENTER, with my hand.”

Page 268, footnote 2, line 5, to read, “(in whose house KNOX resided on his first return to Scotland in 1555), had,” etc.; and in line 9, 1566 is a misprint for 1556. James Baron died in 1569 (vol. ii. p. 322).

Page 273.—THE COMMON BAND, December 1557.

The mutual engagement to support the cause of the Reformation by the Lords of the Congregation, in December 1557, is given by Knox in this part of his History. It is best known as "The Common or Godly Band;" and there is reason to conjecture that copies of it, like the more celebrated National Confession or Covenant in 1638, had been prepared to obtain the signatures of adherents in different parts of the country. Knox gives it as dated the 3d of December, Calderwood makes it the 23d, while in an original copy, discovered among the family papers of Erskine of Little Sauchy, the day of the month is left blank.

This original copy was exhibited by my worthy friend, the Rev. James Young, at the great meeting held at Edinburgh in August 1860, to commemorate the third Centenary of the Reformation in Scotland. At the same time Mr. Young gave an elaborate and interesting communication on the subject, of which copies were printed in a separate form, and the substance of it was incorporated in the volume edited by the Rev. Dr. Wylie, under the title: "Ter-Centenary of the Scottish Reformation," &c. Edinburgh, 1860. 12mo.

The following is a literal copy of the original, with a facsimile of the signatures:—

ANE GODLIE BAND FOR MANTENANCE OF THE EWANGELL, MAID BE THE ERLES OF ARGYLL AND VTHER NOBLE MEN. 10^{ber} 1557.

WE, persaving how Sathan in his membris the Antechrystis of oure tyme, crewellie dois raige seiking to downebing and to destroye the Evangell of Christ and his Congregatioune: awght, according to oure bounden dewtye, to stryve in oure Maisteres Cawss, even vnto the deth: Being certane of the victorye in him: The quhilk our dewtie being weil consyderit: We do promiss before the Maiestie of God and his Congregatioune that we (be his grace) sall with all diligence continewallie applie oure haille power, substance, and oure very lyves, to mantene, sett forwarde, and establische the maist blessed Worde of God, and his Congregatioune. And sall lawboure at oure possibilitie, to haif faithfull Ministeres purelie and trewlie to minister Christes Evangell and Sacramentes to his Peopill: We sall mentene thame, nwriss thame, and defende thame, the haille Congregatioune of Christ, and everye member therof, at our haille poweris and waring of oure lyves aganis Sathan and all wicked power that dois intend tyrannye or troubill aganis the forsaide Congregatioune: Onto the quhilk holie Worde and Congregatioune we do joyne ws: and also dois forsaik and renunce the Congregatioune of Sathan, with all the superstitioun, abhominatioun, and idolatrie therof. And mareattour sall declare oure selwes manifestlie innemyes tharto. Be this oure faithfull promiss before God, testefyit to his Congregatioune, be oure Subscriptiones at thir presentes. At Edinburgh, the (blank) day of December, the zere of God ane thowsande fyve hundreth fiftie sevin zeres : God callit to Wytnes.

1.
2.
3.
4.
5.

The persons who signed this Bond are well known. 1. Archibald, fourth Earl of Argyle, died about November 1558 (Knox, vol. i. p. 290). 2. Alexander fifth Earl of Glencairne, one of the leading Nobles in supporting the cause of the Reformation, is frequently mentioned in the History. 3. James, fourth Earl of Morton, afterwards became Regent. 4. Archibald, Lord of Lorne, succeeded his father as Earl of Argyle in 1558. 5. There is no reason to doubt (having Knox's authority for the fact), that the last name was that of John Erskine of Dun, and not John Lord Erskine. Knox, it will be observed, to these five names adds, Et cetera, and expressly states, that this Bond "was subscribed by the foir-writtin and many others."

Page 291.—"THE TWOPENNY FAITH."—Since the appearance of Vol. I., a copy of this tract, of only four pages, in black letter, was discovered, and having obtained the use of it through the late Rev. Geo. A. Griffin (see supra, p. 168), I gladly availed myself of the permission to reprint it, in facsimile, in the Bannatyne Miscellany, vol. iii. p. 313. I do not think it necessary, in this place, to mark the letters supplied at the edges of some of the lines which were injured or worn away, as this is faithfully done in the facsimile reprint. But the recovery of this interesting relic clears up the ridiculous mistake of Keith and others in supposing that "The Catechisme," &c., printed at St. Andrews, 1552, 4to, 220 leaves, was circulated for two pennies Scottish money, equivalent to the sixth part of one penny sterling.

ANE GODLIE EXHORTATIOUN maid and sett furth be the maist Reverende Father in God JOHANE ARCHIBISCHOPE OF SANCT-ANDROUS, Primate of Scotland, Legat, &c. With the avyse of the Provinciale Counsale, haldin at Edinburgh the secund day of Marche, the yeir of God ane thousand fyve hundreth fifty aucht yeiris, to all Vicaris, Curatis, and utheris consecrate Preistis, lauchfull Ministers of the Sacrament of the Altare, to be red and schawin be thame to the Christiane peple, quhen ony ar to resave the said Blyssit Sacrament, &c.

Cum Privilegio Reginali.

DEVOTE Christiane men and wemen, quha at this present tyme ar to receive the blyssit Sacrament of the altare. Wytt ye perfitlie, and beleve ye fermlye, that under the forme of bread, quihilk I am now presentlie to minister to yow, is contenit trewlye, and realie, our Salveour Jesus Christe, heale in Godhede and manhede; that is, baith his bodie, and blude, and saule, conjunit with his Godhede; quha in his mortale lyve offerit hym self upon the Croce to the Father of Hevin ane acceptable Sacrifyce for our redemptioun, fra the Devyll, syn, eternall dede, and hell, and now in his immortall lyfe sittis at the rycht hand of the eternal Father in hevin, quhame in this blyssit Sacrament, invisible contenit under the forme of breade, I am to minister to yow.

And wit ye, that ressave this blyssit Sacrament worthelie, ye ressave the blyssit bodie and blude of our Salveoure Chryst for the fude of your saulis, to strenth yow aganis all mortall and deidlie synnis, and power of the Devill, to mak yow starke in your faith towartes your God, to get his grace largelie ekit to yow, to keip up your hope unto the merce and glore of God, to kendle your hertis, and make yow ardent in to the lufe of God, and of your nychtbour, to cause yow have quick remembrance of the blyssit passioun of our Salviour and Redemptour, Jesus Christe, quhilk he tholit for yow. Quhairthrouch, with levying faith, ye maye get and obtene remissioun of your synnis, and be reconciliat to the Father of Hevin, and als be delyverit fra eternale damnatioun, and brocht to eternale lyfe and glore. Attoure, wytt ye Christiane and faithfull Peple, that quha ressavis worthelie this blyssit Sacrament, ar unit and conjunit to the mistical bodie of our Salviour Jesus Christe ; that is, to the Sanctis of Hevin, and to thame that hes the grace of God in the erd, and maid quick and levying membris of the samyn misticale bodie. Heirfor I maist hertlie, for the maist tender lufe, reverence, and mercy of Christ Jesus our Salviour, exhort yow all Christiane peple, that ye ressave this precious Sacrament with perfyte faith, belevyng fermlye that Christ Jesus your Salviour tholit passioun, and deid upon the Croce for your synnis. In remembrance quhareof, with a perfyte conscience, ye aucht to ressave the samyn ; and because this Sacrament is the Sacrament of lufe and concorde, se that nane of yow, with despyte in your herte, presume to cum to this blyssit Sacrament, bot as ye walde be forgevin of your synnes, and ressavit in unitie with God, swa aucht ye to forgeve uther. And because ye desyre to prepare your self to ressave sa precious a gift, raise your hertis to God, and als with grete dolour praye him in Jesus Christis name, and for the merit of his blyssit passioun, to mak yow worthy be his grace thairto. For and ye resave the samyn unworthelie, it wyll be to your damnatioun ; and because cursing cuttis and devydis the cursit fra the haly congregatioun off the Kirk of God, and deidly syn makis man unabyll to ressave worthelie this blyssit Sacrament. Heirfor I praye yow, and als Ernestlye in Jesus Christis behalfe and name chargis, that nane off yow knowing hym self cursit, or in stait of deidly syn, or nocht confessit to his Curate, or uther Preiste, havyng power thairto, according to the law of God and haly Kirk, presume to cum to this haly and maist excellent Sacrament of our Salviour Jesus.

TO THE CLERGYE.

The Vicaris, Curates, and utheris Preistis that are employit in the ministratioun of the blyssit Sacrament of the altare, witt ye that the Provinciale Counsale straitlye chargis yow, that ye minister the blyssit

Sacrament mair godlie, mair honestlie, and with gretare reverence than ye war wount to do, thole nocht your Parrochianaris to cum to this blyssit Sacrament misordourlie ; but put thame in ordour be your ministeris before the altare, and requyre thame to heir yow reid the afore wryttin exhortatioun without noysse or din, and to sit styll swa in devotioun, with devote hert and mynde, quhill thay be ordourlie servit of the saide blyssit Sacrament, &c.

FINIS.

¶ Extractum ex libris Actorum et Statutorum dicti Provincialis Concilii : per me ejusdem Concilii Clericum et Notarium subscriptum.

Andreas Elephantus manu sua, de mandato, Subscripsit.

Page 106.—Mr. MICHAEL DURHAM.—In a letter from Dr. Nicholas Wotton, Dean of York and Canterbury, and Ambassador at the Court of France, dated at Paris, 1st March 1556-7, mention is made of Durham's arrival: "A Scottish physician married in London, named Durham, as I remember, who is a spy for the French King and the Dowager of Scotland, and hath a pension of her, three hundred crowns by the year, therefor." (Tytler's Hist., App. vol. vi. p. 378).

Page 301.—SIR JAMES SANDILANDS OF CALDER.—In the footnote, it is said he probably survived till the beginning of 1560. From his Confirmed Testament (recorded 24th November 1567) it appears that he died in December 1559.

Page 317.—Mr. JAMES HALYBURTON, Tutor of Peteur, was present at the siege of Broughty in 1547-8, as stated in vol. ii. p. 258, note 6. He filled the office of Provost of Dundee for the long period of thirty-three years. This we learn from the following inscription on the monument erected to his memory within the New Church, Dundee. It omits to notice that he held for some years the titular office of Commendator of the Priory of Pittenweem. I find that, upon the death of John Rewll, Prior in 1553, this benefice was conferred on Lord James Stewart, Prior of St. Andrews, of which Pittenweem was a dependency. In the view of obtaining possession of the Castle of Edinburgh, Lord James, then Earl of Murray, and Regent, resigned the Priory in favour of Mr. (afterwards Sir) James Balfour, at the end of August 1567, who held it in commendam till 1578-9, when "Mag. Jacobus Balfour de Pittendreich miles," in the Treasurer's accounts is styled "olim Commenda-tarius de Pettinweme." A presentation "to the Pryorie of Petteweem, vacant through the process and dome of forfaltour ordourlie led aganis Sir James Balfour, suntyme of Pettendreyeh, knyght, Pryour and possessour of the said Pryorie and Abbacie," was granted to Maister James Halyburton, Provost of Dundee, 4th December 1579. In the same Register of Presentation to Benefices, on the 26th October 1583, we find the Priory and lands were conferred on the King's favourite, William Stewart, "Colonell or Capitane of his Hienes gard," the same being vacant "be deceis of umquhile Sir James Balfour, or be resignation of Mr. James Halyburton, last Priour and Commendatour thair of," 26th October 1583. At a later period (1616) the Priory and its possessions were erected into a temporal lordship, by the title of Lord Pittenweem in favour of Stewart, but the title became extinct in the person of his son.

PROVOST JAMES HALYBURTON'S MONUMENT, NEW CHURCH, WEST-SIDE PULPIT.

Hic situs est Jacobus Halyburtonus, Patruus nobilis Viri, Georgii Halyburton de Pitcur, Militis, qui Præfecturam Deidoni urbanam fauciter Annos 33 gessit. Obiit Anno Dom. 1588. Ætatis suæ 70.

ALECTI PRÆFECTUS	PATRIÆ VINDEX	PUPILLI TUTOR	ECCLESIAE JESU ALUM- NUS FUIT.
---------------------	------------------	------------------	--------------------------------------

The inscription is translated by Monteith as follows :—

Here lies James Halyburton, Uncle to an honourable man, Sir George Halyburton of Pitcur, Knight ; who for the space of thirty-three years happily administered the Office of Provostship within the Town of Dundee. He died in the year of our Lord 1588. Of his age 70.

Written on the transverse lines :—

Provost of Dundee ; Defender of his Country ; Protector of the Pupil and Orphan ; and a Son of the Church of Christ Jesus.¹

Page 276.—THE QUEEN REGENT.—Mr. Tytler, in the proofs and illustrations to his History of Scotland, vol. vi. number 7, has given various interesting particulars to illustrate the intrigues of the Queen Dowager Mary of Guise during her visit to France in the year 1550. These are derived from the correspondence of Sir John Mason, the English Ambassador at the Court of France.

On the 10th of May 1551, Sir John Mason says, "The Dowager of

¹ Monteith's Theater of Mortality. Edinb. 1713, p. 47-48.

Scotland maketh all at this Court wearie, from the high to the low, such an importunate beggar is she for herself. The King (Henry II.) would fain be rid of her, and she, as she pretendeth, would fain be gone." She remained, however, for some months, and on returning through England she had an interview with Edward VI., on the 4th of November 1551.

Page 317-320.—In the Spalding Miscellany, vol. iv. pp. 88-92, there is inserted a collection of papers connected with the Erskines of Dun, from the originals found at the house of Dun. Along with these, at p. 88, is given the copy of "ANE LETTER WRITTEN TO THE QUEEN'S GRACE AND REGENT, BE THE PROFESSOURIS OF CHRISTIS EVANGELL IN THE REALME OF SCOTLAND," dated the 6th of May 1559, and having in a later hand the name of JOHN ERSKYNE OF DUN, Superintendent of Mernis and Angus. It was probably written at the time that Erskine visited the Queen at Stirling, to endeavour to pacify her when several of the preachers had been summoned to appear on the 10th of that month.

Page 349.—The Provost of St. Andrews, who, with the Council in 1559, consented to the demolition of idolatrous objects in the churches of that city, was PATRICK LEARMONTH, son and heir of Sir James Learmonth of Balcomy and Dairsy (see note to p. 174), who had also been Provost for many years at an earlier period. According to "the Register Book of the Cite of Sanctandrows," Patrick Lermouth of Dersy was Provost in the years 1550 to 1554. Balcomy is in the parish of Crail, and Dairsie is a separate parish, also in Fife. The Castle of Dairsie, now in ruins, was a place of consequence, a Parliament having been held there in 1335. The property of Dairsie passed about the year 1616 into the hands of Archbishop Spottiswood, who erected a bridge of three arches across the Eden, and also rebuilt the parish church. Pitscottie refers to Patrick Learmonth, Laird of Dairsy and Provost of St. Andrews, having joined the Reformers, in 1559, with 500 men well armed. In the old Register of the Kirk-Session of the City and Parish of St. Andrews, 1559, there is preserved "The tennor of the Letters conteynand the names of all them that are adjoynet to the Congregatioun within this Cietie." It contains in all 304 names, the first being Patrick Lermouth of Darsy, Provost (see the names printed in the Maitland Miscellany, vol. iii. p. 211). The names of eighteen priests and nine laymen also occur as having given their adherence on the 3d of February 1559-60 (Ib. p. 214). He was knighted in 1562 (see infra, p. 688); and a charter of confirmation of parts of the lands of Raderny was granted under the Great Seal to Sir Patrick Learmonth of Dairsy and Isobell Balfour, his spouse, 14th December 1581.

Page 354.—In the signatures to “the Assurance,” 13th June 1559, after many ingenious conjectures as to the proper reading of the French signature, which Knox’s amanuensis says “he could nocht read,” there is no doubt that it stands for H. CLEUTIN, better known as the SIEUR D’OYSELL. I have seen the same signature to some original papers. During his visit to Edinburgh, his name was enrolled in the list of burgesses, as we learn from the following extract from the Burgess Register, 10th January 1557-8 :—“Decimo Januarij Anno predicto [1557-8] : Quo die nobilis vir Henricus Cleutyn dñs Osellis sub illustissimo et Christianissimo Galliarum Principe in hiis Scotie partibus locumteneñ effectus est burgensis et frater gilde, ex donatione Prepositi balliuorum et consilium hujus Burgi.”

Page 357.—John, fourth Earl of Menteith, mentioned as killed in 1547, was one of the prisoners taken at the rout of Solway in 1542. He married the eldest daughter of George, first Lord Seytoun ; and his son, while under age, married, &c. (as in note 2.)

Page 362.—George, sixth Lord Seaton, was Provost of Edinburgh in 1557-8 ; see note 1, p. 431, where he is erroneously called the fifth Lord. His father, the fifth Lord Seaton, died the 17th of July 1545. He is mentioned by Knox at p. 97, as having been bribed by Cardinal Beaton in 1543.

Page 372.—MR. ROBERT RICHARDSON.—The “Presentatio Magistri Roberti Richartsoun Prioratu Insule beate Virginis Marie,” etc., is dated penult. Mart. 1558 (Reg. Secr. Sig., vol. xxix. fol. 24). In the footnote he is stated to have died in 1571. This is a mistake : the office of High Treasurer became vacant, not, as Crawford says, by Richardson’s death, but by his resignation.

In May 1572, Mr. Robert Richartsoun, Priour of Sanct Marie Ile, by a precept of my Lord Regentis graces precept, received his pension of £500 ; and this sum was paid him at each Whitsunday and Martinmas term, till May 1578, having probably died before the month of November following. In August 1579, there was paid the sum of £5000 “be the Kingis Majesteis precept to Robert Richartsoun, son to umquhile Mr. Robert Richartsoun, Commendatour of Sanct Marie Iyle, as for the releif of certain his Hienes jowellis laid in plege be umquhile James Erll of Murray, Regent to his Hienes for the tyme, to the said umquhile Mr. Robert Richartsoun, and now delyverit,” &c. This Robert, and also a brother James, are called his sons natural in the Register of Signatures in the office of the Comptroller, 27th November 1573, and last October 1575.

Page 380.—A GENERAL BAND BETWIXT THE LORDS AND BARONS, &c., OF THE CONGREGATION AT EDINBURGH, 13th of July 1559.

This Band seems to have been overlooked by Knox, but it is preserved in the earliest Register of the Kirk-Session of St. Andrews, when recording the names of the adherents in that city (supra, p. 680) :—

WE, QUHAIS names ar underwritten, pones ws in all thinges conforme to the generall band maid betuix the Lordis and Baronis of Congregatioun, at Edinburgh, the xiii day of Julii, anno, &c., 1559, to the Congregatioun and memberis to assist in mutuall support with the said Congregatioun with our Bodies, geir, and force, for maynteyning of the trew religioun of Christe, and downe putting of all superstitioun and idolatrie, conforme to the said Band, quherof the tennor followis, and is this :—WE, QUHAIS Names are underwritten, quhilkis hes subscrivit thir presentes with our handis, haifand respect to our dewties in setting fordwart the glorie of God, and knawand alsua that we are commandit to jeone ourselfis togiddir as memberis of ane Body for the furtherance of the samyn, dois, in the name of Christe Jesus, unite ourselfis, that we in ane mynde and ane spirite may endivour ws, with our hail power and diligence, to walk fordwart in the ways of the Lord, laboring to destroy and put downe all idolatrie, abhominaciones, superstitiones, and quhatsumever thing dois exalte the self against the Majestie of our God, and maynteyn and set up the trew religioun of Christe, his word and sacramentes ; and alsua assist and defend the trew Ministers therof. And as we be sones of ane father, part takeris of ane spirite, and heyris of ane kingdome, swa sall we maist hartlie, faythfullie, and trewlie concur togidder, nocht onlie in the materis of religioun, bot sall lykewise, at our utter poweris, to the waring of our labouris, substance, and lyves, assist, defend, and maynteyne every ane, ane uthir, against quhatsumever that troubles, persewis, or invades ws, or ony ane of ws, in our lyves, landis, gudeis, heretageis, offices, benefices, pensiones, or vthir thinges quhatsumever presentlie in our possessiones, or quhilkis justlie we possesset at the begynning of thir present trowblis for the religioun, or ony uther causis pretendit upoun religioun, or persewit under pretence of the samyne. And for observing of the premissis, we bind and oblis our selfis, in the presence of our God, of his Sone Jesus Christe, calling for the haly Spirite to strenth ws to performe the samyn. At Edinburgh, the xiii of Julii, the yeir of God I^m. V^c. fifty-nyne yeris. Quhilk Band we approve in all pointtis, and adjoynis our selfis for mutuall defense to the hail adheraris thereto.

Page 384, and Appendix, page 562.—Bishop Lesley, in his History “De Rebus Gestis Scotorum,” pp. 554-58, Romæ, 1578, 4to, has introduced the letters addressed by Francis II., King of France, and Mary Queen of Scots, to Lord James, Prior of St. Andrews, and also the substance of the Prior's answer. He professes to have translated them word by word from the French into Latin. In the enlarged edition of Holinshed's Chronicle by Harrison (Scotland, p. 367), Lond. 1586, it is said, "which letters being by Lesleus turned out of French into Latine, are by me thus delyvered in English, with the answer of the Prior to the same." This system of translation will readily account for the variation in the different copies, including the versions given by Knox and Spottiswoode. The first letters are dated at Paris the 16th and 9th Kalends of August, that is, the 16th and 24th of July 1559. The Queen's letter (see vol. i. App. p. 562) has this subscription, "Your good cousine MARIE."

Page 437.—The date of the Second Letter of Admonition to the Queen Regent from the Lords of the Congregation, was, at Edinburgh, the 19th of October 1559, and that of the Queen's brief indignant reply, at Leith, two days later. The copies printed by Haynes in the Burghley Papers, pp. 211, 212, present some slight verbal differences, not necessary to be here specified.

Page 459, note 5, and vol. ii. p. 129, note 1, to be read as follows :—Sir John Maxwell of Terreglis (see p. 319, note 1) was the second son of Robert, fourth Lord Maxwell, who died 9th July 1546. Robert, the eldest son, who succeeded as fifth Lord Maxwell, having died 14th September 1552, his posthumous son, John, became sixth Lord; but during all this time Sir John was styled the Master of Maxwell, as presumptive heir to the title. He is usually, but erroneously, said to have assumed the title of Lord Herries, in virtue of his wife's right, as co-heiress of William, fourth Lord Herries, of Terreglis. He was created Lord Herries by Mary Queen of Scots in 1567.

Pages 465, 467.—The Sermon or Exposition on the verses of the 80th Psalm, begun by Knox in Edinburgh when the Lords of the Congregation fled to Stirling, "in the greatest of our trubles," was there concluded. It was evidently on this occasion that a paper, or Apology for this hasty flight, was written, to which Mr. Tytler refers in the following terms, on the mistaken supposition that it related to Knox's leaving Scotland in July 1556: "In a collection of manuscript letters relative to Scottish history, in the possession of Mr. Dawson Turner, and which the kindness of that gentleman permitted me to look over, there is an anonymous paper, entitled 'The Apology of our Departure,' which appears to me to be the composition of the Reformer at this interesting crisis. It proves that Knox fled for his life." (History, vol. vi. p. 80, note †.) I was of course anxious to obtain a transcript of a paper so described, but on application was not successful.

Mr. Turner's manuscripts were sold by auction in London in June 1859, and in a very remarkable series of original letters, &c., relating to Scotland, in two volumes (No. 416), this Apology was specified as "relating to Queen Mary's Abdication in 1568." These volumes were bought, on speculation, at a very large price, by Mr. Thomas Thorpe; and being re-sold in separate lots, the date of this "Apology" was then assigned to 1566, and said to be in KNOX'S AUTOGRAPH. It fetched the sum of £21, but was returned by the purchaser, as erroneously described. I was previously indebted to Mr. Thorpe for an accurate transcript of this paper, when I felt quite satisfied that the dates assigned were each of them incorrect, and that the paper had no personal reference to Knox individually. Having afterwards examined the original, I could have no hesitation in stating that it had no pretensions to be in the handwriting of the Reformer—neither did it appear to me to be his composition. But this is a point which I may now leave each reader to judge for himself. In printing it, I thought it useless to retain some contractions; and if I were to suggest the probable writer of this interesting State Paper, it might be either WILLIAM MAITLAND OF LETHINGTON or JOHN ERSKINE OF DUN.

THE APOLOGIE OFF OUR DEPARTUR.

QUEN as the enemy Sathan by all his means socht to destroy and cast downe the sanctuarie dedicat to God: and quen he thocht be his instruments to destroy the preistis off that sanctuarie: behold ther unspeacable boldnes quen thei hawe doone this, nether ver thei aschamit heiroff quo exercisit ther tyrannie againis us. Now thei find fault with us that we culd hawe escapit ther bloodie handis: ye thei lament bytterly that thei culd not destroy us: Bot, alas! now yei burdine the consciencis off the simple and ignorant multitud, saying that we do fle, and durst not approwe our doctrine as deviles and seditious as thei dow elatter. First, indeid, iff it be evil for to flei, it is far wors to persew. For he quo dowis flei he hyddis him self les he be slaine: bot he quo dowis persew, he dois persewe to slay. In very deid the Scripturis off God commandis us to flei: bot quer commandis the Scriptur off God? the for to slay: and he quo desyris to slay braiks the law, and giffis the man ane greater occasion to fle then he had off befor. Iff, therfor, thei reprowe our fleiing, rather accuss them selfs off ther murdering, and Judge ye all quhilk off thir namis ar honeste. Lett them leif off from persewing, I warrand we sall soone leif off from fleiing. Bot thei desist not from ther malice, bot rather dois increas in bloodiness day be day. No good man wil fle from ane good man, bot good men wil fle from evil men. Knaw ye not, I pray yow, how David did fle from Saul: fle wes David ane fugitive? yis: and Saul wes ane murderer:

tak that for that. Bot perchanc it is long sene thei red over ther bookis, we man appardone them. Bot be ye not blindit with ther errorrs. Bot be ye not desauvit, for iff our flicht be manifest, thrys mair manifest is ther murdering heart aganis us. For iff thei had not desyrit us to flie, thei suld have conferrit with the book off ther conscienc, iff it haid beine honest to have murdered Goddis servands or not. Thei callit us unhappie for this caus, to wit, seiing we fled. Querfor wil thei not call Jacob unhappie in ther preachings, quo fled the cruelte off his brother Esaw. Lett them maik ane mens to Moses, quo, for the fear off Pharao, fled to Madian. Lett them maik ane mens to David, quo fled with certaine off his awne cumpanie from the fourtie off Sawl. Lett them mak ane mens to the soones off the Proffits, quo hid them besyd (Abdias) from the cruelte off that old witch Jezabill the quein. Bot it is long sene thir wer doone. Lett us sie iff we can convince them out off the Evangill; for the Disciples, for fear off the Jewisch, did hyd them selfs. Paul, to escap the hands off the gowerner in the contrie, he fleis be ane basket. Quen as the Scripture speiks off the men off God in such maner, what clok or excuss can thei hawe quo so bakbytis us att this tyme being absent from them, for iff thei sall say we ar feird, that sall mak aganis them selfs quo as wid men persewis us. Iff thei say that our flicht wes aganis Godis will, thei sall condemme them selfs as ether never reding or not understanding the Scripturs off God. And in the law off God ther wes appointid certaine placis off refug, in the quhilk thei quo wer socht to deid had ther refuge. Marover, Christ Jesus sais to the Apostls, quen thei persewit yow owt off ane cite flie to ane other, and schort aifter he sais, Quen ye sie the abominacione off that desolacione quhilk wes spokine be the proffit Daniel standing in ane haly place, quo reids lett them understand, than thei quo ar in Judea lett them flie to the montans, and the rest as felowis in the text. The Lord Jesus him self, he fled quen he wes socht be his ennimis. And the angill off the Lord commandit Joseph be nicht that he suld carie away the bab be nicht to Egipt. He subjoins the causs, for it will be that Herod will seik the lyff off the child. And quen Herod wes deid, the Pharisiiis tok consel aganis him, and wald hawe slaine him, bot he escapit ther cruel handis. And quen had risene Lazarus from deid, it is wrettin that from that day thay tok consell to slay him, bot Jesus walkit not opinly heiraifter amangs the Jewis, and he goit to the region quhilk is neir to the wildernes. And quen our Sawior said, Befor Abraham wes I am,¹ the Jewis took stons that thei suld cast at him, bot quen the godly men quhilk bakbytis our fleing siis thir, thei sie and sie not, heir and heir not: wisch to God thei accusit our flicht only, bot in wery deid thei think no less then to accus (iff thei durst speik out) the very doings off Christ Jesus him self for that sam' very caus in happint us to fle now, for the quhilk happint our Master to fle befor us. We think no mor schame off it then our Maister did, quo wes perfit and wyss in all his doings. Therfor be this schort treatiss we wil lett yow to wit that we fled in Godis caus from yowr bloodie handis that we may aifterward rander to yow that sam' treasur quhilk God gawe us, and quhilk yowr enemy has bewrayit in the myddis off yow. Bot God sall aryss, and put his enemys to silenc, to quom be prais for ever.

¹ The word ironia is here written on the margin.

AND ALL THE REST.

Page 507.—JOHN FOXE'S "ACTES AND MONUMENTS," OR, BOOK OF MARTYRS.

The original edition of this important work, published in 1564, is described at p. 505. At the time I had no opportunity of examining the second edition, which is not less rare, in a perfect state, than the first. The work was then greatly enlarged, being "newly recognized by the author," and forms two large volumes, printed at London by John Daye, in 1570. The third edition was also printed by Daye, in smaller type, in the year 1576. The author again republished his work, by John Daye, 1583, in two vols. folio. In these three editions there are occasional alterations or additions, but they are substantially the same. The editions republished subsequently to the author's death, were, the fifth, Lond. 1596-7, two vols. ; the sixth, Lond. 1610, two vols. ; the seventh, Lond. 1632, three vols. ; the eighth, Lond. 1641, three vols. ; the ninth, Lond. 1684, three vols., all in folio. The later editions, or abridgments, need not be specified.

The accounts of the Scottish Martyrs Foxe acknowledges to have received from Scotland, Ex Scripto testimonio Scotorum, but no indication is given, and no subsequent surmises made, as to the person from whom they were received.

Page 532.—It may be noticed, that Magister Alexander Seytoun, Ricardus Maitland de Lethingtoun, and Andreas Johnestoun de Elphingstoun, appear as witnesses to a deed of George Lord Seytoun, 29th October 1524.—(Haddington Protocol Book.) This shows that Seytoun had completed his academical course, and was then in Scotland.

Page 534.—Letter of the Superintendents and Ministers to Theodore Beza, respecting the Confession of the Helvetian Churches, in September 1566, is printed in the present volume (vol. vi. p. 544).

Page 537, 4th line from the foot, and again at the foot of p. 540, for 1558, read 1557, as the date of John Rough's martyrdom at Smithfield.—See vol. i. p. 187 ; vol. v. p. 535.

Page 566, line 12.—The Coronation of the young Prince, James the Sixth, took place at Stirling on the 24th of July 1567. Knox, as here stated, preached on that occasion, “and tooke a place of the Scripture furthe of the bookes of the Kinges, where Joas [Jehoash, or Joash, 2 Kings xi. 12] was crowned verve yonge, to treat.”—(Throckmorton's Letter to Queen Elizabeth, July 31, 1567.)

 VOLUME SECOND.

Page 73.—The Commission for a Treaty of Amity and Peace with England, dated at Paris, the 12th of May 1560, mentioned in the footnote as printed in Rymer's Fœdera, is in favour of “Messieur Jehan de Monluc Evesque de Valence, et de Nicolas de Pelue Evesque d'Amiens, Jacques de la Brosse Seigneur du dite Lieu, Henry Cleutin Sieur d'Oysel, et Charles de la Rochefaucault Seigneur de Randan.”

Page 180.—On the 4th of February 1565-6, Mr. STEPHEN WILSON obtained a presentation to the Vicarage of Kirkaldy, vacant by the death of the former Vicar, and this was confirmed of new to the said Mr. Stephen, 28th May 1576.—(Register of Presentations to Benefices.)

Page 180, note 3.—According to a monumental inscription in the ruined cathedral church of Elgin, the elder Mr. John Thorntoun died in 1564, and Mr. James Thorntoun, precentor of Murray, in 1577. Presentations to the Chantry of Murray, and to the Subdeanry of Ross, vacant by the death of Mr. James Thorntoun, are dated 8th January 1577-8.—(Register of Presentations to Benefices.)

Page 183.—I have already mentioned (supra, p. 338) an edition of the BOOK OF DISCIPLINE, printed at London, 1641, 4to, which I had previously overlooked.

Page 258, note 6.—Some further particulars of Provost Halyburton of Dundee are given supra, pp. 677-8.

Pages 291, 292, and 459-461.—KNOX AND CALVIN.—After Queen Mary's arrival in Scotland, in August 1561, when the service of the Mass was performed in her private chapel at Holyrood, Knox relates a Conference that took place in November following between some of the courtiers and ministers respecting the toleration of such idolatrous worship. The subject was renewed in June 1564, as detailed at the close of Book Fourth of his History of the Reformation. The discovery of his letter to Calvin on the subject, has laid Knox open to the charge of duplicity in suppressing the fact of his previously having written such a letter. It is dated October 24th, 1561, and is printed, with a translation, in the present volume, at page 133. I cannot offer any satisfactory explanation of his apparent want of candour. It could not have escaped his recollection, but he might have had no copy of his letter to exhibit. He at least would gain nothing by his silence respecting what he might consider a private letter: his voluntary offer, within eight days, was to be authorized to address a formal letter to Calvin in the name of all those who were present at the said Conference. Excepting his own statements, we have no account of either Conference.

Page 311, note 2.—Instead of Sir, read Mr. James Wishart. At the end, the date, 25th September 1576, should have been the 28th of September 1585.—(See supra, No. V. p. 668).

Page 314.—On occasion of the marriage of Lord James Stewart and the daughter of William Earl Marischal, in St. Giles' Church, Edinburgh, 8th of February 1561-2, the following persons received the honour of knighthood from Mary Queen of Scots:—

Schir Johne Ogilbie of Auchindoun, knycht; Coline Campbell of [Glenurchy], knycht; Schir Johne Vischart of Pittarro, knycht; Schir [Patrick] Learmonth of Dersy, knycht; Schir Alexander Dunbar of Cumnock, knycht; Schir David Murray of Balvaire, knycht; Schir William Kirkcaldie of Grange, knycht; Schir Johne Stewart of Traquair, knycht; Schir Johne Stewart of Minto, knycht; Schir Matho Campbell of Lundy, knycht.—(Diurnal of Occurrents, p. 70.)

This list of names varies from another which is quoted by Mr. Joseph Robertson, in his Preface to the Inventories of Mary Queen of Scots. (Bannatyne Club, 1863, p. lxxvii.)

Page 323, line 25.—Manuscript G (as in the printed edition, 1732) makes the passage to read as follows:—"For my Lord, my great-grandfather, gudeschir and father, have servit your Lordschip's predecessours, and some of thame have dyed under their standards." In the Glossary the editor explains the terms grandschir, as great-grandfather; guitschir, grandfather. This would carry the pedigree a generation further back than in the original manuscript.—See Preface to the present volume.

Page 624, Index.—Douglas, Sir William, read Douglas, Sir James.

VOLUME THIRD.

Page 255.—“Some of the leaders,” &c., to read, “David Whitehead, and other six leaders,” &c. Dated at Frankfort, September 20, 1559, as printed in vol. iv. pp. 62-66.

Page 282.—Under the name of Achitophel, I omitted to add in a footnote that it was John, “the proud” Duke of Northumberland, to whom this allusion was made. He was present when Knox delivered his last sermon before King Edward VI. and his Council at Westminster, about April or May 1554, in which he says he spoke so plainly, “even to the faces of such as of whom I meant.” “Sobna,” or “Shebna,” was meant for Sir William Paulet Marquis of Winchester, as explained in the footnote to p. 283; but who the Treasurer was, described under the name of Judas, is uncertain.

VOLUME FOURTH.

Page 237.—MRS. ANNA LOK OR LOCKE.

The family with which Knox's friend and correspondent, Mrs. Locke, was allied by marriage, appear to have been opulent merchants in London. John Locke was Sheriff of London in 1461; and with Jane, his wife, was enfeoffed with the mansion of Merton Place, co. Surrey, in 1499.

His son, Thomas Locke, of London, merchant and mercer, married Joan, sole daughter and heiress of ——— Wilcotts of Rotherham, co. York. Thomas Locke died in 1507, and was buried in the Mercers' Chapel, London.

His eldest son, John Locke, died in 1509, without issue. William Locke, mercer, his second son, afterwards knighted, was Sheriff of London in 1548, and died 24th of August 1550. He was four times married, leaving by his first and second wives a large family.

Henry Locke, mercer, London, was probably his eldest son. He was the husband of Mrs. Anna Locke, Knox's correspondent. His will, recorded in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, dated 28th of January 1570-71, and on which probate was granted the last of October that year, is in the following terms:—

“IN THE NAME OF GOD, Amen.—I, HENRY LOK, presenthe I thanke my God of perfecte memorie, thoughe sicke and weake in bodie, doe make this my last will and testament in manner and form following:—
First, as I acknowledge myself a most myserable sinner, soe I most humbly flie to the infinite mercie of my Lorde God and deare Father, moste instantlie craveinge of his eternall goodness the ternall forgiveness of all my synnes for his deare Son Jesus Christes sake, whome I acknowledge my onely Saviour, thorowe whose death, by constant faithe, I hope to enjoye eternall life thus—bequeatheing my soule to God, my bodye I commit to be buryed according to the direction of my good Wife. As touching my worldelie goods, whatsoever they be, I give and bequeathe them to my wife, ANNE LOKE. And I doe make my onelie executor unto this my last will, my good and well-beloved Brother, Michaell Lok.—And in witness,” &c.

Not having been able to ascertain the maiden name of Mrs. Anna Locke, I must still leave it uncertain whether she ought in any way to be identified with Mrs. Anna Prouze of Exeter. John Field, in 1583 (see vol. iv. p. 114), mentions Mrs. Prouze, “who had lived in exile,” as the widow of the celebrated Edward Deering, the Puritan divine, and as having been an old friend and correspondent of the Scottish Reformer. Henry Locke having died in 1571, it is quite possible his widow might have been married to Deering (see vol. iv. p. 92), who only survived to 1576, and that she afterwards may have resumed her maiden name, if this was Prouze. But it is fully as probable that Field was mistaken in the account which he has given of Mrs. Prouze.

In the will of Henry Locke no mention is made of any children; one or more of whom died at Geneva. It is therefore a matter of conjecture whether Henry Lok (supra, p. 7), who was in Scotland during the latter part of the sixteenth century, was his son or nephew. He is styled by Anthony Wood “a divine poet;” and was the author, in 1597, of a rare volume, “Ecclesiastes, otherwise called the Preacher; whereunto are annexed sundrie Sonnets of Christian Passions,” &c. London, 1597. 4to. See Original Letters of Mr. John Colville (Bannatyne Club), 1858, p. 305.

Michaell Locke, mentioned in the preceding will, had at least three sons, Matthew, Christopher, and John Locke. Christopher had six sons and three daughters. His fourth son, John Locke, who married Agnes Kenn, was the father of the celebrated John Locke, the philosopher.—(See Article in Notes and Queries, 1st Series, vol. xii. p. 326; also 2d Series, vol. i. p. 141.)

Page 294.—In the Imperial Library at Paris, there is, along with other tracts on this subject, one of these works, entitled, “Response à quelque Apologie que les Heretiques, ces jours passés, ont mis en avant sont ce titre: ‘Apologie ou deffense des bons Chrestiens contre les ennemis de l’Eglise Catholique.’ Auteur Antoine de Monchi surnommé Demochares, docteur en theologie. 1560.”—(Bibl. Imp. Catalogue, tome v. p. 656.)

VOLUME SIXTH.

Page 103.—In one of the MSS. of Calderwood's History, this letter to Mrs. Anna Locke begins,—“ We shall meet when Death shall not dissever. Two letters I have received from you, dear Sister,” &c. It is to be observed, that these MSS. often vary in giving only portions of such letters, but they have been carefully compared, and I imagine no passages, with this slight exception, have been overlooked.

Page 107, No. XLIX.—In like manner, this letter of Calderwood commences :—“ The Eternall our God shall shortlie putt end to all our troubles.

“ Least that sinister rumors sould trouble yow above measure, deare Sister, I cannot but certifie yow of our estate, als oft as convenient messingers occurre. The French,” &c.

Page 115, note 1.—For James, read John Hamilton, Archbishop of St. Andrews.

Page 121, 4th line from the foot, “ to the number of xij and odd.”—I was assured that the passage was so in the original letter ; but having an opportunity afterwards of collating it, I found the transcriber had omitted the important letter, namely, “ of cxiiij^c (i.e., 1300) and odde,” as the number of communicants. In dispensing the Sacrament, the practice seems to be varied at different periods. A Popish writer, towards the close of the sixteenth century, mentions, that it was the usual custom to observe its celebration in the Protestant churches a month.—(W. Reynolds's Answer to Robert Bruce's certain Sermons on the Sacrament, p. 156. Antwerp, 1593.)

Page 132.—Randolph, in writing to Sir William Cecil on the 12th of October 1561, alludes to Knox's letter, No. LXI., as follows :—

“ Nowe that these Frenche men are departed, we shall sone gyve a gesse unto what yssue thynges wyll growe ; her [the Queen's] masse is terrible in all meu's yees [eyes] ; the Erle of Cassels said unto my self that [he] wolde never here any moe. I knowe not yet what myschef yt may worke. Her uncle, the Marquis, speakethe great wordes : I se not in hym to worke any great matter ; I fynde that ther lackethe no good wyll ether in her or hym. Mr. Knox hathe wrytten unto your Honour hys mynde ; I am not all wayes of his opinion for his exacte severitie, and yet I fynde yt dothe moste good. She hathe myslyked the provoste and baylies of Edenbourge newe chosen, which lykethe me never a whytte ; what she myndethe farther yt cane not be well favored as yet. The povertie of her subjectes greatlye advancethe whatsomever she intendethe. From France counsell, what face somever she beareth here. Thyther goethe shortly St. Colme throughe England, as he thynkethe to sett a newe lesson.”—(Stevenson’s Illustrations of the Reign of Queen Mary, pp. 95, 96. Glasgow, 1837. 4to.)

Page 334.—In the footnote relating to WILLIAM STEWART, in place of the words at the end, that his fate was somewhat uncertain, read, “his fate was very striking, and in some respects unaccountable.” Without entering into minute details, it may be noticed that, soon after returning from one of his missions, as Ross Herald, to Denmark, he received, on the 20th of February 1567-8, a commission, constituting him Lyon King-at-Arms, in the room of Sir Robert Forman, deceased; and, two days later, he was inaugurated in St. Giles’s Kirk, in presence of the Regent and Nobility. Yet, in the month of August following, Stewart was deprived of his office, and sent a prisoner to Dunbarton, on the charge of conspiring against the Regent. After twelve months’ imprisonment, he was carried to St. Andrews, and the conspiracy being disproved, he was tried for witchcraft and sorcery, and sentenced to be burnt. The proceedings of his trial are not preserved, and there appears something vindictive in the Regent Murray’s conduct towards him. His widow obtained a grant of the escheat of all his goods and property falling to the Crown, “throw being of the said umquhile William Stewart, sumtyme Lioun King of Armes, convict and justifiet to the dead for certane crymes of witchcraft, nigromancye, and utheris crymes committit be him.”—(Reg. Secr. Conc., vol. xxxviii. fol. 76.)

This sad termination of Stewart’s career will readily account for his Sonnet being withdrawn from the later editions of the Psalms.

Page 384.—Some copies of this edition have a different title-page: “The First and Second Booke of Discipline,” &c. London: Printed in the yeare 1641.

Page 610, line 8.—Madame Claud should rather be Madame Marguerite.

Page 680, line 4 from foot, to read 3d of February 1559-60; besides others who “recanted” at a later date (Ib. pp. 214-221).

Page 682, line 4, add, 22d of November 1559; and line 6, “pones ws” should be “jwnes ws,” that is, joins us.

INDEX OF NAMES

FOR VOLUMES III. IV. V. AND VI.

A

- ADAMSON, Janet, wife of Mr. James Macgill of Nether Rankeillour, iv. 244.
- Adrian, the Emperor, iv. 337.
- Alcocson, Humphrey, iv. 16.
- Alesius, Alexander, vi. 664.
- Alforde, Hugh, iv. 13.
- Alva, Duke of, vi. 609.
- Alvey, Richard, iv. 57, 66.
- Ambrose, St., iv. 384-386; vi. 163.
- Anderson, Richard, vi. 109.
- Angus, Superintendent of. See Erskine, John, of Dun.
- Arbuckle, Gray Friar, iii. 3.
- Areskine. See Erskine.
- Argyle, Archibald, fourth Earl of, vi. 675.
- Argyle, Archibald, fifth Earl of, iii. 415; vi. 24, 35, 43, 44, 55, 63, 67, 69, 112, 116, 153, 525, 540, 675.
- Argyle, Countess of (Lady Jane Stewart), ii. 377, 378; vi. 525.
- Aristotle, iv. 374-376.
- Arminians, The, iii. 224.
- Arnobius, iv. 333.
- Arran, James, Hamilton, second Earl of. See Chatelherault.
- Arran, James Hamilton, third Earl of, iii. 410, 420-422; vi. 53, 72, 79, 100, 114, 116, 121, 127, 129, 135, 140, 141.
- Asheley, Mr., iv. 50.
- Aske, Sir Roger, of Aske, Yorkshire, iii. 334.
- Athanasius, vi. 267.
- Athens, Titular Archbishop of. See Gordon, Alexander.
- Athole, John, fourth Earl of, vi. 35, 110, 113, 224, 551, 573.
- Augustine, St., iii. 466, 467, 479; iv. 383, 384, 389, 390, 492, 494, 519; v. 9-11, 32, 33, 38, 39, 62, 77, 170, 171, 326, 332, 333, 344, 419; vi. 196.
- Aventinus, John, vi. 505.
- Aylmer, John, Bishop of London, iv. 354, 355; vi. 15, 532.
- Ayr, Sheriff of, vi. 35.

B

- Bacon, Nicholas, Lord Keeper, vi. 4.
- Bale, John, iv. 13, 19, 47, 57.
- Balfour, Sir James, vi. 551.
- Balnaves, Henry, of Halhill, iii. 3, 8, 406-431; vi. 62, 70-72, 77, 108, 673.

- Bannatyne, Richard, iii. 434, 435;
vi. 524, 588, 589, 606, 608,
629, 633, 639, 640-643, 654.
- Barganye, vi. 585.
- Barnes, Dr. Robert, iv. 563.
- Baron, James, iv. 257; vi. 27,
673.
- Baron, John, minister of Gal-ston, afterwards of Whithorn in Galloway, v. 16*; vi. 534, 537.
- Baron, Susanna, daughter of the preceding, vi. 534.
- Barton, Elisabeth of Aldington,
the holy maid of Kent, v. 222.
- Basil the Great, iv. 389; v. 32.
- Bassandyne, Thomas, printer, vi.
291, 341.
- Bavard, Laird of, vi. 106.
- Beaton, David, Cardinal, Archbishop of St. Andrews, iii. 3,
31, 408; vi. 69.
- Beaton, James, Archbishop of Glasgow, iv. 425.
- Beaumont, Dr. Robert, iv. 547.
- Bacon, Thomas, iii. 188; iv. 57,
66.
- Bedford, Earl of, iii. [87*]; vi.
540, 542.
- Bendall, John, iv. 145.
- Benoist, René, Confessor to Mary Queen of Scots, vi. 151.
- Bentham, Thomas, Bishop of Coventry and Lichfield, iv. 547.
- Berengarius, iv. 314.
- Bernard, St., iii. 466.
- Berthelet, Thomas, the printer,
iii. 298.
- Bettancourt, the Sieur de, vi.
68.
- Beza, Theodore, iii. 253; iv. 291,
358; v. 12, 38, 184, 229; vi.
119, 544, 546, 549, 550, 552,
562, 613, 686.
- Bill, William, one of the chaplains of Edward VI., iii.
[81*].
- Bilney, Thomas, iv. 563.
- Blackader, Robert, Archbishop of Glasgow, vi. 663, 664.
- Blair, Homer, vi. 625, 628.
- Bocher, Joan, of Kent, v. 222,
226, 229.
- Bodley, John, iv. 147, 550; vi.
619.
- Boistock, Mr., vi. 542.
- Bolsec, Jerome, v. 11, 12.
- Boniface, Pope, iii. 48; iv. 314.
- Bonner, Edmund, Bishop of London, iii. 180, 256, 285, 293,
298; v. 15, 498, 499.
- Borthwick, David, vi. 667.
- Borthwick, Sir John, iii. 420.
- Boswell, Christian, iii. 416, 429.
- Boswell, David, of Balmuto, iii.
416.
- Boswell, Helen, iii. 428, 429.
- Bothwell, Adam, Bishop of Orkney, vi. 122, 556.
- Bothwell, James, fourth Earl of,
iii. 415, 423; vi. 60, 129, 140,
141, 540, 541, 553, 554, 609,
611.
- Bothwell, Patrick, third Earl of,
vi. 670.
- Bowes, Mrs. (Elizabeth Aske),
Knox's mother-in-law, iii. 111,
113, 114, 119, 122-125, 132-
134, 137, 142, 146, 153, 253,
331, 333, 334; iv. 71, 217,
218, 239; vi. 27, 59, 80, 88,
107, 141, 142, 513-520.
- Bowes, Sir George, son of the - preceding, iii. 333, 334, 376, 380; vi. 9, 59, 88.

- Bowes, Marjory, first wife of Knox, iii. 331-402, 334, 354, 370, 374, 376, 378, 379, 394; iv. 71, 239; vi. 27, 74, 79, 83, 101, 104, 124, 125, 437.
- Bowes, Sir Ralph, of Streatlam, iii. 333.
- Bowes, Richard, of Aske, Captain of Norham Castle, iii. 334; iv. 71.
- Bowes, Sir Robert, iii. 334, 378.
- Boyd, Robert, fourth Lord, iii. 413, 425; vi. 35, 43, 44, 55, 640, 657.
- Bradbridge, Augustine, iv. 16.
- Bradford, John, the martyr, iii. 176, 188, 195; v. 222.
- Brandling, Sir Robert, Mayor of Newcastle, iii. [83*], 277.
- Brunstone, Laird of. See Crichton, Alexander.
- Brunswick, Henry, Duke of, v. 426, 432.
- Buchanan, David, iv. 364.
- Buchanan, George, iii. 415; vi. 476, 533, 560, 565, 571, 609, 672.
- Bullinger, Henry, one of the ministers of Zurich, iii. 217, 218; iv. 31, 35, 41, 351, 358; v. 14; vi. 119, 542, 550.
- Bushe, Herman, v. 437.
- C
- Caithness, Bishop of. See Stewart, Robert.
- Caithness, George, third Earl of, vi. 117.
- Calder, Laird of. See Sandilands, Sir James.
- Calvin, John, iii. 201, 219; iv. 4, 21, 27, 28, 31, 35, 36, 41, 51, 53-55, 58, 153, 155, 161, 245, 258, 356-359, 544, 551; v. 11, 12, 24, 31, 32, 37-39, 124, 126, 168, 178, 180-182, 216, 217, 229, 310, 326; vi. 9, 10, 75, 94, 101, 119, 123, 277, 341, 639, 641.
- Campbell, Sir John, of Lundy, iii. 415.
- Campbell, Robert, of Kinyeancleuch, vi. 429, 430, 642, 643, 658, 659.
- Cariar, Anthony, iv. 13.
- Carmichael, Peter, iii. 31.
- Carnegie, John, Regent in St. Salvador's College, St. Andrews, vi. 628.
- Carnegie, Robert, of Kinnaird, iii. 411.
- Carpenter, Alexander, vi. 673.
- Carey, Henry, Lord Hunisdaill, Governor of Berwick, vi. 606, 609.
- Carswell, John, Superintendent of Argyle and the Isles, vi. 284, 386, 387.
- Cassilis, Gilbert, fourth Earl of, vi. 117, 128, 176, 177, 179, 181, 183, 184, 554, 571, 691.
- Castalio, or Castellio, Sebastian, a French minister, v. 11, 12, 16, 14,* 24, 37, 38, 83, 111, 126, 147, 184, 222, 227, 241, 295, 310, 342, 348, 355, 359, 395-398.
- Castellio, Ludovicus, iv. 9, 10, 145.

- Cathcart, John of Carletoun, vi. 585.
- Cecill, Sir William, afterwards Lord Burghley, iii. [81*], 412-414; iv. 353; vi. 5, 15, 29, 31, 32, 36-38, 44, 45, 51, 55, 59-61, 65, 67, 70, 71, 77, 80, 86, 88, 98, 109, 114, 116, 131, 136, 137, 141, 525, 528, 530, 532, 568, 570, 632.
- Cenalis, Bishop of Avranches, iv. 295.
- Cene, Nicholas le, a French martyr, iv. 292.
- Cesford, Laird of. See Ker, Sir William.
- Chalmers, David, of Ormond, iv. 360.
- Chambers, Richard, iv. 12-15, 17, 19.
- Charles V., the Emperor, iii. 308; iv. 4, 38, 39, 63.
- Chatelherault, James Hamilton, second Earl of Arran, Duke of, Governor and Regent of Scotland, iii. 407, 408, 410, 420, 422, 425; iv. 285, 286; vi. 28, 29, 53-55, 66, 72, 79, 87, 108, 111, 112, 114, 127, 137, 138, 144, 145, 560, 599.
- Chevignye, Monsieur, vi. 54.
- Chidley, George, iv. 13.
- Chisholm, William, Bishop of Dumblane, vi. 112, 115, 117, 118, 120, 611, 666.
- Cholmley, Sir Roger, v. 497.
- Christison, William, minister of Dundee, vi. 440, 470, 477, 478, 623.
- Chrysostome, iii. 351; iv. 386-389, 392, 393, 511; vi. 163.
- Clerk, Alexander, iii. 32.
- Cleutin, H. See D'Oysell.
- Cleves, John, Duke of, v. 443, 460.
- Clinet, Nicolas, a French martyr, iv. 292.
- Cockburn, Alexander, vi. 672.
- Cockburn, Captain, vi. 531.
- Cockburn, John, of Ormiston, iii. 412-414, 423, 424, 426, 435; vi. 90, 93; wife of (Alison Sandilands), iii. 405, 433-436.
- Cole, Thomas, iv. 13, 30, 50, 146, 544, 550; vi. 85.
- Coligny, Gaspar, Admiral, vi. 610.
- Colladon, Nicolas, Rector of the University of Geneva, vi. 563.
- Colville, Robert, of Cleish, vi. 571.
- Condé, Louis de Bourbon, Prince of, vi. 563, 564.
- Congregation, Lords of the, vi. 683-686.
- Cooke, Sir Anthony, iv. 358.
- Cooke, Robert, v. 16, 13*, 14*.
- Cottisford, Thomas, iv. 66.
- Coldingham, Lord John, of. See Stewart, Lord John.
- Coverdale, Myles, iv. 147, 550, 551; v. 17; vi. 532.
- Coxe, Dr. Richard, iv. 4, 32-34, 38, 45-48, 50, 55-58, 66; v. 3.
- Crafton, Thomas, iv. 16.
- Craig, John, one of the ministers of Edinburgh, vi. 285, 340, 389, 390, 440, 443, 470, 534, 537, 553, 576, 577, 579, 599, 600, 622, 653.
- Craighall, Laird of, vi. 106.
- Cranmer, Thomas, Archbishop of Canterbury, iii. 32, 80, [85*], [87*], 188, 255, 256, 277,

- 279, 283, 299; iv. 12, 419, 543; v. 222.
- Cranstoun, William, vi. 144.
- Crawford, David, Earl of, iii. 406; vi. 111.
- Crawford, Rev. Matthew, iii. 114, 115.
- Crespin, John, printer at Geneva, iv. 149, 151, 206, 214, 293, 352, 356, 550; v. 17.
- Crichton, Alexander, of Brunstone, iii. 412.
- Crichton, Robert, Bishop of Dunkeld, vi. 112, 115, 117, 118, 120, 128.
- Croft, Sir James, iii. 412-414, 420, 422, 423, 426; vi. 28, 29, 58, 60, 62-66, 70, 75, 77, 79, 88, 89, 91, 92, 99, 101, 105, 106.
- Crossraguell, Abbot of. See Kennedy, Quintine.
- Crowley, Robert, iv. 544, 551.
- Crucius, Jacobus, iv. 145.
- Cumming, Sir William, of Innerlochy, iii. 419.
- Cunningham, William, elder of Caprintoun, vi. 176, 585.
- Cyprian, St., iv. 329; vi. 163.
- D
- Darnley, Henry, Lord, Earl of Ross and Duke of Rothesay, iii. 415; vi. 223-225, 230, 552-554, 566, 570, 628, 629.
- Davidson, John, Principal of the College of Glasgow, vi. 154.
- Davidson, Thomas, apothecary, iii. 428.
- Day, John, printer, iv. 549, 551.
- D'Elbeuf, Marquis, vi. 102, 105, 691.
- Deering, Edward, iv. 87, 92, 93.
- Democritus, the Philosopher, iv. 448.
- D'Oysell, Henry Cleutin, Sieur, vi. 33, 681.
- Donatus, v. 419.
- Douglas, Sir George, of Pedden-dreigh, vi. 670.
- Douglas, Sir James, of Drumlanrig, vi. 35, 615, 640.
- Douglas, John, Rector of the University of St. Andrews, vi. 165-167, 548; Bishop of St. Andrews, 625, 629, 630.
- Douglas, Sir William, of Hawick, vi. 615.
- Douglas, Sir William, of Lochleven, afterwards Earl of Morton, vi. 35, 106, 574.
- Drummond, David, Lord, vi. 35, 111.
- Dudley, Lord Guilford, iii. 280.
- Dudley, Lord Robert, afterwards Earl of Leicester, vi. 530, 632.
- Dumblane, Bishop of. See Chisholm, William.
- Dun, Laird of. See Erskine, John.
- Duncanson, John, minister of the King's household, vi. 476.
- Dunkeld, Bishop of. See Crichton, Robert.
- Durard, Zacharie, printer at Geneva, vi. 290, 341.
- Durham, Michael, vi. 678.
- Durie, George, vi. 575, 577, 578.
- Durie, John, vi. 636.
- Durie, Robert, vi. 7.

E

- Eaten, Guido, iv. 16.
 Eaten, Thomas, iv. 16.
 Edinburgh, Provost of, vi. 132.
 Edward VI., iii. 32, 79, 80, [81*],
 [87*], [88*], 106, 122, 168,
 175, 195, 221, 222, 266-268,
 272, 278, 280-283, 296, 297,
 307, 372, 390, 407, 410; iv.
 3, 4, 9, 14, 36, 37, 42, 56,
 144, 157, 426, 559, 564, 566;
 v. 420; vi. 4, 12, 13.
 Eglinton, Earl of, vi. 111.
 Elizabeth, Queen, iii. [82*], 412;
 iv. 352, 353, 356-358, 543,
 545; v. 500; vi. 3-6, 19, 20,
 31, 32, 43, 45, 46, 48-51, 64,
 75, 146, 538, 551, 610.
 Epicurus, v. 64, 133, 185.
 Erskine, Alexander, vi. 8.
 Erskine, John, of Dun, Superintendent of Angus and Mearns,
 iv. 463; vi. 35, 143, 386, 387,
 430, 440, 443, 556, 622, 675,
 680-684.
 Erskine, John, fifth Lord, afterwards Earl of Mar, iv. 257,
 258; vi. 35, 118. See Mar,
 Earl of.
 Eusebius, the Historian, iii. 224;
 iv. 334.
 Evagrius, the Historian, iii. 224.

F

- Fabritius, Theoderik, v. 438.
 Fairley, Robert, Laird of Braid,
 vi. 596-598, 636, 641.
 Farrou, Henry, merchant, v. 420.
 Feckenham, Dr., Abbot of Westminster, vi. 4.
 Felix I., Pope, iii. 48.

- Ferdinand, King, v. 458.
 Fergusson, David, minister of
 Dunfermline, vi. 152.
 Field, John, Rector of Aldermay and of St. Giles's, Cripplegate,
 London, iv. 87, 88, 91, 547.
 Fife, Superintendent of. See
 Wynrame, John.
 Fleming, Abraham, Rector of a church in London, iii. 116, 118, 229.
 Fleming, Malcolm, Prior of Whit-horn, vi. 156, 526.
 Forbes, Dr. John, of Corse, vi. 604.
 Forbes, Lord, vi. 35.
 Foulter, John, iv. 147, 360, 421.
 Foxe, John, the Martyrologist,
 iii. 114; iv. 19, 30, 50, 146,
 352, 544; v. 3; vi. 686.
 Francis I., King of France, iv.
 289.
 Frankfurt, English Congregation
 at, iii. 255.
 Frarin, Peter, of Antwerp, iv.
 360, 362, 421.
 Fraser, John, v. 4.
 Frederick, Duke of Saxony, v.
 424, 426.
 Frith, John, iv. 563.
 Fullertoun, Adam, vi. 27.
 Fullertoun, John, of Dreghorn,
 vi. 585.

G

- Gabart, Pierre, a French martyr,
 iv. 292.
 Gallars, or Gallasius, Nicolas de,
 one of the ministers of Geneva,
 iv. 291, 293; v. 178; vi. 563.
 Galloway, Bishop of. See Gordon, Alexander.

- Gardiner, Stephen, Bishop of Winchester, iii. 173, 180, 182, 183, 185, 245, 248, 256, 276, 279, 284, 285, 293, 296-299; iv. 543, 544, 548, 562, 563; v. 14.
- Garlies, Laird of. See Stewart, Sir Alexander, younger of Garlies.
- Garret, Thomas, iv. 563.
- Gaw, John, vi. 665.
- Geofrie, John, iv. 13, 16.
- Gentilis, Giovanni Valenti, v. 14*.
- Gilby, Anthony, iv. 30, 31, 51, 146, 147, 351, 543; v. 15; his wife Elizabeth, iv. 544, 550; his son Goddred, iv. 544; his son Nathaniel, iv. 547, 548.
- Gill, Mighell, iv. 13, 19.
- Glamis, Lord, vi. 571.
- Glawberge, John, a chief senator of Frankfurt-on-the-Maine, iv. 10, 34, 37.
- Glencairn, Alexander, fifth Earl of, iii. 413, 425; iv. 72, 257, 258, 425; vi. 29, 35, 43, 44, 55, 115, 154, 554, 571, 585, 640, 675.
- Golding, Arthur, iv. 551.
- Goodacre, Anne, wife of John Baron, minister, vi. 534, 537.
- Goodman, Christopher, iii. 219, 334; iv. 16, 51, 55, 66, 68, 146, 147, 260, 351, 352, 356, 358-362, 369, 418, 419, 421, 544, 545, 550, 553, 572; v. 3; vi. 6, 21, 27, 30, 78, 79, 101, 118, 119, 125, 142, 143, 165-167, 429, 558, 573, 618, 627.
- Gordon, Adam, vi. 616.
- Gordon, Alexander, Bishop of Galloway, and Titular Archbishop of Athens, vi. 118, 166, 167, 387, 553.
- Gordon, Sir John, of Lochinvar, vi. 35.
- Goulart, Simon, iv. 293.
- Gourlay, Normand, vi. 666.
- Graham, John Lord, afterwards third Earl of Montrose, vi. 128.
- Graham, Master of, vi. 643.
- Graie, John, iv. 13.
- Grames of Eske, the, iii. 421.
- Grange, Laird of. See Kirkaldy, Sir William, of Grange.
- Gravelle, Taurin, a French martyr, iv. 292.
- Gray, John, scribe to the General Assembly, iii. 114, 115; vi. 538, 590.
- Gray, Patrick, fifth Lord, iii. 408, 411, 425; vi. 111.
- Greg, James, vi. 470.
- Gregory, the Great, Pope, iii. 39, 40, 48, 69.
- Grey, Lady Jane, iii. 168, 255, 278, 280, 283; iv. 418, 419.
- Grindall, Dr. Edmund, iii. [81*], 178; iv. 11, 15-19, 57, 61, 542, 545.
- Gualter, Rodulph, one of the ministers of Zurich, v. 13*, 14*.
- Guise, Duke of, vi. 136, 146.
- Guthrie, Alexander, clerk of the city of Edinburgh, iv. 246.
- Guthrie, William, vi. 85.

H

Haddon, James, minister, an exile at Strasburg, iv. 12, 16.

- Haddon, Dr. Walter, President of Magdalene College, Oxford, iii. 177.
- Hall, Joseph, Bishop of Norwich, iv. 548.
- Hall, Rowland, English printer at Geneva, iv. 550.
- Haller, Mr., vi. 550.
- Halliday, Adam, vi. 30, 85.
- Halyburton, James, Provost of Dundee, vi. 678, 679.
- Hamilton, Archibald, vi. 629-631, 646, 650, 651.
- Hamilton, Lord Claude, vi. 138, 599.
- Hamilton, Gavin, Commendator of Kilwinning, vi. 111.
- Hamilton, James of Bothwellhaugh, vi. 625, 650, 651.
- Hamilton, James, Knox's servant, vi. 628, 629.
- Hamilton, Sir James, of Finnart, vi. 666, 667.
- Hamilton, John, Abbot of Paisley, afterwards Archbishop of St. Andrews, iii. 407; iv. 285; vi. 25, 111, 114-118, 120, 128, 139, 144, 156, 526, 533, 540, 676.
- Hamilton. See Chatelherault.
- Hamilton, John, Regent in the College of Navarre, vi. 477.
- Hamilton, Matthew, Captain of Blackness, iii. 408.
- Hamilton, Patrick, martyr, vi. 664, 665.
- Hamilton, Robert, minister of St. Andrews, vi. 429, 430, 624, 627-629.
- Hamiltons, The, vi. 644, 645.
- Hammond, William, iv. 13, 145.
- Harley, John, one of King Edward the Sixth's chaplains, afterwards Bishop of Hereford, iii. [81*]; iv. 566.
- Harpsfield, Archdeacon, of London, iii. 294.
- Harte, Roger, iv. 50.
- Hay, Alexander, of Easter Kennet, vi. 606, 608; Clerk of the Privy-Council, 646.
- Hay, Edmund, the Jesuit, vi. 474.
- Hay, George, minister of Ruthven, vi. 155, 179, 477.
- Hay, William Lord, of Yester, vi. 111.
- Hegisippus, an ecclesiastical historian of the second century, iii. 240.
- Henry II., King of France, iv. 289, 412.
- Henry IV., Emperor of the Romans, vi. 508.
- Henry VIII. of England, iii. 221, 276, 298, 407, 408, 410; iv. 558, 559, 563, 564; v. 14; vi. 4, 53, 69.
- Heriot, Adam, vi. 165-167.
- Heries, Lord, vi. 113. See Maxwell.
- Hesse, Philip, Landgrave of, v. 426, 430, 431, 433, 435, 436, 440, 449-451, 459.
- Hickman, Mr., iv. 238, 241; vi. 85, 130.
- Hickman, Mrs., iv. 219, 238; vi. 85.
- Hierome, William, Vicar of Stepney, iv. 563.
- Hildebrand, Pope, or Gregory the Seventh, vi. 508, 509.

Hildersham, Arthur, a Puritan divine, iv. 548.
 Hillarie, St., iv. 334.
 Hilton, John, iv. 50.
 Hollingham, John, iv. 19.
 Hooper, Dr. John, Bishop of Gloucester, iii. 160, 195; iv. 33, 36, 37, 44, 543, 564; v. 222.
 Hope, Edward, vi. 27.
 Hopkins, John, iv. 572; vi. 285.
 Horne, Robert, one of King Edward the Sixth's chaplains, afterwards Dean of Durham and Bishop of Winchester, iii. [81*]-[83*]; iv. 6, 57.
 Hume, or Home, Alexander, fifth Lord, vi. 128, 551, 576.
 Humphrey, Dr. Laurence, iv. 547, 551; vi. 571.
 Hunisdaill, Lord. See Carey, Henry.
 Huntingdon, Henry, third Earl of, iv. 545, 547, 548, 551.
 Huntingdon, Lady Catherine Dudley, Countess of, wife of the preceding, iv. 546, 547.
 Huntington, John, iv. 16.
 Huntley, George, fifth Earl of, iii. 420; vi. 56, 145, 553, 573.

I

Innocent III., Pope, iii. 278.
 Isaack, Edward, of Patricksbourn, Kent, iv. 46-48.

J

James V., King, iii. 406; iv. 558, 559.
 James VI., King, iv. 425-427; vi. 555-557, 561, 596, 600, 687.
 Jewel, Dr. John, Bishop of Salisbury, iv. 47, 48, 359; v. 13*; vi. 138, 389, 559.

 Joachim, Abbot of Corazzo, and afterwards of Florence, vi. 505.
 Johnstone, James, Laird of Elphinstone, vi. 597.
 Johnstoun, John, writer, vi. 27, 641, 659.
 Jonas, Justus, v. 446.
 Jovinian, the Roman Emperor, iv. 448.
 Jude, Leo, minister at Zurich, v. 14.
 Julian, The Emperor, iv. 401; v. 258, 332, 357; vi. 267, 268.
 Justin, The Emperor, iii. 224.

K

Keith, William, Lord. See Marischal.
 Kennedy, Gilbert, of Dalquharan, vi. 585.
 Kennedy, Hew, of Benname, vi. 585.
 Kennedy, James, of Uchterlour, vi. 155, 168.
 Kennedy, Thomas, of Lamby, vi. 585.
 Kennedy, Quintine, Abbot of Crossraguell, vi. 139, 144, 152-156, 168, 174, 175, 526, 533.
 Kent, Laurence, iv. 19.
 Kethe, William, iv. 19, 50, 356, 544, 550, 572; vi. 285, 338.
 Ker, Andrew, of Faudounside, iii. 335.
 Ker, Sir Andrew, of Pherniherst, vi. 573.
 Ker, Mark, Laird of Newbattle, vi. 118.

- Ker, Sir William, of Cesford, vi. 540.
- Killigrew, Henry, vi. 632, 633.
- Kilwinning, Abbot of, vi. 138.
- Kinloquhy, John, minister of Linlithgow, vi. 152.
- Kirkaldy, Sir James, of Grange, iii. 405 407, 410-414, 423.
- Kirkaldy, John, vi. 575, 577, 578.
- Kirkaldy, Patrick, vi. 575.
- Kirkaldy, Sir William, of Grange, iii. 31, 32, 410; vi. 33-38, 40, 42, 46, 51, 59, 60, 68, 80, 106-108, 277, 278, 539, 567, 571, 573, 575-585, 596, 599, 638, 643-645, 657, 659.
- Knipperdoling, Bernard, an Anabaptist, v. 439, 442, 444, 445, 458, 459.
- Knox, William, brother of the Reformer, iii. 356, 361.
- Knox, Mrs., wife of the Reformer. See Bowes, Marjory. Stewart, Margaret.
- L
- Lakin, Thomas, iv. 16.
- Lambert, Francis, vi. 665.
- Lanfrancus, a monk, iv. 315.
- Lasco, John à, a Polish Reformer, iv. 62.
- Latimer, Hugh, Bishop of Worcester, iii. 80, 188, 195, 255, 299; iv. 419; v. 14*, 222.
- Laud, William, Archbishop of Canterbury, vi. 284.
- Lauder, Henry, Advocate, iii. 406.
- Lawson, James, minister of Edinburgh, iv. 246; vi. 624, 631-634, 637, 638, 648, 653-657.
- Learmonth, Sir Patrick, of Dairsy, vi. 680.
- Leicester, Earl of. See Dudley, Lord Robert.
- Lekprewik, Robert, printer, iv. 155; vi. 169, 287, 241, 389, 391.
- Lennox, Matthew, fourth Earl of, vi. 539, 540, 541; Regent, 610, 612, 620, 663.
- Lesley, John, Bishop of Ross, iv. 360; v. 3.
- Lesley, Norman, Master of Rothes, iii. 410, 411.
- Lesly, John, iii. 419.
- Lethington. See Maitland, William, of Lethington.
- Lever, Thomas, one of King Edward the Sixth's chaplains, iii. 176; iv. 12, 21, 31, 34, 38, 42, 43, 45, 46, 57, 551.
- Leyden, John, a prophet of the Anabaptists, v. 433, 436, 442-448.
- Lindsay, Sir David, of the Mount, iii. 3, 409, 410.
- Lindsay, David, vi. 440, 470, 622, 638, 657.
- Lindsay, John, fifth Lord, vi. 117, 556, 571, 640.
- Lindsay, Patrick, Master of, afterwards Lord Lindsay, vi. 35, 106.
- Littill, Mr. Clement, vi. 579.
- Lochinvar, Laird of. See Gordon, Sir John.
- Lochleven, Laird of. See Douglas, Sir William, of Lochleven.
- Locke, Mrs. Anne, iv. 87, 219, 237, 329, 240; vi. 6, 7, 11,

- 21, 30, 83, 100, 103, 107, 129, 140, 689-691. (See Prouze, Mrs. Anne); her daughter Anne, iv. 240.
- Locke, Henry, merchant, London, husband of the preceding, iv. 237, 240, 689, 690.
- Locke, Henry, son or nephew of the preceding, vi. 7, 690.
- Locke, Michael, and his wife, vi. 85.
- Lockhart, John, of Bar, vi. 585.
- Lockhart, Robert, vi. 81.
- Lorne, Archibald Lord, afterwards fifth Earl of Argyle, iv. 257, 258; vi. 675. See Argyle.
- Lorraine, Cardinal de, iv. 292, 300; vi. 54, 561, 609, 610.
- Lothian, Superintendent of. See Spottiswood, John.
- Lundie, Walter, of Lundie, vi. 117.
- Luns, Philippe de (widow of the Seigneur de Graveron), a French martyr, iv. 292.
- Luther, iii. 308; iv. 563; v. 423, 424, 433, 446, 448, 452; vi. 163.
- Lyndsay. See Lindsay.
- M
- Macgill or Makgill, Sir James, vi. 60, 111, 551.
- Mackbray or Macbrair, John, iv. 4, 13, 19, 145.
- Maitland, Robert, Commissar of Edinburgh, iii. 430.
- Maitland, William, of Lethington, younger, Secretary, iii. 414, 426; vi. 8, 94, 112-114, 120, 128, 132, 136, 141, 224, 526, 527, 532, 540, 551, 554, 567, 634-638, 644, 657.
- Marjoribanks, Thomas, advocate, iii. 406.
- Manacheus, v. 332.
- Mansfeld, Albert, Count of, v. 426.
- Mar, John, fifth Earl of, vi. 141, 554, 571, 663. See Erskine, Lord.
- Marischal, William, fourth Earl of, iv. 72; vi. 35, 58, 60, 110, 113, 117.
- Marischal, William, Lord Keith, eldest son of the preceding, iv. 58, 60, 618.
- Martyr, Justin, iv. 328.
- Martyr, Peter, iii. 219; iv. 31, 35, 41, 66, 359; vi. 119.
- Mary, Queen of England, iii. [87*], 113, 168, 187, 254-256, 283, 294-297, 307, 308, 327, 328; iv. 38, 39, 63, 144, 352, 358, 361, 365, 392-395, 404, 405, 411, 418, 420, 426, 507, 516, 517, 544, 553, 562, 566; v. 3, 471, 497-500, 510; vi. 3, 6, 16.
- Mary of Lorraine, wife of James V., Queen Dowager and Regent of Scotland, iii. 32, 421, 422; iv. 69-84, 286, 352; v. 3, 423-460; vi. 21-24, 28-37, 42, 56, 58, 60, 72, 74, 78, 81, 86, 91, 92, 540.
- Mary, Queen of Scots, iii. 407, 410, 415, 417; iv. 353, 360, 361, 404, 411, 426, 559, 560; vi. 54, 87, 127-132, 138, 139, 143, 146, 147, 151, 152, 223, 224, 230, 401, 402, 427, 526,

- 527, 533, 539, 540, 543, 552-557, 566, 567, 570, 573, 600, 609, 611, 627, 679, 680, 683.
- Mason, Sir John, English ambassador at the Court of France, iii. 31; vi. 679.
- Mathew, John, chief prophet of the Anabaptists, v. 441, 444.
- Maupas, George, iv. 145.
- Maxwell, Herbert Lord, iii. 407.
- Maxwell, Sir John, of Terreglis, Master of, afterwards Lord Herries, iii. 414, 421, 422; vi. 69, 93, 113, 115, 144, 178, 182, 683.
- Melancthon, Philip, v. 446; vi. 163.
- Melsingier, John, v. 438.
- Melville, Andrew, vi. 7, 646, 648.
- Melville, James, afterwards Sir James, iii. 416, 417, 427-430; vi. 440.
- Melville, Sir John, of Raith, iii. 405, 412; vi. 578.
- Melville, Captain Robert, vi. 597.
- Menteith, John, fourth Earl of, vi. 35, 681.
- Methven, Henry, second Lord, vi. 620.
- Methven, Paul, minister of Jedburgh, vi. 532, 533.
- Mewatas, Sir Peter, vi. 136.
- Middlemore, Henry, vi. 556.
- Milton, John, iv. 359, 369.
- Minucius, Felix, Marcus, iv. 333.
- Monchi, De, an Inquisitor, iv. 294.
- Montrose, William, second Earl of, vi. 128.
- Monypenny, David, of Pitmilley, iii. 410-412.
- Morellio, Mons., or Murellius, John, a French minister, iv. 9, 10, 145.
- Morton, James, fourth Earl of, vi. 8, 35, 533, 551, 556, 557, 571, 573, 596, 633, 640, 644, 645, 657, 675.
- Muncer, Thomas, the Anabaptist, v. 13, 423-432.
- Murray, Lord James Stewart, Earl of, and Regent of Scotland, formerly Prior of St. Andrews, iii. 414, 415, 417; iv. 257, 258, 463; vi. 24, 35, 43, 44, 55, 60, 61, 63, 67, 68, 103, 116, 117, 122, 127, 128, 132, 135, 139, 141, 148, 155, 526, 527, 540, 543, 557, 560, 561, 568, 570-573, 620, 624-628, 644, 650, 651, 682, 688, 692; Countess of, vi. 645.
- Murray, Sir William, of Tullibardine, vi. 35.
- Musculus, Wolfgang, iv. 31, 35, 41.

N

- Navarre, Anthony de Bourbon, King of, vi. 139.
- Neilson, John, of Craigeaffie, vi. 585.
- Newbattle, Laird of. See Kerr, Mark.
- Nicholas II., Pope, iv. 314, 315.
- Norfolk, Thomas, fourth Duke of, iii. 414; vi. 568, 609.
- Northumberland, John Dudley, Earl of Warwick and Duke of, iii. [81*], [83*]-[86*], 167-169, 277, 278, 280, 283, 364; iv. 547, 566; vi. 60, 689.

O

- Ochiltree, Andrew Stewart, Lord, vi. 35, 43, 44, 55, 533, 571, 585.
 Ogilvie, James Lord, of Airly, vi. 35.
 Oliphant, Sir Andrew, chaplain to the Bishop of St. Andrews, vi. 666.
 Orange, William, Prince of, vi. 609.
 Origen, iv. 383; v. 88.
 Orkney, Bishop of. See Bothwell, Adam.
 Ormiston, Laird of. See Cockburn, John, of Ormiston.
 Osell. See D'Oysell.
 Oxford, University of, iv. 422.

P

- Parker, Matthew, Archbishop of Canterbury, iv. 421, 545; vi. 536.
 Parkhurst, John, Bishop of Norwich, v. 13*, 14*.
 Parr, Queen Catherine, v. 13*.
 Parry, Henry, Chancellor of the Cathedral Church of Salisbury, iv. 31, 47, 50, 66.
 Parry, Sir Thomas, vi. 29, 37.
 Parsons, Robert, the Jesuit, iv. 369.
 Paterson, William, writer, iii. 429.
 Paulet, Sir William, Marquess of Winchester, iii. 283; vi. 689.
 Pedder, John, iv. 16.
 Pedersen, Christian, vi. 665.
 Pelagius, iii. 131; v. 9, 10.
 Percy, Sir Henry, vi. 33-38, 40, 46, 58-61, 67, 75.

- Perne, Andrew, one of the chaplains of Edward VI., iii. [81*].
 Phernihurst, Laird of. See Ker, Sir Andrew.
 Phifer, an Anabaptist, v. 425, 426, 432.
 Philip II. of Spain, iii. 254, 256, 294-297; iv. 4, 38, 39, 48, 63, 405, 411, 553, 562; v. 500.
 Phocas, the Emperor, iv. 314.
 Pighius, Albertus, v. 24, 73, 171.
 Pitmilly, Laird of. See Monypenny, David.
 Pittarow, Laird of. See Wishart, Sir John.
 Pius V., Pope, iii. 38.
 Plato, v. 35, 89.
 Pliny, the younger, iv. 165, 308, 323.
 Pollanus, Valerandus. See Pullan, Valeran.
 Pont, Robert, vi. 285, 337, 440, 470, 548, 620, 622.
 Pontianus, Pope, iii. 48.
 Poullain, James, printer at Geneva, iv. 429, 549.
 Prestoun, Dr., vi. 643, 654.
 Prouze, Mrs. Anne, widow of Edward Deering, iv. 87, 91, 239; vi. 690. See Locke, Anna.
 Pullan, Valeran, a French Protestant minister, iv. 9, 34, 36, 42, 46, 144, 145.
 Pullein, John, iv. 550; vi. 285.

Q

- Quhytlaw, Alexander of New Grange. See Whytelaw, Alexander.

R

- Raith, Laird of. See Melville, Sir John.
- Randolph, Thomas, iii. 414, 421, 422, 425, 426; vi. 109, 116, 118, 127, 137, 138, 141, 525, 527, 532, 538, 539, 541, 570.
- Raylton, Gregory, vi. 86, 88, 105.
- Raymornye, Laird of, vi. 106.
- Rebul, Antonie, printer, Geneva, iv. 429.
- Regent, Queen. See Mary of Lorraine.
- Reniger, Michael, iv. 16.
- Reynolds, Edward, Bishop of Norwich, iv. 426.
- Rhegius, Urbanus, v. 446.
- Riccio, David, vi. 225, 481.
- Richardson, Robert, Commendator of St. Mary's Isle, vi. 527, 681.
- Ridley, Nicolas, iii. 188, 255, 299; iv. 61; v. 14, 15, 222.
- Rogers, John, martyr, v. 222.
- Rolle, Henry of, v. 436.
- Ross, Bishop of. See Sinclair, Henry.
- Roteman, Bernard, an Anabaptist preacher, v. 433, 436-439, 457, 458.
- Roths, George, third Earl of, i i. 408.
- Roths, Andrew, fourth Earl of, vi. 35.
- Roths, Master of. See Leslie, Norman.
- Rough, John, iii. 3, 410; vi. 672.
- Row, John, minister of Perth, vi. 440, 443, 444, 470, 622, 623.
- Rutherford, John, Principal of St. Salvator's College, St. Andrews, vi. 625, 626, 629, 630.
- Ruthven, Patrick, third Lord, iii. 414; vi. 35, 43, 44, 224, 556, 571, 640.

S

- Sadoletus, Jacobus, v. 24.
- Sadler, Sir Ralph, iii. 412, 413, 420, 422, 426; iv. 559; vi. 64, 70-72, 75, 80, 86, 88, 105.
- St. Andrews, Archbishop of. See Hamilton, John. Spottiswood, John.
- St. Andrews, Canons of, vi. 26.
- St. Andrews, Prior of. See Murray, Lord James Stewart, Earl of.
- St. Andrews, Sub-Prior of. See Wynrame, John.
- Samford, John, iv. 13, 19.
- Sampson, Thomas, Dean of Chichester, iii. [85*]; iv. 53-58, 547, 550, 551.
- Sandilands, Dame Alison. See Cockburn, John, of Ormiston.
- Sandilands, Sir James, of Calder, vi. 35, 678.
- Sandys, Edwin, Bishop of, iii. 188; iv. 16, 57.
- Saule, Arthur, iv. 16.
- Saxony, Frederick, Duke of, v. 424, 426.
- Saxony, George, Duke of, v. 426, 431.
- Saxony, John, Duke of, v. 426, 449, 459.
- Scheves, Christian, wife of Henry Balnaves, iii. 407.
- Scheves, Christian, iii. 429.

- Scheves, Patrick, of Kenback, iii. 429, 430.
- Scory, John, Bishop, iv. 11, 12.
- Scott, Dr., Bishop of Chester, vi. 4.
- Scott, Thomas, of Abbotshall, vi. 106.
- Seaton, George Lord, vi. 681.
- Seaton, Henry, vi. 575, 577, 578, 581.
- Servetus, Michael, v. 207, 221, 224, 226-231; vi. 362, 363.
- Seymour, Edward, Earl of Hertford and Duke of Somerset, Lord Protector of England, iii. 167, 176, 177, 277, 278, 283, 411, 419; iv. 42, 564, 568; v. 14.
- Seymour, Sir Thomas, Lord Admiral of England, iii. 277.
- Seytoun, Alexander, vi. 686.
- Shaxton, Nicholas, Bishop of Salisbury, iv. 544.
- Shrewsbury, Francis Talbot, Earl of, iii. [87*].
- Siculus, Georgius, v. 24.
- Simler, John Jacob, vi. 10.
- Sinclair, Henry, Bishop of Ross, vi. 139, 144.
- Sinclair, Sinclear, John, a name assumed by Knox, vi. 77, 81.
- Singleton, Hugh, printer, iii. [88*], 159.
- Sixtus, Pope, iii. 48.
- Sleidan, John, v. 13, 423.
- Smeaton, Thomas, Principal of the University of Glasgow, iv. 92; vi. 645-648.
- Smith, Mr., vi. 78.
- Socrates, the Ecclesiastical Historian, iv. 335.
- Somerset, Duke of. See Seymour, Edward.
- Somerville, Hugh, fifth Lord, vi. 111.
- Sorby, Thomas, iv. 13.
- Spira, Francis, iii. 367, 368.
- Spittell, Nicoll, vi. 440.
- Spottiswood, John, Superintendent of Lothian and Tweeddale, vi. 143, 152, 165-167, 384, 386, 430, 440, 443, 534, 537, 583, 622.
- Spottiswood, John, Archbishop of St. Andrews, iii. 408, 409.
- Stapred, Herman, v. 436.
- Staunton, John, iv. 13, 19, 145.
- Sternhold, Thomas, iv. 166, 572; vi. 285, 335.
- Stewart, Sir Alexander, younger of Garlies, vi. 35.
- Stewart, Archibald, vi. 636.
- Stewart, James, Commendator of St. Colme, vi. 128, 138, 692.
- Stewart, Lord James. See Murray, James, Earl of.
- Stewart, Lord John, Prior of Coldingham, vi. 129.
- Stewart, Margaret, second wife of Knox, iii. 114, 115, 335; vi. 532, 533, 634, 639, 643, 654, 655.
- Stewart, Robert, Bishop of Caithness, vi. 622, 630, 640.
- Stewart, Thomas, iv. 13, 16.
- Stewart, William, Herald, and afterwards Lyon King at Arms, vi. 334, 692.
- Stratoun, David, vi. 666.
- Strozzi, Leon, Priour of Capua, vi. 673.
- Surtees, Robert, vi. 8, 9.

Sutton, Edmonde, iv. 9, 10, 13, 19.
 Switzerland, Divines of, iii. 229;
 Churches in, 235; vi. 545.
 Swyft, Jasper, iv. 13.
 Sym, James, iv. 257.

T

Tertullian, iv. 307, 381-383, 446.
 Themistius, the Philosopher, iv.
 448.
 Thomson, Laurence, iv. 547.
 Throkmorton, Sir Nicholas, vi.
 127, 136, 551.
 Tillibarne or Tullibardine, Laird
 of. See Murray, Sir William.
 Tostall, Dr. Cuthbert, Bishop of Durham, iii. 32, 180, 247, 284,
 285, 293, 296; vi. 139, 155.
 Traheron, Bartholomew, iv. 66.
 Trajan, The Emperor, iv. 165,
 308.
 Turner, Richard, a prebend of
 Windsor, iv. 47, 551.
 Turner, Dr. William, v. 13*, 14*.
 Tylney, Emery, vi. 670-672.
 Tyndale, William, iv. 563.
 Tyrie, David, of Drumkilbo, Perth-shire, vi. 474, 476, 481.
 Tyrie, James, the Jesuit, iii. 253,
 333; iv. 152; vi. 471-478,
 617.

U

Upeher, Thomas, iv. 241.

V

Valens, The Emperor, iv. 335.
 Vautrollier, Thomas, printer, iii.
 431, 433.
 Veron, John, iii. 188; v. 14.
 Vielleville, Monsieur de, vi. 143.

Viret, Peter, iv. 31, 35, 41; vi.
 119.

W

Waldegrave, Robert, printer, iv.
 89, 551.
 Wallace, Adam, martyr, iv. 285.
 Wallace, Hew, of Carnall, vi. 585.
 Walton, William, iv. 13, 19.
 Warwick, Ambrose, Earl of, iv.
 572.
 Welsh, Mr. John, minister of Ayr,
 iii. 335.
 Westmoreland, Henry Nevville,
 Earl of, iii. 357.
 Weston, Dr. Hugh, iii. 80, 298.
 Wharton, Robert Lord, iii. [83*]- [85*].
 Whetnall, George, iv. 19.
 Whetnall, Thomas, iv. 19.
 Whitehead, David, iv. 5, 12, 57,
 66; vi. 609.
 Whitehorne, Prior of. See Fleming, Malcolm.
 Whitgift, John, Archbishop of Canterbury, iii. 118.
 Whittingham, William, minister,
 iv. 4, 5, 9, 10, 13, 17, 19, 21,
 28, 30, 31, 34, 38, 46, 48, 50,
 54, 55, 65, 145-147, 157, 166,
 351, 356, 544-546, 549-551;
 v. 15*, 16*; vi. 285, 335, 339.
 Whytelaw, Alexander, of New Grange, iii. 411, 420, 424,
 425; vi. 46, 61, 63, 65, 68,
 108.
 Wickleif, Harie, iii. 350.
 Wicklyffe, John, iii. 308.
 Widderingtoun, Roger, iii. 380.
 Widdowes, Thomas, iv. 547, 548.
 Wighton, Sir John, priest, vi. 670.

- Wilkie, James, Primarius of St. Leonard's College, St. Andrews, vi. 630.
- Williams, William, iv. 9, 13, 19, 48, 147, 544.
- Willock, John, Superintendent of Glasgow and the West, vi. 114, 118, 119, 122, 154, 165-167, 179, 386, 387, 390, 445, 446, 470; parson of Loughborough, Leicester, vi. 572.
- Wilson, Stephen, vi. 687.
- Winchester, Marquess of. See Paulet, Sir William.
- Winzet, Ninian, vi. 152, 153, 193.
- Wirtan, Peter, a German preacher, v. 438, 440.
- Wishart, George, the Martyr, iv. 285; vi. 667-678.
- Wishart, Sir John, of Pittarrow, iii. 414; vi. 35, 616, 668, 669.
- Wishart, the, families of Pittarrow, Carnbeg, and Logywishart, vi. 667-670.
- Wodrow, Robert, the Historian, iii. 114, 335.
- Wood, John, of Tilliedavy, Secretary to the Earl of Murray, iii. 415; iv. 13; vi. 121, 444, 558, 560; 612, 645.
- Wood, Michael, printer, iii. 298.
- Wood, Thomas, iv. 9, 13, 19, 146, 147; vi. 78, 79.
- Wyatt, Sir Thomas, iii. 294, 295; iv. 418, 419.
- Wynrame, John, Sub-Prior of St. Andrews and Superintendent of Fife, vi. 111, 118, 120, 122, 165-167, 386, 387, 430, 440, 574, 620, 622, 630.
- Y
- Yester, Lord. See Hay, William Lord.
- Young, James, iv. 238; vi. 85.

INDEX OF PLACES

FOR VOLUMES III. IV. V. AND VI.

A

- ALNWICK, in Northumberland, iii.
350; vi. 61.
Alstet, a town on the borders of Thuringia, v. 423, 425.
Ayr, Town of, iv. 360; vi. 78,
101; St. John's Kirk in, vi.
178, 181.

B

- Basel, in Switzerland, iv. 50, 143,
146, 241.
Bass Rock, The, vi. 542.
Berwick-on-Tweed, iii. 32, 79,
167, 333, 355, 414, 420; iv.
71, 352; vi. 20, 28, 29, 47,
61, 62, 64, 74, 92, 113, 122.
Brechtin, vi. 78.
Brighton, Town of, iii. 113.
Broghty Craig, vi. 57.

C

- Calais, in France, iv. 568, 471;
v. 490; vi. 91, 92.
Carlisle, iii. 360, 365.
Coblentz, a city on the Rhine, formerly called Confluence, v.
443, 449.
Cologne, a city on the Rhine, iii.
405.

- Cosfeld, v. 447.
Craigmillar Castle, in the vicinity of Edinburgh, vi. 526.
Crichtoun Castle, iii. 423.
Crossraguell, Abbey of, vi. 156.
Cullesy, Easter, iii. 419.
Cupar, in Fife, vi. 25, 626.

D

- Dairsy, in Fife, vi. 680.
Denmark, vi. 53, 66.
Dieppe, in Upper Normandy,
France, iii. 113, 116, 118,
215, 229, 236, 249, 253, 254,
333, 334, 347, 372; iv. 71,
225, 259-262, 275, 295, 352,
353; v. 15*; vi. 3, 5, 6, 11,
15, 20, 21, 31, 83, 85, 610.
Dumbarton, Town of, vi. 643.
Dunbar Castle, vi. 33, 113, 129.
Dundee, Town of, vi. 22, 27, 28,
57, 78, 81, 83, 623, 670, 678,
679.
Dunfermline, vi. 575, 577.
Durham, vi. 31.
Dysart, vi. 107.

E

- Edinburgh, vi. 21, 22, 27, 30,
33, 36, 43, 44, 46, 82, 100.

Edinburgh Castle, iii. 421, 422 ;
vi. 62, 78, 81, 99.

Edinburgh, St. Giles's Church, vi.
273, 526, 615, 616, 618, 624,
657.

Emden, in East Friesland, Westphalia, iv. 11, 16, 19, 160.

F

Fast Castle, in Berwickshire, vi.
551.

Flanders, iii. 405 ; iv. 9.

France, iii. 3, 229, 253 ; iv. 9.

Frankfurt-on-the-Maine, iv. 3-6, 9, 12, 13, 15, 19, 50, 71, 144,
146, 160, 544 ; vi. 83.

G

Galloway, County of, vi. 187.

Geneva, iii. 253, 334, 347 ; iv.
3, 5, 8, 12, 28, 50, 71, 87,
131, 146, 168, 259, 260, 352,
356, 425, 464, 544, 545, 572 ;
v. 221, 422, 471 ; vi. 3, 5, 9-11, 16, 27, 31, 53, 78, 85,
361, 402, 559.

Germany, iv. 9 ; v. 422.

Gifford Gate, Haddington, vi. 663.

Glasgow, vi. 62, 63.

Glastonbury, in England, iv. 9.

H

Haddington, Town of, iii. 423.

Halhill, in Fife, iii. 416-419.

Hamilton, iii. 420.

Hammersham, or Amersham, iii.
308.

Hampton Court, iii. 168, 415.

Helderung, a town in Mansfeld,
v. 432.

Helvetia, v. 422.

Holy Island, coast of England, vi.
59, 60, 71.

I

Inchkeith, The island of, vi. 529, 542.

Isle of Man, vi. 119.

K

Kinghorn, vi. 107.

Kirkaldy, vi. 107.

Kirkoswald, Ayrshire, vi. 176,
177, 182, 185.

L

Lausanne, iv. 53.

Leith, Town of, iii. 421, 422 ; vi.
27, 81, 85, 86, 89, 102, 113,
127.

Leyden, vi. 7.

Linlithgow, vi. 570, 643.

London, iii. 32, 168, 187, 229,
255, 294-296, 343, 382 ; iv.
393 ; v. 518 ; Tower of, iii.
187, 255.

Lundie, in Fife, vi. 108.

Lundores, Abbey of, vi. 26.

Lyons, iv. 245, 260.

M

Malmoe, in Sweden, vi. 666.

Marpurg, University of, v. 434.

May, Isle of, vi. 105.

Maybole, Ayrshire, vi. 155, 169,
179, 181-185.

Montrose, Town of, vi. 78.

Mulhusium, or Mulhausen, a town in Thuringia, v. 424, 426, 432.

Munster, the capital of Westphalia, v. 433, 435, 436, 440, 452, 458-461.

N

Newcastle, iii. 32, 79, [83*],
[84*], 167, 297, 333, 350,
352, 353, 355, 356, 358, 364,
368, 369, 385; vi. 20, 31, 61.
Nithsdale, vi. 178, 182.
Norfolk, iii. 295, 296.

O

Ochiltree, vi. 181, 182.
Osnaburg, v. 447.
Oxford, iii. 255; vi. 56.

P

Paris, The College du Plessis at,
iv. 289.
Perth. See St. Johnstoun.
Pinkie, the Field of, near Musselburgh, iv. 568.
Pittenweem, Priory of, vi. 678,
679.

R

Ratisbon, vi. 153.
Renfrew, vi. 152.
Rochelle, iv. 260.
Rome, iii. 39.
Rouen, Old Palace of, iii. 3, 8, 411.

S

St. Andrews, iii. 3, 32, 426; iv.
360; vi. 25-31, 70, 78, 79,
81, 85, 102, 105, 108, 546,
623-625; Castle of, iii. 3, 9,
32, 408-411; vi. 574, 586.

St. Andrews, St. Leonard's College in, iii. 3; St. Salvator's College in, iii. 406; vi. 154, 625, 626.

St. Johnstoun (Perth), vi. 22-24,
28, 29, 32, 35, 57, 77, 78, 82,
444, 541, 626.

Smithfield, London, iii. 256.

Soest, a town of Westphalia, v.
447.

Strasburg, iv. 3, 12, 13, 15, 16,
19, 42, 54, 143, 144; v. 423.

Stirling, iii. 420, 421; vi. 22,
28, 57, 63-65, 74, 78, 79, 102,
106, 553, 555, 556, 683.

Suffolk, iii. 295, 296.

Switzerland, iii. 114, 229, 253.

U

Utrecht, v. 437.

W

Warendorf, v. 447.

Wesell, iv. 160.

Westminster, iii. 168, 415.

Widderington, iii. 351.

Windsor, Castle of, iii. 168.

Wormes, v. 458.

Y

York, iii. 415.

Z

Zurich, iv. 3, 12, 16, 42, 57; vi.
10, 544, 548.

GENERAL INDEX.

A

- ABBOT of Unreason in Scotland, i. 40.
- Abbots, their want of learning, i. 49.
- Academatical designations, Explanation of, i. 557, 558.
- Adam, his first sin and original state, iii. 444-447, 451, 471.
- Adultery, Knox's opinion that the divine law requires that it should be punished by death, ii. 340, 383, 475.
- Airthe, Friar William, his sermon at Dundee against the abuses of the Romish Church, i. 36; repeated the sermon at St. Andrews, 37; notes of it, 38, 39; notes of another of his sermons, 40, 41; fled to England, and imprisoned by Henry VIII., 41.
- Albigenses, The, i. 494.
- Alesius, Alexander, a Protestant exile from Scotland in the reign of James V., and afterwards Professor of Divinity in the University of Leipzig, i. 55; notices of, 55, 526, 527; vi. 664.
- Amazons, The, described, iv. 375.
- Anabaptists, The, iv. 270, 271; v. 13-16, 13*, 14*; why they dislike the doctrine of Predestination, 34, 83, 178, 197, 211, 226, 227, 230, 231, 254, 397, 417, 422, 423, 430, 432, 433, 436-440, 443, 447, 448, 458.
- Angus, Archibald Douglas, seventh Earl of, sent to the borders in prospect of a war with England in 1542, i. 77, 78; favoured the faction of the Earl of Lennox in opposition to the Governor, the Duke of Chatelherault, 111, 120; report of his hostile design against Cardinal Beaton, 173; repaired to the Court after the Cardinal's death, 180; at the battle of Pinkie in 1547, 211, 212; notice of, 211; made Knight of the Cockle, 217.
- Apocrypha, The, v. 102.
- Apostolic Succession, iii. 460.
- Argyle, Archibald Campbell, fourth Earl of, was of Cardinal Beaton's faction, i. 93, 108; at the battle of Pinkie, 211; made Knight of the Cockle by the King of France, 217; in Castle Campbell, where Knox taught certain days, 253; subscribed the first Band of the Scottish Reformers, 274; letter of the Archbishop of St. Andrews to, to induce him to renounce the Reformed faith, 276-280; his answer, 281-290; notice of, 290.
- Argyle, Archibald Campbell, Lord Lorne, fifth Earl of, a friend of the Reformation, i. 249, 256; one of the nobles who invited Knox, in 1557, to come to Scotland from Geneva, 267, 268; subscribed the first Band of the Scottish Reformers in 1557, 274, 294; sent from the Queen Regent at Stirling to the Protestant party in Perth, 337; persuaded by her that they meant nothing but rebellion, 341; subscribed the Band of the Lords of the Congregation at Perth in May 1559, i. 344, 345; deserted the Queen Regent on discovering her perfidy, 346; vi. 24; repaired to St. Andrews, i. 347, 350, 353; his letter to the Queen Regent, 355-359, 362; threatened with other Lords of the Congregation to besiege Perth, now held by her party, 358; laboured to save the Abbey and Palace of Scone, 360, 369, 375, 382, 413; subscribed the letter addressed to the Queen Regent by the Protestant Lords after her suspension from the Regency, 451, 453, 458; in Glasgow, ii. 5; Lord Chief-Justice of Scotland, 49, 379;

- engagement he came under by the treaty at Berwick, 49, 50; subscribed that treaty, 53, 56; joined the English army which came to assist the Lords of the Congregation, 58; subscribed at Edinburgh, April 1560, a Band for defending the liberty of the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, 63, 70; subscribed the Book of Discipline, 129, 258; appointed a member of Queen Mary's Privy-Council in 1561, 286, 299, 305; one of the commissioners for modifying the ministers' stipends, 310; misunderstanding between him and his Countess, 377, 378; vi. 525; presided at the trial of the Archbishop of St. Andrews and other mass-mongers, ii. 379; a member of the General Assembly of June 1565, 484; in Lochleven with the Earl of Murray, 490, 491, 492; resentment of the Queen at, 494; prepared with other Lords to resist her in 1565, 496, 507, 524; banqueted by her in the Castle of Edinburgh, 527, 531; entered into a Band at Stirling to defend the young Prince from his father's murderers, 556; drawn by the Hamiltons to their side, 562, 563, 566; iii. 415; vi. 35; subscribed the letters of the Lords of the Congregation to Sir William Cecil, 43, 67; to Queen Elizabeth, 44, 55; and to Sir James Croft, 63, 69, 112, 116, 154, 540.
- Aristotle, Greek text of, little understood in the schools at the time of the Reformation, i. 15.
- Arran, James, second Earl of. See Chatelherault, Duke of.
- Arran, James, third Earl of, notices of, i. 183, 383; a hostage in the Castle of St. Andrews, 183, 184; iii. 410; his escape from France, 383; vi. 53; desire of Knox for his presence in Scotland, 72; his arrival in Scotland, and his joining the Congregation, i. 413, 420, 423; iii. 420-422; vi. 79; the Lords of the Congregation deny that they had promised to invest him with authority, i. 427, 439; subscribed the letter addressed by them to the Queen Regent, after her suspension from the Regency, 451; purposed to pursue the Earl of Bothwell, 455, 456; vi. 129; one of the commanders of the Protestants when defeated by the French at Restalrig, i. 460-464; vi. 100; proclaimed traitor by the Earl of Bothwell, ii. 3; went to St. Andrews, 5; he and Lord James Stewart assembled their forces at Cupar in Fife, 6, 7; his success at Dysart against the French, 9, 38, 40, 43; continued in Fife, 38, 43; subscribed the treaty between the Lords of the Congregation and Queen Elizabeth in 1560, 53, 56; subscribed the Band for defending the liberty of the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, Edinburgh, April 1560, 63; subscribed the Book of Discipline, 129, 258; vi. 114, 116; ambassadors sent by the Council to Queen Elizabeth to propose him to her in marriage, ii. 130, 131; repulsed by Queen Elizabeth, 137; and also by Queen Mary, ib.; appointed by the Privy Council to go to the West for the destruction of monuments of idolatry, 167, 273-275; his passion for Queen Mary, 293, 298, 315; the Earl of Bothwell very desirous to regain his favour, 323; reconciliation between them, 324, 325; vi. 140, 141; his accusations against the Earl of Bothwell to Knox, ii. 326-329, 473; vi. 141; stricken with frenzy, ii. 328-330; vi. 121; hastened to Leith on hearing of the sudden arrival of the Queen, 127, 135.
- Articles of Religion, Book of, framed by Archbishop Cranmer, iii. 80, [81*].
- Assembly, General, of the Church, in December 1561, ii. 294; in June 1562, 337-345; in December 1562, 363; in December 1563, 412-418; in June 1564, 421-461; in December 1564, 471; in June 1565, 484-489; in December 1565, 515-519, vi. 423-426; in June 1566, ii. 531; in December 1566, 537-547; vi. 437-440; in June and July 1567, ii. 563-565; vi. 441-444, 552; in January 1567-8, vi. 445.
- Assemblies, Knox on the freedom of, ii. 296.
- Athole, John, fourth Earl of, a member of the Parliament of August 1560, ii. 87; vi. 110, 113; ii. 156; appointed a member of Queen Mary's Privy Council in 1561, 286, 299, 305; promoted by Secretary Maitland, 390; a chief councillor in the Court, 479, 483; hostility between him and the Earl of Argyle, 491, 494, 497; vi. 224; given to please the Queen, ii. 507, 510, 512; openly went to mass in her chapel, 514, 519; left Edinburgh after the murder of Riccio, 523; assisted at the baptism of James VI. at Stirling, 536; entered into a Band at Stirling to defend the young Prince from his father's murderers, 556, 557; one of the Lords who opposed the Queen at Carberry Hill, because she protected Bothwell, Darnley's murderer, 559, 566; vi. 35, 551, 573.

Augsburg Confession, iii. [81*].

Auricular confession, i. 157, 518.

Aylmer, John, Bishop of London, allusions to his work against Knox's First Blast, i. 26, 278; vi. 15, 532; his object in this work to remove from Queen Elizabeth jealousies of the Protestants, iv. 354; written in no unfriendly spirit towards Knox, 355; notice of, 354.

Ayr, Bishop of Glasgow preached in, in 1545, i. 127; Band entered into at, for defence of the Reformation, September 1562, ii. 347.

Ayrshire, Nobility and gentlemen in, who supported the Reformation in 1545, i. 127, 128; preaching of George Wishart in, 137; and of Knox, 250.

B]

BALFOUR, Mr. James, parson of Flisk (afterwards Sir James Balfour of Pittendreich), Clerk Register, at St. Andrews, and a professor of the Reformed religion, i. 202; his unprincipled character, ib.; carried prisoner to France, 206; in the same galley with Knox, 228; liberated, 233; his various promotions, 235, 365; ii. 157, 502; his activity in drawing men to the Queen Regent's faction, i. 399; a renegade from the Protestant religion, 400, 437; the secrets of the Protestant party who were at the siege of Leith betrayed to, 542; ii. 44; his power in Queen Mary's Court, 502, 507, 549, 557; on her commitment to Lochleven Castle, surrendered to the Lords the Castle of Edinburgh, 562; vi. 551.

Ballates, The gude and godly, i. 139, 531.
See Psalms of David.

Balnaves, Mr. Henry, of Halhill, senator of the College of Justice, i. 70; iii. 406; argued in Parliament in 1542 for liberty to read the Scriptures in the vulgar tongue, 99; sent to treat with Henry VIII. of England a marriage between young Edward and Queen Mary, 102; iii. 407, 408; promoted the election of the Earl of Arran to be Governor, i. 106, 114; iii. 407; his opposition to Cardinal Beaton, i. 114-116; imprisoned in Blackness Castle, 116; iii. 408; had no direct concern in the murder of the Cardinal, 408, 409; entered the Castle of St. Andrews after that event, i. 182; iii. 409; negotiated as commissioner of the conspirators with Henry VIII. of England, i. 182; iii. 410; urgent with Knox to become a preacher, i. 186; iii. 3, 410; made a prisoner by the French, i. 226; iii. 8, 411; notices of, i. 226; iii. 405-418; a commissioner from the Lords of the Congregation to Queen Elizabeth's councillors, vi. 62, 70-72, 77, 108; brought money from them to the Lords of the Congregation, ii. 38; iii. 410, 412, 413; one of the commissioners sent by the Lords of the Congregation to Berwick to negotiate a treaty with commissioners of Queen Elizabeth, ii. 45, 47, 52; iii. 414; restored to his seat on the bench, ii. 38; iii. 412-415; his character, 417; his testament, 427; his treatise on Justifying Faith, 431-542; letters of, to Sir James Croft, 423; to Sir Ralph Sadler and Sir James Croft, 420, 426; to the Lord Protector, Duke of Somerset, 419.

Bannatyne, Richard, discovered Balnaves's treatise on Justification by Faith, iii. 434, 435; secretary to Lady Ormiston, 435; extracts from his Memorials, vi. 575-600, 606, 622-645; servant to Knox, 588, 608; his address to the General Assembly of March, 1570-71, in reference to accusations against Knox, 588; his protestation because the Assembly declined to take up the matter, 589; his account of Knox's last illness and death, 634-645; read the Scriptures to Knox under his last illness, 639, 654, 655; ordered by Knox to get his coffin made, 641; his words to Knox, 643.

- Bands or Covenants, Religious, i. 251 ; the first Band of the Scottish Reformers, subscribed at Edinburgh, December 3, 1557, 273, 274 ; another subscribed by the Lords of the Congregation, at Perth, in May 1559, 344 ; another subscribed by them at Stirling in August 1559, 381, 382 ; another for defending the liberty of the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, subscribed at Edinburgh in April 1560, ii. 61-64 ; another made at Ayr, in September 1562, for defence of the Reformation, 347-350 ; another, to stand to the religion and liberties of the country, and to shake off the slavery of Riccio, March 1, 1565-6, 521, 523 ; another made at Stirling, in 1567, to defend the young Prince (afterwards James VI.) from his father's murderers, 556 ; Band by other Lords to defend the Queen and Bothwell, ib.
- Band to maintain Popery throughout Christendom, ii. 180.
- Baptism, i. 158 ; ceremonies used by the Church of Rome in, 197 ; ii. 187 ; women allowed in that Church to administer, ii. 116 ; administered after the Reformed manner in St. Giles's Church, Edinburgh, i. 391 ; infant, ii. 117 ; the time most proper for, ii. 239 ; manner of its administration according to the English Service Book, iv. 25 ; private, 61 ; Knox's answers to questions relating to its efficacy, as administered in the Church of Rome, iv. 115 ; children not to be offered for Papistical baptism, 119, 120 ; yet those baptized in Papistry not to be re-baptized, 120-123 ; a sacrament of Christ, 172 ; order of, 186-191 ; vi. 316-324 ; crossing in, vi. 12 ; question as to the admission of the bastard sons of idolaters to, 76 ; this question aswered by Calvin in the affirmative, 96, 97.
- Barons, The Bishops desired to put down the, i. 51.
- Bartholomew, St., Massacre of, vi. 646, 651, 652.
- Bean, The King of, custom of choosing, i. 51.
- Beaton, David, Cardinal, Archbishop of St. Andrews, a cruel persecutor, i. 61, 63 ; the cause of the war between England and Scotland in 1542, 76 ; delivered to James V. a scroll of heretics, 81, 82, 84 ; his forged last will of James V., 91-93 ; failed of his object, 94 ; imprisoned by the Earl of Arran, who was created Governor, 97-99 ; opposed the treaty between England and Scotland in 1543 relating to the marriage of Prince Edward with Queen Mary, 103, 104 ; raised a faction against the Governor and alliance with England, 108 (see Chatelherault) ; his proceedings at Perth, 117-120 ; fortified the Castle of St. Andrews, 123 ; bribed a priest to kill George Wishart, 130 ; snare laid by, for apprehending Wishart, 131, 132 ; contest between him and Dunbar, Archbishop of Glasgow, 145-147 ; vengeance threatened against him by men of birth and honour for the execution of Wishart, 172 ; boasted of his security, 173, 174 ; his castle invaded, 175, 176 ; put to death, 177, 178, 181 ; absolution sent from Rome to his murderers, 203, 430 ; the assertion that all concerned in his assassination came to a violent death, unproved, 233 ; iii. 31 ; vi. 69.
- Beaton, James, Archbishop of St. Andrews, his numerous preferments, i. 13 ; decoyed Patrick Hamilton to St. Andrews, 15 ; merry advice given to, upon the burning of Patrick Hamilton, 42, 46 ; adjudged Henry Forrest to the fire simply for reading the New Testament, 53.
- Beaton, James, Archbishop of Glasgow, obtained a gift of the Abbey of Arbroath, i. 181 ; elevated to the See of Glasgow, 252 ; notice of, 252 ; iv. 425 ; supported the Queen Regent, 373 ; ii. 131 ; was Queen Mary's ambassador in France, 181.
- Beggars' Summons, The, to the flocks of all Friars within the Realm of Scotland, i. 320.
- Bellenden, or Bannatyne, Sir John, of Auchinoul, Justice-Clerk, employed by the Queen Regent to negotiate between her and the Lords of the Congregation, i. 358, 369 ; his activity in drawing men to her faction, 319, 418 ; now with the Lords of the Congregation, 458 ; opposed to depriving Queen Mary of her mass, ii.

- 291; a member of her Privy Council, 299; one of the commissioners appointed to inquire into the rentals of the ecclesiastical benefices, 304, 305; and to modify the ministers' stipends, 310, 344, 403; among the flatterers in Queen Mary's Court, 414, 423, 454, 492.
- Berwick, Knox's Godly Letter to the Faithful in, in 1554, iii. 157-216; his Epistle to the Inhabitants of, in 1558, v. 469-494.
- Beza, Theodore, reference to his letter to Bishop Grindal finding fault with the habits, etc., in the English Church, ii. 547; iii. 253; the history which bears his name, mostly the composition of another French minister, iv. 291; reason why his gift of a copy of his annotations on the New Testament to Queen Elizabeth was not acknowledged by her, 358; reference to some of his works, v. 12, 38, 184, 229; vi. 119; letters of, to Henry Bullinger, 550; and to Knox, 562-565, 613-615; letter to, from the General Assembly in 1566, approving of the Helvetic Confession of Faith, with one exception, 544-550.
- Bible, Complaint of Chrysostom that the people did not use it in their own tongue, i. 99.
- Bible, Geneva, iv. 55, 68, 545, 550; vi. 233.
- Bill, Heretics burning their bill in token of their recantation, i. 12, 44, 45; form of, 58, 60, 61.
- Bishops, Office of, Knox's sentiments as to, vi. 625.
- Bishops, or Prelates, Popish, i. 12; their pride and licentious lives, 36, 40, 41, 124, 125, 164, 191, 305, 306, 331, 336, 362, 428, 432, 553; ii. 90, 91, 255, 367; vi. 138; their power in Scotland, i. 49; their avarice and ambition, 51; desired to put down the barons, ib.; a play exposing their persecuting character acted in the presence of James V., at Stirling, 62; list of heretics delated by, to that monarch, 77, 81, 82, 84; their endeavours to incite him against the nobility, 82-84; their opposition to the Reformed faith, and their persecuting character, 98, 202, 203, 237-239, 256, 257, 262, 263, 266, 267, 291, 292, 302, 330, 335; iv. 451, 454, 494, 533, 537, 560; vi. 66; their claim of exemption from civil jurisdiction, iv. 324, 325, 508-515, 535; policy of taking away their pomp and wealth at the Reformation, vi. 53. See Priests, Popish.
- Bishops, True, i. 194; office and duties of, iii. 26, 532-539.
- Blackader, Robert, Archbishop of Glasgow, summoned thirty Lollards before James IV. and his Council, i. 7, 11; notice of, 7; his death when on a pilgrimage to the Holy Land, 12; vi. 663, 664.
- Blasphemy, opinion of Knox that the divine law requires that it should be punished by death, ii. 340; iv. 501; v. 14, 89, 167, 178, 189, 222, 224-229, 231, 353, 365, 421.
- Bonner, Edmund, Bishop of London, maintainer of idolatry, iii. 180; obnoxious terms applied to, by Knox, 256; "Bloody Bonner," 285; "Butcherly Bonner," 293, 298; v. 15; illustrations of his cruelty, 498, 499.
- Book of Common Prayer, First, or Liturgy of Edward VI., taught Transubstantiation, iii. 80.
- Book of Common Prayer, the Second or Revised, of Edward VI., i. 275; through the influence of Knox, kneeling at the communion explained in it not to mean adoration of the bread and wine, iii. 80; vi. 12; controversy at Frankfurt occasioned by, and objections to some parts of, iv. 3, 4, 14, 15, 17, 21, 22, 29, 32, 35-37, 42-44, 51-53, 56, 144, 564, 565; vi. 4, 12, 13, 83; Calvin's letter to Knox concerning, iv. 28-30; restored under Queen Elizabeth, vi. 34.
- Book of Common Order used in the English Congregation at Geneva, i. 275; ii. 210; iv. 20, 21, 30-32, 38, 41, 141-214, 544; vi. 277-333.
- Book of Common Order (or Knox's Liturgy) used in the Church of Scotland, ii. 196, 210; vi. 275-333; principal editions of, 281; Psalms of David, Calvin's Catechism and Forms of Prayer subjoined to, 291, 292, 341, 343-360; only enjoined as a directory, 281; changes made on, from time to time, 361-380.
- Borders, The, disturbed state of, ii. 292, 336.

- Borthwick, Captain John (Sir John), condemned to death for heresy in his absence by Cardinal Beaton, and burnt in effigy, i. 61, 520; notice of, 533, 534; iii. 420.
- Bothwell, Patrick, third Earl of, threatened the Earl of Arran, Governor of Scotland, with deposition for befriending the Reformers, i. 108; forbade the people of the town and neighbourhood of Haddington to hear Mr. George Wishart, 137; apprehended Wishart in the house of Ormiston, 138, 140; his promise to preserve Wishart from violence, 141; his violation of that promise, 143; his death, vi. 670.
- Bothwell, James, fourth Earl of, and Duke of Orkney, robbed John Cockburn of Ormiston of the money he had received from Queen Elizabeth's commissioners for the Lords of the Congregation, and wounded him severely, i. 454, 455; ii. 38; iii. 423; his perfidy, i. 456; refused to make restitution, 456, 557; his house spoiled, 459; proclaimed the Earl of Arran traitor, ii. 3, 156; appointed a member of Queen Mary's Privy Council, 286; commanded not to come to the Court, because of the difference between him and the Earl of Arran, vi. 129; riot created by him in Edinburgh, ii. 315, 320-322; his desire to be reconciled to the Earl of Arran, 322-324; reconciliation between them, 325; accusation brought against, by the Earl of Arran, 326, 327; vi. 140, 141; apprehended by orders of the Queen, 328; brought before the Council and imprisoned, 329; escaped from the Castle of Edinburgh, 346, 347, 351; prepared to go to France, 361, 390; arrived at Edinburgh from France, 472; summoned to answer for the conspiracy charged against him by the Earl of Arran, and for breaking his ward, 473; did not appear, 478; went to France, 479; arrived in Scotland and graciously received by the Queen, 509; supported her against the Lords, who proposed to resist her by force in 1565, 512, 514; married to the Earl of Huntly's sister, 520, 521; assisted by his counsel the Queen in avenging the murder of Riccio, 524, 525; his familiarity with the Queen, 527, 528, 534, 539, 548; the murderer of Darnley, 549-551; mock trial of, for the murder of Darnley, 552; iii. 415; his divorce from his wife, ii. 553; reasons assigned by Mr. John Craig for refusing to publish the bands of marriage between Queen Mary and, 554, 555; married to the Queen, 555; his Band in opposition to that entered into by certain of the Lords to defend the young prince, 556, 557; proclamation against, by the Lords at Edinburgh, 557-559; offered to defend his innocence by single combat, 560; but shrunk when his challenge was accepted, 561; his flight from Carberry Hill, 561, 562; declared by open proclamation to be the murderer of Darnley, 562; vi. 60, 540, 541, 553, 554, 609, 611.
- Bowes, Elizabeth (Elizabeth Aske), Knox's mother-in-law, i. 253; iv. 239; notices of, i. 253; iii. 334; Knox's exposition of the Sixth Psalm addressed to, 111, 114, 119; allusion to his religious converse with, 122; religious consolation administered to, 123-125, 132-134, 137, 138, 146, 153; her Christian fortitude, 142, 392, 393; Knox's letters to her and her daughter Marjory, 331-402; iv. 217, 218; vi. 515-520; tempted to return to idolatry, iii. 344; exhortations to her to constancy, 345-347, 366; favourable to the marriage of her daughter Marjory to Knox, 376, 378; vi. 27, 59; application made by Knox to Sir James Croft to obtain a license for her to visit him in Scotland, 80, 88, 107; endeavours of Randolph with Cecil to obtain a license for her, 141, 142; her death, 513; Knox's commendation of, 513, 514.
- Bowes, Marjory, Knox's first wife, reference to her death, ii. 138; notice of, 334; the precise date of her marriage with Knox uncertain, iv. 71. See Bowes, Elizabeth.
- Boyd, Robert, fourth Lord, came to the relief of the Protestants at Perth in 1559, i. 340; subscribed the Band entered into by the Lords of the Congregation at Perth, 344, 345; one of the commissioners appointed by the Lords of the Congregation to negotiate with commissioners from the Queen Regent at Preston, 369, 382; subscribed a letter to her, complaining of the violation of treaty by her fortifying Leith, 414, 434; iii. 413, 425; vi. 35; at Glasgow, ii. 38; subscribed the treaty between the Lords of the Congregation and Queen Elizabeth, 53, 56; joined the English army which came to assist the Lords of the Congregation, 58; subscribed the Band of the Lords of the Congregation at Edinburgh, April 1560, to defend the liberty of the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, 61-63; subscribed the Book of Discipline, 129, 258; notice of, 259, 299; subscribed the Band made at Ayr in September 1562, for defence of the Reformation, 348; one of the Lords who prepared to resist Queen Mary in 1565, 496, 499, 503; endeavoured to mitigate her resentment on the death of Riccio, 523; a member of the assize at the mock trial of Bothwell for the murder of Darnley, 552; entered into a Band with other Lords at Stirling to defend the young Prince from his father's murderers, 556, 563; subscribed the letter of the Lords of the Congregation to Sir William Cecil, vi. 43; and their letter to Queen Elizabeth, 44, 55; visited Knox on his death-bed, 640, 657.

Buchanan, David, editor of Knox's history, Interpolations and various readings in the editions of Knox's History by, i. 477-494; ii. 569-583; his account of Knox's history, 466-468; notice of, 584-586.

Buchanan, George, Encomium on, and notice of, i. 71, 72; informed Knox of the circumstances relating to the death of Francis II. of France in 1560, ii. 134, 550; attended the Regent Murray in England when proceedings were instituted at York in reference to Queen Mary, iii. 415; his Detection of Queen Mary's doings touching the murder of her husband, vi. 476, 533, 609, 611; his Admonition direct to the true Lords, etc., 560, 565; epitaph written by, inscribed on the tomb of the Regent Murray, 571, 672. See Cockburn, Alexander.

Bullinger, Henry, one of the ministers of Zurich, his answers to certain questions concerning obedience to lawful magistrates, iii. 217-226; iv. 351; the matters in dispute at Frankfurt to be referred to,

iv. 31, 35, 41, 358; his work against the Anabaptists, v. 14; letter from Bishop Grindal to, vi. 542; and from Beza to, 550.

Bulls of the Pope, i. 9, 274.

Burial Services, Doctrine of the Book of Discipline as to, ii. 249-251; manner of, according to the English Service Book, iv. 27; and according to the Books of Common Order, 203; vi. 333.

C

CAITHNESS, George, third Earl of, i. 299; warded in the Castle of Edinburgh, by Queen Mary, 420; left Edinburgh after the slaughter of Riccio, 523; a member of the assize on the mock trial of Bothwell for the murder of Darnley, 552, 563; opposed the ratification of the Confession of Faith in the Parliament of August 1560, vi. 117.

Calvin, John, i. 232; advised Knox to return to Scotland in 1557, 268; iv. 258; and in 1558, i. 274, 315; his sentiments on the submission of Christians to persecuting princes, ii. 442, 459, 460; a Latin summary of the English Prayer Book submitted to, by the English Congregation at Frankfurt, iv. 4, 21, 27; his judgment in reply, 28-30, 36, 51, 52; the matters in dispute to be referred to, 31, 35, 41; the English Genevese Book of Common Order approved by, 153, 155, 161, 245; dedicated his Commentaries on Isaiah to Queen Elizabeth, 356; his sentiments with respect to Knox's First Blast, 357, 358; and on Election and Predestination, v. 11, 12, 24, 31, 32, 37-39, 124, 126, 168-178, 180-182, 216, 217, 310, 326; Servetus and, 229; his manuscripts, vi. 9, 10; the Book of Discipline to be translated into Latin to be sent to, vi. 119, 639.

Calvin, John, his Catechism, ii. 210, 239; iv. 143, 144; approved and received by the Church of Scotland, in 1564, iv. 148, 167, 168, 206; vi. 277, 341.

Calvin, John, Letters from, to Richard Coxe and other Englishmen at Frankfurt, iv. 58-60; to Christopher Goodman, vi. 125; to Knox, 94-98, 75-77; to Knox and Whittingham, iv. 28-30.

- Calvin, John, Letters to, from Richard Coxe and others, iv. 55; from the minister and other members of the English congregation at Frankfurt, 62-66; from Knox, vi. 75-77, 133-135; from Thomas Sampson, iv. 53; from William Whittingham, 54.
- Cambridge, University of, vi. 671.
- Campbell, Sir Hugh, of Loudoun, and Sheriff of Ayr, joined the faction of the Earl of Lennox in opposition to the Earl of Arran, the Governor, i. 111; caused man the kirk of Mauchline against Mr. George Wishart, 128; sent with the Earl of Glencairn, as commissioners from the Protestants to the Queen Regent, in 1559, 316; notice of, iii. 137.
- Campbell, Robert, of Kinyeancleuch, notice of, i. 128; brought Knox to Kyle in 1556, 250; a zealous friend of the Reformation, 253; subscribed the Band at Edinburgh, April 1560, to defend the liberty of the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, ii. 63, 275; subscribed the Band made at Ayr, in September 1562, for defence of the Reformation, 349; testimonial to, by Knox and the Superintendents, when he was forced to leave Scotland in 1565, vi. 429; visited Knox during his last illness, 642, 658, 659.
- Cassilis, Gilbert, third Earl of, compelled by the bishops and clergy at St. Andrews, when only twelve years of age, to subscribe the condemnation of Mr. Patrick Hamilton, i. 16; notices of, 16, 263; in the Scottish army at the defeat at Solway Moss, 86; joined the faction of the Earl of Lennox against the Earl of Arran, Governor, 111; the friend and disciple of Mr. George Wishart, 134; his death at Dieppe in 1558, 263.
- Cassilis, Gilbert, fourth Earl of, opposed to the ratification of the Confession of Faith at the Parliament of August 1560, vi. 17, 128; his letter to Knox in opposition to the proposed disputation between him and the Abbot of Crossraguell, 181; Knox's answer, 181-184; ii. 478; went to mass openly in Queen Mary's chapel, ii. 514; became a Protestant on his marriage with Lord Glamis's sister, 533; an unwilling member of the assize at the mock trial of the Earl of Bothwell for the murder of Darnley, 552; assisted in carrying the corpse of the Regent Murray at his funeral, vi. 571.
- Castalio or Castellio, Sebastian, a French minister, an opponent of Calvin's views on Election and Predestination, v. 11; notice of, 12; answered by Knox in his treatise on Predestination, 16, 14*; misrepresented Calvin's sentiments, 24, 37, 38; his blasphemy, 83, 310; Beza's propositions against, 184-189; opposed to the putting of Servetus to death, 222.
- Catechism, printed in 1552 by John Hamilton, Archbishop of St. Andrews, i. 124, 291; vi. 676; on the afternoon of Sunday the children to be publicly examined on their Catechism, ii. 238, 239. See Calvin, Catechism of.
- Cathari, The, (or Puritans), of the third century, v. 417.
- Cecill, Sir William, Secretary, notice of, ii. 17, 32; came to Scotland after the death of the Queen Regent, 72, 315.
- Cecill, Sir William, Secretary, letters from, to Sir James Croft, vi. 29; to Knox, ii. 34; vi. 55; to the Lords of the Congregation, 51-55; to Sir Henry Percy, 37, 38.
- Cecill, Sir William, Secretary, letters to, from Sir James Croft, vi. 61, 71-73, 77, 88; from Henry Killigrew, 633; from Knox (see Knox, John, Letters of); from the Lords of the Congregation, ii. 23-26; vi. 40-43, 65-67; from William Maitland of Lethington, 114-116, 136; from Sir Henry Percy, 60; from Thomas Randolph, 109-114, 116-122, 137-148, 525-527; from Sir Ralph Sadler, 71-73.
- Celibacy, Clerical, i. 9, 552.
- Ceremonies in Divine worship, Disputation between Knox and John Wynrame as to, i. 195; and between Knox and the Gray Friar Arbuckle as to, 197-199; Popish argument for, iii. 180; disputes of the English exiles at Frankfurt concerning, iv. 18, 19; Calvin's sentiments as to, 59; vi. 124; and Bishop Ridley's, 62; arguments against, 163, 164; v. 515.
- Châtelet, The Court of the, in Paris, iv. 290.
- Chatelett (Chastelard), Monsieur, his visits to Scotland, ii. 367; Queen Mary's great

- familiarity with, 368; found under her bed, ib.; command given by her to the Earl of Murray to slay him, ib.; beheaded, 369.
- Chatelherault, James, second Earl of Arran, and first Duke of, i. 84; next heir to the throne of Scotland, failing Queen Mary, 93; appointed Governor and Regent of Scotland during her minority, 93-95; iii. 407; favourable to the Reformation, i. 95-101; ratified a contract of marriage between Queen Mary and Prince Edward of England, 103; alarmed at the opposition of Cardinal Beaton and the power of France, 105-108; abjured the Reformed faith and violated the league with England, 109, 110, 183, 209; iv. 559; became wholly devoted to Cardinal Beaton, i. 111; iii. 408; renewed the persecution against the Reformers, i. 116-119, 134, 135, 140; his cowardice, 119, 120, 453, 457, 458, 465; delivered George Wishart to the Cardinal, 144, 154, 180, 183, 184, 202; treasonably brought French galleys to besiege the Castle of St. Andrews, 203, 204, 206; surrender of the Castle of St. Andrews to, in 1547; i. 209, 214; iii. 410, 411; created Duke of Chatelherault by the King of France, i. 217, 222, 233; still a persecutor, 240, 325; iv. 285, 286; reference to his deposition from the Government, i. 242, 294; with the Queen Regent at Stirling, 341; vi. 28, 29; entered Perth with her after its surrender by the Lords of the Congregation, i. 345, 352, 356; persuaded by her and her Council that Lord James Stewart had conspired to dethrone her daughter, and to deprive him of his right of succession, 368, 379, 383, 384, 389, 420; the Queen Regent's flattering letter to, in August 1559, 394; his folly in supporting her; vi. 52-55, 66, 72; subscribed the letter of the Lords of the Congregation to her in September 1559, complaining of her violation of the late treaty by her fortifying Leith, i. 414, 415; iii. 420; vi. 79; endeavours made to bring him again to her faction, i. 414; letter from him and the Lords of the Congregation to Lord Erskine, Captain of the Castle of Edinburgh, 415-417; the Queen Regent's proclamation against, 421-424, 429; his purgation from the charge that he had usurped the authority, 438-441; iii. 422; character of, by Knox, i. 472; iii. 425; passed to Glasgow, ii. 5, 38-43; vi. 108; commissioners from him and the Lords of the Congregation appointed to negotiate at Berwick a treaty with commissioners from Queen Elizabeth, ii. 45, 47, 52-54; joined the English army which came to assist the Lords of the Congregation, 58, 81; subscribed the First Book of Discipline, 129, 138, 258; too familiar with the Archbishop of St. Andrews, 156, 351; vi. 138; a member of Queen Mary's Privy Council, 286, 297, 299, 320, 326, 328; delivered the Castle of Dumbarton to Captain Anstruther for behalf of the Queen, 330, 347, 360, 403, 417, 423; agreed to the marriage of Queen Mary with Lord Darnley, 481; met with other Lords at Stirling for the security of the Reformed religion, 492, 494; prepared with other Lords to resist the King and Queen in 1565, 496, 499; inflamed against Knox, 560, 599.
- Children, Duties of, to their parents, iii. 540.
- Chisholm, William, Bishop of Dumblane, his persecuting cruelty, i. 63; present at the Parliament of August 1560, ii. 88; vi. 112, 115, 117, 118, 120; notice of, ii. 88; sent ambassador to France by Queen Mary after her marriage with Bothwell, 556; vi. 611, 666.
- Christ, his temptation in the wilderness explained, iv. 85; why the Jews crucified Him, v. 22; doctrine of the Scottish Confession of Faith as to His death, ii. 101; the King and Head of His Kirk, iii. 41; His sacrifice never to be repeated, 55, 56, 61; the only Mediator, 95-97, 127; difference between the liberty of His will and that of Adam's, v. 140.
- Christians, Early, Tertullian's defence of, iv. 307, 308, 310, 318, 328-333; were persecuted by the mob, 319, 320; noted for their loyalty to the Roman Emperors, 321, 322.
- Church, the True, how to be defined, i. 188, 190; has not the power to add to what is commanded in the worship of God, iii. 40-42; persecuted state of, between the death of Christ and the destruction of

- Jerusalem, 231, 232, 239, 240; the greater its affliction the nearer its deliverance, 291-293; its persecutors punished, 293, 299, 459, 460; oneness of, 523; marks by which it may be discerned, ii. 108-111; iv. 172; not independent in civil matters of the civil jurisdiction, 173; corruptions in, in the apostolic age, 266; not to be separated from because imperfect, 263-267; its prayers and groans to be dreaded by princes, 326.
- Church of England. See England, The Reformation in.
- Church of Scotland. See Scotland.
- Churches planted by the Apostles, their present condition and the cause, iii. 206, 207.
- Churches, The reparation of, ii. 251, 252.
- Clergy, The. See Bishops, Popish.
- Clerk plays, or mysteries, represented in churches, i. 138.
- Cockburn, Alexander, Knox's pupil, inscription on his tombstone, composed by Mr. George Buchanan, i. 185, 186; vi. 672.
- Cockburn, John, of Ormiston, a disciple and friend of George Wishart, i. 134, 135; apprehension of Wishart in the house of, at Ormiston, 138; imprisoned in Edinburgh Castle but made his escape, 142, 143; banished and forfeited, 215; iii. 412-414; came to the Lords of the Congregation at Cupar Moor, i. 350; encouraged them by his counsel and assistance, 375; vi. 90, 93; robbed of money he had received from England for the Lords of the Congregation, by Bothwell, and wounded by him, i. 454; ii. 38, 323, 527; iii. 423, 424, 426, 435; Balnaves' treatise on Justification by Faith, dedicated to his wife (Alison Sandilands), 433-436.
- Cockle, The Order of, i. 217.
- Coin, Base, struck by the Queen Regent for maintaining her French soldiers, i. 365, 371-373, 377, 403, 404, 407, 445, 446.
- Coins, French, vi. 103.
- College of Justice, Institution of, i. 42, 557.
- Colville, Robert, of Cleish, notice of, 348; his death and character, ii. 69; his son of the same name carried Regent Murray's coat of arms at his funeral, vi. 571.
- Colville, William, Abbot of Culross, signed the treaty between the Lords of the Congregation and Queen Elizabeth in 1560, ii. 53; a member of the Parliament of August 1560, 88; subscribed the Act of the Privy Council approving of the Book of Discipline, 258; notice of, 598.
- Comet, which appeared in September 1558, i. 254.
- Confession of Faith of the French Church, iv. 10.
- Confession of Faith, Helvetican, i. 159; approved of by the Church of Scotland, with the exception of that part relating to holidays, vi. 544-550.
- Confession of Faith of the Church of Scotland, presented to the Parliament in 1560, ii. 93-120; vi. 115; ratified by the Parliament, 120-122; vi. 117; never ratified by Queen Mary, ii. 587; again ratified by the first Parliament of James VI. in December 1567, ib.
- Confession of sins, vi. 296.
- Conference, Brotherly, knowledge of the doctrines of the Reformation promoted by, i. 61.
- Confirmation of children, iv. 26.
- Congregation, The, The Scottish Protestants take to themselves the name of, i. 327, 329, 335, 337, 340-344, 363.
- Congregation, Lords of the, prepare to resist by force the Queen Regent, vi. 24, 25; assembled with their forces at Cupar Moor, in Fife, i. 350, 351; truce agreed to, 352-355; their letter to her exculpatory of their seeking to usurp the sovereign authority, 365, 366; send commissioners to her to explain their intentions, 366-369; their last offers to her, 370; her forces march from Dunbar to Edinburgh against, 373, 374; strongly supported, 375-381; articles which they desired to be granted, 376; articles of pacification between her and them, 377-379; proclamation made by, concerning the liberty of religion, 380, 381; their Band for mutual defence at Stirling, 381, 382; resolved to ask assistance from England against the tyranny of the Queen Regent, 382; her violation of the treaty with, 391, 392; her letter to the Duke of Chatelherault accusing them of intending to violate the treaty, 394; her letter to the Barons to the same effect,

- 395; her proclamation denying that she had violated the treaty, 397-399; their proclamation in answer, 400-408; convention held by them at Stirling, 413; their letter to the Queen Regent complaining of the violation of the treaty in her fortifying Leith by the French soldiers, 413; iii. 421, 422; and to Lord Erskine, Captain of the Castle, i. 415; her proclamation giving a false account of the proceedings of, 421-424; their declaration in self-defence, 424-433; their second admonition to her, requiring her to desist from fortifying Leith, 437, 438; suspended her from the Regency, 441, 444-449; iii. 422; vi. 86; summoned the town of Leith to surrender, i. 451-453; obtained pecuniary assistance from England, 454, 455; defeated by the French soldiers, 457, 458; defeated at Restalrig, 461-463; discouraged, 464, 465; encouraged by Knox's sermon at Stirling, 465-473; concluded to despatch an ambassador to Queen Elizabeth and her Council, 473; their success against the French soldiers, ii. 9, 11; names of the principal, vi. 35: their letters to Sir William Cecil, ii. 23-26; vi. 40, 65; their letter to Queen Elizabeth, 43; letter of Sir William Cecil to, 51; their letter to Sir James Croft, 62; their need of pecuniary assistance, 80; received money from England, ii. 38; treaty between them and England for the expulsion of the French from Scotland, 45-56; an army from England entered Scotland to assist, 57-61; Bands of, 61-64 (see Bands); prepared to resist Queen Mary, 496-504; vindication of, 507, 508; driven into England, 513, 514; articles drawn up against, 520; return to Edinburgh, 523.
- Conjurings, i. 160.
- Conscience, Doctrine of the freedom of, asserted by Queen Mary, ii. 488; the name of, how abused by the Anabaptists, v. 230.
- Convent of Black Nuns at Lincluden, ii. 386.
- Cooke, Robert, the supposed "Adversary" whom Knox refutes in his treatise on Predestination, v. 16-18.
- Councils, General, i. 165; have never universally agreed on all points, 283; power and authority of, ii. 112.
- Councils, Provincial, in Scotland before the Reformation, ii. 561.
- Craig, John, minister of Edinburgh, inveighed against the courtiers, ii. 418, 424; his sentiments respecting the obedience of subjects to their rulers, 456-459, 498, 530; refused to publish the banns of matrimony between Queen Mary and Bothwell, 554, 555, 563; vi. 553, 285, 340; appointed with Knox to draw up the form of a public fast, 389, 390, 440, 443, 470, 534, 537; refused to read from the pulpit Kirkcaldy of Grange's letter of complaint against Knox, 576, 577, 579; note of one of his sermons, 599, 600; left Edinburgh, 622, 653.
- Cranmer, Thomas, Archbishop of Canterbury, Knox appointed by the Privy Council of England preacher at Berwick, by the suggestion of, iii. 32; his book of Articles of Religion, 80; committed to the Tower of London, 255, 256; warrant for the execution of Sir Thomas Seymour, Lord Admiral, signed by, 277; his works on the Sacrament, 279, 283, 299; iv. 419, 543; how the cruel murder of, was justified by an Anabaptist writer, v. 222.
- Creed, Exposition of the, vi. 317-323.
- Croft, Sir James, English ambassador, commission granted to him and others by Queen Elizabeth, with the view of aiding the Lords of the Congregation, i. 454; iii. 412-414; waited on at Berwick by Knox and Mr. Robert Hamilton as commissioners from the Lords of the Congregation, and his advice to them, ii. 32, 33; vi. 66; accompanied the English army which entered Scotland April 1560, to assist the Lords of the Congregation, ii. 57; blamed for the repulse with great slaughter of the English and Scottish Protestant army in their assault upon Leith, 66.
- Croft, Sir James, English ambassador, Letters from, to Sir William Cecil, vi. 61, 71-73, 75, 77, 88; to the Council and Councillors of Queen Elizabeth, 28, 29; to Knox, 70, 91, 92.
- Croft, Sir James, English ambassador, Letters to, from Henry Balnaves, iii. 420, 423, 426; from Knox, vi. 58, 63, 79, 89, 101, 105, 106; from the Lords of the Congregation, 62; from Thomas Randolph, iii. 422.

Crossings, Superstitious, Origin of, iv. 59.
 Crossraguell, The Abbey of, destroyed, ii. 168; account of, 168; vi. 156; disputation of Knox with the Abbot of, in 1563. See Kennedy, Quintine.
 Cunningham, Sir William of Cunninghamhead, sent commissioner from the Lords of the Congregation to the Queen Regent to vindicate them, i. 366; subscribed at Edinburgh, in April 1560, the Band to defend the liberty of the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, ii. 64; subscribed the Act of Privy Council approving of the Book of Discipline, 258; subscribed at Ayr in September 1562, the Band for the defence of the Reformation, 349, 486; joined the Lords who opposed the Queen by force in 1565, 499; charged to appear before the King and Queen at St. Andrews, and, not appearing, put to the horn, 503.
 Cursing, in Church of Rome, Abuse of the process of, by the priests, i. 37-39, 59, 155, 259, 308; form of, iii. 58.

D

DANCING, Knox's sentiments on, ii. 294, 333, 368; vi. 147, 148.
 Darnley, Henry, Lord, reference to David Riccio and, i. 99; his parentage, 124; talk of his being about to be married to Queen Mary, ii. 361; his arrival in Edinburgh, 472; Convention called by Queen Mary to meet at Stirling about granting the Crown matrimonial to, 479, 480; affected offence of Elizabeth, Queen of England, at the marriage of Queen Mary with, 481; the marriage agreed to conditionally by the Protestant Lords, ib.; created Earl of Rosse, and afterwards Duke of Rothesay, 482, 494; his familiarity with Queen Mary, 483; the bans of his marriage with her proclaimed, 494; her proclamation that he as her husband should be obeyed as King, 495; the marriage, 495, 496; offended at a sermon preached by Knox, vi. 223-225, 230; Lords who prepared to resist him and the Queen by force, ii. 496, 499-508; passed his time in hunting and hawking, 497, 514; Order of the Cockle conferred on, by the King of France, 519; loses the affection of the Queen, 520; not like to get the Crown matrimonial, ib.; subscribed the Band to stand to the religion and liberty of the country, and to shake off the tyranny of Riccio, 521, 522; wrote to the Protestant Lords to return to Scotland, 523-525; his inconstancy and weakness, 526; contemned of all men because the Queen cared not for him, 527, 533; her increasing estrangement from, 534, 535; attempt made to poison him at Stirling, 537; visited by the Queen at Glasgow, and her great affected kindness to, 549; accompanied her to Edinburgh, and murdered, 549, 550; his character and his murderers, 551; mock trial of the Earl of Bothwell for the murder of, 552, 564; iii. 415; the Queen suspected, vi. 552, 554, 555, 628, 629. See Mary, Queen of Scots.

Deacons, Election of, in the Privy Kirk of Edinburgh, ii. 151; Book of Discipline touching, 233-237; and English Genevese Book of Common Order, iv. 11, 56, 176.

Dead, Prayer for the, i. 16, 194, 239, 241, 306; praying to the, i. 194, 239, 241, 306.

Dearth in Scotland, Universal, ii. 369, 370.

Discipline, the Book of, reasons why some of the nobility refused to subscribe it, ii. 128, 587; noblemen, barons, and others by whom it was subscribed, 129, 138, 162, 181; copy of, 183-260; Act of Secret Council approving of, 257-260, 296-298; vi. 119; omissions and alterations made on the copy, inserted by Spottiswood in his History, ii. 587-589.

Discipline, the Second Book of, ii. 181.

Discipline, Ecclesiastical, Exercise of, Book of Discipline on, ii. 227-237; vi. 333; order of, according to the English Genevese Book of Common Order, iv. 203, 206; refused in England, 395; all in the estate to be subjected to, v. 516, 519, 520; to be united with doctrine, vi. 565.

Discipline, a mark of the true Church, iv. 172.

Division between the Lords of the Congregation and the ministers soon after the establishment of the Reformation in Scotland, ii. 295, 296.

- Doctors, kind of ministers so called, iv. 177; vi. 385.
- Domestic piety, enjoined by Knox, iv. 137.
- Dominicans. See Friars, Black.
- Douchtie, Thomas, hermit of Alareit or Loretto, founder of the chapel so called, i. 75.
- Douglas, Sir George, of Pittendreich, brother of the Earl of Angus, sent to the borders in the prospect of war between Scotland and England in 1542, i. 77; his narrow escape at the Raid of Halden Rig, in Roxburghshire, 78; one of the commissioners sent by the Parliament of Scotland to Henry VIII. in 1543, in reference to the marriage of Prince Edward and Mary Queen of Scots, 102, 111; publicly declared his adherence to George Wishart's doctrine, and his resolution to protect him, 135; notice of, ib.; repaired to the Court after the death of Cardinal Beaton, 180; accompanied the Queen Dowager to France in 1550, 241; his death, 670.
- Douglas, Hugh, of Longniddry, the friend and protector of George Wishart, i. 134; the friend of Knox, who was tutor to his sons, 139, 185; notice of, 185.
- Douglas, Sir James, of Drumlanrig, favoured the faction of the Earl of Lennox in opposition to Cardinal Beaton, i. 111; subscribed the Band to defend the liberty of the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, at Edinburgh, April 1560, ii. 64; vi. 35; subscribed the Book of Discipline, ii. 129, 258, 299, 386; joined the army of the Lords who opposed by arms the King and Queen in 1565, 502; went over to the King and Queen, 512; letter of Knox to, in 1572, vi. 615; visited Knox on his deathbed, 640.
- Douglas, John, Rector of the University of St. Andrews, notices of, i. 286; ii. 455; one of the commissioners appointed to draw up the Book of Discipline, in 1560, 128, 424; his sentiments at the General Assembly of June 1564 as to resisting the Queen should she oppose the Reformed religion, 455, 456, 563; described by Quintine Kennedy as a pestilent preacher, &c., vi. 165-167; Knox refused to inaugurate him Bishop of St. Andrews, 625, 629, 630.
- D'Oysel. See Oysel.
- Dunbar, Gawin, Lord Chancellor and Archbishop of Glasgow, a persecutor, i. 63; trial of Jerome Russell and one Kennedy for heresy before, 64, 65; adjudged them to the flames, 66; a "glorious fool," 145; notice of, ib.; sat next to Cardinal Beaton at the trial of George Wishart, and beheld his execution, 148.
- Dundee, Influence of merchants and mariners of, in promoting the Reformation in Scotland, i. 61; words of George Wishart in, 126; the plague in, 129; vi. 670; Wishart's sermon to the sick and whole at the East Port of, i. 129, 130; Reformed church erected in, 300; vi. 22.
- Duty, The revealed will of God, not His secret will, the rule of, v. 180-182.
- Dury, George, Abbot of Dunfermline, his attempt to betray those in the Castle of St. Andrews, i. 183; notice of, ib.; at the battle of Pinkie in 1547, 211; ceased not till he had brought Sir John Melville of Raith to the scaffold because he favoured the Reformation, 224; instigated the French Court to send a new army to Scotland after the Parliament of August 1560, 131.

E

EDINBURGH, Town of, for the most part drowned in superstition in 1543, i. 97; burnt by the English in 1544, 121, 122; Monastery of Blackfriars in, 238; monuments of idolatry in, destroyed by the people, 363; Knox elected minister of, 388; Tolbooth, or Council House in, and Old Tolbooth or jail, 389; old hatred between Leith and, 426; Provost and Bailies of, imprisoned in the Castle by Queen Mary, 289, 290; Lord's Supper administered in, ii. 476; charter to, of the superiority of Leith, ii. 510.

Edward VI. of England, contract of marriage between him and Queen Mary ratified, i. 101-103, 217; iii. 407, 410; iv. 559; efforts of Cardinal Beaton and of the Queen-mother to defeat it, i. 103,

- 105-109 (see Chatelherault); his death and character, 231, 242, 243; iii. [87*], 175, 266; iv. 157; his chaplains, iii. 79, [81*]; his Liturgy, or Book of Common Prayer, 80 (see Book of Common Prayer); Knox's prayer on the occasion of the death of, [88*], 106; high promotions offered to Knox by, 122; regret over his death, 168, 195, 221, 222, 307, 308; iv. 9; state of religion in the reign of, iii. 266-268, 272, 278; iv. 564-566; vi. 4; enemies of the truth gained the chief sway in his councils, iii. 280-283, 296; his death thirsted for by the Papists, 297, 407, 410.
- Elder, John, burghess of Perth, a Protestant exile from Scotland during the reign of James V., i. 118; notices of, 118, 526, 527.
- Elders, First appointment of, in the Reformed Church of Scotland, i. 300; order of the election of, in the Privy Kirk of Edinburgh, ii. 151-154; Book of Discipline touching the election of, 232-237; the English Genevese Book of Common Order on same subject, iv. 176; in the Church in the time of Tertullian, 319.
- Election, Doctrine of the Scottish Confession of Faith as to, ii. 100; v. 26-29; the doctrine of, proved, 43-54, 74, 95-102, 147, 148, 156, 157, 106-110, 117, 118; immutability of, 119, 124, 125, 131, 203, 205, 235-239, 247 250, 254, 255, 260, 268, 269, 270, 271, 278-282, 300, 394, 407, 408.
- Elizabeth, Queen of England, the Lords of the Congregation concluded to send an ambassador to her to explain their condition, i. 473; how she was favourable to them, ii. 15; her dislike to Knox because of his "First Blast" against the monstrous regiment of women, 20-22, 26; iv. 352, 353, 356, 357; v. 5, 6, 18-20, 31, 32, 45, 46; Knox's letters to, ii. 28-31; vi. 28, 47-51, 126; resolved to send an army into Scotland for the expulsion of the French, ii. 39; treaty at Berwick between her and the Lords of the Congregation, 46-56, 62, 83; commissioners sent to her from the Lords of the Congregation to propose the Earl of Arran to her in marriage, 130; her repulse of this offer, 137; subscribed the treaty of Leith, 168; letter of Sir Nicholas Throckmorton to, in reference to Queen Mary's shifting to ratify that treaty, 169-174; her letter to the Estates of Scotland complaining of this, 175-178; letter of the Council to, in reply, 178, 179; great appearance of friendship between her and Queen Mary, 314, 315, 335; report of a meeting between them at York, 335; the meeting delayed, 346; continued appearance of friendship between the two queens, 360, 469; Secretary Maitland sent to London to inform her of Queen Mary's purpose to marry Lord Darnley, 473; affected to be highly offended at this marriage, 474, 481; cold reception of the Earl of Murray by, after he had been in arms against Queen Mary, 513; sent as a present a font of gold to Queen Mary after the birth of her son James, 537; issued warrants for various sums of money to assist the Lords of the Congregation, iii. 412; her dislike of Christopher Goodman on account of his sentiments as to female government, iv. 352, 356; endeavours of Calvin to mollify her by disapproving of Knox's "First Blast," 357, 358; reasons of her dislike of the Kirk of Geneva, 358; Geneva Bible dedicated to, 545; her accession to the throne, v. 500; vi. 3; Acts of her first Parliament abolishing the Papal jurisdiction, and restoring Edward Sixth's Book of Common Prayer, 4, 5; letter of the Lords of the Congregation to, 43, 44; her letters to Sir Ralph Sadler, 64, 75; Knox had more hope of, than of Queen Mary, 146; prayed for by Knox, 593-595; letter of Thomas Randolph to, 538; letter of Sir Nicholas Throckmorton to, 551; monies borrowed from, by French Huguenots, 610.
- England, under Henry VIII., defeated James V. of Scotland at Solway, i. 86-89; defeated by the Scottish army at Ancrem Moor, 122, 123; contract of amity between Scotland and, 101-105; martyrs in, iv. 419, 563. See Henry VIII.
- England, under Edward VI., invaded Scotland with an army of 10,000 men, and

- battle of Pinkie, i. 208-214; concluded peace with France and Scotland, 237. See Edward VI.
- England, under Queen Mary, persecution in, iii. 104, 133, 167, 175, 176, 187-189, 231-249, 344; Knox's two Comfortable Epistles to his Afflicted Brethren in, in 1554, 227-249; his Faithful Admonition to the Professors of God's Truth in, in 1554, 251-330; hope of deliverance for, expressed by Knox, 286-288, 292, 293, 301, 302, 325, 326, 329; courage and faith recommended to the Protestants in, 314, 315, 318, 320, 322; private religious meetings held by the Protestants in, iv. 132; Anthony Gilby's admonition to, 541-571; Knox's exhortation to, after the death of Queen Mary, v. 222, 501; list of martyrs in, 497-500, 523-536. See Mary, Queen of England.
- England, under Queen Elizabeth, The cultivation of amity between Scotland and, i. 427, 454, 455; ii. 4, 5, 13, 15, 16, 22, 23, 26, 32-37, 40-43; vi. 31, 32, 35, 36, 38-43, 51-55, 64, 65, 79, 80; money sent by the Council of, to relieve the Protestant party in Scotland, ii. 38; resolution of, to send an army into Scotland, to expel the French, 39, 44; contract between the Lords of the Congregation and, 45-56; an army of 10,000 men from, enter Scotland, to assist them against the French, 57-61; siege of Leith by, 65-70; treaty concluded at Leith between England, Scotland, and France, securing that the French soldiers should leave Scotland, 72-87; Knox's prayer and zeal for the continuance of amity between Scotland and, 139, 146, 554.
- England, The Reformation in, Defects of, iv. 33, 44, 161, 561-563; discipline refused in, 395; v. 515, 520; vi. 30, 83, 84; Knox consulted in the preparation of the formularies of the Church of, iii. 79, 80; his opinion of, [86*]; judgment of foreign divines touching the liturgy and ceremonies of the Church of, iv. 28, 53, 56; long before an adequate provision was made for the Reformed clergy in, vi. 389.
- Erskine, John, fifth Lord, afterwards sixth Earl of Mar, upon the Borders, with other Lords and an army, prepared to meet the English in 1542, i. 79; notice of, 213, 416; his eldest brother, Robert, killed at the battle of Pinkie, 213; Governor of the Castle of Edinburgh, 249; a disciple and friend of Knox in 1556, ib.; employed to negotiate between the Queen Regent and the Lords of the Congregation, in 1559, 358, 369; maintained a strict neutrality between the Queen Regent and the Lords of the Congregation, 375, 464; vi. 35; letter of the Lords of the Congregation to, warning him against consenting to the Queen Regent's fortification of Leith, i. 415-417; would not allow her to obtain possession of the Castle of Edinburgh, ii. 3; refused, from self-interest, to subscribe the Book of Discipline, 128, 299, 305; appointed a member of Queen Mary's Privy Council, 286; made Earl of Mar, 314, 494; a member of the General Assembly of December 1565, 515; had the young Prince committed to his charge, 552; entered into a bond to defend the young Prince against his father's murderers, 556, 565, 566; vi. 554; assisted in carrying the corpse of the Regent Murray at his funeral, 571; chosen Regent of Scotland, 663.
- Erskine, John, of Dun, in 1536 marvellously illuminated in the Reformed faith, i. 59; the friend of George Wishart, 132; attended Knox's secret exhortations in Edinburgh, in 1556, 246; brought Knox to preach at his house at Dun, 249; convened with other gentlemen to attend Knox at his compareance before the Black Friars in Edinburgh, 251; iv. 463; joined with several Lords in inviting Knox, in March 1556-7, to come to Scotland from Geneva, i. 268, 273; subscribed the first Band of the Scottish Reformers at Edinburgh, December, 1557, 273, 274; undertook the office of an exhorter, 300; among the gentlemen who accompanied the Reformed preachers to Perth, on their way to Stirling to compare before the Queen Regent, 317-319, 337; one of the commissioners sent from Perth by the Protestant party there to negotiate with her,

- 341, 347, 369, 434; subscribed the letter addressed to her by the Lords of the Congregation, after they had suspended her from the regency, 451; ii. 56; appointed superintendent of Angus and Mearns, in 1560, 87, 363; vi. 143, 386, 387; present at Knox's fifth interview with Queen Mary, ii. 386; endeavoured to mitigate her anger against Knox, 388, 409, 424; favourable opinion expressed of, by Queen Mary, 482, 484, 494, 531; vi. 35, 430, 443; assisted in crowning King James VI. at Stirling, 556.
- Excommunication in the Popish Church, i. 9-11.
- Excommunication, Doctrine of the Book of Discipline as to, ii. 227-230; order of, vi. 385, 390, 449-468; order of restoring the excommunicated to the Church, 468-470.
- Exhortations, how to be employed, v. 270-273.
- Exhorters, Office of, i. 300; vi. 385, 388.
- Exiles, English, during the reign of Mary Queen of England. See Mary, Queen of England.
- Exiles, Protestant, from Scotland. See Scotland, Preachers of the Reformed Doctrines exiles, from.
- Exorcisms, i. 160.
- Extreme Unction, i. 160.
- F
- FAILFURD, Monastery of, destroyed, ii. 168.
- Fairlie, Robert, of Braid, visited Knox on his deathbed, vi. 641.
- Fall of man considered in connexion with God's eternal decree, v. 91, 92, 141, 142.
- Father of a family, Duties of, iii. 27, 535-539.
- Fasting, defended and practised by George Wishart, i. 166; vi. 670-672; a public fast appointed by the General Assembly of December 1565, ii. 517; the Order of the General Fast, vi. 389, 391-422, 427, 428.
- Festival Days set aside in the Church of Scotland, ii. 534; vi. 547. See Confession of Faith, Helvetian.
- Fiery Cross, ii. 492.
- Fife, Gentlemen in, who supported the Reformation, i. 224, 225.
- Flesh, Eating of, on Friday, i. 162.
- Floddon Field, Battle of, i. 13, 77-79.
- Fornication and Adultery, how punished after the establishment of the Reformation in Scotland, ii. 155, 156, 593; common in Scotland, 247. See Adultery.
- Forrest, David, General of the Mint, threatened in 1543 for his wise counsels to the Earl of Arran, Governor, i. 106; the friend and disciple of Mr. George Wishart, 137; attended Knox's secret exhortations at Edinburgh in 1555, 246; a temporizer on the day of the casting down of the idol of St. Giles at Edinburgh, 260; became an exhorter, 300, 435; notice of, 563, 564.
- Forrest, Henry, of Linlithgow, martyr, notice of, i. 52, 53; Foxe's account of, 516-518.
- Foxe, John, his Book of Martyrs, i. 14, 148; extracts from, relating to the martyrs of Scotland, 504-515, 517-526, 533, 538-540, 543-555; notice of editions of, vi. 686; letter of Knox to, v. 5, 6.
- Francis II. of France, the marriage of Queen Mary with, sanctioned by the Parliament of Scotland, i. 216-218; his death, ii. 132; deliverance of the Reformed in France by that event, 132-134, 138.
- Frankfurt-on-the-Maine, Disputes in the English congregation at, i. 232; narrative of the Troubles at, iv. 3-68.
- Free-Will, i. 161, 162.
- French faction in Scotland, i. 103, 105-109, 122, 255.
- French Galleys, The, i. 216; the Castle of St. Andrews besieged by, 203-207.
- French Protestants, fearful persecution of, ii. 133-136; iv. 289-291, 299, 305, 340, 341, 412; vi. 53, 54, 309, 403, 428; Apology for, iv. 287-347; calumnies of their enemies against them, 300, 305, 306, 338, 310; their constancy under persecution, 301, 302; Calvin's forms of Church service still used among, 144.
- French Soldiers in Scotland, i. 367, 370, 377, 380, 389, 392, 393, 396-399; oppression and cruelty practised by, 401-410; Leith fortified by, 413-420, 425, 429-433, 440, 444-447, 457, 461-463; iii. 423, 424; lay waste the country, ii. 7, 9-11, 44, 46, 54, 57, 59, 60; final deliverance of Scotland

- from, 72-83; Papists look for a new army from France, 131.
- Friars, their pensions, i. 41.
- Friars, Black, i. 36; the Reformed Doctrines embraced by some of the, 62, 95, 119, 193, 251, 260, 363; Adam Wallace brought before, 238; monastery of, in Edinburgh, 238; monastery of, in Perth, 323; iv. 463.
- Friars, Gray, i. 36, 48; the Reformed Doctrines embraced by some of the, 62; instigated James V. to persecution, 71, 72; "Epistle fra the Holye Armito to," 72-75; opposition of, to the Reformation, 96; Wishart's threatening to two of, 135, 136, 157, 168, 193, 197, 199, 259, 260, 363; monastery of the Observantine Order of, in Perth, 322.
- Friars, White, or the Order of Carthusians, Monastery of, at Perth, called The Charter House, i. 323, 324.
- Friars, Vows of, i. 164, 169. See Beggars' Summonds.
- Fyfe, John, a Protestant exile from Scotland, during the reign of James V., and afterwards rector of the University of Frankfurt, i. 55; notices of, 55, 56, 527.
- G
- GARDINER, Stephen, Bishop of Winchester, a ringleader in maintaining idolatry and in persecution, iii. 173, 180, 182, 183, 185; reference to his death, 245, 248, 256; his tyranny repressed for a time, 276; his answer to Cranmer's "True and Catholic Doctrine of the Sacrament," and Cranmer's reply, 279; also replied to by Hooper and Gilby, iv. 543, 544, 548; his rage and triumph against the truth, iii. 284, 285, 293; his treachery in adjudging the Imperial Crown of England to a Spaniard, 296, 297; denunciatory apostrophe to, 298, 299; his work De Vera Obedientia Oratio, 298; his craftiness, iv. 562, 563; v. 14.
- Gaw, John, a Protestant exile from Scotland during the reign of James V., i. 503, 504, 528; vi. 665.
- Geneva, Strictness of discipline in, v. 211-216.
- Geneva, University of, Form of the Confession of Faith, to be subscribed by all students received into, vi. 361, 563.
- Giles, St., the titular saint of Edinburgh, his image drowned in the North Loch, i. 256; St. Giles's day, 259; tumult in Edinburgh at a procession on the day of, 258-261; account of, 558; relic of an arm-bone of, 559-561.
- Giles's Church, St., the first parish church in Edinburgh, i. 559.
- Glencairne, Alexander, Lord Kilmaurs, fifth Earl of, his "Epistle Direct fra the Holye Armito to his bretheren the Gray Freires," i. 72; his protestation against putting to death Adam Wallace, 240; the Lord's Supper dispensed in his house at Finlayston by Knox, 250; delivered to the Queen Regent Knox's letter to her, 251, 252; iv. 72, 425; one of the nobles who invited Knox to Scotland from Geneva, in 1557, i. 267, 268; iv. 257, 258; subscribed the first Band of the Scottish Reformers in 1557, i. 274; his diligence for the relief of Perth, 340, 342; vi. 29; subscribed the Band of the Lords of the Congregation at Perth in May 1559, i. 345; a Commissioner from the Lords of the Congregation to the Queen Regent, 367, 379, 382, 383, 414, 434; subscribed the letter addressed to her by the Protestant Lords after they had suspended her from the regency, 451, 457; went to Glasgow, ii. 5, 38; subscribed the Treaty between Queen Elizabeth and the Lords of the Congregation at Berwick, 53, 56; joined the English army which came to assist the Lords of the Congregation, 58; subscribed the Band of April 1560 for defending the liberty of the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, 63; subscribed the Book of Discipline, 129, 258; sent ambassador to England to crave the assistance of Queen Elizabeth after the Parliament of August 1560, 130; destroyed monuments of idolatry in the west, 167; appointed a member of Queen Mary's Privy Council in 1561, 286, 299, 305; subscribed the Band of September 1562 for defence of the Reformation, 348, 423, 479; gave his consent conditionally to the marriage of Queen Mary with

- Darnley, 481, 484; prepared with other Lords to resist the King and Queen by force, 496, 499, 503, 520, 524; entered into the Band made at Stirling in 1567 for defending the young Prince (afterwards James VI.) from his father's murderers, 556; at Carberry Hill against the Queen, 559; broke down the altars and images in Holyroodhouse Chapel, 562, 565, 566; money given to, by the English for the cause of the Lords of the Congregation, iii. 413, 425; vi. 35, 43, 44, 55, 115, 154, 554; assisted in carrying the corpse of the Regent Murray at his funeral, 571, 585; visited Knox on his deathbed, 640.
- God, Human affections ascribed to, in Scripture, iii. 363; presence of, v. 35, 131-134, 141-145; providence of, 35; absolute power as ascribed to, by the schoolmen, an execrable blasphemy, 39; immutability of His counsel, 44-50, 394; His eternal decree in regard to the existence of sin and misery means more than simple permission, 83-85, 323-326, 329-337, 353, 364, 365, 382, 399; not the author of sin, 170-172, 178, 179, 182, 183, 185, 352-354; secret and revealed will of, 304-314, 317-319, 338-342, 360, 361, 367-371; as to His hardening the hearts of the reprobate, 382-387; just, as well as merciful, 402, 403, 406; His not willing the death of a sinner explained, 408-418.
- Good Works. See Works, Good.
- Goodman, Christopher, minister, appointed minister of St. Andrews in 1560, ii. 87; altercation between him and Secretary Maitland on the sustentation of the ministers at the General Assembly in December 1563, 413, 484; at Strasburg, iv. 16; colleague of Knox at Geneva, iii. 219, 334; iv. 51, 146, 147, 260, 544, 545; one of the translators of the Geneva Bible, 55, 550; his letter to Dr. Peter Martyr, 66-68; notice of, 68; his sentiments the same as Knox's with respect to female government, 351; his work on Obedience to Superior Powers, 352, 356, 358-362, 369, 418, 419, 421, 553, 572; v. 3; Queen Elizabeth's aversion to, on account of that work, iv. 352, 356; vi. 6, 21; his presence in Scotland thirsted for by Knox, 27, 30, 78, 79; in Ayr, 101; has been in the Isle of Man, 118; letter from Calvin to, 125; gone to the North to visit the churches, 142, 143; described by Quintine Kennedy as a pestilent preacher, etc., 165-167; returned to England, 429; affectionate remembrances of Knox to, 558; his letter to Knox on the death of the Regent Murray, 573; Knox's letter to, in 1572, 618, 627.
- Gordon, Alexander, Bishop of Galloway, ii. 56; subscribed the Band to defend the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, at Edinburgh, April 1560, 63; a member of the Parliament of August 1560, 88; subscribed the Book of Discipline, 129, 258; notice of, 259, 374; one of the Lords of Queen Mary's Privy Council, and an extraordinary Lord of Session, 532, 537; his endeavours to obtain from Queen Mary the third of the benefices for the Protestant ministers, 532, 537, 539.
- Gordon, Sir John, of Finlater, subscribed at Edinburgh, April 1560, the Band to defend the liberty of the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, ii. 64; animosity between him and Lord Ogilvy, 345; notice of, 345, 353, 354; his execution, 558.
- Gordon, Sir John, of Lochinvar, subscribed the Book of Discipline, ii. 129, 163, 164; subscribed the Act of Privy Council approving of the Book of Discipline, 258; notice of, 260, 401; supported Queen Mary against the Lords who opposed her by force in 1565, 512; one of the assize at the mock trial of the Earl of Bothwell for the murder of Darnley, 552.
- Gourlay, Norman, i. 53, 58; his trial in the Abbey of Holyroodhouse, 60; hanged and burned at Greenside, Edinburgh, 60; Foxe's account of the martyrdom of, 519-521; date of his martyrdom, vi. 666.
- Government, Female, question as to the divine right of, answered, iii. 222, 223. See Women.
- Grace de congruo, and Grace de condigno, a Popish distinction, iii. 504.
- Gray, Patrick, fifth Lord, feared by Cardinal Beaton, i. 11; hostility between him and Lord Ruthven caused by the Cardinal, 111-114; apprehended and imprisoned in Blackness by the Cardinal, 116; iii. 408; signed articles for the proposed alliance between Mary Queen of Scots and Prince Edward of England, 411; joined the Lords of the Congregation, 425; vi. 111; ii. 563.

Grey de Wilton, Lord, one of the English generals at the battle of Pinkie, i. 209, 211; commander of the English army which came to assist the Lords of the Congregation in 1560, ii. 57, 65; ordered to continue the siege of Leith, 68; discovered the craft of the Queen Regent, 70; his departure with the English army from Scotland, 84, 138, 293.

Grindal, Dr. Edmund, one of King Edward VI.'s chaplains, afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury, iii. [81*]; his fidelity, 176; iv. 11; came from Strasburg to Frankfurt, 15, 17; returned to Strasburg, 17-19, 57; letter of Bishop Ridley to, 61, 545; letter from, to Henry Bullinger, vi. 542.

H

HADDINGTON, Threatening of George Wishart against, i. 138, 236; fortified by the English, 215; besieged by the French, 216-219; the French repulsed from, by the English, 223; prevalence of the pest in, 236.

Hamilton, Archibald, for a long time came not to Knox's sermons, because he denounced the Hamiltons as murderers, vi. 630; abjured the Protestant faith in France, 631; his calumnies against Knox and other Reformers, 631, 646; his false account of Knox's death, 650; had formerly made the highest pretensions to piety, 651.

Hamilton, Sir James, a bastard son of James first Earl of Arran, executed for treason, i. 67; notice of, ib.; date of his decapitation at the cross of Edinburgh, vi. 666, 667.

Hamilton, James, the assassin of the Regent Murray, vi. 650, 651.

Hamilton, John, Abbot of Paisley, afterwards Archbishop of St. Andrews, his arrival in Scotland, i. 105; stimulated the Earl of Arran, Governor, to persecute, 105-107, 110, 543-545; iii. 407; iv. 285; succeeded Cardinal Beaton, Archbishop of St. Andrews, i. 115, 193; his immorality, 124, 125; notices of, 124, 193, 543; glad, and yet affected resentment, at the death of Cardinal Beaton, 181; his opposition to the preaching of Knox at St. Andrews, 193; treasonably brought French galleys to besiege the Castle of St. Andrews, 203; his craft in suppressing a letter from the Lord Protector of England to the Governor, 209; his hand in the execution of Sir John Melville of Raith, and of Adam Wallace, 237, 238, 258, 543; his letter to the Earl of Argyle, to induce him to renounce the Reformed religion, 276-280; his attempt forcibly to prevent Knox from preaching in St. Andrews, 347, 348, 351; inflamed the fury of the Queen Regent, 350, 373; present at the Parliament of August 1560, ii. 88; vi. 111, 114, 115, 117, 118, 120, 128; a copy of Bishop Jewel's Apology sent to, by Thomas Randolph, 139, 144; his familiarity with the Duke of Chatelherault, ii. 156, 351; professed to be content with the third part of the rents of his benefice, 300, 347; celebrated mass, 370; tried, with forty-seven others, before the Justiciary Court, for celebrating it, 379; warded, 380; set at liberty by the Queen, 390, 475; baptism of James VI. at Stirling by, 536; commission restoring him to his former authority, 539, 540, 548; granted the Earl of Bothwell a divorce from his lawful wife, 551, 553, 554, 557.

Hamilton, Patrick, Abbot of Ferne, i. 13, 14; a student at Wittenberg, 15, 502; decoyed to St. Andrews by Archbishop James Beaton, 15; imprisoned in the Castle of St. Andrews, 16; condemned to die on the following morning, ib.; burned at the stake on the same day, 17, 18; his Places, 19-35; his parentage, 500, 501; account of, by Francis Lambert, 502; by John Gaw, 503; and by John Foxe, 504-515; additional notice of, vi. 664, 665.

Hampton Court, Conference at, iv. 426, 427.

Harlaw, William, minister, came to Scotland after the death of Edward VI. of

- England, i. 245; notice of, 245, 256, 300.
- Harryson, James, a Protestant exile from Scotland during the reign of James V., i. 528.
- Helvetian Churches, Confession of Faith of, i. 159.
- Henry VIII., King of England, i. 41; abolished the authority of the Pope in England, 54; war between him and James V. of Scotland, 76-80; iv. 558, 559; contract of amity between him and Scotland, i. 101-105; iii. 407, 408; which is violated by the Regent, the Earl of Arran, i. 109; proclaimed war against Scotland, 109, 110; invaded Scotland, 119, 120; burned Edinburgh, 121, 123; promised protection to the murderers of Cardinal Beaton, who held the Castle of St. Andrews, 182, 183, 209; iii. 410; vi. 69; appointed his son Edward his successor, iii. 221; the "bloody articles" enacted under his reign, 276; his title as supreme head of the Church, 298; his tyranny and persecution of the Reformers, iv. 563, 564; v. 14; vi. 4; advantages to the Reformation from his having stripped the Prelacy of its pomp and wealth, 53.
- Henryson, Henry, schoolmaster of Edinburgh, a Protestant exile from Scotland during the reign of James V., i. 57, 58.
- Hepburn, Patrick, Bishop of Murray, notices of, i. 37, 38, 41; ii. 359; his profligacy, i. 40, 41, 58, 292; his opposition to the Lords of the Congregation at Perth, 359, 360; had a chief hand in the death of Walter Myln, 551; at a convention in 1561, offered to be content with three parts of the rents of his benefice, ii. 300, 303.
- Heresy, i. 44; persons summoned to be tried for, 56, 57; Acts of Scottish Parliament, in 1543, against, 98, 116, 117; recantation of, by bearing and burning faggots, v. 14; vi. 666. See Bill.
- Heretics, Witty advice as to the burning of, i. 42; list of, delated by the clergy to James V., 77, 81, 82, 84, 94; doctrine of the Queen Regent, that no faith is to be kept with, 346, 430; renewal of the persecution against, 116-119.
- Herries, Lord. See Maxwell, Sir John.
- Histoire des Martyrs, author of, iv. 293.
- Holy Ghost, doctrine of the Scottish Confession of Faith as to, ii. 103.
- Holy Days, had no place in the Reformed Church of Scotland, vi. 547.
- Holyrood, Palace of, burnt by the English in 1544, i. 121.
- Holy water, i. 160.
- Hooper, Dr. John, Bishop of Gloucester, reference to his martyrdom, iii. 160, 195; his troubles on account of the rochet, iv. 33, 36, 37, 44; his reply to Bishop Gardiner's work on the Sacrament, 543, 564; how the cruel murder of, was justified by an Anabaptist writer, v. 222.
- Hume or Home, Alexander, fifth Lord, taken prisoner at the battle of Pinkie, i. 210; notice of, 210; ii. 299; appointed to besiege the Castle of Borthwick, where Queen Mary and Bothwell were, 557; one of the Lords who opposed the Queen at Carberry Hill, 559, 565, 566; would not attend the celebration of mass in her chapel, vi. 128, 551, 576.
- Huntley, George Gordon, first Earl of, one of the four Regents appointed in Cardinal Beaton's forged last will of James V., i. 93, 108; at the battle of Pinkie in 1547, 211; made prisoner and carried to London, 213; made Knight of the Cockle by the King of France in 1548, 217; sat with the Black Friars of Edinburgh at the trial of Adam Wallace, 238, 241; in the town of Perth with the Queen Regent's party, 358, 368, 369, 379, 389, 390, 391, 395; ii. 6; iii. 420; vi. 56; subscribed the treaty of Berwick between the Lords of the Congregation and Queen Elizabeth, ii. 53; ready to assist the Lords of the Congregation, 55, 58; subscribed the Band for defending the liberty of the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, in April 1560, 61, 63; blamed by the Queen Regent for his wicked counsel, 70; not earnest in the Reformation, 156, 168, 351; one of the members of Queen Mary's Privy Council, 286, 299, 305; stayed a tumult in Edinburgh, 321; had no good will towards the Earl of Murray, 346; notice of, ib.; met the Queen at Aberdeen, 353; charged to appear before the Council, and failing to do so was denounced rebel, 354; mustered his forces, ib.; his prayer in prospect of battle, 355; defeated by the Earl of Murray at Corrichie, in Aberdeenshire, 356; taken prisoner, 357; his sudden death, ib.; his character, 358; his intentions discovered, 359; his body brought to Edinburgh, 359; reflections on his death, 362; his corpse brought to the Tolbooth, where he was accused and forfeited, 381, 526.

Huntley, George, Lord Gordon, fifth Earl of, ii. 347; made prisoner, 360; vi. 145; notice of, ii. 360; restored to his forfeited estates, 495, 512; and to the earldom of Huntley, 512; took the side of the Queen in opposition to the Lords of the Congregation, in 1565, ib.; went not to mass in the Queen's chapel, 514; his sister married to the Earl of Bothwell, 520, 521; created Lord Chancellor, 532; his sister divorced from the Earl of Bothwell, 553, 557, 563; vi. 553, 573.

I

Idolatry, Suppression of, i. 298; origin of, iii. 453; opinion of Knox that the Divine law requires that it should be punished by death, ii. 441, 446-449, 476; iii. 191, 193, 194, 311; iv. 507, 515; v. 229, 516; necessary to flee from, iii. 166, 195-201, 208-215, 235, 345; iv. 47, 501, 504-507. See Mass.

Idolatry, Destruction and suppression of, monuments of, defended by the Town-Council of Edinburgh, i. 258; effected at Perth by "the rascal multitude," 319-323, 341, 378; deliberation of the Congregation as to, at Edinburgh, 363; vi. 34, 277, 278; supplication to the Privy Council from "the Brethren" for, ii. 161, 565; Act of Privy Council for, 167; doctrine of the Book of Discipline as to, 188; Quintin Kennedy on, 161; monuments of idolatry removed from St. Andrews, i. 350; vi. 25; and from the Abbey of Lindores, 26. See Monasteries.

Idols, Knox's sentiments as to things dedicated to, iv. 230-236.

Indulgences, Popish, i. 9.

J

JAMES IV., King of Scotland, appearance of the Lollards of Kyle in the reign of, i. 7; his gentleness towards them, 11; slain at the battle of Floddon Field, 13; made an annual pilgrimage to St. Duthack's Chapel in Ross-shire, 516.

James V., King of Scotland, i. 16, 515; his favour for his confessor, Friar Alexander Seaton, i. 47, 53; present at the trial of David Stratoun, 70; visions by which he was forewarned, 67-71; war between him and Henry VIII., 76-80; refusal of the nobles at his desire to pursue the English army into England, 80; scroll of heretics delivered to, 81, 82, 84; his answer to Cardinal Beaton and the prelates, 82, 83; his projected invasion of England, 83, 84; defeated by the English at Solway, 86-89; his distress and death, 89-92; his character, 93, 94; ii. 72, 473.

James VI., King of Scotland, his birth, ii. 530; his baptism after the Popish form, 536; committed to the charge of the Earl of Mar, 552; forces gathered by the Earl of Bothwell to get possession of, 558; the crown renounced by his mother in his favour, 565; his coronation, 566; vi. 555-557, 561, 596, 600; change of his views of church government, iv. 425-427; his unfounded charge against Knox, 426, 427; his love of the supremacy, 427.

Jesuits, The, vi. 482, 510.

Jewel, Dr. John, Bishop of Salisbury, accused Knox of high treason, iv. 47, 48, 359; v. 13; his apology, vi. 138; his account of the poverty of the English Protestant clergy in 1570, 389, 559.

Jews, their prejudice against Christianity from the idolatry of the Church of Rome, i. 159; their wickedness before their captivity in Babylon, iii. 173, 174, 179-181, 187; but in some respects better than England, 188, 189; their opinion of the Messias, 457.

Justice or righteousness, which is acceptable to God, iii. 18-20, 461-463.

Justification by Faith, doctrine taught by Patrick Hamilton, i. 27; the doctrine of the Reformers, iii. 417, 418; Henry Balnaves's treatise on, iii. 5-28, 431-542.

K

- KENNEDY, QUINTINE, Abbot of Crossraguell, brief account of the dispute between Knox and, as to the mass, ii. 351, 352; vi. 139, 144; notices of, ii. 351, 371; vi. 152-156; charged with the crime of celebrating the mass and attempting to restore Popery, 156, 526; an oration by, 157-165; dedication to Knox, etc., of his "Familiar Reasoning anent the Misterie of the Sacrifice of the Mass," &c., 166, 167; the Reasoning betwixt Knox and, concerning the mass in 1563, 169-220; his death, 533.
- Kethe, William, at Frankfurt, iv. 19; reasons of his leaving it, 50, 356, 544; concerned in the translation of the Geneva Bible, 550; notice of, 572; specimen of his translation of some of the Psalms of David, 572-575; vi. 285, 338.
- Kilwinning, Monastery of, Ayrshire, destroyed, ii. 168.
- Kirkcaldy, Sir James, of Grange, opened the eyes of James V. to the practice of the prelates, i. 82; notice of, ib.; his wise counsel to the Earl of Arran, 93; purpose of Cardinal Beaton against, 173, 174; in the Castle of St. Andrews after the murder of the Cardinal, 206; a prisoner in France, 222; iii. 411; his wife, 405, 406; his influence in the choice of the Earl of Arran to be Governor, 407; subscribed the contract between those who held the Castle of St. Andrews and Henry VIII. of England, 410; his forfeiture rescinded by the Scottish Parliament, in 1556, 412, 414.
- Kirkcaldy, Sir William, of Grange, i. 90; active in raising the Earl of Arran to the Regency, 106, 115; one of the actors in the murder of Cardinal Beaton, 173-175; brought from London to the Castle of St. Andrews, 182; subscribed the contract between those who held the Castle of St. Andrews and Henry VIII. of England, 182, 183; iii. 410; became a prisoner of the French, i. 205; imprisoned in Mont St. Michael in France, 226, 228, 229; iii. 31, 32; made his escape, i. 230; with the Protestant party at their defeat by the French at Restalrig, 461, 464; his house of Grange destroyed by the French, ii. 8; vi. 107; his defiance to Monsieur D'Osell, ii. 10, 14; his letters to Sir Henry Percy, soliciting assistance for the Lords of the Congregation from England, 22; vi. 33, 34, 277, 278; commendation of his zeal by the Lords of the Congregation, ii. 23, 25, 36; vi. 40, 42, 46; active in their affairs, 37, 38, 51, 59, 60, 68, 80; commendation of, by Knox, 106-108; his forfeiture rescinded by the Parliament of 1563, ii. 381; put to the horn, 496; joined the Lords who opposed Queen Mary by arms in 1565, 499, 559; his interview with Queen Mary at Carberry Hill, 561; his letter to Thomas Randolph, 539, 540; Captain of the Castle of Edinburgh, and favourable to Queen Mary, in 1569, 567; carried the standard of the Regent Murray before his corpse at his funeral, 571; involved in faction, 573; murderous tumult in which he was concerned, 575, 576; publicly denounced by Knox in a sermon, 576; his letter of complaint to Mr. John Craig, 577; and to the Session of the Church of Edinburgh, 577-579; answer by Knox, 580-582; his new bill to the Session, 582; answer by Knox, 583, 584; letter from the Brethren of the West to, 584-586, 596, 599, 637, 644, 645; message to, from Knox under his last illness, 657, 659.
- KNOX, JOHN, attended Mr. George Wishart in 1546, i. 137, 139; his call to the ministry when in the Castle of St. Andrews in 1547, 186-188; in his first public sermon proclaimed the Pope to be Antichrist, 189-193; his disputation with Mr. John Wynrame, 193-197; and with Grayfriar Arbuckle, 197-200; a prisoner in the French galleys, i. 206; vi. 104; his liberation, i. 231; iii. 31, 32, 79, 90, 387; in England, i. 231; his Vindication of his doctrine, that the mass is idolatry, before the English Council at Newcastle, in 1550, iii. 33-70; appointed one of Edward the Sixth's chaplains, 79, [81*]; recommended for the See of Rochester, [81*], [83*], 122; vi. 625; his appearance before the Privy-Council of England, in 1553, iii. [86*], [87*], 357, 364; at Dieppe in January 1554, iii. 113, 114, 159; travels through the churches in Switzerland, 235; his Faithful Admonition to the Professors of God's truth in England, July 1554, 251-330; iv. 63; in Geneva, i. 232; became minister of the English exiles at Frankfurt, ib.; accused by Dr. Coxe and his party of high treason, iv. 38, 39, 46, 47, 54, 59, 63, 64; banished from that city, iii. 255, 256; iv. 39, 48, 54, 63, 64; said to have inflamed the persecution in England, iii. 256; iv. 65; his prayer in reference to the persecution under Mary of England, iii. 286; his loss of his salary as King Edward's chaplain on her accession, 372; in Scotland in 1555, i. 247; proceedings of convocation of Popish bishops and clergy at Edinburgh against, in 1556, iv. 463, 464; burnt in effigy and put to the horn, 464; vi. 25; his Appellation against their cruel and most unjust sentence, iv. 465-520; left Scotland for Geneva, i. 253, 254; invited by the nobility to return to Scotland, i. 267-272; his arrival in Scotland, 318; preached in St. Andrews, 348, 349; endeavoured to prevent the destruction of the Monastery of Scone, 360, 362; elected minister of Edinburgh, 388; his sermon at Stirling, after the defeat of the Lords of the Congregation at Restalrig, 465-473; encouraged the solicitation of aid from England, i. 473; ii. 15, 16; his sermon to the Lords of the Congregation after their defeat at Kinghorn, ii. 8, 9; wrote his first letter to Sir William Cecil (see Knox, Letters of, to Sir William Cecil, and Queen Elizabeth); concluded between him and the Laird of Grange that assistance should be craved from England, 22; reference to Aylmer's work against his "First Blast," 26, 278-280; interview between him and Sir James Croft at Berwick, 32-34; his thanksgiving in St. Giles's Church, Edinburgh, after the conclusion of the treaty securing the removal of the French troops from Scotland, 84-87; his judgment on allowing Queen Mary to have her mass, 276, 277; allusion to his ancestors, 323; his sermon on hearing of Queen Mary's dancing till after midnight, because her uncles had renewed persecution in France, 330, 331; his disputation with the Abbot of Crossraguell on the mass, ii. 351, 352; vi. 157-220; variance between him and the Earl of Murray, 382, 383; condemned in a sermon Queen Mary's marriage with Darnley, 384, 385; before the Queen and Council, 403-411; absolved by the Council, 411, 412; and by the Church, 413-415; reasoning as to his praying for Queen Mary, and as to suppressing her celebration of the mass between him and Secretary Maitland at the General Assembly, in June 1564, 425-460; his prayer for Queen Mary, 428; offended Darnley in a sermon, 497, 498; vi. 221-273; his letter to the English bishops in reference to the vestments, ii. 544-547; confesses his shortcomings as a minister of the Word, iii. 268-272; his reference to notes of his sermons delivered in England, 278, 280-282, 297, 307-309; Bishop Ridley on, iv. 61, 62; John Field on, 91, 92; his MS. letters, vi. 7-10; only instance in which we find him recommending dissimulation, vi. 90; which was censured by Sir James Croft, 91, 92; allusions to his History, 121, 524; his prayer after the Regent Murray's death, 568-570, 651; publicly denounced Kirkcaldy of Grange, 576; libel accusing him of calling Queen Mary an idolater, murderer, and adulteress, 586-589; answered the libel next Sabbath, 590-593; bill accusing him of sedition, schism, and erroneous doctrine, 593; answered by, on Sabbath, 594-596; complaint of Secretary Maitland against, to the session of Edinburgh, 635, 636; his answer, 638; Richard Bannatyne's account of his last illness and death, 634-645; account published by Mr. Thomas Smeton, 645-660; false account concerning his death, by Archibald Hamilton, 650; obliged to leave Edinburgh, 651; invited by the Council to return, 652, 653; his exhortations to Lawson, 653, 656; his message to Sir William Kirkcaldy of Grange, 657; sense in which he prophesied in proclaiming coming calamities, iii. 167-171, 232, 234, 240-247, 277, 278; vi. 229, 230; unfounded charge of James VI. against, iv. 426.

- Knox, John, Letters of, to Janet Adamson, and Janet Henderson, iv. 244; to Archibald, Earl of Argyle, ii. 337; vi. 525; to his Brethren in 1563, relating to a disturbance on account of the saying of mass in the Queen's chapel, ii. 395-397; vi. 527; to Mrs. Bowes, and her daughter Marjory, 1553-1554, iii. 331-402; iv. 217, 218; vi. 515-520; to Calvin, vi. 75-77, 133-135; to the Earl of Cassilis, 181; to Sir William Cecil, ii. 16-22, 26, 27, 35-37; vi. 15-21, 26, 31, 32, 45-47, 67-70, 98-100, 109, 131, 132, 528, 529, 568; to the Duke of Chatelherault and the Lords at Glasgow, ii. 40-42; vi. 108; to the Congregation of the Castle of St. Andrews, in 1548, iii. 1-11; to Sir James Croft, vi. 58, 63, 74, 79-81, 89-92, 101, 102; to the Queen Dowager, Regent of Scotland, in 1556, and in 1558 augmented and explained, iv. 69-84, 423-460; and in October 1559, i. 435, 436; to Sir James Douglas of Drumlanrig, vi. 615; to Sir William Douglas of Lochleven, 574; to Lord Dudley, 530-532; to his Brethren of the Church of Edinburgh, vi. 602-604; to his Sisters in Edinburgh, iv. 222-236, 248-253; to Elizabeth, Queen of England, ii. 28-31; vi. 28, 47-51, 126; to his afflicted Brethren in England, in May 1554, iii. 227-249; to the Professors of God's truth in England, in July 1554, 251-336; to England, in 1559, v. 495-522; to a friend in England, in 1569, vi. 565-567; to John Foxe at Basel, in May 1558, v. 5; to the General Assembly, in August 1571, vi. 604-606; and in August 1572, 619-622; to Mr. Christopher Goodman, in July 1572, vi. 618; to Mrs. Guthrie, Janet Henderson, iv. 246; to Robert Hamilton, minister of St. Andrews, 629; to Mrs. Hickman, 219-222; to Quintine Kennedy, vi. 177, 178, 182; to James Lawson, 632; to Mrs. Anna Locke, iv. 219-222, 237-241; vi. 11-15, 21-27, 30, 77-79, 83-85, 98, 103, 104, 107, 108, 129-131, 140; to the Faithful in London, etc., in 1554, 157-216; to James Earl of Murray, in May 1563, ii. 382; vi. 525; to the Inhabitants of Newcastle and Berwick, in 1558, v. 469-494; to Sir Henry Percy, vi. 35, 59; to the Professors of the Reformed religion in reference to the commission restoring the Archbishop of St. Andrews to his ancient jurisdiction, ii. 541, 542; to Thomas Randolph, in 1564, vi. 541, 542; to Gregory Raylton, 86-88, 105-107; to some of the Nobility in Scotland, October 1557, who had called him from Geneva to Scotland, i. 269-272; iv. 261; to his Brethren in Scotland, in July 1556, iv. 129-140; to the same, December 1, 1557, 261-275; to the Commonalty of Scotland, in 1558, 521-540; to the Lords and others professing the truth in Scotland, from Dieppe, December 17, 1557, iv. 276-286; to James Tyrie, vi. 471-512; to Thomas Upcher, an Englishman at Basel, iv. 241-244; to Sir John Wishart of Pittarrow, vi. 616; to John Wood, 560, 561.
- Knox, John, Letters to, from Theodore Beza, in 1569, vi. 562-565, 613-615; from John Calvin, touching the English Book of Common Prayer, iv. 28-30; vi. 94-98, 123, 124; from the Earl of Cassilis, in 1562, vi. 181; from Sir William Cecil, ii. 34; vi. 55; from Sir James Croft, 70, 91; from the Kirk and Brethren of Edinburgh, 623; from the General Assembly, in August 1572, 622; from Christopher Goodman, on the death of the Regent Murray, 573; from Alexander Hay, in 1571, 606-612; from Dr. Lawrence Humphrey, on the death of the Regent Murray, 571; from Quintine Kennedy, 176-178, 183; from John Rutherford, Provost of St. Salvator's College, St. Andrews, 626; from the Nobility of Scotland, inviting him to return from Geneva to Scotland, i. 267; iv. 257; from John Willock, on the death of the Regent Murray, vi. 572.
- Knox, Mrs. See Bowes, Marjory. Stewart, Margaret.
- Knox, William, brother of the Reformer, i. 393; iii. 356.
- Kyle, Gentlemen of, support the Reformation, in 1545, i. 127.

L

- LACEDEMONIANS, The, iv. 374.
- Lateran, Council of the, iii. 278.

- Latimer, Hugh, Bishop of Worcester, a prisoner in the Tower of London, iii. 188, 195, 255; his life sought by Bishop Gardiner, 299; iv. 419; v. 14*; how the cruel murder of, was justified by an Anabaptist writer, 222.
- Lawson, James, minister of Edinburgh, iv. 246; chosen to be assistant and successor to Knox, 624, 653, 654; letter of Knox to, 631, 632, 637; wrote account of Knox's last illness and death, usually ascribed to Mr. Thomas Smeton, 648, 649-660; Knox's exhortations to, 656, 657.
- Leith, Influence of the merchants and mariners of, on the Reformation in Scotland, i. 61; fortification of, by the French soldiers, 428, 437, 438, 451, 452, 457, 458; iii. 421, 422; siege of, by the English who came to assist the Scottish Protestants, ii. 65-70; treaty at, 73-84, 131, 168-179, 294. See Edinburgh.
- Lennox, Matthew, fourth Earl of, came to Scotland from France in 1543, i. 110, 111; went from Scotland to England in 1545, and his marriage, 124; notices of, 124; ii. 336; committed to the Tower of London in 1562, 336; permitted to come to Scotland on business, 361; efforts made by Secretary Maitland for his home-coming, 390; vi. 539-541; his return to Scotland, and restoration to his lands by Act of Parliament, ii. 469, 470; one of Queen Mary's chief councillors, 479, 481, 483; a commander in her army against the Lords who prepared to resist her in 1565, 500; went to mass openly in her chapel, 514, 519; endeavoured to soften her resentment upon the murder of Riccio, 523, 533, 537; treated by her with affected kindness, 549; solicited her for the punishment of the Earl of Bothwell, and accomplices in the murder of his son Darnley, 552, 566; made Regent on the death of the Regent Murray, 610, 612, 620; assassinated, vi. 663.
- Lesley, John, brother of the Earl of Rothes, threatened to avenge the death of George Wishart, i. 172; notice of, ib.; one of the assassins of Cardinal Beaton, 175-177; negotiated with Henry VIII. to take the Castle of St. Andrews under his protection, 182; iii. 419.
- Lesley, John, parson of Oyne, Abbot of Lindores, and Bishop of Ross, one of the flattering counsellors of Queen Mary, i. 236; notices of, 236; ii. 600, 601; unable to defend the mass, ii. 141, 180, 483; made Bishop of Ross, 524; his work in refutation of Knox's sentiments on female government, iv. 360; v. 3.
- Lesley, Norman, Master of Rothes, i. 112; hostile intention of Cardinal Beaton against, 173, 174; notices of, 173, 176, 541, 542; one of the assassins of Cardinal Beaton, 175, 176, 206; negotiated with Henry VIII. to take the Castle of St. Andrews under his protection, iii. 410; taken prisoner by the French, 411; endeavours made in France to convert him to Popery, i. 225.
- Lever, Thomas, one of King Edward the Sixth's chaplains, iii. 176; an exile at Zurich, iv. 12; elected one of the ministers of the English exile congregation at Frankfurt, 21; appointed with others to draw up an order for public worship, 31, 34, 38; faults imputed by Knox to, 42, 43; subscribed a letter to Calvin in reference to the contentions at Frankfurt, 57, 551.
- Libertines, The, v. 172-178, 216, 217.
- Liberty of Conscience, claimed by the Scottish Reformers, vi. 24, 26.
- Lindesay, Mr. David, appointed minister of Leith in 1560, ii. 87, 424; presented, in October 1565, a supplication in name of the ministers to the King and Queen, complaining of the non-payment of their stipends, 511, 517; a member of the General Assembly of December 1566, vi. 440, 470; and of the General Assembly of August 1572, 622; visited Knox on his deathbed, 638, 657.
- Lindesay, Sir David, of the Mount, Lyon King-at-Arms, his Satire of the Three Estates represented at Linlithgow, i. 83; contributed to the elevation of the Earl of Arran to be Governor, 106; alludes to the death of Cardinal Beaton in one of his poems, 179; urged upon Knox when in St. Andrews the ministry, 186; iii. 3, 409, 410.

- Lindesay, John, fifth Lord, of Byres, his notable address at the Parliament of August 1560, vi. 117; subscribed the Book of Discipline, ii. 129, 260.
- Lindesay, Patrick, Master of, afterwards sixth Lord Lindesay of Byres, one of the Lords of the Congregation, i. 337, 352; vi. 35, 106; his valour, ii. 10, 11, 317; one of the commissioners of the Lords of the Congregation who negotiated the treaty at Berwick with commissioners from Queen Elizabeth, 45, 63; subscribed the Book of Discipline, 129, 163, 260; his zeal against Queen Mary's first mass, 270; at the battle of Corrichie in Aberdeenshire against the Earl of Huntly, 356, 495, 515, 517; one of the actors in the murder of Riccio, i. 235; ii. 521; entered into a Band with other Lords to defend the young Prince (afterwards James VI.) against his father's murderers, 556; at Carberry Hill, against Queen Mary, 559; offered to accept of Bothwell's challenge to defend his innocence by single combat, 568; sent with Lord Ruthven to Lochleven Castle to obtain Queen Mary's resignation of the Crown, 565, 566; vi. 556; assisted in carrying the corpse of the Regent Morton at his funeral, 571; visited Knox on his deathbed, 460.
- Litany, Meaning of the term, iii. 39; singing of the, vi. 12.
- Liturgies. See Edward VI.'th's Book of Common Prayer. Book of Common Order.
- Logie, Gawin, Principal of St. Salvator's College, St. Andrews, embraced and taught the Reformed opinions, i. 36; notice of 36, 528.
- Lollards of Kyle, Thirty of, summoned before James IV. and his great Council, i. 7; articles of which they were accused, 8-10; favour of the King for them, 11; traceable to the followers of Wyckliffe, 494, 495; Act of Parliament of James I. against, in March 1424-5, 496; the increase of, led to the appointment of a heretical inquisitor, 497; confessors and martyrs during the Lollard period, James Resby, an English Presbyter, burned at Perth in 1406 or 1407, 495, 496; Paul Craw, a Bohemian, burned at St. Andrews in 1431, 497, 498; Patrick Graham, son of Lord Graham, Archbishop of St. Andrews, degraded from his dignity, and condemned to perpetual imprisonment, 499; other Lollards, 500.
- London, Knox's Godly Letter to the Faithful in, iii. 157-216.
- London, Tower of, Reformers imprisoned in, iii. 187, 188.
- Lord of Misrule, i. 40.
- Lords of the Articles, ii. 572; vi. 115.
- Lords of the Congregation. See Congregation, Lords of the.
- Lord's Supper, The, i. 158, 159; dispensed by Knox at St. Andrews, 201, 202; and in the residence of the Earl of Glencairne in 1556, 250; dispensed by John Willock in St. Giles's Church, Edinburgh, 388, 391; how to be administered according to the Book of Discipline, ii. 187, 239, 240; according to the English Service Book, iv. 24; according to the English Genevese Book of Common Order, 191-197; according to the Scottish Book of Common Order, vi. 309, 312, 324-326; the cup withheld from the laity in the Church of Rome, iii. 50, 67; contrary to the mass, 64-68; Knox's summary, according to the Holy Scriptures, of the sacrament of, 71-75 (see Edward VI.); kneeling at, [86*], [87*]; vi. 12, 83; iii. 279; iv. 122-125; its corruption in the Church of Corinth, 163, 172; administration of, in Edinburgh, vi. 122; examination of children before their admission to, 343, 351, 598.
- Loretto, or Allarit, Chapel of, near Musselburgh, an Epistle direct fra the Holy Armitte of, to his brethren the Gray Freires, i. 72-75; account of, 75, 76; pilgrimage of James V. to, 76.
- Lorraine, Charles de, Cardinal of Lorraine, a famous clerk sent to, about the revenge of Cardinal Beaton's death, i. 207, 220, 233; contributed to the elevation of the Queen Dowager to the Regency, 242; her devotion to, 244; notices of, 293, 412; ii. 318; vi. 667; a cruel persecutor, ii. 133, 137, 330, 331; iv. 292; Queen Mary with him at Rheims, ii. 165; allusion of Knox to his conference with, 173, 180; his licentiousness, 318, 319, 390; his calumnies against the French Protestants, iv. 300;

- his designs against the Duke of Chatelherault and his family, vi. 54; apprehended arrival of French soldiers sent by, to repress religion in Scotland, 561, 609, 610.
- Lorraine, Francis de, second Duke of Guise, contributed to the elevation of the Queen Dowager to the Regency, i. 242; her devotion to, 244; Francis II. of France wholly governed by, ii. 4; a cruel persecutor, 133, 137, 330, 331; assassinated, 390.
- Lorraine, René de, Marquis d'Elbeuf, despatched with an army from France against the Protestants of Scotland, ii. 4; misfortunes of that army, ib.; notices of, 4, 268, 321; his riotous behaviour in Edinburgh, 315; his activity in staying a tumult in Edinburgh, 321.
- Lothian, Gentlemen of, who embraced the Reformed faith in 1545, i. 134, 135, 139.
- Luther, Martin, acquaintance of Patrick Hamilton with, i. 15; his sentiments on the Lord's Supper, 202, 243; vi. 163; i. 442; his description of Charles V., iii. 308; work of Henry VIII. of England against, iv. 563; opposition of Thomas Muncer to, v. 423; his forbearance towards the Anabaptists, 424; withstood their opinions when they began to spread, 433, 446, 448; his publications against them, 452, &c.
- Lyndesay. See Lindsay.
- Lyons, Martyrs of, in the second century, iv. 334.
- M
- MACALPINE, DR. JOHN. See Machabeus, Dr. John.
- Machabeus (or Macalpine), Dr. John, a Protestant exile from Scotland during the reign of James V., and afterwards Professor in the University of Copenhagen, i. 55; notices of, 55, 529.
- Mackbrair, John, a Protestant exile from Scotland during the reign of James V. i. 530; one of the preachers of the English congregation at Frankfurt, iv. 4, 13, 19, 145.
- Mackdowell, James, a Protestant exile from Scotland during the reign of James V. i. 55.
- Mackgill, James, of Nether Rankellour, Clerk Register, i. 124; the intimate friend of Knox, 156, 157; notice of, 156; opposed to depriving Queen Mary of her mass, 291; concerned in the murder of Riccio, 291, 299; one of the commissioners appointed in 1561 to inquire into the rentals of the ecclesiastical benefices, 304; one of the commissioners appointed to modify the ministers' stipends, 310, 403, 423; fled from Edinburgh in 1566, to escape the resentment of the Queen, 525, 526; vi. 60, 111, 551.
- Magistrates, Doctrine of the Scottish preachers concerning obedience to, i. 410, 411, 428, 442, 443; ii. 281; doctrine of the Scottish Confession of Faith as to, ii. 118, 119; reasoning between Knox and George Hay as to obedience and resistance to, 434, 435; and between Knox and Secretary Lethington on the same subject, 435-440; certain questions concerning obedience to, with Bullinger's answers, iii. 217-226; whether obedience is to be rendered to, if they enforce idolatry, 223-226; duties of, iii. 25, 26, 527-530; duties of, in reference to the Church, iv. 173, 398, 443-447; lawfulness of an appeal from the sentence and judgment of the visible Church to, 472; may absolve those condemned by the sentence of the Church, 473, 475-480; duty of, that their subjects be rightly instructed in the true religion, iv. 481-491; v. 229. See Princes.
- Mair, or Major, John, Provost of St. Salvador's College, St. Andrews, held as an oracle in matters of religion, i. 37; notice of, ib.; present at Knox's first public sermon at St. Andrews in 1547, 192.
- Maitland, Sir Richard, of Lethington, his influence in the liberation of Cardinal Beaton from prison in 1543, i. 97; notice of, ib.; was ever civil to George Wishart, though not persuaded in religion, 137; his advice to Queen Mary as to the trial of Hamilton, Archbishop of St. Andrews, and others, for celebrating Mass, ii. 379, 403.
- Maitland, Sir William, younger of Lethington, Secretary, his conference with Knox and others as to Protestants going to mass, i. 247; convinced that it was wrong to do so, 248; left the Queen Regent, and joined the Protestant party, 463, 464; vi. 94; despatched by the Lords of the Congregation to London to Queen Elizabeth and her Council, 473; ii. 4, 38, 39; iii. 426; one of the commission sent to Berwick by the Lords of the Congregation to make a treaty with commissioners from Queen Elizabeth, ii. 47, 52, 56; iii. 414; chosen Speaker in the Parliament of August 1560, ii. 89; vi. 112, 113; sent ambassador to England to crave assistance from Queen Elizabeth, 130; opposed to depriving Queen Mary of her mass, 291; a member of the General Assembly in December 1561, 296; one of the commissioners appointed by the Privy Council to modify the ministers' stipends, 310; his great influence, 315; the Earl of Bothwell and, 326, 331; vi. 141; ii. 343; hatred of the Earl of Huntley to, 353; ambassador to England and France, 360, 361, 370; returned to Scotland, 390; his practices, 390, 399; advised Knox, who had offended the Queen by calling the Protestant brethren to meet at Edinburgh, to confess his fault, 401, 402; supported the Queen when Knox was brought before her and the Council, 403-405, 409, 411; altercation between him and Mr. Christopher Goodman on the support of the ministers, 413; made solemn promises in the Queen's name of full contentation to all the ministers, 417, 418; his defiance of the ministers, 418, 419, 423; craved Knox to moderate himself in his form of praying for the Queen, and concerning obedience to her authority, 425; reasonings which followed between them, 425-455, 459; notice of, 459; on a mission to the English Court in reference to the proposed marriage of Queen Mary with Lord Darnley, 473; his arrival at Stirling from England, 481, 492, 497, 498; vi. 224; defended Knox's prayers for the banished Lords, in 1565, in presence of the King, the Queen, and Council, 514; a member of the General Assembly of December 1565, 517, 526, 565; vi. 8; his letters to Sir William Cecil, 114-116, 120, 136; in great credit with Queen Mary, 128, 132, 141, 224, 526, 527, 532, 540, 551; endeavoured to stop proceedings against her in reference to the murder of Darnley, 554; his letter to her, September 1569, 567; his letter of complaint against Knox to the Kirk-Session of Edinburgh, 634, 635; answer by the Kirk-Session, 636; and by Knox, 638, 639, 644, 657.

Manichæans, The, v. 9, 64, 419, 421; vi. 362.

Mar, Earl of. See Erskine, John fifth Lord, afterwards sixth Earl of Mar.

Marischal, William, fourth Earl of, a friend and disciple of George Wishart, i. 126; notice of, 126, 251; accompanied the Queen Dowager to France in 1550, 241; urged Knox to write a letter to the Queen Regent in 1556, 251, 252; iv. 72; one of the Queen Regent's faction, ii. 58; one of the Lords of the Congregation, vi. 35, 58, 60, 110, 113; his speech at the Parliament of August 1560, 117; desire of the Queen Regent to speak with him under her last sickness, ii. 70; subscribed the Book of Discipline, 129, 260; appointed a member of Queen Mary's Privy Council, 286; opposed to depriving her of her mass, 291, 299, 305, 403, 420, 423.

Marriage, Doctrine of the Book of Discipline as to, ii. 245-249; manner of celebration of, according to the English Service Book, iv. 26; according to the English Genevese Book of Common Order, 198-202; vi. 326, 327. See Sunday.

Martyrs. See England. French Protestants. Scotland.

Mary, Queen of England, Knox's strong language against, i. 244, 422; ii. 17; iii. 294-296, 307, 308; iv. 365, 392-395, 404, 405, 411, 418, 419, 516, 517; vi. 16; his "First Blast" written especially against, ii. 279; iv. 352, 358; v. 3; tolerated the Protestant ministers for a short time, iii. [87*]; prayed for by name, by Knox, at this period [88*]; the Roman Catholic religion restored by her Parliament of October 1553, 113; allusion to the riotous banquetings at proclamation of, 168; stubborn against the truth of God's word, 187; her marriage with Philip of Spain, and his obtaining sovereign power in England, 254, 295, 297; iv. 411; her breach of faith and persecution of the Reformers, iii. 254, 255; 295, 296; Knox's unmeasured language against, alleged to have inflamed the persecution, 255, 256, 283; prayers of Knox in reference to the persecution, 286, 327, 328; and his admonition to the professors of God's truth under, i. 232; iii. 255, 257-330; iv. 38, 39, 47, 48; English Protestant exiles during the reign of, iv. 5, 9, 10, 144, 544; vi. 3; allusion to her death, iv. 352; vi. 3, 6; defence of, by Popish writers against Knox and Goodman's attacks, iv. 360-362, 426; how the nobility and people of England should have dealt with, 507; v. 510; various publications abusive of the Spaniards in consequence of her marriage with Philip of Spain, iv. 553; strong language of Anthony Gilby against, 562, 566; her death hastened by the loss of Calais, v. 471, 490.

Mary of Lorraine, Queen of James V., her hatred of heresy, i. 61; notice of, ib.; birth of her daughter Mary, 91; Queen Dowager, 92, 95; opposed to the projected alliance of Prince Edward with her daughter Mary, 103, 108, 143; boast of Cardinal Beaton of having her at his devotion, 173; his death dolorous to, 180; treasonably brought twenty-one French galleys with a French army to Scotland, 203, 213; her craftiness, 222, 233, 257, 258, 367, 368; vi. 22, 58; went to visit her daughter in France, i. 241; made Regent of Scotland, and character of, 242; iv. 286; conversed with Edward VI. on returning to Scotland, and her high opinion of him, i. 243; letter of Knox to, in 1556, 252 (see Knox, John, Letters of); war against England by means of, 255; led the ring on St. Giles's day, 259, 260, 261; her sentence on the death of her Papists, 265, 279, 288, 290; her desire that the matrimonial crown of Scotland should be granted to Francis, her daughter's husband, 292, 293; practised with the prelates to suppress Christ's Evangel, 298; ii. 25; vi. 42; supplication of the Reformers to, in 1558, for her support, 301-306; her duplicity, 307-309, 312, 314, 315; letter from the Reformers to her and the Parliament, 309-312; became openly hostile to the Reformers, 315, 316; her ideas as to princes keeping faith with their subjects, 316; willed Lord Ruthven to suppress the Evangel in Perth, ib.; summoned the Reformed preachers to appear at Stirling, 317-319; vi. 21-24, 28-29; her rage on hearing of the destruction of the monasteries at Perth, 324; letter of the Congregation from Perth to, i. 326-329; commissioners sent by her to the Congregation in Perth, 337; her false representation that the Congregation sought rebellion, 338; answer to, by Knox, 338, 339; condition upon which the Congregation would surrender Perth, 341; agreement, 343; vi. 78; entered Perth, i. 345; set up mass in Perth, ib.; vi. 24; maintained that she was not bound to keep promise to heretics, i. 346, 347 (see Argyle, Archibald, fifth Earl of, and Murray, Earl of); her proclamation that the Lords of the Congregation sought the overthrow of her daughter's authority, 363 (see Congregation, Lords of the); caused mass to be said in her own chapel, and in the Abbey of Holyroodhouse, 391; her efforts to support her cause, 399; vi. 74; character of her French counsellors, i. 415; ii. 46; her want of faith, 430, 464; vi. 56, 60, 72; suspended from the Regency, i. 441, 444-449; iii. 422; vi. 86; enormities committed by, i. 444, 445, 459; disappointed of obtaining the Castle of Edinburgh, ii. 3; vi. 81; her blasphemous railing, ii. 8; threatened to deprive the Lords of the Congregation of the support of Queen Elizabeth, by the French delivering Calais to her, vi. 91, 92; her cruelty, ii. 68; her last illness and death, 68-71; her burial, 160, 590, 592; her wickedness partly incited, Knox to write his "First Blast," iv. 352, 404; v. 3.

Mary Queen of Scots, her birth, i. 91; remained at Linlithgow under her mother's charge, 95; the Earl of Arran chosen Regent during her minority, ib.; contract of marriage between her and Prince Edward of England ratified, 101-103; iii. 407, 410; but violated by the Regent, i. 109; iv. 559 (see Chatelherault, Duke of);

crowned, i. 108, 109; agreement of the Scottish Parliament to her marriage with the Dauphin of France, 216, 217; sent to France, 218-220; iv. 560; Knox's character of, i. 124, 218, 235; vi. 132, 146; death of most of the Scottish Lords in France who were commissioners at her marriage, i. 263, 264; loyalty of the Scottish Reformers to, 304, 326, 363, 388, 426, 429, 437, 444, 448, 451; ii. 25; yet would not consent that Scotland should be annexed to the crown of France, 47, 49, 50, 62, 73, 76, 81; iv. 411, 412; vowed to destroy all the House of Hamilton, vi. 54, 87; treaty of peace concluded by her deputies and those of Queen Elizabeth, securing the removal of the French troops from Scotland, ii. 73-84; Acts of the Parliament of August 1560 sent to France to, to be ratified, 125; did not ratify them, 126, 127; death of Francis, her husband, ii. 132, 136-138; her craft, 142; delayed to ratify the treaty of Leith, 168; conference between her and Sir Nicholas Throckmorton as to this, 168-174; complaint of Queen Elizabeth in a letter to the Estates of Scotland as to this, 176-178, 264-266; her arrival in Scotland, i. 4; ii. 180, 267-269; vi. 127; accompanied by her father confessor, 151, 152; report of her having been persuaded to embrace the religion of England, 138, 139, 143; hope that she would abandon idolatry disappointed, 401, 402; mass said in her chapel on her first arrival, ii. 270, 21; vi. 128; proclamation to prevent the disturbance of the celebration of mass in her chapel, 272-275; Knox not in favour with, vi. 129; his judgment as to allowing her to have mass, ii. 276, 277, 284, 285; iv. 426; vi. 129-133, 136, 137, 146; difference between the nobility and the ministers as to this, ii. 291, 292; pageants on the occasion of her first entry into Edinburgh, 288; her character of the people of Scotland, 294; first conference of, with Knox, 277-286; iv. 353, 360, 361; their second conference, ii. 331-336; vi. 147; their third conference, ii. 371-373; their fourth conference, 373-376; their fifth conference, 387-389; her upbringing in France, 319, 330, 331; Swedish ambassador came to ask her in marriage for the King of Sweden, 335; sets at liberty the Archbishop of St. Andrews, and other Papists imprisoned, 390; proposal of marriage with Charles, Archduke of Austria, to, 390; vi. 540; mass celebrated by her in her progresses, ii. 391; and in the chapel of Holyroodhouse, 393-399, 471, 475, 514, 515, 518, 528; vi. 148, 527, 543; profligate character of her court, ii. 415, 417, 473; vi. 427, 526, 533, 539; her progress in the north, ii. 419, 469; communicated to Queen Elizabeth her intention to marry Lord Darnley, 473, 474, 477 (see Elizabeth, Queen); her endeavours to obtain the crown matrimonial to Darnley, 480; conditional consent of the nobles to the marriage, ib.; told by the nobles that her mass must be abolished, 482, 484, 485, 488, 511; present for once at a Protestant sermon, 490; her letter to many of the Lords, summoning them, with their whole forces, to wait upon her at Edinburgh, 493; banns of her marriage with Darnley proclaimed, 494; the marriage, 495; Lords of the West prepare to resist her and the King, 496; her resentment against Knox for a sermon he had preached before Darnley, 497; vi. 223, 224, 230; her movements and proceedings in relation to the Lords of the West, ii. 497-508; celebration of the mass in her chapel, 514, 515, 518, 528; vi. 148, 527, 543; loses her affection for Darnley, ii. 520, 534; her answer to a supplication of the General Assembly of December 1565 as to the ministers' stipends, 518; declared she would be revenged for Riccio's murder, ii. 522, 524, 525, 533; supplication of the ministers to, as to the payment of their stipends, 529, 530, 532; birth of her son James, 530; her solicitude to have his baptism Popish, 536; granted the Protestants their petition, and why, 539; granted, from the same motives, the demands of the Papists, 548; murder of Darnley, 549; her marriage with the Earl of Bothwell, 554, 555; in great disfavour with her subjects, vi. 552-554; accused by Knox of the murder of Darnley, 566,

- 567, 570; she and Bothwell raised forces against the Lords, who supported her son, ii. 557-559; surrendered at Carberry Hill to the Lords who opposed her, 560, 562; renounced the Crown in favour of her son, 465, 565; vi. 556, 557; letter of Maitland of Lethington to, 567; praying for, 600. (See Buchanan, George. Knox, John.)
- Mary, Virgin, praying to, i. 10, 169; Chapel of Loretto founded in honour of, 75, 76; Knox and image of, 227, 524.
- Marriage of consins-german, dispensation from Rome necessary to render them lawful, ii. 495.
- Mass, The, i. 8, 9, 156; idolatry of, 124, 225-227, 547, 552, 553; iii. 37-70; when the Reformed in Scotland began to abhor going to, i. 247-249, 299, 306; Act of the Parliament of Scotland, 1560, abolishing, ii. 123, 124; vi. 119, 120; ii. 138-143, 253, 265; the fountain of all impiety, 338, 342; pains to the sayers of, 124, 371, 372, 476; vi. 119, 120; trial of the Archbishop of St. Andrews and others for celebrating, ii. 379, 380; the Protestant courtiers of Queen Mary begin to maintain that it is no idolatry, 420, 421, 427, 470, 471; tumult caused by the celebration of, 476-478, 481; Knox's vindication of the doctrine, that the sacrifice of the, is idolatry, iii. 27-70; meaning of the term, iii. 47; Popes by whom it was instituted, 48; erected in the Tower of London, 188; sin of attending, to avoid persecution, 198-201, 345; the devil's sacrament, 212, 217; abolished in England by Act of Parliament, 279; iv. 21. See Idolatry.
- Masters and servants, Duties of, iii. 27, 539, 541.
- Maxwell, Sir John, of Terreglis, Master of Maxwell, and afterwards Lord Herries, warded by the Queen Regent for speaking in favour of the Reformed ministers, i. 319; notices of, 319, 399; ii. 129; great desire of Knox to have him on the side of the Lords of the Congregation, vi. 69, 93, 113, 115, 144, 178, 182; concurred in the suspension of the Queen Regent from the Regency, i. 451, 455, 459; ii. 39; one of the commissioners of the Lords of the Congregation who made a treaty at Berwick with Commissioners from Queen Elizabeth, 45, 47, 52; iii. 414, 421, 422; subscribed the Band at Edinburgh, April 1560, to defend the liberty of the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, ii. 63; subscribed the Book of Discipline, 129, 258, 299, 321; a man of great judgment and experience, 351, 375; reasoning between him and Knox in the Privy Council, 399, 400, 404, 423; supported the Queen against Knox, 428, 434; in the army of the Lords who opposed by arms the King and Queen in 1565, 500, 502, 504; incurred the Queen's resentment, 508; went over to the King and Queen, 512; consulted by her how she should be revenged on the murderers of Riccio, 524; one of the assize on the mock trial of Bothwell for the murder of Darnley, 552.
- Menteith, John, Earl of, ii. 53, 56; met at Preston the English army which came to assist the Lords of the Congregation, 58; subscribed the Band at Edinburgh, April 1560, to defend the liberty of the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, 63; subscribed the Book of Discipline, 129, 260, 299, 563; vi. 35.
- Menteith, William, fifth Earl of, deserted the Queen Regent on discovering her perfidy, i. 346; notice of, 357; combined with other Lords in summoning those who held Perth for the Queen Regent to surrender it, ib.; subscribed the letter of the Lords of the Congregation to her, complaining of her violation of treaty by her fortifying Leith, 414.
- Merlin, Mervailis of, popular predictions under the name of, iii. 168.
- Ministers may meddle with state policy, i. 412; first appointment of, to the chief towns and districts of Scotland, ii. 87; election of, 144-150, 189-191; iv. 175; sustentation of, ii. 161, 162, 196-200, 298-313; admission of, 192; censure of, 235, 236, 241; iv. 176; smallness of the stipends of, ii. 311, 312, 340, 342, 383, 470, 485, 489; complained that they could not get payment of their stipends, 511, 517,

- 518; address of the Superintendents, &c., to, in December 1565, not to desist from preaching because of their poverty, vi. 423-426; address of Superintendents, &c., in December 1565, to the Faithful, on the subject of the support of the, 431-436, 443, 444; supplication of, to the Queen, in 1566, for the payment of their stipends, 528-532, 537-539, 542, 564; ought not to exercise any civil office, v. 519.
- Mint, Scottish, or Cunyie House, in Edinburgh, i. 454.
- Miracles, Abuse of, by the priests, i. 37, 39.
- Monasteries, Suppression of, in England, i. 54; destruction of, in Scotland, i. 322-324, 360-362; ii. 167, 168; monastery at Failford, in the parish of Tarbolton, i. 237. See Friars, Black and Gray.
- Money in Scotland, i. 373.
- Monks, Vows of, i. 164.
- Morton, James Douglas, fourth Earl of, subscribed the first Band of the Scottish Reformers at Edinburgh, December 3, 1557, i. 274, 460; subscribed the contract between the Lords of the Congregation and Queen Elizabeth, ii. 53; subscribed the First Book of Discipline, 129, 260; one of the ambassadors sent to England after the Parliament of August 1560, to crave the assistance of Queen Elizabeth, 130; appointed a member of Queen Mary's Privy Council in 1561, 286; opposed to depriving her of her mass, 291, 299, 305; one of the commissioners appointed to modify the ministers' stipends, 310; created Lord Chancellor, vi. 533; a member of the General Assembly in June 1564, ii. 423; reasoned against Knox on the head of obedience to magistrates, 434, 455, 479; one of the Lords who opposed by force the King and Queen in 1565, 500; a member of the General Assembly of December 1565, 515, 517; one of the actors in the murder of David Riccio, i. 235; ii. 521, 523, 525; entered, with other Lords, into a Band at Stirling, in 1567, to defend the young Prince (afterwards James VI.) from his father's murderers, 556; one of the Lords who opposed Queen Mary at Carberry Hill, because she protected Bothwell, Darnley's murderer, 560, 565, 566; vi. 35, 551; took the coronation oath on behalf of the young Prince, James VI., at his coronation, 556, 557; assisted in carrying the corpse of the Regent Murray at his funeral, 571; went to Aberdeen, 573, 596, 633; visited Knox on his deathbed, 640, 644, 645, 657.
- Muncer, Thomas, his opinions, v. 423-425; his death, 432.
- Murray, James Stewart, Lord Prior of St. Andrews, afterwards Earl of, favourable to the Reformed doctrines, i. 249; notice of, ib., 375; in France at the marriage of Mary Queen of Scots, 263; his conference with the Bishop of Orkney at Dieppe when the Bishop was dying, 265; one of the nobles who, in 1557, invited Knox to come to Scotland from Geneva, 267, 268; iv. 257, 258; favourable to the granting of the matrimonial crown to Francis, Queen Mary's husband, i. 293, 294; one of the commissioners sent from the Queen Regent at Stirling to the Protestant party in Perth in May 1559, 337; effected an agreement between her and them, 342, 343; subscribed the Band of the Lords of the Congregation at Perth in May 1559, 344, 345; left the Queen Regent on discovering her perfidy, 346; vi. 24, 35; repaired to St. Andrews, i. 347, 350, 353; letter from, to the Queen Regent, 355; threatened to besiege Perth, 358, 359; laboured to save the Palace and Abbey of Scone, 360; took the town of Stirling, 362; iii. 417; falsely accused by the Queen Regent of conspiring to deprive her daughter of her authority, i. 368, 369, 420; at Edinburgh, 375, 379, 382; letter from Francis II., King of France, to, 384-386; and from Mary Queen of Scots to, 386, 562; his answer, 386; at the Convention held by the Lords of the Congregation at Stirling, 413; letter of the Queen Regent to, 419; his answer, 420; subscribed the letter addressed to her by the Protestant Lords after they had suspended her from the Regency, 451; purposed to pursue the Earl of Bothwell, 455, 456; one of the commanders of the Protestants when defeated by the French at

Restalrig, 460-462; at St. Andrews, ii. 5; assembled with the Earl of Arran their forces at Cupar, in Fife, 6, 7; his success at Dysart against the French, 9, 38-40, 43; one of the commissioners of the Lords of the Congregation appointed to negotiate at Berwick a treaty with commissioners of Queen Elizabeth, 45, 47, 52; iii. 414; vi. 60; joined the English army which came to assist the Lords of the Congregation, ii. 58; subscribed at Edinburgh, in April 1560, a Band for defending the liberty of the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, 63, 70, 84; a member of the Parliament of August 1560, 83; vi. 117; subscribed the Book of Discipline, ii. 129, 258; appointed by a convention of the nobility at Edinburgh, in January 1561, to go to France to Queen Mary, 142, 143, 156; his return from France, 164; his life in danger from the Papists when he was in Paris, 165, 166; appointed by the Secret Council, in 1561, to go to the North for the destruction of monuments of idolatry, 167, 168; protected Queen Mary's chapel-door when her first mass in Scotland was celebrated, 271, 277, 282; appointed a member of Queen Mary's Privy Council in 1561, 286; opposed to depriving her of her mass, 291; sent to repress rapine and murder on the Borders, 292, 293, 336; appointed one of the commissioners for modifying the ministers' stipends, 310; created Earl of Mar, and soon after Earl of Murray, 314; his marriage to Agnes Keith, daughter of William, Earl of Marischal, ib., 321, 322, 325-327; the Earl of Bothwell and, 328; vi. 141; no good-will towards, by the Earl of Huntly and the Queen, ii. 346, 353; his victory over the Earl of Huntly at Corrichie, in Aberdeenshire, 355-360, 368, 373; variance between him and Knox, 382, 383, 402, 461; went to the North to execute justice, 391; returned from the North, 399, 401, 403, 418; a member of the General Assembly in June 1564, 423, 469-471; demanded from the Queen justice on the Earl of Bothwell, his deadly enemy, 472, 473, 478, 479, 483; fell sick in Lochleven, 484, 490; met in July 1565, with other Lords, at Stirling, for the security of the Reformed religion, 492; resentment of the Queen against, 494; prepared, with other Lords, to resist the King and Queen in 1565, 496, 499, 500, 503; banished into England, 513; his interview with Queen Elizabeth, ib.; 522; returned to the Abbey, and admitted to the presence of the Queen, 523; again sitting in her Council, ib., 525, 527, 531, 535, 548; entered into a Band at Stirling, in 1567, to defend the young Prince (afterwards James VI.) from his father's murderers, 556; obtained leave to go to France, ib.; returned to Scotland, and made Regent, 465, 566; iii. 415; vi. 557; his liberality in the cause of the Reformation, vi. 103; a sermon in his house thrice in the week, 148; plots to assassinate him, 561, 624; Knox's prayer after his death, 568; and grief, 650, 651 his funeral, 570, 571; letters eulogistic of, to Knox, from England, 571-573; repeatedly warned of his danger by Knox, 644, 645; his lady, 645.

Murray, Sir William, of Tullibardine, Comptroller, deserted the Queen Regent on discovering her perfidy, i. 346; subscribed the letter sent to her by the Lords of the Congregation after they had suspended her from the Regency, 451, 453; ii. 56, 508, 509; offered to accept of Bothwell's challenge to prove his innocence by single combat, 561.

Mylne, Walter, a priest, the Martyr, burnt at St. Andrews for heresy in 1558, i. 308; the chief instrument of his death, John Hepburn, Bishop of Murray, 360; account of his trial and condemnation, by Foxe, 550-555.

Mysteries. See Clerk Plays.

N

NATURE, ORDER OF, is nothing else but the government of God, v. 172.

Newcastle, Knox's Godly Letter to the Faithful in, in 1554, iii. 157-216; his epistle to the inhabitants of, in 1558, v. 469-494.

New Testament, ii. 472.

Nicholas I., Pope, iii. 278.

Nobility, Duties of the, iv. 494-498.

Novatians, Heresy of the, iii. 486.

Nuns, Vows of, i. 164.

O

OCHILTREE, Andrew Stewart, Lord, approached with other Lords for the relief of the Protestants in Perth, i. 340; subscribed the Band of the Lords of the Congregation at Perth, in May 1559, 345; sent a commissioner from the Lords of the Congregation to the Queen Regent, 367, 369, 382, 414, 434; ii. 38; subscribed the contract between Queen Elizabeth and the Lords of the Congregation, 53, 56; joined the English army which came to assist the Lords of the Congregation, 58; notice of, 260; subscribed the Band, of April 1560, for defending the liberty of the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, 63; subscribed the First Book of Discipline, 129, 258, 275, 299; his character, 320; subscribed the Band of September 1562, for defence of the Reformation, 349, 386, 389; prepared, with other Lords, to resist the King and Queen, in 1565, 496, 499, 503; sitting in the Queen's Council, 523, 563, 565; vi. 35; subscribed the letter of the Lords of the Congregation to Sir William Cecill, in July 1559, 43; and their letter to Queen Elizabeth, 44; his daughter Margaret married to Knox, 533; assisted in carrying the corpse of the Regent Murray at his funeral, 571, 585.

Omens, ii. 269, 417.

Original Sin, ii. 98; iii. 463, 464, 473, 486.

Oysell or D'Oysel, Sieur de, French ambassador at the Court of Scotland, in 1547, notices of, i. 203, 328, 355; ii. 170; his cowardice, i. 213, 222; ii. 10; lieutenant for France, i. 255, 324; requested by the Protestants in Perth to mitigate the Queen Regent's resentment, 328; on reading their letter tore his beard from anger, 329; marched with his French soldiers against Perth, 336, 340-342; entered Perth with the Queen Regent, 345, 352-356, 374; subscribed the treaty at Leith, in 1559, between the Queen Regent and the Lords of the Congregation, 380, 395, 410; his perfidious counsel to the Duke of Chatelherault, 430; message of defiance sent to, by Kirkcaldy of Grange, ii. 10; mistook the English fleet in the Firth of Forth, 13; the Queen Regent's desire to see him under her last sickness, 70; intention of Queen Mary to send him as her ambassador to the English Court, 170, 174.

P

PAISLEY, MONASTERY OF, partially burned, ii. 167.

Paris, Apology for the Protestants held in prison at, iv. 287-347.

Parliament, English, in October 1553, restored the Roman Catholic religion, iii. 113.

Parliament of Scotland, in June 1535, Act of, in reference to the process of cursing, i. 38; (in March 1540-41,) Act of, against heresy, 98; (in March 1542-43,) Act of, allowing the Scriptures to be read in the vernacular tongue, 98-100; (in December 1543,) Act of, against heretics, 116, 117; (in August 1560,) ii. 87; Confession of Faith presented to, 93-120; and ratified by, 120-122; mass and the jurisdiction of the Pope abolished by, 123, 124; vi. 110-121; these Acts not ratified by Queen Mary, ii. 126, 127, 131; (in May 1563,) ii. 379, 380.

Pasquillus, a statue so called at Rome, iv. 459.

Paulet, Sir William, Marquis of Winchester, inveighed against by Knox as a time-serving hypocrite, iii. 283.

Pedersen, Christian, a Danish writer, account of, vi. 665, 666.

Pelagian doctrine and controversy, v. 9, 10, 121, 153, 163, 416, 419, 465.

Penance, vi. 527.

Percy, Sir Henry, Correspondence between Kirkcaldy of Grange and, as to the English supporting the Lords of the Congregation, ii. 22, 23, 32; notice of, 36; in the English army which came to assist the Lords of the Congregation, in 1560, 57; letter from Kirkcaldy of Grange to, vi. 33, 34; letters from Knox to, 35, 36, 59, 60; letter from Sir Thomas Parry and

- Sir William Cecil to, 37; and from Sir William Cecil to, 38-40, 46, 58; letter from, to Cecil, 60, 67, 75.
- Perfection, Sect which laid claim to, v. 121.
- Persecution, Difference between fleeing from, and denying the truth, iv. 247; practised under false imputations, 310-312, 442; true cause of, 323, 324.
- Persecutors of the Church, iv. 436, 453, 454.
- Perth, First martyr of the Lollards in Scotland burned at, i. 495, 496; martyrs in, in 1544, 118, 523.
- Pest, in Dundee, i. 129; in St. Andrews Castle, 204; in Haddington, 236.
- Philip II., King of Spain, his accession to the throne, ii. 136; written to, by Darnley, that Scotland was all out of order for want of the mass, 533; his marriage with Mary Queen of England, iii. 254; effect of the obnoxious terms applied to, by Knox, 256; calamities anticipated to England from the marriage of Queen Mary with, 294, 295; reprobation of that Queen and others for investing him with royal power in England, 296, 297; iv. 411, 553; Knox accused of having spoken treasonably of, iv. 4, 38, 39; the words used by Knox in reference to, iii. 294-296, iv. 48, 63, 405, 562; cruel persecution by, v. 500.
- Pilgrimages, i. 12, 16, 76, 516, 553.
- Pinkie, Battle of, i. 210-214.
- Plague at Rome at the close of the sixth century, iii. 39, 40; in Geneva, vi. 363.
- Plays, Representation of, by which the bishops were exposed, i. 62, 83, 106.
- Plurality of benefices condemned, v. 518.
- Poor, The, how to be provided for, according to the Book of Discipline, ii. 200, 201, 340, 341, 486.
- Pope, The, held by the Lollards of Kyle to be the head of the Kirk of Antichrist, i. 10, 184, 412; his authority abolished in England, 54; vi. 5; proclaimed by Knox to be Antichrist, i. 189-191, 194, 206; his authority abolished in Scotland, ii. 124, 125; vi. 119, 120; pomp of, iv. 316, 317; cause why he and his kingdom persecuted the Reformers, 324, 511, 512; v. 446, 448.
- Popish Religion described, i. 81; iv. 440-443; not the most ancient, 446. See Rome, Church of.
- Prayer, Treatise on, by Knox, iii. 81-109.
- Prayers, Form of, etc., used in the English Congregation at Geneva, in 1556, iv. 141-214; and by the Reformed Church of Scotland, vi. 289-380.
- Predestination, Controversy on, v. 9, 10, etc.; is not stoical necessity, 31-34; definition of, 32, 36, 38, 42, 112, 113, 131, 204; mysteriousness of, 41, 55, 65, 114, 311; does not proceed from foreseen faith and good works, 73-79; fall of man viewed in connexion with, 91, 92; arguments for, 147-162; not the cause of damnation, 168, 170; objection that it encourages a libertine life answered, 208-221, 234, 240; reference to Knox's work on, iv. 271.
- Prelates, Popish. See Bishops, Popish.
- Presbyterianism, iv. 143; vi. 283, 388.
- Preston, Dr., attended Knox on his death-bed, vi. 643, 654.
- Priests, Popish, Abuse of process of cursing by, i. 37-39; licentiousness of, 39, 42-44; their pride and avarice, 58; their opposition to the preaching of the truth, 329, 331, 336; marriage of, 552; of the title Sir, applied to, 555-558; have no authority to administer the sacraments of Christ, ii. 255; poetry exposing, 594; iii. 60; dresses worn by, in saying mass, 66; vi. 13; whether their yearly revenues should be paid, 76, 97, 190, 191. See Bishops, Popish.
- Princes, their fury to be restrained by their subjects, i. 411, 428; may be deposed, 442, 443; duties of, iii. 25, 26; iv. 493, 494; may be resisted, ii. 282, 372, 435-446, 456-458; iii. 184; their impiety in exacting obedience contrary to the law of God, iv. 441; abused by flatterers, 448, 449. See Magistrates.
- Prophecy, Plagues to befall England, prophesied by Grindal, Lever, and others, iii. 176, 177; and by Knox. See Knox, John.
- Proverbs, ii. 116, 127, 214, 219, 242, 378, 408, 431, 458, 522; ii. 141, 291, 311, 343, 344, 382, 406, 522, 555, 574; v. 268; vi. 188.

Providence, Interpretations put upon, ii. 369, 370; v. 35, 173, 174, 350.

Psalms of David, Buchanan's Latin version of, i. 71, 99; John Wedderburn's metrical version of some of, 139, 140, 531; Sternhold and Hopkins' version of, used by the Church of Scotland after the Reformation, iv. 55, 148, 166, 197, 206, 572; usually annexed to "The Forme of Prayers," &c., vi. 284, 285, 291, 292; specimens of this version, and tunes to which the Psalms were set, 285, 286, 335-340.

Psalm-singing in divine worship, authority for, iv. 164, 165.

Pulpit, Complaints of freedom of the, ii. 419.

Purgatory, i. 9, 16, 163, 164, 194, 200, 239, 241, 265, 306.

Puritans, The, ii. 544-547; iv. 148, 324; vi. 438.

R

RANDOLPH, Thomas, English ambassador, "in no small conceit" with Queen Mary, ii. 314; his Letters to Sir William Cecil, vi. 109-114, 116-122, 137-148, 525-527, 532, 533, 570; and to Sir Nicholas Throckmorton, 127-129; his letter to Queen Elizabeth in 1564, 538; letter to, from Kirkcaldy of Grange, 539, 540; and from Knox, 541.

Readers, Duties of, ii. 195, 196; vi. 385, 388.

Reformation in Europe, Instruments raised up for accomplishing, vi. 192.

Repentance, in what it consists, iii. 125, 126.

Repentance, Public, Order of Excommunication and of, vi. 449-470. See Fasting.

Reprobation, God's eternal purpose of, v. 96, 97, 105, 106, 110, 111; not the cause of sin, 113; hid in God's eternal counsel, 114, 124-131; great gifts often bestowed upon the reprobate, 257, 258.

Riccio, David, allusion to his slaughter, of which Knox approved, i. 99. 235; his highest promotion, that of Secretary to Queen Mary and Darnley, 446; began to grow great in Court, ii. 422; ruled all, 483, 507, 513, 514; continually in Queen Mary's company, 519; slaughter of, 521; his expressions of contempt for the Earl of Murray, 522; the Queen dissembled her indignation at his slaughter, 523, 524; her determination to be avenged on his murderers, 525, 526, 528; most of the actors in his death obtain remission, 533, 535, 550, 551; notices of, 595; character of, by Randolph, 596; his funeral, 597; vi. 225, 481.

Richardson, Robert, a canon of the Abbey of Cambuskenneth, a Protestant exile from Scotland in the reign of James V., i. 530.

Richardson, Robert, Prior of St. Mary's Isle, reference to him as Lord Treasurer of Scotland, and General of the Mint, i. 372, 377, 403; ii. 508; notice of, 372, 373; a member of the Parliament of August 1560, ii. 88; required to do open penance before the whole congregation, vi. 527, 681.

Ridley, Nicolas, Bishop of London, prisoner in the Tower of London, iii. 188, 255; his blood sought by Bishop Gardiner, 229; his letter to Bishop Grindal in reference to the controversies at Frankfurt about the Common Prayer Book, iv. 61; appointed to inquire whether the Anabaptists kept conventicles, v. 14, 15; how the cruel murder of, was justified by an Anabaptist writer, 222.

Righteousness. See Justice.

Robin Hood, ii. 157-160, 472.

Rome, Bishop of, Origin of the supremacy of, iv. 314, 315.

Rome, Church of, i. 40, 518; idolatry of, 159; declared to be Antichrist, i. 189, 190; iii. 186; its doctrines, i. 191; ii. 185, 186; iii. 42; order of precedency among the dignitaries of, i. 557; its exactions, ii. 222; degenerate state of, 283; iii. 518; 573; sin and danger of joining in the idolatrous worship of, iii. 208-211, 254, 323, 324; iv. 517; abuse of the gift of singing in, 164, 165; described, 470, 524; clergy of, in Scotland, obtain two-thirds of their benefices, ii. 298-310, 341. See Popish religion.

Roths, George, third Earl of, apprehended by the Governor and Cardinal Beaton in November 1543, iii. 408; his dislike of the Cardinal, i. 114, 116; notices of, 172, 173, 263; his death, 263.

Roths, Andrew, fourth Earl of, succeeded his father in November 1558, 263; joined with the Lords of the Congregation at Cupar Moor against the Queen Regent in 1559, 350; continued in Fife for the support of the Reformed cause there, ii. 38; subscribed the treaty between the lords of the Congregation and Queen Elizabeth in 1560, 53, 56; subscribed the Band for defending the liberty of the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, Edinburgh, April 1560, 63; subscribed the First Book of Discipline, 129, 258, 299, 423; met in July 1565, with other Lords at Stirling for the security of the Reformed religion, 492; opposition stirred up against him on this account, 495; put to the horn, 496; prepared with other Lords to resist by force the King and Queen, in 1565, 499, 503; endeavoured to mollify the resentment of the Queen against the murderers of Riccio, 523; giving way to her fury, left Edinburgh, 525; vi. 35.

Rough, John, preached the doctrines of the Reformation in Scotland in 1543, i. 96, 97; sheltered in Kyle from persecution, 105; preached in St. Andrews, 184; urged Knox to undertake the office of the ministry, 186; iii. 3, 410; notice of, i. 187; the doctrine of, defended by Knox, 188; summoned to appear before a convention of Gray Friars and Black Friars for heresy at St. Andrews, 193; burned at London in December 1557, 537-540; additional notice of, vi. 672.

Row, John, appointed minister of Perth in 1560, ii. 87; maintained that Queen Mary should be deprived of her mass, 291; a member of the General Assembly of June 1564, 424; and of June 1565, 484; and of December 1565, 517, 518, 538, 563; and of Perth, in August 1572, vi. 622, 623.

Ruthven, Patrick, third Lord, Provost of Perth, notice of, i. 113; refused at the command of the Queen Regent to suppress the Protestant religion in Perth, 316, 336, 337; deposed by her from his authority as Provost, 345, 346; commanded at the siege of Perth against her, 358; sent as commissioner from the Lords of the Congregation to her, 367, 369, 374, 378; subscribed the letter of the Lords of the Congregation to her, complaining of her violation of treaty by her fortifying Leith, 414; her attempts to bribe him to desert the Congregation, 418, 419; a man of great experience, ii. 6; one of the commissioners appointed by the Lords of the Congregation to negotiate at Berwick a treaty with commissioners from Queen Elizabeth, 45, 47, 52, iii. 414; joined the English army which came to assist the Lords of the Congregation, ii. 58; subscribed at Edinburgh, April 1560, a Band for defending the liberty of the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, 63; charged by Queen Mary with using enchantment, 373; a member of Queen Mary's Privy Council, 403, 483, 497; vi. 224; his defence of Knox before Queen Mary, ii. 406; a principal actor in the murder of Riccio, i. 113, 235; ii. 521, 533; endeavoured to mollify the Queen's resentment, 523; one of the Lords who opposed her at Carberry Hill, 559; sent with Lord Lindsay to Lochleven, to obtain her renunciation of the Crown, 565, 566; vi. 556; subscribed the letter of the Lords of the Congregation to Sir William Cecil, in July 1559, 43; and their letter to Queen Elizabeth, 44; assisted in carrying the corpse of the Regent Murray at his funeral, 571; visited Knox on his deathbed, 640.

S

SACRAMENTS of the New Testament, i. 194; ii. 113-117, 186-188; argument against receiving them in the Church of Rome, vi. 12-14. See Baptism. Lord's Supper.

Sacraments, Seven Popish, i. 11, 156, 552.

Sadler, Sir Ralph, notice of, i. 101; sent ambassador by Henry VIII. of England to Scotland in 1543, 101, 103, 104, 109; iv. 559; commission granted to him and others by Queen Elizabeth, in 1559, with the view of affording aid to the Lords of the Congregation, i. 454; iii. 412-414; letters from, to Sir William Cecil, vi. 71-73, 88; letters to, from Mr. Henry Balthaves, iii. 420, 426; from Queen Eliza- beth, vi. 64, 75; from Thomas Randolph, iii. 422.

- St. Andrews, Town of, martyrdom of Paul Craw, a Bohemian, in, i. 6, 497, 498; and of Patrick Hamilton, 17; and of Walter Myln, 308; Knox's success in preaching in, in 1547, 201, 202; his preaching in, after his return from his imprisonment in France, 348, 349; resolution of the Queen Regent to assault, 350; Christopher Goodman, first Reformed minister in, after the Reformation, ii. 87.
- St. Andrews, Castle of, originally built for an Episcopal residence, i. 53; account of, 146, 208; held by the murderers of Cardinal Beaton, 182; who are joined by others, ib.; besieged, ib.; supported by England, 182-184; John Knox comes to, 185; besieged by twenty French galleys, 203, 204; surrender of, 205, 206; prisoners carried to France, 206, 207, 225-234; Knox's epistle to the congregation of, iii. 1-11.
- St. Andrews, University of, i. 17; began to discover the truth, 36; the principal University in Scotland, ii. 213, 219.
- St. Giles. See Giles, St.
- St. Michael, Order of, instituted by Louis XI. of France, i. 217.
- Saints, Worship of the relics of, i. 8; praying to, 16, 162, 163, 239, 241, 306; iii. 39.
- Sandilands, Sir James, of Calder, the friend and disciple of Knox in 1556, i. 249; appointed by the Protestants of Scotland to present their first petition to the Queen Regent, i. 301; encomium on and notice of, ib.
- Sandilands, Sir James, of Torphichen, Lord St. John, second son of the preceding, notices of, i. 249, 301; ii. 125; very comfortable by his counsel and assistance to the Lords of the Congregation, i. 375; ii. 53; vi. 35; sent ambassador to France to Queen Mary by the Parliament of August 1560, to obtain from her the ratification of its Acts, ii. 125; dismissed by her without the ratification, 131; subscribed the Act of Privy Council approving of the Book of Discipline, 258, 299.
- Schoolmen, v. 39.
- Schools, ii. 208-212; iv. 177; v. 520.
- Sciennes, Convent of, ii. 224.
- Scone, Burning down of the Monastery and Palace of, i. 359-362.
- Scotland, Crimes prevalent in, ii. 486.
- Scotland, Knox's Letter of wholesome Advice to his Brethren in, in 1556, iv. 129-140; his letter to some of the Nobility in, in 1557, i. 269-272; iv. 261; his letter to his Brethren in, in 1557, 261-275; his letter to the Lords and others professing the truth in, in 1557, 276-286; his Appellation addressed to the Nobility and Estates of, in 1558, i. 254; iv. 465-520; his letter to the Commonalty of, in 1558, 521-538.
- Scotland, Martyrs for the Reformed doctrines in, i. 5, 6, 58-66, 117-119, 237-241, 308, 495, 500, 516, 519-526, 543-555.
- Scotland, Nobles of, resolution of, to take summary vengeance on the flatterers of James V., i. 79, 80; refuse, at his desire, to pursue the English army into England, 80, 81; efforts of the prelates to irritate that monarch against, 82-84; the Reformation favoured by divers of, in 1545, 126, 127, 131, 134; most of, had promised amity to Cardinal Beaton in 1546, 172; refused in 1558 to invade England when the Queen Regent had resolved upon war against that kingdom, 255, 256. See Congregation, Lords of the.
- Scotland, Preachers of the Reformed doctrines exiles from, i. 54-56, 60, 61, 66, 72, 526-531.
- Scotland, Preachers of the Reformed doctrines in, in 1543, i. 95, 96; in 1547, 182-188; in 1555, 245, 246; in 1558, 256, 300, 301; in 1560, ii. 87.
- Scotland, Protestants in, included almost the whole nobility, i. 249-251, 256, 274, 275; vi. 29, 32, 33; manner of their procedure in reforming the Church, i. 302, 314; vi. 34, 40-43, 47, 62, 65, 66; their supplication to the Privy Council touching the suppression of idolatry, ii. 161-164. See Congregation, Lords of the.
- Scotland, Reformed Church of, ii. 264; old forms of worship in, superseded by the Westminster Directory, vi. 282; various offices in, at the Reformation, only tem- porary, 385; small number of ministers in, for some years, 388. See Book of Common Order.

- Scotland, Romish Church of, liberal measures as to the patrimony of, recommended in the Book of Discipline, ii. 221, 226; vi. 383, 384.
- Scriptures, The, Act of Parliament allowing them to be read in the vulgar tongue, i. 98-103, 523; iii. 407; doctrine of the Scottish Confession of Faith as to, ii. 112; to be read in the Church, ii. 240; the interpretation of, 242-245.
- Semipelagianism, v. 10.
- Sempill, Robert, third Lord, sent by the Queen Regent to the Protestants in Perth, i. 337; an "enemy to God and to all godliness," 339; his castle besieged by the Lords of the Congregation, ii. 130; a member of the assize at the mock trial of the Earl of Bothwell for the murder of Darnley, 552; one of the Lords who opposed Queen Mary at Carberry Hill, 559.
- Servetus, Opinions of, v. 226, 227; his being put to death, defended by Knox, 224-229.
- Seymour, Edward, Earl of Hertford, and Duke of Somerset, Lord Protector of England, his expedition into Scotland, and the battle of Pinkie, i. 209, 213; iv. 568; his apprehension, iii. 167; became cold in hearing the Word, 176, 177; unfeelingly signed the warrant for his brother's execution, 277; condemned and beheaded, 278, 283; letter of Henry Balnaves to, 411, 419; encouraged foreign Protestants in England to carry on woollen manufactures, iv. 42, 564; v. 14.
- Seytoun, Alexander, began to tax the corrupt doctrines of the Papistry, i. 45; his witty defence, 46, 47; confessor to James V., 47; accused of heresy to the King, 48; fled to escape his fury, ib.; letter from, to the King, 48-52; taught the Evangel for some years in England, 54; his death, 55, 531-533.
- Sinclair, Henry, Dean of Glasgow, Bishop of Ross, and Lord President, his appointment to the See of Ross, i. 274; notices of, 274; ii. 398; in 1561, offered to be content with three parts of the rents of his benefice, ii. 300, 303, 379; "ane perfect hypocrite," and an enemy to Knox, 398, 403; voted for the absolution of Knox, when brought before the Queen and Council, 411; his elevation to be President of the Court of Session, inveighed against, 425, 428; copy of Bishop Jewel's Apology presented by Randolph to, vi. 139; his sickness, 144.
- Sinclair, John, Dean of Restalrig, Bishop of Brechin and Lord President, i. 99; one of Queen Mary's flattering counsellors, 235; his hypocrisy, 265, 266; notice of, 265; reasoned with Adam Wallace the martyr, 549; instigated the French Court to send a new army against the Protestants of Scotland, ii. 131; "the lyeing Deane of Restalrig," 141, 385; had been in France in 1564, 483; Queen Mary and Darnley married by, 495; his death, 528.
- Sinclair, John, a name assumed by Knox, iv. 225, 245, 248, 253.
- Sinclair, Oliver, of Pitcairnes, pressed James V. to persecute the Protestants, i. 67, 83; intended to be made lieutenant-general of the Scottish army about to invade England in 1542, 84; proclaimed lieutenant-general, 86, 88, 89, 91.
- Sick, The, Visitation of, iv. 202; vi. 327-332.
- Smeton, Mr. Thomas, Principal of the University of Glasgow, notice of, vi. 646-648; account of Knox's last illness and death published by, iv. 92; vi. 645, 646. See Lawson, James.
- Societies, Private, for Christian edification, iv. 71, 131-140, 308, 319; v. 497.
- Solway, Defeat of James V. by the English at, i. 83-89.
- Somerville, Hugh, fifth Lord, taken prisoner at the battle of Solway, i. 88; supported the faction of the Earl of Lennox against the Governor, the Earl of Arran, 111; subscribed the Treaty of Berwick between Queen Elizabeth and the Lords of the Congregation, ii. 53; subscribed the Band to defend the liberty of the Evangel, and for expelling the French from Scotland, at Edinburgh, April 1560, ii. 63, 299; vi. 111.

- Sorbonne, College of the, iv. 289, 292, 294, 298, 299.
- Soul, The, false charge against George Wishart that it should sleep until the last day, i. 167, 170; ii. 109.
- Spens, John, of Condie, King's Advocate, notice of, i. 419; ii. 401, 491, 304; a professor of the gospel, and his gentleness towards Knox, 401, 403, 405, 477; sent by the Queen to the Lords, who met at Stirling, in July 1565, for security of the Reformed religion, 492, 497.
- Spottiswood, John, Superintendent of Lothian and Tweeddale, his appointment to that office, ii. 87; vi. 386; one of those appointed to draw up the Book of Discipline, ii. 128; the form and order of his election to be Superintendent, 144-150; vi. 384; notice of, ii. 144, 424; called for by Queen Mary, in 1565, and her fair words to, 482, 511, 517, 528, 538; visited with Knox the churches of the west to reform abuses, vi. 143, 152; described by Quintine Kennedy as a pestilent preacher, 165-167; prayed the General Assembly of December 1563 to be allowed to return to his former cure as minister of Calder, 386, 440, 443, 534, 537; requested by Knox to admonish Kirkcaldy of Grange, 583, 622.
- Spottiswood, John, Archbishop of St. Andrews, ii. 144; omissions and alterations made on the copy of the Book of Discipline inserted in his History, 587-589; iii. 408, 409.
- Stark, Helen, drowned at Perth for heresy, i. 523-526.
- Stewart, James, Lord Prior of St. Andrews, afterwards Earl of Murray. See Murray, Earl of.
- Stewart, James, Commendator of St. Colme, subscribed the Treaty of Berwick between Queen Elizabeth and the Lords of the Congregation, ii. 53; subscribed the Band to defend the liberty of the Evangel, at Edinburgh, April 1560, 63; a member of the Parliament of April 1560, 88; notice of, ib., 492; vi. 128, 133.
- Stewart, Lord John, Prior of Coldingham, a member of the Parliament of August 1560, ii. 88; a natural son of King James V., ib.; protected the priest who celebrated Queen Mary's first mass after her arrival in Scotland, 271, 293; his riotous conduct in Edinburgh, 315; married to the Earl of Bothwell's sister, 320; notice of, ib., 389; went to the North, 391; his death at Inverness, 392; his character, 392; vi. 129.
- Stewart, Margaret, second wife of John Knox, iii. 114, 115; her marriage to Knox, vi. 532, 533; attended him under his last illness, 634, 639, 642, 643, 654, 655.
- Stewart, Lord Robert, Abbot of Holyroodhouse, afterwards Bishop of Caithness, a natural son of James V., i. 458; notice of, ib.; subscribed the Treaty of Berwick between Queen Elizabeth and the Lords of the Congregation, ii. 53; present at the Parliament of August 1560, 88; protected the priest who celebrated Queen Mary's first mass after her arrival in Scotland, 271, 293; his marriage with the sister of the Earl of Cassilis, 321; went to the North, 391; a member of the General Assembly at Perth in 1572, vi. 622, 630, 639; visited Knox on his deathbed, 640.
- Stirling, Destruction of monasteries at, by the rascal multitude, i. 362.
- Stoical necessity, stated and refuted, v. 32-34, 116, 119, 133, 185, 274.
- Stratoun, David, of Lauriston, his trial for heresy in Holyroodhouse Abbey in 1536, i. 58-60; notice of, 58; hanged and burned at Greenside, 60; vi. 666; Foxe's account of the martyrdom of, i. 519-521; date of his martyrdom, vi. 666.
- Sunday, i. 275; ii. 238, 313; marriages celebrated on, 321, 494, 533, 551; Knox usually wrote his letters on, after delivering his sermons, 326; the Duke of Chateherault supped with Knox on, vi. 145.
- Superintendents, First appointment of, ii. 87; form and order of the election of, 143-150; the office temporary, 144; vi. 385, 386; doctrine of the Book of Discipline as to, ii. 201-208, 423-511, 528, 529; different from a bishop, 532; iii. 270, 271; vi. 122, 167; complaints brought against, 387; address by them and the ministers to all the faithful within the realm, as to the support of the ministers, 431-436.

Supralapsarianism, v. 11.

Supremacy over the Church, James the Sixth's zeal for the assumption of, iv. 426, 427; this never conceded by Knox to the civil ruler, 427; Act for restoring, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, vi. 4.

Surplice, Letter from the General Assembly, in December 1566, to the English Bishops about the, i. 544-547; iv. 11, 22, 53, 62.

Sutherland, John, eleventh Earl of, joined the Lords of the Congregation, ii. 6, 7; notice of, 6; treason of, 359; forfeited by the Parliament of 1563, 381; left Edinburgh after the slaughter of Riccio, 523; married the lady of the Earl of Bothwell after her divorce, 553.

Sweating sickness, iii. 167.

T

TABERNACLE, Annual offerings to the, iv. 528-530.

Taxation, Exorbitant, by the Queen Regent, i. 407.

Teachers, How to be provided for, according to the Book of Discipline, ii. 200, 201.

Testament, New, in English, Henry Forrester committed to the flames for simply having, i. 53.

Throckmorton, Sir Nicholas, Letters of, to Queen Elizabeth, ii. 168-174; vi. 551-557; his arrival at Stirling in 1565, as her ambassador, ii. 480-482; letter of Thomas Randolph to, vi. 127-129, 136.

Tithes or Teinds, i. 8, 58, 59, 194; iv. 127.

Tonstall, Dr. Cuthbert, Bishop of Durham, summoned Knox before the Council of the North, iii. 32; appearance of Knox before the Council and, 33-70; vi. 155; a maintainer of idolatry, iii. 180; convicted of murder and theft, 247; raged and triumphed against the truth, 284, 285, 293; his treachery in adjudging the Imperial Crown of England to Philip II. of Spain, 296, 297; vi. 139.

Transubstantiation, i. 158, 159, 545-547, 553; ii. 114; iii. 278, 279; iv. 194, 197, 314, 315, 563; vi. 162-164, 174.

Treason, Barbarous custom of bringing the corpse of a deceased person when accused of, into Court, ii. 381.

Trent, Council of, its resolution to exterminate all of the new religion throughout the world, vi. 402, 403, 442, 558.

Tylney, Emery, scholar of George Wishart, his account of Wishart's person and habits, vi. 670-672.

U

UNIVERSITIES, Book of Discipline as to, ii. 213-221; none to be received into, without due trial of their capacity and probity, 564; the Kirk not to be subjected to, vi. 619, 630.

V

VALDENSES, The, i. 494.

Vestments, Letter of Knox, in name of the General Assembly, to the English Bishops in reference to, ii. 544-547.

W

WALLACE, ADAM, alias Fean, arrested for heresy in 1550, i. 237; notice of, ib.; his accusation and answers, 238-241; protestation of the Earl of Glencairne against his death, 240; burnt upon the Castlehill, Edinburgh, 241; the chief instrument of his death, John Hamilton, Abbot of Paisley, 543; account of his trial and condemnation by Foxe, 543-550; iv. 285.

Washing the disciples' feet not a part of the Lord's Supper, iv. 163.

Wedderburn, James, of Dundee, a poet, i. 530.

Wedderburn, John, Vicar of Dundee, author of a metrical version of the Psalms of David, i. 139; notice of, 531.

Whittingham, William, minister, probable author of Narrative of the Troubles at Frankfurt, iv. 4, 5; fled to Frankfurt from the persecution of Mary Queen of England, 9, 10; subscribed the invitation of the English Church at Frankfurt to Knox to become their pastor, 13; sided with Knox in the controversy which subsequently arose, 17, 19, 21; letter from Calvin to him and Knox, regarding the English Prayer-Book, 28-30, 51-53; assisted in drawing up the English Genevese

- Book of Common Order, 30, 31, 34, 46, 146, 157; his character of Knox, 38; commanded by the magistrates of Frankfurt to desire Knox to depart from the city, 39, 48, 50; letter from, to Calvin, 54; notice of, 55, 65, 145, 147; translated a portion of the version of the psalms in "Knox's Psalms and Liturgy," 66; vi. 285, 335, 339; his sentiments those of Knox in regard to female government, iv. 351, 356, 544; character of, by Dr. Thomas Fuller, 546, 549; one of the translators of the Geneva Bible, 550, 551; revised at Paris Knox's work on predestination, v. 15*, 16*.
- Willock, John, Superintendent of Glasgow and the West, notice of, i. 245, 247, 256; preached the Reformed faith in Dundee and Edinburgh, 301; proposed disputation between him and Quintine Kennedy, in March 1559, vi. 154, 179; described by Kennedy as a pestilent preacher, etc., 165-167; came to Perth with the Earl of Glencairne, i. 342, 343; supplied Knox's place as minister of Edinburgh for some time, 388, 389, 442; had departed to England, 465; his interview with the Queen Regent, ii. 71; appointed Superintendent of Glasgow, 87; vi. 119, 122, 386; one of those appointed to draw up the Book of Discipline, ii. 128; called for by Queen Mary, in 1565, and her fair words to, 482, 484; letter of General Assembly, in January 1567-8, to, requesting him to return to Scotland from England, vi. 445, 446; his letter to Knox on the death of the Regent Murray, 572.
- Winzet, Ninian, Master of the Grammar School of Linlithgow, afterwards Abbot of the Scottish Monastery of St. James at Ratisbon, notice of, vi. 152, 153; his Booke of Four-score three Questions, 153; answer to his Questions purposed by Knox, but never executed, 193.
- Wishart, George, preached in Montrose and Dundee, i. 125; and in Ayr, 127; and on a moor near Mauchline, 128; returned to Dundee on hearing that the plague had broken out, 129; his sermon there, 129-130; a priest hired to assassinate, 130; vi. 670; returned to Montrose, i. 131; stratagem of Cardinal Beaton against his life, 131, 132; again in Dundee, 132, 133; preached in Leith, 134; and in Inveresk, 135, 136; and in Tra-nent, 136; and in Haddington, 136-138; went to Ormiston, 139; apprehended by the Earl of Bothwell, 140-142; carried to Edinburgh and imprisoned by the Regent in the castle, 143, 144; delivered by the Regent to Cardinal Beaton, by whom he was imprisoned in the Sea Tower of St. Andrews, 144; articles of which he was accused, and his answers, 148-167; his prayer, 167, 168; his words at his execution, 169, 170; hanged and burned, 171; resentment excited by his death, ib.; which was avenged, 172, 176, 177; was not implicated in the English schemes for assassinating Cardinal Beaton, 215, 536, 537; notice of, 534-537; his parentage, 534; vi. 667, 668; account of his person and habits by his scholar, Emery Tylney, 670-672.
- Wishart, Sir John, of Pittarrow, Comptroller, with the Protestants at Perth, in 1559, i. 337, 347; vi. 35; one of the commissioners sent by the Lords of the Congregation to the Queen Regent, in 1559, i. 366, 369, 378; subscribed a letter addressed to her by the Protestant Lords after they had suspended her from the Regency, 451; one of the commissioners despatched to Berwick by the Lords of the Congregation to form a treaty with commissioners from Queen Elizabeth, ii. 45, 47, 64; iii. 414; one of the commissioners appointed to inquire into the rentals of the ecclesiastical benefices, ii. 304; appointed to pay the ministers' stipends, 310; his parsimony to the ministers, 311; notice of, ib.; the honour of knighthood conferred on him by Queen Mary, 314; with the Earl of Murray in the battle between him and the Earl of Huntley at Corrichie in Aberdeenshire, 356; hated by Queen Mary, 392, 403, 423; joined the Lords who opposed her by arms, in 1565, 499; letter of Knox to, in July 1572, vi. 616; pedigree of his family, 661-669.
- Wishart, Families of the name of, vi. 669.

- Witches burned, ii. 391, 357,
- Women, The vain Apparel of, condemned by the Reformed preachers, ii. 381; by Knox, iv. 225-229; and by Tertullian, 381, 382.
- Women, Knox's First Blast of the Trumpet against the monstrous Regiment of, 349-420, 452, 453, 553, 554; v. 3-6; vi. 14, 15, 18; propositions to be discussed in his proposed Second Blast, iv. 539.
- Women in childbed, Purification of, iv. 27, 61.
- Wood, John, of Tilliedavy, secretary to the Regent Murray, refused to assist the General Assembly, in December 1561, with his advice, ii. 295; notices of, ib.; vi. 560; hated by Queen Mary, ii. 392, 393; as secretary to the Regent Murray employed in the proceedings against Queen Mary at York, in 1568, iii. 415; vi. 121, 445; letters of Knox to, 558-561, 612, 645.
- Works, Good, Doctrine of the Scottish Confession of Faith as to, ii. 104-107; do not precede faith, but are its fruits, iii. 20-24, 494-496, 506; answer to the arguments adduced to prove that man is justified by, 496-504; true place of, 507, 510, 514, 515.
- Works of Supererogation, iii. 131.
- Worship, Divine, Inventions of man in, forbidden, iii. 34-47; things indifferent not to be pressed in, iv. 62.
- Worship, Public, how to be performed according to the English Service Book, iv. 22; according to the English Genevese Book of Common Order, iv. 179-186.
- Wykliffe, John, i. 494.
- Wynrame, Dean John, Sub-prior of the Abbey of St. Andrews, i. 36; notice of, 150; his sermon before the trial of George Wishart, ib.; his interview with Wishart, 168; present at Knox's first public sermon, delivered in St. Andrews, in 1547, 192; presided at a convention of Gray and Black Friars in St. Andrews, before which John Rough and Knox were called, 193; reasoning between him and Knox respecting the use of ceremonies in divine worship, 194-197; appointed Superintendent for Fife, ii. 87; vi. 122, 386, 387; member of Parliament, in August 1560, 88; vi. 118, 120; one of those appointed to draw up the Book of Discipline, ii. 128, 424; described by Quintine Kennedy as a pestilent preacher, &c., vi. 165-167; called for by Queen Mary, in 1565, and her fair words to, ii. 482, 517.

THE WORKS OF
JOHN KNOX;

COLLECTED AND EDITED

BY DAVID LAING.

VOLUME SIXTH.—PART SECOND.

EDINBURGH:
THOMAS GEORGE STEVENSON,
22, FREDERICK STREET.

MDCCCLXIV.

common from 3000 - 3200
 - Javel rabbit - 371
 - Javel & Solon - 343
 o Tents - 341, 361
 - Bed of the - 341
 The X... - 344, 346, 357, 364, 714 412
 - Infot... - 346, 364, 519
 - nat. knowledge - 346, 359
 - latter day - 347, 418
 o Prison - 348, 362, 541
 - lively kind of church - 350
 - ... - 350
 - ... - 351
 - ... - 356, 560, 639

G... - 1... 59
Upward - 602

Known Books
 p. 620
 633

AD SCOTOS TRANSEUNTIBUS PRIMIS OCCURIT MAGNUS ILLE JOANNES
 CINOXUS; QUEM SI SCOTORUM IN VERO DEI CULTU INSTAURANDO, VELUT
 APOSTOLUM QUENDAM DIXERO, DIXISSE ME QUOD RES EST EXISTIMABO.

THEOD. BEZA.

72... - 362
 362
 - ... - 364 of 400
 - ... - 364
 - ... - 366
 - vicarious prayer - 398
 - ... - 410
 - ... - 412, 413
 - ... - 420
 - ... - 435
 EDINBURGH: T. CONSTABLE.
 PRINTER TO THE QUEEN, AND TO THE UNIVERSITY.
 - ... - 464, 466
 - ... - 519
 - ... - 539
 - ... - 584

Rept. trinity samples - 198

Eucharistic samples - 198

→ grounds of faith - 205, 364, 370, 433

samples of faith - 205

o Doctrines of G.M. - 294, 296, 305, 311, 317, 343, 361, 368, 408, 462

Benedict's finalism - 297, 369

Prayer in the Eucharistic of Christ - 299, 304, 307, 311, 344, 426, 396, 365, 372

Christ's challenge in M. - 302, 313

Eccl. history - 302, 314, 317, 323, 349, 444

Commonwealth - 304, 602

New covenant - 307

death of Christ - 307, 319, 328, 344, 351, 363, 418, 457

Thy Kingdom of X. Jesus - 308

Eucharist - 312, 324, 345, 365

Unity - 314, 316, 323, 355

Continuity of church - 314

Sacraments - 316, 365

Baptism - 316, 323, 365

sanctification of the church - 317, 322, 357, 409

Doctrines of church - 318, 363, 372

o Aratus - 317, 362, 372

Memoria - 320

Imagines - 322, 346, 350, 357, 362, 518

Doctrines of Christ - 322, 344, 351, 359, 363, 370, 379, 638, 418, 519

Doctrines of church - 322, 344, 365

Faith in Jesus - 323, 331, 364

Ex communication - 324

Marriage - 326

Beza m. w. - 564, ~~ambrosia~~, 614
eschaloch - 494 f. of 504! 505 f. 1267
King's m. w. to am. p. m. m. - 195 f.
Firms - 194
Augustine - 194, 195

loads of articles - p. 115, 110

The Gt. Council of Sentences - 55, 67, 81, 87
n. m. f. - relations in composition - 78

~~Ad~~ Ad lassius - 267 nature like to hand of Bo - 270
2 ch u r a r n i s - 270 f.
X a r d r a t - 271

R. Har - 100 - imagination - 172, 195 f. 367 ro h a n s u r e t i o n - 174 phil. v a r i t u l o g - 175.

double operation of first word - 186 f. of 188 ordinary succession - 187 to the way of sentences its own nature being - 188

king's eyes for purpose used for purpose when - 187 f. 190, body, cool ch. 190, 322 f

human nature of deity - 190, 302, 304, 306, 351 f
God's own words deity 190 378, 362 f

social impulse of Bo - 190

Ps. → orders of deification - 191 f. 433 sin - 192, 294, 302 validity - 192 f. 365 f.

ordination - 193

The tree King - 194, 408

causes of orders - 194

Christ of man - 213, 313, 315, 316 while assuming of in redemption 363 self-characterisation - 11, 229, 190, 192, 559, 592, 657 in ap. Anglican prayer - bk. 12 f, 83 f office of the minister - 13, 300, 365, 425, 433 639

 Knox not ap. audience - 30, 32, 36, 82 655
 Church only on sanctification - 79, 85
 Parable - 79
 no. of Baptisms (in Eng.) - 83 f
 no. of work - 84, 345, 365, 428
no. of stimulation - 84
Baptisms - 76, 95 f, 316 f, 323 f, 344 f
 Knox writes for Calvin's part 11559 (with) 401
Book of Discipline - 119, 4279, 4383 approval of Infirmary - 122
 Theology of Christ - 127, 268, 195, 314, 321 f, 134 f
 426, 424, 422, 414, 357
 → John's last sermon - 130 618
How call Calvin in Paris - 134 also most wonderful matter - 135
 The one person as Robinson's 501 - 236 duty of a King - 238, 299
 Work of the Spirit of God above nature - 240, 344, 418 where? : order of justice - 241 virtue work - 243, 195, 315, 433, 449 regeneration - 244, 259, 261 f, 262, 273, 320 f, 323 f 344 f, 363, 636, 642
 Revolution - 246
 human nature - 246, 359, 372, 462
 ch. increase in affections - 246, 250
 Gospel doctrine - 250, 300, 315, 346 f, 350, 355 f
 ch. of his ch. - 251, 314 f woman's yearning for medicine - 253, 349
 Man's work - G.M. in W.A. esauane - 253 f, 632 → Visions of faith - 258, 265 regeneration - 259 realised eschatology - 263 assurance - 265
 ch. of predilection - 267
 ch. under the

